Mission Festival.

A missionary festival was held at St. John's Evangelical church in Francisco Sunday. Services were held at 10 a. m., 2 p. m. and at 7 o'clock in the evening. The speakers were Reverends S. A. John, Ann Arbor; G. W. Krause, Lewisville, O.; W. Breitenbach, Jackson, and J. E. Beal of the German Methodist church Francisco. The meetings were all unusually well attended and the collections amounted to an even $100, the largest collection ever received there. Music was furnished by the Bethlehem choir of Ann Arbor. The festival occurred on the third anniversary of the death of the former pastor, Rev. J. Graber.

Mrs. Glazier Answers.

Mrs. Henrietta M. Glazier, wife of Frank P. Glazier, filed an answer to the attachment proceedings started against her by her husband's former attorney, James S. Gorman, in which he alleges that she is about to dispose of her property for the purpose of defrauding her creditors, and further that she is about to abscond from the state for the same purpose. These charges Mrs. Glazier emphatically denies, and further states that she does not owe Mr. Gorman anything, though he alleges that there is the sum of $3,159.60 due and that it is long past due.

Door Hit Him.

While Emanuel Alber, of Lodi, was fixing a heavy barn door Monday afternoon, it fell on him, breaking his right leg in two places just above the ankle. Mr. Alber was taken to the University hospital in Ann Arbor, and the broken bones set. He will remain there until the bones begin to knit. Mr. Alber saw that the door was about to fall and just had time to step out from under it, or he would very likely have been killed.

School of Instruction.

Rally Day Service.

The Rally Day service, Sunday morning at the Congregational church was attended by an unusually large congregation. At the Sunday school session a new membership and attendance contest was started. The school was divided into two sections, Pilgrims and Puritans, with James Schmidt and Paul Belser as captains. The contest was begun with great enthusiasm and satisfactory results are assured. The rules are as follows:

- 1—The present membership of the school consists of all who have attended since June 1, 1910.
- 2—A new scholar must attend the school three consecutive Sundays or three out of four.
- 3—Any former member of the school who has not attended since June 1st, 1910, may be reinstated by conforming to the same requirements as a new scholar.
- 4—The attendance and work of all new scholars will count for the side that brings them into the school five points. New teachers not members of the school, ten. New scholars, five. Reinstated scholars, three. Attendance of teachers, scholars and visitors at the entire combined service, one. Attendance at Sunday school only, one-half.

The points will be counted and announced each Sunday. The contest will continue until January 1st and the losers will give a social for the entertainment of the winners.

Fish and Corn Meal.

Livingston Tidings: Prof. Harry Cobb of the engineering department of the U. of M. and Clarence Sweet of Ann Arbor, went fishing at Lakeland last Thursday, leaving their wives at one of the cottages which they had rented for the day. The gentlemen made a good catch and it was decided to have fish for supper. No flour was to be had to roll the fish in before cooking, but a dish of corn meal was found in the cottage and utilized for that purpose.

On the way home all four were taken very sick. It has since been learned that the meal had been plentifully supplied with rough on rats to destroy the rodents, by the cottage owner, who had no thought of its being used.

At last reports Mrs. Cobb was pronounced out of danger but the doctors had fears for the lives of all three of the others.

Remedied Matters.

The following from the Northville Record shows the state of mind that the editor was in, and the manner in which he remedied matters. The items are printed in the order in which they appeared in the last issue of the Record:

A man never realizes the superiority of woman so much as when he is sewing on a button without a thimble, pushing the needle against the wall to get it half way through and pulling it through the other half by hanging on to it with the teeth.

Married in Detroit Wednesday evening, by Rev. J. W. Turner of Northville, Mr. F. S. Neal, publisher of Record, to Miss Bertha Fenit of this place. Together with Mr. Neal's brother and wife of Orion they are taking a ten days' auto tour through New York state.

Fire Destroyed Sheds.

The remaining sheds in the rear of the Baptist church were destroyed by fire about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The sheds have stood on the property for many years and were used by members of the church who reside on farms for housing their horses while they were attending services.

Just how the flames started is unknown and many theories are advanced as to the cause of the conflagration. The Chelsea fire department responded to the alarm and did good work, none of the adjoining properties were damaged but the sheds are beyond farther use.

Positive Guarantee.

While the majority of people know "The Candy Girl" to be a good show either from seeing it personally or by the good reputation it left every place it played last season, yet to ease the minds of any who may be in doubt the following guarantee is given:

Chicken Thieves Busy.

For some time past chicken thieves have been visiting the coops of the farmers who reside in Lima. A number of losses have been reported from time to time but no traces of the thieves have been discovered.

Ben Widmayer was the last one to report a loss of over one hundred fowls that were stolen Thursday and Friday nights of last week. Wednesday evening he crated a number of fowls which he was going to take to market Thursday. In the morning he discovered that about one half of them had disappeared and that his coops had been visited and several taken. Friday night they were again visited and another haul was made. Mr. Widmayer on the occasion of this visit was aroused and shot at the fleeing parties. It is thought he shot one of them as there was quite a trace of blood on the grass in the orchard where the parties were shot at. Whoever they were they escaped with their plunder.

Didn't Get Divorce.

When Deputy Sheriff Fremé Stark went to Woodland Friday to serve papers upon Mrs. Mollie Parks, notifying her that her husband William, had started divorce proceedings against her, he was greeted with a curt "Now you just run along about your business; let Will get his divorce if he wants to, I'm married again."

"What again!" gasped Stark. "Yes, again, and I'll get married again, too, if I want to. It's none of your affair."

She had married Lloyd Valentine three months ago without all the trouble and expense of a divorce. About a year ago Parks returned home in Ann Arbor to find his son, a lad of 7, crying bitterly because his mother had packed up and gone away on the cars and taken his little sister of 5 and left him. Parks traced his wife to Ionia and then lost track of her. This week he found she was in Woodland, and a deputy was sent to serve the notice of divorce proceedings upon her.

Just what Parks will do next he himself has not yet decided.

Wants Road To Quadruple Tax.

The state Tuesday started suit in Kent county to compel the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee to quadruple the basis of its taxation. The railroad is the last holder of a special charter which fixes the taxation at one per cent of the paid capital irrespective of improvements. It has been paying $25,000 annually since 1860, and the state claims it should pay a hundred thousand dollars on the basis of the other railroads. The state denies the road's claim that its charter is perpetual.

Indian Summer.

