Yeggmen Blow Up Safe In Postoffice Monday Morning

The Chelsea postoffice was robbed between two and three o'clock Monday morning for the second time in the past seven years. When the postmaster opened the office the interior resembled a fort that had recently been bombarded.

Entrance was gained to the office by placing a ladder in the rear and forcing the window. The tools, two picks, handax, wrench and pinbar were stolen from the backdoor house of the electric road, and the yeggmen evidently did excellent work with them if one should judge by the appearance of the interior of the office. The tools were left by the robbers near the safe.

The safe was blown up with nitroglycerine and is a total wreck. It required two charges of the explosive to enable the thieves to secure the contents of the safe. The first one, aroused some of the guests in the Hotel Boyd and many other residents of the town. The second charge which gave access to the chest followed about ten minutes after the first one.

Miss Mary Haab and her niece, Miss Ruby Jedele, who room over the postoffice, were aroused from their slumbers by the first explosion and as they have but one means of escape from the rooms, which is near the main entrance to the postoffice, the error stricken ladies kept quiet. They heard two or three men talking in loud voices between the two explosions, but almost immediately after the second one the office became quiet, and the thieves left by the back stairs from the office, the door to which they had opened when they first gained access to the building.

For their nights work the yeggs secured about $100 in cash and $250 in postage stamps of various denominations. They left behind several dollars in small change and a quantity of stamps, both of which were badly mutilated, and they overlooked a registered letter in their haste.

It is probable that the men made their escape from Chelsea on an east bound freight train which passed through here about three o'clock. There is no clue to be found of the safeblowers. Sheriff Sutton and the postoffice department were notified of the burglary and are at work on the case.

Engineer Kills Self.

Detroit Journal:—After several months' illness from a spinal trouble, which is believed to have affected his brain, Pardon Keyes, 440 Hubbard avenue, a M. C. E. R. engineer, killed himself Friday night.

He went into the back yard, unknown to his wife, and shot himself in the mouth. Peter Prior, 438 Hubbard, a neighbor, found the body and notified the police. Motorcycle Patrolman Tom Crendon hurried to the scene.

Pardon Keyes has been ill since about last Christmas and had been confined to the house most of the time. It is thought that his ailment was due to a hard alighting from his engine, the jar affecting his spine. Mrs. Keyes had no intimation that he might kill himself and his death was a great shock to her.

Mr. Keyes was a nephew of the late E. Keyes of Lima, and a former resident of Lima. The funeral was held from his late home in Detroit Tuesday.

Birthday Party.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Louis Burg assisted by their neighbors, tendered a complete surprise to Mrs. Johanna Kaplinger on the 11th anniversary of her birth. The evening was spent in pleasant remembrance conversation interspersed with appropriate music and song, after which a German lunch was served, the main feature of which was an elegant Hefe Kraut, a confection much in vogue in the fatherland, and baked by William Caspary, and pronounced excellent by all present. The ladies all remembered Mrs. Kaplinger with beautiful tokens of their friendship and esteem and departed vowing a very pleasant evening spent and wishing her still many happy returns of the day.

Singer Takes New Position.

Detroit Times: Mrs. Earl F. Chase, who, for the past year and a half, has been a member of the choir of the Forest-ave. Presbyterian church, has been engaged as precentor and soloist of the choir in the Church of Our Father. She has already taken up her new position.

Mrs. Chase is the possessor of a remarkably pleasing contralto voice developed under the excellent training of Mrs. Eleanor Hazard Peacock, the well-known Detroit soprano. Mrs. Chase now conducts a studio at No. 75 Valpey building and has met with much success.

Mrs. Chase is the daughter of H. Lighthall and her many Chelsea friends congratulate her upon her success.

Grange Meeting.

LaFayette Grange will meet with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Sweetland Friday, November 11, at 10 a. m. The following is the program:

Roll Call—One magazine that interests me and why.

Three conundrums propounded by the overseer. The first member answering all three correctly to receive a prize.

Questions for discussion. Made over dishes. Economical use of meat in the home. Legislative matters.

Three current events with comments upon the same.

General discussion on above topics. Music—Zobo Band.

Captured Escaped Convict.

Ben Campbell the Pontiac man, who was convicted on the charge of sending a "black hand" letter to Mrs. Henry C. Ward, the wife of a wealthy man of that city, in which he demanded $10,000 and was sentenced from 15 to 20 years imprisonment in the Jackson state prison, made a get away from the Oakland county officers at Gregory Tuesday about noon as he was being taken to the prison at Jackson.

Deputy Sheriff McClear of Gregory, followed the convict from Gregory to Chelsea where he was captured at about 10 o'clock in the evening.

Mr. McClear arrived here ahead of the man and called to his assistance Deputy Sheriffs Hepburn and Leach who started out to find the man. He was seen to pass the depot, and when near the residence of Mrs. James Mullen on Jackson street just east of the Michigan Central passenger station, and was captured by Deputy Sheriffs McClear and Hepburn after three shots had been fired to bring the man to submission.

The man was taken to Jackson prison at 11:02 Tuesday night by Deputy Sheriffs Leach and McClear. Deputy Sheriff Leach did not take any chance of another escape so he handcuffed the prisoner to his brother officer and delivered the man to the prison authorities.

Campbell has had the reputation of being a desperate man and has served time in prison before and probably get all that is coming to him.

Deserted Baby.

About 9:30 o'clock last Thursday evening a four week's old girl baby was left on the front porch of the residence of Mrs. Wm. Fletcher on McKinley street. Mrs. Fletcher and her daughter, Miss Grace, were in the kitchen of the home, and the front door was violently shut, and when they went to the door to investigate the cause, they found a market basket awaiting with a crying infant at the door. The child was taken into house. Mrs. Fletcher also heard a buggy crossing the Michigan Central tracks north of her residence when she was taking the infant into the house.

A few minutes after the child, (which was well dressed) was taken into the house, John L. Fletcher, returned home from up town, and at once notified Deputy Sheriffs Leach and Hepburn of the abandoned child at his mother's residence.

The officers upon investigation found that the two women had driven to the Fletcher residence, left the infant and then had driven north on McKinley street to Dewey avenue, thence west to Main street where they turned north going toward Lyndon. The buggy was rubber tired and the horse had recently been shod, and came from the south. It was very easy for the officers to track the vehicle and the officers met the women driving south two miles north of Chelsea about two o'clock Friday morning.

The women had evidently lost their way and stopped the officer to inquire the way.

The officers at once accused the women with leaving the child at the Fletcher residence, which they at first vigorously denied, but they finally owned up that they were the parties.

The officers brought the women to the Chelsea council rooms in nearly a frozen condition from their nights ride in the rain and snow. After being warmed up they were taken to the room of officer Hepburn in the McKune house where they were detained until morning. When the horse was taken to Martini's livery barn it was recognized as belonging to Lancaster's livery stable in Clinton.

The women gave their names as Mrs. Tilly Best, aged 32 years, mother of the child, and Miss Anna Cone, aged 18 years, sisters and both residents of Clinton.

The following was received from Clinton: "Mrs. Tilly Best, who, with her sister, Miss Anna Cone, was arrested in Chelsea early Friday morning is a former resident of this place, but for the past six months she has resided in Toledo. She was recently separated from her husband, and since that time has not resided here. A short time ago she returned to her home here, bringing with her a young baby. Thursday evening she and her sister started for Gregory to visit a sister who resides there."

The two women were taken before Justice Witherell Friday afternoon. Prosecuting Attorney Storms was present and upon the request of a number of citizens, the charge of abandoning the child of Mrs. Best was withdrawn, and they were allowed to return to their home in Clinton, after promising to care for the infant. Mrs. Best said at the examination that her husband would not support her and that her father, with whom she has been living, objected to the presence of the infant, so she took this course to rid herself of it.

The Cone family were residents of Chelsea about 35 years ago, moving from here to Gregory, and for the past few years have resided in Clinton, where two of the younger sisters of Mrs. Best are employed in the local telephone exchange.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Welcome B. Sumner Found Dead Sunday Morning.

Welcome B. Sumner, night watch at the Kempf Commercial & Savings Bank was found dead in the basement of the building at about eight o'clock Sunday morning.

Mr. Sumner did not arrive at his home Sunday morning at his usual hour, and the family after waiting some time sent Phyllis Monroe to the bank to learn why he was detained. The girl not getting any response to her repeated calls, finally called Walter Leach, who sent her to the residence of John L. Fletcher, the assistant cashier, who came to the bank and accompanied by Mr. Leach found the deceased at the foot of the stairs.

A number of the business men of the village gathered at the bank and physicians were called to the scene of the accident.

At about one o'clock officer Hepburn says he saw Mr. Sumner about his work in the bank and his death probably occurred between one and two o'clock in the morning. It is thought that he was taken with a sudden fit of dizziness as he was about to descend or ascend the stairs and fell. The cause of his demise being given on the burial permit "accidental death caused by a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain."

When the body was removed to his home from the bank by D. C. McClares, H. D. Witherell, C. Klein and the Marshal, "rigor mortis" had set in and as it is usually from five to seven hours before this takes place, his death must have taken place about one o'clock.

L. T. Freeman and Walter Leach who were present repaired to the Sumner home and conveyed the sad news to the afflicted family.

Mr. Sumner was born in Sylvan April 5, 1838, and was 72 years, 6 months and 25 days of age. He has lived in this vicinity nearly all his life and for the past two years has been employed at the bank as night-watch. He was united in marriage with Miss Margaret Snow 31 years ago, who survives him as also do two brothers. His only son died from an accident about seven years ago. Mr. Sumner was a member of Olive Lodge, No. 156 F. & A. M., who conducted the services at the cemetery.

The funeral was held at the late home at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Rev. F. I. Blanchard pastor of the Baptist church officiating. Interment Vermont cemetery, Sylvan.

"The Traveling Salesman."

James Forbes' comedy "The Traveling Salesman" which scored such an emphatic success during its long run in New York and Chicago, will be presented under the direction of Henry B. Harris at the New Whitney theatre Ann Arbor, Wednesday, November 9.

The action of the play starts in the railroad depot at Grand Crossing just before noon on Christmas day. The villagers waiting for their trains; the impertinent baggage man; the gossipy widow, and the pretty ticket agent, Beth Elliott, and the irrepressible drummer, Bob Blake, are introduced and the weaving of the plot is begun. The acquaintance of Bob Blake and Beth Elliott ripens rapidly and Beth invites the salesman to share her meager Christmas lunch. After that their friendship is sealed.

Beth is the owner of a worthless section of land which is to be sold for unpaid taxes. The girl is unaware that the railroad is going to build a spur there and that her land will be needed for that purpose. Blake's employer is cognizant of the improvement soon to be made on the land and decides to secure it by unfair means. Blake learns of this and attempts to frustrate the scheme, and the predicaments in which he finds himself through his misguided efforts supply the necessary thread of dramatic comedy.

The company includes Frank J. McIntyre, Gertrude Coghlan, Sarah McVicker, Wm. Beach, James O'Neil, Jr., Percival T. Moore, H. D. Blake, more, Nicholas Burnham and others.

"The Girl of My Dreams."

After having given him two such remarkable successes as "Three Twins" and "Bright Eyes," it is but natural that Jos. M. Gaites should have secured Karl Roschna who is the composer of "Mme. Sherry" to write the music for his new musical production for the present season. It bears the pleasing title of "The Girl of My Dreams" and the book is by Wilbur D. Nesbit and Otto Hamerbach—the former is a well known newspaper writer in Chicago at present connected with the Evening Post of that city and Hamerbach wrote the lyrics for both "Three Twins" and "Bright Eyes."

The new piece is described as an atmospheric musical play in two acts. The dialogue is said to be bright and the comedy situations unusually funny and of a decided farcical character. The story has to do almost entirely with young people, there being only three elderly characters in it. There is a Quaker atmosphere that permeates throughout, showing itself both in costume and speech.

Mr. Gaites, who has given "The Girl of My Dreams" a most adequate production will offer it at the New Whitney theatre, Ann Arbor, Thursday, November 10.

Grinnell Bros., Michigan's leading music house; have leased a room in the Steinhack block on west Middle street, where they are showing a full line of Pianos and Player Pianos. BREVITIES

NORTHVILLE—The Starkweather Stock farm sold six of their fine Holstein cows at the auction sale held by the Michigan Holstein Breeders Co. at the State Fair grounds last week at an average of $241.00 each. This was the largest average of any breeder in the state and out of a consignment of 125 head of cattle.—Record.

