L. O. T. M. M. Reception.

The reception tendered Mrs. Mary Winans at Maccabee Hall in honor of her seventieth birthday Friday evening. August 27th, was another enjovable occasion which brings the members closer in thought, feeling and appreciation of each other.

Considerably more than a hundred Lady Maccabees, their husbands and friends and all the children of Mrs. Winans were present except the Hon. C. S. Winans, United States consul to Spain. The hall was tastefully decorated with the Maccabee colors and the profusion of flowers made the whole place redolent with their perfume. The program consisted of a recitation by little Doris Corwin, of Toledo, entitled "When Grandma puts her glasses on" also a reading by Mrs. Ada Wood each doing their part in a most creditable manner. A very pleasing feature was the charmingly rendered vocal solos and duet by Miss Mary Spirnagle and Elmer F. Winans, their rich, full voices filling the hall with sweet melodies while Mrs. Maude Steinbach presided at the be. piano in her usual charming manner. In behalf of the hive Mrs. Lucy Stephens presented Mrs. Winans with a solid gold brooch as a memento of the occasion, after which ice cream and cake were served. At a late hour all departed feeling that it was good to meet on such occasions.

guy, Canada, October 21, 1830. At Effort Being Made to Have Telepost Company Furnish Service.

Congressman Samuel W. Smith of Pontiac is endeavoring to interest commercial organizations in Deptoit, Jackson, Flint, Saginaw, Bay City and other cities in the introduction of the telepost system in Michigan. Mr. she resided until her death. She died Detroit Board of Commerce and expects that that organization will invite the telepost people to establish an office in Detroit as a center, from which lines would radiate, northward to Pontiac, Flint and Saginaw; an other to Brighton, Howell and Grand ner, Mrs. Mary Mullen, of Chelsea, Rapids, and another to Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Chelsea and Jackson.

The telepost is the last word in the transmission of messages by wire, and effects a great reduction over existing rates wherever it has come into use. If the system is adopted in might have gone to Mexico, or some nine grandchildren and three great Michigan it will be followed by an immediate reduction of telegraph rates, Mr. Smith says, and a great increase in convenience in telegraph-

TO MARK BRADDOCK'S GRAVE

Citizens of Fayette County, Pa., Will Erect Monument to Unfortunate British General.

The citizens of Fayette county, Pa, have begun to realize at this late day that they have a historic attraction, which, after remaining fallow for many years, is worthy of exploitation. The bones of Gen. Braddock, who was buried where he fell when slain by the French and their Indian allies, near Fort Du Quesne in 1755, lie in a grave that is unmarked unless it may be the monuments that nature has upraised. A great oak tree was once the guardian sentinel, but that was destroyed by a storm, and nothing has taken its place. Funds to the amount of $1,200 to erect a memorial have now been subscribed, and the brave and unfortunate commander will have his resting place honored in a country for which he had very little liking or respect, by a people who care very little for his memory, but think it might give distinction to their section to keep it green. Perhaps no more accurate or interesting characterization of this officer has ever been given than that found in Thackeray's description of the dinner party at Mme. Esmond's, when Braddock and his officers drank wine to excess, as was the fashion of their time, while the "little Philadelphia postmaster," Benjamin Franklin drank water and laughed at them. Braddock was a courageous man, but a swashbuckler, whose great mistakes were contemptuous rejection of the counselo f those who knew the country better than he did, and underrating the wiliness of the foe with which he had to deal.

A Simple Expedient.

It was the custom of Mr. Cameron to fall into an easy attitude wherever he might be. This habit led to an occasional dialogue of a spicy nature, and the dialogues led to a small square package which Mr. Cameron presented to his wife one night.

"What in the world are these?" inquired Mrs. Cameron, as the unwrapping of the package revealed a few cards neatly marked "For Use," and two or three dozen marked "For Show.