Next month is Indian summer month. A hazy atmosphere is generally noticed at this time. There is a popular belief that smoke from forest fires causes this hazy atmosphere, but this is true only partially and not necessarily. The dead leaves fall from the trees, are blown about and ground into a fine powder, and this powder causes the hazy atmosphere of the air. The smoke helps some, of course.

"Candy Girl" Coming.

Geddes & McLaren managers of our opera house, have been successful in securing "The Candy Girl" for one of their good attractions this season. This show was known as the "Girl That's All the Candy" last season, and gained the reputation of being one of the best popular priced musical shows on the road, and is even larger, better and more elaborate this season, as newspapers state where it has played so far. At the Sylvan Theatre Friday evening.

Badly Injured.

PINES

SPICES ON THE MOUNTAIN SIDE

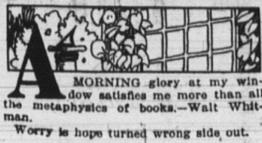

ALL trees, doubtless, appeal in some measure to the sense of poetry, even in those who are not strictly speaking lovers of nature; but the pine, for many, seems to have a message more vivid, more vital than the rest; as though it possessed some occult quality that speaks not merely to the imagination, or to the general love of nature per se, but directly to the soul. The oak for strength, the ash for mystery, the birch for her feminine grace and so forth; but the pine, like a sharp sword, pierces straight through to that inner sense of beauty which accepts or rejects beyond all question of analysis. The personality of this "common" tree touches the same sense of wonder that is stirred by the presence of a human personality, strong beyond ordinary; and worship is ever subtly linked with wonder.

The analogy is interesting. The pine plants its roots where more showy trees faint and die; straight, strong and sweet to the winds, it flourishes where only gorse, heather and toughly obstinate things can live. Out of the rock, where there seems not earth enough to feed a violet, it lifts its somber head undaunted; scorched by the sun, torn by the blast, peering into dreadful abysses, yet utterly fearless, and yielding so little that the elements must pluck it up by the roots before they can destroy it. Only lightning can break it. At a height above the sea that means death to other trees, it climbs stinging, "rock-rooted," stretched athwart the vacancy," and even when the main army halts, stragglers are always to be seen, leading forlorn hopes into the heart of desolation beyond. And if, amid the stress of conditions, it cannot look well, it is content to look ill, showing a dwarfed and stunted figure to the skies. Only then, ye elemental powers! what strength in the gnarled roots, what iron resistance in the twisted trunk, what dur endurance in the short thick limbs! It assumes the attitude of the fighting animal, back to the wall.

High mountains are full of vivid pictures of this courage against Titanic odds. For it has the courage of its convictions—fine, simple, tenacious—as has also that other quality of the strong soul; the power to stand alone. ("Some say there is a precipice where one vast pine is frozen to ruin o'er piles of snow and chasms of ice 'mid Alpine mountains.") No one who has canoed on Canadian lakes and seen those frequent rocky islets, each with its solitary pine, can have ignored that there is something strangely significant in the sight of that slender spire rising out of the heart of loneliness—something that thrills, and thrills deeply, into the region beyond words. Unsheltered beneath wide skies, remote from its own kind, the tree stands there, splendid in its isolation, straight as a temple column and prepared for any shock. "Ein Fichtenbaum steht einsam," of course—but there is more than the pathos of Helne's poem in its unapproachable loneliness; there is the spiritual suggestion of personality—this upright, self-sufficing tree upon a rock, buffeted by winds and waves, asking no sympathy and dreading no possible fate. The picture, symbolic of the strong soul, conveys the inevitable parable.

Compared with other trees, too, the pine does not change. One knows, of course, the tips of tender green that come with May and turn a pine wood into a sea of bewildering beauty. But, though deciduous, one is never aware that anything is lost; it branches never thin; it puts out, properly speaking, no buds. And the monotony of a pine forest is merely a Mushrooms.

Mushrooms are in season from May until the frosts come. During July and August they are apt to be wormy and should be carefully inspected before cooking. They may be served as a vegetable, as a salad as a main dish, in fact, there are countless ways of serving them.

Creamed mushrooms is a favorite way of serving them.

Creamed Mushrooms.
Clean the mushrooms, peel the caps and saute in a little butter, then add them to a rich white sauce. Serve on toast for a luncheon or a supper dish.

Chicken and Mushrooms.
Clean one cupful of mushrooms, break in pieces and saute in just enough butter to keep them from burning. To a quarter of a cupful of butter add a third of a cupful of flour and one and a half cupfuls of milk. Have one and a half cupfuls of chicken cut in dice and turn into the white sauce when it is well cooked. Add the mushrooms, season with salt and pepper and serve.

Household Hints.
Here is a remedy that will solve a problem that has troubled many a housewife, the question of what to do with a silence cloth too long for a small table. It cannot be folded back without making a ridge and it is not always possible to have them of different lengths. One bright woman has this simple way of disposing with the cloth when too long: She has two loops, one sewed on each corner and hooks fastened into the under side of the table, then the cloth can be hooked up out of the way very quickly.

Remnants of cold tongue are delicious heated in currant jelly with butter.

Care of a wound, no matter how small, should be attended to at once. Wash with some good antiseptic like ferrioxide and cover with the dust.

Relieve a burn quickly by applying moistened soda, scraped potato or a piece of ice, which will remove the fire. The speedier the better to remove both fire and pain.

Household Hints.
Kerosene is a wonderful cleanser. Wipe the sink with a cloth dampened in kerosene. It will remove all the grease and make it white and clean. It is as good for the bathtub. The slight odor will soon vanish.

Rub the leather seats in the chairs with a flannel cloth moistened with kerosene. It will freshen them wonderfully.

A little kerosene in the water in which clothes are boiled removes the soil which would otherwise take hard rubbing.

A little kerosene used in the water to wash window blindens them without the streaks that soap often makes. Tea stains are easily removed from table linen by pouring boiling water to which has been added a few drops of ammonia over them.

It is the custom of many housewives to use sand soap for cleaning and scouring. It is injurious to many utensils and ammonia or kerosene will do as well with no wear on the materials.

Study your guests likes and dislikes and avoid the unpleasantness of not having anything to please, for the world is full of men and women who have been spoiled by an unwise mother and have not been taught to enjoy all the good things of the table.

Health Hint.
For the man or woman who suffer with tired burning feet during the hot weather there is nothing which gives greater relief than a rubbing in alcohol or cologne. Wipe the feet with a good soothing lotion. The relief that comes from a little attention to the feet is well repaid by the comfort that results. A little powder dusted into the shoes is very cooling to tired feet.

