Insane Ward is Useless.

The semi annual jail inspection has been made by Judge of Probate Emory E. Leland, John W. Brening, Michael and Henry O'Neil, superintendents of the poor, and W. K. Childs, county agent.

They say in reference to the insane ward at the jail: "The construction and location of the insane ward is perfectly useless for the purpose." They recommend that new linoleum should be put on the floors of the outer and private offices of the jail. Water closets should be overhauled and repaired.

Will Start Suit.

When the trustee was appointed by the southern division of the district court of the United States for the eastern district of Michigan, to take charge of the affairs of the Millen Portland Cement Co., of Four Mile Lake, the bankrupt concern was indebted to about twenty-five men in this vicinity for labor. The last of the past week they received a notice from the referee in bankruptcy that the final meeting of the creditors would be held in Detroit, September 27th.

The notice also stated that the trustee had filed his final account and that said account showed no funds for distribution among the creditors of the bankrupt company.

The men in this vicinity who have labor claims against the company have placed the same in hands of attorneys and a suit will be started to collect the money from the stockholders of the bankrupt corporation.

Baby Choked On Tiny Screw.

Little Alda Evelyn, the 1-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. D. M. Cain of Ann Arbor put a tiny screw which she found while playing upon the floor, into her mouth at noon Sunday and inside of three minutes she was strangled to death in spite of all that could be done to save her.

The baby was playing about the room and she probably saw the bright screw and in a moment or two it found its way to her mouth. Then her little 3-year-old brother handed her a few kernels of popcorn and they went into her mouth also, and a second later the mother heard her choking. It was not over a minute or two before two doctors were working over the child but nothing could be done.

Dr. Cain is well known in this vicinity, having made Chelsea one of his regular visiting places for several years.

Ganderbone's Forecast for October.

O. T. Roosevelt has come back to the West! Of all the Rough Riders his luck was the best.

He rode from Dakota to San Juan Hill and he found him the Spaniards he wanted to kill.

Shouting, "Into 'em, Teddy, An' into 'em deep!" And the men of Granada Went down in a heap.

He rested his broncho and fed him his fill, and then he rode yelling up Capitol Hill. He wasn't expecting or asking a thing, but he landed right in the political ring, shouting "Into 'em, Teddy, and into 'em plump!" and the poor politicians went down in a lump.

He watered his pinto and fed him some oats, And then he remounted and hunted for goats.

He found him some people who didn't agree With all of his notions, and gave a whoop-pee.

Yelling, "Into 'em, Teddy, An' into 'em hot!" And he knocked them all into The pitiless bot.

He hobbled his charger and gave him some grass, and then he went after someone in his class. He put up a lion with blood in its eye, and he clapped on the spurs with a terrible cry, saying "Into 'em, Teddy, an' into 'em hard!" and the lion passed on to his final reward.

He breathed his good mustang and looked him around, But further adventure was not to be found.

So he pulled up his trousers and pulled down his vest, And slowly rode back to his olden-time West.

Shouting, "Back to 'em, Teddy, An' back to 'em proud!" And they gathered about him And solemnly bowed.

He rode in his saddle, and rode on his head; and he put all the tenderfeet under the bed. He dashed to the East, and he dashed to the West, and he halted before them, expanding his chest, saying, "Three cheers for Teddy, the pride of the West!" and they took a great pleasure in doing the rest.

October is from the Latin octo, meaning eight, and it was formerly the eighth month of the year. This brought the football season around at a time when there was grave danger of being suffocated before the ball was even put into play, and there was a great deal of satisfaction at the old Greek and Roman universities. A change was frequently talked of, but it remained for Numa Pompilius, who was one of the early friends of education, to do anything about it. In 713 B. C. he moved October along to its present place in the calendar, and now the quarterback on a football team always says before snapping the ball, Numa, Numa, Come seven, One, three!

After which the rooters, who reached a very high state of proficiency in the latter days of Numa, recite, Numa, Numa, Boomalooma, Come seven, One, three, B. C., Whoopie! Siwash!

or whatever the name of the school is, as you may hear them doing any time this month by following the riot wagon when it passes.

Until the 23d of the month, October will be under the influence of Libra, the Balance, which is the seventh sign of the zodiac. This will enable everybody running for office to keep on the fence pretty well as to the real issues of the campaign, but when the sun passes out of that constellation on the following day they will begin dropping on one side or the other, and it will be easier to take out who the true friends of the people are. After the 23d we will be influenced by Scorpio, the Scorpion, which is almost meaningless now, but in early times typified the manner in which the north wind stung the old Greeks, who were in the habit of going until very late in the season without having on any wear to speak of, either over or under.

A bit of Fall is as nice a thing As I know anything about— When the pumpkin pie is ripening, And the time is opportune for kraut. When the hunter gets his trappings out Awakened by the time of year, And the farmer, furious without, And hot within, begins to shout, "Get on-u-u-u-t of here!"

PAID HIGHLY FOR BEAUTY

Humorist Tells How He Became Handsome, and Declares It Was Worth It.

To be handsome is not always to be good, but there is surely no harm in being handsome if you can become so without spoiling your face. For years I was considered homely. My best friends admitted it and my enemies made unkind references to it. I knew that there were dermatologists who were perfectly willing to give silver bridges to bridgeless noses, dazzling brilliancy to lack-luster eyes and ravishing outlines to hideous profiles, but I did not care to go to the expense. I determined to be my own dermatologist.

I have drawn an outline of my profile as it was before I began to work on my face. It will be seen that, while intellectual, it was not handsome. My ear was too long and my nose too like a toe, while my brow needed building up and my chin pushing forward. My eye, while not beautiful, had character, and I decided not to alter that, but the other features needed manipulation.

I began with my nose. When I went to bed I lay on my back with a flatiron bound to my nose. It was painful at first, but I soon got used to it, and day by day my nose changed its shape until at last it was perfect. I next tried sleeping standing up in a specially prepared bed, with heavy weights hung to my chin. This had a tendency to bring my chin forward. Luckily I was out of a job, so I was able to do my sleeping in the daytime. To give myself a high brow I made a hat like those used by hatters to ascertain the size of the head. This I screwed on my head on retiring, increasing the pressure each night. I also took double doses of headache powders, as I needed them. As I look back it does not seem more than six months that I labored with my visage, but my diary tells me it took a year.

I append a profile of my face as it was after I secured beauty for myself. The difference between the two profiles is great and the torture was great, but it is certainly pleasant to hear people say whenever I appear in public: "Who is that strikingly handsome man?"—Charles Battell Loomis in Delineator.

In Praise of Gardening.

Charles Dudley Warner: There is probably nothing that has such a tranquillizing effect, and leads into such content, as gardening. By gardening, I do not mean that insane desire to raise vegetables which some have; but the philosophical occupation of contact with the earth, and companionship with gently growing things and patient processes; that exercise which soothes the spirit and develops the delectable muscles. In half an hour I can hoe myself right away from the world, as we commonly call it, into a large place, where there are no obstacles. What an occupation it is for thought! The mind broods like a hen on eggs. The trouble is, that you are not inking about anything, but are really vegetating like the plants around you. I begin to know what the joy of the grapevine is in running up the trellis, which is similar to that of the squirrel in running up the tree. We all have something in our nature that requires contact with the earth.

Had Been Under Suspicion.

"I will ask you," said the lawyer, who was trying to throw doubts on the testimony of the witness, "if you have ever been indicted for any offense against the law?"

"I never have, sir."

"Have you ever been arrested on a charge of any kind?"

"Never."

"Well, have you ever been suspected of committing a crime?"

"I'd rather not answer that question."

"Ha! You would rather not. I thought so. I insist upon your answering it. Have you ever been suspected of crime?"

"Yes, sir; often. Every time I come home from a trip abroad the customs inspectors at New York city suspect me of being a smuggler."—Chicago Tribune.

Things Worth Knowing.

Stand not near a tree, iron gate or leaden spout in time of lightning.

Where a lighted candle will not burn, animal life cannot exist. It is an excellent caution, therefore, before entering damp and confined places to try this very simple experiment.

To induce sleep when one is overtired or worried and cannot sleep, being gently rubbed all over with a towel wrung out of hot salt water, and deep breathing in fresh air through the nostrils has excellent effect.

The Reason of It.

"The boat you see in so close there is the mail boat and its route embraces small settlements all along the coast."

"Embraces so many, does it? I suppose that is why I see the boat is hugging the shore."

Neighbor's Baby Is Useful.

"You watch your neighbor's baby with considerable interest."

"Yes," said Mrs. De-Style. "When the weather turns her baby blue I don't let him out."

MICHIGAN STATE FAIR A SUCCESS

BEST STATE EXHIBITION MICHIGAN EVER HELD IS SUCCESSFULLY CONCLUDED.

FINANCIAL GAIN IS GOOD ALTHOUGH NOT ALL THAT WAS EXPECTED.

Association is Considering Plan to Hold Future Exhibition in Covered Buildings.

Saturday night the greatest state fair that has ever been held in Michigan came to a close in Detroit. Two days of rain caused a great hole to be made in the expected attendance, yet there was more money made in the four good days of this year than was cleared in the whole eight days of 1909.

If the rain had not intruded there would have been enough made to pay off the last of the debt of $130,000 which was contracted when the fair was established in Detroit five years ago. Yet even though the retiring officers are forced to leave behind a small balance of the debt which they hoped to wipe out, they go with laurels bestowed by the multitude of visitors who have come, looked, enjoyed and gone away filled with the desire to return and see what Michigan can do to better a new record.

Exhibitors came from all parts of the country and united in saying that they had never showed at a place where they were given so good attention or where conditions were better. Men prominent in fair circles also spent a part of the past week on the ground, and when they left admitted to the officials that their visit had been an education, and they would profit by what they saw when they next took a whirl at the wheel of fair fortune.

WILLIAMS IS NOMINEE.

Detroit Named for Lieut.-Gov. on Democratic Ticket.

Investigation of the primary election returns which was started in Lansing by the state board of canvassers shows that the prohibitionists have been generous in their support of candidates for nomination on other party tickets. As a result several candidates have been nominated on two tickets, and they will have to withdraw from one.

Stephen D. Williams, of Detroit, is probably the Democratic nominee for lieutenant-governor. In all three were 313 party men proposed at the primary for this nomination. Charles E. Townsend is not only the Republican nominee for United States senator, but is the nominee as well for state senator by the prohibitionists of the twenty-sixth senatorial district.