ANN ARBOR—Because he ordered meals for himself and a friend and then refused to pay, Lew Andrews was arrested Thursday, and Friday morning in Justice of the Peace Ritchie's court was adjudged to pay $5.05, the costs, and 50 cents for the again. Andrews by the proprietor of the St. James restaurant.

BROOKLYN—Prof. J. B. Stephenson who is making a success at both actual and vicarious farming at his small place west of town, has lately accomplished a stunt that deserves to be talked about and repeated on dozens of farms around these parts. Last year he grubbed out and tilled a swall of several acres that in its jungle state a rabbit could scarcely navigate. This year the tract was planted to corn and the harvest shows a yield of over 100 bushels per acre, the return being sufficient to pay the entire cost of clearing, tiling and raising the first crop of corn this season, and leaves Mr. Stephenson with several extra acres of the most productive and valuable kind of farm land.—Exponent.

SALINE—Idy, and Mrs. C. A. Lederer, who have been spending the past three months visiting relatives and old friends in Wurtemberg, Germany, arrived home Tuesday feeling well and delighted with their trip, which return was especially pleasant except that they found the weather rather cold while crossing the Atlantic. It had been expected that the Hertler sisters would return with them, but they did not. When the father, Geo. Hertler, received the cablegram announcing the death of Miss Lydia Hertler, he at once sent a cablegram to bring the body, but the message was delayed a little and the body was buried in Germany before the message reached them and the two remaining sisters decided to remain there a little longer.—Observer.

JACKSON—Dr. Seth M. Angle, one of the most prominent physicians in Jackson, is under arrest charged with furnishing cocaine to minors, and the police claim to have evidence that Angle was doing a wholesale business in the drug. For several months the officers have been quietly investigating, it being a well known fact that many Jackson young men were addicted to the drug. They now have at least 20 witnesses, it is said, who will take the stand against the physician. The specific charge is based on the complaint of two lads whom, it is alleged, purchased cocaine of Dr. Angle, hired a room and snuffed the drug for its effect. The police claim that many of the young criminals of the city are made so through the use of the drug. Dr. Angle protests his innocence and has demanded an examination, which was set for October 31.

WILLIAM W. WEDEMAYER.

Candidate For Congress, Second District.

Mr. Wedemeyer has been making a strong and effective canvass. His last speech of the campaign will be made at Jackson, November 7th, the night before election, with Hon. Charles E. Townsend. Not only is Mr. Wedemeyer receiving the enthusiastic support of the members of his own party but members of other parties also, realizing his worth and just claims to recognition, are giving him help, and will vote for him in large numbers.

For Prosecuting Attorney.

Fred M. Freeman of Manchester, republican candidate for Prosecuting Attorney, who asks support in the coming election, was born at Manchester and has resided in that place practically all his life. He is admitted to practice in the circuit courts and supreme court of this state, the United States circuit and to the supreme court of the United States at Washington, D. C. Since his admission to the bar he has been actively in the practice and connected with much of the important litigation in Washtenaw, Jackson and Lenawee counties and other parts of the state.

For five years he was president of his home village being twice elected without opposition and has served two terms as village attorney. These are the only public offices he has ever held.

In his administration of affairs as village president he always gave matters his individual attention and his office was characterized by an orderly, impartial and determined enforcement of all laws. As village attorney he was a careful and conscientious advisor of the public interests.

He was defeated for this nomination two years ago by one vote and did not make a contest, but this year was nominated by a very flattering majority, receiving practically all of the votes in his home town, and now asks for support upon election day.

His experience and training will fit him for the position to which he aspires and if elected will give the affairs of the office his undivided time and attention.

As Assessor of Ann Arbor I from time to time go over all papers recorded in the register of deeds office. Never in my experience has the work of the office been kept up in better shape than under Mr. Abbott, and the copying on the books is the most legible and correct that has been done to my knowledge. Also the work has increased from a third to a half more than under previous registers. I do not see how any improvement can be made in the method of doing the work or the administration of the office.

BLAMED DOGS FOR SICKNESS

Authorities of the Middle Ages Had Little Sympathy for the House-... Disease and the dog were believed to walk together in the sixteenth century.

Worse and Worse.

"Tipping gets worse and worse on the other side," said Senator Dewey in a recent interview.

Seems to Have Good Case.

Miss Josefa Schneider, a Turkish subject, resident in Constantinople, has brought a suit for damages against the state which throws a vivid light on conditions in Turkey under Abdul Hamid II.

Portuguese Vampire.

An atrocious case of a human vampire is reported from Galizana, in Portugal. A young child, son of the local blacksmith, was missing for several days, and was found dead in a field near the town.

A Difficult Position.

"Why don't you be your own landlord?" asked the agent. "I couldn't manage it. Imagine having nobody but yourself to blame because the house is out of repair."

A Nightmare.

"I dreamed that I had a million dollars last night."

Wonderful Faith.

Randall-Bliss evidently has great faith in the lifting power of his airship.

INVITED TO QUIZ BY THE RAILROADS

MICHIGAN MEN CREDITED WITH BEING OPPOSED TO RATE INCREASE.

SHIPPERS OF GRAND RAPIDS ESPECIALLY INTERESTED IN PROPOSED INCREASE.

Shippers and Consumers Will Be Asked to Be Present When Roads Present Their Side of Case.

The Michigan railroads have practically concluded their case in behalf of increased freight rates. Their showing particularly challenges the attention of Michigan shippers and consumers.

County Officials Won't Prosecute.

While Sheriff Watson has heard nothing official from the state railroad commission in regard to the finding on the Durand wreck, in which the commission blames Superintendent Ehrke and Trainmaster Akers, of the Grand Trunk railroad, and recommends their prosecution, it is an assured fact that he will make no move for the arrest of Mr. Ehrke and Mr. Akers, unless the commission reveals information not made public in the report.

Soars Around Statue of Liberty.

John Moisan, of Chicago, exploded upward from the International Aviation meet at Belmont park in New York and flew a 50 horsepower biplane from Belmont park west by south seven miles in an air line to and around the statue of Liberty, and back to the park, 34 miles in all, in 34 minutes, 38.4 seconds, for a cash prize of $10,000, donated by Thomas F. Ryan, for the speediest trip to the statue and back during the aviation meet.

Porterhouse at 12c per Pound.

There is a merry war on in Lansing among the meat markets, and no one apparently knows the reason. Porterhouse steak is quoted at 12 cents, sirloin steak at 11 cents, round steak at 10 cents, beef roasts at 12 cents, 7 cents to 10 cents, picnic hams, 12 cents, pork chunk or sliced, 14 cents, sugar cured ham at 15 cents and cold boiled ham at 20 cents. These are only a few of the prices quoted.

Students to Study Aeronautics.

The University of Michigan Aero club was formed at Ann Arbor with about 100 members, all students. The members of the club purpose studying aviation and the construction of heavier-than-air machines, and in all likelihood several aeroplanes will be constructed next spring.

Strike Oil in Ingham County.

Despite the fact that the state geologists claimed there was absolutely no use to bore for oil in this vicinity, Charles Ricker, a promoter of Fillmore, N. Y., began prospecting on a farm in Delta township, Ingham county, some time ago, and oil was struck at a depth of 826 feet.

90c per Capita Out of School Tax.

Auditor-General Fuller stated that the apportionment of primary school moneys will be 90 cents per capita. There are 155,829 school children in the state, and the amount to be apportioned is $680,246.10. The distribution will begin after Nov. 10.

The common council of Owosso is preparing a defense from public criticism because the board of public works resigned in a body. Council members say a water pump caused the trouble because the council refused to buy it despite the board's recommendation.

At meeting of the supervisors the salaries of two circuit judges of Saginaw county were increased $1,000.

Sanitarium Chemist Ralph Myers, of Battle Creek, has asked the authorities to exhume the body of Anthony De Wolf, the Grand Trunk brakeman, who, it is believed, was poisoned, so he can make an examination of the liver. He is unable to determine the exact cause of death without this organ, he says.

The Genesee county supervisors have decided to levy a tax of 1 mill, which will net $25,000. This sum, excepting $10,000, will be used to repair the county roads. The $10,000 will be given to the townships who have already taken up the burden of repairing the roads.

STATE NOTES.

R. W. Ward, for several years editor of the Rokommon News, is dead at the Traverse City asylum.

George Thompson, 58 years old, of Owosso, was kicked over the heart by a playful colt a week ago and died.

G. M. Blirst killed a wildcat in Taylor's grove, on the outskirts of Cadillac, the first wildcat killed here in years.

Fire which started in the kitchen destroyed the Varney house in Rockwood. Nearby buildings were saved with difficulty.

The $400,000 bond issue proposition for the construction of a new water works system in Flint will be voted on at the November election.

The postoffice and safe was dynamited at Chelsea and about $250 in cash and stamps were taken by yeggmen, who raided the place.

Mayor Selby, of Flint, has ordered an investigation of the gas company's rates. Charges are made that consumers have been overcharged.

Escanaba will be the first city in the state to adopt the recall system if Gov. Warner approves a new charter that has been submitted to him.

Ten boys, about 12 years old, of the Buena Vista rural school, Saginaw, were taken in custody carrying with them 500 pounds of sugar from a freight car.

The board of supervisors of Grand Traverse county has decided to sell the present poorhouse and rent new quarters until another one can be built.

The two inspectors of drugs, attached to the dairy and food department, have inspected over 300 samples of drug products in the last three months.

The Puritan and Dove mines, located half way between Bessemer and Ironwood, are closed and 200 men are out of work. The mines belong to the steel trust.

A bee tree chopped down by Newton Kress, of Temple, yielded 250 pounds of honey. The honey filled a cavity in the tree 15 feet long and one foot square.

In his report to the Improvement association, C. F. Hoffman, of Owosso, recommended that the city incorporate under a third class charter and change to the commission form of government.

The new Catholic church in South Lyons, built by 16 families of worshippers, was dedicated Sunday. Fr. E. D. Kelley, of Ann Arbor, was officiating on the occasion, and preached the sermon.

Nathaniel H. Stuart, candidate for congress in the third district, was painfully injured at Kalamazoo, when a piece of metal from his motor car, which he was repairing, struck him in the forehead.

Robert Stroull, president of the State Master Plumbers' association and associated since 1871 with Gen. McGurrin, of Grand Rapids, in the plumbing business, is dead at his home in Grand Rapids.

Joe Allen, proprietor of the only saloon close to Holly, has decided to quit business. He says the "gang" creates a disturbance and he gets no police protection. He will run a pool room in the village.

Mrs. Owen Clark, prominent socially and officer of the Eastern Star, lies critically ill at Mercy hospital in Cadillac, following a serious operation. Mrs. Clark is known throughout the state in lodge circles.

Mrs. William Cornelius, of Jackson, arraigned on a charge of violating the local option law, pleaded guilty. She was bound over to the circuit court, November term.

After clearing two acres of land on Y. M. C. A. point at Cadillac it was found that there were 20 species of trees on the remaining one acre, and six varieties of shrubs. The property is owned by the Cadillac Y. M. C. A.

Fire destroyed the upper sawmill of the Wisconsin Land & Lumber Co. in Hermansville, causing a loss of $100,000. The origin of the fire is unknown. The damage was covered by insurance and the mill will be rebuilt.

Frank Walter made his escape from the sheriffs of three counties, Oscoda, Grand Traverse, and Wexford, in Cadillac, boarding a train while the officers were watching a restaurant he had entered. He was wanted on a swindling charge.

Galusha Pennell, a representative citizen of Clinton township, died at St. Johns Friday of neuritis. He was a graduate of the University of Michigan, former sheriff and for 12 years cashier of the National bank of St. Johns.

Mrs. Emma Joseph, a full-blooded Chippewa Indian, who was born on the banks of Hubbard lake, 20 miles from Alpena, 40 years ago, came to Alpena for the first time for the purpose of cashing a government check for $347.76.

Rushing into a moving Pere Marquette freight train the hook and ladder truck from the central fire station, Flint, was badly smashed, but the driver and brakeman, Charles Raab and Del Eckley, escaped without injury.

Postmasters appointed: Donald, Mackinac county, George A. Feneley, vice D. A. McDonald, deceased; Valley Center, Sanilac county, Silas E. Thompson, vice L. Lovejoy, resigned. Rural carriers appointed: Bangor, route 1, Archer V. McKee; East Jordan, route 4, Arthur K. Hill.