Banana Sandwiches.
Divide two medium-sized bananas into halves, then cut each piece lengthwise into slices. Prepare buttered bread the size of the banana slices. Mix six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar with one teaspoonful of lemon juice; spread on the bread, and put two strips together with a slice of banana between.

Apples and Apple Sauce.
Those who are fortunate enough to have an early apple tree or two may have many appetizing dishes in this kind of fruit. The acids and salts found in apples are very beneficial. There are endless ways of serving them from plain apple sauce to salads and combination dishes.

Health Hint.
The first big drops of rain were heard on the leaves overhead, and the poor young woman looked at the fisherman with tears in her eyes and moaned:

"What shall I do—what shall I do?"
The hollow tree was forty feet away. The coming downfall was fifty. Mr. Flemming picked up his burden and beat the downfall by three feet. The hollow tree accommodated them both. The floodgates opened, but the retreat was as dry as a brick house. The thunder rumbled and growled and made things tremble, but Mr. Flemming soothingly declared that it didn't come within fifty rods of comparing with an earthquake. The lightning was vivid and came often, and like a good fellow he slipped an arm around the young woman's waist and let her hide her head on his shoulder.

It was an hour before the storm passed over, and another half hour before the leaves ceased dripping. The two in that hollow tree did not remain dumb all this time.

Mr. Flemming told about fishing and Miss Livingston told about the cause of education. Mr. Flemming moaned his poor luck, and Miss Livingston shed tears as she confided to him that she would receive the most gigantic reprimand from Miss Prim, and perhaps lose her place. She had been ordered not to let a girl stray. They had scattered like frightened chickens. She had been ordered to repulse, and—and—she hadn't done it!

"But the girls had to run from the storm," protested the fisherman.
"Yes, but Miss Prim makes no exceptions in favor of thunderstorms."
"But you were caught by the foot, and but for me you would be held yet."
"No exceptions."
"And after I had released you there was no time to follow the girls."
"She would expect me to, just the same."
They found the girls who had taken shelter at the farmhouse had gone on to the school. They would report Miss Livingston missing and perhaps dead. A tear stole down her cheek.
"But you couldn't get out a minute sooner," said Mr. Flemming.
"Miss Prim will ask why I didn't see the coming storm half an hour in advance."
"Suppose you had been left there caught in the root until some one had come from the school?"
"In that case," she replied, with a rueful smile, "Miss Prim would have asked if I had seen a man, and when satisfied I hadn't I might have got off with a light reprimand."
"Hang Miss Prim!" exclaimed Mr. Flemming with great vigor. "I propose to go on to the school with you and explain matters."
"But my orders were to repulse you emphatically. She even spelled that word out at length. I—intended to repulse you emphatically, but when a girl is caught by the foot—in thunder and lightning—and it's going to rain—"
"Why, she'd be an idiot to repulse!"
"And you must stop here and let me go on alone. Perhaps if I tell Miss Prim that I repulsed you at the last moment—"
"Oh, but you haven't you know!"
"Well?" queried Miss Prim as the delinquent reached home.
"I started to leave the grove with the girls, but was caught by the foot."
"I make no exception on that account. You should have been watching your feet."
"The storm was awful."
"You should have found shelter in advance."
"And then, when a man came and released my foot—"
"A man? And you repulsed him emphatically? You bade him begone—vanish! However, whether you did or not I can make no exceptions."
"That's what I thought, Miss Prim, and so—"
"Miss Livingston, I shall be pleased to accept your resignation without further inquiry. Indeed, I fear to draw out further details. I fear I should learn that you had fallen in love."
Miss Livingston went home to her mother, and Mr. Flemming hadn't visited her over half a dozen times when he asked her to make an exception in his case, and after making him wait six weeks longer as a punishment for his conduct in the hollow tree she consented.

Helped Himself.
Old Party—Oh, I'm so glad you happened to pass this way. I've been brutally assaulted and robbed of everything except my pocket book, which they happily overlooked.

Old Party—Yes, wasn't it?
The Gent—Can't get loose, can yer?
Poor fellow!
Old Party—No, I'd be here for life if I had to free myself.

"No Exceptions"

By LAWRENCE ALFRED CLAY

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Mr. Guy Flemming, civil engineer, was passing a couple of weeks at the village of Colville. That meant that he was fishing. That didn't mean that he was catching any fish, because the month was August, and a fish that will bite in August is not worth the carrying home.

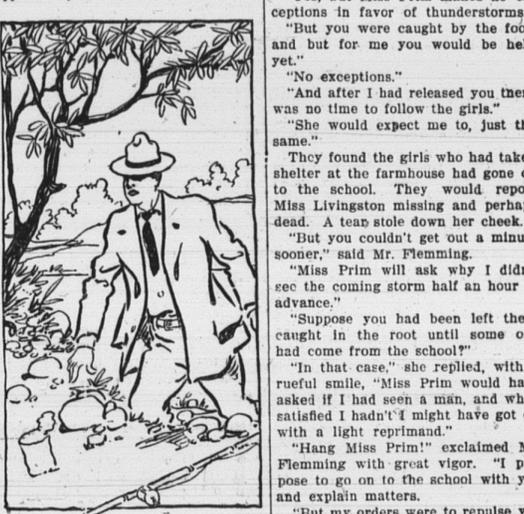

A mile outside the village was the Prim school for young ladies—Miss Janet Prim principal, proprietor and all that.

As the school buildings were situated on the banks of the same river in which Mr. Flemming was vainly fishing for fish, a suspicious person like Miss Prim must see through his duplicity sooner or later. He was gradually approaching the school grounds as he fished, and the day would come when he would venture to climb the wall and address one of the dozen damsels remaining there through the summer vacation. Miss Prim did see, and she called up Miss Fanny Livingston, one of her assistants, and solemnly said:

"Miss Livingston, there's a man around. That is, there is a strange man gradually approaching this place along the river bank. He has come a little nearer every day for the past week."

"Is the constable to be notified, ma'am?" was asked.

"Only as a last resort. Under your care the young ladies are to visit Maple grove tomorrow. The grove is on the river. Should that man be fishing in the vicinity and dare to approach you and the young ladies

He Was Startled by a Cry for Help.

He must be emphatically repulsed—e-m-p-h-a-t-i-c-a-l-l-y repulsed, Miss Livingston. I trust that you understand me?"

"Yes'm."

