This is a delicious tonic worth trying." We never ask anyone to buy the second bottle-they always buy it without asking. Delicious in taste, it contains iron to enrich the blood, deptonized (digested) beef to feed the tissues, and choice wine as an appetizer. If you feel worn out, tired and run down, you need a tonic; you couldn't find a better one than this. We sell a great deal of it. Like all Nyal's remedies it is of highest quality. 50c buys a large bottle. No one else around here keeps it. Ours is the Nyal Store. Come to us when you want the best things in the drug line.

The pupils of the school presented their pastor, Rev. Father Considine, with a handsome traveling bag, which came to him as a complete surprise, and for which he feelingly thanked the pupils.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor DeBever, of Dexter, made a short address at the close of the program in which he commended the sisters, pupils and members of the parish on the work accomplished by the school since it has been established.

The school and hall were appropriately decorated with flowers, palms and ferns for the occasion.

The Method of Success

We see a man-honest; capable; well dressed; self-respecting; earning the respect of others; hustling; willing to apply himself to his work; prudent; able to deny himself what he ought not to havehe's saving his money for future opportunities. Such men as this find in our Savings Department a convenient way of drawing 3 per cent interest on their spare funds.

Peculiar Fact That Few Men Can

Walt With Patience for Telephone Answer.

Why is it that when a man has to wait for "Central" to answer him seconds seem minutes? Many a busy man will wait minutes for anything else and never turn an eyelash. But when he faces' that formidable gutta percha ear on the wall, when he listens in vain for "What number, please?" of the telephone girl, he loses all his patience. With his patience go his temper and his manners.

Why is it? The reason is comparatively obvious to one who analyzes the problem. People are not accustomed to delay at the telephone. Custom has us all in its deadly grip. Any deviation from custom affronts those prehistoric nerve cells of ours which tells us that a discussion from the beaten track leads us into unknown terrors. Of course, these world-old instincts are dying, but they still possess force enough to render a change undesirable.

Men are used to waiting for others. Therefore delay in a bank or store causes no wrath. But men-and women, too-are not accustomed to delay. in the telephone service. They are used to the quick, cheery inquiry from "Central," almost instantly following the first call. The unwonted delay thus makes the busy man heated language. ----

There are many other special features, including a means of collecting the radium emanations before the coffer is opened.

This compartment of the safe is designed to hold 100 pounds of radium, valued at $5,000,000,000. The total weight of the safe is one and a half

EXPRESS RATES surance APPARENT THAT HEAVY BURDEN IS BEING PUT ON NON-COM-PETITIVE TOWNS. R. R. COMMISSION IS LOADED FOR FORTHCOMING

MEETING. Representatives of the Four Com-

Lansing, Mich., June 18 .- The state rialroad comission has notified thesix express companies doing business in Michigan to send representatives to Lansing next Friday and give the reasons, if they have any, why there should not be a thorough revision of express rates throughout Michigan. The companies will do so.

The six companies are the American, the United States, the Adams, the Pacific, the Western and the Wells-Fargo.

For several months the commission has had experts collecting, interpreting and compiling tariff rates of the six companies, and the result of the work is a mass of documentary evidence which will be laid before the companies' representatives, and which show hundreds of specific cases where there is discrimination of startling proportions against non-competitive points. The prob- rates is on file in the commission's department, as in fact are all express was not only to construct a safe that tariff rates, and it shows that for carrying 100 pounds 150 miles to noncompetitive points, the Adams rate is 90 cents, Pacific $1, American and United States $1.25. Wells Fargo and Western $1.50. Cases have been found where the express rate is more than six times the rate for first-class freight, and not infrequently four and safe was made of lead three inches five times first-class freight rates. Why this variation is one of the things the companies' representatives will be asked to explain. One expert says there does not seem to be any recognized basis for express rates in Michigan at the present time.

The blaze was the fourth in this building within a few years, and the second this year. A new building will be erécted at once.

