YOUTH NOT FLEETING

Wonderful are the achievements of the so-called old men and women of today. But their cases are by no means exceptional, as some aver. There were mighty old people in Bible times, says Boston Globe. Their doings once seemed mythical to some critics, but in the light of what the aged are known to have done in historical times, statements that onco were accepted only on faith can now be accepted without a strain. Pagan traditions also seem nearer the truth than they formerly did. The achievements of that noble Roman, Cato, who learned Greek at 80 and commanded an army when older than that, have been equaled, if not surpassed, by some modern venerables. Their name is legion, but the world knows only the conspicuous ones, such as Mrs. Eddy, Mrs. Howe and Weston, and retriarchs and matriarchs like these need not say with Adam in "As You Like It." that age for them is like a for them is really an Indian summer. Youth is not fleeting. It may be prolonged much further than is imagined. Even now a French scientist is at work on a theory that life may be thuselah.

The remarkable exploit of Louis Paulhan, the French aviator who made a flight in an aeroplane from London to Manchester, England, in record time, has had the inevitable effect of stimulating interest in that class of flying machines. Wilbur Wright, the American inventor whose work has been directed to the perfection of the aeroplane, declares there is no longer any reason why an aeroplane cannot fly across the ocean. Without explaining the idea in detail, Mr. Wright expressed the belief that it would be practicable to construct an airship of this class with sufficient gasoline and other capacity to make the distance in timistic opinion, there will be skepticism on the subject. But every exploit like that by Paulhan will strengthen belief that mastery of aerial navigation is drawing steadily and rapidly

One of the weakest points in the Chinese imperial government has been its management of the finances. There has been a deplorable lack of enlightened system, and, according to confident report, a still more deplorable excess of "squeezing" and other forms of dishonesty. It was therefore to be desired that fiscal reforms should occupy a large place in the reorganization of the government on a constitutional basis, and it is now gratifying and encouraging to observe that such is the case. Various imperial decrees have emphasized the necessity of uscal reform and have indicated on general lines the manner in which it is to be effected, and there is ground for hoping that these will be obeyed as the other decrees relating . constitutional matters have been.

With lengthening days, and the approach of summer, approaches also the day of the "end seat hog." Already the execration of him has begun. It will wax throughout the season and only begin to wane when the frost is on the pumpkin and the public begins to kick because the elevated doesn't put on the closed cars. The "end seat nog," let it be explained for the benefit of any strangers to America who may read this, is a person who, having secured the most attractive seat in an open car, keeps it. This makes him unpopular with his fellow-passengers, each of whom thinks the "hog" should have moved along and allowed him to have-and keep-the seat.

The mayor of New York has ordered the "keep off the grass" signs removed from 30 New York parks. He thinks the children should be allowed to romp on lawns and grassy hillsides. This is a sensible order. Grass is rendering the best service it can give a city when it is utilized as an outdoor carpet for children to play upon. It can stand a great deal of that without being seriously hurt. The light weight of children does not injure grass unless the ground is wet or the grass is so fresh from the seed as not to be fairly rooted. Playing on the grass should be regulated, but not prohibited.

Question on Nominations.

How three circuit judges shall be nominated this fall to stand for the election required by law is a quest ion that is perplexing the state legal department at Lansing. Judge Collingwood, of Lansing, Flannigan, of Marquette, and Withey of Oceola, were all appointed to fill vacancies and the law provides that an election shall be held this fall in those circuits. The primary law provides, however, that circuit judges shall be nominated in March, 1911, and elected in April, and makes no provision for nominations this year for that office It is presumed that the convention system will govern, but the point has not been determined.

LANDIS QUASHES INDICTMENT

FREES NATIONAL PACKING COM-PANY AND SUBSIDIARY FIRMS.

Sustains Demurrer on Technical Grounds-Orders Special Grand Jury for New Hearing.

Chicago.—The indictment against the National Packing company and its ten sudsidiary concerns charging them with conspiracy to restrain trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, was knocked out Thursday when Judge Keneshaw M. Landis in the United States district court sustained the demurrer filed against the indictment by the so-called beef trust.

A special venire of seventy-five men was ordered called for July 14. From this venire a grand jury will be drawn and a second investigation of the packing companies begun.

