CHOSE TRUSTEE.

L. P. Vogel Appointed Trustee of White Milling Co.

The creditors of White Milling Co., bankrupt, selected Lewis P. Vogel trustee after a hot fight before Referee Harlow P. Davock at the office of TurnBull & Witherell Wednesday afternoon.

There was a hot fight on between the different factions as to choice of trustee, that extended to the attorneys in the case as well, the Bacon-Holmes faction being anxious for the appointment of D. C. McLaren the present receiver, as their candidate Supervisor Beckwith. Mr. Vogel was finally chosen. He has accepted the office, has qualified and given bond in sum of $2,000, the amount named by referee.

It is alleged that when the failure of the White Milling company occurred the firm of TurnBull & Witherell, attorneys for the concern, sent out notices to all the creditors that they were in the business of protecting the creditors. The latter part

"Now while nominally we represent the board of directors in the matter, farmers, if you have not already neys, we should be pleased to look after your interests, and take the necessary steps to protect the creditors in this matter. As it seems to us the whole matter resolves itself down to a point where the creditors who have bonafide claims should protect themselves against these Chicago that we should take the plans for new parties and do the same in the bankruptcy courts forthwith."

Now the situation as it is advanced by the other side is to the effect that attorneys for the firm to act against creditors of the Milling company. been thoroughly renovated. Among those so-called preferred creditors are H. S. Holmes and the the manner in which they became preferred creditors is said to be as

When it became evident that the Milling company was to fail they procured payment to themselves in the form of flour and wheat and applied it on their claim. The bankruptcy law is that when any company is insolvent any one getting payment in full must account to the trustee. If this is followed out, the opposition claim, these two creditors who asked to be called preferred creditors will probably be asked to pay back the amount so secured and then come in on the general distribution.

The liabilities of the company, including the secured claims, amount to between $6,000 and $8,000. Included this amount is a mortgage for $3,400 which is secured. The remainder includes that due to farmers for wheat furnished, amounting to about $1,200 and claims for material furnished, such as fuel, oil in barrels and a large amount from unfilled orders, where orders had been taken for flour and were not not delivered at the time of the failure. The claim of Mr. Holmes is for money advanced to run the business, and it is said that when it became evident that the failure was inevitable these two creditors secured the products in the mill as a part payment of their claim.

Associated with TurnBull & Witherell are A. & F. Freeman, of Ann Arbor, and for the opposition creditors are John Kalmbach and Frank

New Gasoline Red Can Law.

State Oil Inspector Neal calls the public's attention to a few changes made by the present legislature in the so called "Red Can" Gasoline act. The new law, which goes into effect September 1st next, provides that cans, buckets, barrels, etc., which are to be painted a bright red, may be "lettered" with the word gasoline instead of being "stenciled" as heretofore. It also provides that retail merchants must have the barrels or tanks in their stores, from which they sell, painted bright red and lettered thereon with the word gasoline.

The delivery to customers, and dealers as well, must be made in re cepticles (cans, buckets, jugs, barrels ning out in the last part of the game that are painted bright red and let-

GAME LAW CHANGES.

The Last Legislature Made Some Very Radical Changes.

The last legislature made some radcal changes in the game and fish laws. Those of most concern to local sportsmen are the protection of quail for a period of five years, and the changing of the open season for black bass from May 20 to April 1, to June 15 to February 1. *

The Michigan society for the protection of fish and game, the most influential association of sportsmen ever organized in the state, advocated the adoption of the Harris bill. revising all the game and fish laws. As-the legislature could not get tocated by the Standard, by the largest gether on the provisions limiting the number of deer which sportsmen were allowed to kill, in the closing days of the session the old laws were amended in three important particulars.

> The trout law is amended to make the open season May 1 to September 1, instead of August 15.

The black bass open season is made June 15 to February 1, instead of May 20 to April 1.

Quail are to be protected throughout the state for a period of five

This changes the trout law back to the old dates. The previous legislature made the open season two weeks earlier, and it was not satisfactory.

Neither is there objection to the shorter season for black bass, which another year begins June 15 instead of May 20. The bass have not finished spawning by the latter date, and the change is in the nature of conserving one of the finest of the game and food fishes. As to the protection of quail for five years, there is diversity of opinion. The association asked to have the size of the bag limited, but there was no organized demand for the prohibition of quail shooting altogether. In fact, the birds are more plentiful now than they have been for some years, with favorable breeding seasons and protection previous to last fall, and hunters were congratulating themselves on the prospective fine school house for $25,000, and everyone sport. The question seems to be be-Wm. Bacon-Holmes Company, and will know just what they are getting tween those who disapprove altogether of the shooting of Bob White vote a proposition of this kind and the sportsmen. Ornithologists say he does a great deal of good by devouring seeds of weeds and noxious insects, and farmers are more and more opposed to his killing, particularly by city hunters, some of whom are mightily indifferent to the rights of the country people. On the other hand, sportsmen assert that a few hard winters, which are inevitable in this latitude, will kill off the quail, no matter how plentiful they become, and death by a shot gun is more pleasant and profitable than death by the elements. It is certain that the

ACCOUNTS FOR TWIN SHOCKS

Scientific Explanation of Cause of Tremore Separated by But a Few Seconds.