Fishermen on Spring Lake, near Grand Haven, found an upturned boat floating on the surface of the lake. For a time it was not known who occupied it, but a visit to the boat livery of A. G. Hite revealed that the boat had been let a short time before to Wallace C. Hume, 86, 3158 Prairie avenue Chicago, who had been spending the summer here. A search was instituted and the body was found in about 10 feet of water. It is thought that Mr. Hume fell from the boat while fishing.

A DETERMINED WOMAN Finally Found a Food That Cured Her.

"When I first read of the remarkable effects of Grape-Nuts food, I determined to secure some," says a woman in Salisbury, Mo. "At that time there was none kept in this town, but my husband ordered some from a Chicago traveler.

"I had been greatly afflicted with sudden attacks of cramps, nausea, and vomiting. Tried all sorts of remedies and physicians, but obtained only temporary relief. As soon as I began to use the new food the cramps disappeared and have never returned....

"My old attacks of sick stomach were a little slower to yield, but by continuing the food, that trouble has disappeared entirely. I am today perfectly well, can eat anything and everything I wish, without paying the penalty that I used to. We would not keep house without Grape-Nuts.

"My husband was so delighted with the benefits I received that he has been recommending Grape-Nuts to his customers and has built up a very large trade on the food. He sells them by the case to many of the leading mend Grape-Nuts very generally. There is some satisfaction in using a really scientifically prepared food.' fisheries in America begins with the discovery of the western world by Columbus, who wrote glowing accounts to Queen Isabella of the beautiful necklaces and bracelets of pearls which he found the Indians of the Gulf of Paria and Cariaco in Venezuela wearing and which they so eagerly exchanged for broken bits of gaudily decorated Valencian plate. In the account of his third voyage in 1498 he wrote that on en-along the shores of the Gulf of St. Michael (now. the Bay of Panama) collecting pearls from oysters washed ashore during violent storms, as well as diving for them a short distance from the shore.

When Hernando Cortez in 1526 discovered Lower California he found the natives wearing many beautiful pearls taken from the waters of the Gulf of California. History tells us that when Montezuma alighted from his regal palanquin, "blazing with burnished gold and overshadowed by a canopy of gaudy featherwork powdered with jewels and fringed with silver." to grant audience to Cortez, his cloak and goldensoled sandals were sprinkled with pearls and other precious jewels.

The pampered favorites of the rulers of Egypt and Rome valued their precious pearls from the Indies no more highly than did the Indian women of the Aztecs of Mexico or the Incas of Peru. When the king of Spain made Hernando de Soto governor of Cuba with commission to conquer Florida the latter penetrated into the country of the Yuckees along the Savannah river in Florida to their chief village, Cufitatchiqui, where he found their queen wearing great strings of pearls. The queen in welcoming the Spanish explorer to the hospitalities of her nation even removed one of the most-beautiful of her pearl necklaces and threw it around his neck.

Thus the Spaniards were not disappointed in their expectations of finding pearls among other treasure they sought to obtain from the natives of the new world, and such adventurers as Ponce de Leon, Panfilo de Navarez, Cabeca de Vaca, Hernando de Soto, Coronado, and numerous others were lured on by this hope.

A member of Sir Walter Raleigh's expedition collected from the natives of Virginia over 5.000 pearls, of which he chose "as many as made a fayro chaine," and the Indians or the Mississippi-wore bracelets and earrings of fine pearls, which, as Father Louis Hennepin wrote, "they gave us to understand they received in exchange for their calumets from natives inhabiting the coast of the great lake to the southward, which I take to be the Gulph of Florida."

For the sake of comparison of the principal pearl fisheries of the Americas with those of the old world, both as to wealth of production and methods employed, a short description of the oldest and richest fisheries in the world, those of Ceylon, is given. These are located in the Gulf of Manar, off the western shore of Cevion and to the south of the island of Manar and on the Madras side near Tinnevelly. The-Macedonians of Greece obtained pearls from the Persian Gulf and the Ptolemies' slaves worked the fisheries of the Red sea from where, undoubtedly, the famous pearl came that Cleopatra is supposed to have ground up and drunk in wine to her lover.

