R. M. Brownson Says Chelsea Will Need Many New Houses

Mr. Robert M. Brownson, President and General Manager of the Grant & Wood Mfg. Co., was in town Tuesday and in an interview with the Standard said:

"We are now ready to commence operations in the ball department and if we had the houses for new men would put two hundred families into Chelsea at once."

"We want that many men immediately in our ball and automatic machinery departments both of which are now running."

We are now employing over one hundred and fifty men and have the machinery ready and orders on our books so that we could at once set at least 400 men at work.

"We have already brought and located here over twenty-five families since starting, as well as some single men, and our policy is as much as possible to employ married men, who will make permanent citizens."

"We also have orders and could use in our other factories located at Pontiac and elsewhere the products made by the automatic machinery and if we can find dwelling places for our help in Chelsea, we can manufacture these products here as well as elsewhere and will before long employ one thousand men here. There is no reason why the population of Chelsea should not double within the next two years."

"However, if we can't house our employees here we must manufacture our products with the automatics at some other point. It is up to the citizens of Chelsea as to how fast their town will grow and how prosperous it will become. If Chelsea can accommodate the people we will bring here its future prosperity is assured."

Chelsea Land Company Formed.

Last week articles of association were filed in Lansing of The Chelsea Land Company, the principal shareholders in which are prominent capitalists of Detroit who are interested in The Grant & Wood Manufacturing Company here.

The company is capitalized at $50,000, of which thirty-five thousand dollars is subscribed, and it is incorporated for the purpose of dealing in land in the village of Chelsea.

We understand the company has secured numerous pieces of land in the village, and are engaged in platting the same into village lots, which will be put on the market on terms extremely favorable to the buyer and will do all in its power to make things pleasant for intending home builders.

At a meeting of the directors of the company Robert M. Brownson was elected president. Mr. Brownson is president and general manager of The Grant & Wood Mfg. Co. here and was formerly secretary and treasurer of the E. M. F. Auto Co. of Detroit. Dr. James B. Book, a prominent Detroit capitalist, was elected vice-president, James B. Book, Jr., secretary and Archie W. Wilkinson of this place treasurer.

The offices of the company are located in The Chelsea Standard building temporarily, until permanent quarters are secured, and members of the company will spend their time and money in helping make a prosperous and growing Chelsea.

Sudden Death.

Henry Hatley was born in Freedom, November 7, 1836, and died at his home in Sylvan Center, Saturday evening, November 5, 1910.

Mr. Hatley was in Chelsea Saturday where he delivered two loads of hay, one in the forenoon and the other in the afternoon, reaching his home about 5 o'clock, was soon after stricken with apoplexy, his death occurring very suddenly. He has been a well known resident of Sylvan for the past thirty years. He was a member of St. Paul's church. December 11, 1879, he was united in marriage with Miss Kate Schlinger of Bridgewater. He is survived by his wife, four sons, Andrew, Fred, George and William, who reside at the family home.

The funeral was held from the Sylvan Center church at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating, and the choir of St. Paul's church rendered the music. Interment Maple Grove cemetery.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors for their kindness and the beautiful flowers during the death of our dear father and husband.

Celebrate Silver Jubilee.

Rev. W. P. Considine, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, was given charge of the parish November 15, 1885, and on Tuesday, November 15, 1910, the silver jubilee, or the twenty-fifth anniversary of his pastorate, will be celebrated in the church in an appropriate manner by the members of the congregation and his friends. Rev. Fr. Considine was born in Detroit February 19, 1837, and is a son of Capt. John Considine of that city. He received his education in Sandwich college, of Windsor, Ont., St. Vincent's Academy, of Pittsburgh, and at St. Mary's University of Baltimore, Ind., graduating from the latter institution in 1882. He was ordained to the priesthood on July 9, 1882, in his home parish of Detroit. The impressive services being held in Holy Trinity church. He was at once made assistant to the Very Rev. Dean Savage, at the Church of Our Lady of Help, where he remained until he was appointed pastor of the church at Northfield in 1894, and served there for 16 months.

On November 15, 1885, Rev. Fr. Considine was assigned to the charge of this parish. At that time Pinckney was attached to the parish and for ten years he supplied the pulpits in both places.

Since Rev. Considine took charge of the church here he has seen the society grow from a small one to one of the largest congregations in this county. During his pastorate the parish has improved their properties greatly, built a school at a cost of $20,000, residence for the Sisters who have charge of the school, and a new cemetery has been added to the church holdings. The church has been redecorated, varnished, a handsome new body Brussels carpet placed in the sanctuary, two beautiful adorning angels placed each side of the tabernacle, golden lamp, and full equipment of vestments and altar clothes of gold cloth, placed in the church in the past few weeks. QUIET ELECTION.

Not Much Enthusiasm Displayed By Voters Tuesday.

Tuesday was one of the quietest election days that Chelsea has seen for many years. The vote was considerably smaller than heretofore, notwithstanding the fact that the day was a pleasant one, and the voters were not doing very much talking about what they were going to do.

There were 620 votes cast, of which there were 320 with the republican head marked, 275 democratic, six prohibition, and six socialist. There were nineteen who did not express a desire to vote for any particular party.

John Kalmbach, of Chelsea, republican nominee for representative to state legislature, received a magnificent endorsement in his home town, receiving a majority of 250 over his opponent. In the district his majority was 498.

Beautiful Little St. Louis Woman Had Earned Through Many Years of Service.