E. L. Hamilton, in the fourth congressional district, and Joseph Fordney, in the eighth, are the nominees of both the Republicans and the prohibitionists. Angus Kerr is nominated by both the Socialists and the prohibitionists in the twelfth district, although he failed to land the Republican nomination. Frank Buell, of Bay City, is similarly honored by the prohibitionists in the tenth district. L. D. Dickinson and John O. Root are candidates for the Republican nomination for lieutenant-governor, ran neck and neck in the prohibition party for the same nomination.

Under the law, unless a candidate nominated by two parties chooses between them five days after the canvass, the board of election commissioners must not print his name on the ballot.

In the twenty-sixth senatorial district the board of canvassers found that Emery E. Weimer and N. J. Gaylord, the Democratic candidates for state senator, had received a tie vote. Mr. Weimer's name will appear on the ballot. He is also the Democratic choice for the legislature in the ninth congressional district, and must decide within five days which office he will seek, according to the provisions of the primary law.

A tie was also counted in the twenty-ninth senatorial district. William A. Taylor and James Morrice were the candidates who received the same number of votes. Taylor won in the drawing. The latter is also the choice of the prohibitionists for United States senator.

Shoots Woman, Hangs Self.

Burton W. Yates, chairman of the Business Men's Publishing Co., Detroit, committed suicide by hanging in the county jail in Cleveland an hour after he had been lodged there for shooting Mrs. Fred Singer of Cleveland, formerly of Detroit, in a roadhouse at Rocky River, after a motor car joy ride, followed by a wine orgy.

Mrs. Singer will recover, barring complications. Left alone in the "bull pen" of the jail while commitment papers were made out, Yates hurried into the washroom, tied his handkerchief around his neck, attached to it an iron bar and strangled himself. When the guards returned they found him dead. The shooting followed a day of motor rides and visits to wine rooms. The couple arrived at the roadhouse shortly after midnight.

The seventy-fifth annual session of the Michigan M. E. conference, embracing the seven districts of Albion, Big Rapids, Grand Rapids, Grand Traverse, Kalamazoo, Lansing and Niles, opened in Jackson. At the conference held in Grand Rapids last year more than 200 answered the roll call, but there was a much larger attendance this year.

The state board of canvassers has found that a number of prominent men, now deceased, received votes for the nomination for attorney-general at the recent primaries.

NEWS OF MICHIGAN.

Lapeer's annual budget for running expenses for the year provides for a levy of about $30,000. The floating indebtedness has been reduced about $8,000.

Northbound freight No. 16 ditched a loaded car a few miles north of Au Sable, tearing up 200 yards of rail. The train crew jumped and no one was hurt.

The board of canvassers has decided to throw out the entire vote in precinct 2, Sault Ste. Marie, because of irregularities. The candidates for prosecutor will appeal.

James Decker, pioneer hotelkeeper of Portland, and in Detroit, is dead at the age of 63 years. He recently suffered two strokes of paralysis. A widow, one son and a daughter survive.

The wheat crop in the Thumb district will be the largest in years and many farmers predict that it will be the main crop. More than 40 bushels to the acre are being threshed in certain sections.

The State Federation of Labor has recommended resolutions asking the legislature to pass a statute making it a misdemeanor for a person between the ages of 16 and 21 to ask a bartender to serve him intoxicants.

Horace H. Jackson of Saginaw was caught under a fall of rocks at the Riverside mine. His back was broken by the cave-in and he lived only a few moments after being rescued. He was 42 years of age. He leaves a widow.

William Schmidt, of Port Huron, 69 years old, died from a broken heart and starvation, say his children. His wife died in July and since then he has refused to take sufficient food to nourish himself. He leaves four children.

When his father, who was a Christian Scientist, refused medical treatment and died, Arthur Sawyer, of Battle Creek, armed himself with a razor and said he would kill the first Christian Scientist he met. He was taken in charge by the police.

A few hours before the body of James Colly, of Battle Creek, 14 years old, a victim of drowning, was carried into the home of his parents the mail carrier brought a letter containing an insurance policy for $250. The lad had paid 10 cents only, his first weekly payment.

At the inquest held to determine the responsibility for the wreck on the Michigan Central railroad at St. Charles in which two men were killed, the entire blame for the crash was placed on the road by the coroner's jury, which stated that the road was guilty of the faulty operation of its trains in that vicinity.

The new city directory gives Port Huron a population of 24,473, an increase of about 4,000 over the figures sent out by the United States census bureau. This is accounted for by the taking in of several suburbs by the directory people and the addition of about 300 families since the census was taken.

Michigan's oldest hardwood planting mill, located at Reed City, owned by Wm. Hower, burned, the loss being $49,000. The fire was believed to have started from defective electric light wiring. A new mill will replace the destroyed structure. Tracks on the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, running near the mill, were warped for a distance of 400 feet, the trains being sent over the Pere Marquette railroad by way of Baldwin. Over 900,000 feet of lumber burned in the yards.

The first annual convention of the Trades and Workers' association closed at Battle Creek. A resolution was adopted recommending that the department of commerce and labor be requested to issue a monthly bulletin showing the wages paid workmen in different crafts in cities of over 20,000 population all over the United States and that these bulletins be posted in all postoffices of cities of over 5,000 for the benefit of employers and employees. The convention adjourned to meet next year in Battle Creek when sessions will be held in the association's new hall, plans of which were approved at the session just closed.

State Sues G. T. R. for More Taxes.

Attorney General Kuhn is starting a new attack on the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee company, a branch of the Grand Trunk system, which, entrenched behind its perpetual special charter, has been able to avoid paying the proportion of state taxes which other property in this state is obliged to pay.

He is starting a suit in the Kent county circuit court to have the capital stock of the company determined to be $7,000,000 rather than $2,517,140, the amount upon which the company pays a tax, and if successful the company's state tax will be increased from $25,141.40 to $70,000. For many years the state has been endeavoring to get that special charter set aside in order that the railroad might be reached for its share of the expense of state government.

The supreme court, however, held that the charter was perpetual, setting aside taxes running from $99,777.95 to $109,259.76 per annum, which the state board of assessors had assessed against the road. It is the only railroad in the state now enjoying the privilege of paying a special tax, and state officers have been seeking everywhere for means to bring the corporation to time and place it on the same taxing basis as other property.

Creamery Men Organize.

About 100 creamery managers assembled at Saginaw from all over the state and organized the Michigan Association of Creamery Owners and Managers, electing officers and deciding to meet every three months. The next meeting will be at Grand Rapids the first Thursday in December. Officers were elected as follows: President, H. L. Burroughs, Owosso; vice-president, Leonard Freeman, Fenton; secretary, treasurer, Martin Seidel, Saginaw.

Case of Oil Company Against State.

One of the cases which will be watched with considerable interest during the September term of the Michigan county circuit court will be that of the Germania Refining Company vs. Auditor General Fuller. The case was brought by the Germania company of Oil City, Pa., in an effort to avoid payment of taxes levied by the state board of assessors last year. There were five companies interested and they combined with the Germania to fight the state in the courts of Michigan.

Death Rate in State Increased.

There were 3,587 deaths reported to the secretary of state's department as having occurred in Michigan last month. This corresponds to the annual death rate of 15.9 per 1,000 population. There were 509 more deaths returned for August than for the previous month, the increase being attributed to the universally large number of deaths from typhoid fever.

As compared with the preceding month, an increase is noted in the number of deaths returned from pulmonary tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria, croup and cancer. The important causes of death were as follows: Pulmonary tuberculosis, 178; other forms of tuberculosis, 33; typhoid fever, 60; pneumonia, 74; enteritis, children under two years of age, 746; cancer, 196; violence, 216.

Accidental drowning was responsible for 33 deaths during the month and lightning caused one death.

There were 5,197 certificates of birth returned to the office for August, which is an increase of 203 over the preceding month.

Board to Make Express Rates.

One of the most important hearings which has been held since the state railroad commission was created commenced when representatives of the various express companies doing business in Michigan and delegates from shippers' associations and boards of trades appeared before that body to discuss the problem of express rates.

Chairman Glasgow of the commission conveyed a pretty broad hint to the representatives of the express companies that the commission proposes to establish a new tariff of rates, when he said to them at the opening of the hearing that it would be well for the companies to defer for 30 days any new tariff which they proposed to publish.

One of the principal grievances of the shippers is that there is a lack of uniformity in the rates charged by the companies for carrying goods between new competitive points, and another that the companies often refuse to transfer express to another line, thereby causing the shipper delay and additional expense.

Midland Taxes Doubled.

The assessment valuation of property in the city of Midland was raised by the state tax commission from $895,735 to $1,528,785, an increase of about 85 per cent. Secretary Lord of the commission has ascertained that $175,000 in mortgage credits in Hancock are not on the tax rolls, while no mortgage credits were assessed in Chassels township, Houghton county, and many thousands of dollars of this class of property are not on the tax rolls in Munising, Menominee and other places in that section. The commission is ordering supervising officers to list this property for taxation. Speaking of taxing conditions Secretary Lord says:

"Everywhere property is not more than half assessed. This is true of the lower peninsula as well as the mining regions of the upper country."

Michigan Corporations.

The following companies have filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state: East Saugatuck Telephone company, East Saugatuck, $2,000; Biedermaier & Smith company, Detroit, $10,000, principal stockholders, Frederick Biedermaier, Charles Smith, B. Jacob, S. & S. Shoe company, Detroit, increase from $5,000 to $10,000, principal stockholders, H. P. Minnel, C. H. Schneider; Edmunds Jones Manufacturing company, Detroit, increase from $25,000 to $50,000, principal stockholders, D. M. Ireland, F. T. DuCharme, G. E. Edmunds; Maurice S. Gordon company, Battle Creek, $15,000; Jackson Chemical company, $20,000; Commercial Credit company, Detroit, increase from $25,000 to $35,000, principal stockholders, J. Dowling, E. P. Dowling, H. Covert.

Assessments Are Boosted.

Secretary George Lord of the state tax commission has returned from a trip through several counties in the northern part of the state, where the commission has been reviewing assessments. He reports that the assessed valuation of Midland county was boosted from $895,735 to $1,528,785. Lord says that this is but one example showing how property in the lower peninsula is under assessed. In Houghton county it was discovered that there was $173,000 in mortgage credits which had not been placed on the assessment rolls, and it is said that there are few tax rolls showing where any valuation has been placed on this class of property.

State Federation Opens Session.