The old methods employed on the Ceylon fisheries and which continued up until a few years ago are the most interesting. The pearl oyster beds are under the supervision of government inspectors, who regulate the fishing. When a bed is to be fished over, announcement of the fact is published beforehand, the season usually beginning the first part of March and continuing from four to six weeks, according to the condition of the bed. Fishing boats and divers from the neighboring coasts of Malabar. native Indians, Malays, Arabs, Polynesians and pearl merchants by the thousands from all parts of India assemble shortly before the appointed day until as many as 25,000 people are gathered on the fishing grounds. At midnight, when the wind freshens, the boats start for the banks in groups of 50 to 70, so as to arrive there before sunrise. Each boat carries from ten to twelve divers, who work in pairs, one diving while the other tends the signal line. and who relieve each other from time to time. At sunrise a signal gun is fired and the fishing begins. The diver usually carries a stone or other weight of about 50 pounds attached to the haul line to facilitate his rapid descent, and in addition carries a basket made fast to the girdle about his waist in which he places the oysters as found. Some divers working in shallower water use no weight in descending, but while at work at the bottom make good use of both hands and feet to seize upon and wrench loose any oyster seen within the limited area over which they can work. The diver who works without diving apparatus and who is called a "head diver," working in from 35 to 45 feet of water, which is the average, can make from 40 to 50 descents in a morning and can bring up from 15 to 30 oysters each trip. The native Indian, Malay and Polynesian divers remain under from 50 to 80 seconds, according to the depth at which they are working, but some can stand a much longer submergence.

At the firing of another signal gun about noon the diving is suspended and the boats race ashore and beach, ready for unloading. On their arrival there the oysters are carried into the government corral and there piled into three heaps, each boat's load being kept separate, the government taking two heaps or two-thirds of the catch and the remainder being divided among the divers and the crew, the divers usually receiving the largest portion. There are about 4,500 divers at work, the daily catch averaging 1,000,000 oysters, which are often found clustered closely together.

The government's share is then auctioned off by the inspector in lots of 1,000 and usually bought up by small merchants, divided into smaller lots, and resold.

The true Indian diver never descends without first providing for attack against sharks or other dangerous fish by invoking immunity through the shark charmer's incantations, a hereditary endowment among the East Indians, one of these charmers usually accompanying each boat. Aside from this danger, which in these waters, however, is comparatively small, the diver working under a tropical sun and exposed to rheumatism and often paralysis is usually a short-lived man.

According to Dr. George F. Kunz, one of the last few years they have been operated by an Eng-

The world has never known richer pearl fisheries than those of Ceylon. The pearls of finest orient and color come from these waters and the mother-of-pearl shell is the largest and most iridescent. It was from here that La Pellegrina came, said to be the finest and most perfect pearl in existence and which weighs 112 grains, as well as most of the crown pearls of European royalty. For centuries the Indian princes have amassed great wealth in pearls and those of the Rana of Dholpur were valued at $7,500,000.

The most extensive pearl oyster grounds of the world are situated on the northern and western coasts of Australia.

The richest pearl fisheries in the Americas at the present time are those of the Gulf of California, centering around La Paz and along the outer coast of Lower California in Mexico. These fisheries were discovered by Hernando Cortez when he marched across Mexico in 1526. The principal beds are near La Paz, in the Gulf, Espiritu Santo, Lorenzo Point, off the island of Cerrabro, Los Coyotes and Mulege bay, and, in fact, along the entire west coast of the Gulf of La Paz to above the island of Loreto and Tiburon, on the east side. In addition to those found along the outside coast of Lower California, pearl oyster beds are found at points along the southern coast of Mexico and Nicaragua.