What more beautiful little could a woman desire than that of "Friend of Many Children?" And that was what Margaret Madden, of St. Louis, was called. She died a few days ago, and sketches tell of her life spent in making children happy. She held a humble place in the community, conducting a little store where candy and cakes were sold, her patrons being almost entirely the little people of the neighborhood, and she never sold them anything that by any possibility could do them harm. The St. Louis Times, devotes an editorial to Margaret Madden, and pays this tribute: "The children knew her as a friend, and when she died an account of her death published in a St. Louis paper bore a headline which contained the words, 'Friend of many children.' That would not seem a great distinction; but the world is filled with people who have no distinction at all. And it would be very hard to think of any kind of fame so lovely and touching as that which fell to the lot of this St. Louis shopkeeper. For to be the friend of many children is a blessing vouchsafed to but few. Children's friendships are largely of the heart—not of the judgment, of intuition, not of expediency. It is their blessed privilege to love those who do not always attract attention from old or people. You may see only the little shop, the trembling smile, the narrow alley and the long procession of dull days. But it is the heritage of the child that a saint sees the heart rather than the bare surface indications. It can see the vision that was not realized—the power that was only latent. It senses the kindness that came with sacrifice. It knows more than the misleading what is and looks beyond into the great domain of What Might Have Been."

The Friends We Leave Behind.
I find the one great thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving. To reach the port of heaven we must sail sometimes with the wind and sometimes against it, but we must sail and not drift, nor lie at anchor. There is one very old thing in old friendships, to every mind which is really moving onward. It is this: That one cannot help using his early friends as the seaman uses the log, to mark his progress. Every now and then we throw an old schoolmate over the stern with a string of thoughts tied to him and look—am I afraid, with a kind of luxurious and sanctimonious compassion—to see the rate at which the string reels off, while he lies there bobbing up and down, poor fellow! and we are dashing along with the white foam and bright sparks at our bows—the ruffled bosom of prosperity and progress, with a spray of diamonds stuck in it!—From Holmes' "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

His Illustration.
Several times cynics had attempted to trap the auctioneer who was selling the retired druggist's stock of medicine into an admission that the medicine he boomed was fake goods, but always he was too quick witted for them. But when he got to the cough syrup warranted to relieve tickling in the throat and stop the worst cough in five minutes after taking they thought they had him sure. The cold that had hampered the auctioneer throughout the day developed into a racking cough which punctuated his praises of the peerless medicine.

Why don't you stop talking long enough to take some of your own cure, eh?" was called out.

"My dear sir," barked the auctioneer. "If I should do that I would have no cough handy to illustrate the kind of cough my medicine will cure."

Johnson's Opinion of Rousseau.
One evening, at the Nitre, Johnson said sarcastically to me, "It seems, sir, you have kept very good company abroad—Rousseau and Wilkes." I answered with a smile, "My dear sir, you don't call Rousseau bad company; do you really think him a bad man?" Johnson—"Sir, if you are talking justly of this, I don't talk to you. If you can be serious, I think him one of the worst of men, a rascal who ought to be hunted out of society, as he has been. Three or four nations have expelled him, and it is a shame that he is protected in this country. Rousseau, sir, is a very bad man. I would sooner sign a sentence for his transportation than that of any felon who has gone from the Old Bailey these many years. Yes, I should like to have him work in the plantations."—From Boswell's Life of Johnson.

Appearances.
"I haven't seen the new minister—shall I know him by his clerical look?"
"Oh, yes."
"And his wife?"
"You will know her by—er—her chanted clerical look."—Puck.

Inconsiderate.
Indignant Old Gent—Aren't you ashamed to sit there and let a woman with a bundle stand?

Hazy Citizen—Shamed? No! Can't yer see I gotter package myself!—Puck.

*Re-elected.

While the normal majorities of recent elections in Michigan have been reduced somewhat, the entire Republican state ticket has been elected by a decisive vote. There developed no such evidence of dissension in the party ranks as effected such a revolution in Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and other eastern states, and in some sections of the west.

Even in the contest for representatives in congress, but one district, the First, entirely within the city of Detroit, proved close, Frank E. Doremus, Democrat, running Congressman Edwin Denby a race that appears by unofficial figures to have been successful.

The legislature shows Democratic gains, but not so general as to have any effect on the primary, the choice of the Republicans in the primaries is insured a seat in the United States senate to succeed Senator Julius C. Burrows, whose term expires in March.

Early reports of the result in the state by counties follow:

Iron.
Nine precincts out of 14 give Osborn 878; Hemans, 158.

Kalamazoo.
Eighteen precincts out of 34 give Osborn 1,071; Osborn, 1,556.

Forty-two precincts out of 67 indicate Osborn will carry the county by 2,000. Hemans carried it by 5,588 in 1908. The same precincts give Sweet (Dem.) but 1,000 majority. Ottawa county will give Diekmann 505 majority over Sweet.

In 5 out of 36 precincts Osborn has a majority of 112. Wedemeyer (Rep.), 848; Helme (Dem.), for state senate, 151; Graves (Rep.), a majority of 440. Hemans is 2,000 behind his majority two years ago. It is thought Helme will carry the vote for state senator.

Alcona.
Osborn's majority is about 1,000. Loid, for congress, 1,100. Scott, for state senate, 500. Oppenborn, for representative, 600.

Early indications show that Hemans carries the county by a majority of about 50.

Chippewa.
Eleven precincts out of 22 give Osborn 1,802; Hemans, 830. For state representative 11 precincts give N. L. Field (Rep.) 1,322 votes, and F. T. McDonald (Dem.) 1,107. Osborn carries the Soc, his home city, by 1,529.

Delta.
Thirteen precincts out of 25 give Osborn 1,075; Hemans, 452.

Eaton.
Eaton county gives Osborn a small majority over Hemans, while Smith (Rep.) and Stewart (Dem.), for congress, ran a close race.

DEMOCRATS CARRY NEW YORK, NEW JERSEY, MASSACHUSETTS AND OHIO.