Child labor, and increase of the white slave traffic in this country will be the main topics discussed at the annual convention of the Michigan Federation of Labor, which opens at Muskegon. Mr. Emery states that undoubtedly the federation will adopt some strong resolutions regarding child labor and that conditions of white slavery in Michigan will be shown to be the result of child labor.

Michigan Pensions.

The following Michigan pensions have been granted: Lovina M. Atkins, $12; Oren E. Corning, $12; Emily M. Estelle, $12; Henry H. Hoyle, $15; Franklin Lewis, $12; Robert F. Lewis, $15; Ralph R. Baker, $6; Eugene F. Bates, $15; Thomas C. Clendenen, $20; Benjamin B. Davis, $15; George W. Edwards, $15; Anson T. Foote, $15; Samuel J. Lawrence, $12; Charles E. Perry, $15; Peter W. Reeves, $15; Shadrack Rouse, $14; Nelson G. Tupper, $15; Charles W. Vanalstine, $15; Nathaniel H. Winslow, $20.

ROOSEVELT IS CHOSEN CHAIRMAN

TUMULTUOUS SCENE TAKES PLACE IN SARATOGA CONVENTION WHEN COLONEL IS NOMINATED.

THE VOTE STOOD 144 FOR ROOSEVELT AND 80 FOR VICE-PRESIDENT SHERMAN.

Colonel Appears as "Champion of Honesty" and is Most Heartily Applauded.

Col. Roosevelt was nominated at Saratoga by Joseph Hicks of Nassau county for temporary chairman of the New York Republican state convention. The convention broke into wild cheers and continuous applause, delegates waved their hats and clapped their hands, while the band played a fanfare.

Previous to Mr. Roosevelt's nomination State Chairman Woodruff was hissed when he said he had no idea that "anyone had any ulterior motive when he sought to be temporary chairman."

In his opening speech Woodruff urged selection of Vice-President Sherman for temporary chairman following the precedent of two years ago when Secretary Root, a member of the administration, was chosen. He read correspondence to show that Col. Roosevelt has no personal objection to Sherman, but simply wished an opportunity to voice progressive policies.

Col. Roosevelt led the delegates in cheering President Taft.

Abraham Gruber, the delegate selected to voice the views of the bosses, made a savage onslaught on Col. Roosevelt, whom he called "the American Jack Cade," and a promiscuous "shooter" at the country's institutions. "Brains, not lungs, should run the United States," said the speaker. During Gruber's speech Col. Roosevelt smiled broadly and when hisses and catcalls drowned the speaker's voice the colonel appealed to the angry audience to give his assailant a full hearing.

When the convention opened Roosevelt's agitation for the purification of the party was outdone by Chairman Woodruff, who took the lead as the purifier of the convention, ordering a score of "ringers" out of the seats assigned to the delegates. This required the united efforts of the police, delegates and committeemen.

Mayor Gaynor Refuses.

Mayor Gaynor of New York wrote to John A. Dix, chairman of the Democratic state committee, that he is not a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. The letter repeats what the mayor has already told his friends. To those who have had a chance to talk with him concerning his attitude toward the understood wish of the large majority of the Democratic leaders of the state to present his name to the convention, he has persistently said:

"I am not a candidate for the nomination, and personally I do not want it, but if it should come to me I will consider it."

Dr. Crippen Held for Trial.

The coroner's jury in London returned a verdict of wilful murder against Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, the former Detroit physician, in connection with the finding in the Crippen Hilldrop-Crescent residence last July of the mutilated body supposed to be that of Crippen's wife, who was known on the stage as Belle Elmore.

No evidence beyond that given at the Bow street police court against Crippen and Ethel Clara Leneve, his typist, was produced at the resumed inquiry of the coroner and the police made the announcement that they had nothing further to submit.

213,901 Answer G. A. R. Roll Call.

Comprehensively reviewing the work of the Grand Army of the Republic in the nation for the past year, during which he has acted as its head, Commander-in-Chief Samuel R. Van Sant addressed the delegates to the forty-fourth national encampment, at Atlantic City, as well with an eye to the future good that the great organization might accomplish as up to the notable achievements of its past.

While the roll of the Grand Army is steadily shortening, the commander-in-chief urged that every effort be made to keep the organization up to its fullest possible strength. He quoted the figures showing that the G. A. R. at the beginning of the present year still had 213,901 members in good standing, as against 220,600 at the beginning of 1909. The loss during the year was 6,781, of which 5,323 was by death. The commander urged that recruiting measures be taken among the large number of former Union soldiers who are not enrolled as Grand Army members.

The speaker noted a better general observance of Memorial day than formerly.

A new counterfeit $2 silver certificate of Italian manufacture has made its appearance at Paterson, N. J., and two foreigners are under arrest charged by secret service men with attempting to circulate the bogus bills. The counterfeit certificates are marked "A" and are numbered "D3579933."

Attorney E. S. B. Sutton, of Sault Ste. Marie, has received a letter from the commissioner of Indian affairs stating that the department will not suspend payment of treaty funds to the Chippewa and Ottawa Indians until an investigation has been made relative to alleged irregularities, as requested.

The 9-year-old son of Charles Lincoln, of Saginaw, was killed while bringing a horse from the pasture. He tied the halter to his waist and the horse ran about the field. The lad's body was found with both arms broken, his skull crushed and one leg broken.

2,854 Murders in U. S. in 1909.

In 1909 there were 2,854 homicides in that portion of the United States covered by death registry laws, and in the same area 8,402 deaths due to suicide.

The figures are supplied by the census bureau's annual report on mortality and cover about 55 per cent of the population.

Hints For Hostess

An Amusing Contest.

After a card game, while the hostess was busy preparing to serve her refreshments, the following interesting contest took place. Before leaving the room the hostess passed little six-leaved booklets, the front of which was a representation of a slate bought at the doll's department. Of course the prizes were awarded to the best scholars in "Reading", "Rithmetic", and "Rithmetic". Then the hostess announced recess and the refreshments were forthcoming.

Toasts for All Occasions.
To the many readers who have asked for "Toasts" I give the ones that follow, hoping they will find just the one the one they are looking for:

Here's to the man who has charity enough to forgive those who have done him a kindness, and with whom he is wrong in a dispute.

Cheer up! It's no use to be glum, boys. 'Tis written since fighting begun. That sometimes we fight and we conquer. And sometimes we fight and we run.

O vanity of vanities.
How wayward the decrees of Fate are.
How very weak the very wise,
How very small the very great are.

He is complete in feature and in mind
With all good grace a gentleman.

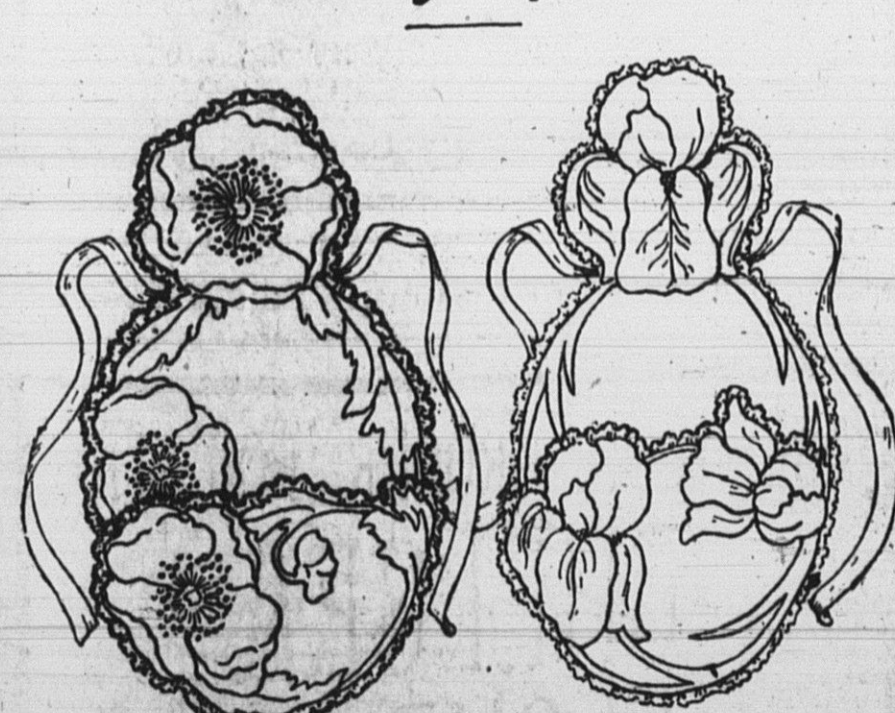

Here's to our wives and sweethearts—
May our sweethearts become our wives,
And our wives ever remain our sweethearts.

Here's to woman—she needs no eulogy—
she speaks for herself.

Here's hoping you may be hung, drawn and quartered. Hung about with garlands, drawn in triumphal chariots, and quartered in the arms of those who love you.

O woman! lovely woman; nature made thee.
To temper man; we had been brutes without you.

Dainty Apron

THERE could be no more dainty and attractive gift for the girl who loves pretty things than this little embroidered apron. It would be especially useful for "a shower gift" for the bride-to-be, who would surely count it one of the treasures of her lavender-scented linen chest. To fashion this effective trifle about one and one-half yards of finest lawn is required. This will make the apron and allow for the pocket and bib, which are both made in the shape of enormous blossoms. Six yards of Valenciennes lace will make the dainty frilling, which should be carefully whipped to the button-

KEEPING CHEESE HARD TASK

It Should Be Kept Under a Glass or China Top All the Year Around.

Welsh rarebits, cheese souffles and other cheese dishes are convenient for summer, if cheese can be kept in condition.

This is so difficult that dealers refuse to sell certain cheeses during hot weather, while others spoil so quickly as to be unsafe to buy.

Where one lives within convenient distance of a store buy only enough cheese for immediate use, any loss is thus up to the dealer.

If living in the country, it is necessary to keep cheese on hand; though large supplies should not be laid in.

Cream and soft cheese in jars or tins should be kept in the refrigerator until just before using. As the odor of the cheese quickly taints other foods it should be kept in a tightly covered glass or china bowl or jar. A large preserving jar with screw lid will hold several smaller jars of cheese.

Do not eat cheese in summer if there is the least green mould on it. Impress this upon maids, as some of them scrape it from the edges and serve the rest of the cheese in balls or squares.

Cheeses like Switzer, American or certain of the English and Swiss cheeses, should be kept under a glass or china top all the year round if brought in quantities. In warm weather it is well to wrap the cheese first in a clean piece of linen wrung out of vinegar.

Care of Brooms.

