Maccabee Memorial.

Sunday afternoon the members of Chelsea Tent, K. O. T. M. M., and Columbian Hive, L. O. T. M. M., held their annual memorial services. Both orders met at their hall at two o'clock where the roll was called of forty departed Sir Knights, thirty-five of whom belonged to the local Tent and five from other Tents in the state. During the past year there has been six names added to the roll, five of them since the first of January.

At the close of the roll call both organizations marched to the town hall where the following program was carried out:

Music by the Chelsea Band. Prayer, Rev. M. L. Grant.

Song by the Male Quartet composed of Messrs. L. Burg, E. Winans, J. H. Boyd and Geo. W. Millsbaugh.

Great Counselor Frank E. Jones, of Ann Arbor, delivered the address which was one of the best ever delivered on an occasion of this character in this place.

Song by the Male Quartet. The members of Columbian Hive then carried out their impressive memorial services.

The lines were then formed, headed by the Chelsea Band, and marched to Oak Grove cemetery where the Sir Knights carried out their memorial services and the graves in Oak Grove and Mt. Olivet cemeteries of the deceased members of both orders were decorated with flowers.

May Lose Eyesight.

Public Works Commissioner Jacob J. Haarer is threatened with the loss of his eyesight unless treatment he is now undergoing proves successful. The affliction developed about three weeks ago, when Mr. Haarer complained that his eyes felt gritty, as though there were particles of sand in them. He paid little attention to the trouble at first, but when his sight began to fail he consulted an oculist, who discovered an adhesion between the lens and the pupil of each eye.

The commissioner is now wearing dark glasses and treating his eyes with a solution intended to break down the adhesion. If this treatment is not successful and the condition continues, total blindness is almost certain within a year. Mr. Haarer is still able to look after his outside work, but he has not been able to do any reading, or even sign his name for several days. All checks, vouchers and other papers requiring his signature are now signed by Secretary Porter Murphy as acting commissioner.

"I never realized how valuable eyes were to a fellow till now," said the commissioner, Monday. Detroit Times. Mr. Haarer is well known in Chelsea, and is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Noyes.

Rally Service at Methodist Church.

Next Sunday morning a special Rally service will be held. It is desired that every member and adherent of the church be present.

Three minute reports will be received from the various departments of the church: Sunday school, C. W. Saunders; Epworth League, Charles Fulford; Treasurer of the church, J. S. Cummings; Ladies' Aid, Mrs. G. W. Palmer; Home Missionary Society, Mrs. M. J. Noyes; Foreign Missionary Society, Mrs. J. Hathaway; Junior League, Mrs. F. Hendry; Queen Esther Circle, Miss Esther Riemenschneider.

The pastor will give a fifteen minute sermon on "Summer Sundays." The choir will sing an anthem and F. K. McElowney will sing a solo. The Epworth League will have a floral remembrance for all those present in the service who are of advanced years. Everyone is cordially invited.

Lost His Minnow.

Arlington Guerin had planned to have a fishing party May 1. He had a fine lot of minnows in his box, which he had put in the Lima Center creek. On account of the storm the party was postponed until June 16. During the storm the minnow box went down stream. Postmaster Prettyman, of Ann Arbor was to be one of the party. The following letter has been received from him: "Ann Arbor, June 7th. Friend Arl: A friend of mine, a fisherman, has just told me the following peculiar incident. While he was fishing at the dam here in Ann Arbor a day or two since he noticed a box floating in the water. Just as the box went over the dam he saw the name Guerin on it. He asked if that was not the name of my Lima friend, the great fisherman. I told him it was and have been wondering ever since how that box got into the Huron."

PIONEER MEETING.

The Meeting at Saline Last Week Was an Interesting One.

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Washtenaw Pioneer Society was held in the Baptist church at Saline on Wednesday of last week, and was a most successful gathering. The day was a pleasant one thus making it possible for many of the older people to be present.

John McDougall, necrologist in his report showed that since the last meeting sixty-two of the older members of the organization have died.

Treasurer O. C. Burhart in his report showed that the society had a balance of $3.87 in the treasury. Various incidents of early days were mentioned by different ones which were interesting.

The oldest pioneer present was Chas. Gadd of Bridgewater, 92 years old. Two were present who had passed 85, ten who had passed 80, and eighteen who were over 75. Eight of the old veterans of the civil war were also present.

The report of the nominating committee is as follows: President, H. A. Waters, Manchester; secretary, Robt. Campbell, Ann Arbor; Treasurer, O. C. Burkhart, Chelsea; Necrologist, John A. McDougall, Superior. Vice Presidents—W. D. Harriman, Ann Arbor; Chas. Braun, Ann Arbor Town; John K. Campbell, Augusta; H. R. Palmer, Bridgewater; W. H. ### Wants Her Child Back.

Mrs. Gertrude Scripser, of near Howell, on Friday filed a petition to have modified a decree of divorce granted by Judge Kinne on April 19 last, to her husband, Scott Scripser, which gave him the custody of their baby girl, Thelma.

In her petition Mrs. Scripser sets forth that she was not told that her husband had applied for the custody of the child. She did not appear in the divorce suit and intimates that she was only too willing the decree should be granted, but that having to give up the child is a different thing. Last week Wednesday, she alleges, Scripser, his sister, Nancy Schweikert, and Deputy Sheriff Leach of Chelsea came to her house, and while one of them held her, the others grabbed the little girl and put her, screaming, into an automobile and sped away.

On Thursday Mrs. Scripser consulted her attorneys, and the result is that she filed her petition asking to have that part of the decree regarding the custody of her child pending the outcome of the case. Judge Kinne issued an order calling upon the former husband to show cause why the decree should not be modified and he also gave the child to its mother pending the outcome of the case.

Grant Fellows a Candidate.

The republicans of this district will present the name of Grant Fellows of Hudson city to the next state convention as their candidate for attorney-general.

There are few attorneys in southern Michigan better known because of legal ability and political prominence than Mr. Fellows, but it will surprise even his friends to know that he has never heretofore been a candidate for any office. He was born in Hudson in 1865, and was admitted to the bar in 1886, has been appointed to a number of positions of honor. He has been a member of the state bar appointed to revise the rules and practice; was selected by the supreme court to serve on the state board of examiners of applicants for admission to the bar; and in 1908 represented this district in the national convention at Chicago. Mr. Fellows has spoken frequently at Chelsea in political campaigns and is well liked and has many warm friends here.

Adequate pensions.

Roosevelt-Taft policies.

Congressman Charles E. Townsend last Thursday at the Auditorium in Battle Creek delivered an address which can be considered the keynote of his campaign for United States senator. He received a most generous reception, and his utterances have stirred up a great deal of enthusiasm all over the state in regard to his candidacy to succeed Senator Burrows.

Old Time Concert.

The Old Time Concerte at the Sylvan Tuesday evening was a unique entertainment and was well received by most of the large audience. There were a few present who were afraid that they were not going to receive their money's worth, and so injected considerable noise and commotion at several times, making life miserable to those who wished to hear every number. The noise also made it especially hard for the performers. The entertainment was all that it had been advertised to be, and the older members of the audience were taken back to their younger days by the songs and the style of the dresses, the ladies looking as though they had just stepped from some old daguerreotype.

Managers Tell of the Horrible Sufferings of the Faithful Expedition Animals.

Now that the hurrahing over polar expeditions is dying down humane journals are pointing out that a portion of the praise bestowed upon north pole explorers should be awarded to the unfortunate dogs, without whose services, given at great cost of suffering to themselves, the attempts at pole reaching would have been impossible.

TEN KILLED IN STATE SUNDAY

FATALITIES AND NEAR-FATALITIES REACH LARGE NUMBER IN ONE DAY.

TWO DYING, 10 OTHERS ILL AS A RESULT OF DRINKING BOUT SUNDAY.

The auspicious inauguration of the summer season and the mad race for Sabbath-day pleasure on the first bright and sunny Sunday of the summer was responsible for an extraordinarily large number of fatalities and near-fatalities about the state Sunday.

While driving to church Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Austin, wealthy farmers living near Marengo village, were struck by an M. U. R. car. Mrs. Austin was instantly killed, and her husband died before a physician could reach him.

Three Dead From Alcohol Debauch. As the result of a fatal drinking bout at Neawautaka, a crossroads town 13 miles northwest of Cadillac, three men are dead and two are dying, while 10 are seriously ill.

McCaskey came to Cadillac and secured four gallons of whisky, it is alleged. This the crowd is said to have entirely consumed by Saturday night, when they secured from Martin's home a gallon jug of wood alcohol, which Martin had for operating a moving picture machine.

TREATED AS FIRST AMERICAN OF TIME

Theodore Roosevelt Most Highly Honored in Europe.

EXCITING INCIDENT IN ROME

Former President Delivered Scholarly Lectures in Paris, Berlin and Oxford—Represented His Country at King Edward's Funeral.