Republicans Retain Majority in Congress, Despite Opposition Gains in All Sections.

Democratic Gain in Congress.
Early returns received indicate that the Democrats have gained 10 seats in the national house of representatives. This is partly offset by a gain by the Republicans in one New York district. The returns would indicate that the Democrats will take seven seats of the 23 now necessary to give them control of the house. The known Democratic gains are three in New York, one in Massachusetts, one in Maryland, one in Kentucky and one in North Carolina. The probable Democratic gains are three in Iowa, five or six in Illinois and one in North Carolina.

Dix Elected in New York.
John A. Dix, Democrat, has been elected governor of New York over Henry L. Stimson, Republican, by between 55,000 and 60,000 plurality. These figures may be reduced or increased by returns from up-state rural districts.

New York city gives Dix a plurality of over 100,000, which more than offsets the greatly reduced plurality of the Republicans up state. Two years ago the greater city gave the city for governor a plurality of 100,000.

Below Mr. Dix on the ticket, the result is uncertain, although sending the Democrats to success. Conway, Democrat, nominee for lieutenant-governor, running only slightly behind.

The complexion of the legislature, which will select a successor to Senator Charles F. Dwyer, will be settled only by more complete returns, although it seems probable that the Republicans will hold a working majority.

New York city, Herbert Parsons, Republican, was defeated for re-election as a representative to congress by a Democrat, William S. Bennett, Republican, by Henry George Jr., a Theodore Roosevelt's home district in New York city.

Charles T. Talcott, Vice-President Sherman's nominee for congress, by 3,785.

Wisconsin in New Jersey.
Returns from the election in New Jersey were very slow in coming in, but figures indicate the election of Woodrow Wilson, Democrat, for governor, the only state office to be filled, by between 10,000 and 20,000 plurality over William M. Lewis, his Republican opponent.

Early returns on the vote for congressmen and members of the legislature indicate the outcome. The political complexion of the legislature, which will select a successor to Senator Egan in joint with both sides claiming a victory in joint ballot. Later returns will indicate the result.

Harmon in Ohio.
A remarkable tie in the counting of the vote is reported throughout Ohio because of much scratching of ballots. Incomplete official returns from outside the state indicate a gain of about 10,000 votes for the Democrats. The Democrats have approximately five votes to a precinct for Governor Harmon, which if carried by a plurality of more than 40,000.

Landslide in Illinois.
Returns indicate a landslide in Chicago, where the Democrats have elected the entire county, including the city, and eight out of ten congressional districts. Cook county—a gain of five.

The state is very close, with a probability that the Republican ticket is defeated.

Connecticut Democrats.
Baldwin, Democrat, is elected governor of Connecticut by about 4,000. The Democrats gain one congressional district in the state, and the Republicans gain one in the other. The Democrats gain 15 seats in the senate and the Republicans gain 10.

Result in Maryland.
Maryland elects one Democrat and one Republican congressman, a gain of two for the Democrats. The legislature was composed of three Republicans and three Democrats.

Delaware Republicans.
Indications are that the Republicans have carried the state, including a majority of both houses of the legislature. Dupont, Republican, is re-elected senator.

West Virginia.
Democrats of West Virginia have made large gains in every section of the state. The Democrats carry the governor for congress, first district, by Brown, second district and John M. Harbo, third district, is claimed by the Democrats. His gains in the third and fifth districts are also reported. The results are so close the official count will be necessary. The Republicans concede large losses in the state.

North Dakota.
The state has elected a Republican to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Johnson. Both Republican candidates for congress have won.

Democrats Carry Indiana.
The Democrats have carried the Indiana legislature, and the election of John W. Kern as United States senator to succeed Albert J. Beveridge, Republican.

Republicans Victorious in Idaho.
Scattering returns indicate the election of the entire Republican ticket reduced majorities.

New Hampshire Republicans Gain.
Indications point to the election of a Republican for governor by a plurality of 6,000. The vote shows Republican gains. Frank D. Currier is re-elected to congress from the second district. Cyrus A. Sullivan was also believed to be a greatly reduced majority in the legislature will be Republican by a margin.

Tennessee Elects Fusionist.
With east Tennessee giving Hooper, Republican, a handsome majority with the exception of the Chattanooga district, which went overwhelmingly to the Democrats, the Republicans carry the governor by a plurality of 20,000.

Mississippi Safely Republican.
State estimates are coming in slowly, including Alabama, in which the Republicans are estimated to carry the governor by a plurality of 20,000.

Prohibition Played a Part in Alabama.
The race between Congressman John L. Bennett, Democrat, and M. W. Johnson, Republican, in the seventh district is close and an official count is necessary.

PORT HURON VOTES FOR NEW SYSTEM

COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT CARRIES AT SPECIAL ELECTION BY A MAJORITY.

MAYOR AND FOUR COMMISSIONERS WILL RUN THE CITY AFTER JANUARY 1 NEXT.

Many Offices Will Be Abolished Under the New Form of Government.

Port Huron has taken its place in the ranks of the cities which have adopted the commission form of government. The vote polled Saturday was lighter than was anticipated, but a majority was returned in every one of the 11 wards excepting two favoring the adoption of the new plan. The majority was 704.

With the adoption of the new form of city government the next move will be to hold a primary election at which candidates for mayor and commissioners will be voted for. The eight men having the highest number of votes will go before the people again in an election to be held later in December, and from this number the four having the highest number of votes will become commissioners.

The two candidates having the highest number of votes will also go before the people at this election, and the one polling the highest number of votes becomes mayor and head of the commission.

For the primary election it will be necessary for the candidates to file petitions and the regular routine will be followed as in the regular primary elections.