With the increased cost of brooms, the thrifty housewife wishes to preserve their usefulness as long as possible. Soak a new broom for several minutes in hot suds; this not only toughens but tightens the broom whips. Then hang it up to dry. A broom, when not in use, should always be hung up. Cut a groove around the handle and tie a cord around it, leaving a loop for hanging, or use one of the patent fasteners which screw to a door. These may be bought for a few cents. The soaking process should be repeated every fortnight.

Another housewife washes her brooms in cold soap water, rinses thoroughly in cold water, snaps off all moisture possible and pressing the corns into shape places where they will dry slowly. All matting will also last longer when occasionally wiped up with salt and water.

Little Date Pudding.

One pound stoned dates, one-half pound suet, one cup flour, one-half cup sugar, one scant teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon ginger, one cup soft bread crumbs, one cup milk, two eggs well beaten.

Put the suet and dates through the food chopper together. Sift in the flour, sugar, salt and spices, add the crumbs and mix all together thoroughly. Add the milk to the beaten eggs and mix again. Steam two hours in buttered individual molds. A pudding steamed in individual molds is easy to serve and attractive looking, although a suet pudding is more moist and really better when cooked in a larger mold, where there is plenty of room for expansion.

Chopped Piccalilli.

Chop one peck of green tomatoes fine. Sprinkle with one cup of table salt and let stand over night. Drain, add one quart of finely chopped green peppers, first removing the seeds; one quart of finely chopped onions and three cups of brown sugar. Put into a small cheesecloth bag one tablespoon of whole cloves and three tablespoons of broken cinnamon, one tablespoon of white allspice and four tablespoons of white mustard seed. Drop the spices into sufficient vinegar to cover the pickle and simmer several minutes, add the vegetables and cook slowly until tender. Remove the spice bag from the pickle before sealing in jars. Keep in a cool, dark place.

Sweet Apple Pickle.

Twelve pounds of sweet apples, pared and quartered, four pounds of sugar, one ounce of cinnamon bark, one-half ounce of cloves, one pint of vinegar. Put spices in a cloth, tie up, then boil vinegar, sugar and spices well; add apples and boil 20 minutes. Put apples in a jar, boil syrup until thick and pour over them. Simply delicious. Pears are also good prepared this way. Use winter sweet apples, also winter pears.

Feather Bisuits.

One pint of flour, two tablespoons of baking powder, a pinch of salt, one tablespoonful of lard, one tablespoonful of butter and a cup of sweet milk. Mix flour, salt and baking powder, rub in the lard and butter, and moisten with the milk. Cut about half-inch thick and bake in a quick oven twenty minutes. They never fall.

Cheese Pudding.

Butter liberally the bottom and sides of an earthenware pudding bowl and place alternate layers of thinly sliced stale bread and fresh cheese. Season with salt and red pepper and add at the last a cup of milk and two beaten eggs. Bake for 30 minutes in a hot oven.

Fried Tomatoes.

Slice tomatoes about one-quarter inch thick, roll in flour, sprinkle with salt and pepper and fry until brown on both sides.

THE SILVER PURSE

By Temple Bailey

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

It was fate that made Juliet's birthday and that of her prospective mother-in-law come in the same week. It is not expected that the course of true love will run smooth, and, heretofore, the love affair of Juliet had had no uneven places. She loved her betrothed; he loved her, and they both loved his mother.

Now and then a little jealousy of Carter's mother crossed Juliet's mind. The older woman was fascinating and beautiful in a way that Juliet had never been and never could be. Juliet was pretty and fresh and pink and white, while Carter's mother was stately and classic.

The two women talked of the son and lover who was in the far west, and planned for his homecoming.

"He will get here in our birthday week," the mother said, "and we will have two cakes; a white one for you and a gold cake for me. You shall have white candles and I'll have yellow ones, and we will have jonquils and lilies of the valley in the middle of the table."

Their disappointment came when Carter wrote that he could not get back in time for the celebration. He sent a box with his letter. In it was a silver purse and a set of Browning. The two cards told that the purse was for Mrs. Crowell, the books for Juliet.

Juliet eyed the silver purse wistfully. She had wanted one for years, and Carter knew it. She felt a little hurt that he should have sent her books. Of course on the flyleaf he had written "With love, from Carter."

Talked of the Son and Lover.

She took her books and went home rather soberly. That night she read them and finding certain of the exquisite love poems, was thrilled and enraptured. She wrote to Carter and told him how lovely it was of him to think of her and to send a message of his love in the words of his favorite poet.

The next day the two women went downtown together. Mrs. Crowell wore the silver purse. Juliet wore her shabby pocketbook, and away from the glamour of the love passages, again felt slightly aggrieved. Why should Carter add to his mother's beauty with dainty trifles, when that of his sweetheart needed enhancing? Moreover he had heard her speak of her love of pretty things. Yet he had sent her grave books that must stand on the shelf.

Mrs. Crowell fingered the silver handbag with delight. "It was dear of Carter to send me this," she said. "Did you like the books, Juliet?"

Juliet answered faintly. The purse at close range seemed so desirable and the books on the shelf were remote. She wanted something that she could show the girls, something that would glitter and swing from a silver chain and add the final touch to her costume. On the way home she still cherished her sense of grievance. To quiet her doubts she got out Carter's letter. It was written in his usual difficult scrawl, and she read it slowly. It breathed his love for her and she went to bed comforted.

But the next day her best girl friend came to see her. "What did Carter give you for your birthday?" Mary asked.

Juliet hesitated. "Books," she said at last. "Oh," Mary's voice held no enthusiasm. "I hope no one will give me books for my birthday. I think a man ought to pick out something personal. Did you see the purse he gave his mother?"

Juliet sighed. "Yes," she said. "It would have been more appropriate for you," Mary said. "I don't see what an old woman like his mother wants with a thing like that."

The next morning Mrs. Crowell telephoned to Juliet. "I have a long letter from Carter," she said, "and I can't read it, my eyes are so bad, and you know his scrawl, my dear."

"I'll come up," Juliet promised, "this afternoon and read it for you."

"Come to lunch," Mrs. Crowell invited, and Juliet agreed.

While Mrs. Crowell prepared the lunch Juliet looked over the letter. "It's a little hard to make out," she called to the older lady in the other room. "I'll read it aloud when I have deciphered it."

As she read a flush came to her cheeks and a light to her eyes, for this was the letter:

"Mother Dear: I have just received a note from Juliet. In it she thanks me for my gift of Browning's poems. I also have a letter from you in which you thank me for a purse. Now, as a matter of fact, I sent the silver purse to Juliet, and the poems to you—I know how you love Browning. I am so sorry that you should have been disappointed because I intended you should have the books you have so long coveted. But Juliet seems so pleased that I hate to tell her of her mistake. Will you buy yourself the books? I want Juliet to have pretty things, yet knowing her, I feel that if I explain she will feel it necessary to return the books to you and to take the silver purse which would mean so much less to her. Some day I can give her all the trifles to wear that she needs, and she has called the books 'precious.' So don't tell her anything about it. I'll write again soon and give you the news; this is simply to correct my blunder. I suppose the cards were mixed in some way."

Yours always,

Carter.

When she had finished Juliet drew a quick breath. He had wanted her to have the purse, he had remembered her love of pretty things. The exchange would be easy. Mrs. Crowell coveted the books.

At this moment the elder woman came in with the salad in a silver dish. "Did he say anything about the purse?" she asked. "It was so lovely of him to send it to me. Men are so apt to think that we older women care nothing for the dainty things of dress. I get books, and books, and books, and practical things. It's a pleasure now and then to have something different."

Juliet's breath came quickly. Surely Carter would want his mother saved from disappointment. It seemed to bring her closer to him to think that she might have a secret with him, something that they could hide from his mother, rather than something that he and his mother should hide from his sweetheart.

"Read the letter," the older woman said as they sat down to the table, and Juliet read it, making up as she went along sentences which told that he was glad she liked the purse, glad that Juliet liked the books and said nothing of his mistake. After that they chatted of the coming marriage and Juliet's plans for it.

When Juliet went home she wrote to her lover and told him all about it—how she loved the books and how his mother had delighted in the silver purse.

"I want her to keep it," she said, "and you must not send me another to make up to me, for I like to feel that it is my gift to your mother as well as yours. Some day I'll give her a set of Browning and then she will have both things, and never know the difference."

The answer that came from him repaid her for her sacrifice. "I am going to take you at your word," he said, "and let you do without the purse."

But on their wedding day, besides the diamond pendant that he gave her, there was another gift. Wrapped in tissue paper and tied with white ribbon, it made a rather bulky package. Within she found a golden bag, all glittering mesh and sparkling stones. It was a thing beautiful enough for a duchess, a thing a prince might have presented to the lady he loved, and that was what it meant to Juliet; the gift of the lover who had given her the greatest gift of all—his heart's best and purest adoration.

PROOF OF SWIFT SERVICE

Anecdote That Should Confound Those Who Rail at Delay in Restaurants.

"Gentlemen," said a Broadway diner to his impatient companions, "keep your tempers. The marvel is not that the service is so slow, but that it is so swift. Shall I prove it?"

They jovially encouraged him. "Last week," he continued, "I went one noon for a hurried bite at a popular lunch place. I took my seat at a crowded table just as the waiter addressed a neighbor whose mouth was full of sinkers."

"Dessert?"

"Sure. Watermelon."

"It was brought—a large tempting section of melon. The man uttered an ejaculation and turned to me."

"This is the first melon I have eaten in New York," he said. "Last thing I did in Georgia yesterday morning I cut my initials on the rind of a watermelon. There they are."

"He pointed to the green surface, on which the letters shined in white. It was the very melon. It had reached the consignee with a shipment, had been delivered to the kitchen of the restaurant and had been carved, all in time for the farmer's first luncheon away from home."

Money Saved to Apple Growers. Evaporating low grade apples for export has lately had a good start in the apple-producing districts of Tasmania, and promises much increase. During the last year on account of the establishment of several good apple evaporating plants, utilizing up-to-date American machinery, about $500,000 was saved to apple growers on apples which would otherwise have nearly all been thrown away as unsalable waste on account of low grade.

The KITCHEN CABINET

INSURE good digestion, exercise daily in the open air, eat an abundance of fruit and drink pure water freely between meals. Plain, simple foods, as direct as possible from fields, orchards and woods, should always be our aim.

Planning for a Small Family.

When catering for a small family, care, judgment and economy must be used or one kind of food must be served several times in order to avoid waste.