In his decision sustaining the demurrer to the government indictment Judge Landis said:

"The most painstaking search of this indictment fails to disclose the presence of a charge that during the statutory period the defendants have engaged in, or had anything to do with interstate commerce, or that they done anything having any effect upon such commerce, and the court is not clothed with authority to supply, entirely by inference, the complete omission of such a fundamental element of the offense.

"This fatal weakness might have been obviated by including the charge had the evidence warranted it, that the defendants, or their respective officers or agents, did something, as, for instance, fixed prices, controlled Zeppelin's Dirigible Deutschland Caroutput, divided territory, or the like, which effected a restraint of inter state commerce being carried on within the three years' period.

"The general averment that the defendants engaged in a combination in restraint of interstate trade is, of course, a mere conclusion, and therefore insufficient. The demurrer must be sustained."

The indictment, which was knocked out by the packers' demurrer, was drawn by Oliver E. Pagin, assistant attorney general, who was sent to Chicago from Washington.

AIRSHIP LINE IS OPENED

ries Twenty Passengers 300 Miles in Nine Hours.

Duesseldorf, Germany,-Regular airship passenger service was established Wednesday for the first time when Count Zeppelin's great craft, the Deutschland, carrying 20 passengers, made the first scheduled trip from Friedrichshafen to this city, a distance of 300 miles, in nine hours.

The weather was perfect and the motors worked faultlessly. The average speed maintained was approximately 33 miles an hour, but between Friedrichshafen and Stuttgart 124 miles were covered at an average of 41 miles an hour. The best speed for one hour was 431/2 miles.

when the Deutschland left at Friedon the trip that was to mark an epoch in aviation. The passengers were several directors of the Hamburg-American Steamship company and the German Airship Stock company, joint owners of the dirigible balloon, and guests. They occupied the mahoganywalled cabin between the gondolas, from the windows of which they viewed scenery as the aerial car swept along.

45,000,000 EGGS IN POOL

Speculators Form Corner in Product and Hope to Realize Big Profits Next Winter.

Newark, N. J.-Forty-five million eggs have been shipped into this city since April 1 and placed in cold storage by the warehousemen, to remain there until the high prices of last winter are duplicated. They were purchased at an average price of 231/4 cents a dozen, and the total cost is about twenty-six cents a dozen. If the eggs can be retailed in New York next winter at 45 cents a dozenwhich they fetched last winter-there will be a profit of 19 cents a dozen, or a total of something over $700,000.

CAUSES MUCH EXCITEMENT

After a Consideration the Railroad Commission Decides to Let the Shipper Use Supply on Hand This Year.

Lansing .- No action of the state railroad commission in many months has caused so much excitement among the shippers and railroads in Michigan as the order emanating from the office of Chairman C. L. Glasgow that the statute requiring uniform bills of lading shall be rigidly enforced.

The law requires that the bills of lading shall be eight and one-half inches wide and eleven inches long, but a recent investigation started by a Chicago printing house, which failed to land a contract for a large manufacturing firm, disclosed that the bills of lading were being printed on paper of various sizes and the penalty of the law for failure to observe this clause was called to the attention of the railroads. As there is a provision in the statute that a circuit judge may upon conviction impose a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for one year or both, the railroad officials ordered the shippers to secure bills of lading of uniform

Many shippers, ignorant of the statute, have secured a large supply of bills which do not meet with the requirements of the law, and the railroad commission has received many requests from these men that they be permitted to use their present sup-

After a careful consideration the commission decided that it would be unfair to the manufacturers and shippers to compel them to destroy about $10,000 worth of bills, so the original order was rescinded and the old bills

All bills printed after June 21 must be of the required size.

Gives Forty Acres of Land to Birds. Conveying to the Michigan Audubon society 40 acres of land, described as the north half of the northwest quarter of section 31, 53-3, a deed which carries with it a sentimental archives of the Houghton county courthouse. The land is the gift of John Watkins, who lives on a farm between Calumet and Lake Linden and who is employed as a watchman by the Calumet & Hecla Copper Mining company. It is deeded in consideration of one dollar "and through his love for nature and science." The Audubon society is an organization formed for the purpose of preserving the wild birds of Michigan. This land is given it for the purpose of creating a game and bird preserve and it is stipulated in the deed what kind of birds and animals may be killed thereon. Mr. Watkins reserves the right to cut such timber as he Count Zeppelin was at the helm may choose during a period of twenty years. But if he dies sooner than that richshafen at 3 a. m. and sailed away the timber right goes to the society. If the society is dissolved at any time the land goes to the state of Michi gan and for the same purpose.