"Those, my dear," said Mr. Cameron, "are for you to attach, by the small pin on the under side, to the various soft cushions, chair backs and unoccupied wall spaces in this house. Then neither my head nor that of any chance visitor will rest in or on any object designed for ornament; and once more, even with Christmas coming every year, and your friends as loving and generous as ever, we shall have a happy home."-Youth's Companion.

"A man's wife can make him or mar him," said Senator La Follette at a dinner in Madison. "A good wife fills him full of ambition. A nagging wife takes all the energy out of him, leaving him listless, limp.

"I know a clever but unsuccessful man in Primrose. I used to wonder why this man didn't get out, why he didn't work hard. I found out one day when, quite by chance, I asked him what he was going to have at his house that night for dinner.

"He shook his head at this question, and answered with a sad little

"'Oh, cold soup meat and nag.'"

Resting, Not Sleeping.

"I took my pastels with me," said the artist who spent a week end with a friend in the country, "and did a pastel of the old negro who has been 74 years. Mr. Lawton graduated from in the family for ages. Every time I Union college at Schenectady, N. Y., got him to posing just right he went fast asleep. Then when I'd remonstrate with a gentle poke he would rouse so polite, so courteous, bow and

"'Yes, sah! Yes, sah! I's awake. I wa'nt asleep. I wus jes' a restin' mah eyes!'

"Then he'd go fast asleep again. So finally I had to paint him like that, a nice chocolate color, nodding, with a big high light on his thick upper lip. Corking picture!"

In 1915.

Suddenly the great game in the summer of 1915 stopped.

"What's the trouble?" shouted the grand stand. "Let the game go on!" "Make them play!" thundered the bleachers. "Soak the umpire!"

Just then the manager came out and held up his hand.

"Patience, gentlemen, patience! The game will go on just as soon as the fly cops can chase that fleet of airships from over the diamond. Those on them are catching the balls as fast as they are batted upward." And the fly cops began to fly from every direction.

Bequeathed Fortune to Buelow.

Twelve years ago Prince Buelow was a poor man. He retires from the office of German chancellor with a large private fortune and the rank of count and prince. On the day the katser gave him the latter title Buelow was notified that his share of the estate of Herr Godfrey, the wealthy sugar merchant of Hamburg, amount ed to $1,375,000. Herr Godfrey had never met Prince Buelow, but had become interested in his public career and left him this fortune.

Notes and Gossip Gatnered in Lansing.

FARMERS TO BOOST PRICES

Society of Equity Plans to Control Year's Output of Potatoes-Big Growers to Attend Conference.

Lansing. - Circulars being sent around the state by the Farmers' Society of Equity (incorporated), with headquarters at Traverse City, show that the humble soil tiller is learning from the trust methods of manufacturers with whom he has sad experience. Just now the Farmers' Society of Equity, which seems to have had a revival of life, has its eye on an extra 25 cents a bushel on all the Michigan grown potatoes consumed this fall and winter in this and other

The circulars are issued to get the names of large growers of potatoes, who will be invited to a conference at Traverse City September 8. The paper frankly states:

"If the kind of people we seek will attend this meeting, arrangements can be quickly made so to control the marketing of this year's crop as to insure profitable prices, and the same machine will continue for future crops."

"The indications are that Michigan will produce the largest crop of potatoes she ever raised and that the crop of the country will be a record breaker," it says. "Prices are down to 50 cents in many large markets, lower in some, and at some country points are selling for 25 cents. This is not encouraging.

"If the crop is dumped this fall, no person can tell how low prices will go. Without some sustaining element, many growers will dump and break the price down, and those who hold will have a glutted market to sell on, with the result that nobody will get a profitable price.

"The potato crop of Michigan is vital to the prosperity of the state. We have many counties that produce 1,000,000 bushels or more each. Twenty-five cents a bushels means $250,000 each for these counties. Having this money or not having it will affect every man, woman and child. given to the brother. Organization will probably mean 25 cents more on every bushel."