The board of public works of Eaton Rapids has decided to establish a fund current for the purpose of furnishing power for factory and other purposes, and a dynamo, additional boiler and other machines are being installed at the municipal plant.

Coming back to Battle Creek as if from the dead, Edwin Sanders found his wife wedded to another. But, unlike Enoch Arden, he refuses to slip quietly away again. As a result, Henry O. Hall, a woodworker, has instructed Attorney Joseph L. Hooper to institute proceedings for the annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Sanders.

40 CASES SMALLPOX IN CITY OF SAGINAW

Citizens Are Being Vaccinated in Wholesale Lots.

SITUATION UNDER CONTROL

Dr. Shumway Says That a Dog in a House Quarantined for Smallpox Should Not Be Allowed to Run at Large.

Lansing.—Dr. F. W. Shumway, secretary of the state board of health, says that although there are more than 40 cases of smallpox reported in the city of Saginaw, the board of health in that city seems to have the situation well under control, and he thinks that the number of vaccinations will prevent a further spread of the disease.

In a letter to Doctor Shumway, M. W. Tanner, president of the Saginaw board of health, stated that people were being vaccinated in wholesale lots. It is the hope of the board that at least 15,000 residents of Saginaw may be inoculated before the disease is permitted to gain a stronger hold.

It is the opinion of Doctor Shumway that a dog in a house quarantined for smallpox should not be allowed to run at large, as he claims that dogs may easily communicate the disease. As yet the state department has taken no hand in stamping out the disease, as Doctor Shumway says the local authorities are handling it in an excellent manner at present.

Universalists in Convention.

Universalists from all parts of the state are coming into the city to attend the sixty-seventh annual meeting of the Michigan Universalist churches in session at First Universalist church. Among those who had arrived were the president, Rev. Howard B. Bard of Grand Rapids, formerly of the First Universalist church of this city, and Rev. Lee S. McColester, D. D., of Detroit, secretary of the convention.

The women of the First Universalist church are acting as hostesses and sort of mistresses of ceremony and are receiving the guests and serving the meals.

The first conference was in charge of ministers and laymen who discussed the ministerial situation in Michigan, the increase in the ministry, and the Laymen's league plans. The second conference was led by the women of the state, who discussed the church and club work of the women. Mrs. I. M. Buck of this city led during this conference and Mrs. S. L. Holmes of Detroit acted as secretary.

The first formal and probably first full gathering of the delegates was at the vesper service, when Mrs. Myrtle Koon Cherryman, the pastor's assistant at All Soul's church, Grand Rapids, conducted the service, speaking on Maeterlinck's "Sister Beatrice."

Devotional service was in charge of Rev. C. I. Deyo of Manchester, followed by a platform meeting, Rev. George R. Rogers presiding and speaking on "The New Religious Emphasis." Rev. I. D. Case, D. D., of Chicago, and Rev. Lee S. McColester of Detroit also spoke.

Illegal Trappers Trapped.

Violators of the state game laws are keeping Warden Pierce and his deputies busy these days and numerous arrests are reported to the Lansing office every day. For several weeks the deputy wardens have kept a sharp lookout for trappers who have been in the habit of catching muskrats ahead of the regular season. Deputy George Smith made a record catch at Manistee, landing two trappers who had over 900 muskrat skins in their possession.

According to Mr. Pierce, an effort will be made to have the next legislature enact a law to protect squirrels for a period of years. Reports from various parts of the state show that the squirrels are rapidly being exterminated.

Back the Commission.

C. W. Garfield of Grand Rapids, president of the Michigan Forestry association, conferred with Secretary A. C. Carton of the public domain commission relative to plans for the annual meeting of the association in Kalamazoo November 15 and 16. "The principal business of the association now is to back up the great work that the public domain commission is doing," said Mr. Garfield. "We are all well pleased with the results obtained and hope to see the legislature increase the appropriation this winter in order that greater benefits can be secured next year."

Urges Convict Work on Roads.

State Highway Commissioner Ely, in a report made to Governor Warner, for the state industrial commission, on the use of the convicts at the Marquette prison in quarrying trap rock for use in the construction of good roads throughout the state. He appended to his report a blue print showing the location of an extensive quarry of trap rock near the prison, and a letter from the owners stating the state may have the rock for 5 cents a ton.

ASK LEGISLATURE FOR RADICAL LAWS

MICHIGAN TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION STARTS MOVEMENT FOR SWEEPING CHANGES.

PENSIONS FOR SCHOOL TEACHERS AND SANITARY REGULATIONS OF SCHOOLS IS ASKED.

Also That School Boards Be Placed Under Laws That Now Govern Incorporated Towns and Cities.

The Michigan State Teachers' association, at the meeting in Bay City Forest Hart, 23, was sentenced at Grand Rapids to Jackson prison for life on the charge of assaulting Mrs. Nancy Lazette, of Sand Lake, 72 years old.

After three days' delay, Justice John C. Davis, of Battle Creek, granted a warrant charging Ald. Ralph Erskine with assault and battery on City Attorney William E. Ware.

The jury in the case of Lorenzo Buck, treasurer of the Saginaw Veneer company, tried on the charge of burning the company's buildings near Addison May 18, returned a verdict of "Not guilty."

John Suter, prominent farmer of North Milford, was the victim of a supposed murderous assault while driving home from Cadillac. He was found by neighbors lying in the road.

Alma Capitalist's Generous Gift.

Though not himself a member of the Masonic fraternity, Ammi W. Wright, the millionaire resident of Alma, has achieved the distinction of doing more for the Masons of the state in 1910 than any other man. He has presented to the Grand Lodge of Michigan, Free and Accepted Masons, the Alma Sanitarium for a Masonic home. The value of the gift is approximately $300,000.

The sanitarium comes free and clear without strings or conditions of any sort. Furthermore the bequest includes a beautiful park of several acres adjoining the home of Mr. Wright himself; bedding, linen and tableware, and all the furnishings which go to make up a first-class, comfortable sanitarium or hotel. The building is in fine repair, and the expenditure of a very little money will fit it for the reception of 200 inmates. The old home, which was located at Grand Rapids, and which burned last February, had a capacity of but 100.

May Not Adopt Charter.

At a number of semi-political meetings held throughout the city the new proposed charter, which will give Port Huron a commission form of government, was discussed by many speakers, and the likelihood of its adoption November 5 is not so certain as it was. While the general feeling appears to be that the city will thrive under a commission government, the argument was put up that the proposed charter is but a rehash of the present charter, which is admittedly antiquated. But all agree that a commission will give the city an impetus which it needs.

Defeats Game Wardens.

A case which has been attracting a great deal of attention among the fishermen of the state has been ended in the circuit court of Leelanau county. The action was brought by Joseph Haas, of South Manitow Island, against Charles Smith and J. B. Eddy, deputy game wardens, because they confiscated several kegs of salted whitefish which they claimed were illegal and which were proved before Judge F. W. Mayne to be legal size. Both deputies were fined the value of the consignment and the interest, $87.25.

Tax Assessments Raised 75 Per Cent.

Secretary Lord, of the state tax commission, gives the information that after a careful survey of figures he finds that the average increase, where assessed valuations have been reviewed by the commission, is 75 per cent. The township assessments have not all been recorded, but the cities are all in, and the raised valuations of cities alone is over $50,000,000. Practically the entire force of clerks or all that can be spared from the regular routine of work, with an additional force of outside clerks, are now busily engaged in gathering data for the state board of equalization, which meets in Lansing next August.

Thirty Women Under Arrest.

As a result of officers locating a 14-year-old girl in a resort in Hancock, 30 women were issued for arrest of women implicated in the case. A general moral housecleaning of the city is planned by the authorities. Other cases of alleged white slavery are being investigated. The girl in the present case is the niece of a local business man. Three young men are under bail, charged with a serious offense against her.

New Michigan Corporations.

The following companies have filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state: Warren Motor Car company, Detroit, increase from $100,000 to $300,000, principal stockholders, Homer Warren, Henry C. Walters, Charles Ritter, Harry Wilson; The National Theater company, $100,000; Calhoun Photo Materials company, Muskegon, $1,000; Wolverine Motors Supply company, Detroit, $2,500, principal stockholders, Frederic A. Van Fleet, Philip Bretmeyer, Frank W. Kanter, John Gillespie

Lack of Farm Help.

It has been many years since the farmers in Eaton county have experienced the difficulty in securing help that they are up against this fall. They have made but a fair start on the corn crop and nearly all of the present scarcity of farm laborers at the unusually high wages offered, the situation is becoming a serious proposition to handle, and it looks as though the farmers will have to get their own corn-husking in the winter if they "pinch" out enough time to get their potato crop under cover before the ground freezes.

Bumper Crop of Potatoes.

With the potato crop far above the average, both as to quality and quantity, farmers of southern Michigan stand good chances of reaping the best fruit in years. Although the potato crop of the section is only about one-third harvested, bearing it on the entire yield of the country and figures already obtainable. It has been estimated at from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 bushels. The entire Michigan crop, it is said, will total close to 8,000,000 bushels.

The 1910 crop of late potatoes is of the best quality grown in years, and dealers predict an average price of from 25 to 30 cents per bushel. The corn in the immediate vicinity of Kalamazoo is practically a failure. Buckwheat shows an even larger yield than last year, but the quality is not so good. The bean crop will be a little short this year because of the long drought, a late rain saving the crop from entire loss.

Would Have the Convicts Quarry.

For the information of the industrial commission, which will recommend to the next legislature a scheme for the employment of convicts, Highway Commissioner Ely has submitted to Gov. Warner a communication urging the state to use convicts in quarrying trap rock for use in building good roads. He says that a good quarry can be secured near Marquette prison, and the rock secured from the owners for 5 cents a ton and the taxes on the property. Reports from other states are appended to show that the scheme is practicable.

Woman Accuses Pastor.

Affairs in the East Main Street Baptist church, Jackson, are in a turmoil as the result of charges made by a prominent young married woman against the pastor, Rev. G. E. Goodrich.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The population of Gary, Ind., is 16,802 as enumerated in the thirteenth census. Gary was not incorporated when the 1900 census was taken.

Brig-Gen. David Porter Heap, U. S. A., retired, 68 years old, is dead at his home in Pasadena, Cal., after a long illness. Gen. Heap was formerly chief engineer of the department of the Pacific.

Following an order from the director of the mint that all gold bullion in the New Orleans mint should be shipped to the Philadelphia mint, more than $1,200,000 in bullion was transferred last week.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the entire plant and stock of the Hardware & Supply company at Alpena, O. The loss of $150,000 on the stock and $50,000 on the building is estimated.

The building occupied by the Rockford Wholesale Grocery company at Rockford, was destroyed by fire. Employees on the second and third floors were rescued by firemen. Loss $250,000, partly insured.

The Rev. Morton Dexter, widely known as a writer of history, formerly editor and proprietor of the Congressionalist, died suddenly at Edgartown, Mass., aged 64. Mr. Dexter was graduated from Yale in 1867.

Alexander G. Macdonald, for 33 years a member of the faculty of Eastman Business college, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and who is known to thousands of Eastman graduates all over the country, is dead. Prof. Macdonald was 55 years old.

Two-thirds of the plant of H. B. Smith & Co., at Plantsville, Conn., one of the largest manufacturers of carriage hardware in the country, was destroyed by fire with a loss of $200,000. The plant which employed 250 hands will be rebuilt.

The budget for New York city for the year 1911, as finally adopted by the board of estimate and signed by all of the members of the board, totals up to $174,079,335, nearly $11,000,000 higher than that for 1910, which amounted to $163,130,270.

The will of Gen. Thomas T. Eckert, formerly president of the Western Union Telegraph Co., as filed by probate, leaves practically the entire estate to his two sons, Thomas T. Eckert, Jr., and James C. Eckert. The value of the estate is not given.

Divorce decrees granted in South Dakota are not "legal tender" in the District of Columbia, according to a decision rendered by Justice Stafford, in the district supreme court. The particular decree of divorce which the justice declared invalid in the national capital was obtained by Mrs. Louisa Hill, widow of the late Arthur B. Davis, who in April, 1907, went to South Dakota, in December, got his divorce and three weeks later was married again.

According to Senator Manuel Seaver, a special commissioner delegated by the Cuban government to make a study of police jails and ten police jails government prison and ten police jails will shortly be built in Havana. The buildings will be similar to those in New York.