> Warden's Captor Pays State $100. The trouble between the Michigan state fishery department and Ole Mickelson of Marenette has been satisfactorily settled. Mickelson was caught fishing in Michigan waters without a license. His steam fishing craft was taken in tow by the government cutter, Chase S. Osborn, and Deputy Pettit was placed in charge. Mickelson, however, defled Pettit, cut the line binding him to the Osborn and escaped over the shoals where the Osborn could not follow and put the deputy off at Chambers island, of the pleasing features. Mickelson came over to Menominee of his own accord and paid the state license fee for his boat amounting to versity. "There are many courses

State Fish and Game Warden Pierce received a message telling of the cap ture by the state fish tug Osborn in Green Bay of a Wisconsin fish tur and the escape of the latter by the captain slashing the tow line with an axe, the poachers carrying with them to Wisconsin waters Deputy C. E Petit, who was in charge of the captured boat. Warden Pierce is some what concerned regarding the safety of Deputy Petit, as nothing has been heard from him, although the capture and escape took place last Saturday.

The message was filed in Menominee by Deputy J. B. Eddy and gave out few details regarding the exciting experience. Eddy asked the warden to come to Menominee at once and aid the deputies. Pierce is conferring with the attorney general regarding the case. Eddy wired that after the Osborn had been headed for shore with its captive in tow the Wisconsia captain took an axe to the tow line and forced Petit to stand by and watch the Badger boat run away from the Wolverine craft in a race for Wis

McDonald is from Allegan county, where politics cozes from the pores of every male citizen of voting age. He has rasped the feelings of Shumway before. It is his latest that is liable to cost him his job. Such is the current story, though Shumway will admit no more than that the deputy will be up on the carpet later. McDonald sought to get the Allegan Gazette to ceme off on its opposition to Kelley in his endidacy for governor. Others who wish to homestead are prepared to go farther from the line of railway than would and homesteads less accessible. There is a wonderful tide of immigration to that one hundred and fifty thousand new settlers from the United States will be numbered by the end of the present year, an increase of fifty per cent over last year. In addition to this there will be upwards of one hundred thousand from the old country, which does not include those who may come from the northern countries of the Continent. These all intend to settle upon the land. The reader does not require an answer to the questions, "Why do they do it?" "Why are they going there in such large numbers?" Western Canada is no longer an experiment. The fact that one hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat were raised there last year as against ninety-five millions the year previous, shows that the tiller of the soil in Central Canada is making money and it is safe to say that he is making more money than can be made anywhere else on the Continent in the growing of grains. He gets good prices, he has a sure and a heavy crop, he enjoys splendid railway privileges, and he has also the advantages of schools and churches and such other social life as may be found anywhere. It is difficult to say what district is the best. Some are preferred to others because there are friends already established. The Grand Trunk Pacific, on its way across the Continent, is opening up a splendid tract of land, which is being taken up rapidly. The other railways -the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern are extending branch lines. into parts inaccessible a couple of years ago. With a perfect network of railways covering a large area of the agricultural lands it is not difficult to secure a location. Any agent of the Canadian Government will be pleased to render you assistance by advice and suggestion, and a good plan is to write or call upon him. The Government has located these agents at convenient points throughout the States, and their offices are well equipped with a full supply of maps and literature.

OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia

E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 1468 Clybourne Ave., Chicago, Ill. If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressin aches and pains by taking Lydia l Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, mad from roots and herbs

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

July Clearance Sales

Bargain Time of the Summer Season

The July Clearing Sales are the most comprehensive bargain events of the year, embracing every department and all lines of merchandise. They are the vehicles for the final disposition of all the broken assortments, odd lots, remnants, soiled, mussed, discontinued lines and surplus stocks, together with the balances remaining from many special purchases.