Must Not Run Backwards.

The Michigan railroad commission has just issued an order prohibiting state railroads from running any trains backward or with the cars ahead of the engine. The various lines are given 90 days to put in Y's and turntables, and it is probable that the order will cause a great wail because of the expense resulting. The chief reason is that the engineer does not have a clear view of the track over the pile of coal on the tender.

The commission has also issued an order regulating the speed limit over interlocking plants, the maximum for passenger trains with interlockers in the very best of condition being 30 miles an hour, another for freight trains 20 miles an hour. If interlockers are not in the very best of condition the speed must be less.

College to Be 'Varsity.

Detroit college, the institution which has graduated so many prominent Detroit lawyers, doctors, clergymen and business men, is to be expanded into a university with law, medicine and engineering departments as soon as this is found to be practicable.

The transformation of the college began with the elimination of the preparatory department, which had courses equivalent to the seventh and eighth grades of the grammar schools. The college now has only the high school and college courses, and yet despite the elimination of the lower courses, the attendance is steadily growing.

Jesuit colleges throughout the country have been expanding from the usual literary courses, which for years were the special subjects of their education. St. Louis, Chicago, even Toledo, have added law and medical schools, and Milwaukee has in troduced an engineering course.

"We would make the change to-day if the means were right at hand. said Very Rev. Francis Slevin, president of the college. "It hardly seems likely it can be made for a year or so. Of course, I do not know what may develop during the school year.'

"However," he added, "such a development is our plan and ambition. Such an institution would result in great benefit to Detroit, and there is no reason to doubt the graduates of a law or medicine department here would distinguish themselves as well as our graduates in arts and sciences All that is needed is the means, which were provided in the other cities

"We hope this year for a largely increased attendance. The college is open to all, irrespective of creed, and we have had a number of students of different beliefs. The advantage of a university to the city would certainly be confined to no class or creed."

Cut Roosevelt from Will.

Charles W. Hall, Benton Harbor, a most eccentric man who died recently, left a remarkable estate. He left a will which was filed in the probate court at Benton Harbor, which is more remarkable. The city of Benton Harbor, the First Baptist church, his brother, Thornton Hall, his niece, and nephew, and lastly his friends, will profit by the terms of the will.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, ex-presi dent of the United States, was made a beneficiary by the original will, Mr. Hall bequeathing him 1,000 acres of choice timber land in Tennessee. This was October 5, 1908. On December 3, 1908, a codicil was added to the original document and Col. Roosevelt was cut off, the timber land being land, lying between Highland and George A. Crawford, of Detroit. avenues. Two years ago Mayor Seitz started an agitation for a park, the land which Hall gave to the city was one of the many spots

The will provides for an estate conservatively estimated at from $200,000 to $300,000. Petition to have the will admitted to probate was filed by Thornton Hall, through his attorney, I. W. Riford. That Hall expected litigation would rise over his remembrances and gifts to friends is quite evident from one paragraph of the original will, which provides a penalty for any one who contests the instrument.

The provision reads: "Any one named as a beneficiary of this will who shall attempt to break or defeat the execution of this will, shall be cut off, and his or her portion shall revert to my estate and go as I direct in this writing or will."

Will Build Art Annex.

The Muskegon board of education is taking steps to carry out the terms of the will of the late C. H. Hackley, in disposing of the philanthropist's bequest of $160,000 for an art gallery to be part of the Hackley public library. The board has decided that there is not sufficient room in the library proper for the art gallery and will build an annex to occupy half of the block adjoining the library building. Negotiations are being carried on with owners of residences to bring about the vacating of the desired property. The art gallery will be free to the public as are all the Hackley institutions.

Big Fruit Crop Assured.

Fruits of all kinds give promise of a banner crop. It is estimated that 150,000 bushels will be shipped from the Saugatuck fruit belt alone to Chicago and other western points this season. From all over western Michigan come the same reports. While apples may be a minimum crop, pears, peaches and plums will yield a harvest never before equaled.