When purchasing utensils and dishes for cooking, choose the size most suitable to the size of the family, as such an investment has a great advantage even in serving leftovers.

In buying a roast, too small a one dries out in cooking and is not an economical purchase. The beef left over may be served in slices heated in a Mexican sauce curry, tomato, or horseradish sauce. The little bits too small to serve may be chopped and seasoned, then used as sandwich filling, or one can always have hash.

Bits of leftover vegetable like carrot, beans or corn, may be added to a salad greatly to its advantage.

Eggs contain no waste and add to the nutriment of a dish. When making an omelet if a few peas are at hand fold them in at the last or serve in a sauce poured around an omelet.

Very tempting desserts may be made from stale cake cut in rounds or fancy shapes, a preserved pear or peach, with a little of the syrup and whipped cream served on each piece.

For a small family one can make so many attractive little dishes that would be entirely out of the question with a larger family.

When using gas a small portable oven to be used over a burner is a great saving.

A delicious dessert which is both pleasing to the eye and the palate is prepared by beating together a half cup of any favorite jelly and the white of one egg. It will take a little time to beat until it stands alone, but the result will repay the effort. Serve in sherbet cups with sweetened whipped cream on top. A change from the usual French toast may be made by cutting the bread in rounds or in some fancy shape, dip in egg and milk and fry in butter as usual. Often a dish refused many times will be welcomed if the appearance is changed. It is necessary in all successful cooking to appeal first to the eye.

RESOLVED

RESOLVED to live with all my might while I do live. Resolved, never to lose one moment of time, but improve it in the most profitable way I possibly can. Resolved, never to do anything which I should despise or think meanly of in another. Resolved, never to do anything out of revenge. Resolved, never to do anything which I should be afraid to do if it were the last hour of my life.

—Jonathan Edwards.

Leaks That Sink the Household Ship. Meat is the most costly and extravagant of all articles of food. Consequently every bit should be saved and worked over.

The cheaper cuts of meat make the best soups and stews. Where a sauce is used to hide the appearance there is no occasion to spend money on choice cuts.

Soup meat, tasteless as it is, may be nicely seasoned and made into pressed meat, hash or other dishes quite as good.

Meat left from beef tea should be saved for highly seasoned dishes. The water has drawn out the flavoring and the stimulating principles of the beef, but the fiber, which contains the greater part of the nourishment, is left undissolved.

After using all the ham that will slice nicely from the bone, chop the remainder for fried ham and put the bone in the soup pot.

An ordinary meat grader will save money and hours of time, as it chops all kinds of food easily.

Fat from meats and soup stock should be carefully saved and clarified, and if carefully done no fat need be bought for general frying.

Tea leaves should be pressed tightly after they have been used and put away to use in sweeping the carpet. They both brighten the carpet and keep the dust from flying over the walls and furniture.

A little water in the wooden tubs will prevent them from falling to pieces.

Twine taken from bundles, if tied together and wound in a ball will always be ready when a string is wanted.

Fold pieces of manilla paper and put in the wall pocket on the pantry door. Use them for sifting flour and save time and dishes. A piece of paper makes a good moulding board when thickly dusted with flour.

Old tablecloths make fine tray cloths or strips for the table to save the cloth. They are nice for bread and cake cloths, to cover them after baking.

Put the scrubbing brush, vegetable brush and hairbrush bristle side down to dry, otherwise the water soaks into the brush and soon destroys it.

USED HYPODERMICS.

Only Relief From Terrible Suffering.

Thomas E. Vest, 1505 S. 12th St., Terre Haute, Ind., says: "I had no control over the urine and the pain when voiding it was so great I often screamed."

"I grew worse and lay in bed for weeks, the only relief being from hypodermics. I was treated by three physicians without help and the last one said an operation was necessary. At this time I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and passed a gravel stone as large as a pea. The next day I passed two more and from then on improved rapidly until cured."

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers, 60 cents a box.

NO HEALTHY SKIN LEFT

"My little son, a boy of five, broke out with an itching rash. Three doctors prescribed for him, but he kept getting worse until we could not dress him any more. They finally advised me to try a certain medical college, but its treatment did no good. At the time I was induced to try Cuticura he was so bad that I had to cut his hair off and put the Cuticura Ointment on him on bandages, as it was impossible to touch him with the bare hand. There was not one square inch of skin on his whole body that was not affected. He was one mass of sores. The bandages used to stick to his skin and in removing them it used to take the skin off with them, and the screams from the poor child were heartbreaking. I began to think that he would never get well, but after the second application of Cuticura Ointment I began to see signs of improvement, and with the third and fourth applications the sores commenced to dry up. His skin peeled off twenty times, but it finally yielded to the treatment. Now I can say that he is entirely cured," and a stronger and healthier boy you never saw than he is to-day, twelve years or more since the cure was effected. Robert Wattam, 1148 Forty-eighth St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 9, 1909."

Puzzled by Wireless.

"Mistah Jenkins," asked an old negro of Atlanta of his employer, "would 'y' be so good, sah, as to explain to me 'bout this wireless telegraph business I hears 'em a-talking 'bout'?"

"Why, certainly, Henry," responded the employer, "though I can do so only in a general way, as I myself know little of the subject. The thing consists in sending messages through the air instead of over wires."

"Yassah," said Henry. "I knows 'bout dat; but, sah, what beats me is how dey fasten the air to the poles!"

In a Hurry.

It was Anna's first visit at the seaside. She was only a little girl, and very enthusiastic over the long-looked-for opportunity to go into the water.

They came too late the previous day for a dip in the surf, so Anna was up early, and as she put on her bathing suit while the rest were at breakfast some one questioned her as to her haste.

"Well, you see," replied the thoughtful child, "I want to hurry and go in before so many people get in and get the water cold."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a running sound or a roaring in the ears, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, also come out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

Prison Binder Twine.

The binder twine season at the prison has closed and efforts will be directed from now on in preparing the output for next year. It has been a banner season and more orders have been received for twine than it was possible to fill. Approximately 3,000,000 pounds of twine have been manufactured at the prison during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910. During 1909 2,225,000 pounds were manufactured, showing this year's increase to be about 75,000 pounds. At the next meeting of the prison board it is likely that legislation will be recommended to increase the efficiency of the plant so that next year's orders may be taken care of. The office force is busy at present in getting out 1,500 statements to farmers to whom twine has been sold. The statements call for $125,000 and payment is due October 15.

Ethel Barrymore at New Whitney.

In the play which has given her the biggest opportunity and the most brilliant triumph of her career thus far, Ethel Barrymore will be presented by Charles Frohman at the New Whitney theatre, Ann Arbor on Monday evening, October 3. "Mid-Channel" is an emotional drama in four acts, and is the first serious work of Sir Arthur W. Pinero's produced in America since "His House in Order." Miss Barrymore and "Mid-Channel" had a remarkably successful run of four months at the Empire Theatre, New York, where her acting of the tense, emotional role of Zoe Blundell was acclaimed as a revelation of her dramatic powers. Miss Barrymore brings with her the same company of fine actors that supported her in New York, including Charles Dalton, H. Reeves-Smith, Eric Matrimon, Nina Seveing, Louise Rutter, Phoebe Coyne, Marianne Thurber and others.

The play takes its name from a little allegory told by one of the characters, a kindly old bachelor who tries to make peace between warring husband and wife. He says that midway between Folkstone and Boulogne in the English Channel there is a reef over which the sea, however smooth elsewhere, is always troubled. At that spot, however agreeable you may be before or after, you are uncomfortable and grumpy. So, Peter Mottram explains, there is a "mid-channel phase" in every marriage.

The people of the play are typical Pinero types, strongly drawn and finely chiseled and they move through the drama, as if driven by the whip of an inexorable fate, to an unexpected and astounding ending.

As they were going through the short, steep hills just south of Waterloo, either the machine swerved or ran into a rut, and the auto turned over with them. They crawled out and were glad to find that none of the party had sustained any very serious injuries. John Staley had one arm considerably bruised, but it was nothing serious. The machine caught fire, but was soon extinguished. One wheel was smashed and the steering gear broken. The four passengers took the cars at the nearest railroad station and proceeded to Detroit.

"A Fool There Was."

Robert Hillard, in "A Fool There Was," has found the most emphatic success of a career, which has included everything from a farce to melodrama, and from society drama to the one act playlet of vaudeville. The story reverses the familiar triangle of two men and a woman, and gathers force from the struggle of two women for a man. The latter is a polished man of the world, big financially, socially and diplomatically. He is ordered to Europe upon a government mission, and is first revealed in his charming home at Larchmont, with his wife, child, sister-in-law and bosom friend. The action shifts to the deck of a big ocean steamship about to sail, here he meets the Vampire woman, a seductive creature, all physical allurements, for whom a distracted lad has killed himself five minutes before. Instantly he falls under her spell. His stay abroad is prolonged. His mission goes to smash, his friends abandon him, and to dull self-reproach he becomes a drunkard. The climax comes in the library of his town house where he has lived in sordid solitude. And then follows the supreme struggle between the opposing forces of good and evil, the result of which can not be foretold until almost the instant the curtain falls. At the New Whitney theatre, Ann Arbor, Friday, October 7th.

WONDERS of the SOUTHWEST

By N. H. DARTON, U.S. Geological Survey

THE southwestern section of the United States is a province that presents many special characteristics of physiography, climate, resources and capabilities which are not as well known as they deserve to be. The term "southwest" is usually applied to New Mexico, Arizona and southern California, an area of about the size of New England, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the Virginia. Much public attention has of late been attracted to Arizona and New Mexico in connection with their admission to statehood, and one gratifying result of this has been a greatly increased interest in their resources and conditions.

Excluding the populous and thrifty coast region of southern California, the southwest is the most thinly populated and least developed portion of the country south of Alaska. As this condition is due mainly to a climate so arid that but little can be raised without irrigation, its future development is to be measured by the utilization of the vast volume of flood waters now going to waste. This water can be applied to millions of acres of level lands with rich soil, which with the unending sunshine of its mild climate will respond with large and profitable crops.

Unfortunately, there is not enough water for all the land, but there is sufficient, if all were utilized, to support a population many times as large as the present one. The government is now spending $12,000,000 in reclamation projects in Arizona and New Mexico which supply water for nearly one-half million acres of fertile lands. This will give great impetus to development, and in time, when settlers take up the reclaimed land, there will be a large increase in its agricultural productions.