Under the new form of government the city administration is to be in charge of the mayor and four commissioners. There will be abolished the office of city controller, the water works department, public works department as at present conducted, city council, board of estimates and a score of minor boards.

One commissioner will look after the parks and public works, another will have supervision over the police and fire departments and another over the financial affairs of the city.

The city clerk and city treasurer will be appointed by the board. The city controller's office will be merged with that of the city clerk, and the water board's duties will come into the city treasurer's hands.

There is still a mass of detail to settle, but it will not take tangibly form until the commissioners and the mayor are elected. This will be done in December and the new regime will become active January 1.

Farmers marketed in October a total of 274,785 bushels. The estimated total marketed in the three months of August, September and October is placed at 3,750,000 bushels.

The estimated average yield of corn in bushels in the state is 32; potatoes average 28 and the average condition of live stock is 87.

Judges Back Dr. Shumway.
Dr. F. W. Shumway, secretary of the state board of health, who was charged last week with reviving two salaries from the state constitution law, has secured the opinions of Judge R. H. Person and Judge Edward Cahill, of Lansing, on the question. Both the jurists have answered that the law does not prohibit Dr. Shumway from drawing salaries both as secretary of the state board of health and of the board of registration of nurses. The law states that he may not receive extra compensation for work in connection with either of the offices. It is explained, but may draw pay for separate and distinct from them.

Burns to Death in Fire.
George J. Stevens, an employee of the Peerless Portland Cement company, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the factory of the company at Union City, entailing a loss of $115,000. The fire originated from a small stove and the flames went beyond the control of the village fire department. The warehouse, which was 200 by 100 feet, was consumed with $30,000 worth of cement packed in barrels ready for shipment and much valuable machinery.

DEER PLENTY IN UPPER MICHIGAN

SEASON OPENED NOV. 10, AND MANY HUNTERS ARE ALREADY ON THE GROUND.

GAME WARDENS WATCHFUL. NEWS HAS RESULTED IN AN INCREASE OF GAME.

Alpena Scotchmen Are Preparing for a Big Celebration in Honor of Their Patron Saint.

The season for deer opens in Michigan Thursday, November 10. The indications are that this season will be a splendid one. Game Warden T. J. Maney says: "Within the past few weeks I have been pretty well over the country, and everywhere deer are plentiful."

In the opinion of most of those with whom I have talked the increase in game is due to less hunting out of season. I have kept an especially careful watch of the country north of Marquette, where hundreds of deer and partridges were killed last year by pot hunters, but residents near Birch and Big Bay tell me that this year there has been almost none of that. More arrests were made during the summer than usual, and the aggressive policy of the game warden seems to have had a salutary effect. With the exception of wolves, there has been little or no deer this summer, and they have multiplied rapidly."

Steamer "Lost; Crew Saved.

The steamer "Wasago," wooden, in charge of Capt. W. A. Glass, bound from Toronto to Port William, Ont., with a cargo of farming machinery and supplies, burned to the water's edge while lying in shelter from a heavy northwest gale at Copper Harbor, Keweenaw Point, 20 miles north of Calumet.

Bay City Gets 1911 S. S. Meet.

The Michigan Sunday School association's convention closed at Grand Rapids and was pronounced one of the largest and best conventions of its kind ever held in the state. The next convention will be held in Bay City.

R. to get up the wooden poles at night. Two poles were ordered taken down by the police.

Patrons of Husbandry Are Strong.

With the organization of Marquette county's new range, Patrons of Husbandry, the association of farmers, now has 20 subordinate branches in upper Michigan, with a total membership of approximately 4,000.

The order is growing rapidly in the peninsula, and it is expected that a year from now its present numerical proportions will be practically doubled. Only about half of the counties have yet been entered by the organization.

In the state at large there are approximately 1,000 granges, with a membership of more than 50,000. In many communities the organization is active in politics.

Fraternal Societies at War.

With a view to offsetting alleged attacks upon their reputation, the Ladies of the Modern Macabees, holding their great executive monthly session at the Hotel Tullier at Detroit, gave their final stamp of approval to a circular making explicit charges against the Ladies of the Macabees of the World and other fraternal organizations, of agitation and other unfriendly conduct, more particularly since the order was re-rated last June.

The booklet will be issued to the 70,000 odd Ladies of the Modern Macabees throughout Michigan. As many of the Ladies of the Macabees of the World are also members of the sister order, the booklet takes the complexion of civil war.

Deserted by Gilt Bride.

Captivated by the blue eyes and the golden hair of a young woman whom he had known from her babyhood, Oscar Ludlow, a wealthy farmer, 70 years of age, who lives near Springfield, realized his life's ambition in Detroit, when he was married to Rudora Brown, the 29-year-old daughter of B. G. Brown, of Springfield.

Before the marriage ceremony was performed Ludlow presented his bride-to-be with a check for $15,000 and a warranty deed to 100 acres of choice farm property. Three days later he returned to his lonely farm home without his bride and minus the presents he gave her. Somewhere in the west his young bride, who deserted him in Chicago less than 48 hours after the wedding, has charges Mrs. Ludlow cashed the check before leaving Detroit.

U. S. MUST RULE ALL PANAMA

UNITED STATES CANNOT ADMINISTER AFFAIRS OF CANAL ZONE WITHOUT CONTROL.

AMERICANS THERE SAY FRICTION WITH PANAMA OFFICIALS OCCURS DAILY.

President Taft's Assurance That There Is No Danger of Annexation Is Not Accepted in Colon.

Despite Minister Arosemena's supposedly assuring conference with President Taft, which resulted in the announcement that the United States has no intention of attempting to gobble up the Panama government, the original story is the source of much excitement in Colon, particularly when it is considered in connection with the government's dismissal of Councilman Carrillo for the utterance of anti-American feeling at public meetings.