Scarcely less interesting than his hunting trip in Africa, and at times almost as exciting, were the adventures of Col. Theodore Roosevelt in Europe. There he desired to be treated as a man of letters and science, rather than as a sportsman, and his desire was gratified. But in addition, Europe insisted on receiving him as the most distinguished American of the time, and everywhere he went honors were showered on him.

In Paris, Christiania, Berlin and Oxford Mr. Roosevelt delivered scholarly public addresses and the literary and scientific circles opened to let him in and marveled at the wide scope of his knowledge.

The event connected with Mr. Roosevelt's European tour that aroused the most interest and excitement occurred immediately after his arrival in Italy early in April. Before he left Africa his desire to pay his respects to the pope had been conveyed to the Vatican and the holy father had intimated that he would be glad to see the distinguished American.

plans for the entertainment of the ex-president in Berlin, but the death of King Edward caused the curtailment of the program to a considerable extent. Instead of being the Kaiser's guest in the palace, Mr. Roosevelt stopped at the American embassy, and though William received him and received, through the American minister, a message from Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of state, to the effect that the pope would grant an audience to Mr. Roosevelt if he did not repeat the mistake made by Mr. Fairbanks. The colonel promptly called it all off, stating that as an independent American citizen he could not submit to such restrictions. The head of the Methodist mission tried to make religious capital out of this, and Mr. Roosevelt thereupon canceled the plans for a general reception to which the Methodists had been invited. Thus, with his usual luck and facility for "coming out on top," he had the best of the matter all around and his conduct was generally commended all over the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and Kermit were received by the king and queen of Italy and spent some days in that country. The colonel and his wife visited Venice and traveled once again the Riviera route that they passed over on their honeymoon, and next Mr. Roosevelt visited Vienna and Budapest, where he was given a royal welcome.

Paris was next on his itinerary, and there on April 23 he lectured in the Sorbonne before a great audience of savants and students. The municipality and its officials, the president of France and various learned societies vied with each other in doing honor to the visitor, and for amusement he was taken to the field of aviation, where he saw some exciting aeroplane flights.

Traveling northward somewhat leisurely, by way of Brussels, Amsterdam and Copenhagen, Mr. Roosevelt arrived at Christiania and delivered an address on international peace before the Nobel prize commission, which had awarded to him the Nobel prize for his successful efforts to end the Russo-Japanese war.

35 DEAD IN FIRE AT MONTREAL

THE HERALD BUILDING DESTROYED—WALL OF FLAME SHUTS OUT RESCUERS.

MEMBERS OF EDITORIAL STAFF ESCAPE, BUT BINDERY AND LINOYPISTS ARE CAUGHT.

Water Tank Comes Crashing Down Crushing Many and Injuring Others; Loss $200,000.

Thirty-five persons are reported dead in a fire which destroyed the building of the Montreal Herald, the Liberal organ at Montreal.

Many are said to have been carried to death by a water tank placed on the roof which crashed through the building from floor to floor when the fire started.

Bindery girls and linotype operators fell through the huge gap in the floors of the building caused by the tank and were quickly buried under machinery and timbers.

All the members of the editorial department escaped uninjured, the dead and dying being mostly confined to the employees of the bindery.

The dead are all buried in the ruins of the building, but no attempt can be made to extricate their bodies, as the ruins still burn.

The flames were first confined to the upper floors of the building, but although all the available fire apparatus turned out it was impossible to control the fire, which was fanned by a strong wind.

Inspector McMahon, of the police force, called upon those around him to organize a rescue party, but a tremendous wall of flame suddenly rising from the basement made it impossible to enter the building.

Flies From New York to Philadelphia. Charles K. Hamilton, the American aviator, flew over to Philadelphia from New York, Monday, smoked a cigarette, turned around and went right back again. He flew the 86 miles over in 1 hour 53 minutes.

The total round trip distance is the longest city-to-city flight ever made by an aviator, exceeding the record flights of Curtiss and Paulhan.

Going back Hamilton was due at Governor's Island between 1:15 and 1:20 p. m., but up to 1:45 he had not been seen. Explanation was made when the message came stating the aviator had landed in a swamp, two miles from Perth Amboy, N. Y.

Hamilton landed because his motor was working badly, largely, he thought, because he omitted cleaning the spark plugs during his stop in Philadelphia.

A Perth Amboy garage furnished him with new plugs and he immediately began preparations to sail on to New York.

Hamilton's flight was spectacular from start to finish, and his arrival at Philadelphia was the signal for an enthusiastic demonstration by vast crowds of people.

Sugar Trust Officers Guilty. Charles R. Heike, secretary and treasurer of the American Sugar Refining Co., and Ernest W. Gerbracht, formerly superintendent of the Havemeyer & Elder refinery in Williamsburg, were found guilty in the federal court of the United States circuit court. The third defendant, James F. Bendernagel, who was formerly cashier of the Havemeyer & Elder refinery, was the subject of a long fought disagreement among the 12 jurors during the nearly 12 hours in which they deliberated. This is the verdict returned by the jury.

"We find the defendant Heike, guilty on the sixth count of the indictment. We find the defendant Gerbracht guilty as charged in the indictment. As to the defendant Bendernagel, we cannot agree."

Yaquis Join Red Rebels. The Mexican government is taking prompt and vigorous action toward quelling the Maya Indian uprising in Yucatan and Quintana Roo. More than 10,000 troops will be in the field against the Indians within 10 days.

The report that more than 5,000 Mayas are moving in one body towards Merida is believed by military authorities to be an exaggeration. It is not thought that there are that many available fighting men in the Maya tribe, but there is little actual knowledge as to their numbers, owing to the fact that they inhabit remote localities and seldom come in contact with the Mexicans except in their raids.

According to a report received from Merida many Yaqui Indians who were exiled to the Haquin plantations have escaped and joined the Mayas.

Train Hits Funeral Coach. Five persons were killed when a train-racing along at 50 miles an hour struck a funeral coach on a crossing near Haverstraw, N. Y. The pastor, three mourners and the driver were the victims. The accident happened at the foot of Grave Yard hill, in full sight of which the returning funeral procession, of which the wrecked coach was the first and of the terrified and helpless watchman.

Hints For Hostess

TIMELY SUGGESTIONS for Those Planning Seasonable Entertainments

Novel Musical Party.

The invitations were on cards decorated with bars of music at top done in pen and ink. First the guests were given sheets of cream drawing paper with pencils and told to illustrate the title of a well-known song, new or old. The finished productions were pinned to the wall to be guessed; ten minutes was allowed for the drawing.

The next stunt was to recognize terms used in music from the objects on a table; for instance, a ball of string represented "chord," a folded note, "note;" a cane, the "staff;" a toy fish for "bass," and a trunk key for "key," etc. This was most amusing; ten minutes allowed to recognize the terms.

Then from the word "baritone," there was a word contest, each word counting five that the opponents did not have; four at a table played this, going in progression until all had been around. If only took a half hour. Another stunt was having the names of well-known musicians pinned on the back, the wearers having to find out who they were. Musical instrument candy boxes were used for all the prizes. The refreshments were delicious, consisting of sandwiches with a cream cheese and English walnut filling, coffee, strawberry tart and a fruit punch.

Scotch Golf Tea.

Two young matrons whose husbands came from Scotland belonged to the same golf club and entertained together at an afternoon tea.

The rooms were decorated with genuine Scotch heather which a friend had brought over with this occasion in mind. Scotland's flag was in evidence, also the thistle, the latter appeared on the programs, for there was a delightful informal musical. Many of the old Scotch songs were sung and there was one number on the bagpipes played by a native Highlander in costume. I give the list of songs:

"The Campbells Are Coming," "Blue Bells of Scotland," "Highland Laddie," "Bonnie Doon," "My Ain Country," "Annie Laurie," "How Gently Sweet Afton," "March of the Cameron Men," "John Highlandman," "Auld Lang Syne."

Tea, oatmeal cakes, orange marmalade and cookies were served by young girls each wearing a different plaid kerchief and cap with plaid ribbons.

An Animal Game.

I watched some children the other night who seemed to be having the best time imaginable over this game. They had slips of paper numbered from one to fifteen and a blackboard such as many children possess. The oldest child, a girl about eleven, seemed to be the leader and she whispered to each boy or girl in turn the name of an animal to be drawn on the board; each of the audience writing down opposite the figure what animal he thought the artist was attempting to portray. When 15 animals had been drawn the slips were collected and the child who had correctly guessed the most was to be awarded a prize.

Two Novel Handkerchief Showers.

A most enjoyable and unique handkerchief shower was given recently. It included the bridegroom and other men. The girls brought a "mouchoir" for the bride and the men each contributed one to the bridegroom. They were done up with cards each bearing an original rhyme. After the merry presentation there was an informal dance. There were just 20 guests, all intimate friends. By the way, only one's truest and best friends should be asked to "showers," for strangers are apt to consider such affairs an imposition.