Cortez and the Spaniards after him obliged the Indians to work the La Paz beds and to give one-tenth of their catch to the church and one-tenth to the crown. The beds were soon depleted and later abandoned. Over fifty years later, after having recuperated, fishing was renewed, and it is said that a Spaniard who later worked them took yearly from them 300 to 500 pounds of pearls, which he packed on mules and sold by the bushel.

Up to 30 years ago "buzos de cabeza," or head divers, only were employed, but on the revival of the fisherles about this time modern diving apparatus was introduced and today they are being worked under concession by San Francisco firms, who employ from 800 to 1,200 men and a number of run schooners, which collect the oysters from smaller boats working on the beds and carry them to the companies' sheds on shore, where they are opened and the pearls found sorted by passing them through small brass sieves of graded sizes.

In the gulf the season commences in July and continues to October, but while along the unprotected outer coast it commences earlier, in March, it is terminated by the hurricanes that sweep this coast in June.

Most of the diving is done by divers using the most improved diving apparatus, helmet RICH "COP" STILL ON BEAT Policeman Neely of Pittsburg Has $100

Half the company rode ahead to gain the farther side of the church: the remainder, including Griswold and Habersham, soon dismounted and tied their horses out of sight of the country road which they had latterly been following.

"We are in plenty of time," said Habersham, looking at his watch. "The rest of the boys are closing in from the other side and they will be ready for Appleweight when he finishes his devotions. We've been studying the old man's habits and he has a particular place where he ties his horse back of the church. It's a little apart from the fence where most of the congregation hitch, and he chose it, no doubt, because in case of a surprise he would have plenty of room for maneuvering. The Woman With a Grievance. We all know her and have had her griefs and worries loaded on to an already burdened back. It certainly is a comfort to some people to divide their discomforts by sharing them and a normal person never will refuse to take the recital of trials and give in return a full measure of sympathy; but there are people who should not be sympathized with, it is the worst possible thing for them. What they need is a good dose of cold facts and be made to realize that they are not of all women the most miserable. Let them "count their mercies, name them one by one," and they will find many silver sides to their clouds.

She who comes with tales of her husband, his faults, failings and shortcomings, is the one who raises the ire of the high-minded woman. Would she enjoy the idea of knowing that her husband canvassed their private affairs with his friends as they met? She would be deeply hurt and indignant, and yet she does the same thing herself. The golden rule must be worked both ways or it is of little value in the home. One person cannot do all the thoughtful, kind things without making others selfish. Selfishness is a many-sided evil. Some of the most self-denying people are the most selfish, for they enjoy doing the things for others that they should be taught to do for themselves.

How often a mother teaches the child the very evil she would shield. it from, because of her deep love, which is not quite deep enough to wound the child sometimes for his own good. She cannot bear to see it suffer, yet she builds for a future suffering immeasurably greater.

Unpopular Portions of Meat.

The livers of calves, cooked with bacon, are liked by many; but there seems to be a prejudice against the brains and kidneys as food. The French cook prepares many nice dishes from these portions.

In these days of high prices, every edible part of the meat should be used.

Conditional Piety.

Two Scotch fishermen, James and Sandy, belated and befogged on a rough water, were in some trepidation lest they should never get ashore again. At last Jamie said:

"Sandy, I'm steering, and I think you'd better put up a bit of prayer." "I don't know how," said Sandy.

"If ye don't I'll chuck ye overboard," said Jamie. Sandy began: "Oh, Lord, I never asked anything of ye for fifteen years, added to the general effect of comfort away from the lonely anchorage of and ease. The duke blinked for a moment in the lamplight, then he roared out joyously:

"Ardy, old man!" and advanced toward his brother-in-law with outstretched hand.

"Keep him off; he's undruhtedly quite mad," said Ardmore, staring coldly, and bending his riding-crop across his knees. "Collins, please ride on after the lady and bring her back this way."