In the great coast region of southern California, with a population of nearly 6,000,000, the principal product is the orange and other fruits, with a value of about $20,000,000 a year, while in the inland districts the mining industry is the largest source of revenue. Portions of the southwest are richly productive of various minerals, notably those of copper, and recently southern California has become a heavy producer of petroleum. The value of the copper, oil and other products of the ground aggregates about $75,000,000 a year.

It is probable that further exploration will disclose large additional supplies of ores of various kinds, especially those of low grade, which will prove profitable under improved methods of reduction.

The southwest presents a variety of topographic features, and many of its economic resources are closely related to them. There is great range in altitude, with corresponding variation in climatic conditions. One of the most salient features is the wide, high plateau of northern Arizona, which reaches an altitude of 8,000 feet. It is surrounded by various volcanic peaks, notably San Francisco peak, which is 12,611 feet above sea level.

To the east this plateau merges into an irregular series of high plateaus, constituting the western half of New Mexico.

To the west and south it drops by huge steps into the great region of desert valleys or basins of Nevada, western Arizona, and southeastern California. These deserts are wide, long plains, lying between mountain ridges of varying lengths and heights, ridges which are all very rocky and mostly treeless and trend north and south.

Diagonally across southern California there extends the long curving ridge of the Sierra Madre and San Bernardino mountains, between which and the ocean lies the large oval area known as the valley of southern California. This valley is the great citrus fruit district, and Los Angeles.

There are two great rivers in the southwest, the Colorado and the Rio Grande. The Colorado river has been compared to the Nile and the similarity is notable. Both are streams of the first rank, rising in high mountains, and finally crossing a broad region of semi-tropical, nearly rainless deserts. Both empty into seas in nearly the same latitude, and their lower courses are through wide deltas of fertile soil. The annual overflows add new sediments fertile with plant food and at a time favorable for the crops.

The agricultural capabilities are closely similar, but while much of the lower Nile valley is utilized the Colorado valley is just beginning to be settled. The watershed area of the Colorado, with its two head branches, the Green and the Grand, is over 200,000 square miles, its course 2,000 miles in length, and its annual discharge is 11,000,000 acre-feet, or enough to cover that number of acres one foot deep.

The sediment which it carries each year into the gulf is estimated to be sufficient to cover 63 square miles one foot deep. For 200 miles of its course across the high plateau of northeastern Arizona it cuts the wonderful Grand canyon, which in places is nearly a mile deep. South of the canyon it flows mostly in broad valleys, but cuts through several des-about 4,000 feet wide and 600 deep, with an irregular encircling rim of loose rock fragments from 120 to 160 feet high.

The petrified forests attract many visitors, especially the most accessible one south of Adamana, a station on the Santa Fe railroad a few miles east of Holbrook. There is a large quantity of the material in sight here, some of it in large logs. One of these logs spans a small draw as a natural bridge.

Arizona possesses a very picturesque natural bridge of limestone spanning Pine creek, in Gila county, permanent and mostly very ancient, and their religious ceremonies are extremely elaborate and picturesque. They live in villages of several hundred inhabitants, in substantial stone or adobe houses, some of which are in groups, rising in tiers to a height of four or five stories, with streets and central plaza. They are peaceful and industrious, raising crops largely by irrigation. They have herds of cattle and sheep, and spinning, weaving and making their garments is one of their important occupations.

Work appears evenly divided between men and women in the pueblos. The men do the farming, tend to the cattle and sheep, do the hunting, build the houses, and have many smaller trades and occupations. The women do the housework, grind the corn, make pottery, blankets and clothes.

The visitor is generally impressed by the pueblo people and pleased with the agreeable home life and simple hospitality which they readily offer.

The interesting features of the southwest, notably the beauty of the coast region and the special climatic advantages, draw a large number of tourists and health-seekers, especially in winter, and every year sees a substantial increase in the influx of visitors.

Because of its dry air and mild climate the southwest has become famous as a health resort, especially for those having tuberculosis of the respiratory organs. The percentage of cures made in New Mexico, Arizona and California, great as it is, would be much greater if a larger proportion of those who are seeking health came in time. It is necessary to come before the vitality is too greatly diminished and then to live under favorable conditions, the most essential of which is to be out of doors as much as possible.

Many health-seekers spend most of their money in railroad fare to reach the desired resorts. Physicians do a great wrong to patients in sending them so far from home, friends and care without means to provide suitable quarters, nourishment and attention to sustain them while making their fight against death.

The climate of the southwest presents considerable variety, but in all the lower lands the winters are delightfully mild, and everywhere blue sky is in evidence for more than 300 days in the year. The summers are warm, in the southern desert area they are decidedly hot for several months, but the dry air even then is much more endurable than the sultry summer weather of the eastern and central states. Sunstroke is unknown, and laborers continue their work without distress.

The valley of southern California is protected from the cold northern winds of winter by high mountain ranges, while to the south it is open to the Pacific. Owing to the peculiar configuration of the coast the cold California current from the north is deflected west near Point Conception, and hence the southern California shores have waters warmer by about ten degrees than those to the north.

This beneficent climate is responsible for the giant industry of fruit growing which has made California famous over the globe. California furnishes the major part of the very large amount of oranges and other citrus fruits consumed in the United States, and this business has been the potent cause in the development of southern California.

The orange and other citrus fruits of southern California have an output of about 30,000 carloads a year, with a net value of more than $15,000,000.

East of the mountains in southern California is an extensive desert country, much of it without water, but large areas can be reached by ditches from the Colorado river. The most notable district of the sort is in the Salton desert, near the Mexican boundary. A few years ago this was a lonely and forbidding region, but now, by aid of irrigation from the Colorado river, it has several thriving settlements, with 100,000 people and 200,000 acres of cultivated land. That portion of it known as Imperial valley has the greatest development, and with rich soil and semi-tropical climate phenomenal results have been obtained when water is applied.

One of the best known products of this region is the cantaloupe, of which the annual shipments are over 1,800 cars, bringing nearly a million dollars. This valley contains over 400,000 acres of land, and just across the Mexican line are 200,000 more.

The great oil fields of California are in the southern part of the state, and with rapidly increasing production they promise to be the largest producers in the country.

SPECIMEN OF REAL GENIUS

California Farmer Adopts Unique Method of Fattening His Hogs—Birds Supply Food.

"Every time I go to southern California," said Richard C. Worthington, "I see something that makes me open my eyes farther, and take off my hat to the progressiveness of those fellows out there."

"But on this last trip," he continued, "I witnessed a piece of enterprise which exceeds anything which I ever saw or heard of, or ever expected to see or hear of."

"I was traveling in the country between San Francisco and Los Angeles one day, when I was impressed by the size of some hogs in a pigpen near the road. I was especially impressed because on my previous trips the razor-back quality of the pork had caused me to comment. This time, however, the hogs were as big as barrels."

"How did you do it?" I asked the farmer, who was bending over the bars of the pig pen picking his teeth with a piece of straw.

"Well, ye see it's this here way, stranger," replied the agriculturist. "Them haws just clean run the fat all out of 'emself diggin' for acorns. They sort of had competition with them danged woodpeckers who'd gobble up the acorns and store 'em away in a hole in a fence post or rail, and there wouldn't be anything left for the haws."

"I got to thinkin' the matter over, and I calculated that it was up to me to sting them woodpeckers, so I rigged up sort of a birdhouse and filled the front of it all full with holes about the size of the holes them birds put their acorns in the fence. Then I built me a long tube leadin' down from them holes to the feedin' trough, and bided my time till them birds got wise to the contrivance."

"It didn't take 'em long. Before a little while they was pillin' acorns into them 'er holes as if they was getting ten cents an hour, and the acorns was a-runnin' right down the pipe to the pigs' mouth."

"That's the way I got them pigs nice and fat, mister. All they have to do now is to lay around by the trough and the birds feeds 'em. Purty good idea, ain't it?"

A Pertinent Commentary.

F. H. Elliott, the secretary of the American Automobile association, said at an automobile banquet in New York:

"I like to see women run their own cars. I like to see women do all sorts of things, provided they have had the proper training and are proficient. There is no sight more agreeable than that of a healthy American girl, riding her horse, running her motor, driving her coach, with a skill and grace no man need be ashamed of."

"But smoking and that sort of thing—oh, no, that doesn't become the American girl."

"An American girl drew up her touring car at a country inn. She got out with her friends. She took off her dust coat and goggles. She opened a gold cigarette case and put a cigarette between her rosy lips."

"The old country waiter may have done it unconsciously, but, nevertheless, he offered a singularly good commentary on girls' smoking when he brought a big, foul-smelling contrivance to the pretty automobilist, set it down at her feet, and said: "Spittoon, Miss?"

A Manche Harvest Custom.

An interesting ancient custom is observed in Manche at the harvest time. When the work is on the point of completion a sheaf of honor is made and decorated with flowers, which the farmer himself carries in procession, surrounded by the harvesters. Two of the party, under the pretext of sweeping the way, raise a cloud of dust. If in the progress the procession meets a stranger the girls offer him some corn from a pewter plate. If he accepts and makes them a small monetary present, the girls kiss him.

But the principal ceremony is reserved for the repast, in which curds occupy a prominent place. When this part of the menu is reached the girls each choose one of the young harvestmen and endeavor to force him to take a spoonful. If the attempt is a success it is taken as an offer of marriage on the man's part.

Different Now, of Course.

"Civil service reform has given us a splendid army of civil servants. It wasn't always so." The speaker, Mayor Whitlock of Toledo, smiled. "When I was writing my first short stories," he resumed, "we had civil servants of a different stamp. An elderly resident of my native Urbana, back in those days, sought out his congressman."

"Congressman," he said, "I supported you at the polls, and now I expect you to get my boy a good civil service job."

"All right, friend," the congressman answered. "What can your boy do?"

"Do?" snorted the other. "What can he do? By crissin' man, if he could do anything, do you think I'd be bothering you?"

Feminine.

"What is Mrs. Green crying for?" "Mrs. Watson snubbed her in the street car."

"But Mrs. Green doesn't speak to Mrs. Watson, anyhow."

"I know, but she's crying because she didn't see Mrs. Watson in time to snub her first."

AN EXCUSE FOR EACH.

Mother (severely)—How many strawberries have you eaten out of this basket, Ethel?

Ethel—Only two. One to see how it tasted, and the other to take the taste out of my mouth.

Which Do You Like Worst?—This is the greatest known way for undecided people to make up their minds.

None but a strong minded woman can ever decide which of two or three hats she likes "the best," particularly if they are all comely.