Face and Neck Were Raw-Terrible Itching, Inflammation and Soreness -All Treatments Failed.

Cuticura Proved a Great Success.

"Eczema began over the top of my ear. It cracked and then began to spread. I had three different doctors and tried several things, but they did me no good. At last one side of my face and my neck were raw. The water ran out of it so that I had to wear medicated cotton, and it was so inflamed and sore that I had to put a piece of cloth over my pillow to keep the water from it, and it would stain the cloth a sort of yellow. The eczemaitched so that it seemed as though I could tear my face all to pieces. Then I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and it was not more than three months before it was all healed up. All in Fight Against Tuberculosis.

Prevention of tuberculosis versus dividends is the proposition which some of our largest insurance companies are now trying to establish. The Metropolitan Life recently applied for permission to erect a sanatorium for its policy holders and employes afflicted with tuberculosis, but the application was refused on grounds of illegality by New York State Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss. The company is, however, conducting an active educational campaign by distributing 3,500,000 pamphlets among its policy holders. The Provident Savings Life Assurance society has also established a health bureau, where its policy holders may receive free medical advice. Several fraternal Girdles will emphasize many gowns. Knights of Pythias, Royal League, cle, have already established or are contemplating the erection of sanatoria for their tuberculous members.

IT WORKS The Laborer Eats Food That Would Wreck an Office Man.

Men who are actively engaged st hard work can sometimes eat food that would wreck a man who is more closely confined.

This is illustrated in the following story:

"I was for 12 years clerk in a store working actively and drank coffee all the time without much trouble until after I entered the telegraph service. "There I got very little exercise and drinking strong coffee, my nerves were unsteady and my stomach got weak and I was soon a very sick man. I quit meat and tobacco and in fact I stopped eating everything which I thought might affect me except coffee, but still my condition grew worse, and

I was all but a wreck.

"I finally quit coffee and commenced to use Postum a few years ago, and I am speaking the truth without any bad effects, all due to shifting from coffee to Postum.

ysis all material wealth, all the comforts and necessities. of life. are the product of two elements -nature and laoor. It may be truly said that nature, or the earth, is the mother of labor and the father of all products necessary to sustain human life. The richness and prosperity of a country, therefore, depend on the presence of natural resources within its borders, such as water, minerals, forests and cultivable soils on the one hand, and intelligent human energy on the other to shape them into the forms necessary for the needs of man. Of the two elements the natural resources are indispensable, for in a country like the desert of Sahara all human effort would be of but little avail. The growth of a nation depends, therefore, upon the extent of the natural resources and upon the knowledge of how to use them with as little destruction as possible.

The resources of a country fall naturally into three groups-water, minerals and land-which represent, respectively, resources which are inexhaustible, resources which are exhaustible and cannot be renewed, and resources which are exhaustible but can be renewed. It may be questioned, indeed, whether there is such a thing as an inexhaustible natural resource. Even water, through the denudation of the drainage basins, may become irregular in its flow, or through the careless disposal of refuse may become polluted so that it cannot be used. Mines are illustrations of resources which are exhaustible and not renewable. Gas, oil, coal and iron once

United States through the growth of cities, the building of railroads and the general development of commerce and nonagricultural industry. The possibilities for increasing the productiveness of the 300,000,000 acres of our public grazing lands are very great. About two per cent. of the total land area will forever remain desert. There are but few areas within the United States which, on account of the intense heat, very low temperatures, alkali or lack of rainfall, are unfit for the use of man and may be truly considered desert land. Such land is found in the Southwest about ports. Apparent exceptions to this rule appear in the cases of Bulgaria and Servia. These countries, while at present importing more wood than they export, possess considerable areas of forest, now inaccessible, and, with the development of means of expleitation and the increased demand for lumber they will in time become exporting countries.