> For weeks preparations have been under way-collecting, arranging, comparing and deciding on the new prices that now take the place of former quotations. If you recall the sales of other years, you can form an idea of how radical these reductions are in this clearing sale.

The display in our windows are of special interest, and show the extraordinary scope of these clearing sales.

You can carry it anywhere and in any position with the absolute assurance that it will not leak. When the pen point is pulled down into the barrel and the cap properly adjusted, the ink becomes incased in an air-tight and ink-tight chamber, thus making leakage utterly impossible. By this simple operation the pen point rests in ink, and is all ready for instant use without requiring the pre-liminary shaking so common with fountain pens.

JR DECLARATION INDEPENDENCE

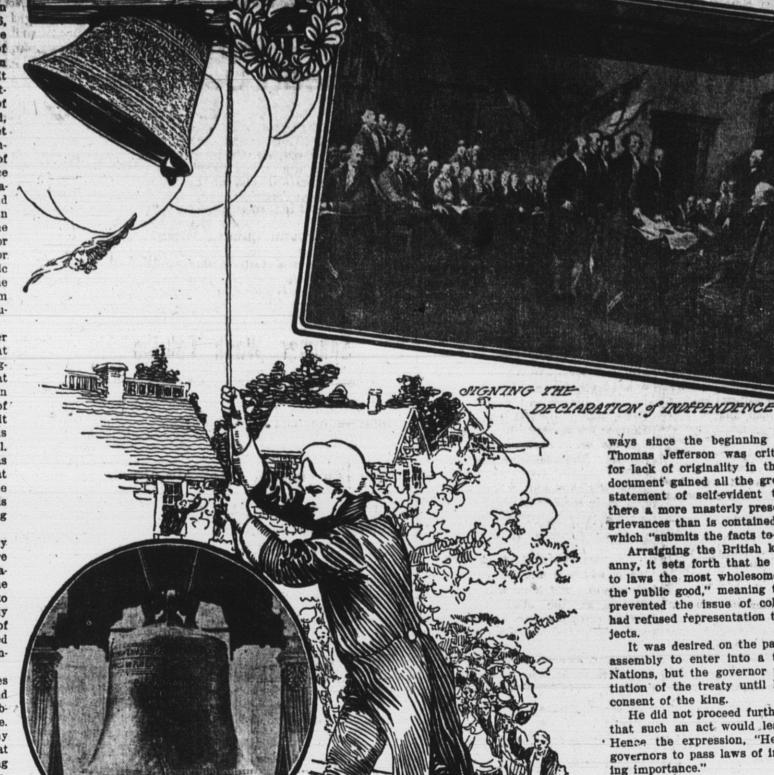

HE IMMORTAL instrument which was signed by John Hancock on July 4, 1776, has meant more than the growth and development of an independent nation on this side of the Atlantic. It was in itself the re-enactment of the greatest bill of human rights ever penned, which received the signet of an unwilling king at Runnymede, and the birth of constitutional liberty. In these days of peace and plenty the Fourth of July is given to "salutes of cannon and the ringing of bells and to the feu de joie," with variations, as John Adams predicted that it would be, yet the observance of the Fourth as an occasion for recalling memories past and giving thanks for the deeds of the patriot forefathers is sporadic rather than general in the United States. The Declaration of Independence is not read from the rostrum, as it once was in every community and the orators to the links have gone.

So much has been taken here as a matter of course that it seems hard to realize that this anniversary is celebrated in the very England from which liberty was wrested and that observances of it are officially ordered in many lands beyond the seas. The Fourth of July has become international in scope, for it has changed the governments of nations whose capitals are far from Independence hall. So widespread have its effects become as studied in the light of the present day that in order to get the true value of all that the declaration signifies to the world in 1910 it is necessary to go back to the very beginning of American liberty.

Had not the ideas of government held by the colonists been essentially British there would probably never have been any Declaration of Independence. It is as natural for the Briton to demand his rights as it is for him to live. The War of the Revolution was largely due to the fact that the two thousand miles of water between London and the colonies caused parliament to lose sight of the ties of consanguinity and of race.