Popular belles have been known to have similar troubles with their sweethearts. Which do I like best? often a momentous question.

Why not try the other way? Decide which, of men, or hats, or attractive "dates" you like the most, and then proceed to eliminate.

From there you can factor out the grade of desirability, until you actually find yourself at a decision, because it, whatever it is, is the only one left.

The process is delightfully simple.

Even the Children.—Ex-Governor Pennypacker, commenting in his witty way the American divorcee, told at a Philadelphia luncheon an appropriate story.

"Even our children," he said, "becoming infected. A Kensington schoolteacher, examining a little girl in grammar, said: "What is the future of love?" "A divorce," the child answered promptly."

THE MOST UNHAPPY EMPRESS IN THE WORLD

Palace Drawingroom of the Empress

EMPEROR ALEXANDRA of Russia, the czar's wife, is the unhappiest woman under the sun. Her fate may well excite the deep sympathy of the civilized world, for although she is a victim of that system of government that still prevails in her husband's dominion, she is an innocent sufferer for the terrible wrongs perpetrated by others.

The Empress Alexandra is said to be a high-souled, liberal-minded, generous and loving woman. She is in deep sympathy with the progressive movement in Russia and she abhors the crimes that have been committed during her husband's reign and still are being perpetrated in Russia day by day. Yet, far from being able to terminate them, she herself has been stricken down and her happiness destroyed by that very system which she would gladly abolish in the interest of others.

After the long summer cruise in the Baltic sea, undertaken primarily in the hope of restoring her health, the zarina was so weak that she could not walk ashore, but had to be carried in an armchair. Now she rarely ventures outside the palace, but generally is wheeled about the private grounds in a bath chair. She is only thirty-six years old, but she is a complete wreck. Much of her time is spent in fits of depression, during which she lies motionless in apathetic despair.

Misery in a Royal House.

Her life at the Russian court, which has lasted for a period of 14 years, has been one long series of ruthless disillusionments. Her childhood and girlhood were spent in the happiest possible circumstances. Her mother was Princess Alice, the favorite daughter of the venerable Queen Victoria of England, and her father was the royal crown duke of the little state of Hesse. Her earlier years were divided between the delightful parental home in the vicinity of Darmstadt in the genial atmosphere of southern Germany and in the refreshing air of English liberty at Windsor. She was brought up with perfect simplicity, and as a child she was encouraged to forget the fact that her grandmother was a queen and her father a ruling sovereign. She played games and she rode and enjoyed with hearty good spirits all the pleasures in which a healthy girl can participate. Up to the age of twenty-two her happiness was unclouded.

The Russian government in its search for a suitable bride for Nicholas, the heir to the throne, decided that Princess Alix of Hesse was the most eligible young lady to be found among the royal families of Europe. Formal proposals, accordingly were made to the court of Hesse and no end of pressure was brought to bear on the reluctant Princess Alix to accept the future czar as her husband. Nicholas came to visit her family at Darmstadt, and created a most unfavorable impression on his future bride. She found him dull and uninteresting and rather unsympathetic. He did not appeal to her interest in any way, and it seemed to her that life with this quaint little man as her husband offered no charms at all.

But finally her opposition was overcome. Reluctantly and against her own will she became the wife of Nicholas, and no sooner were they wedded than the death of Alexander III. elevated her husband to the throne of all the Russias.

Whose Baby?

It seemed to the man that in all the three years he had known his wife she had never looked quite so young and childlike as she did this morning. Her delicate face, nearly as white as the pillow on which it lay, appeared almost infantile in its sweet purity of outline. The soft hair, parted and falling over her shoulders in two golden braids, looked far from matronly and the man had fairly to pinch himself in order to realize that the little pink-faced bundle in the curve of the slender, girlish arm was not a dream.

"Margaret, darling," he said, as he kissed her, "you are so pale. Are you dreadfully tired? Have too many people been in to see you this morning?"

"No. I'm not really tired, Frank, but—" The voice faltered and broke with a tremulous little sob.

"Why, Margaret, what is wrong? Don't you like the nurse? Is—"

"The nurse is all kindness. I'm just silly, that's all."

"But what are you silly about?"

"I'm not going to tell you, dear. You would think me too foolish if I did. So don't ask me."

The man reached out his hand and took his wife's small, tapering fingers in a firm grasp. He felt inexplicably awkward and helpless. For a few moments there was silence, broken only by the amusingly audible breathing of the tiny sleeper. Then the wife withdrew her hand from her husband's and rather violently dabbed her eyes.

"Margaret, what is it that troubles you? You must tell me, dear."

"I'm such a goose. I can't help feeling badly."

"You're just nervous, then? Shall I go away and send nurse in? But she said I could stay a half-hour."

There was a note of disappointment in his voice.

"Of course you can stay, Frank. I won't be such a baby. Any one might think you had two babies." She smiled mistily and tried to stop her tears.

The husband took the filmy little wet handkerchief from her hand and then he tenderly dried her cheeks with his own more practical one.

"I should like to know what makes you unhappy. Maybe if I knew I could do something to stop it."

"No, nobody can stop it. That's the trouble. It seems to me that I can't stand it any longer."

The man half rose from his seat by the bed. "I think I'd better go," he said. "I'm afraid you're getting excited and feverish. Your face is flushing."

"No, I don't want you to go. Besides, if you move round the room now, you might wake Francis."

"Very well, dear. I want to stay here with you and Francis as long as I'm permitted. Even if the nurse won't let me hold him, that youngster is my boy."

"That's what everybody says. That's what makes me so unhappy."

"Makes you unhappy?"

"Yes; everybody who comes in here to see Francis says he's your baby."

"Well—"

"Well—now, this morning your Aunt Sarah came in and she exclaimed, 'Just think of our Frank having a son!'

Just yesterday your mother brought in the old doctor and he looked at Francis and chuckled. 'Well, well, so that lad Frank has a boy of his own!'

When Miss Geraldine Harvey was shown Francis she said, with a great deal of feeling, 'So this is really Francis's baby!'

And every friend and neighbor and relative who has been in here has mentioned ecstatically that Francis is your baby, while not one single person has said anything about his being my baby, and he just is mine!

"I just wish I were home at father's! Then maybe people would say, 'So this is Margaret's baby!'

"Indeed, they would," said the husband, laughing. "And I should be horribly jealous."

"Now, Frank, you know I didn't want to tell you all this—this nonsense. I knew you'd think me silly."

"No, you're not silly—not a bit. You're the dearest little girl-mother in the world. But, look! I think that Margaret's baby is waking up."

"Well—"

"Well—"

"Well—now, this morning your Aunt Sarah came in and she exclaimed, 'Just think of our Frank having a son!'

Just yesterday your mother brought in the old doctor and he looked at Francis and chuckled. 'Well, well, so that lad Frank has a boy of his own!'

When Miss Geraldine Harvey was shown Francis she said, with a great deal of feeling, 'So this is really Francis's baby!'

And every friend and neighbor and relative who has been in here has mentioned ecstatically that Francis is your baby, while not one single person has said anything about his being my baby, and he just is mine!

"I just wish I were home at father's! Then maybe people would say, 'So this is Margaret's baby!'

"Indeed, they would," said the husband, laughing. "And I should be horribly jealous."

"Now, Frank, you know I didn't want to tell you all this—this nonsense. I knew you'd think me silly."

"No, you're not silly—not a bit. You're the dearest little girl-mother in the world. But, look! I think that Margaret's baby is waking up."

"Well—"

FALL SET STRAWBERRIES ARE MOST EXCELLENT

Well Cared for Bed Waff Produce Better Berries and Fully as Many as Spring Sets—Extra Care Doubles Yield.

A Fall Runner Set in a Box.

This plan of setting strawberries is better than spring planting. Want of time and uncertainty of the season causes neglect in the work, while in the fall one has ample time. The vexation of caring for the runners and the weeds is avoided, writes J. H. Haynes in Farm and Home.

We do not intend this for the commercial planting of large areas, but for the farm home garden. A bed well cared for will produce better berries and fully as many as spring set beds of same size. With extra care they will double the yield of spring settings.

We select our ground and get it in the best possible condition for planting, also we care for the new plants intended for transplanting. As soon as favorable weather conditions in August or early September we begin the transplanting.

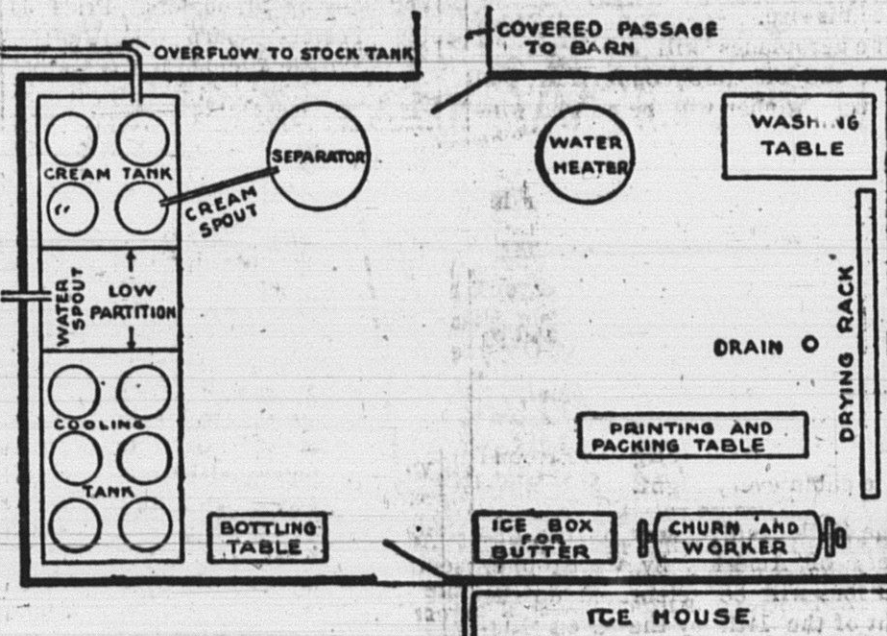

The plants should be set one foot apart in rows three feet apart. Runners, if any start, should be taken off if you want extra large crowns and berries. Sometimes we allow three or four runners to set, distributing them equally in the spaces so as to make a uniform bed. All weeds are kept out and the soil loose. By late fall the plants will show enormous fruiting crowns and attain a large size.

Such beds do not require much winter protection because of the rank foliage they carry. But one can give the bed a small coat of straw, but care must be taken to remove the straw in early spring.