Among the most interesting earth tremors, from a scientific point of view, are those known as "twin earthquakes," where two distinct series of shocks are felt, separated by an interval of two or three seconds. In each series the vibrations increase to a maximum and die away, the whole duration, including the quiet interval, being eight to twelve seconds. In the British Isles the most powerful shocks are nearly always of this kind. When they occur, however, there is always a strip of country where only one shock is felt. Apparently there are two distinct points of origin for these shocks, and the strip where a single shock is felt is that where the two sets of vibrations arrive simultaneously. The fact that this band is straight shows that the twin shocks occur together and that therefore one is not a consequence of the other. Probably there is an S-shaped bend in some interior layer of rock and the twin foci are at the points of greatest displacement-namely, the bend of the The movement that causes such a twin earthquake therefore results in accentuating the form of the fold in the earth's crust.

- Ancestral Neglect.

What mathematician can see why everybody on this planet isn't living on the compound interest of two or three dollars invested by his greatgrandfather? In a Lincoln court the administrator of the estate of a child born 40 years ago is suing the child's father for $15,000.

This is the product at seven per cent. compound interest of $1,000 alleged to have been given the child in care of the father by the grandfather in recognition of the naming the child after the grandparent. Another ten years more this thousand would be $30,000, and on the centenary of the child's birth his heirs would be entitled to a third of a million if they were entitled to anything.

Still another century and their demand would be for over a hundred millions, perhaps a fifth of the wealth of Andrew Carnegie. The fact that only one man in a million understands how diligently the compound interest table works while mere men sleep is one of the reasons for millionaires .-Lincoln (Neb.) Journal.

"Speaker Cannon's?" "Yes; have you got it?"

The clerk went to the rear of the store and held his head for a few minutes. Then he returned and said: "Possibly it is Canon Farrar's 'Early Days of Christianity' that you are looking for."

"That's it," exclaimed the fair inquirer. "I knew it had something about cannons in it."-Saturday Evening Post.

Mustang Has Arab Blood.

What is known as the California horse or mustang is in his ancestry and essential qualities an Arab. His forbears were brought by the Arabians into Asia Minor; thence by the conquering Moslems into the Barbary countries; thence by the Moors into Spain; thence by the Spaniards to horseless America, and thence to Mexico, whence they spread throughout the western half of the continent. Hard fare and inbreeding have deteriorated the mustang at some points. but in his essential qualities the California horse is still a true son of the desert. The attempt is now being made to improve the breed by the importation of Arab stock.

King Edward's Title. It is not only Edward the Confessor's distinctive title that made his present majesty Edward VII., whereas he is, in fact, Edward X. There had been two previous Edwards. Edward I. was, of course, the first of the Norman line, but the use by Plantagenets of that Saxon name shows that they did not intend to cut off the connection. The present king of England descends from both lines, but he could not disarrange the numbering of the Plantagenets and their succeeding Edwards; and, curiously enough, the three Saxons had titles that took the place of numbers-the Elder, the Martyr and the Confessor.-London Chron-

> Bills introduced—884. Passed—261. Introduced in senate—340. Passed in house—53. Introduced in house—544. Passed in senate—198. In session 86 days.

Now that the work of the late legislature is finished, a detailed report of what it has accomplished will be of interest to the general public and a compliation of the measures that have passed both houses is submitted. These bills will be on file in the office of the secretary of state, and will be sent on request to any person desiring to examine the full text of any bill.
The enrolled number of the House or Senate as given in each synopsis should be stated when writing for a copy of any bill.
So far every bill passed has met with the approval of the Governor and not a single veto is expected. The two most imsingle veto is expected. The two most important bills which failed to get through were the anti-lobby bill, which was a pet measure of the Governor, and the civil service bill, which was not. In addition to this, both the Baker and Haviland telephone bills this, both the Baker and Haviland tele-phone bills, making rates and regulations for telephone companies, failed of passage, as did the Green bill requiring telegraph companies to transmit the filing time of messages over the wire. The bill to prevent deception in the capacity of berry boxes was also killed, together with the stallion registration bill, in which so many farmers were interested. Another import-ant measure that went into the discard at ant measure that went into the discard the finish was the bill to prevent the polition of the streams of the state by sew

Of these bills, 63 Senate bills passed the House and 198 House bills passed the Senate, making a total of 261 bills passed. Two years ago 1,578 bills were introduced in both houses and 754 passed. Important Bills.