Although the original thirteen colonies were so essentially English in thought and feeling they had never actually been established by England as a national enterprise. The only one which had ever received any official aid whatever was Georgia, and that was not sufficient to carry any such feeling of dependence as is essential for the preservation of intimate colonial relations. The right to colonize the North American continent had been granted by charters from a British king. According to the feudal system, which was sword. The most extravagant ideas prevailed with regard to the wealth of the American lands. It was at one time soberly believed in England that gold and silver and precious stones could be had for the taking and that the natives were the possessors of fabulous wealth. The king gave the charters in most cases with the idea that he would profit greatly from mines which would yield enormous returns to the royal exchequer.

When the colonists came here they found it necessary to make good their titles either by peaceful bargains with the Indians or by force of arms. From the very first the spirit of independence was fostered, for fiefs which had to be maintained by constant vigilance and negotiations and by show of force did not carry with them a deep sense of obligation. Indeed, even at that early day, although for the throne the colonists entertained feelings of loyalty and devotion, a shrewd idea was abroad that the king did not really own the land which he had bestowed by his charter. The conquest of nature and of the savages begot a rugged independence which as the years went by became more and more distasteful to the authorities in England.

Yet the idea of separation from the crown was of slow growth. The forefathers maintained that they were British subjects, although not living within the realm, as indeed was specified in some of the royal charters. The Massachusetts charter, for instance, sets forth that the colonists shall be considered "as if they and every one of them were born within the realm of England." As British subjects, then, they maintained that they should be entitled to representation, and therefore each colony had its assembly, which determined upon all matters of the common weal and established rates of taxation. It was one of the principles expressed in the Magna Charta that the common council of the kingdom "was to assess an aid or to assess a scutage," by the mother country, which provided for the stamping of various legal instruments and papers and contracts of all kinds, as well as dice and playing cards.

The news of the passage of this act roused the coloniats to fury. A gallows was erected in what is now City Hall park, New York, and the British governor was hanged in effigy, and the house of Major Jones, in command of the British regiment, was sacked. Then came the rising of the "Sons of Liberty" and the raising of the liberty poles. Boston and Philadelphia were vortices of the storm. So emphatic was the protest that much of the act was repealed and duties were established on tea, which accounted for the sudden rain of tea in Boston harbor. Then came the burning words of Patrick Henry, "Give me liberty or give me death!" before the Virginia in 1773. The year later brought the promulgation of the "Declaration of Rights and Privileges," in which it was declared that every man had "the right to" life, liberty and property and that most ancient right granted at Runnymede, trial by his "peers of the vicinage." Throughout all this time of storm and strain the protests were made as British subjects, and that congress which met in Carpenter's hall in 1774 was still loyal to the crown. It petitioned the king, remonstrated with parliament and appealed to their brethren in England. Then came Lexington and Concord. The congress of 1775 made provisions for an army, with Washington as commander, and still petitioned. Its petition was refused and mercenaries were hired from petty German princes to-quoting the words of Lossingbutcher British subjects for asserting the rights of British subjects."

Richard Henry Lee of Virginia offered the independence resolution in June, 1776, and a committee was appointed to draft the declaration, consisting of Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman and Robert Livingston. Jefferson wrote the document and alterations were made principally at the suggestion of Franklin and Adams. The paper was submitted to congress on June 28. It was laid on the table until July 1, when nine colonies voted in favor of it.

The independence resolution was actually adopted on July 2 and promulgated to the world on July 4, when John Hancock of Massachusetts affixed to it his bold signature.

The other members of the congress did not sign it until August 2, and the impressive scene connected with the signing was not witnessed until nearly a month later, although it is popularly associated with the Fourth of Centuries of the progress of the rights of man bear witness in the Declaration. That "all men are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," was not new, for it was recognized at Sinal. That governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed had been stated and restated in many ways since the beginning of the colonies Thomas Jefferson was criticized at the time for lack of originality in the declaration. The document gained all the greater force from its statement of self-evident truths. Never was there a more masterly presentation of a bill of grievances than is contained in the Declaration, which "submits the facts to a candid world."