Reports from returning hunters are to the effect that the deer hunting season in northern New York at midnight tonight has been very poor throughout the Adirondack region. The severity of the last winter killed many deer and the great increase in the number of hunters has driven the animals "back into the woods."

SERIAL STORY

Archibald's Agatha

By EDITH HUNTINGTON MASON

Author of "The Real Agatha"

SYNOPSIS.

Archibald Terhune, a popular and indolent young bachelor of London, receives news that he has been made heir to the estate of his Aunt Georgiana...

"Why, that's too bad!" said my wife sincerely, though somewhat surprisedly. "I'm awfully sorry, dear child, and we shall miss you, of course. But you mustn't think of going if your head aches. Go upstairs and lie down a while, why don't you, and I'll have some tea sent up to you. It's awfully good for headache." And she spoke to the footman who waited at the door of the automobile.

and I looked at Pederson, the chauffeur, in dismay. "What's to be done," I asked, but received no help from that quarter, only a dismal shake of the head.

But it appeared that he had, for when Freer remarked uselessly and obviously for the third time, "What beastly luck to have forgotten the jack. Now if only it had happened out on the main road instead of in this short-cut, we would have stood a chance of borrowing one from another car!"

"O, they stopped, did they?" I asked, and thought to myself with some satisfaction that they were in trouble, too. The misery that so often attends an automobilist is especially fond of company.

"Wonder if they'd lend us a jack?" I remarked aloud. "What kind of a machine was it, kid?"

"A whoppin' big feller, red, like your lordship's," said the boy. Of course he knew me, even if I didn't know him. He was probably the butcher's or baker's boy from Wye on his way back from the castle.

"Sounds rather promising," said Dearest. "Do go and see if they can't help us out. I don't want Agatha Lawrence to walk all that way home in this mud!"

"Very well," I said, "but it sounds as if they were in need of assistance themselves! Why else should they want to stop in the middle of the woods? However, I'll make the attempt. Freer, you stay by the ladies, and I'll go and see what I can do."

"I didn't say," she replied, "only it does look a little like it, doesn't it? You see he couldn't go to the cricket with us because he had to go up to London, and she, because she had a headache. Voila tout!"

"But we saw the wire," I objected. "Oh, as to that!" she said, "a telegram's easily enough cooked up! He had only to write one himself and tell the station-master to send it over. We none of us examined it closely. It's an old dodge, you know."

"So it is!" I cried, "and you're right. It must have been old Terhune! What a dunderhead I've been not to see it before! But I say," I added, less exuberantly as a thought struck me, "if that's the case, what does he mean by it, Dearest? What do they both mean by it, he and she? And what does it portend in regard to the match we're trying to make between Arch and Miss Lawrence? Answer any of those questions if you can! Wisecratch that you are, I believe you'll have to let me count ten on that!"

"I'm afraid I will," she admitted, as puzzled as I was. "You see I never knew Agatha Endicott as well as I did the other five Agathas—as well as I do Agatha Sixth, and then you know Agatha Sixth has visited me before, and this is the first time I've seen Agatha First since we parted on the occasion of my marriage."

Burlesque Wedding Guests. Poulbot, a Paris caricaturist, having determined upon so commonplace a step as getting married, decided that he would be married in no commonplace way. He asked all his friends to the wedding, but there was a sine qua non condition attached to the invitation. You had to go with a "made-up head," or you would not be admitted. Preferably you were requested to make up as a country cousin at a village wedding. Some guests arrived as ancient peasants, others as village idiots. There were several bluff squires and rural elderly gentlemen with means, a number of retired officers and exuberant uncles from the south, besides fierce military gentlemen from the hottest stations of Algeria. The only persons who wore their natural physiognomies were the couple most concerned. They had drawn the line at making up themselves as a burlesque bride and a comic bridegroom.

Caught! "Do you remember me buying a hair mattress from you the other day?" asked the lady. "Perfectly well, ma'am," was the reply of the dealer.

"Well, I've discovered that only about one-quarter of the filling is hair." "Then you certainly do seem to have me where the hair is short, ma'am."

tion for a chap to be caught in, eavesdropping, and if they had seen me they would never have believed I had not been spying on them.

"No," I said shortly, too absorbed in conjecturing the meaning of the strange discovery I had just stumbled upon to invent any excuse for the failure of my errand.

"We'll just have to walk home," I said. "Pederson can wait with the car and I'll send him help from the castle."

And all the way home I pondered upon my queer adventure. What could Agatha First be doing in a strange automobile in the middle of the woods when she was supposed to be ill at home, and who was the man who was with her, the owner of the checked coat? That was the most mysterious part of the whole business to me, and though I racked my brain I could not possibly think who he might be!

PART TWO. CHAPTER VI.

It wasn't until later that same afternoon of our Northbury trip, when Lady Vincent and I had ascended to our rooms to dress for dinner, that I found a chance to tell her the news. I can always be sure of an uninterrupted chat with her then.

"And so you saw her sitting in the automobile alone in the middle of the woods?" asked Dearest, when I had finished my breathless recital.

"Yes, that is as far as I could see, she was alone," I replied. "But you forget the man's laugh and the checked coat. There was a man with her right enough, and though I didn't think so at the time, I think now that makes the thing much more mysterious."

"Of course there was a man with her," remarked Dearest. "It was a lover's tryst, as plain as plain can be!" Dearest is so romantic. But then at the same time I'll have to admit she's nearly always right.

"But who under high heaven could it have been?" I cried, never more puzzled in my life.

"We know it wasn't Freer; he was with us all the time, and Terhune has been in London all day!"

"He said he was going to be in London," remarked my wife with the slightest possible emphasis on the "said." I gaped at her a moment, then seized her shoulder.

"Do you mean to say it was Archibald?" I cried, "who was the owner of the checked coat?"

"I didn't say," she replied, "only it does look a little like it, doesn't it? You see he couldn't go to the cricket with us because he had to go up to London, and she, because she had a headache. Voila tout!"

"But we saw the wire," I objected. "Oh, as to that!" she said, "a telegram's easily enough cooked up! He had only to write one himself and tell the station-master to send it over. We none of us examined it closely. It's an old dodge, you know."

"So it is!" I cried, "and you're right. It must have been old Terhune! What a dunderhead I've been not to see it before! But I say," I added, less exuberantly as a thought struck me, "if that's the case, what does he mean by it, Dearest? What do they both mean by it, he and she? And what does it portend in regard to the match we're trying to make between Arch and Miss Lawrence? Answer any of those questions if you can! Wisecratch that you are, I believe you'll have to let me count ten on that!"

"I'm afraid I will," she admitted, as puzzled as I was. "You see I never knew Agatha Endicott as well as I did the other five Agathas—as well as I do Agatha Sixth, and then you know Agatha Sixth has visited me before, and this is the first time I've seen Agatha First since we parted on the occasion of my marriage."

Burlesque Wedding Guests. Poulbot, a Paris caricaturist, having determined upon so commonplace a step as getting married, decided that he would be married in no commonplace way. He asked all his friends to the wedding, but there was a sine qua non condition attached to the invitation. You had to go with a "made-up head," or you would not be admitted. Preferably you were requested to make up as a country cousin at a village wedding. Some guests arrived as ancient peasants, others as village idiots. There were several bluff squires and rural elderly gentlemen with means, a number of retired officers and exuberant uncles from the south, besides fierce military gentlemen from the hottest stations of Algeria. The only persons who wore their natural physiognomies were the couple most concerned. They had drawn the line at making up themselves as a burlesque bride and a comic bridegroom.

Caught! "Do you remember me buying a hair mattress from you the other day?" asked the lady. "Perfectly well, ma'am," was the reply of the dealer.

SERIOUS FUNGUS DISEASE OF EUROPEAN POTATOES

Known as "Black Scab" and Every Effort Should be Made to Prevent Its Development in This Country.

During the past thirteen years a serious fungus disease of potatoes has spread throughout European countries. It was first recorded from Hungary in 1896 and appeared in England in 1901 and is known as the "black scab," "wart disease" and "potato canker."

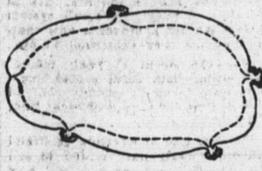

The extraordinary virulence of the disease and the rapidity with which it has spread, make it necessary to warn all potato growers to be on the lookout for this disease.

Where allowed to establish itself it renders the cultivation of potatoes extremely difficult, as they cannot be raised on that ground for a period of at least six years. Therefore, stringent preventive measures should be used to keep this disease out of the United States.

In 1908 in England, Scotland and Wales, persons concealing this disease are liable to prosecution and a heavy penalty.

It is believed that the disease is likely to be introduced into the United States at any time. In order that the disease may be recognized and promptly reported, it is fully described by H. T. Gussow in a bulletin of the central experimental farm of Canada and by W. A. Orton of the United States bureau of plant that of a pea. The gray surface of the swollen eye is dotted over with golden-yellow rings, as seen with a pocket lens. Some tubers will be found, when the crop is harvested, with more or less than one-half of them covered by these warty excrescences, which in some instances are larger than the tuber itself. This warty growth consists of a coral-like mass, or more or less scaly excrescences, similar in appearance to the well-known crown or root gall of apples. The warts are of a somewhat lighter color at the base and dotted with minute rusty brown spots over the surface. In advanced stages, the tubers are wholly covered with this growth, and have lost every semblance to potatoes.

A still more advanced stage occurs when the fungus has utilized every particle of food stored in the potato and has reduced it to a brownish-black soft mass, giving off a very unpleasant putrid odor. This is the most dangerous stage of the disease, as tubers which have reached it cannot be harvested whole. They break in pieces and thus the brownish-pulpy industry, in a circular recently issued. When the disease is prevalent on healthy tubers will develop. When lifted they will show various degrees of injury. The first indication of the disease may be noticed around the eyes of the potato, which show an abnormal development of the dormant shoot. In this condition the disease is liable to escape detection and thus be spread by the use of infected tubers as seed. In the earlier stages of the disease the eye will be found slightly protruding in the form of a single or compound group of small nodules, varying from the size of a pin head to mass, consisting entirely of the spores of the fungus and remains of the cell walls of the potatoes is broken up and the land is badly infected for years. The disease is often so prevalent as to destroy the entire crop.

Diseased tubers are not fit for seed, and should be either destroyed by burning or boiled and fed to pigs, and as the tops also may be diseased they should be gathered and burned. Infected soil will for years produce unsound crops, and the disease may be carried to uninfected areas by soil adhering to the boots of the workmen, to farm carts, and to implements. Under no circumstances should unboiled or decayed potatoes be used as food for stock, not only because the feeding value is reduced, but mainly because the spores are capable of germination after passing through the body of the animal.

Never use seed potatoes from a diseased crop. If the seed is suspected, the seeds should be powdered with sulphur and stored in boxes until planted. Four or five pounds of sulphur is sufficient to treat one ton of potatoes.

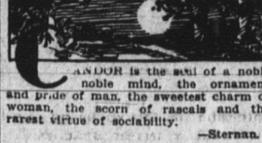

DOUBLE TUBEROUS BEGONIAS

Many of those who have purchased tubers of the Double Tuberous Begonias have felt disappointed when the plants began to bloom, and censured the florist for selling begonias that were not true to name, because part of the flowers on each stalk were single, says Park's Floral Magazine. This misunderstanding comes from lack of knowledge of how the flowers become double. It should be known that the Tuberous Begonia is just like the pumpkin vine in flower-bearing, some of the flowers being pistillate and some staminate upon the same plant. The doubling is due to the stamens of the staminate flowers turning to petals, instead of developing naturally. This can be readily observed by examining a semi-double flower. The pistillate flowers do not have stamens, and hence are always single. The little sketch herewith given of single and semi-double flowers will afford some idea of the variation. Both of the flowers represented were taken from the same plant, and in the double flower some of the stamens were only half developed into petals. This character of the Tuberous Begonia should be borne in mind, as it may save some disappointment in the flowers and save the florist from being unjustly the subject of reproach, and receiving anathemas of the wrathful gardener.

The KITCHEN CABINET

For a Yellow Luncheon. During the golden rod season a very attractive luncheon may be served. Let the rooms and porches be decorated with the feathery yellow blossom, having all the table pieces low and not too large.

For the menu serve a delicate soup like cream of celery, and on top of each place a spoonful of whipped cream, and for the yellow color just a suggestion of egg yolk from a hard-cooked egg put through a ricer or sieve. If one wishes to omit the soup, a fruit course may be substituted, or both may be served.