Important Bills.

Among the important bills passed were: The home rule bills, giving home rule to cities, villages and counties. In the village bill, Rep. Miller succeeded in squeezing in an amendment in the closing hours of much interest to cities. It provides that a village may issue no general bonds without providing a sinking fund. This will prevent the villages bonding away up in the air with the idea of unloading this debt when they are annexed to the city. Municipal ownership is also provided for.

The Marblehead and the Nashville were brought within range of the shore fortifications. Their two commanders stood where for hours they were fair marks for the enemy's guns. On that day McCalla of the Marblehead and his colleagues of the Nashville gave their men an example of heroism that to-day shines on the pages of naval history. If they were heroic, their juniors were none less heroic, and two boats' crews of seamen won it is her mother's place to ask God that day the recognition of their government as being for blessings.

command of the cable-cutting outfit, consisting of launches from the Marblehead and its sister ship.

The orders of the launch commanders were to run in close to Colorados Point and there to grapple for the cables and to cut them. Just back of the launches, coming as close as they could and to avoid grounding, were the Marblehead and the Nashville, with the men at the guns ready to cover the work of the heroes.

the launches probably were going to their deaths, no is thinkin' of elopin'. I never know man should be ordered to the duty, but that volunteers how many I've got till supper time should be asked for. Every man on both ships volunteered for the service. The sailors and marines were told by Lieut. Anderson, under the orders of Commander McCalla, that it was extremely likely that those who went would never some back, and that it must be distinctly understood that no man was to go unless he wanted to go. They all wanted to go, and 16 went in each boat, but not all returned.

McCalla ran the Marbiehead into a favorable position and opened fire on the rifle pits of the Spaniards, which ran at right angles to one face of the cable-house. The Nashville shelled the chaparral beyond. The launches started toward the beach and reached a point only 100 feet distant from the breaking surf. There a cable was grappled, lifted and after extreme exertion, was cut. There were yet other cables, and the launches started for the point beneath which one was supposed to lie. They found it, lifted it and cut it, when suddenly the enemy, who had been using rifles, opened with machine guns, which had apparently been brought up in response to a message from the cable-house that the enemy was attacking.

There was a third cable and with the bullets cutting the waves about them like hail on the sea, the heroic boat crews worked on. Lieut. Winslow was shot through the head; he paid no attention to the wound, though it was severe. Robert Volz, a seaman, was shot four times. Patrick Reagan, Herman W. Kuchmeister and Harry Hendrickson were mortally wounded and six other men of the command were struck. Volz came back to life after

It was Rear Admiral McCalla, who, at that time, had been promoted to a captaincy, who took personal command of a hundred seamen and marines and started for allies to arrive at the Chinese city. A breach was made in the wall, and maring that the whole 19's a tousid cave in, the engineer took the train out of the tunnel, and, gathering headway, it went at full speed for the next hiding place. Lyon took a flying shot and plant-

The Dolphin went in nearer to the beach and the crew opened with small arms on the troops, who returned the fire with their rifles and then made a scramble for cover. It is said that in this affair 100 Spaniards were killed or wounded. Rear Admiral Lyon is spoken of by his comrades in arms as "The Gallant Lyon." He is a fine sailor and doubtless he regrets that he has come to the end of his active duty cruise, and is in the port of retirement. Rear Admiral Bowman Hendry McCalla is an old American sailor who has been obliged by the fixed law of the service to seek a land berth for the rest of his life. He is active enough to go through more storms and more battles for his country's sake, but the youngsters must be given a chance, and so Mc-Calla has stowed away within earshot of the noise of the sounding sea which he loves. Heroism during the Spanish war and heroism at Tien-tsin during the invasion of China brought honors to McCalla to be added to the accumulation of honors earlier and worthily won.

Years ago Admiral McCalla, then a commander, went ashore at Colon on the Isthmus of Panama, and backed by 150 blue jackets and marines, thrashed a regiment of Panama insurgents who were erecting barricades and were attempting to interfere with the Central and South American cable offices. It was said that McCalla thrashed the insurgents. He thrashed them without firing a shot. He did not care to involve his government in possible far-reaching trouble, and so he took means of his own to teach the troublesome ones a lesson without shedding their blood. Veracious history has it that the American commander, after a showing of force, captured the insurgent leaders and spanked them.