Arraigning the British king for acts of tyranny, it sets forth that he refused "his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good," meaning that George III. had prevented the issue of colonial currency and had refused representation to his American sub-It was desired on the part of the New York assembly to enter into a treaty with the Six Nations, but the governor prevented the negotiation of the treaty until he could obtain the consent of the king. He did not proceed further because he feared that such an act would lead to independence. Hence the expression, "He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance." Grievances of the Massachusetts colony, which was deprived of representation and suffered interference in popular elections because of its wish to trade with Nova Scotia, suggested the paragraph: "He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people unless those people should relinquish the right of representation in the legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants

To further humble the Massachusetts colony and to punish the participants in the tea party of 1773 the assembly was called in Salem, and not in Boston. Hence the words of the document, "He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable and distant from the depository of their public records."

Massachusetts colony and others had adopted resolutions in their assemblies that there should be no taxation without the consent of the governed. The Massachusetts assembly was asked to rescind its resolution in 1768 and on its refusal to do so was dissolved. The assemblies of Virginia and North Carolina met the same fate. This state of affairs is summed up in the Declaration in the words, "He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly for opposing with much firmness his invasion on the rights of the people."

The Declaration protests against the judges being dependent on the will of the king for their salaries, and, indeed, in some of the colonles many of the judges had been impeached for declaring that they would receive their salaries from the royal treasury. -

Graphically the authors of the document tell how the erection of a multitude of new offices had impoverished the country, referring to the collectors appointed to carry out the provisions of the stamp act. The quartering of troops in times of peace was a substantial grievance complained of, for the king insisted on retaining British regiments here after the French and Indian war at the expense of the colonists, ostensibly for defense but in reality to suppress a growing democracy.

The words, "He has affected to render the military independent of and superior to the civil power," refer to the position taken by General Gage, who, with several regiments of British troops, was in Boston. By order of the king he had been made superior to the civil government. Here and there through the colonies Americans had been killed in altercations with British soldiers, who were subsequently put on trial and acquitted. The Declaration accuses the king of quartering large bodies of armed troops and of "protecting them by mock trial from punishment for any murders which they may commit." Such were the principles enunciated in the Declaration, and how well they were sustained by the arbitrament of war the world knows. The nation began celebrating the glorious Fourth from the very beginning. Salutes of 13 cannon were fired by the army in 1777, and the new republic was pledged in wine.

West Point saw a significant celebration in 1779, when General Washington issued a pardon for all prisoners in the army under sentence of death. The last celebration of the army of the Revolution as such took place on both shores of the Hudson river and a grand salute was fired.

More of the nature of a festival dominated the Fourth after 1783, for then came parades, free dinners, toasts, the reading of the Declaration in public by citizens and more and more the participation of the younger generation. Dignity and solemnity marked these early celebrations and eloquent speeches were made.

The Fourth is a statutory holiday in every state and its fame has gone beyond the seas.

SYNOPSIS.

Thomas Ardmore and Henry Maine Griswold stumble upon intrigue when the governors of North and South Carolina are reported to have quarreled. Griswold allies himself with Barbara Osborne, daughter of the governor of South Carolina, while Ardmore espouses the cause of Jerry Dangerfield, daughter of the governor of North Carolina. These two young ladies are trying to fill the shoes of their fathers while the latter are missing. Both states are in a turmoil over one Appleweight, an outlaw with great political influence. Unaware of each other's position, both Griswold and Ardmore set out to make the other prosecute Appleweight. Ardmore organizes a big hunt. Griswold also takes the field. Frank Colins, Atlanta reporter, is arrested by Ardmore, but released to become press agent for the young millionaire's expedition. Griswold's men capture Bill Appleweight.

"Now we'll see what's happened," said Habersham. "It looks almost too

The members of Griswold's party who had been thrown round to the farther side of the church began to appear, one at a time. There was no nervousness among any of the band -a fact that impressed Griswold. They were all risking much in this enterprise, but they were outwardly unperturbed, and chewing their tobacco silently while they awaited the return of the two active agents in the conspiracy who had dealt directly with Appleweight. Habersham counted heads, and announced all present

"And now," said Habersham, "what we've got to do is to make a run for it and land him across the border, and stick him into a North Carolina jail, where he rightfully belongs. The question is, can we do it all in one night, or had we better lock him up some where on this side the line and take another night for it? The sheriff over there in Kildare is Appleweight's cousin, but we'll lock him up with

Bill, to make a family party of it." "We'd better not try too much tonight," counseled Griswold. "It's a big thing to have the man himself. If it were not for the matter of putting Gov. Dangerfield in a hole, I'd favor hurrying with Appleweight to Columbia, just for the moral effect of it on the people of South Carolina. We'd make a big killing for the administration that way, Habersham." your hands, which Gov. Osborne has earth. not until lately been anxious for," replied Habersham, in a low tone that was heard by no one but his old pre-

"You'd better get over the idea that we're afraid of this outlaw," rejoined Griswold. "The governor of North Carolina dare not call his soul his own where these hill people are concerned; but the governor of South Carolina is a different sort."