From this we may infer that a country in order to be self-sustaining as regards its timber supply must have an area of about 100 acres of forest land for every 100 inhabitants. The area necessary to supply all the wood needed for home consumption will vary of course with the per capita consumption; and the 100 acres per 100 inhabitants must be considered the minimum area, because it is based upon a moderate per capita consump tion such as is found in densely populated countries of Europe, like Germany or France.

The same minimum area for every 100 inhabitants necessary to make a country self-sustaining can also be deduced in another way. At present Germany imports 353,000,000 cubic feet of wood from abroad. To produce this amount of timber Germany would have to possess a forest area of 17,000,000 acres in addition to the 35,000, 000 now available. In other words, she would need 52,000,000 acres of forest in order to meet her own timber requirements, or 93.2 acres for every 100 inhabithe Gulf of tants. Germany is an extremely good example with C a lifornia, which the productivity of the forests of all other countries can be compared, because her

PAINT DURABILITY.

The first thought in painting should, of course, be durability-and durability means simply pure paint properly applied. Pure paint is pure white lead and linseed oil (with or without tinting material).

Some years ago the paint-buyer was likely to get adulterated or counterfeit white lead if he was not familiar with brands. To-day he may buy with perfect safety if he only makes sure that the Dutch Boy Painter trademark is on the packages of white lead that he buys. This trademark was adopted by National Lead Company to distinguish the pure white lead made by them from the worthless adulterated and fake goods. It is a guarantee as valuable to the house-owner as the education of a paint expert could be.

A Candid Judge...

A Dover lawyer tells a story in which figures Hon. H. L. Dawes, who, it seems, in his younger days was an indifferent speaker. Shortly after his admission to the bar he had a case which was tried before a North Adams justice of the peace, and Dawes was opposed by a lawyer whose eloquence attracted a large crowd. The justice was perspiring in the crowded room and evidently fast losing his temper. Finally he drew off his coat and, in the midst of the eloquent address, burst

WASHINGTON

WHEAT FIELD

Of all the natural resources the only one which contains within itself the possibility of infinite renewal is land. The nation should therefore be most vitally concerned with the conservation and improvement of this resource. Human control over such natural resources as minerals is limited. The only possible means of conservation is the avoidance of waste, but their ultimate exhaustion is unavoidable. With agricultural and forest land, however, it is otherwise. Land can not only be conserved, but constantly improved and its yield increased. While in England the iron ores and the coal are becoming constantly harder to get and their exhaustion is threatened, the agricultural land, after a thousand years of cultivation, is now more productive than ever. The wheat fields of England, under intensive cultivation, yield 30 bushels to the acre, while the virgin fields of America on an average yield less than 13. If a far-sighted national policy in the conservation of natural resources is to make provision for an ever-increasing population, then the greatest possibilities lie in the direction of developing the land in all its formsfield, forest and range- for, notwithstanding all possible economy in the use of the non-renewable resources, they are bound to decrease as time goes on.

One hundred years ago the United States east of the Mississippi river was an almost unbroken forest, comprising something over 1,000,000 square miles, or about 700,000,000 acres. Now, after about a century of settlement, there are not more than 300,000 square miles of merchantable forest land in the eastern United States. About 330,000 square miles have been cleared for farm land. The remainder has been culled of its valuable timber and devastated by fire or else turned into useless brush land. With the growth of population and the greater demand for agricultural land, the ratio between farm and forest land will change still further. The forests will be more and more crowded into the mountains and upon soils too thin or too poor for agricultural purposes. It may be safely assumed that in 50 or 100 years the proportion of land devoted to the different purposes will change almost as much as it has during the past century. These changes will occur especially in the eastern part of the United States, because there the forest is not confined, as it is in the west, to high altitudes, where agriculture is generally impracticable. In the west the forests, with a few exceptions, as in the low country around Puget sound, are in the rountains, which rise in the midst of semi-arid plains, and their original area of 150,000 square miles, half of which lies in the Sierra Nevada and in the Cascades and half in the Rockies, has changed but very little since settlement. In the west the increase of agricultural land must be secured chiefly through the irrigation of the semi-arid land.