This affair for a prospective bride was arranged in a very clever manner. Twelve intimate friends were invited to luncheon with the request to bring the gift "mouchoir" rolled up into the smallest package possible. Before going to the dining-room the hostess took all the packages and disappeared. When luncheon was announced, with one voice the guests exclaimed, "how pretty." Suspended from the chandelier there was an inverted Japanese umbrella, from each rib there was a smaller umbrella, and from this hung by ribbons there was a gilded watering can, the sprinkler of which had 12 holes with baby ribbons of different colors coming out. At the end of each ribbon there was a tightly-rolled package. The effect was lovely. The place cards were miniature "Jap" parasols with the cards tied to the handles. The candle shades were ornamented with these same tiny parasols and small lanterns filled with candied-puffed rice were at each place. The mint sherbet, which was the dessert, had small twined around the tall glass with another little umbrella in the top of the glass.

MADAME MERRI.

The pretty fluffly jabots are prominent in the spring neckwear.

Dots and rings are much employed in the new foulard designs.

On Louis XII. coats one sees three pocket flaps, one above the other. Tailor-made gowns of silk will be more in evidence than ever before.

Many coats have continuous fronts, but are cut off at the waist in the back and pulled into a satin or leather belt.

Coarse russet braid, row upon row, soutache in intricate patterns and soutache in hanging knots, constitute the trimming for outdoor garments.

Skirts are drawn tightly, the fullness massed at each side or directly in the back by a broad strap about a hand wide, or sometimes by a band reaching to the sides.

Pretty Blouses

THESE three pretty blouses will all commend themselves to our readers by their smartness and simplicity.

The first is of the favorite Claudine style, but it has a seam down shoulder and outside of arm, so that it may be cut from silk or any single-width material, as the vandykes down the outside of sleeve prevent the seam from showing; a strip of lace or insertion is laid under the vandykes; the sleeve-bands are also of this, while the Puritan collar might match, or be of embroidered lawn, as preferred.

Materials required: 3 yards silk 22 inches wide, 1 1/4 yards insertion, or 3/4 yard lace.

The center sketch shows a good design for linen or Shantung. The two tucks at each side are carried to waist at back, they are 1 1/4 inches wide; the right front, which wraps over the left side, is fastened by hooks, the buttons and loops being for ornament only.

Not many years ago the farmer who tried to cultivate large fields was considered the man who was doing large things. Modern methods of farming have taught us that large things can be done in the small field. The man who grows a thousand bushels of corn on a small field is a more successful farmer than the one who grows a thousand bushels on a large field.

The farmer who intelligently reduces the size of his fields, and makes each smaller field grow more in proportion than the larger fields, is on the right road to success. All corn, wheat or cotton will soon make the farmer poorer and reduce the fertility of his soil so that it will be difficult for him to ever get paying crops again.

Materials required: Four yards 20 inches wide, 3/4 yards trimming, 1 yard tucked net.

EVERBLOOMING CANNAS FOR THE SUMMER BEDS

Probably Not Another Plant of Easy Culture That Surpasses New Gladiolus-Flowered Plant for Gorgeous Display.

Cannas for Summer Beds.

Perhaps there is not another class of everblooming flowers of easy culture that surpasses the new Gladiolus-flowered Cannas for a gorgeous display in large beds. The plants begin to bloom early, and improve in beauty and showiness as they increase in age, until their glory is suddenly cut short by the hand of Jack Frost.

In the south they are equally effective until winter comes, and even then the clumps can remain in the earth until planting time in the spring. The flowers are large, of bright colors and distinct variegations and are borne in huge, erect clusters, as shown in the engraving, each plant bearing several clusters, says Park's Floral Magazine.

The plant seems well adapted to almost any soil or temperate climate. They delight in hot sunshine and an abundance of moisture. They grow in poor or sandy soil, but will repay rich soil and good care. They show well in beds of one color or mixed colors, and never fail to yield a gorgeous display. Propagation may be readily effected from either seeds or division.

Japanese Chrysanthemum.
The Japanese cultivate chrysanthemums in 269 varieties of colors. Of these 57 are white, 63 yellow, 33 purple, 31 pink, 30 red, 12 russet and 14 of mixed hues.

FOR STACKING HAY QUICKLY

The accompanying illustration shows how I stack my hay by means of a post and block and tackle arrangement, says a writer in Farm, Stock and Home. Follow the rope from the hitch end and you will see how it works. Notice the block back of the wagon. The post should be of good timber, and the pulley hooks strong and bolted through the post. The post will need to be as high as the stack or a little higher. It must be well braced.

Use the ordinary hay slings, two of them to the load. If you will provide a couple of planks to run from the wagon on to the stack you can carry the stack up until you are ready to top off before pitching. Your ropes want to be 3/4-inch, and sling rope should be 1/2-inch. Tie a loopknot in the end of the stay rope which is fastened to the rear of the sling, and when the load is off loosen this knot and your hay is free. This is cheap, and it will work.

Secrets of Dairy Profit.

The secret of dairy success in Holland is easily understood, and may be stated in a few words—efficient cows, excellent care, co-operation and superior quality of butter and cheese.

SUCCESS ON SMALL FARM

In Mixed Farming Great Value of Having Small Fields is That They Can Be Used in Rotation of Pasture

Of late years much has been said about the value of the small farm. Few people stop to consider the value of the small field when it is given intelligent care and cultivation.

Not many years ago the farmer who tried to cultivate large fields was considered the man who was doing large things. Modern methods of farming have taught us that large things can be done in the small field. The man who grows a thousand bushels of corn on a small field is a more successful farmer than the one who grows a thousand bushels on a large field.

In mixed farming, the great value of having small fields is that when fenced they can be used in rotation of pasture for the better health of the stock and the utilization of waste feeds.

Where Peppermint is Grown.

Much of the world's peppermint is grown on peppermint farms in the neighborhood of Kalamazoo, Mich., where over 300,000 pounds of the oil, worth $5 a pound, is produced annually.

The KITCHEN CABINET

BEST of all is it to preserve everything in a pure, still heart, and let there be for every pulse a thanksgiving and for every breath a song.

Do Two Things at Once.

The wise housekeeper plans to make every minute and bit of work count. She scorns the idea that it is impossible to do two or three things at once. By doing an extra amount when once started at a piece of work one may save a great deal of time, than by making two jobs of it.

When preparing pastry for a pie, a larger quantity may be mixed except the water, which may be added when used.

When making a custard, leave the sugar out, and make enough to reserve a cupful to which add mustard, salt and pepper, and you have a salad dressing. The sugar may be added and the flavor desired and the custard is made.

By doubling a cake recipe and baking half in gem pans and the rest in a loaf. Change the flavoring, have one spiced, the other some other flavor. One fire bakes all and the cake will keep if put into a tight tin box. A nice sauce may convert these same small cakes into a delicious pudding if one has need of a dessert in a hurry. Steam the cakes in a sieve over the teakettle.

In cooking potatoes, prepare enough for several meals, even two days. Remove some for a salad after cooking, mash some of the rest, and as mashed potato may be reheated in a double boiler, the second day, it will pay to prepare a large supply.

In sewing this rule works as well. Cut out a number of garments at a time, for it saves time in the end.

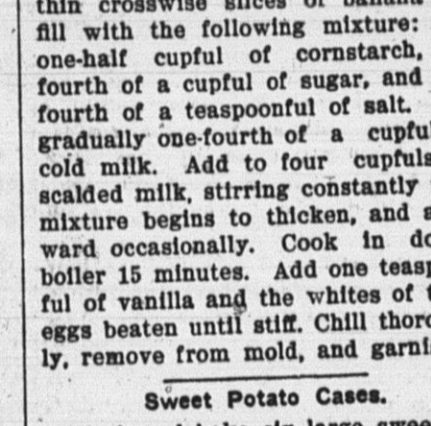

Often it is the "getting at" a thing which is the hard part. So by doing a double amount we do not fritter our time by going from one piece of work to another, and we accomplish more with less worry and wear on the nerves. It is simply being forehanded.

Home Ideas.

A compressed yeast cake if a part is used and no one wishes to save it, may be kept for a week by immersing it in the flour bin or salt or cornmeal. Keep an old teaspoon in the soda and baking powder cans, a tablespoon in the coffee can and a measuring cup in the sugar box.

COAST FRUIT CROPS.

Prospects in New England and Pacific States Redeems Losses in Interior. Splendid prospects for fruit in New England and the Pacific coast states almost counterbalance the poor showing of the central states, where early frost got in some telling work, according to a report by the department of agriculture.

The condition of the apple crop is reported to be more than 8 points below last year's crop of 53, as compared with a normal condition. The 10-year average for apples is 69.8. In New England and on the Pacific coast the crop promises to be immense, but in such big apple states as Ohio and Missouri there will be only about one-third of a crop.

On the other hand, the peach crop, due to the excellent prospects in such states as Georgia and Delaware, promises to be larger than last year, the condition on June 1 being 62, as compared with 54.1 last year and a 10-year average of 65. The central states will produce a poor crop.

Frost evidently nipped the blossoms, for the conditions of blackberries was estimated at 80, as compared with 90 last year and for the last four years. Raspberries were estimated at 79.2, as compared with 88.4 last year and 82.1, the four-year average.