Americans on the isthmus realize that the successful administration of the Panama canal can never be undertaken unless Washington has absolute control of the entire situation on the isthmus, which amounts to nothing less than the annexation of the territory. Close observers during the last three years have known of continual conflicts between United States officials and the officers of the Panama government. These clashes are of daily occurrence, particularly among the petty officials of both governments. Intelligent Panamanians recognize the serious side of the situation. They say they would rather see the Panama completely gobbled up by the Washington government, than exist under the thumbs of officials of the big northern republic.

State Militia Officers Resign.

A general upheaval in Texas military circles has resulted because of the conviction and sentencing to life imprisonment of J. D. Manley, a member of the state militia, who bayoneted Louis Riechenstein, of Dallas, when the latter insisted on crossing a prescribed area during the visit of President Taft to Dallas last year. Riechenstein died of his wounds.

Because of the verdict, Maj. E. H. Roach, of the Third regiment; Capt. H. W. Kinard, of Co. E, of which Manley was a sergeant; Lieut. George F. Callier and Lieut. Tracey D. Berry, of the battalion staff, have handed in their resignations. In addition to resigning, Capt. Kinard has asked that his company be mustered out of the service. In his resignation he says: "The action of the Dallas court makes it impossible for me, as an officer, to give an enlisted man an order which might cause him to come in conflict with the civil courts. If he obeys he is liable to a jail sentence by a military court-martial, and if he obeys he is liable to a jail sentence by the civil courts."

Said He Helped Blow Up Times.

A sensational story of participation in the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building was told in Phoenix, Ariz., by Edward Gilham, a waiter in a Chinese restaurant, at a Salvation Army meeting. Gilham was arrested, but now denies the story. He says he was drunk on the night he would have said it.

Gilham said he was one of 17 blindfolded men who drew lots at Los Angeles union headquarters and that he was one of three chosen to do the job. He said the plan was to blow up the paper after it went to press, but some employees encountering the wire caused the explosion to occur shortly after midnight.

The debate on the "padlock bill,"

French Cabinet Resigns.

The cabinet of Aristide Briand, the world's greatest socialist premier, which succeeded the Clemenceau ministry on July 23, 1909, unexpectedly resigned in consequence of the bitter attacks made in the chamber of deputies upon the government's action in suppressing the recent railroad strike and its proposed legislation for the avoidance of similar outbreaks.

President Paderes sent for Premier Briand and asked him to form a new ministry. The premier accepted the task. He therefore comes out victorious in the cabinet crisis and will have his own way in moulding the legislation which he says is needed to prevent a recurrence of the railroad strike, which, according to his views, nearly plunged the nation into a revolution and which is his policy to guard against by strong enactments.

"Padlock Bill" Is Passed in Spain.

The Spanish senate, by a vote of 149 to 55, passed the "padlock bill," which prohibits the creation of further religious establishments in Spain until the revision of the concordat with the Vatican has been completed. The concordatory attitude of Premier Canalejas toward the ecclesiastical senators during the debate in the senate on the bill led to the impression in official circles that a way would be found to resume the negotiations between the government and the Vatican for the revision of the concordat when the bill was passed.

Manitoba Asylum Burns.

The insane asylum of the Manitoba government, located at Brandon, Man., was burned to the ground, causing a loss of $250,000, but all of the inmates were rescued safely. One of the women patients playing with matches were responsible for the fire. There were 600 patients in the asylum at the time and great difficulty was experienced in getting them out. A number were injured, and others badly chilled in the snowstorm that was raging.

Garment Workers End Great Strike.

The garment workers' strike, which called out 40,000 men in the garment trade in Chicago, and which was productive of numerous small riots, has been settled. Announcement of the settlement of the strike came from the office of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, whose shops have been in the vortex of the trouble. Details were not given out.

Another Street Car Strike Threatened.

Another street car strike, which is likely to outlast last January's struggle in Chicago, is being threatened by the deadlock of the arbitrators appointed by the Rapid Transit company and the union men to define the term "loyal men," the arrest and arraignment of C. O. Pratt, the car men's leader, the drastic temper of the men as evidenced in their all-night meeting, all combine to make the situation acute. Pratt has issued a statement in the nature of a declaration of war.

CHELSEA'S CHANCE.

One year ago Chelsea was on the verge of winding up as a manufacturing center with over fifty empty houses and rents nominal, scarcely enough to pay taxes and insurance. Last spring the plant of the Stove Company was sold to gentlemen who asked no bonus for coming to Chelsea nor had stock to place on the local market.

Now, although we are only on the fringe of what the plant is capable of doing, it hardly being in running shape in even two of the departments, we are confronted with a house famine, as there is scarcely an empty house in town that is in condition to rent, and houses sell readily at a 25 per cent advance over prices asked at the beginning of the year.

There are fifty-five business institutions in town, not counting the professional men, all of which are and will be benefited by the increase in population. While all of these institutions are not in shape financially to do building, many of them are, it would seem that fifty houses could be put up by the business men financially benefited by Chelsea's boom; especially as any houses erected could be easily rented until sold at rents paying a big interest on the investment.

The Grant & Wood Manufacturing Co. have spent and are spending a great deal of money in our midst, all coming in from outside, and Chelsea ought to rise to her opportunity and take care of the increase in growth without putting rents beyond the limits of tolerance. We can have just as many new families as we can take care of.

The girl who works, who earns her living and perchance helps support a family, is entitled to more respect than the girl who has no object in life and puts in her time doing nothing in the parlor or walking the streets and who becomes the slave of society. One always feels like lifting his hat to the girl who by honest work is making her way in the world. The kind of work makes no difference, only so it is honest.