The picture is of a pot-grown plant set last fall. Its fruiting, and foliage, when so small a space as four inches square of soil is considered, is remarkable. Bubach, Dunlap and Monitor are ideal varieties for fall planting. Bubach makes few runners; the fruit is very large and quality best. A Bubach plant treated as described will make a growth that a bushel basket will scarcely cover. Monitor is a wonderful producer of fine, medium-sized berries of fine quality. They thrive on almost any soil.

SMALL MILK-BUTTER DAIRY

The accompanying drawing shows our dairy room. It is in a separate building from the barn and is connected to the milking room by a short covered passage. This passage has swinging doors at each end and the milk can be carried from the cows to the dairy without being exposed to the outside air.

The cooling tank is connected by a spout to the pump and water is kept flowing through the tank whenever there is sufficient wind to run the windmill. It is made of cement and is composed of three compartments, writes E. H. Hicks, in Farm and Home. In the smaller end we keep the cream cans and in the larger end the milk cans.

The central section is divided off from the others by wooden partitions, in which there are four holes six inches in diameter. It is from this central portion that we take water for washing utensils and scrubbing the floors.

The floor is made of cement and very easily kept clean. It is not corrugated or creased, and is easily rinsed off after each milking.

At the right side of the tank is the separator. The cream spout is long enough to reach to the cream cans in the tank, and the cream is run immediately into these, where it is cooled. At the left end of the tank is the bottling table.

There are five large windows on the opposite end of the building from the tank, and in front of this is the rack for drying the utensils.

In one corner of this end of the building is a washing table and a small stove for heating wash water, and in the other corner is the churn and worker, the table on which is made the prints, and an ice box in which the butter is temporarily stored. The ice house is adjacent to the dairy building, which makes it very convenient in securing ice.

Spraying Trees.

Before beginning to spray, determine what kind of insects or diseases are destroying your plants. Leaf-eating insects are killed by paris green, while those which suck the sap are not affected by it. Spray thoroughly. Go over the tree carefully and touching a spot here and there will do no good. Great care must be taken in the preparation of the solution. Many trees and plants are killed for lack of proper attention in this respect. Spraying will pay if intelligently done.

located in various ways, either side by side or at opposite sides of the poultry house, just to suit the convenience of the land and the owner. This method of alternating, plowing and planting one yard while the other is being pastured not only serves the purpose for which it was originally planned, but the additional advantage of completely covering up all fifth and putting a fresh surface in use. The latter is about as important as the former. Some poultrymen claim the advantage of permanent pasture, which is so good so far, but such green stuff is not eaten and relished in such amounts as fresh growing green stuff, and we are sure the benefits derived pay for the extra cost.

Age of Grape Vine.

If a grape vine is properly looked after there seems to be no limit to the age at which they will bear good fruit, as evidenced by such famous old vines as the one at Hampton Court, England, which was planted in 1769 and still bears immense crops of good grapes annually.

ARRANGE FOR DOUBLE YARDS

Excellent Method of Alternating, Plowing and Planting One Run-While the Other Is Pastured.

Where one has the room and is arranging matters for permanent and substantial future use it is a splendid idea to arrange double yards. In other words, for each pen of chickens have two yards (not necessarily large), one to be kept for growing green stuff while the other is being pastured. In that way the poultryman can have pasture for his fowls almost the year through in the south, says a writer in Baltimore American. For this purpose there are a great many different things that can be grown, such as oats, wheat, rye, barley, turnips, vetch, white clover and so on, or rather I should say sow on. Keep in sowing. These extra yards can be

BREVITIES

GRASS LAKE—The October meeting of the Grass Lake Farmer's club will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Updike on Wednesday, October 12.

GRASS LAKE—The corn husker again claimed another victim in a bad accident Wednesday evening. While working around one of the machines George Haskell accidentally caught the index of the left hand in the gearing, mangle the digital so badly that amputation at the second joint was necessary.—News.

YPSILANTI—William H. Harris, while returning from church Sunday night, was attacked from the rear with a heavy weapon by a man he claims was Jeremiah Mahaley. His head was cut open so that a physician was needed. A warrant is out for Mahaley's arrest for assault and battery. Harris recently sued Mahaley for slander, but the defendant was acquitted.

JACKSON—It was noted that while the old veterans of the 20th and 28th Michigan Infantry in reunion here last week were old and feeble they did not fail to turn a square corner at the street crossings when on parade nor to turn to the right when meeting other pedestrians on the sidewalk, when they were not on parade; and that is more than can be said of a whole lot of our younger citizens.—Star.

ANN ARBOR—Basil Hutchinson, brother of Shelley B. Hutchinson, the trading stamp man of Ypsilanti, is in the county jail charged with picking the pocket of Norman Roe, also of Ypsilanti, as the two were returning from Detroit Sunday night. Roe sat in front of Hutchinson and he was informed by the other passengers that they had seen Hutchinson take something from his pocket. A search revealed his purse and $8 gone.

JACKSON—Jerry Britton, the Jackson prison convict, who smashed some sewing machines in a shop at the prison a couple of years ago and was arrested for the offense, will soon be given a sentence for that act. Britton was sent here from St. Joseph for five years for larceny from a dwelling. That term expires this coming November, and he will then begin doing a term of not less than one year and not more than five given him by Judge Parkinson for malicious destruction of property.

ANN ARBOR—Trouble in school caused Howard Turnbull, Roy McLaren and Peter Gardner, each in his fifteenth year, to leave home for the west on Wednesday. The lads, according to Turnbull's story, decided to go west and take up government land, although they had but 20 cents among them. They went to Chelsea Wednesday, shortly after noon, and there Turnbull left the others and returned home. They all slept in a barn near Chelsea Wednesday night, and Thursday morning while the others were sleeping Turnbull left them. The other boys returned to their homes Saturday, declaring that there is nothing rosy about this leaving home business.

MANCHESTER—William H. Lehr of Manchester was Thursday afternoon bound over to the circuit court on two charges of keeping a saloon within 400 feet of a church. He was released on $100 bail for each charge and the case will probably be placed on the docket for trial this fall. The hearing Thursday was conducted by Prosecutor Storm in Justice Watkins' court at Manchester, the complaining witnesses being Village Marshal Charles Youngmans. The two accusations brought against Lehr Thursday make three in all now pending against him, one having been brought several weeks ago. He seems determined to keep his present location and the village authorities seem equally anxious to turn him out.

CLINTON—Physicians grow more puzzled as time goes on over the peculiar case of little 7 years old Edward Nase of Palmyra, who some five weeks ago fell thirty feet from the top of a tree, bruising him about the head and breaking his arm and shoulder. Since the accident the lad has laid in an unconscious state and nourishment given by means of a small syringe or spoon. The only apparent sign of consciousness is his wide open eyes and constantly moving lips as though he would speak. Though no sound has issued from the throat, or muscle of the body moved since he was hurt, one peculiar feature of the case is that the broken shoulder and arm are almost entirely mended.

Ganderbone's Forecast for October

"Get ou-u-u-u-t of here—dabblame your skin!" Ah, that's the proper time to sigh—When the squirrel gets his goodies in. Against the winter by-and-by. When the bending reaches of the sky Are very soft and very near, And the farmer, with a watchful eye, Begins to hop around and cry, "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here!"

Get ou-u-u-u-t of here—you blanky-blank!" Ah, that's the season of them all—When winter hangs upon the flank Of the wild goose passing in the fall When the plaintive quail begins to call Across the golden fields and sere, And the farmer, bursting from the tall With leaps and bounds, begins to bawl, "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here!"

The melancholy days will come, and the pheasant will intone his drum upon the sad and drowsy wind in the solemn manner of his kind. The booming frog will sniff the breeze and fall to digging on his knees, and the buckwheat cake will take a crack at this fool thing of coming back.

It may be Jeffries and his strain are never quite themselves again, but the pickled pig's foot and the rest are always equal to the test. They never dissipate a bit, but spend the summer prime and fit, and let the frost succeed the dew, and they're there, you bet, as good as new.

The doughty oyster on his shell, the chitlin looking strong and well, and clear and resolute of eye, the hardy brands of winter pie. The apple-butter, juice and flake, the same that mother used to make, and the crackling of our youthful-ot of cock and captain of the pot.

The football season will revert, and the center rush will paw the dirt. He'll wake the natives with his roar, and bawl for victory and gore. The piled-up dying and the dead will mass against his butting head, and he'll spin the planet in his rage just like a squirrel in his cage.

Alas for those who calmly sit devising to denature it, and all the college renegades who think to temper it for maids! The students and the teachers howl, and the rooters and the bleachers yowl, and damn be he who does not rise and kill somebody twice his size.

The aeroplanes will cruise the air above the old-time county fair, and the lucky winner will be he who wins the best two falls in three. The farmer in his limousine will tool around upon the green to wear his other pair of pants.

The softer weather will defy The blandishments of June, And the month will give us by and by The officehunter's moon. A chop will cost four bits a pound, And beef a buck a bite, And the wolf will wear a groove around The cabin every night.

The 418th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus will be celebrated on the night of the 14th by the seven Guggenheim brothers.

Mr. Roosevelt will be stage manager again this month. The villain will be the Demon Rum. Mr. Bryan will be the father of the stolen child, and Mr. Cannon, who made the passport Hell last month, will change it to read Hell-p!

And then November will return With cold and chilly draft, And the wild goose going down the line With Winter biting aft. —Copyright 1910 by C. H. Rieth.

Honey Boy Minstrels.

The coming engagement of George Evans and His Honey Boy Minstrels at the New Whitney Theatre, Tuesday, October 4, promises an entertainment of all that is best in this popular style of amusement. Now in its third triumphant year this organization has lived up to all the promises which have been made for it and has firmly planted itself as America's one first class minstrel organization. The present tour has an added interest in that it presents George Evans as sole owner of the Honey Boys as well as the star. The personal qualities of George Evans as an entertainer are so well established that they need no comment. When Cohan and Harris first launched their minstrels they placed the Honey Boy at the head of their organization as the one best black face comedian in America, the feature of what was to be the biggest and most elaborate offering of minstrelsy the stage has ever seen. Through two years of real artistic triumph this comedian has qualified as capable in every sense. Toward the conclusion of last season a business arrangement was effected between Cohan and Harris and George Evans by which the latter assumed all the responsibilities of ownership and management. The season was so nearly concluded that no change in the official title of the organization was announced. For the present tour George Evans' Honey Boy Minstrels are the ones which take upon themselves the duty of maintaining the high standard established during the past two years.