The next day Mr. Flemming went fishing down the river. He had hitherto fished up the stream. He knew nothing whatever of the jaunt to the grove on the part of the young ladies, but the voice of Fate called to him. He had been in the grove for a couple of hours, and he had almost had two bites on his hook, when the grove was invaded. He heard song and laughter, and he soon reasoned out who his callers were.

It was very proper of Mr. Flemming to sit there and fish and fish and not to spy. By skulking through the brush a hundred feet or so he could have come upon the happy band in a dell, but he didn't skulk. He sat there and bobbed his line up and down and watched the bubbles and the froth.

More than an hour had gone by when Mr. Flemming heard the rumble of thunder, and looked up to see the sky darkening. There was going to be a thunderstorm. He heard exclamations and ejaculations from the young ladies and knew they were preparing to take shelter in a farmhouse a quarter of a mile away. He didn't propose to get wet, but he had noted a great sycamore tree with a hollow trunk that would give him shelter.

The voices of a dozen running, harum-scarum girls had died away in the distance, and Mr. Flemming had laid down his fishpole, when he was startled by a cry for help. It was near at hand. It was the voice of a woman. The fisherman made a rush of fifty feet to confront a young woman whose face had been caught in a root as she started to flee with the others. She was hanging to the limb of a tree and twisting her foot, but the heel was jammed fast.

It was Miss Livingston. There she was, held prisoner by her foot, a soaking cold thunderstorm coming along, and the man she had been commended to repulse—emphatically repulsed—standing before her, and the only person on earth she could ask for assistance. If she emphatically repulsed him—

"I see the trouble and I beg pardon," said Mr. Flemming after an instant; and he dropped on his knee, seized the foot and wrenched it clear. Then the lightning came, and Miss Livingston screamed.

Then the first big drops of rain were heard on the leaves overhead, and the poor young woman looked at the fisherman with tears in her eyes and moaned:

"Miss Prim will ask why I didn't see the coming storm half an hour in advance."
"Suppose you had been left there caught in the root until some one had come from the school?"
"In that case," she replied, with a rueful smile, "Miss Prim would have asked if I had seen a man, and when satisfied I hadn't I might have got off with a light reprimand."
"Hang Miss Prim!" exclaimed Mr. Flemming with great vigor. "I propose to go on to the school with you and explain matters."
"But my orders were to repulse you emphatically. She even spelled that word out at length. I—intended to repulse you emphatically, but when a girl is caught by the foot—in thunder and lightning—and it's going to rain—"
"Why, she'd be an idiot to repulse!"
"And you must stop here and let me go on alone. Perhaps if I tell Miss Prim that I repulsed you at the last moment—"
"Oh, but you haven't you know!"
"Well?" queried Miss Prim as the delinquent reached home.
"I started to leave the grove with the girls, but was caught by the foot."
"I make no exception on that account. You should have been watching your feet."
"The storm was awful."
"You should have found shelter in advance."
"And then, when a man came and released my foot—"
"A man? And you repulsed him emphatically? You bade him begone—vanish! However, whether you did or not I can make no exceptions."
"That's what I thought, Miss Prim, and so—"
"Miss Livingston, I shall be pleased to accept your resignation without further inquiry. Indeed, I fear to draw out further details. I fear I should learn that you had fallen in love."
Miss Livingston went home to her mother, and Mr. Flemming hadn't visited her over half a dozen times when he asked her to make an exception in his case, and after making him wait six weeks longer as a punishment for his conduct in the hollow tree she consented.

Helped Himself.
Old Party—Oh, I'm so glad you happened to pass this way. I've been brutally assaulted and robbed of everything except my pocket book, which they happily overlooked.
The Gent—Tied yer to the tree, eh? Oorrible!
Old Party—Yes, wasn't it?
The Gent—Can't get loose, can yer?
Poor fellow!
Old Party—No, I'd be here for life if I had to free myself.
The Gent—Now for yer bloomin' pocket book, then!—M. A. P.

Inadequacy of Terms.
"People have to be very explicit nowadays in their statements."
"How do you mean?"
"Here's young Jolly tells me he has joined the uplift movement, and I don't know yet whether he meant he was going to have a new elevator installed, buy an airship or get on the water wagon."

He Was Startled by a Cry for Help.
He must be emphatically repulsed—e-m-p-h-a-t-i-c-a-l-l-y repulsed, Miss Livingston. I trust that you understand me?"

FORTIFY CANAL, IS TAFT'S PLAN

PRESIDENT WILL ASK THE NEXT CONGRESS FOR $2,000,000 APPROPRIATION.

ECONOMY OF ADMINISTRATION WILL BE TAKEN UP BY CABINET THIS YEAR.

The President Also Will Recommend That Provision Be Made for Two New Battleships.

President Taft in his coming message to congress will give prominence to a recommendation that at least $2,000,000 be appropriated for immediate use in beginning the fortification of the Panama canal.

The president also will recommend to congress that provision be made for two new battleships of the Dreadnought type. Mr. Taft does not believe that the economy plans should preclude the construction of at least two battleships a year until such time as the Panama canal is completed. He believes that the canal will have the effect of doubling the efficiency of the navy and that after it is in operation the building of new battleships can be cut down to one yearly.

Economy of administration in all departments will be one of the many subjects considered by the cabinet. Estimates for the coming fiscal year also will be considered at great length. The president's supreme court appointments will be discussed with his cabinet advisers, although the president has announced that he will not make these appointments until after congress is in session.

Miners Win Fight.
Representatives of the miners in the southwestern field ratified at Kansas City the agreement made with the operators and will resume work.

According to the new agreement, said to be a victory for the miners, they receive an increase of 5.55 per cent on day work, dead work and yardage.

The miners also receive an increase of three cents a ton on shooting coal and an increase of five cents a ton on long wall work. The arbitration clause was finally settled by an agreement to leave all future differences to W. L. A. Long, mine inspector of Kansas.

Heike Jailed and Fined $5,000.
Charles R. Heike, former secretary and treasurer of the American Sugar Refining Co., who has been called "the man higher up" in the sugar trust, was sentenced at New York by Judge Martin in the United States circuit court to serve eight months in the New York penitentiary on Blackwell's island and pay a fine of $5,000 on conviction of conspiring to defraud the United States government by the underweighing of sugar.

The New Tunnel.
Detroit tunnel is carrying trains at last. The massive tubes, stretching for nearly three miles beneath the river and making a connecting link between this nation and Canada, have been opened for regular traffic. The completion of the tunnel marks the culmination of a project whose equal has never existed in the history of industrial Detroit.