If we take a long look ahead into the future and try to picture to ourselves what will be the ultimate proportion of farm, forest, range and desert, in this country 50 years from now, in the light of the increasing demand for agricultural land and of an approximate knowledge of the climatic conditions and the physical properties of the different lands in this country, we shall get something like the condition shown in the diagram.

The area devoted to agriculture in a half century, instead of being 21 per cent. of the total area, as it is now, will be nearer 50 per cent. That this is not an overestimate is indicated by the fact that during the last 50 years the improved farm land in this country has advanced from 113,000,000 acres to 415,000,000 acres, an increase of nearly 370 per cent.

DEVELOPMENT OF WATER POWER

With more intensive methods of cultivation larger yields will undoubtedly be obtained from the same area, yet the area itself under agricultural crops will have to be increased, especially if we are to remain an export-

In Belgium the arable land forms 63 per cent. of the total land area, in Denmark 68, in France 48, and in Germany 47. These countries are not exporters of cereals, although their methods of cultivation are highly developed. France is especially interesting as a criterion, because its methods are most intensive and it is the only country that is self-sustaining; it produces 98 per cent. of all the cereals, which it consumes. There is little doubt that our population in the next 50 years will reach 50,000,000, or about 50 persons per square mile. Whether the acreage of improved farm is id will increase at a much faster rate than the population, as has been the case in the past, or whether it will grow at the same or even a slower rate than the population, the future alone can tell; but increase it must.

In mountainous Switzerland only 17 per cent. of the land is cultivated, and in Sweden and Norway, situated in an unfavorable climate and with a scanty population (29 and 18 persons per square mile, respectively), the proportion of arable land is 8.7 per cent. and 1.3 per cent., respectively.

Land chiefly valuable for grazing will form about onefifth of the extent of the United States proper. This land originally lay west of the one hundredth meridian, in the plains and mountain valleys, but with the advance of dry farming its eastern boundary has been shifted farther west to about the one hundred and third meridian. This land receives but a scanty rainfall and can produce neither forest nor field crop, but supports a vegetation of hardy grasses. It was formerly the natural range of millions of buffalo and is now the grazing ground of herds of cattle and sheep. This land will remain largely a natural range, since the area which can be irrigated and thus reclaimed for agricultural purposes, or which can be used for dry farming, is com-

According to government estimates, the available water will be sufficient to irrigate 71,000,000 acres, or one acre in 7½ of the whole region. The reclamation service, however, does not expect to reclaim more than five per cent. of all the arid land. This area, together with that used for dry farming, will barely suffice to counterbalance the reduction of the productive area in the

in Nevada, in Utah and in Oregon in the form of arid be more than double the present area and this is enbasins. Ice-bound deserts are found in Alaska and on the glacier-covered mountains. This land must, so long as the climatic conditions of the country continue as they are, remain unproductive.

The land chiefly valuable for growing forests will shrink to about 360,000,000 acres, less than one-fifth of the extent of the United States proper. Together with the wood lots, which will continue to form part of the farm land, the total forest area will amount to approxi-

Will this area be sufficient to provide a population of 150,000,000 people with all the timber needed for construction, ties, poles, pulp and all the various uses for which wood seems to be the only suitable material and to protect the soil from erosion, regulate the stream flow and exert its wholesome influence upon the lives of the people?

With the exception of those countries which have naturally a humid climate, like Great Britain or the Netherlands, the countries with a forest area of only 20 per cent, or less show usually to a marked degree bad climatic conditions, with prolonged droughts, frosts and alternating floods and low water, as a result of the reduced forest area. Portugal, with a forest area of only 31/2 per cent. of the total; Spain, with 16 per cent.; Greece, with 13 per cent.; Turkey, with 20 per cent.; and Italy, with 14 per cent., are good examples.