The cable-cutting operations which Admiral McCalla conducted while in command of the Marblehead during the Spanish war were among the most notable achievements of that conflict, being carried on under the heaviest kind of fire not only from the great guns of the forts, but from the small and deadly firearms in the hands of hidden Spanish sharpshooters who lined the shore.

During the second week in May, 1898, the Marblehead's commander made up his mind that there was a chance that the cables of the submarine company in Cuba leading from Cienfuegos harbor might be cut if a daring plan which he evolved could be carried out successfully. The plan was carried out successfully, and it brought fame not only to the man who conceived it, but to the younger officers and to the seamen who dared deathin fact, fairly courted death-that they might obey orders

The work was done and it was costly, but naval authorities declare that it was worth the price. All the time that the operations in the launches were proceeding Commander McCalla, standing on the bridge of his vessel, was made the target of the heavy guns and the small guns of the enemy. It was the Dolphin, under Commander Lyon which supported the marines in their fights at Guantanamo and at Cusco. The Dolphin constantly shelled the enemy, causing them to break from cover to give the marines on shore the opportunity of fighting something besides a hidden enemy.

AG DAY, June 14, reminds that previous to the so-called birth of the flag an American flag, believed to be the rattlesnake flag of yellow silk, had been raised above the Alfred, the flagship of the commander-in-chief of the navy, Lieut. John Paul Jones. This was December, 1775, but when the fleet sailed January 5,1776, a flag was displayed "with 12 stripes in the field. emblematic of the 13 united colonies."

Later John Paul Jones is credited with being the first to hoist the Stars and Stripes over an American man-of-war, the first to snow them in European waters, the first to receive and acknowledge a salute to them from a foreign power, the first to compel a regular British man-of-war to strike to them, the first to display them on board the first ship of the line built for the United States, which was appropriately christened the America. Another connection of American womanhood with the growth of the flag is interesting. The first flag recognized by a foreign power was of silk, made and presented by the ladies of Portsmouth, N. H. It was said to be about 36 feet in the fly. John Paul Jones is authority for the statement that the same flag flew over the Bon Homme Richard when she fought the Serapis. He stated that the flag went down with the ship, yet a flag is now exhibited in the National museum which is said to be that of the Richard. A statement has also been made recently by eminent authority that the Ranger was not the first to receive recognition by a foreign power, but that the incident was antedated by a similar recognition of the flag of the Hornet, an American vessel fitted out at Baltimore by Joshua Barney, later Commodore Barney.

An uncertain thing is fame. Whatever the truth of the various statements the progress of the flag has been continuous. The flag of 13 stripes and 13 stars was used at Brandywine-floated over the surrender of Burgoyne cheered the patriots during the dreary winter at Valley Forge, waved at Yorktown and shared the rejoicings at the close of the war.

been admitted to the union in 1791, and Kentucky in 1782, a bill was presented in congress increasing the number of both stripes and stars to 15. This bill caused much debate, but was finally passed, and the 15-stripe flag was used for 23 years, and it was in this form that the flag inspired Francis Scott Key to write the national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner." In 1818 the number of states had increased to 18.

Now comes an interesting item in the flag's history. To Mr. Peter H. Wendover of New York city we are indebted for the present appearance of the flag. Mr. Wendover was a member of congress and on the 9th of December, 1816, he took up the matter of a permanent form of the flag. His business was that of a sail and flag maker, and he realized because of experience the impracticability of adding a stripe as each new state should appear. He therefore, offered a resolution -"that a committee be appointed to inquire into the expediency of altering the flag of the United States, and that they have to report by bill or otherwise." The motion was carried, and he was made chairman of the committee to report a law.

The committee referred the matter to Capt. Samuel C. Reid of New York, who had, as a privateer, distinguished himself by the capture of several British ships. As a result the committee presented a report, a part of which

"In viewing this subject there appears to be a happy coincidence of circumstances in having adopted the symbols in this flag, and a peculiar fitness of things in making the proposed alteration. In that part designed at a distance to characterize our country, and which ought for the information of other nations to appear conspicuous and remain permanent, you present the number of states that burst the bonds of oppression and achieved our independence; while in the part intended for the nearer or home view you see a representation of our happy union as it now exists, and space sufficient to embrace the symbols of those who may hereafter join under our banner."