Coffee was served by the management of the store. A player piano furnished music the entire evening, and the guests were presented with carnations by the L. T. Freeman Co. Mr. Scripser called Dr. C. C. Lane, of Unadilla, who made an examination and said that whoever did the work had used strychnine. While Mr. Scripser is a hard working man and needs all that he earns, he will pay a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty party or parties who perpetrated the deed.

This plan pleased the fancy of the secondnails, and they agreed that Gurney was a great man. They were seated at the tables imbibing wine, and they drank to Gurney's health while the ex-detectives, and counterfeits jostled elbows and bandied jokes good-naturedly as they contemplated the easy times in store for them. When sufficiently filled with joy and enthusiasm, they capped the wax by hurrahing for his satanic majesty. The trust of Bala-hazar was

The ethics of the criminal profession are peculiar. When a crowd of crooks fight they frequently rob one another, and if the victim calls in the police to recover his property he loses the confidence of the rogues.

A few days later Gurney told Hower, in a boasting way, of this interview and, in a burst of enthusiasm, declared that everything about the government detective headquarters was known to him before it transpired. He asserted that he was one of my assistants, and was so puffed up over his imaginary success that he really believed he knew what was going on in my office.

The time now seemed ripe for the arrest of the entire party who had to surrender the plates. This he now promised to do and, shortly after another interview at his home, I received a check for a piece of baggage at the Grand Central depot. A detective went to the baggage room at this depot and obtained an old hair trunk in which were found the plates.

According to promise, Gurney, through my intercession and explanation, was given a sentence of seven years instead of the maximum sentence of fifteen.

SERIAL STORY

Archibald's Agatha

By
EDITH HUNTINGTON MASON

Author of
"The Real Agatha"

Copyright 1910 by W. O. Chapman.
Copyright in Great Britain.

SYNOPSIS.

Archibald Terhune, a popular and indolent young teacher of London, receives news that he has been made heir to the estate of his Aunt Georgiana, with an income of $30,000 a year, on condition that he becomes engaged to be married within ten days. Failing to do so, the legacy will go to a third cousin in America. The story opens at Castle Wyckoff, where Lord Vincent and his wife, friends of Terhune, are discussing plans to find him a wife within the prescribed time. It seems that Lady Vincent is one of seven persons named Agatha, all close girlhood chums. She decides to invite two of them to the castle and have Archie there as one of the guests. Agatha Sixth strikes Archie as a handsome beauty. Agatha First is a breezy American girl. Lady Vincent tells her husband that Agatha Sixth already cares for Archie. She gains from Agatha Sixth the admission that she cares for him, but will require a month's time fully to make up her mind. Archie, neglected by Terhune, receives attention from Leslie Freer, four days of the previous time have passed when Terhune is called to London on business. Agatha First, on the plea of school exercises, leaves from a motor trip planned by the Vincents. Later they see Agatha First picking flowers with a strange man. The Vincents discuss Agatha's seeming duplicity.

"Our marriage," I corrected. "Naturally," she said indulgently and laughed. "But I've always admired her," she went on; "she's so big and strong and has such tremendous vital force. I'm a little surprised that any one of such an open character could develop into such a plotter. It's all so frightfully underhand somehow. Why can't she come and tell me frankly all about it, whatever it is?"

"Perhaps Mrs. Chiltern could throw some light on the subject," I suggested.

"I shouldn't wonder at all!" exclaimed Dearest. "Agatha First stayed much longer with her than Agatha Sixth did. I shall telephone her in the morning. What a smart little body it is, to be sure; to think of that! And I was more than paid for my happy thought by a pair of exquisite arms about my neck."

"I wonder what they'll have to say for themselves when they come in?" I said, as we were going down to the drawing-room a little later.

"O, they won't come in together," said my wife; "that would be too much of a giveaway. And just then we perceived Agatha First standing at the foot of the stair-case waiting for us. She was alone, as Dearest had prophesied she would be.

"Hello!" she greeted us composedly. "Was it a nice party? Did you miss me? And although I couldn't help thinking there was a new beauty about the girl in the unusual brilliancy of her dark eyes and the deeper glow of her color as she stood there, I thought such cheek deserved a cropper."

"Rippling!" I said, before Dearest could answer. "But where have you been? I thought you were supposed to be on the sick list today." But she didn't seem a bit embarrassed. "I was," she replied. "I didn't really feel like going way over to Northbury with you, but I thought a little outing would do my head good, so I went for a stroll."

"I see!" I said, and thought with indignation of the scene in the woods when I noticed that the young lady did not wear the pongee auto coat she had worn then. "Left it in the machine, probably, to prevent suspicion!" I thought to myself, while Dearest said sweetly: "That's nice, dear; I'm glad you felt like going. Run along now and get ready for the dinner. It's almost eight."

It was what we called between ourselves "The Incident of the Checked Coat" that really decided my wife to consult Mrs. Chiltern about Agatha First's strange behavior.

The morning was fine and we had planned to take our guests to see some interesting ruins not quite 12 miles away, where an automobile was to meet us at noon with luncheon. Dearest had been delayed with making arrangements for our picnic, and the others, the inevitable Freer, and the two Agathas, had started slowly on ahead.

We could hear their voices in the garden below our windows as she hurriedly got into some walking things. I had of course waited for her.

"I don't know but I'll go up into Terhune's room," I said, when I had finished lacing her long boots. "I don't see I can't find that old summer of mine I used to sport last summer. I didn't see it up there. I hate to be so dressy on a tramp like this!" And I threw my Panama on a chair in disgust.

"It's in the closet," she replied, "third shelf. I put it there myself. Though what you want with that old thing when you have boxes and boxes full of good hats I can't imagine!"

"Nothing like being comfortable!" I shouted, as I ran up the broad stairs outside the door three steps at a time.