For the fruit course, the rich yellow of musk melons served in balls made with a French potato cutter and dressed with a bit of lemon juice and powdered sugar, is very good. For the main dish, chicken croquettes with white sauce garnished with grated yellow cheese, might prove most appetizing.

With the ice cream, which will be plain vanilla, serve preserved yellow pumpkin. It tastes much better than it sounds and is a beautiful yellow to carry out the color scheme. Cut the pumpkin in dainty cubes and preserve with orange and lemon. It is the custom with many who entertain, when carrying out a color scheme, to tie the rolls with ribbon of the color used in the decoration. Ribbon seems very much out of place on food; it may be used in the table decoration to advantage or to tie up small boxes of candy as favors or in countless pleasing ways, but as an ornament or garnish for food, it seems inappropriate.

Mustard Pickles. Take two quarts of small cucumbers, the same of small onions and tomatoes, one quart of wax beans, three green peppers chopped fine. Let stand in salt water to cover over night, using half a cupful of salt in enough water to cover the vegetables, put a weight upon them. In the morning scald until tender in clear water, drain and pour over the following mustard preparation: Mix one-half pound of mustard, one-fourth of an ounce of turmeric, three teaspoonfuls of celery seed and three-fourths of a cup of flour. Slowly add four quarts of vinegar and cook until smooth.

Digestible and Nutritious Foods. There are those, who even yet, after much has been said and written about foods, their digestibility and value in repairing waste and building tissue, speak of digestible and nutritious as synonymous terms.

Foods may be very easily digested that contain little nutriment, for example, the oyster is easily digested but is not as nutritious as we once supposed it to be. Gelatine is easily digested but is of little value as a food. The tissue-building foods are milk, cheese, eggs, fish, lean meat, poultry, dried beans, peas, nuts and grains.

Those foods that supply muscular energy and if eaten in excess are stored in the body in the form of fat, are underground vegetables, corn, rice, bacon, olive oil, cream, butter, grapes, dates, figs, honey and sugar. A digestible food is one that is assimilated, a nutritious food is one that repairs waste, builds tissue and gives heat and energy.

To Can Tomatoes. Take one gallon of water, one cupful of salt and when boiling drop in peeled tomatoes and cook until thoroughly scalded, place in cans, using a skimmer to drain off all the brine. The juice of the tomatoes will make enough liquid to cover and the brine may be reheated for other tomatoes. The brine at last may be canned as it will be less salty after using and after straining it may be used for soups.

Corn Relish. Cut corn from 12 ears of corn, chop a small head of cabbage fine, sprinkle salt all over the cabbage and let it stand three hours. Drain off the water and put corn and cabbage together, add one cupful of sugar, two quarts of vinegar, one-half cupful of ground mustard, four small red peppers chopped fine cook all until tender, seal in bottles or pint cans. If one does not like cabbage, celery may be substituted.

Water Melon Rind Pickles. Peel the rind and cut in one-inch slices, let stand over night in salt water. Make a syrup of four pounds of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of ground cinnamon, one teaspoonful of cloves and two quarts of vinegar. Tie the pieces in a cloth, pour the hot syrup over the drained melon rind, add the pieces, let stand 24 hours and reheat the syrup four mornings in succession cover for winter use.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — Mrs. Emma Lutz, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

Why the Boy Gave Thanks. Alan had played the entire day with little brother without an impatient word. After saying his customary prayer that night, his mother suggested that he add: "I thank God I was not impatient with little brother today." This he did with much fervency; after which he remarked that there were some other things he would like to thank God for, and forthwith he closed his eyes and said: "I thank God I offered my candy to father before taking any myself."

"I thank God I offered my candy to mother before taking any myself." "I thank God I offered my candy to little brother before taking any myself." "And I thank God there was some left." — Lippincott's.

Model African King. The Christian village of Hombo in Africa is a proof of the power of the gospel. At daybreak every morning the horn is blown and the people assemble at the king's house to hear the word of God read, and to praise and pray. Witchcraft and superstition have fallen under the power of the gospel, and the heathens are taking knowledge of it. Cheering Up the Guide. "Remember, Henry," said the hunter who had arranged with the guide, "we're not hiring you—you're simply one of our party." "What's on your mind?" inquired the guide. "Well, you see, in case anything happens we don't want to be troubled with this new employers' liability law," admitted the cautious hunter.—Fuck.

THE FIRST TASTE Learned to Drink Coffee When a Baby. If parents realized the fact that coffee contains a drug—caffeine—which is especially harmful to children, they would doubtless hesitate before giving the babies coffee to drink.

"When I was a child in my mother's arms and first began to nibble things at the table, mother used to give me sips of coffee. As my parents used coffee exclusively at meals I never knew there was anything to drink but coffee and water.

"And so I contracted the coffee habit early. I remember when quite young the continual use of coffee so affected my parents that they tried roasting wheat and barley, then ground it in the coffee-mill, as a substitute for coffee.

"But it did not taste right and they went back to coffee again. That was long before Postum was ever heard of. I continued to use coffee until I was 27, and when I got into office work, I began to have nervous spells. Especially after breakfast I was so nervous I could scarcely attend to my correspondence.

"At night, after having coffee for supper, I could hardly sleep, and on rising in the morning would feel weak and nervous.

"A friend persuaded me to try Postum. My wife and I did not like it at first, but later when boiled good and strong it was fine. Now we would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever tasted.

"I can now get good sleep, am free from nervousness and headaches. I recommend Postum to all coffee drinkers."

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

- For Representative in Congress—W. W. WEDEMEYER. For State Senator—FRANK T. NEWTON. For Member Legislature—JOHN KALMBACH. For Sheriff—LESTER CANFIELD. For County Clerk—CHARLES L. MILLER. For County Treasurer—H. W. CRIPPEN. For Register of Deeds—GEO. W. SWEET. For Prosecuting Attorney—FRED M. FREEMAN. For Circuit Commissioners—EDWARD B. BENSCHKE, WILLIAM S. PUTNAM. For Coroners—S. W. BURCHFIELD, W. G. JOHNSON. For Drain Commissioner—WILBUR JARVIS.

ATTENTION has been called to the fact, but it can well be repeated, that the election of a Republican United States Senator in Michigan as the result of the coming state election can only be accomplished through the election of Republican members of the state legislature. Congressman Charles E. Townsend was made the candidate of the Republicans of Michigan at the primary election, but under the terms of our state constitution the senator from this state must be formally elected by the next state legislature. Failure on the part of Michigan Republicans to elect a majority of the legislature would result in the defeat of Mr. Townsend and the election of a Democratic senator from this state. Your vote for the Republican candidates for member of the legislature and state senator from your district will be a vote for Mr. Townsend for United States senator, and in no other way at this time can the individual Republican voter assist in Mr. Townsend's election. It is important not only to the Republicans of Michigan, but to all who are interested in the progress and advancement of our state, that this matter should be kept clearly in mind.

JOHN KALMBACH, the republican nominee for representative in the state legislature from this district, is the first man from this section for many years to receive this honor, and local pride, coupled with the fact that Mr. Kalmbach is capable of fulfilling the duties of this important office in a most satisfactory manner, will undoubtedly result in his election next Tuesday by a large majority. Mr. Kalmbach is a man of ability, is an indefatigable worker, and will be on the job all of the time during the sessions of the legislature, and will look after the interests of his constituents. Not only should he receive the votes of the voters of this district for his own worth, but his election means a vote at the joint session of the state senate and legislature for Hon. Chas. E. Townsend for United States Senator. Mr. Kalmbach is a native of Sylvan and has spent his entire life here. He has made his way by his own unaided efforts, and will give the office the same attention that he has given his private business.

HON. W. W. WEDEMEYER, republican candidate for congress, was born in Lima township, and his younger years were spent there. The people of this section realize Mr. Wedemeyer's worth and qualifications for this office, and his vote in this section should be a large one. Mr. Wedemeyer worked his way through the University of Michigan by his own hard work, and has been most successful in all his undertakings. He is a splendid representative of the newer spirit in American politics. His life and acts; his own struggles and experiences; his closeness to the hearts and lives of the everyday man—all of these things give the best and safest assurance that when elected to congress, William W. Wedemeyer will stand for the great progressive movements, and will be found fighting always for the best interests of the great masses of our people.

THE republicans have placed in the field a ticket of which they can well feel proud, and one of which all members of the party can unite and present a solid front. Next Tuesday is election day, and every republican should make it a point to go to the polls and cast his vote for the entire ticket.

FRED M. FREEMAN, republican candidate for prosecuting attorney, is well qualified to fulfill the duties of this office, is a representative on the ticket from the western end of the county. If elected, which he will undoubtedly be, he will give the office the attention that such an important office should receive, and the people will find that they have not made any mistake by voting for him next Tuesday.

THE voters of this section of the county will remember on election day that Lester Canfield, republican candidate for sheriff, was a native of Lyndon township and spent many years of his earlier life in this vicinity. His friends here are legion and he will receive a large vote.

MAN'S DAYS FULL OF SORROW

According to Pessimistic Writer, His Troubles May All Be Traced to One Source. Man born of woman is of few days—days full of women. In his infancy, women trod him upon their knees when he wisteth to lie in his cradle and think. They give him hugs and kisses when he thirsteth for milk. And lo, when he hath grown lusty and strong and his soul craveth caresses, they give him the merry ha ha! In the days of his childhood he riseth to be spanked by a nurse. At eventide he saith his prayers in the shadow of a slipper upheld by the hand that rocketh the cradle. The days of his youth are darkened because many women give him the mitten; and the years of his manhood are embittered because one woman did not. He goeth forth in the morning—to be sued for breach of promise. At high noon, still a man though sadly harried, he seeketh refuge on the altar; and behold, he emergeth from the sanctuary but the half of a woman. He seeketh his bed at night, and lo, how the woman with the serpent's tongue stingeth his ear! He acquirith a mistress by marriage, and loseth her by divorce. By toll he accumulath a pile, and hath it halved by alimony. This he repeateth many times until he thinketh: "Verily, it were better to wed a rich grass widow and feed upon the succulent green herbage all the days of my life." But lo, the widest pasture hath a fence, which soon becometh an open place. Like a caged gamecock, he panteth for freedom—and flieth the coop.—Terrell Love Holliday, in Smart Set.

Backache is constant day and night. Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent. The weakened kidneys need quick help. Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache and urinary disorders. Chelsea evidence proves this statement. Glenn Barbour, N. Main St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "I suffered intensely from dull, nagging backaches which were no doubt brought on by standing so long at my work. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and caused me annoyance. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box and soon after I commenced their use, my aches and pains disappeared, together with the kidney difficulty. I now have no trouble from my kidneys." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

How the Roman Empire Grew. Rome was founded B. C. 750; the kings were expelled B. C. 509; and it was not until B. C. 290, 460 years after the founding of the city, that the Romans conquered their immediate neighbors, the Samnites, Latins, etc. It was not until B. C. 266, following the defeat of Pyrrhus, that Rome was supreme in Italy, from the southern boundary of Cisalpine Gaul to the Sicilian straits. For 350 years, from the foundation of the city, the Romans could stand on the hills of their city and almost look across their entire territory, as it stretched away only some 20 miles on either hand. After the consolidation of their power in Italy, however, it took them but 150 years to conquer the world.—Review of Reviews.

General Election.

Notice is hereby given to the qualified electors of the township of Sylvan, county of Washtenaw, state of Michigan, that the next ensuing general election will be held at the town hall, village of Chelsea, within said township, on Tuesday, November 8, 1910, at which election the following officers are to be chosen, viz.: STATE—One Governor, one Lieutenant Governor, one Secretary of State, one State Treasurer, one Auditor General, one Attorney General, one Commissioner of the State Land Office and one Justice of the Supreme Court to fill vacancy for the term ending December 31st, 1911.

LEGISLATIVE—One Senator in the State Legislature for the Senatorial district of which said township forms a part; one Representative in the state Legislature for the Representative district of which said township forms a part. COUNTY—One Sheriff, one County Clerk, one County Treasurer, one Register of Deeds, one Prosecuting Attorney, two Circuit Court Commissioners, two Coroners, one Surveyor, one Drain Commissioner.

PROPOSITIONS. The following proposition will also be voted upon at said election, viz.: To amend Section 12 of Article 8 of the Constitution of the State of Michigan, relative to bonded indebtedness of Counties, as provided by Concurrent Resolution No. 4, Legislative Session 1909.