Thereupon congress enacted the flag law in 1818, and the first flag in its present form was made by the wife of Capt. Reid, assisted by a number of ladies, at her The first change came in 1794, when Vermont having residence in Cherry street, New York city. This flag had 21 stars, and it was provided further by congress that a star should be added upon the addition of each

The flag now has 46 stars, and it is notable that it has never had one taken from it, the government maintaining during the civil conflict in the sixties that the

Although the flag has passed through three foreign wars, it has never known defeat, never been trailed in the dust of dishonor. Some of the uses to which it is sometimes put at home, however, are not suggestive of the highest respect. But 34 states and territories now have laws making it a misdemeanor, punishable with fine and imprisonment, or both, to place any inscription or picture upon the flag, and two bills are before congress with a similar purpose, one being passed by the added, and Oklahoma took her place in the galaxy of states. The sun never sets upon "Old Glory," and this was true before the acquisition of the Rhilippines, the Aleutian islands, a part of Alaska, extending so far west that when the sun sinks below the horizon there it is just rising from the sea at Eastport, Me.

Countless anecdotes might be related of devotion to the flag and of personal sacrifices made for its preservation. Women as well as men have exhibited sublime heroism when the flag was in danger. And the principles for which it stands have earned for it and for the country the respect of all the world.

One of the least known, yet most precious of the historic American flags now in existence is what is familiarly known in the ancient commonwealth of Massachusetts as the Bedford flag. When the "Concord Hymn," by the "sage of Concord," Ralph Waldo Emerson, first appeared exceptions were taken to the line "Their flag to April's breeze unfurled," the critics maintaining that the little hand of farmers who assembled at the Old North bridge at Concord the historic 19th of April, 1775, and fired "the shot heard 'round the world" had no flag.

As in many other proven instances, the critics were mistaken. There was a flag at Concord, and that flag is still in existence. It was carried by Nathaniel Page, Jr., one of the minute men of Bedford, an adjoining town. This flag was stored in an attic in the old home of the Pages for many years, and was thought so little of by its owners that upon one occasion a daughter of the house is said to have used a portion of the gold fringe which bor-

Senator Morley Vernon's visit with his Senator Morley Vernon's visit with his fiancee was interrupted by a call from his political boss at the state capital. Both regretted it, the girl more than he, because she had arranged to attend a dinner that evening with him. She said she yearned for a national office for him. On Vernon's desk in the senate he found a red rose, accompanied by a plea for suffrage for women. He met the authoress, pretty Miss Maria Greene of suffrage for women. He met the authoress, pretty Miss Maria Greene of Chicago, who proposed to convert him into voting for house resolution No. 19. Miss Greene secured Vernon's promise to vote for the suffrage resolution. He also aided her by convincing others. He took a liking to the fair suffragette. Miss Greene consulted with the lieutenant-gov-ernor. Vernon admitted to himself that the suffragette had stirred a strange feelthe suffragette had stirred a strange feeling within him. He forgot to read his fiancee's letter. Vernon made a great speech in favor of suffrage, aided by glances from Miss Greene. The resolution was made a special order. Vernon was anthusiastic on the prospects for the resolution. He was much in Miss Greene's company. Vernon parlacted thoughts of company. Vernon neglected thoughts of Ameha. He took Miss Greene driving and laid out plans for the success of the resolution. Vernon's speech caused a great newspaper sensation. He was being neglected by Amelia, who had not answered his letter. Vernon is "tipped off" that his suffrage resolution may not pass. his letter. Vernon is "tipped off" that his suffrage resolution may not pass. As Miss Greene was due the following morning he had no fears. Miss Greene arrived and breakfasted with Vernon. Across the dining room entrenched behind women opponents of the suffrage resolution, he spied Amelia. He started toward her. She treated him coldly and the suffrage resolutions of suffrage resolutions are suffrage resolutions. toward her. She treated him coddy and the women opponents of suffrage reproved him for his part. Mrs. Hodge-Lathrop told Senator Vernon that his conduct with Miss Greene had been hard upon Amelia. He was told to comfort her. Vernon had a tearful interview with Amelia and he tried to undo the ills

"But I can't go looking this way," she said. She walked across the room, and standing before a mirror, wiped of admiration he turned and made her eyes carefully, then arranged her the motion. It was put, it was carried hat and her veil.

"Would anybody know?" she asked, facing about for his inspection. "Never-come on."

They went out, and down the elevator. When they reached the entrance, Vernon looked up and down the street, but there was no carriage in sight. The street was quiet and the hotel wore an air of desertion, telling that all the political activity of Illinois had been transferred to the state house. Vernon looked around the corner, but he repeated, ruefully. the old hack that always stood there was not at its post.

"We'll have to walk," he said. "It'll take too long for them to get a carriage around for us. It's only a few blocks, anyway. The air will do you

As they set forth in the bright morning sun they were calmer, and, having come out into public view, for the time being they dropped their differences and their misunderstandings, and began to talk in their common, ordinary fashion.

"Did Mrs. Hodge-Lathrop ask you to change me on the Ames amendment?" Vernon asked her.

"The what?" "The Ames amendment; that's the woman-suffrage measure."

"No, do her justice; she didn't."