The formal opening of the tubes Sunday morning for regular service by the Michigan Central road means the successful completion of years of untiring labor. The satisfaction of some of the plans of noted engineers, and represents the cash expenditure of $8,000,000.

Trains bearing the high officials of the road have before ventured through the tunnel, and several tests with loaded freight cars were made, but the first electric locomotive trailing a train of freight cars on a regular schedule left the Detroit entrance to the tubes at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. Twelve minutes later it appeared again at the Windsor outlet of the tubes.

NEWS IN BRIEF.
James Clarke McGraw, who claimed the distinction of being the oldest ex-congressman in the United States, died at Kingswood, W. Va., in his ninety-eighth year. Death came unexpectedly from heart failure following the celebration of his ninety-seventh birthday last Wednesday.

News was brought from Peking by the steamer Empress of India of an uprising in Chinese Turkestan. Many shops were burned at the provincial capital. The provincial treasurer is missing and is believed to have been killed. All convicts have been liberated from the prisons.

Trade between the United States and the Philippine Islands increased 84 per cent during the first year's operation of the new tariff law, according to department of commerce and labor statistics. The new tariff law provides for the free interchange of merchandise between those islands and the United States. On July 31 last the law had been in effect one year.

Defective oil burners on the dreadnought North Dakota were responsible for the accident Sept. 8, whereby three men were killed and 11 injured, according to the report of the investigating board.

Federal employes who work in Washington and live in the numerous small towns outside can hereafter take a reasonably active part in their home politics and even hold municipal office. If they wish without running foul of the civil service commission. The question has been decided by President Taft in the case of George E. King, of the forest service, who has been elected mayor of Vienna, Va.

WARNING THAT WAS FAMILIAR
Grocer Man Used Formula That Made Little Harry Long to Be Far Away.

Mrs. Jones' favorite warning to her young progeny when they were in mischief was that she would tend to them in a minute. "Tending" was accomplished by applying the open hand where it would do most good. When Harry was four years old he was sent for the first time round the corner to the grocery. In a few minutes he came trotting soberly back with the nickel still in his hand, but no bag of onions. "What's the matter?" asked his mother.

"I'm 'fraid of the man," he said, solemnly.

"Oh, he won't hurt you," reassured Mrs. Jones. "Run along and bring the onions. I'm in a hurry for them."

A second time Harry disappeared round the corner, and a second time returned without his purchase.

"I'm 'fraid of the grocer man," he explained, as before.

"Well, what makes you afraid of him?" demanded his mother, impatiently.

"Why," answered the little fellow, "b'fo' times when I goed in, he looked at me, an' said, 'I'll tend to you in a minute.'—Youth's Companion.

Can You Beat It?
"Sir, are you against the railroad power?" interrupted the man in the audience.
"I am!" shouted the Socialist orator.
"Huh! You're traveling on a pass-right now!"
"Sure I am! I hate 'em so that I refuse to pay 'em money!"

Taken at His Word.
"Since you are so busy today," said the urbane journalist, "will you kindly tell me when and where I can meet you for an interview?"
"Go to blazes!" exclaimed the irate politician.

PUZZLED
Hard Work, Sometimes, to Raise Children.
Children's taste is oftentimes more accurate in selecting the right kind of food to fit the body, than that of adults. Nature works more accurately through the children.
A Brooklyn lady says: "Our little boy had long been troubled with weak digestion. We could never persuade him to take more than one taste of any kind of cereal food. He was a weak little chap and we were puzzled to know what to feed him on."
"One lucky day we tried Grape-Nuts. Well, you never saw a child eat with such a relish, and it did me good to see him. From that day on it seemed as though we could almost see him grow. He would eat Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper, and I think he would have liked the food for dinner."

"The difference in his appearance is something wonderful."
"My husband had never fancied cereal foods of any kind, but he became very fond of Grape-Nuts and has been much improved in health since using it."
"We are now a healthy family, and naturally believe in Grape-Nuts."
"A friend has two children who were formerly afflicted with rickets. I was satisfied that the disease was caused by lack of proper nourishment. They showed it. So I urged her to use Grape-Nuts as an experiment and the result was almost magical."
"They continued the food and today both children are well and strong as any children in this city, and, of course, my friend is a firm believer in Grape-Nuts for she has the evidence before her eyes every day."

Read "The Road to Wellville," found in pkgs. "There's a Reason."
"Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest."

THE NEGRO PROBLEM IN LIBERIA BY OVERTON PRICE

THE first idea of a "Liberia"—settlement of free negroes—arose with the foundation of the British colony of Sierra Leone. After the close of the American War of Independence in 1783 it became necessary to provide for the negro troops who had served Great Britain faithfully in that unhappy struggle. They were at first deported to Nova Scotia, but had no place there in the body politic of white men; they were no longer slaves, but the idea of granting the suffrage to negroes was then displeasing to the dominant race. There was also the problem of the free Maroon negroes of Jamaica, who were irksome to the authorities in a land of slavery. So the idea of founding a free negro state or community in West Africa for the reception of enfranchised American negroes came into being about 1784, and in 1787 the colony of Sierra Leone was founded under a chartered company and taken over by the crown in 1808.

Early in the nineteenth century the same difficulty arose in the United States, namely, the presence of thousands of free negroes whose case had not been sufficiently provided for by the American Constitution. Somehow or other these free negroes and mulattoes—growing impatient of being taxed without representation—must be provided for. So several philanthropists, remembering Sierra Leone, thought to promote by private enterprise and philanthropy a similar colony across the sea which might provide for the return to West Africa (whence most of them had come) of the freed slaves of the United States. Indeed, there was a strong disposition to adopt Sierra Leone for this purpose, with the assent of the British government; but the local authorities of Sierra Leone showed themselves very averse from receiving American negroes, who might owe a divided allegiance.

Accordingly the American founders of "Liberia" (this name was not given to the infant state until 1824)—who were mostly white men with a few mulattoes and negroes—selected the Grain Coast, immediately to the south and east of Sierra Leone, for their experiment.