This amendment if adopted, will affect only such counties as have an assessed valuation of $5,000,000 or less, but of course can be voted upon by all electors throughout the State of Michigan, except that women are not entitled to vote upon this proposition.

In accordance with the Constitution of the State of Michigan and Act 206, Public Acts of 1909, should there be any proposition or propositions to vote upon at said Election involving the direct expenditure of public money, or the issue of bonds, every woman who possesses the qualifications of male electors and owns other property assessed for taxes or owns property subject to taxation jointly with her husband, or with any other person, or who owns property on contract and pays taxes thereon, all such property being located somewhere within the district or territory to be affected by the result of said election, will be entitled to vote upon such propositions, provided such person has had her name duly registered in accordance with the provisions of said Act.

The Polls of said Election will be open at 7 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of Election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall in their discretion adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock, noon, for one hour.

Dated this 26th day of October, A. D. 1910. PAUL O. BACON, Clerk of said Township.

Good News From Youth's Companion.

We have had to make The Youth's Companion larger to get in all the good things that Companion-readers ought to have. The added amount would make four hundred pages of standard magazine size and print; but we have kept the price just the same—$1.75 for the fifty-two weeks of 1911, and all the issues for the rest of this year free from the time you send in your subscription.

We would like to tell you what is in store for Companion readers next year. We cannot do it here, though; there is not room. But send us your address on a postal card, and we will send you the beautiful Prospectus of The Companion for 1911, announcing many new features, together with sample copies of the paper. We think you will agree, when you have read them, that there is no other paper that gives quite so much of such a high quality as The Companion.

The new subscriber receives a gift of The Companion's Art Calendar for 1911, reproducing in thirteen colors and gold a beautiful water-color scene.

A BUGLE CALL TO REPUBLICANS

THE RINGING ENDORSEMENT OF CHASE S. OSBORN AND CHARLES E. TOWNSEND BY COL. ROOSEVELT.

Progressive, Singularly Able and Honest Man for Governor.

Best Desirability of Electing Townsend Senator.

The following telegram sent by ex-President Roosevelt to Curtis Guild, former governor of Massachusetts, in response to Mr. Guild's request to Roosevelt to come to Michigan to work for the campaign in behalf of Mr. Osborn and Mr. Townsend and endorse republican ticket, speaks for itself:
Thank you for the telegram. I sympathize with every word you say in describing the situation in Michigan. I deeply regret that it is a physical impossibility for me to accept the invitation to go to Michigan to take part in the campaign for the entire republican ticket as I would gladly and thoroughly understand as you that in Michigan the progressives have a clear-cut victory; that their term takes a proper stand in favor of a tariff commission and conservation of natural resources. Myself, Chase S. Osborn, the candidate for governor, is a progressive and a singularly able and honest man. However, I also agree with you as to the great desirability of electing

Mr. Townsend as senator. Mr. Townsend as joint author with Mr. Osborn of the first railroad rate bill while I was in the White House did excellent work for railway rate legislation and I heartily wish him success as senator. It is a cause of genuine regret to me that I am not able to go and do all I can for the entire ticket in Michigan. Mr. Osborn is a man like Stimson, of New York, who will clean house from cellar to garret, driving every wrongdoer from office. The effective way to prevent a thorough clean-up would be not to elect him and indeed a failure to elect him would be a genuine calamity from the standpoint of good citizenship. Mr. Townsend's attitude on the railroad rate legislation is sufficient proof of the desirability of sending him to the senate, and this can only be done by voting for the republican candidates for the legislature. Michigan republicans have nominated two progressive candidates and it is imperative that they give them aggressive support at the polls. (Signed) THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

CHASE S. OSBORN'S RECORD

Reference to the records of our state in connection with the railroad commissioner's department show that more was accomplished during his term than was accomplished during any other similar period in the history of Michigan.
One of Mr. Osborn's very first acts in connection with his desire to throw every possible safeguard around train accidents and to prevent accidents was to create a new division of this department for the exclusive consideration of overhead wire matters.
Through the prompt work of that division during the first year of his term 7,000 wire crossings were inspected, 5,000 of which were found defective and repairs and changes compelled.
From the first day of his term of office as railroad commissioner, until his last hour of service, Chase S. Osborn was constant in his efforts to reduce the separation of grades for roads and this effort extended to electric roads and street railroads and wherever possible to highway crossings.
There is absolutely no way to adequately protect life and property at broad crossings except by separation of grades," he declared, and on that declaration was based an active campaign such as Mr. Osborn always gives matters concerning which he is thoroughly in earnest.
In one year he secured separation of grades at twenty-three different points, accomplishing more in that respect during that one year than had been accomplished during all the previous history of our state.
It is also true that more was effected through Mr. Osborn's efforts in the way of securing the adoption of broad safety appliances than had been brought about through all past years.
Through Commissioner Osborn's efforts in the matter of requiring all cars to be equipped with safety appliances, and controversies, extra receipts by the state treasury from railroad cars were secured to an amount in excess of the entire cost of maintaining the state railroad department, including salaries and the expenses of all its officials.
It is further very well remembered by the people of Michigan that it was during Mr. Osborn's term as state railroad commissioner that the special charters of all Michigan railroads were repealed.

And they further recall that more was accomplished in the way of reducing railroad fares through his efforts and through his energy than had ever before been brought about.
Mr. Hemans, the Democratic candidate for governor, is devoting much of his time to calling attention to the expenses of the railroad commissioner's office during Mr. Osborn's term, but he is not referring to the more important fact that the expenditures he refers to brought better results, dollar for dollar, than any money ever expended on state account.
The records fully warrant the claim that during Mr. Osborn's term of office as state railroad commissioner, more desirable legislation and more important results in the way of life saving requirements and railroad betterment were brought about than during all the years of his history.
The era of doing things, of getting results and the period of important permanent accomplishment in connection with matters with which he officially had to do was the period of Chase S. Osborn's term of service as Michigan's state railroad commissioner.

CONSIDER WELL.

Prosperity or Disaster? The Voter is the Judge.
If there are any Michigan Republicans who have in mind to desert their party candidates and their party principles through voting for Democratic candidates at the coming election there are some questions they should seriously consider before carrying out that intention.
Would a Democratic victory in 1910 increase the wages of any worker in the country?
Would it start a single wheel in operation which is idle now?
Would it broaden the market for any fabric which any American mill produces?
Would it sell an additional bushel of corn or wheat, bale of cotton, pound of meat or anything else which the farmer or the planter produces?
No sane person among the 90,000,000 people of the country will answer any of these queries in the affirmative.

BROAD OF VIEW, SOUND IN REASON

PLAIN, VIGOROUS STATEMENT SHOWING MR. TOWNSEND'S POLITICAL TREND.

Progressive in the Line of All That's Best for the Whole Country.

Extracts from Speech of Congressman Charles E. Townsend at Battle Creek, June 9, 1910.

"The Constitution provides for two houses of Congress, one to be composed of members elected directly by the people and the other of members elected by the state legislatures. This provision was inserted by the fathers because of their doubt of the people's ability to absolutely control their own affairs. It was thought that a few legislators could better select dignified and conservative senators than could the people, and that the state was something different and apart from the people. I believe that we have progressed far enough in popular government and in general intelligence to make it safe for the people to select their representatives in both branches of Congress. I also believe that direct responsibility to the people is more conducive to wise and beneficial legislation than responsibility to state legislators, whose tenures of office are short and whose responsibilities are limited.
"This is a representative form of government, in theory a government by the people. I am a firm believer in that good, old-fashioned doctrine.
"I believe that we have progressed beyond the 'standpat' idea. Independence, judgment and courage are needed in representative halls today. Needed, that the old reactionary spirit does not prevail and that the spirit of progress does not go beyond bounds where it will cease to be progress and will become confusion.
"This spirit was born of the administration of Theodore Roosevelt. It is today a living, moving force and, if it follows the channel marked by judgment and common sense, the results cannot be other than good.
"This feeling has, without doubt, been due to the fact that in some cases the influence of the great corporations of the country has been subversive of the best interests of the nation. I believe in the transaction of business through the agency of corporations rightly conducted. They have become a necessity to the business of the country. In no other way could the immense industrial and financial projects of the present day be carried out. No individual could bring them to a successful fruition. They have grown up because of the needs of commerce and the requirements of the world's work. The flagrant abuses which have from time to time crept in have of necessity been the object of governmental correction. Roosevelt called the attention of Congress and the country to these abuses and declared anew that the object of all government and of all industries under the government is to promote

REMEMBER

Michigan is a Republican state and should be represented in congress by a delegation of men who will stand firmly by the principles of the Republican party.
If the Republican party is to maintain its dominating position in the affairs of state (that the prosperity now enjoyed may be continued) it is imperative that the lower house of congress be safely Republican so that a Republican president will not have his hands tied.
Vote for your Republican candidate for congress. In doing so you vote not only for the man but for the principles of the party with which you are affiliated.
No matter what the Democratic candidate for congress promises you, he will be bound in congress by what his party stands for, and it stands for free trade and the destruction of American industries.

HONOR AND CREDIT.
Senator Smith Pays High Tribute to Mr. Osborn.

William Aiden Smith, soon-to-be senior senator of Michigan, like the distinguished Republican candidate for governor, is a newspaper man. He is not the only editor in the senate chamber, however, for there are many scribes at present in that distinguished body, among whom can be named Shively of Indiana and Bristow of Kansas; and La Follette, one of the great leaders of the progressive wing of the Republican party, was once the publisher of a weekly paper. William Aiden Smith holds a degree of master of arts, which was awarded him by Dartmouth college. He is an eloquent orator, and delivered the opening address of the Republican state convention at Detroit. Senator Smith is a great admirer of Chase S. Osborn, and in his speech before the convention he said:
"Our state has never experienced a more prolonged and animated contest for the gubernatorial nomination than the one through which we have just passed. Out of a field singularly appropriate, in a contest at times lurid and sensational, has come a candidate of unusual proportions, whose fitness for leadership is barren of conjecture or chance. Never in the history of our commonwealth have we called to the head of the column a man of more or finer parts. Illuminating as a star, this brilliant scholar, author, traveler and man of affairs will bring dignity and character to the executive office and invest the governorship with a new meaning in state affairs, dowering it with an equipment as practical as it is extraordinary.
"November will see him in the pilot house, clearing the decks for action, and Governor Osborn will bring nothing but credit and honor to us all."
Speaking of and for the new tariff measure, the senator said:
"The new tariff law has been the object of much unjust criticism and misrepresentation. Much of the discontent has come from those who leave the country when the ship of state wrestles hardest with the billows, seeking the repose of their native lands."
"While we who made it know that it is not perfect and voted for it under no misapprehension, yet it is a comfort to know that its enactment closed no mills, destroyed no factories, left no fertile field to waste. It did not impair the national credit or deprive a workman of his wage. And we hope that it will at least be the basis for all future trade laws, and that future revisions may be made piecemeal, schedule by schedule, as necessity may require."

HERE'S A RECORD.

Lawton E. Hemans Did Some Things But — ?

It is worthy of note in this campaign that Lawton T. Hemans, the Democratic candidate for governor, is making no reference to his own official record. Not a word has he uttered touching his official performances or attempted accomplishments.
Yet Mr. Hemans was on the safety list through two full terms as a legislator. He was not present at more than half the sessions of the body to which he belonged, but he drew pay for full time.
He introduced a bill to provide for an additional state board. But as a candidate for governor he is now denouncing the existence of so many state boards.
Mr. Hemans introduced a bill to license bucketshops in Michigan. His bill sought to make the pretended sales and purchases through bucketshops "legitimate legal transactions." What the people of Michigan think of the bucketshop business which would have been licensed and legalized if the Democratic candidate for governor had secured the passage of his bill is shown by the fact that at the next session of the legislature following his effort a bill entirely prohibiting the existence of bucketshops in Michigan became a law.
Mr. Hemans is now seemingly distressed over state expenditures, but he voted for more appropriation bills than any other member of the legislature during his terms of service, and afterwards made an address in the constitutional convention declaring that it was not true that Michigan legislators had ever made extravagant appropriations.
As a member of the constitutional convention Mr. Hemans opposed the proposition that the legislature of Michigan should have power to enact laws relative to the hours and conditions under which women and children may be employed.
This proposition was especially urged by the labor organizations of Michigan. They petitioned that the constitution should give this power to the legislature. And the justice of the request was recognized by the majority of the members of the constitutional convention. It was adopted by the constitutional convention and later on was approved by the people and is now a part of our state constitution.
But Lawton T. Hemans made a speech against it, sneeringly referring to it as "a little piece of sentiment." Why is Mr. Hemans not referring to this feature of his official record?