The watermelon and the cantaloupe crops will be slightly off, it appears, as the former was estimated at 77.4, as compared with 81.5 a year ago and the latter 77.8, as compared with 81.8 a year ago.

Sugar cane was reported at 84.7, as compared with 90.6 and sugar beets at 90.5, as compared with 89.

Rough estimates place the value of his haul at several thousand dollars. The hold-up occurred one mile east of Robart, N. M., near Corriozito.

Docile Cheese. Andrew Carnegie, while eating with appetite and courage last month the dishes cooked by the young girls of the Margaret Morrison school in Pittsburg, said:

"I have no fear before these experimental dishes. He who has eaten in France learns to eat boldly.

"Think of the French cheeses alone! Why, one afternoon in a restaurant in the Boulevard des Italiens, I heard a guest shout angrily:

"Waiter, look here, this cheese is walking all over the table!"

"Ah, have no fear, monsieur. It won't escape," the waiter replied. "If it goes too far, just call 'Jules, Jules!' It always answers to its name."

A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE

Medicine Not Needed In This Case. It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury! They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and unsuspected one.

But the doctor knows. His wide experience has proven to him that to some systems, coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health. Ask the doctor if coffee is the cause of constipation, stomach and nervous trouble.

"I've been a coffee drinker all my life. I am now 42 years old and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration, the doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee.

"I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading your advertisement of Postum, I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said: 'Yes, and that he used it in his family, and it was all it claimed to be.

"So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum, steadily and found in about two weeks' time I could sleep soundly at night and get up in the morning feeling fresh. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I weighed only 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum, and now I weigh 167 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age.

"I am working every day and sleep well at night. My two children were great coffee drinkers, but they have not drank any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before."

Read "The Road to Wellville," found in pkgs. "There's a reason." Every reader of the above letter! A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

MISS THE LIGHT AND NOISE

Peculiar How Some People, Used to Bustle, Are Unhappy Amid Quiet Surroundings.

The necessity which some people feel for noisy surroundings was mentioned by a famous specialist in giving a medical explanation of the case of little Horace Collins, the hero messenger boy. The lad, although able to gratify every wish as the guest of Lord Lansdowne, at Bowood house, has a mastering longing for the bustle and light of the London streets.

"It is a very clear case of nostalgia," said the doctor. "A person suffering like that has lost two everyday friends, as it were—noise and light. It is entirely due to the nerves. Our nervous system gets into a pronounced groove in accordance with the everyday condition under which we live. A sudden change in living throws the nervous system out of gear. Both light and noise are nervous stimuli to people who live amid noise and light. Take away the comradeship of noise and light and the nervous system loses two stimulants necessary to its well-being and suffers in consequence.

"With the boy Collins the fact that he does not see policemen troubles him, because policemen to him have become an important part of the natural scheme of things.

"A very similar case occurred with a London housekeeper of mine. She was sent away to the country, and she simply couldn't endure to live there. She missed the companionship of noise so much that she had to be brought back to town again quickly, for her health was beginning to suffer."—London Mail.

FINNISH WORK OF PIRATES
Entire Ship's Company Slaughtered by Chinese and the Vessel Carried Off and Sold.

Says the North China Daily News: "Another terrible story is reported today from the south. In the middle of the tenth moon a vessel with a large cargo of unhulled rice, bound for a seaport near Canton, anchored for the night at Pakongkeu, some dozen miles north of Tsingyun. In the dark watches of the night the vessel was boarded by a score of thieves who, after a desperate struggle, overpowered all the crew. They bound the captain and then, lashed him to the anchor and foot dropped him overboard. The remainder of the crew were drowned in a similarly cold-blooded fashion and then the vessel silently weighed anchor and slipped down the river. The sole survivor had gone ashore to drink wine with a friend in the neighborhood, and when next morning at dawn he came seeking his ship he learned the fearful tale from some fishermen who had been plying their nets near by.

"From inquiries made it has transpired that the vessel was taken to Samsuh, where a steam launch was requisitioned to tow her speedily to Chant'shufen, a large grain center near Canton. Here the cargo of 60,000 catties was easily sold for $2,000, after which the vessel also was sold for the proverbial price of an old song.

"When it is possible to get clear away with such valuable prizes, it is not to be wondered at that piracy continues to flourish in this southern province."

NO REASON FOR IT.
When Chelsea Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near 'hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Chelsea citizen says:

Mrs. S. J. Trouten, McKinley St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "I suffered a great deal from backache and I had acute pains through my kidneys. Headaches and dizzy spells were common and the kidney secretions caused me considerable annoyance by their frequency in passage. I tried a number of remedies but found no relief until I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills. The contents of one box removed the backache and also strengthened my kidneys. I am pleased to give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement."

Death Generally Painless.
Physicians and nurses, whose whose business it is to hang over weary sick beds at all hours of the light and darkness, are very generally of the opinion that most deaths are without fear and painless. Only in rare instances in their experience is there anything approaching the death bed scenes of song and story. The ancients knew how to keep their appointments with death with grace and courtesy. It will be recalled that Socrates, "greatest of the sons of men," drank hemlock when sentenced to death with all the courage that has characterized the finest examples of modern deathbeds. Heathen though he was, Augustus Caesar exhibited no more fear of the future than any modern who dies cheered by the hope that the gates of a better world are open to receive him.

While examining the contents of the vault in the state treasury Deputy State Treasurer John Haarer found an old tin box hidden away behind a stack of musty records which contained a package of government checks amounting to $250, drawn to the order of eleven members of the Tenth Michigan cavalry which served in the civil war. The checks have reposed in the state treasury since 1865, having been sent here from Memphis, Tenn., by an express company after holding them three years in an effort to deliver them to the colonel of that regiment. # The WOOL INDUSTRY in THE AMERICAS

MAN'S first clothing was an animal pelt, and without doubt a sheep pelt. It may be suggested that the fig leaf antedates the sheepskin as an article of wear. This may be true, but the fig leaf can be considered only as a temporary expedient which was discarded with the first cool winds which swept over the Mesopotamian lowlands.