It was some weeks before the hostility of the natives, who were wedded to the slave trade, could be overcome, but in 1822 active operations were begun. A thirty-acre tract was allotted to each man with the means of cultivating it. The National Colonization society's agents became discouraged at the difficulties that were met and returned to America with a few faint-hearted ones; but the others rallied about a determined negro, Elijah Johnson, and remained. The colony was enlarged by the addition of new tracts. New settlements were afterward formed at Cape Monte and in the newly acquired Bassa Land, in which, in 1834, a town was founded and called Edina, in acknowledgment of pecuniary aid sent from Edinburgh. Many of the neighboring chiefs were received into the colony, and others were subdued. Trials of many kinds, deprivations and dissensions were the lot of the colony, managed by a society which did not fully know whether its aims were sentimental or practical. In 1847 Liberia was left to its own resources and declared an independent republic. The colony immediately began to show more prosperity, numerous churches and schools were founded, newspapers were established, and slavery in the neighboring states was abolished. The first president of independent Liberia was Roberts, an octroon. He was a most able and courageous man and the country made rapid strides in civilization and other material lines of progress under his administration. The constitution of the republic is framed after that of the United States. There are a president, vice-president, a council of six ministers and a house of representatives. Voters must be of negro blood and own real estate. The natives generally do not avail themselves of the suffrage. No foreigner can own land without the consent of the government. The coast territory is formed into the counties of Bassa, Cape Palmas and Sinoe, with one superintendent each, and Montserrado, with four superintendents. The capital is Monrovia, named after President Monroe. English money is used, but American money figures usually in the keeping of accounts. There is a Liberian coinage and a rather large paper currency. The official language of the country is English. The civilized inhabitants are orthodox Protestants, mostly Episcopalians.

During the fifties and sixties of the last century the Americo-Liberians did much to explore the interior and enter into treaty relationships with the native chiefs. But thirty years ago their administration began to get into financial difficulties. It is not an easy thing to create a well-ordered, well-governed state in tropical Africa without a considerable capital to draw on. Consider for a moment what Great Britain has spent on Sierra Leone since 1787, and on the Gold Coast wars, the opening up of Nigeria; or the outlay of France on Senegambia or Dahomey; and then imagine how the government of Liberia could without any reserve of capital bring law, order and civilization into a densely-forested territory nearly the size of England, with a probable population of over a million warlike savages and semi-savages.

So long as Britain and France—the controlling powers—contented themselves with the mere occupation of a few coast towns on the seaboard of their West African dominions or protectorates, the Monrovia government could afford to do the same. But when these great European powers were compelled by force of circumstances to occupy and administer the regions behind their coasts the Liberians found themselves in a position of great difficulty. They had been allotted theoretically by France and England a considerable hinterland—more than 50,000 square miles—and were held responsible for the doings of the native tribes in that extensive interior. Now these tribes had never been subdued by the government of the republic. They were many of them in treaty relationships with the Monrovia administration, and such of them as had heard of the civilized negro government on the coast (and it must be remembered that much of the interior is dense forest, inhabited by tribes who for ages have been isolated in that forest, and were—and are—quite ignorant of the world outside their tribal land) were quite willing to regard the Liberians as the ruling power on the seashore. But they were very disinclined to obey orders from Monrovia if contrary to their own desires.

The tribes farthest inland looked upon the British and French—the "white men"—as aggressors who were putting down by force a most lucrative slave trade, who were forcibly disclosing the secrets of sacred streams like the Niger near its sources, who, in short, were not only to be opposed, but whose organized territories offered a most profitable field for raids and robberies. More than this: the import of guns, gunpowder, rifles (above all) and alcohol was being restricted or forbidden by the Europeans. The Liberian coast, especially where it was slenderly guarded by the Liberian administration, offered the one loophole through which these forbidden goods might be smuggled. Accordingly a great trade sprang up between these uncontrolled hinterland tribes and the Kru people on the coast, who affected a sort of detachment from the government by the American-Negro republic. In these ways the Liberian hinterland became a positive source of danger and expense to the British protectorate of Sierra Leone and the French possessions of the Sudan and Ivory Coast. Consequently the Liberian government has been forced of late years to live somewhat beyond its means in organizing a police and a marine, in occupying the Kru coast and in attempting to construct roads to places of importance in the interior. It has from time to time engaged European officers for its services; but whereas some of these engagements have been of noteworthy success, others have been the reverse, and it is difficult to locate the blame. European capital is somewhat shy of Liberia, partly owing to the turbulence of the interior natives (though this has been exaggerated, for white men very seldom really incur danger from the indigenes), but more on account of the irresponsible fickleness of the legislature, which is given too much to the hasty making and unmaking of laws and to conflicts of opinion with the executive.

Yet the country is extremely rich. Its rocks and river valleys produce both gold and diamonds, some of the coast districts (especially in the east) even give indications of the existence of bitumen, or oil-bearing strata, while the forests of the interior are remarkable for their wealth of rubber-bearing trees and bananas, their ebony, African teak and "mahogany," and the plassava fiber (derived from the raphia palm), which is used for so many purposes connected with the making of brooms and brushes. Then there is the oil-palm, with its two kinds of oil, both valuable to commerce—the oil of the husk and that of the kernel. The extraction of this last and its great value for special industries are said to have been discovered some seventy-five years ago by an American negro, one of the early colonists of Liberia. A great deal was done by these freed slave settlers, for which they have never received sufficient credit.

Unfortunately the attempted colonization of Liberia has been hindered by the American negro colonists proving almost as much liable to malarial fever and other African diseases as Europeans. They seem to have lost the relative immunity from these blood-germ maladies which their African ancestors enjoyed. The modern America-Liberian does not stand the climate of Liberia much better than the white man from Europe or America. It is the coast belt which, with its eternal heat and moisture, its very short dry seasons, and torrential rains (conditions which suit admirably the cultivation of rubber, coffee and cacao) saps the vitality of residents not of African birth. And the hinterland, with its superior conditions of climate, has already a somewhat large indigenous population, who are not eager for foreign additions to their numbers.

Hiring Help In East Africa

The "servant problem" is bad enough in America, and the experiences mistresses have to relate are many and varied; but an infinitely wider range of possibilities is opened up when mere man—and a bachelor at that—tackles the servant and other household problems in an East African bungalow. Anything can happen—and does happen!

Native house servants of a sort are plentiful enough around the chief towns of British East Africa, Nairobi and Mombasa, and the slightest rumor that the Muzungu (white man) requires a "boy" or "m'pezi" (cook) or one's compound with cooks, "generals" and raw niggers, representing every tribe under Africa's sun, a writer in the Wide World says.

The average bachelor contents himself with four servants—a head "boy," a cook, a "toto" (youth) to assist them, and a "m'shenzi" (raw, untrained native) for odd jobs, gardening, etc.

It is no easy task to make a selection from the host of eager, voluble applicants. Dirty, carefully stuck-together "buras" (testimonials) are examined and the owners questioned, but it is unwise to put much faith in these documents, for it is no unusual occurrence for a "boy"—on the principle of "the more the merrier"—to proudly present you with three testimonials, every one bearing a different name from the one under which he introduces himself!