While they thus stood on South Carolina soil, waiting for the safe and complete dispersion of the Mount Nebo congregation before seizing the captive they had gagged and tied at the rear of the little church, the fates were ordering a very different termination of the night's business.

Miss Jerry Dangerfield, galloping away from the duke of Ballywinkle, with no thought but to widen the distance between them, turned off at the first cross-road, which began well enough, but degenerated rapidly into a miserable trail, through which she was obliged to walk her horse. Before she was aware of it she was in the midst of a clearing where laborers had lately been cutting timber, and she found, on turning to make her way out, that she was quite lost, for three trails, all seemingly alike, struck of into the forest. She spoke ed his efforts to free himself. aloud to the horse to reassure herself, and smiled as she viewed the rim phalanx of stumps. She must,

for her return to the house.

She did not know then that three men had witnessed her flight from the duke, or that they had taken swift vengeance upon him for his unpardonable conduct in the moon-blanched road. It was not Jerry's way to accept misfortune tamely, and after circling the wall of timber that shut her in, in the hope of determining where random and plunged into the woods. She assumed that probably all the roads and paths on the estate led more or less directly to the great house or to some lodge or bungalow. She had lost her riding-crop in her mad flight, and she broke off a switch, tossing its leaves into the moonlight and laughing softly as they rained

Suddenly ahead of her through the woods floated the sound of singingone of those strange, wavering pieux cantiques peculiar to the south. She rode on, thinking to find help and a guide back to Ardsley; then the music ceased, and lights now flashed faintly before her, but she went forward

"I'm much more lost than I thought was, for I must be away off the estate," she reflected. She turned and rode back a few rods and dismounted. and tied her horse to a sapling. She was disappointed at not finding a camp of Ardmore's wood-cutters, to whom she would unhesitatingly have confided herself; but it seemed wise now to exercise caution in drawing to herself the attention of strangers. She did not know that she had crossed the state line and was in South Carolina, or that the singing she had heard floated from the windows of Mount Nebo church.

She became now the astonished wit ness of a series of incidents that occurred so swiftly as fairly to take her breath away. A tall, loosely articulated man came from the direction of the church and walked toward her. She knelt at the tree and watched, the moonlight giving her a clear view of a rustic somewhat past middle age, whose chief characteristics seemed to be a grizzled beard and long arms that swung oddly at his side. The brim of his wool hat was turned up sharply from his forehead, and she had a glimpse of the small, keen, gray eyes with which he swept the forest before him. He freed a horse which she had not before noticed, and she expected him to mount and ride away to join others of the congregation whom she heard making off in a road beyond the church. Then, with a quickness and deftness that baffled her eyes, two men rose beside him just as he was about to mount: there was no outery and no sound of scufperfect the understanding between the saddle. She had a better view of him. "We've got Bill, all tied and gagged now that he was hatless, though a gag

In the woods to her left she thought she heard a horse neigh; then she saw shadows moving in that direction; and again, from the road, she heard the brief debate of the two men as to the whereabouts of "Bill;" and it struck Jerry humorously that he would not soon see his friends unless they came and helped him out of his predicament. It may help to an understanding of Miss Jerry Dangerfield's character if it is recorded here that never in her short life had she failed to respond to the call of impulse. She was lost in the woods, and strange men lurked about; a man had been attacked, seized, and left sitting in a state of absurd helplessness on a horse presumably his own, and there was no guessing what dire penalty his cap but our American tapping is another Quiet reigned in the neighborhood of the church; the lights had blinked out; the bang of the closing shutters reassured Jerry, and she crept on her knees toward the unconscious captive, loosed his horse's rein and led it rapidly toward her own horse, a little farther back in the woods. Mr. Bill Appleweight, alias Poteet, was well hardened to the shocks of time, but the pleasant-voiced girl, coolly sitting her horse, and holding his own lank steed by a strap, was the most amazing human being that had yet dawned on his horizon. He was not stupid, but Jerry's manner of speech had baffled more sophisticated minds than Appleweight's, and the sweet sincerity of her tone, and her frank countenance, hallowed as it was by the moonlight, wrought in the outlaw's mind a befuddlement not wholly unlike that which had possessed the wits of many young gallants south of the Potomac who had laid siege to Jerry Dangerfield's heart. But the cries behind them were more pronounced, and Appleweight was nothing if not a man of action.