These are my views on the leading questions before the country today. These questions are, in my judgment, of great importance and must be determined wisely and well. There has been too much of self-sacrifice, patriotism and devotion to country for us to make serious mistakes in these things. We of this generation must never forget what our fathers went through in order that this republic might endure. Our existence as a nation today is due to the patriotic and sacrificial service of the Union army of the civil war. The average age of the men who constituted that army was less than that of the men who served in the best part of our lives and the best part of their lives to the service of their country, and that country has expressed its gratitude to its defenders in a most liberal of any nation on earth, and yet no patriot believes it has been too liberal. Today the remnant of the soldiers of the rebellion is in the declining years of life and practically beyond the age when through their own efforts they can support themselves. In my judgment, it is the duty of the government to care for these veterans in such a way as to place them beyond the possibility of embarrassment for the necessities and ordinary comforts of life. There is no money which the government expends which is more properly placed than that which goes to pay the pensions of the soldiers, and we can afford to be most liberal in our pension legislation. I shall favor any measure which, within reason, enlarges the pension benefits to our civil war veterans.
"In conclusion I want to say that I have endeavored to make known to you what my attitude is toward the questions which are engrossing the attention of the public mind at the present time, and what it will be if I am elected Senator. I am a firm believer in the progressive policies inaugurated by Roosevelt and advocated by Taft. These policies are in harmony with the traditions and principles of the Republican party and must be maintained by that party if it is to retain the confidence and support of the people."

"The president's recommendation has been carried out since this speech and the Commission established."

ATTENTION has been called, but it can well be repeated the election of a Republican Senator in Michigan at the coming state election will be accomplished by the election of a Republican to the state legislature. Charles E. Townsend was candidate of the Republican party at the primary election under the terms of our statute the senator from must be formally elected by the state legislature. Failure of Michigan Republicans majority of the legislature to elect a Republican senator in the coming year would be a severe blow to the party.

JOHN KALMBACH, the nominee for representative to the state legislature from this district, has many years to receive this local pride, coupled with the fact that Mr. Kalmbach is capable of filling the duties of this office in a most satisfactory manner. Tuesday by a large majority he is a man of an indefatigable worker, a man on the job all of the time sessions of the legislature look after the interests of the voters. Not only should the votes of the voters of for his own worth, but it means a vote at the joint session of the state senate and legislature. Hon. Charles E. Townsend, State Senator, Mr. Kalmbach is a native of Sylvan and has a tire life here. He has many of his own unaided efforts to give the office the same that he has given his press.

HON. W. W. WEDEMEYER, candidate for congress in the 10th district, has spent many years of his life in this section realizing the worth and quality of this office, and his vote in should be a large one. Mr. Weidemeier worked his way through the University of Michigan hard work, and has been successful in all of his undertakings. He is a splendid representative of the people in America. His life and acts; his own and experiences; his close hearts and lives of the voters—all of these things give and safest assurance that he will stand for the progressive movements, and fighting always for the best of the great masses of our

THE republicans have a field a ticket of which they feel proud, and one of which they feel sure. Next election day, and every should make it a point to poles and cast his vote for ticket.

FOR GOVERNOR CHASE S. OSBORN

CHASE S. OSBORN

Sketch of Life of Candidate for Governor of Michigan—Country School Boy—Newsboy—Printer—Student—Newspaper Owner—Geologist—Discoverer of Iron Mine—Traveler.

(By Frank M. Sparks in Grand Rapids Herald.)

Michigan? In calling the roll of governors, what is to be the response when Michigan is called?

Every Republican and a large portion of the Democrats doubt not that the reply to the roll will be after January 1, "Chase S. Osborn."

Who is Chase S. Osborn? Who bears this name, new in the roll of governors? Who is this man whose meteoric flight across the firmament of Michigan during the last year has left behind it a trail of brilliant dazzling to his admirers, recognized by even his most bitter enemies? Who is this big, burly dynamo of energy whose snapping eyes, pointed speech, forceful logic kept in fear and trembling the men who tried to "run" his campaign?

Why, Chase Salmon Osborn is a farmer boy. He is the boy who, born in a log cabin in Huntington county, Indiana, nearly 51 years ago, worked hard pulling stumps, clearing and guiding a plow, doing all the hard work of a farmer boy.

As a Newsboy. Why, he is the newsboy who 40 years ago sold newspapers in Lafayette, Ind. He is the boy who was shrewd enough to secure a monopoly on the sale of Chicago papers in the little town and therefore piled up a few pennies one upon the other until they grew into dollars. He is the boy who yelied his papers with all his healthy lung power, who made his customers like him and predict for him a great future, who made them buy because, with marvelous energy, he told them they must.

Who is he? He is the boy who ran through the back yards and alleys and gathered up the rags, the bones, the old junk and sold them to the junk dealer adding to his little fortune the pennies thus earned.

Who is he? He is the youngest boy when not actually in the school room was at work in the newspaper office learning the printer's trade, preparing to earn his livelihood at the case.

Who is he? He is the roustabout in the lumber yards in Milwaukee. He is the boy who when Milwaukee papers wouldn't give him a job and when his resources were exhausted went to the docks and there "shoved" lumber with the rest of the dock workers and didn't complain nor let any man shove more lumber than he did.

Who is he? He is the owner of the little paper in Florence, Wis., which for four years he owned and on which he did most of the work. He is the owner of the old Sault Ste. Marie News purchased in 1887 with the last penny he had in the world. He is the owner of the paper which he made a power in Michigan, but which later he sold to engage in larger pursuits.

Who is he? He is the former game warden of Michigan, the former railroad commissioner who enforced law to the letter, who feared neither forest out-law nor great corporations, who made all under his jurisdiction do what the law required regardless of who they were.

Who is he? He is the man who has visited every country on the globe but Thiber, who has been far north of the Arctic circle, far south of the Antarctic, who cause, when he shakes hands, he takes hold as though he meant it. Because when he speaks, he lets loose of all that energy driven home his thought with the power of a trip hammer, embellishes it with the blooms of the poet.

And that energy, physical and mental, is shown in every move, every speech, every thought. The physical energy is born first of a naturally rugged constitution handed down to him through generations of sturdy ancestry, handed down to him from the great grandfather who was one of the Continental army away back in the days when the nation was born, handed down to him through the grandfather, one of the first navigators of the Ohio river, a pioneer in the middle west, handed down to him from a sturdy father, a pioneer in Indiana, a radical abolitionist, interested in the underground railway, through which the slaves of the south sought freedom in the north.

What nature gave, Chase S. Osborn has not wasted. No dissipation has marred his sturdy frame nor cast a blot upon his name. Rather, he has made good use of what nature gave and done his full part toward improving that rugged physique. From his boyhood he was fond of the woods. Day after day during manhood has he tramped the wilderness of northern Canada. There in the wilds, among the ancient pines, with nature his solo companion, he has builded upon the foundation nature gave and today at 50 stands 6 feet in his stockings, straight as an arrow, eye bright and clear, muscles hard and active, mind clear and clean, a model of physical manhood.

Always the Student. Neither has he neglected the mind nature gave him. From boyhood he has read everything he could lay hands upon. He reads rapidly, remarkably so. He remembers what he reads. History, science of all kinds, religion, government, poetry, the best of literature. Nothing has escaped him. He stores his memory with all, it is always ready when needed.

An example of this was shown at the banquet of the Gridley club at Ionia last winter. Governor Guild of Massachusetts was a speaker at that banquet. In his remarks he proudly and rightfully boasted of the intellectuality of the old Bay state. He declared with emphasis that Massachusetts led all the states in intellectuality.

Quicker than a flash, Chase S. Osborn was on his feet.

"I do not wish to seem discourteous," he said, "but I must challenge the gentleman from Massachusetts. The percentage of illiteracy in Massachusetts is nine, while in Michigan it is but six."

It is doubtful if there was another man in Michigan who could have told the percentage of illiteracy in his own state to say nothing of Massachusetts. It was just a sample of the quick thought and the great store of fund of knowledge Chase S. Osborn has.

To the newspaper men who traveled with him to any extent during the campaign, there never was any let up in the seeming endless powers of his mind and range of knowledge. He spoke before the Woodmen of Grand Rapids last spring. His speech was filled with pointed, terse paragraphs which were afterward sent broadcast over the state as "Osbornisms" and did not a little toward rounding up the votes cast for him. But after the speech the Woodmen crowded around him asking questions and always getting an answer. One man with a disarming German twang in his tones spoke to him. In a moment Osborn and the German were jabbering away in the native tongue of the Teuton. It sounded sweet to his ears. He went shouting for Osborn.

The difficult Polish language even is not unknown to Mr. Osborn. "I can manage to make myself understood and to understand any of the languages of the European continent," says Mr. Osborn.

Such a statement might, coming from some, appear to be an evidence of what is vulgarly known as swelled head. Not so when Mr. Osborn boasts. He talks of himself. He tells what he can do and what he can't do. Yet in his telling of himself there is no impression of boastfulness, no evidence of swelled head. He knows himself. He knows his own powers. He knows his own attainments. He is confident of himself. He is the athlete who tells his own speed. He is so self-reliant and so confident in his own powers that to speak of what he can do is but natural. It is not a boast. It does not seem to him anything remarkable that he can do all these things because he has mastered them so completely.

I remember the statement of a professor of Greek, who said: "When you have learned Greek so that when you see an object, the Greek word for it comes first and most naturally to your mind, then you have mastered the language."

Mr. Osborn has reached that stage in the many matters which his versatile mind has mastered.

Why is he magnetic? The answer has been given.

Secret of Popularity. But there are other reasons. Every man—if he is a man—loves the other man who is not afraid. Chase S. Osborn is the man not afraid. Friend or foe, to neither is he afraid to express his opinion fully and freely. Oftentimes this hurts the man who does not yet know him. After he has once or twice heard Mr. Osborn express his opinion he values what he says and the criticism, instead of stinging, rouses the criticized to greater energy.

Some years ago the writer happened to be managing editor of the Soo Evening News, the descendant of the paper Mr. Osborn established at Sault Ste. Marie. Mr. Osborn was a frequent visitor to the office. If there was anything in the paper which especially pleased him he was sure to come in to say so. His usual pointed remark was, "That was bully." But it was not always so. Sometimes something seemed to him to be below the standard. He was no less afraid to say so.

"The paper was very poor yesterday. What is the matter. Are you getting lazy?" he used to say with snapping eyes. But that didn't discourage one whit. It spurred to great energy. It made one feel the value of the other expression, "That was bully."

And so he has gone throughout his life. He has cheered with a cheer was merited. He has criticized with all his energy when criticism seemed to him warranted. That is what he did in his campaign. That is what he promises to do if elected governor.

Thrives on Opposition. He can appreciate both commendation and criticism. He has been through the mill. Today he looks back with pride upon the obstacles he has surmounted. They are to him just like the bull moose which kept him treed for three days in the wilds of Canada, but whom he eventually out-manuevered and shot. He has had his life of hard knocks and today laughs at them. He has had his sorrows which have left their imprint indelibly upon him. He has had his victories. These cast a brilliant glow over the shadowy spots.

Once Chase S. Osborn would have gone to congress, but for the treachery of men whom he had made. They kept him at home. He was pained, not because he lost, but because his friends had proven false. But that is all forgotten. He wept not at all. He forgot.

Faithful to Friends. He has been always willing to help a friend in need. Always ready to forget the man not his friend. This friendship, this love of his friends is probably born of the love he bears his mother. No boy or girl shows a more filial devotion to his mother than Chase S. Osborn. That mother, now nearly 83 years of age, knows this. The affection of the son is returned by the mother. She is proud of her big boy, the eldest of eight children. She knows he is a smart boy as well as a good boy. She lives in South Bend, Indiana, and all unknown to him, she traveled to Jackson last spring to hear her big boy talk. And she—well his speech that night, he says himself, was the poorest of his campaign. There before him sat the mother 52 years of age, straining her eyes and ears to catch every word and every move of her boy. And he, when he saw the loved mother, was overcome. His speech was a poor attempt. But to the mother it was the grandest she had ever heard and she went back to her home happy as only a mother can be.

Let that aged mother be ill ever so little. Politics, governors, everything is forgotten. Chase S. Osborn takes the next train—a special train if necessary—and hastens to the mother who needs him.