Dearest was all ready and waiting when I came down again, but I didn't need to speak to inform her that something had happened. She saw it by my face.

"What is it, Wilfred?" she asked. "You look as if you'd seen a ghost!"

"I have!" I answered, "or something quite as startling!" I said, Agatha, what do you think I found in the Arch's closet?"

"Your hat, just as I told you would! What else?" But I knew she knew I didn't mean that.

"Why, nothing more nor less than a loud checked automobile coat, or duster!" I replied in measured tones. "Now, what do you think of that?"

"Not like the coat you saw hanging over the back of the machine in the woods?" expostulated Dearest, aghast. "Not that coat, Wilfred?"

"The very same, or its twin brother," I told her. "Come, now, isn't that a go?" But my wife was out of the door and half way up to the third floor by that time.

"I've got to see!" she cried back to me, and I went up after her, although I knew it wouldn't be any use her seeing it, since she had not seen the one in the automobile.

"I surely!" she exclaimed as I stood by her side. "A checked automobile coat! Did you ever, Freddy, did you ever!" And she held it up and looked it over from collar to coat-tail as if it were enchanted, and could tell us more than our own eyes could gather.

"Yes," I said, "the very same!"

"Then it must have been Terhune!" "Beyond a doubt!" I answered thoughtfully. "But isn't it too queer! In the first place I didn't know he could handle a machine, and in the second, where did he get it from. By Jove!"

"And why does he have to meet Agatha First in secret that way?" wondered my wife as we left the castle and started for the scene of the picnic by a series of short cuts the others did not know.

But all our marvelling brought us no enlightenment, only the conclusion on Dearest's part that she would consult Mrs. Chiltern on the subject as soon as an opportunity presented itself.

CHAPTER VII.

We arrived at the group of ruins which formed the goal of our walk in good time, although the others were there ahead of us and were just spreading a cloth and taking things out of the automobile which had met them there, as we came up.

"Hurry up, slow coaches!" called Agatha First cheerily, "or we won't leave you anything to eat!"

"Lead me a hand with this cloth, Vincent!" was Terhune's request, and I fell to with a will and had the thing right in a jiffy.

"And maybe it wasn't good fun sitting there on a lot of jolly boulders and clumps of rock that had cooled off with great pains and a long wait at intervals about the cloth, grinning at each other across its goodly array of picnic dainties."

Dearest is a famous hand at planning that sort of thing. We had camped upon a small rise in the middle of an open space where great oaks stood out in front of the road on the one hand and broad meadows and wooded slopes fell away toward Hartmere stream on the other; the latter drinking the green of it all with silver a field or two away.

Close at hand the ruined chapel or convent which we had come to see piled itself in picturesque confusion, and we had reached that point in our merry-making when we were simply content to gaze apathetically upon it and listen uncomprehendingly to Freer recite its history with never-failing accuracy and zeal.

He knows everything, that chap! And is disgustingly ready to give everybody else the benefit of his learning at all times.

Agatha First was sitting near him, not making any attempt to disguise her indifference to his pedantic discourse, while Arch and Agatha Sixth, I am glad to say, were carrying on a whispered conversation together on the other side of the cloth. Dearest and I sat together, of course, at one end of the square, and as I said to her in a low tone so that the others could not hear I thought Arch was playing up to the part she and I had selected for him, that of Agatha Sixth's lover, a little better than usual. He was certainly all attention to the girl at his side and listened to her every word with the eager interest of the most devoted suitor. And the delicate face of Miss Lawrence was alive with feeling and glowed pink even without the aid of the rose-colored parasol she carried.

"O, what do you think?" she cried in her soft cultivated voice. "Mr. Terhune says that the ruins are haunted! By the ghost of a nun that was shut up in the wall once!" Her really wonderful black eyes were bright with interest and I thought she made a rather dazzling picture in her white frock and the delicious aureole of pink sunshade about her. But I couldn't swallow a barbed word for like that, for that nun story is so old. So I had just begun to explain that Arch was chaffing her, and the ghost racket his own invention entirely, when I caught his expression and my wife's eye. The former was embarrassed and the latter severe, and I stopped in the middle of a sentence as I fathomed the combined significance of eye and look.

"So that's it, is it?" I thought to myself. "Poor old boy! He's so much in love he doesn't know what he's saying. Anything will do as long as she will listen! And I'm deuced glad to see it too!"

But Freer showed less perspicacity, though of course there's this to be said, he didn't have the key to the situation as I did, and challenged poor old Arch's story of the nun, and in five minutes had him showed up proper, the old fellow at last having to take refuge in the statement that it must have been some other ruin he had in mind. Strange to say, however, for all his learning Freer did not win a smile from Agatha Sixth, who only turned to Terhune with more interest than ever as a result of his efforts.

It was then that Dearest made her remark about motoring over to see Mrs. Chiltern on the following day. It was an innocent enough remark and very casually said, but it seemed to have an electrifying effect upon Agatha First. She jumped up and came over to my wife.

"Don't do that!" she said, low and earnestly. "Please don't, Agatha, dear! Dearest was surprised, and by Jove so was I, or puzzled at least! The girl seemed so awfully earnest about not wishing us to see Mrs. Chiltern—out of all proportion to the importance of her request, it seemed to me. 'But why not?' my wife couldn't help asking."

"Because we have such a little time left to be together, you and Lord Vincent and Mr. Terhune and Agatha Sixth and myself," she said. "Mr. Terhune tells me he has to go back to London in a day or two, and I think it's a shame to waste a whole day by going over to Chiltern house! Besides, you said they owed you a call!" She had lowered her voice during this last statement, but it was not necessary. Freer had strolled off to the ruins and Archibald and Agatha Sixth were too absorbed in each other's company to notice us.