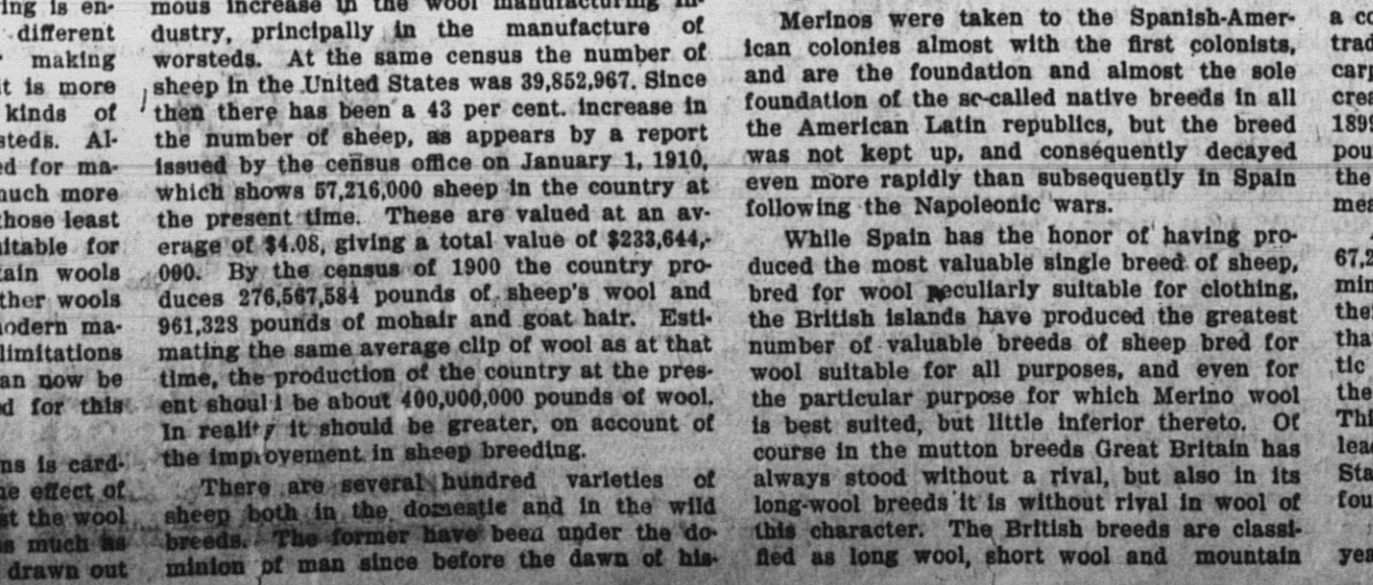

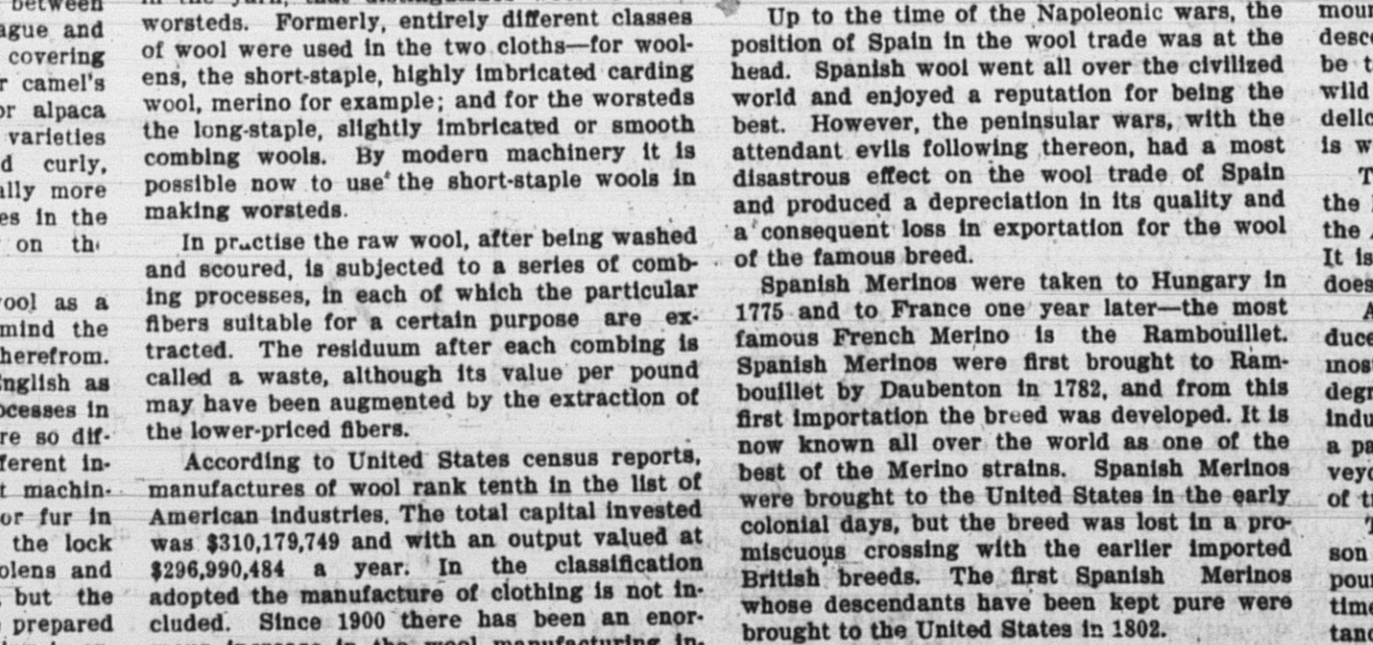

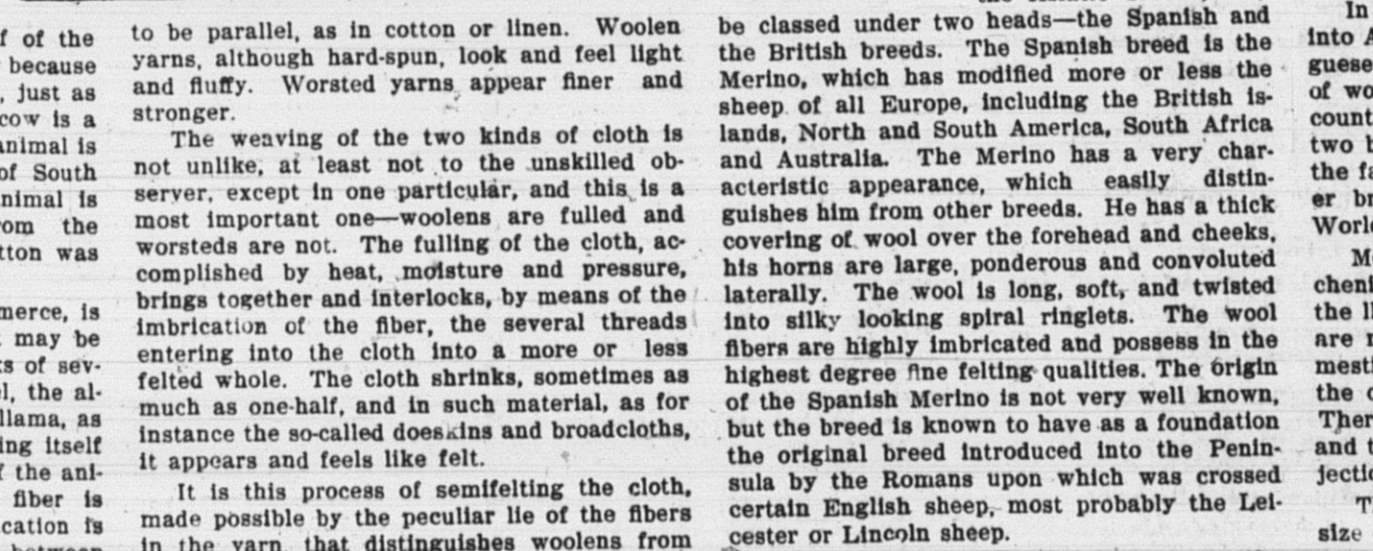

The sheep pelt or the wool plucked or sheared from it was the principal clothing of man from before the dawn of history down almost to the present day. Now cloth made from vegetable fibers, principally cotton, has a more extended use than wool. But this does not mean that cotton and linen are displacing wool as an article of human wear. Far from it; the use of wool constantly advances by enormous strides, and the even greater advance in the use of cotton is due in no small measure to the fact that the supply of wool can not meet the demand for clothing. Mankind must perforce wear the vegetable fibers or go unclothed. The same fact is true of the product of the silkworm; the supply can never equal the demand. Cotton, of course, has conquered for itself a new field, the clothing of the unclothed races of the earth. In addition it has supplied new articles of clothing to civilized man, whose ancestors wore but little else than wool. The European, or American of today does not wear less wool; in truth he wears more, but he also wears more articles of clothing, and these, for the most part, are cotton. There is a close parallel all over the world between the cattle and the sheep industry, but there are some important differences as well.

It has rarely happened and can scarcely happen again that cattle will anywhere be raised primarily for their horns and hides, but the raising of sheep for their wool is one of the well-recognized steps in the industry. It is the fact that this can be done so as to pay a handsome profit that built up the great sheep industries in the western part of the United States, in Australia and New Zealand, in South Africa, and now is building up a greater industry in South America. Free or very cheap pasturage is the fundamental condition for this kind of sheep raising. Were it not for these new lands, where the cost of feeding the sheep is nominal, the price of wool would advance to a point where wool clothing would be beyond the means of any except the very rich. Sheep raising is a profitable industry in England, or Germany, or the eastern half of the United States, not because of wool, but because of mutton. The fleece is a by-product, just as the hide of the steer or of the dairy cow is a by-product; the principal value of the animal is its flesh. In the new sheep centers of South America the principal value of the animal is its wool, and fortunes were made from the flocks even when not a pound of mutton was exported or sold.

Wool, as the word is used in commerce, is not a product alone of the sheep. It may be wool, although it comes from the backs of several varieties of goats, from the camel, the alpaca, the guanaco, the vicuña, or the llama, as well as from the sheep. It is the thing itself and not the zoological classification of the animal which determines whether the fiber is wool, hair, or fur. Since the classification is commercial and not scientific the line between these three classes is necessarily vague and indistinct. For instance, the under covering of the camel may be camel's hair or camel's wool. From the sheep there are many varieties of wool, long and short, straight and curly, coarse and fine, and, what is generally more important than any of these, varieties in the serrations or imbrications appearing on the surface of the fibers.

It is important in considering wool as a commercial commodity to keep in mind the three different kinds of cloth made therefrom. These are commercially known in English as felts, woolsens, and worsteds. The processes in making these three kinds of cloth are so different as to make them entirely different industries, employing entirely different machinery. Felt is made from the wool or fur in mass, the cloth holding because of the lock clutch of the imbricated fiber. Woolsens and worsteds are spun from threads, but the threads in the two kinds of cloth are prepared in a different manner, and the weaving is entirely unlike. Formerly, entirely different kinds of wools were used for making the two kinds of cloths, or rather it is more accurate to say that only certain kinds of wools could be used in making worsteds. Almost any kind of wool could be used for making woolsens, although some were much more suitable than others, and, as a rule, those least suitable for woolsens were best suitable for worsteds. In effect, therefore, certain wools were used for woolsens and certain other wools for worsteds. With the improved modern machinery used in worsted mills these limitations are fading away, so that worsteds can now be made from wools formerly not used for this purpose.

The wool used for making woolsens is carded; that for worsteds is combed. The effect of these two processes is that in the first the wool fibers are crossed and interlocked as much as possible, and in the second they are drawn out breeds. The long-wool breeds are the Leicester, Border Leicester, Cotswold, Lincoln, Kentish, Devon Longwool, South Devon, Wensleydale, and Roscommon.

The short-wool breeds—this class includes among others the famous mutton breeds—are the Oxford Down, Southdown, Shropshire, Hampshire Down, Suffolk, Ryeland, Somerset, and Dorset Horned.