Cooke had seated the prisoner rather rudely in a chair, and the noble duke, having lost the power of speech in amazement and fright, rubbed his eyes and then fastened them incredulously on Ardmore; but there was no question about it, he had been seized with violence; he had been repudiated by his own brother-in-law -the useless, stupid Tommy Ardmore, who, at best, had only a child's mind for pirate stories and who was indubitably the most negligible of negligible figures in the drama of life as the duke knew it. "Cooke," began Ardmore, addressing his lieutenant gravely from his perch on the settee, "what is the charge against this person?" "He says he's a duke," grinned

Cooke, taking his cue from Ardmore's manner. "And he says he's visiting at Ardsley."

"That," said Ardmore with decision, "is creditable only to the gentleman's romantic imagination. His face is anything but dukely, and there's a red streak across it which points clearly to the recent sharp blow of a weapon; and no one would ever strike a duke. It's utterly incredible," and Ardmore lifted his brows and leaned back with his arms at length and his hands clasping the riding-crop, as he contemplated with supreme satisfaction the tell-tale red line across the duke's cheek. "For God's sake, Ardy-" howled the duke. Ardmore drew from his pocket

Johnston's "American Politics" with an air of greatest seriousness. "Cooke," he said, half to himself as he turned the pages, "do you remember just what the constitution says about dukes? Oh, yes; here we are! Now, Mr. Duke of Ballywinkle, listen to what it says here in Section 9 of the Constitution of the United States, which reads exactly as follows in this book: 'No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no person holding any office of profit or. trust-under them, shall, without the consent of the congress, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title, of any kind whatever, from any king, prince, or foreign state.' One of the party had already de tached himself and crept forward toward the chuch, to meet his appointed comrade in the enterprise, who was to come in from the other side. The clapboard church presented in the moonlight the austerest outlines, and as the men waited, a rude though unseen hand was slamming the wooden shutters that protected the windows from impious violence. "We could do with less moon," muttered Habersham, as he and Griswold peered through the trees into the churchyard. "There goes Bill Appleweight now." whispered one of the natives at his elbow, and Griswold felt his heartbeats quicken as he watched a tall figure silhouetted against the church and moving swiftly toward the rear of the building. At the front of the church voices sounded, as the departing worshipers rode or drove slowly away. Habersham laid his hand suddenly on Griswold's arm.

"They've got him! They've nailed him! See! There! They're yanking him back into the timber. They've taken him and his horse!"

Griswold saw nothing but a momen tary confusion of shadows, then perfect silence hung over the woods behind the little church. The congregation was slowly dispersing, riding prepare it, chop together one-half away in little groups. Suddenly a pound of cold, cooked veal, and the voice called out in the road 100 yards successful, would seriously interfere beyond the church:

"Hey, there! Where's Bill?" "Oh, he's gone long ago!" yelled another. In a moment more the church door slammed and a last figure rode rapidly away.

A Bride's Salad.

Peel an average sized apple, cut in dice and mix with one-half the quantity of pineapple and about a tablespoonful of pecan or hickory nuts. Arrange lettuce on plates and heap the salad mixture on the lettuce. Lay on a few strips of fresh cocoanut cut thin. Cover with whipped cream and add a strawberry or two, or a cherry. For a pot roast, one may buy a small piece of meat, although it is never quite as nice as a larger one. A delicious flavor will be added to the roast if a half pound of prunes are cooked with the meat. They may then be pickled and served with the meat. For an emergency dessert when mother drops in to dinner, take stale cake, cut in squares and toast, spread each square with preserves, put two together and cover with sweetened whipped cream.

Stuffed Potato Croquettes.

Prepare a potato mixture of one and one-half cupfuls, one tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of pepper; form into croquettes, make an opening in the end and fill with chopped green pepper that has been sauted in a little butter. Add a yolk of egg and just sufficient milk to the croquette to make it easy to mold.

Parsons Sponge.

Line a glass dish with stale cake cut in slices, or with lady fingers. Sprinkle thickly with finely chopped nuts, add a few dates and raisins, cut fine, and over this pour a boiled custard, garnishing with the beaten white of egg poached by spoonfuls in hot milk. Cubes of jelly add to the beauty of the dish.