"What then?" "She said she wanted me to work against it, that's all." "Didn't she say anything about asking me not to vote for it?"

"Well, yes; but I told her-" "What?"

"That I wouldn't try to influence you in the least." Vernon made no reply.

"No," she went on, "I'm to work against it, of course." They were silent then, till sudden-

"Nonsense," said Vernon, "come on I'll deliver you to Mrs. Hodge-Lathrop in a minute; then you'll be perfectly safe. Besides, you have your lobbying to do."

They reached the senate entrance, and the doorkeeper, seeing a senator, opened a way through the crowd for their passage. There was confusion everywhere, the nervous and excited hum of voices from the floor, from the vestibule, from the galleries, from all around. And just as they stepped up to the raised floor whereon the desks of senators are placed, the gavel fell, and stillness with it. They saw the lieutenant governor leaning over his desk, studying a slip of paper he held in his hand.

"On this question," he said, "the yeas are 30 and the nays are 17; and two-thirds of 'the members-elect having failed to vote in the affirmative. the resolution is lost."

RICH, WHO IS HELD SUSPECTED OF THE MURDER OF HIS AGED GRANDMOTHER,

HAS A SPOTTED RECORD.

Looking Into the Young Man's Life and Habits Brings Out Some Things Against Him.

After a session of less than 15 minutes, late Saturday afternoon, the Bay City coroner's jury inquiring into the cause of the death of Mrs. Christine Coryeon, rendered the following

"That Christine Corycon came to flicted by a person or persons unknown to this jury." The police now have the first trace of any suit of clothing bought by Ro- aries of city employes. The taxpayer her," he said. He bolted away and went toward her. She was cold and Mrs. Christine Coryeon. What has bedistant. Fortunately, Burns fled at come of his wedding suit was considered by the police to be one of the main clues in the baffling case.

"Can you forgive me?" he said. "I'll On January 28 Rich purchased suit of black clothing on the install-"And how?" she asked with a chill ment plan, for $20, from Marine, Askin & Berman, of Water street. "Have you ever met Mrs. Overman He pald for it in four or five install-Hodge-Lathrop?" he asked signifiments, the last one being on April 4. He also made a deposit of $5, but what that was for has not yet been made clear.

Rich's friends have practically admitted that the youth told an untruth about buying the clothing at A. Mueller's, because he did not wish to acknowledge that he got his suit on the installment plan. There is some wonderment that the young man should have showed this little vanity in the face of so great danger, when he must have realized that so much depended on the tracing of the missing clothes. Rich's friends further assert that he had saved his suit for the wedding

"I am very glad," she said, "to meet | since January 28. But what has become of it, is still as much of a mystery as at first. Significance is placed on the testimony given at the coroner's jury by Mrs. Harry Tierney, that Rich had said when she first entered the house and found her mother dead: "My coat and vest are burned." Not a few people are wondering, too, why the fire was between the mattresses of the slain woman's bed, instead of on top, as testified by Hackman Reis, unless it had been purposely set on fire for some sinister purpose, such as destroying the body or burning up clothing. The police assert that they have an approximate description of the clothing Rich wore when he went into the kitchen from his grandmother's room to change for his "wedding suit." They assert that the description of the suit purchased tallied with these clothes. It is also declared by the police to be certain that Rich attempted to borrow $100 shortly before his wedding. They claim to have the name of the man thus approached. Not a little interest is taken in the fact that one circumstance which seemed to lead the coroner's jury to decide Mrs. Coryeon was murdered was the fact that two fractures were found in her skull-one on each side. The search for clues by the police is reported to have been rewarded by "Yes?" said Miss Greene, with that the ascertaining of other alleged queer deals on the part of the young murder suspect, in addition to the shady and as yet unanswered attempt of Rich to bamboozle two local banks by means of "phoney" checks. It is alleged that Rich was short in his accounts while employed by the late John Clarkson, cigar dealer, several years ago and for which Rich's father is said to have settled. It is further reported that relatives of the young man once had to make good an al leged defalcation while he was employed by the H. G. Wendland Co.

It is also said that a jeweler has been found who accepted a check from Rich drawn on a bank where he had with constant thought by parents, sci- no funds. This is said to be the occasion when Rich picked out a $15 present for his flancee, who was with him at the time. Rich is said to have asked for "a blank check on any bank," and when one was given to him, made it out. This was on Saturday and the following Monday Rich made good with the money.

One fancies that few types of men. can, from time to time, have afforded reyalty more amusement of a quiet sort than provincial mayors of England. The occasion was the presentation of an address of welcome to the king. and we are told that the mayor, on approaching to present it, to the astonishment and dismay of all, instead of kneeling, as he had been told to do, seized the queen's hand to shake it

NORTH DAKOTA SUFFERS

Human Bodies Blown Miles Away and Twisted Round Trees and Horrors Were Numerous.