These gentry are always greatly offended when you kick them off the veranda and tell them they have bought or stolen the documents from other natives! Upon one occasion a would-be cook brought me a "barua" signed by a well-known settler and worded: "To whom it may concern: The bearer of this 'barua' is an infernal rogue and thief. Please kick him out!"

By the time I had stopped laughing the nigger had arrived at the conclusion that something was wrong and was doing record time down the path, so I was unable to avail myself of the kind invitation.

HORSE TRADE IN MISSOURI.

In St. Charles last week Lester Ingraham traded A. S. Osborn a horse for a motor boat. A few hours later Osborn discovered that the horse was worthless, so he went to the boat and removed the engine and the horse died as he was hauling it away. A jury in a justice's court awarded Ingraham the engine and $1 damages.—Detroit Free Press.

WASHING OF IRISH CROCHET

Life of Collars and Neckwear is Prolonged by Laundering It the Proper Way.

Irish crochet collars and neckwear may be the most durable a girl can use or the most unsatisfactory. It depends upon the laundering. Wash in thick, hot suds made from pure white soap. Rinse through several waters and put through a thin starch water. Squeeze out excessive moisture between cloths. Pin the crochet piece to a cushion or heavily padded board. Pull out all the points and edges, fastening each one with a pin to the cushion. Allow it to remain until dry, when it will look like new. If the lace is much yellowed the cushion can be placed in the sun during the drying process. A drop of bluing can be added to the last rinsing water, or if a creamy tint is liked the lace can be put through a weak tea.

A great saving of laundry work and linen may be effected by the use of "runners" for the breakfast and luncheon table. Linen crash with blue border is satisfactory. Cut one strip for length of table to extend a few inches over edge, and two strips to cross table. Place on polished table one long and one cross strip for four persons, or one long and two cross strips for six plates. For a summer cottage a plain pine table stained may be made attractive by the use of these "runners."

Almond Cream.

Two heaping tablespoonfuls of powdered gelatine, four ounces of almonds, one pint of milk, one cupful of whipping cream, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, half a teaspoonful of almond extract. Mix the gelatine, sugar and milk together in a saucepan, then dissolve slowly over the fire. Strain into a basin and cool, then add the almonds blanched and chopped finely, almond extract and the whipped cream. Four into a wet mold and turn out when firm, sprinkle over with ground almonds and serve with orange jelly.

Scotch Shortbread.

Two pounds of flour, one pound of butter, a half pound of sifted sugar, a few citron, caraway comfits, and sweet almonds. Put a pound of butter into a basin. Squeeze it with your hands near the fire until the butter is quite soft. Squeeze into it the same way the flour and sugar. Add the sweet almonds, chopped fine. Mix well together. Shape portions of it into small cakes a half inch thick, using the floured hands as before. Bake in a slow oven. Sprinkle over them the citron and caraway comfits.

Cream of Pea Soup.

Cook one pint of peas, one bay leaf, two slices of onion in two teacupfuls of water for 20 minutes, then press through a sieve. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, three teacupfuls of milk and cook until it begins to thicken. Then combine the mixtures, bring to the boiling point, season with one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of white pepper. Serve with a teaspoonful of whipped cream on top of each plate.

To Remove Odor From Hands.

It is not generally known that dry mustard rubbed on the hands will remove any odor, even those clinging ones of kerosene or onion. Articles that have been cleaned with gasoline or any other pungent fluid can also be sweetened by this same method, only it should be dusted lightly on the article, and not rubbed, and then a gentle shaking should be given until the whole surface has been deodorized.

Meat Toast.

Chop finely six to eight ounces of cooked cold meat. Melt one heaping tablespoonful of butter in the chafing dish, and fry in it one chopped onion, add one tablespoonful of flour and stir until brown, then put in the meat, season with salt, pepper and red pepper, and stir till hot through. Add three tablespoonfuls of stock or water, and cook for ten minutes. Spread the mixture over hot buttered toast. Serve hot.

Ham and Steaks.

Have the steaks one inch thick, sprinkle on each steak salt, pepper, paprika, dip in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg, and then in crumbs again. Put three heaping tablespoonfuls of butter in the blazer of the chafing dish and when smoking hot put in the ham-butt and fry till it is nicely browned on both sides. Garnish with thin slices of lemon and sprinkle over with finely chopped parsley.

Puff Balls.

One egg, one-half cup sugar, beaten together, one-half pint of sweet milk added and about one pint of flour in which is sifted one teaspoonful of baking powder and a little cinnamon, nutmeg and salt. It will be a thick batter. Drop small spoonful into hot fat and fry like doughnuts. Drain on brown paper and roll in sugar.

Care of Silver.

Put silverware into an aluminum kettle with enough boiling water to cover it. Boil until silver is bright. Dry thoroughly.

Another Way.—Use one quart of lukewarm water with one teaspoonful of baking soda, dissolved in it. Put in the silverware and let stand several hours until bright.

She Took No Chances.

A happily-wedded matron is the principal of an odd incident, which one of her "dear" friends relates.

Before the matron's engagement to her present husband was announced, she met her "dear" friend on the street. The new matron was hurrying to ward one of the large jewelry stores of the city.

"John gave me an engagement ring," she explained, without a shadow of embarrassment, "and I am going down to see how much it cost. You see, I got the jeweler's name off the box, and she hurried on."

The same friend said that another bit of information the matron got was the commercial standing of the prospective husband, which she secured by paying for a special report from a commercial agency.

Tribute to Hold-Up Artist.

"The train doesn't stop at Crimmon Gulch any more."

"No," replied Three-Finger Sam. "I'm afraid the town doesn't get much respect from the railroad."

"Respect! Why that railroad is clean terrified. Ever since the stage got around that Stage Coach Chatterbox had settled here that train just gives one shriek and jumps out of sight!"

Could Wait.

"Why didn't you stay to ascertain how badly the man was injured?" demanded the judge.

"Why," explained the chauffeur, "I knew I could find out from the daily papers."

A girl who sits and waits for a man to propose must feel a good deal like a cat that is watching a rat-hole.

BREVITIES

JACKSON—September 29 is designated by Jackson as "Fire Day," it being the 26th anniversary of the placing of their department on a paid basis. Sports of all kinds will be indulged in on that day.

MANCHESTER—The Lake Shore has discontinued the Sunday train on the Ypsilanti branch, and the Sunday train to Jackson and return. The first train south in the morning and the last train north at night will be continued.