While the area absolutely necessary for the regulation of streams and the protection of soils can be determined only approximately and indirectly, the area necessary to make a country self-sustaining as regards the production of timber can be found with greater accuracy. If we compare the exports of the different countries with the forest area for every 100 inhabitants we find that countries with 92 acres or more per 100 inhabitants have a surplus of exports over imports, while those with 85 acres or less have a surplus of imports over ex-

the world. It increases at the rate of five per cent. annually. If we compare the total excess of imports over exports of all wood-importing countries of Europe with the total excess of exports over imports of all wood-exporting countries we shall find that there is a deficit for Europe of 141,000,000 cubic feet, which is met at present by imports from North America. Sweden, Norway and Austria-Hungary have already touched the highest point in their exports. Russia could probably increase to some extent its exports from the north, where there are still large areas of virgin forest, but the growing scarcity of timber in the other parts of the empire make it very unlikely that larger supplies of timber for export will be available. Canada is still able to increase its exports, but the drain upon the Canadian forests is growing every year and they will remain the only source of supply to satisfy the urgent needs of the rest of the world for coniferous timber after Austria-

Hungary and Russia cease to be exporting countries. The growing demand for wood material must be met, then, not by an increase of the forest land nor by de pending on imports from abroad, but by an increase in the productiveness of the forest and a decrease in the waste, to which chiefly is due the fact that the United States has the greatest per capita consumption in the

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with a scene at a box party. Miss Henrietta Winstanley, sister of Bishop Winstanley overheard Banker Ankony propose to Barbara Hemingray, whose brother Dan was in his employ. Dan was one of the town's popular young men.

She settled back in the bishop's landau with a satisfied little smile, and I leaned in and bent over her

"And mighty little comfort." "That's largely a question of upbringing." I laughed.

"Or down-sitting," he grinned. Then he sighed, deeply and miserably, and tried to hide it in a series of coughs that did not deceive me. "What's wrong?" I asked.

"Did you notice Ankony to-night?" he inquired.

"Yes. The fellow is a boor." "His attentions were rather deflant, it seemed to me, as if-as if he challenged Barbara to cut him. Did you think so?"

"No. Why on earth should be have that attitude toward her? You're in his employ, but you are not bound to him, nor under any obligation what-

"No-no, that is-" "See here," I broke in, rather impatiently, "there are plenty of concerns as big as his that would be glad to give you a good berth. Don't let him press his obnovious attentions on your sister just because you happen to be giving him excellent service for his money.

Dan looked at me oddly. "You don't understand, Tom," he said. "It seems to me I understand perfectly, and I'd like to thrash him for his impudence." He laughed, but the troubled look came back quickly to his usually sun-"Miss Winstanley says he proposed

"It seems to me." I cut in, "that you'd be glad to have it over. He was bound to offer himself sooner or later, and now that he's done it and she has refused him, you all understand each other, and he won't be forever underfoot, as he has been. It will be much less embarrassing all

He shook his head and, lighting cigar, walked on moodily beside me. "Ankony is the devil." he said nervously. "You don't understand."

"That Hemingray has taken about three thousand, and that he has been taking it for more than six months. Of course I understand that under the circumstances-" "Under no circumstances would believe a thing like that until it had been proved to me." "It won't take long to prove it. We'll call Austin."

"Wait. If you are convinced, you may convince me, if you can. I am not ready to talk with any one outside yet. Not even Austin." He sneered openly. A sneer from

"You admit the theft, don't you?" "Do you admit the motive that prompts you in the prosecution?" "That's got nothing to do with it.