The mountain breeds are the Cheviot, Blackfaced Mountain, Herdwick, Lonk, Dartmoor, Exmoor, Welsh Mountain, and Limestone.

All of these breeds are English except the Border Leicester, Cheviot, and Blackfaced, which are Scotch, the Welsh which belongs to Wales, and the Roscommon to Ireland.

The Leicester from an historical standpoint is the most important of the long-wool English sheep, and it was the great reputation of the wool of this breed that gave England in the past its prominent position as a wool-producing country.

The Lincoln is the largest and heaviest fleeced sheep. Many of the fleeces will weigh from 18 to 20 pounds, with a staple 20 inches in length.

The Cheviot is the best known among the mountain breeds. The Cheviot is sometimes called a middle-wool sheep.

The French breeds best known are the Choletaise, which carry a good fleece, the Larczac, a short, thick-set animal with long-fibered but rather scanty wool, the Berrichonne du Crevan, better known for its heavy milking qualities than for wool, and the Manchamp sheep, known as La Chamols, which produces a most excellent long and fine-fibered combing wool.

In addition to the domestic sheep introduced into America by the English, Spanish and Portuguese settlers, South America possesses a group of wool-bearing animals which are native to the country. This group, the auchenias, is one of the two branches into which the existing genera of the family of the camelidae is divided.

Most authorities agree in dividing the auchenias into four species, the guanaco, the vicuña, the llama, and the alpaca. The two last named are not known in the wild state, but were domesticated by the native Indians long prior to the coming of the Spaniards to South America.

The vicuña is a smaller animal, about the size of the fallow deer. It is found in the high mountains of Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador, seldom descending below 13,000 feet. Although it may be tamed, it is to all intents and purposes a wild animal. It yields an exceedingly fine and delicate wool of a reddish-yellow color, which is worth about twice as much as alpaca.

The alpaca was the wool-producing animal of the Incas, as it is yet of most of the people of the Andes and the west coast of South America. It is found principally in Peru and Bolivia, but does not thrive below about 5,000 feet.

All of the South American countries are producers of wool from the domestic sheep, and most of them are exporters to a greater or less degree; but the recent development of the sheep industry in Argentina, Uruguay, and Chile lends a particular interest to South America as a purveyor of this one of the world's staple articles of trade.

The annual wool clip of Argentina for the season of 1899-1900 was 8,000,000 kilograms, 17,600,000 pounds. This was a respectable showing for the time and gave Argentina a position of importance in the wool trade. The wool, however, was a coarse grade, most of it what is known to the trade as Cordova, used by worsted spinners for carpet yarns. In 50 years the industry had increased thirtyfold so that the clip of the year 1899-1900 was 239,000,000 kilograms—525,000,000 pounds. This represented about one-fourth of the world's production. The quality of the wool meanwhile had improved.

A recent census of the country (1908) shows 67,211,754 sheep. It is almost impossible for the mind to grasp these figures, but some idea of their significance can be gained when it is stated that "If the animals were assembled in a gigantic drove, 12 abreast, they would reach across the continent from New York to San Francisco." This places Argentina second to Australia, which leads the world with over 83,100,000, the United States third, with about 56,000,000, and England fourth, with about 35,000,000.

The export of wool from Argentina for the year 1908 amounted to 286,183,000 pounds.

SAVED OLD LADY'S HAIR

"My mother used to have a very bad humor on her head which the doctors called an eczema, and for it I had two different doctors. Her head was very sore and her hair nearly all fell out in spite of what they both did. One day her niece came in and they were speaking of how her hair was falling out and the doctors did it no good. She says, 'Aunt, why don't you try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment?' Mother did and they helped her. In six months' time the itching, burning and scaling of her head was over and her hair began growing. Today she feels much in debt to Cuticura Soap and Ointment for the fine head of hair she has for an old lady of seventy-four."

"My own case was an eczema in my feet. As soon as the cold weather came my feet would itch and burn and then they would crack open and bleed. Then I thought I would see to my mother's friends, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I did for four or five winters, and now my feet are as smooth as any one's. ## THE LITTLE BROWN JUG AT KILDARE

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON
Illustrated by RAY WALTERS

Copyright 1908 by The Bobbs-Merrill Company, 16

SYNOPSIS.

Thomas Ardmore and Henry Maine Griswold stumble upon intrigue when the governors of North and South Carolina are reported to have quarreled. Griswold allies himself with Barbara Osborne, daughter of the governor of South Carolina, while Ardmore espouses the cause of Jerry Dangerfield, daughter of the governor of North Carolina. These two young ladies are trying to fill the shoes of their fathers, while the latter are missing. Both states are in a turmoil over one Applegate, an outlaw with great political influence. Unaware of each other's position, both Griswold and Ardmore set out to make the other prosecute Applegate. Valuable papers in the office of Gov. Osborne and Griswold place the theft at the door of the scheming attorney general. Ardmore charts a caboose and starts for the border to plan the arrest of Applegate. Jerry meanwhile, is a guest at Ardsley. Ardmore's posse takes the field. Griswold, plotting to the same end as Ardmore, is also scouting the border with a posse. Ardmore's brother-in-law, the Duke of Ballywinkle, offers to elope with Jerry.

"Young man, I think I told you once before that your legs were altogether too active. I want you to light right out of here—skip!"

"Not for a million dollars. Our meeting is highly opportune, Cooke. It's not for me to fly in the face of Providence. I'm going to see what's doing down here."

"All right," replied Cooke. "Take it all in and enjoy yourself; but you're my prisoner."

"Oh, that will be all right! So long as I'm with you I can't lose out."

"March!" called Cooke, dropping behind; and thus the two came in a few minutes to the engine, the cars and the caboose. From the locomotive a slight smoke still trailed hazily upward.

Thomas Ardmore, coatless and hatless, sat on the caboose steps writing messages on a board pad, while a telegraph instrument clicked busily within. One of his men had qualified as operator and a pile of messages at his elbow testified to Ardmore's industry. Ardmore clutched in his left hand a message recently caught from the wire which he re-read from time to time with increasing satisfaction. It had been sent from Ardsley and ran:

I shall ride to-night on the road that leads south beyond the red bungalow, and on the bridge-path that climbs the ridge on the west, called Sunset Trail. A certain English gentleman will accompany me. It will be perfectly agreeable to me to come back alone.

G. D.

Ardmore was still writing when Cooke stood beneath him under the caboose platform.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Ardmore, but this is our first dispatch."

Ardmore signed a dispatch and then looked up and took the pipe from his mouth. Collins lifted his hat politely.

"Ah, Mr. Ardmore, you see I have taken advantage of your exceedingly kind invitation to look you up in North Carolina."

"He was looking for you very hard when I found him, Mr. Ardmore," interposed Cooke.

"Your appearance delights me," said Ardmore, extending his hand to the reporter. "It was nice of you to walk out here to find me. Wouldn't they put you up at the house?"

"Well, the fact is I didn't stop there. My paper sent me in this general direction on business, but I had every honorable intention of making you that visit after I finished my assignment. But Cooke here says I'm arrested."

"He's a dangerous character and can't be allowed to run loose in these parts. I'm going to tie him up," said Cooke.

"May I ask you, Mr. Collins, just what you are doing here?" inquired Ardmore.

"You may, and I'll bet a boiled goose that Cooke and I are on the same job."

"What are you looking for?" demanded Ardmore's chief of staff.

"It's a big story if I get it, and I have every intention of getting it," said Collins guardedly.

"Out with it!" commanded Ardmore.

"The fact is, then, that I'm looking for a person of importance."

"Go right on, please."

"And that person is the governor of North Carolina, who is mysteriously absent from Raleigh. He attended the Cotton Planters' convention in New Orleans. He got as far as Atlanta on his way home and then disappeared. I need not say to gentlemen of your intelligence that a lost governor is ripe fruit in my business, and I have reason to believe that for some purpose of his own the governor of North Carolina is hiding in this very neighborhood."

Cooke glanced at Ardmore for instructions, but the master of Ardsley preferred to keep the matter in his own hands.

"So you want to find the governor of North Carolina, do you? Well, you shall not be disappointed. You are too able and zealous to be wasted on journalism. I have a feeling that you are destined to higher things. Something told me when we met in Atlanta that fate had set up apart for each other. You came here, Collins, to look for the governor of North Carolina, and your wits and your argument for news have served you well. You have found the governor of North Carolina; I am he!"

Collins had stood during this recital in the middle of the track, with his legs wide apart, calmly fanning himself with his hat; but as Ardmore proceeded the reporter's hand dropped to his side, and a grin that had overspread his face slowly yielded to a blank stare.

"Would you mind repeating those last words?"

"I am the governor of North Carolina, Mr. Collins. The manner in which I attained that high office is not important. It must suffice that I am in sole charge of the affairs of this great state, without relief from valuation or appraisal laws, and without benefit of clergy. And we have much to do here; mere social conversation must await an ampler time. I now appoint you publicity agent to the governor. Your business is to keep the people fooled—all the people all the time. You will begin by sending out word that Gov. Dangerfield has given up all other work at present but the destruction of the Applegate gang."