"Take these things off'n me," he commanded fiercely, "and I'll see y safe to Ardsley."

"Not in the least," replied Jerry, who was herself not unmindful of the voices behind. "You will kindly tell me the way, and I will accommodate my pace to that of your own somewhat ill-nourished beast. And as there's a mob looking for you back there, all ready to hang you to one of these noble forest trees. I advise you to use more haste and less caution in pointing the way."

Appleweight lifted his head and took his bearing. Then he nodded toward one of the three trails which had so baffled Jerry when first she broke into the clearing.

"Thet's the nighest," said Appleweight, "and we'd better git."

She set the pase at a trot, and was relieved in a few minutes to pass one or two landmarks which she remembered from her flight through the woods. As they splashed through the brook she had forded, she was quite confident that the captive was playing her no trick, but that in due course she should strike the highroad to Ardsley which she abandoned to throw off the duke of Ballywinkle.

It was now ten o'clock, and the moon was sinking behind the forest trees. Jerry took advantage of an occasional straight strip of road to go forward at a gallop, but these stretches did not offer frequently, and the two riders kept pretty steadily to a smart trot.

As they walked their horses through bit of sand, the prisoner spoke;

"Who air y'u, little gal?" Jerry turned in the saddle, so that Appleweight enjoyed a full view of

"I am perfectly willing to tell you my name, but first it would be more courteous for you to tell me yours, particularly as I am delivering you from a band of outlaws who undoubtedly intended to do you harm."

He laughed-a curious, chuckling laugh. He had ceased to struggle at his bonds, but seemed resigned to his strange fate. He had not answered Jerry's question, and had no intention of doing so. The sudden attack at the church had aroused all his cunning. Appleweight, alias Poteet, was an old wolf, and knew well the ways of the trapper; but the bold attempt the border. He did not make it out; nor was he wholly satisfied with the girl's chiplanation of her presence in that out-of-the-way place. He had several times called out diin the forest, and they now reached the main trunk road of the estate. again.

Turpentine and Forests,

You do not know the turpentine tappers, but if you come to Florida you will soon find them out. It is a curious business that will deliberately destroy all the forests of a half dozen states for a little immediate gain; and still more curious is the lassitude that day pound the liver to a paste, add allows the destruction to go on. The French have a method of tapping trees a colander and pack in small pots. Cut which gives a profitable return and in slices and serve as a luncheon dish. leaves the trees practically uninjured. In this way an industry is perpetuated, thing.

The trees are cut with a broad ax, hewing out great slices and leaving scars from which the resin flows into boxes at the bottom of the cut and is scraped once a month into casks. The cut is repeated each year, and in six or seven years the tree is exhausted. So go great forests of pine that stand sands of acres of standing lumber which will be cut down by portable sawmills. The end of it all is a hag-

Tea should never be boiled. One of the best of pots is a glazed earthenware one, that can be, and should be washed and cared for as are the dishes. Before making tea, scald the pot with boiling water, add a teaspoonful of tea to two cups of boiling water, and allow it to draw for five minutes before serving. We think eighty cents and a dollar a good price for tea, but it has been sold for many dollars a pound.

The first green leaves of the tea plant are considered the choicest, and those who know, say we never get in this country, the finest tea. Perhaps it is because we do not want to pay for it, but when one has tasted a choice cup of the best tea, the difference is very marked.

Cheap tea contains seeds of grass, powdered hay and other unlamented emains, so don't buy cheap tea.

Left-over tea may be drained from the leaves and served as iced tea. The usual proportion is one teaspoonful to a cupful of boiling water, but that is strong for many people.