TECUMSEH—Suit has been begun in circuit court by Barney Thomas to recover $15,000 from the Jackson Drop Forge Company for alleged damages. Nearly two years ago he fell from a ladder while at work for the company and so injured himself that he has disabled himself permanently, and he claims the company's negligence was responsible for the accident.—News.

DEXTER—School children returning home Friday afternoon noticed a blaze in the back kitchen roof of Ed. Nickles' residence. They knocked, Mrs. Nickles coming from the kitchen and they told her of the fire. The fire started from the chimney and the house burned to the ground. The neighbors assisted in taking out the furniture, which was most all saved. The house was insured for a small amount.

YPSILANTI—The Ypsilanti Savings bank has begun suit on a promissory note for $4,000, the defendants being Lizzie, Florence and Jessie Swaine. The allegation is that the note was given by the Swaine estate after the death of Fred J. Swaine who was the head of a malt company in Ypsilanti. Robert Hemphill, acting through power of attorney for the Swaine estate, gave the note to the bank of which he is cashier. It was given a number of years ago, and interest and principal has long been overdue.

MANCHESTER—Some time ago two or three of our citizens undertook to canvass the village to ascertain how many of our inhabitants would be glad if there was an electric line through here between Jackson and Ypsilanti or Ann Arbor. They found that the business men were opposed to it, because people would have better opportunities to go out of town to trade which would be an injury to their business. Professional men, other business men aside from storekeepers and citizens generally favored an electric line, but there was occasionally one who opposed it. By close count of all those favoring it were about three to one—Enterprise.

PLYMOUTH—On May 13, 1908, Congress passed an act bestowing a bronze medal upon all participants in the navy during the war of the rebellion who were deemed worthy of commemorative recognition. The other day A. N. Brown, who served on the Commodore Perry during 1860, received one such medal and the venerable gentleman is highly pleased with it. That there have not been many such issued by the department is apparent by the number appearing on the edge of the medal—475. The government sometimes is a long time in recognizing the bravery of the defenders of the Nation in that awful war, but the recognition is none the less merited.—News.

MARSHALL—Warren Lewis, the Ypsilanti bookie and jockey who sold pools on the races at the fair association last week, tried to get out of town without paying the fair association license and entry fee amounting to $60. He had purchased Evelyn Nesbit of her owner, H. W. Williams of Mason, for $300 and had her started on a freight car for Ypsilanti when W. H. Arthur, manager of the racing department secured an attachment fee and overhauled Lewis at Albion, making the station ahead of the train via his automobile. He took along an officer. Lewis wanted to go on and settle after reaching home but Arthur would not agree to this and forced him to make the deposit with the railroad company.

SALINE—The family of Sebastian Finkbeiner, west of town, was startled last Sunday night when they discovered a bright light near their woods and marsh and on examination there found a tramp warming himself and roasting green corn to supply his stomach. The fire had been kindled in the muck which will burn for a long time or until heavy rains come. The boys ordered the man off, but he said "nit," and as he seemed the better end, they took for the house where they phoned for Deputy Sheriff Jerry, who with Chris. Renz in his auto rushed for the burning spot, but when they reached there, Joe Ebby, as he gave his name, had fled and it was not until the next morning when they captured him in hiding behind a stump by the roadside. Ebby was brought into town and is now serving ninety days in jail.—Observer.

SALINE—Mrs. Charles Burkhardt, wife of one of the most prominent merchants in Saline, and a resident of this county for 57 years, died Saturday afternoon after a two weeks' illness.

DEXTER—Lloyd Bell, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell, while playing with a hand-car back of his father's residence Friday morning about 8 o'clock, fell in some way, striking his right hand, cutting his little finger off at the first joint and lacerating the other fingers.

PLYMOUTH—A pure food inspector was in town the other day and he saw some of the stuff that had been shipped to Detroit and made in to catsup. There will be no more of it shipped and the matter may result in trouble for somebody at the Detroit end of the deal.—News.

GRASS LAKE—The Methodist and Congregational churches of this village will hold a Sunday school rally Sunday, October 2. Fine programs consisting of papers, addresses, recitations and music will be given in the Congregational church in the morning and in the Methodist in the evening.

JACKSON—The M. U. R. is hot after some of the gangs of boys who have been opening switches and pulling down trolley poles while the conductor is busy ringing up the fares. A switch on the Grass Lake division was found wedged open with a piece of a pickaxe handle Sunday morning.

ANN-ARBOR—Two $10,000 suits were started Saturday against two railway corporations. One is for Jacob Oleshaucky, who was injured in the D. U. R. wreck between Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti July 4, and the other is for Frank Darlinghouse, who was injured while coupling cars on the Michigan Central at Jackson two years ago, losing his left arm.

Council Proceedings.

[OFFICIAL.] COUNCIL ROOMS, Chelsea, Mich., Sept. 19, 1910. Board met in regular session, meeting called to order by Geo. P. Staffan, president. Roll called by the clerk, present trustees McKune, Hammond, Hummel and Dancer, absent Lowry and Palmer. Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

An Awful Eruption Of a volcano excites brief interest, and your interest in skin eruptions will be as short, if you use Bucklen's Arnica Salve, their quickest cure. Even the worst boils, ulcers, or fever sores are soon healed by it. Best for burns, cuts, bruises, sore lips, chapped hands, chilblains and piles. It gives instant relief. 25c at L. T. George J. Burke. George J. Burke, of Ann Arbor, by the unanimous choice of his party, is the democratic candidate for the office of prosecuting attorney. He was born on a farm in the township of Northfield, this county, and by his own efforts was graduated with honor and credit from the Ypsilanti high school and the law department of our state university. He has been engaged in the practice of his profession at Ann Arbor for a number of years, during which time he has been connected with much of the more important litigation before our local courts.

Mr. Burke, admittedly, is one of the best attorneys at the Washtenaw bar, and is eminently qualified for the office to which he has been nominated.

A Treatment That Costs Nothing if it Fails. We want you to try three large bottles of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic on our personal guarantee that the trial will not cost you a penny if it does not give you absolute satisfaction. That's proof of our faith in this remedy, and it should indisputably demonstrate that we know what we are talking about when we say that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair on bald heads, except where baldness has been of such long duration that the roots of the hair are entirely dead, the follicles closed and grown over, and the scalp is glazed.

Remember, we are basing our statements upon what has already been accomplished by the use of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, and we have the right to assume that what it has done for thousands of others it will do for you. In any event you cannot lose anything by giving it a trial on our liberal guarantee. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00.