"But by the ghost of John C. Calhoun, don't you see that I'm losing the chance of my life in my own profession? There's a story in this that would put me to the top and carry me right into New York," and Collins glanced about for his suit-case, as though meditating flight.

"Your appointment has gone into effect," said Ardmore with finality, "and if you bolt you will be caught and made to walk the plank. And so far as your future is concerned, you shall have a newspaper of your own anywhere you please as soon as this war is over."

The three men adjourned to the caboose, where Ardmore told Collins all that it seemed necessary for the newspaper man to know; and within half an hour the new recruit had entered thoroughly into the spirit of the adventure, though his mirth occasionally got the better of him, and he bowed his head in his hands and surrendered himself to laughter. Thereafter, until the six o'clock supper was ready, he kept the operator occupied.

He sent to the Palladium a thoroughly plausible story giving prominence to the Applegate case and leaving stress on Gov. Dangerfield's vigorous personality and high sense of official responsibility. He sent queries to leading journals everywhere, offering exclusive news of the rumored disappearance of North Carolina's governor.

Ardmore took Collins more fully into his confidence during the lingering twilight, and the reporter made many suggestions that were of real value. Meanwhile Cooke's men brought three horses from the depths of the forest and saddled them. Cooke entered the caboose for a final conference with Ardmore and a last look at the maps.

"Too bad," remarked the acting governor, "that we must wait until tomorrow night to pick up the Applegate weights, but our present business is more important. It's time to move, Cooke."

They rode off in single file on the faintest of trails through the woods, Cooke leading and Ardmore and Collins following immediately behind him. The great host of summer stars thronged the sky, and the moon sent its soft effulgence across the night. They presently forded a noisy stream, and while they were seeking the trail again on the farther side an owl hooted a thousand yards up the creek, and while the line re-formed Cooke paused and listened. Then the owl's call was repeated farther off and so faintly that Cooke alone heard it. He laid his hand on Ardmore's rein.

"There's a foot-trail that leads along that creek, and it's very rough and difficult to follow. Half a mile from here there used to be a still, run by one of the Applegates. We smashed it once, but no doubt they are operating again by this time. That hoot of the owl is a warning common among the pickets put out by these people. Wireless telegraphy isn't it with them. Every Applegate within 20 miles will know in half an hour how many there are of us and just what direction we are taking. We must not come back here to-night. We must put up on your place somewhere and let them think, if they will, we are guests of yours out for an evening ride."

"That's all right. Unless we complete this job in about two days my administration is a fizzle," said Ardmore, as they resumed their march through the forest. There was a wilder flogging to the roll of the land now, but the underbrush was better cleared, and the trail had become a bridge-path that had known man's care.

"This is some of Paul's work," said Ardmore; "and if I am not very much mistaken we are on my land now and headed straight enough for the wagon-road that leads south beyond the red bungalow. These roads in here were planned to give variety, but I never before appreciated how complicated they are."

The path stretched away through the heavy forest, and they climbed to a ridge that commanded a wide region that lay bathed in silver moonlight, so softly luminous that it seemed of the stuff of shadows made light. Westward, a mile distant, lay Ardsley, only a little below the level of the bridge and touched with a faint purple as of spring twilight.

Ardmore sat his saddle, quietly contemplating the great house that struck him almost for the first time as imposing. He felt, too, a little heart-ache that he did not quite understand.

"We'd better be moving," suggested Cooke. "Look below there!"

Looking off from the ridge they saw a man and a woman riding along a strip of road from which the timber had been cut. The night was so still, the gray light so subdued, that the two figures moved as steadily and softly as shadow pictures on a screen.

The slow even motion of the riders was interrupted suddenly. The man, who was nearer the remote observers, had stopped and bent toward the woman as though to snatch her rein, when her horse threw up its head and fell back on its haunches. Then the woman struck the man a blow with her riding-crop, and galloped swiftly away along the white ribbon-like road. In the perfect night-silence it was like a scene of pantomime.

"That's all right!" cried Cooke. "Come along! We'll cut into that road at the bungalow."

They swung their horses away from the ridge and back into the bridge-path, which once more dipped sharply down into heavy timber, Cooke leading the way, and three of the best hunters known to the Ardsley stables flew down the clear but winding path. The incident which the trio had witnessed required no interpretation; the girl's blow and flight had translated it into language explicit enough.

Ardmore thanked his German for entering a thousand times for the admirable bridge-path over which they galloped, with its certain footing beneath and clean sweep from the boughs above. The blood surged hotly through his heart, and he was angry for the first time in his life; but his head was cool, and the damp air of the forest flowing by tranquillized him into a new elation of spirit. Jerry Dangerfield was the dearest and noblest and bravest girl in the world—he knew that; and she was clever and resourceful enough to devise means for preserving her father's official and private honor; and not less quick to defend herself from insult from a titled scoundrel.

The three men rode out into the broad highway at the red bungalow and paused to listen.

"He hasn't got here yet. Only one person has passed and these must be the tracks of the girl's horse," said Cooke, who had dismounted and struck matches, the better to observe the faint hoof-prints in the hard shell road.

"He'll be along in a minute. Let us get into the shadow of the bungalow, and when he comes we'll ride out and nail him. The bungalow's a sort of way house. I often stop here when I'm out on the estate and want to rest. I have the key in my pocket."

As Ardmore's keys jingled in the lock Cooke cried softly. The quarry was riding swiftly toward them, and he drew rein before the bungalow as Cooke and Collins rode out to meet him.

"I say," panted the duke.

"You are our prisoner. Dismount and come into this house."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

St. Thomas of Canterbury. The festival of St. Thomas of Canterbury, from being perhaps the most popular of saints' days in England, has now fallen into complete desuetude, and its revival is not advocated by even the most fervent of Anglo-Catholics. It was Henry VIII, who destroyed the Becket tradition. The king was (as always) in need of money, and the shrine of St. Thomas in Canterbury Cathedral seemed a suitable object for legalized loot. So in 1538 an order was issued that the bones of the saint should be burned and the offerings made at his shrine—the trophies of three centuries and a half—were to be decanonized, his images to be destroyed and his name erased from the service books. The work was faithfully performed. "The name of Geta," writes Dean Stanley, "has not been more carefully erased by his rival brother on every monument of the Roman Empire."

Short, and to the Point.

One of the shortest speeches recorded in forensic annals is that of Taunton, afterward a judge. Charles Phillips, an Irish orator, had made a flowery speech in an assault case. Taunton, who was for the defendant, said in reply: "My friend's eloquent complaint amounts, in plain English, to this: That his client has received a good, sound horse-whipping; and my defense is as short—that he richly deserved it."

It is not so much what we do as what we are that tells in this world.—Home Chat.

LAND IN CANADA

AN INVESTMENT

WORK IT, AND SECURE 20 PER CENT. ON THE EXPENDITURE.

Farm lands in Canada increased in value this Spring from fifteen to twenty per cent, and as a result of this increase thousands of those who have gone there within the past few years have had that much more value added to their holdings. There is proof here that as a field for investment there is nowhere to be found a more profitable one than in purchasing farm lands in Canada. And, as a field for occupation and working the farms there is nowhere on the continent where more satisfactory return is given. The crops are always sure and the prices are always good. With railroads entering and traversing all the settled parts, there are very few districts in which the farmer will be more than from ten to twelve miles from a railway station. Roads are good, and big loads are easily handled. The price of getting grain to the primary market is low on this account, and then in reaching the world's markets the railways have their rates controlled by the Government, and what may be considered a fair deal is certain. Good prices for all kinds of grain is the rule, and if the investor has made good money by the increased value given to his unworked land, it is not difficult to understand that the profit to the man who works his land is just that much more, and there will be no depreciation. The man who holds a free homestead of one hundred and sixty acres of land, which he got for $10 as an entry fee, has land which at its lowest estimate is worth $10 an acre—yes, $15 an acre—the moment he has completed his three years' residence duties. It will continue to increase in value until its earning power gives a reasonable interest on a certain sum. That is, if he takes off the land fifteen to twenty dollars per acre clear profit each year, his land is worth to him, at a fair rate of interest, $200 an acre. If he only realizes $10 an acre clear profit, it is worth $100 per acre. Now, thousands of farmers are duplicating these figures. The price of land in Canada to-day is much less than its realising value. The fact that the fifty thousand Americans who went to Canada year before last were followed by one hundred thousand last year offers some evidence, and good evidence, too, that there is getting to be a pretty fair knowledge that money is to be made in Canada lands. As an investment money is to be made, but more by living upon the land, secured either by homestead or purchase. The one hundred thousand of last year will be one hundred and fifty thousand this year. These comprise people from every state in the Union, and it is just being realized the asset that awaits the homesteeker in Canada. The large numbers that have gone, though, makes no appreciable difference in the supply of land. There is still left vast quantities of the best of it. But the longer a delay is made in arriving at a decision, the price will advance proportionately, and the more desirable homesteads near the railway lines become more difficult to secure. "It looks to me," said the barber, "as though you took after your mother."