A tornado wrecked Zephyr, a village in Brown county, Texas, Saturday, killing more than 30 persons, seriously wounding 50, and hurting a score of others. Extreme darkness made the catastrophe awful. The storm formed half a mile southwest of Zephyr and swept down upon the village, cutting a wide swath directly through the residence and business quarters. Nearly 50 houses were demolished. Lightning struck a lumber yard and started a fire, which destroyed an entire business block.

No effort was made to fight the fire, as the care of the dead and wounded demanded all attention.

A section hand pumped a hand car to Brownwood and spread the alarm. In two hours the Santa Fe was speeding a special train to Zephyr with nine surgeons and a score of Brownwood citizens. Hundreds of persons in the country around Zephyr saved themselves by taking refuge in storm cellars. The big stone school building and two churches at Zephyr were razed. Daylight found 16 surgeons working on the wounded. Brownwood hurried her second reief train at noon, loaded with provisions, clothing and necessary articles, and 40 nurses.

A special train carried the more seriously injured to a hospital at Temple. While the tornado's path was 300 yards wide, the twister swept the earth for a distance of only about a mile. Its fury was more terrible than any previous tornado experienced in this region.

When the first relief party reached Zephyr, a desolate scene awaited. The hillsides were covered with debris of all kinds, intermingled with bodies of Inexperienced Caddie (after Mr. animals and human beings. The ruins pule's fifteenth miss)—Shall I make were dimly lighted by hurning buildwere dimly lighted by burning buildings and the cries of the wounded rising above the screeching of the dying storm, guided the rescuers in their work.

> Human bodies were found twisted about trees and distorted in every conceivable shape. Survivors, mad with grief and terror, walked the streets almost naked, crying for their lost relatives.

Those houses that escaped the storm were turned into hospitals and morgues.

Brownwood, with a splendily organized relief corps, has the situation well in hand.

North Dakota Visited.

Seven persons are known to be dead, many are dying and over a score are seriousdy injured as a result of a tornado that swept over northwestern North Dakota Saturday night.

The storm was especially severe at Langdon, where the residence section of the city was practically wiped out, four people killed and 20 injured.

The tornado demolished all of the buildings of the Jamestown Fair association, the loss being $50,000, and everal other large buildings.

Cassellton, Devil's Lake and other towns have been completely cut off from communication, and it is feared that the death list will be greatly in creased.

Millions for Meat.

That the four big Chicago packers who comprise the meat trust, and their side partner, the National Packing Co., do an annual business far in advance of the biggest year ever enjoyed by the United States Steel Corporation is showed by the statement filed under the new Massachusetts compulsory law. These reveal that during the past year Swift, Armour, Morris, Cudahy and the National did a gross volume of business amounting o $780,000,000. Figures furnished by the National are not official and are said to be $25,000,000 too low. The steel trust's biggest year was 1907, when it touched the $757,000,000 mark. The figures secured by the state slow that the meat packers do business on a much closer margin of profits than the other big concerns. The total net profits on the enormous business done during the year will hardly reach $25,000,000, a margin of only about 3 per cent. In sharp contrast with this is the 23 per cent profit of the steel corporation last year. Of last year's business, Swift did

"GOOD HUNTING."

Roosevelt has entertained the correspondent of the Associated Press for two days and said: "No newspaper has a representative with the Roosevelt party, nor any nearer means of gaining information of the party's doings beyond what is generally known. Any special dispatches appearing are in all human probability sheer inventions. Moreover, the details which purport to be thus obtained can only be due to bribery, and it is safe to state that a dishonorable man giving a bribe and a dishonorable man accepting the same would be wiling to invent untruths for money or traffic in other forms of dishonor.

Patten's Wheat Corner.

What is generally conceded to have been the most successful wheat deal in the annals of the Chicago board of symptomatic of modern speculative conditions, it closed without that squeezing of shorts which in other days was wont to furnish a show to gallery visitors and leave La Salle street staggering on its financial feet. James A. Patten during the brief hours of the session held May wheat in the hollow of his hand. He made the price as fixed as the laws of the Medes and Persians-$1.34 the bushel. Through his pet clerk, Ed Walker, he bought or sold at that price, but the ouying was almost purely theoretical on his part. He did take in a few thousand bushels from some "trailer" who waited till the last moment for Two children were found dead two about half a million to shorts who his profits, but mainly he disposed of miles from Zephyr, having been blown had hoped against hope to the last moment, and then, in the parlance of the pit, "took their medicine."