Her reasons were specious and illogical enough, but Dearest, to my surprise, seemed inclined to accept them and I had to interfere.

"They do owe us a call," I said, "but that wouldn't prevent us from having a jolly time of it if we all chose to go over together! On the contrary, it would be something to do!"

Then Agatha First, evidently galled into a corner set her young face in a fashion that was almost desperate. "But Agatha Fourth—Mrs. Chiltern— isn't there!" she declared. "She told me she was going down to London for a week or two!"

Dearest stared at her, but she did not ask her, as I wanted to do, why she hadn't said so in the first place. Instead, she took pity on Agatha First's white face, for the girl had actually turned pale, and assured her charitably that she had entirely given up all thought of an expedition to Chiltern house, though as I told her afterward, obviously the young lady was cramming her. But Dearest has the kindest heart in the world.

The Fishhawk's Warning.
"The fishhawk tells us when the shade begins to run up the river," said a Gloucester fisherman. "We have learned that it isn't much use to cast nets, no matter how mild the weather may be, until Mr. Fishhawk swoops down on us."

"When he comes sailing up the bay we know it's time to get to work. Lots of farmers down Jersey would never think to start planting until the fishhawk comes. I don't believe they have ever been later than April 12, though. They work their way up the coast from Florida and the other southern waters early in March, when the fish begin to come north. They follow the big schools of herring, as a rule, because the herring swim close together, and the hawk has easy picking. The shade follow the herring, and when the fishhawk comes we know the shade are not far behind."—Fishing Gazette.

It Sounded Hopeful.
A young man who was not particularly entertaining was monopolizing the attention of a pretty debutante with a lot of uninteresting conversation.

"Now, my brother," he remarked in the course of a dissertation on his family, "is just the opposite of me in every respect. Do you know my brother?"

"No," the debutante replied demurely, "but I should like to."—Humor Life.

WOULD BE OF MORE VALUE

Father O'Leary's Fastidious Rejoinder to John Philpot Curran an Example of Real Wit.

One day the famous John Philpot Curran, who was also very partial to the said corned mutton, did me the honor to meet him. To enjoy the society of such men was an intellectual treat. They were great friends and seemed to have a mutual respect for each other's talent, and as it may easily be imagined, O'Leary versus Curran was no bad match.

"One day after dinner Curran said to him: 'Reverend father, I wish you were St. Peter,'" asked O'Leary.

"And why, counselor, would you wish that I were St. Peter?" asked O'Leary.

"Because, reverend father, in that case," said Curran, "you would have the keys of heaven, and you could let me in."

"By my honor and conscience, counselor," replied the divine, "it would be better for you that I had the keys of the other place, then I could let you out!"

Curran enjoyed the joke, which he admitted had a good deal of justice in it.—From Kelly's Reminiscences.

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep, and after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then let off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time, three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

You Can Work Near a Window

In winter when you have a Perfection Oil Heater, it is a portable radiator, which can be moved to any part of a room, or to any room in a house. When you have a

PERFECTION OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless, you do not have to work close to the stove, which is usually far from the window. You can work where you wish, and be warm. You can work on dull winter days in the full light near the window, without being chilled to the bone.

The Perfection Oil Heater quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap, put in like a cork in a bottle, is attached by a chain. This heater has a cool handle and a damper top.

The Perfection Oil Heater has an automatic locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be quickly cleaned. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged and can be unscrewed in an instant for reworking. The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in Japan or nickel, is strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

CURING CATARRH

Accept Our Advice and Try This Remedy at Our Risk.

Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membrane. The mucous membrane is, one may say, the interior lining of the body. Catarrh therefore may exist in any part of the system.

When the catarrhal poison attacks the mucous membrane, inflammation and congestion are produced and nature fails to throw off the accumulated poisons. The organ which has been afflicted ceases to perform its proper function as nature intended it should. The result is, complication upon complication, which may lead to other even more serious afflictions.

We honestly believe Rexall Muc-Tone will do wonders toward overcoming catarrh. It is made from the prescription of an eminent physician who made a long study of catarrh, and his great success with this remedy was an enviable one.

We want you if you are a sufferer from catarrh in any form, to give Rexall Muc-Tone a thorough trial. Use it with regularity and persistence for a reasonable time, then if you are not satisfied, come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every cent you paid us. This is certainly the fairest offer that any one could make and should attest our sincerity of purpose. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain it only at—The Rexall Store.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes greater when least regarded. Often it comes through colds, croup, and whooping cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C., "We always give it to him when he takes cold. It is a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhages, weak lungs. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. "The Merry Widow."

Perhaps more than any other opera ever written, has "The Merry Widow" come to be considered by those who have not heard its full score, an opera of one number. So continuously has the famous waltz music been played by street pianos, brass bands and orchestras, that it has grown to be considered representative of the whole. Such is not the case, however, as the Villa song with its mournful longing and beautiful minor tones is recalled again and again and reported to be the largest seller after the waltz. "The Woman Septette," with its humorous repulse to femininity, is called for repeatedly by the after the theatre crowd that patronize the cafes. "A Dutiful Wife," the lifting strains of the "Butterfly" music, the frolicsome silly Cavalier song and the appealing duet, "Love in My Heart," are only a few which enrich the opera. Among the principals who will sing these gems in Ann Arbor, Henry W. Savage has engaged Gertrude Hutcherson for Sonia; George Damerel for Prince Danilo, Mabel Arzella for the singing role of Natalie and Edith Gransell for Olga. The part of Popoff, Marovian ambassador, is taken by Harry Burgess and "Nish," the comic messenger to the Embassy, will be capably played by Arthur Wooley. A special orchestra will again be a feature.

At the New Whitney Theatre Saturday matinee and night, November 12th.