LAND IN CANADA

AN INVESTMENT

WORK IT, AND SECURE 20 PER CENT. ON THE EXPENDITURE.

Farm lands in Canada increased in value this Spring from fifteen to twenty per cent, and as a result of this increase thousands of those who have gone there within the past few years have had that much more value added to their holdings. There is proof here that as a field for investment there is nowhere to be found a more profitable one than in purchasing farm lands in Canada. And, as a field for occupation and working the farms there is nowhere on the continent where more satisfactory return is given. The crops are always sure and the prices are always good. With railroads entering and traversing all the settled parts, there are very few districts in which the farmer will be more than from ten to twelve miles from a railway station. Roads are good, and big loads are easily handled. The price of getting grain to the primary market is low on this account, and then in reaching the world's markets the railways have their rates controlled by the Government, and what may be considered a fair deal is certain. Good prices for all kinds of grain is the rule, and if the investor has made good money by the increased value given to his unworked land, it is not difficult to understand that the profit to the man who works his land is just that much more, and there will be no depreciation. The man who holds a free homestead of one hundred and sixty acres of land, which he got for $10 as an entry fee, has land which at its lowest estimate is worth $10 an acre—yes, $15 an acre—the moment he has completed his three years' residence duties. It will continue to increase in value until its earning power gives a reasonable interest on a certain sum. That is, if he takes off the land fifteen to twenty dollars per acre clear profit each year, his land is worth to him, at a fair rate of interest, $200 an acre. If he only realizes $10 an acre clear profit, it is worth $100 per acre. Now, thousands of farmers are duplicating these figures. The price of land in Canada to-day is much less than its realising value. The fact that the fifty thousand Americans who went to Canada year before last were followed by one hundred thousand last year offers some evidence, and good evidence, too, that there is getting to be a pretty fair knowledge that money is to be made in Canada lands. As an investment money is to be made, but more by living upon the land, secured either by homestead or purchase. The one hundred thousand of last year will be one hundred and fifty thousand this year. These comprise people from every state in the Union, and it is just being realized the asset that awaits the homesteeker in Canada. The large numbers that have gone, though, makes no appreciable difference in the supply of land. There is still left vast quantities of the best of it. But the longer a delay is made in arriving at a decision, the price will advance proportionately, and the more desirable homesteads near the railway lines become more difficult to secure. The Government publishes interesting literature, which may be had on application to any of the agents whose offices are located at different points through the States, and they (the agents) will be pleased to assist in any way possible in the choice of location.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

BREVITIES

ANN ARBOR—Because of the failure of the regents to grant the increase in wages asked two months ago, the electricians employed by the university will be replaced by a new force tomorrow, refusing to work any longer at the present scale.

JACKSON—Heophilus Wasielewski, 40, laid down on the railroad track at the junction Tuesday afternoon and fell asleep. A train came along and killed him. He had been employed in the coal pit. He leaves a widow and three children in Poland.

JACKSON—James Parker, a fireman on the Michigan Central, was convicted by a jury in circuit court Friday morning of a serious charge preferred by his 10-year-old stepdaughter, Dovetta Champion. The jury was out 1 1/2 hours before reaching a verdict.

ANN ARBOR—Fire that nearly resulted fatally to the three-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Spence, living on a farm in Superior township, started from clothing that was left near a stove pipe to dry. Before it was discovered the babe, lying in its crib near by, was terribly burned on the face, arms and legs.

DEXTER—The following teachers will have charge of the Dexter schools for the year 1910-11: Superintendent, Edward L. Cole; principal, Miss Zella A. McManus; first assistant, Miss Jennie Wamsley; seventh and eighth grades, Miss Iva Moye; fifth and sixth grades, Miss Grace McDonald; third and fourth grades, Mrs. Millie Litchfield; first and second grades, Miss Agnes Pratt.

HOWELL—R. B. Griffin the R. R. flagman saved an old gentleman's life a few days ago by presence of mind and quick action. The old gentleman had been looking after some stock matters and was walking around the end of a boxcar, to cross the track. Mr. Griffin who stood across the track, saw the passenger train approaching and called to the old man but he failed to hear. Another step would carry him in front of the oncoming train. There was only one way but that was a very dangerous one, especially as Mr. Griffin has only one arm, but he took the chances and sprang across the track in front of the train, striking the old gentleman in the chest and knocking him back. Mr. Griffin staggered to his knees as he pushed the man, and the train ran almost within a foot of his feet as he scrambled away.

Make Some Child Happy.

Do you want to give some city child a happy vacation in the country this summer? The Michigan Fresh Air Society of Detroit says that 4,000 needy children will have to spend the hot months in the sweltering air of the crowded city, many with the hot paved streets as their only playground and buter stuffy rooms to sleep in. Hundreds have never tasted of real milk fresh from the cow and do not know what wholesome food is. James Williams, secretary of the society writes: "We ask all the farmers who that they give the child a happy time; plain, wholesome food, all the fresh air their lungs can take in. We attend to the transportation to and from the homes, see that the children have proper clothing, and see that they are clean and free from contagious disease. We exercise great care in selecting children who most need the outing and who could not otherwise have it. Last year 350 of our city children were cared for. We are anxious to send out double that number this year. Will you aid us? Further details may be secured by addressing the secretary, James B. Williams, 69 Lafayette Boulevard."

Council Proceedings.

[OFFICIAL.] COUNCIL ROOMS, Chelsea, Mich., June 8, 1910.

Pursuant to regular adjourned meeting of June 5, 1910 board met in regular session. Meeting called to order by Geo. P. Staffan president. Roll called by the clerk.

Present—Trustees McKune, Hammond, Hummel and Dancer. Absent—Lowry and Palmer. The following agreement was presented and read:

Articles of agreement made and entered into by and between the Village of Chelsea, near the water works and electric light plant, two green houses or winter gardens, in size thirty-four feet wide by one hundred feet in length each, and desires the same heated by exhaust steam from the water works and electric light plant, and for that purpose the said Village of Chelsea gives him permission to, at his own expense, connect with the exhaust steam pipe from the engines in said plant, said connections to be made in a first-class workmanlike manner, and under the supervision of the Electric Light and Water Works Committee, without inconvenience or injury to any property of the Village of Chelsea, his fully equipped first-class in every way vacuum system of heating. It is mutually expected that the exhaust steam from the said village plant will be sufficient to heat said green houses or winter gardens of the second part, except it be on some occasion when the plant is not in full operation.

The party of the second part agrees to place in his said winter gardens and packing houses radiation not exceeding five thousand square feet, and to have his said two green houses and packing houses constructed and completed ready for use on or before January 1st, 1911.

And it is further mutually understood and agreed that if, during the portions of the day and night when the lighting system is not running to its maximum capacity, there shall not be enough exhaust steam to properly heat said winter gardens and packing houses, then, during the hours that the lighting plant shall not be so running to its usual maximum, the village will, on request, furnish to the party of the second part (all connections to be made at the expense of the party of the second part) live steam at a pressure not exceeding four pounds, into his said system of heating. But the party of the first part shall not be expected or required to furnish live steam for such heating at any time when the water works pumps and electric lights are running to their usual maximum capacity.

The party of the second part promises to pay to the party of the first part on the first day of January and the first day of July in each year, such sum of money as shall fully and fairly represent the cost of the fuel used during the six months next preceding such date of payment in the production of the live steam used by the party of the second part and furnished him by the party of the first part under the terms and conditions of this arrangement; such amount to be fixed and determined by a fair test, such test to be made by the party of the first part, to be made during the month of February following the completion of the plant by the party of the second part.

It is mutually understood and agreed that the live steam called for, if any, under the terms of this contract shall not be in such quantities or amount as to at any time injuriously affect the water works system or the electric light system belonging to said Village, or in any way embarrass said systems to the disadvantage of the said Village, and the citizens thereof.

It is further mutually understood and agreed that in the event of the boilers in said water works and electric light plant becoming injured or incapacitated from furnishing the necessary exhaust or live steam, the Village of Chelsea cannot be held liable for any damage resulting therefrom to the party of the second part. It is further agreed that the party of the first part can upon giving thirty days notice cancel and annul the above contract.

In testimony whereof the parties have hereunto executed this contract in pursuance of a resolution passed by the Common Council of the Village of Chelsea at a regular adjourned meeting of said Council held June 8th, 1910.

By GEO. P. STAFFAN, President.

And by W. H. HESELSCHWERDT, Clerk.

Moved by McKune, seconded by Hummel, that the president and clerk be instructed to enter into a contract with Arthur R. Glenn, of Howell, Mich., whereby the Village of Chelsea is to furnish Mr. Glenn with exhaust and live steam to operate winter gardens or green houses and packing rooms.

Yeas—McKune, Hammond, Hummel and Dancer. Nays—None. Carried.

Moved by McKune, seconded by Hummel, that we adjourn. Carried. W. H. HESELSCHWERDT, Village Clerk.