> Four Men Were Killed Instantly. Four men were sent to instant death, two others so badly injured that they died soon after and another received serious hurts, when the boiler operated by Geesey Bros., blew up Wednesday afternoon. The accident was the result of a slow working steam gauge it is claimed. There was > a dangerous pressure at the time the engine was stopped to put on a belt. The stoppage increased the pressure and the boiler gave way. The report was heard for more than a mile.

FREAK OF NATURE DNE THING THAT WAS CERTAIN

THE COCOANUT PEARL A MYS-TERY TO SCIENTISTS.

Were Known to Exist Two and a Half Centuries Ago, and But Little Has Since Been Learned About Them.

In the museum at Kew, England, is pearl scarfpin, only remarkable at glance because that is about the last place where one would look for such an object. The diameter is not much less than half an inch, the color pure milk white, the polish excellent; if it is not so glossy as it should be, one often sees family pearls of renown as deficient in luster. This has been exposed to the light for many

In fact, one would not question that it was an ornament of considerable value—as it might be, indeed, if carried to certain oriental markets; but here only science feels an interest init, for this is one of nature's imitations, so like the real thing that chemtrade closed Saturday, and what is ical analysis can recognize no difference to be relied on. It is the produce of a cocoanut.

As much was known about these very extraordinary objects two centuries and a half ago as at present saving their chemical composition. The great Rumphius not only drew up a careful account of them but even sent a specimen in 1683 to the grand duke of Tuscany, who had it mounted in a ring. Other notices have been discovered. If the reports were believed in a pre-scientific age they ran no chance of acceptance when the limitations of nature were better understood. Those few who read the old tale paid no attention to such absurdity.

It seems to have been forgotten, in this country at any rate, when Dr. Hickson told it over again in 1887. While exploring Celebes he had often been asked by Dutch planters and others about "cocoanut pearls," to what purpose we are not informed, but it would not be surprising to learn in the hoop mill situated in the out- that these gentlemen shared the faith skirts of Dowagiac and owned and of the natives, who attribute all manner of virtues to these rare products. Or they may have inquired with an eye to business, for mandarins and rajahs will pay a great price for them as charms.

In 1888 Dr. Harley read a paper on the composition of pearls before the Royal society, and he did not overlook these ecceptric varieties. "In external appearance," he says, "they resemble the real thing at every point, having a smooth, glistening, dull white surface." Their material is the same, carbonate of lime, organic matter and water. So is their microscopic struc-

No Doubt in the Baggageman's Mind as to Contents of What Looked Like Coffin.

In an emergency the manufacturer of Limburger cheese was forced to use strategy with a shipment. Ordinarily his product went in special cars, but in this instance no car was available and the order must be filled. Two hundred pounds of the fragrant comestible was put in a rough, oblong box, and taken to the railroadbaggageroom. Then the manufacturer bought a ticket for himself and the box, and entered the train. At the first stop he went ahead to the baggage car to see that there was no trouble. He stood by the box in a disconsolate attitude and shaded his eyes with his hand. The baggageman was sympathetic. "A relative?" he asked. "Yes," answered the manufacturer, "it is my brother." "Well." said the railroad man, philosophically. 'you have one consolation. He's dead. all right."-San Francisco Argonaut.

A Cruel Trap. A few days ago a man and his wife living in the Rue de la Grosse Horloge, in Rouen, France, suspecting their domestic of dishonesty, laid an abominable trap. In a metal cash box they placed a shallow vessel containing vitriol. They then fixed a spiral spring inside the box and locked it. Next morning the servant, seeing no one about, opened the box with a duplicate key. The lid sprang open and she was cruelly burned by the vitriol. Her employers had her arrested, and Sleeper was the son of Mrs. Mary in her room the police found over supposed to have been stolen from previous employers.

City May Have Forester.

Chicago may soon have a forester to look after the planting and care of trees in the city streets. A citizens' committee has taken the matter up and is planning to ask the legislature to authorize such an official. At a meeting of the committee it was urged that special assessments to defray the expenses of tree planting would not work a hardship on any property holder. The system in vogue in New Jersey and other states was reviewed and it was shown that the cost of planting trees 40 feet apart in every city street would be approximately $3,50 a year for each lot of 25 feet Reunited After Many Years. Report says that Gen. Politeness Discouraged. A hard blow at politeness on street cars in Massachusetts was struck by the supreme court of that state a few days ago. In a damage suit the court held that if a passenger on a crowded street car gets off momentarily to permit other passengers to alight, and in getting on again is injured by the sudden starting of the car, he cannot recover from the street railway company where there is a rule under which passengers ride on the platform at their own risk.

Red Seen Further Than Green. Red lights have been proven to be visible to a greater distance than green.