But naturally—quite naturally, I'm sure-it is to our interest to stop this business and make an example of the pert accountant, infallible, and an thief. We've stood it too long already. This is the fifth time this has happened to the company in twice that many years. I tell you it won't do to let it go on." I looked at him and smiled. It may not have been a very pleasant smile; I certainly didn't intend it to be, and he flushed beneath it. "What do you mean?" he blustered. "That what you are telling me is all nonsense." I retorted.

"Now that you've gone this far, perhaps you will go a little farther and nake yourself plain," he cried an-

"Certainly. You were refused last night by Miss Hemingray." "She told you that?"

"If you knew her better you would not ask such a question. She told me nothing. You made your proposal so public that the refusal was bound to be more or less so, and you have yourself to thank for the fact that I, with others, know of it. Now, to make her suffer, you throw her brother into prison.

He got up hotly and took a step or wo toward me "Be careful what you say. You know better than that." "Your habit has not been to run down offenders," I remarked.

"We've had to let several of them go because of their relation to members of the company. But there must be a stop somewhere, and I am in earnest when I say that it must be here. I'm sorry for the boy and for his sister, though a don't expect you to believe it. But-"

"Because our interview is at an "It's only begun. We must talk of how we are to proceed."

I walked toward the door. "Am I to understand you refuse to have anything to do with the prosecution?" he cried.

"You certainly are, Ankony." "I must remind you of your obligation to the company."

"Ankony," I said, going in to him, for God's sake think of Miss Hemingray, if you won't think of the boy. If she had accepted you last night, you would not have followed this course. You wouldn't have considered it. You would have been full of other plans this morning. Surely we can't hold women to blame for not caring for us when we ask them to. It's not fair. Love isn't to be compelled: you know that as well as I do. Think better of this. Won't you? You know what an honored place theirs has always been in the community. NORTHVILLE-While moving some old books in their home Monday the VanZile family found nine dollars tucked away that had been out of cir culation for many a day. There were two 2's and one 5. They bore dates of 1802 and had evidently been placed in the books many years ago. The bills were in a good state of preservation although they had the appearance and feeling of dried maple leaves,-Record.

MANCHESTER-What do you know about this? "Miss Flava Bailey the efficient and obliging night operator at the telephone exchange called the editor Tuesday night to see an air ship that was sailing in a northwest direction. On account of so many shade trees about our residence we could not see the ship, but appreciated her kindness just the same. Let Me Send A Typewriter for Free Trial Not at Your Expense-But Mine

The reason is—I want you to know how good and how dif-ferent the Fox Typewriter is. That's why I'll send a Fox Typewriter to your office absolutely at my expense, prepaying all charges. Give it every hard test you can think of — compare it with any and every other machine. Maybe you've had typewriter

I spent years perfecting my invention so as to avoid every flaw and weak point in other typewri-ters. And I did avoid them all.

That's why the Fox, with the hardest Trust competition, is making good everywhere with keen-thinking business men—and selling all over the civilized world.

It is one typewriter that is absolutely right in those vital parts—tos typebar and hanger. On the Fox, the bearing is wide and the bar is heavy. That means no wearing down—perfect alignment for years and years.

You can buy two carriages—different lengths—and change them at will. You write with two colors on the Fox and you do not have to touch the ribbon from the time it goes on until it is worn out. Use the Fox for any purpose: letter writing, invoicing, billing, tabulating, stencil cutting and heavy manifolding. One Fox machine does all these things perfectly.

I can't make a claim so strong that the proof won't back it up. That's why I say to you as a fair-play loving business man—just try the Fox Typewriter, all at my expense.
You have no risk, assume no obligation, and I thank you before hand for the privilege. Just write me, personally.

When wishing to consult with a Veterinarian come and see me at my office on the second floor of the Hatch & Durand Block. There we can be alone and have a private talk, and everybody need not know if everything is not alright. No use to have a lot listening to you if your best horse has gone a little wrong, but come where we can talk quietly and confidentially. Yours for square dealing,