And Chase S. Osborn is proud. No man is more proud than he. What is he proud of? He is proud of his own family, of the big boys he has reared. He is proud that they have been successful in their college days and that they are growing up to be the kind of men he would like them to be. He is proud that never yet has a blot been cast upon his name. He is proud and jealous, too, of his honor and his fame. He is proud that years and years ago, he first of any man in Michigan, started a boom for William Alden Smith for United States Senator. He is proud that while they laughed at him then, his boast and his prediction is now a fact.

Chase S. Osborn is a man of moods. Today he loves the wild and excitement of the campaign. He loves to talk. He knows he can be interesting. He loves to appear before an audience, loves to talk to them on any subject that comes to his mind, loves to moralize to them and loves their applause.

Tomorrow he hears the call of the wild. He longs for the solitude of the forest, the smell of the pines, the howl of the wolf, the host of the owl. Tomorrow he quietly drops from civilization. With buckskin moccasins on his feet, a heavy sweater or Mackinaw jacket, a fur cap, with his rifle on his shoulder, he opens the door of his Deerfoot Lodge up in the wilds of the Upper Peninsula. For days he tramps the woods, quietly as an Indian, guided by the north star at night, by the sun or the bark on the trees in the day.

"It does one good to get right out among the things God made," he says. "I love to be where no man ever was before."

Then the mood again changes. He feels the charm of his library, his books, his writing desk. Shut up there, he reads and absorbs more knowledge. He writes a book.

Again comes the wanderlust. It takes him to the ice fields of the north, to the desert of sand. It calls him to the flowers of Japan.

Then he comes back again, filled with new thoughts, new ideas, new knowledge. He appears once more before the crowd and with all his dynamic energy tells the people what he has learned, and striking his fist into his palm, drives home a thought which he hopes will do somebody some good.

Perhaps he is called to a political conference. May be it is the president who wants to discuss something with him, as has often been the case; perhaps it is the governor; perhaps it is but the county committee. Whether it is the president or the county committee matters not. If his opinion is asked, it is given honestly regardless of whether it is the word the interviewer wants or the reverse.

"If my opinion is good for anything, it must be my honest conviction," he says. "No man asks an opinion who just wishes to be flattered."

And Chase S. Osborn is a man of some wealth. He is not the millionaire some have pictured him. But he has enough to enable him to go where he will and when he will. Where did he get it? First he accumulated a comfortable little fortune through his newspaper, through the political offices he held, and through his writing and lecturing. But this was only enough to permit him to live comfortably so long as he worked.

But when he was tramping the woods, he was not going merely for pleasure. It is not his nature. He observed, it is his nature. Being a geologist of more than ordinary ability, he noticed what kind of rock lay in his path. Away up in the wilds of Canada, where few men ever had been Townsend is one of the authors of the Roosevelt rate bill, and as an authority on all matters pertaining to railway legislation he ranks second to none. He first leaped into prominence in his first term of congress when his stand on rate legislation placed him conspicuously before the eyes of the nation, and at that time his reputation was made.

He had served his district well and faithfully for nearly six years when the death of Russell A. Alger left a vacancy in the senatorial ranks. Mr. Townsend was up to Michigan to fill. Mr. Townsend made a bid for the seat, but was defeated by his colleague in congress, William Alden Smith.

The people of his district then returned him to congress by an overwhelming majority over his Democratic opponent. But the reward of true merit could not be denied him, and at the last primaries, he was chosen by the Republicans of the state as their candidate for United States senator.

Charles E. Townsend is a progressive and voted to depose Speaker Cannon from the rules committee of congress at the last session of congress.

He himself has said: "I am a firm believer in the progressive policies inaugurated by Roosevelt and advocated by Taft. These policies are in harmony with the traditions and principles of the Republican party and must be maintained by that party if it is to retain the confidence and support of the people."

Senator Smith, in his speech before the state Republican convention, said of Charles E. Townsend: "When the legislature made the choice already made of its junior senator a type of statesman of whom the entire country can be proud. Courageous and obliging, honest and able, Charles E. Townsend measures up to every requirement of that high office, and his election will strengthen the confidence of the people in its institutions."

CHAS. E. TOWNSEND FOR SENATOR

THE PEOPLE CHOSE AS CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR THE MAN WHO MADE GOOD IN CONGRESS.

His Brilliant Record With Something of His Early Life and Earnest Work.

He was born at Concord, Michigan, August 13, 1856, of New England parentage. He received his education in the Concord and Jackson high schools and the University of Michigan. He worked on a farm until nineteen years of age, when he became principal of schools at Parma, Michigan, which work he pursued nine years. Mr. Townsend is married and has always resided in Michigan; was admitted to the bar at Jackson in 1895, where he has since practiced his profession; was register of deeds of Jackson county ten years; was elected to the 58th, 59th, 60th and 61st congresses. He was nominated for United States Senator at the primaries last September, and will be the Republican candidate before the next legislature, which meets in January.

TOWNSEND, RATE BILL AUTHOR

Michigan's Future Senator's Record in Congress a Brilliant One—Made Reputation in His First Term.

When Charles Elroy Townsend's choice by the people of the state at the primaries is ratified by the next legislature at Lansing, Michigan will be represented in the senate of the United States by a statesman and lawyer of sterling worth; an able co-worker of that brilliant William Alden Smith, and a fearless, progressive Republican.

Charles Townsend's record in congress, meritorious to a marked degree, is a sufficient guarantee of his future accomplishments as United States senator from Michigan.

He, like Senator Smith, is a self-made man. Townsend received his before, he took particular notice of a rock. He examined it a little more closely. He walked around the mountain and over it. He followed the range, carefully examining all the outcroppings. It was a range of iron, one of the richest ore deposits discovered in that region in many a day. He claimed it, let some of the big men into his secret, organized the Moose Mountain Mining Company, made his pile.

That is where Mr. Osborn's fortune came from. He does not own a share in any mine in Michigan or the United States. But up in the wilds of Canada is the ore deposit he discovered and which makes him a comfortably wealthy man.

This big, brawny, magnetic fellow will sow good seed whether he is ever governor or not. But add to this the fact that he will be governor, and when the roll is called and Michigan responds, "Chase S. Osborn," every man who hears will sit straight and every man of Michigan will swell out his chest just a little more.

The Only Way You Can Vote for Congressman Townsend for United States Senator is to Vote for the Republican Candidates for the Legislature.

Votes for Republican Candidates for the legislature are Votes for Townsend for United States Senator.

"Get Out the Vote" should be the Slogan of Every Good Republican on Election Day.

The fact must not be overlooked that Mr. Townsend is only nominated as the Republican candidate for United States Senator. He is not yet elected. Under the law, he will be elected by the next legislature if he is a Republican. His name will not appear on the ballot at the November election. The primary simply took the place of the legislative caucus. If the legislature is Democratic, it will not be elected Senator. Do not be deceived by the promises of Democratic candidates for the legislature, who say they will vote for him. They cannot do so. Votes for the Republican candidates for the legislature are votes for Mr. Townsend.

Do not be deceived by the promises of the Democratic candidates for the legislature that they will vote for Congressman Townsend for senator. The integrity of the primary law preserved, they are bound to vote for their own candidate.

DIVIDENDS OF SATISFACTION.

A certain man was called upon to pay a bill for which he had issued a check several months before. He turned to his file of paid checks and found one issued in this particular case.

There was the date, the amount, the name of the party paid, and also the endorsement on the back of the check by the man who received the money.

The evidence given by the check settled the dispute.

The check account will do the same for you—and more. A small volume of business can be transacted as well as a larger one. The benefits are relatively equal in all instances.

You will get dividends of satisfaction from the use of the check account in the way of conveniences for your business.

PROTECTION FOR SONG BIRDS OF THE UNITED STATES

TODAY the songbirds of the United States have thrown about them the strong arm of protection. For a quarter of a century there was hard and systematic work to save creatures who were helpless to save themselves and against whom, as someone has put it, the hand of man and the head of woman constantly were raised. It perhaps is hardly necessary to say that the allusion to the head of woman had to do with the fashion of wearing the plumage of native wild birds for decorations for hats and bonnets.

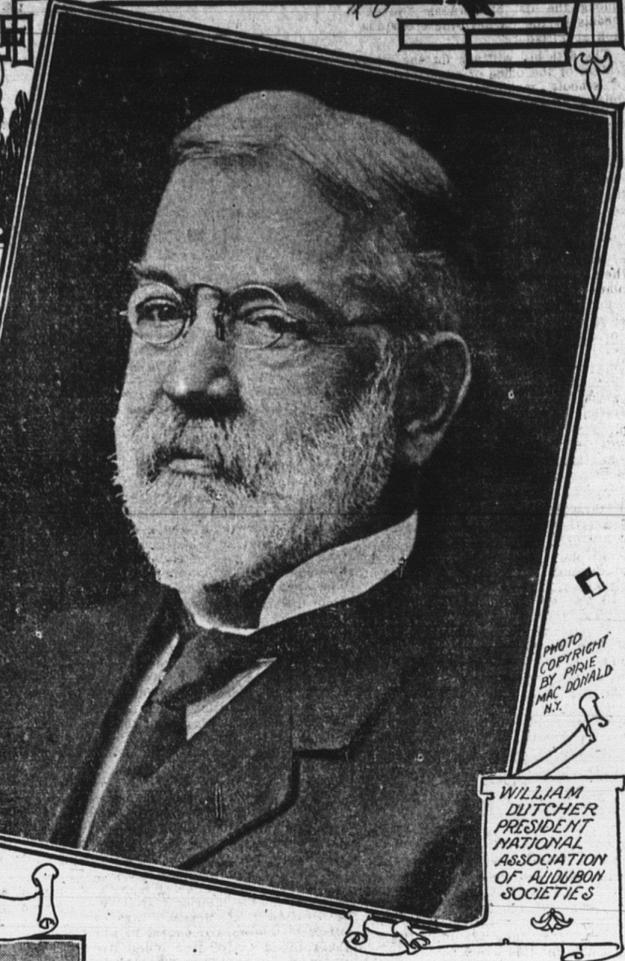

It was a hard fight to get the masses of the people interested in the bird protection movement. Today very little is known in a general way of the manner in which success was wrought out. It is not at all uncommon even now to hear the bird protectors spoken of as mere sentimentalists, and there are men who have had a part in the fight to save the wild life who have been sneered at as effeminate. The truth is that most of the men who engaged in the work of preserving the feathered species were hard-headed and could prove on occasion that they were hard-fisted.

It takes only a casual glance at a woman's hat today to show that the fashion of wearing feathers is still of not supreme, at least a ruler to a considerable degree. It should be known, however, that not once in a hundred times do you see on a woman's head today the plumage of a native American bird. The traffic in the feathers of bluebirds, robins, catbirds and other dooryard pets has been almost entirely stopped. Even those who wish that the plumage-wearing habit should cease altogether are powerless to prevent the sale of the feathers of certain species of foreign birds. The egret of which woman is so fond is a part of the plumage of the snowy heron, a bird which lives not only in the United States but in certain foreign countries. If a bird is to be found in America and also abroad the sale of its plumage is generally forbidden in the United States, but there is, and always has been, some difficulty in proving from whence came the supply. Law, generally speaking, has its technical loopholes and the bird protective law is not exempt.

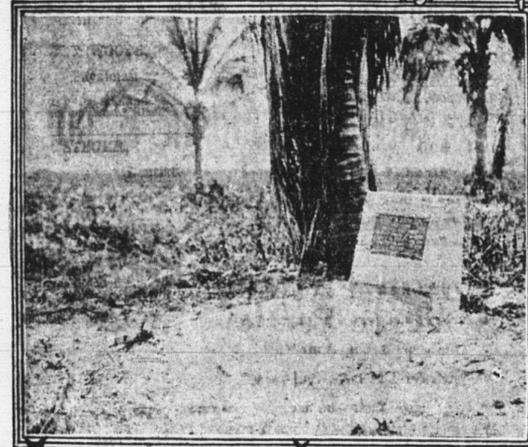

Out of the bird protective movement grew the biological survey of the department of agriculture.

GREAT WHITE HERON

WILLIAM DUTCHER PRESIDENT NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF AUDUBON SOCIETIES

GRAVE OF GUY M. BRADLEY, ASSOCIATION WARDEN IN FLORIDA, KILLED IN PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

now held in check by the birds, the vegetation creatures would be destroyed by the insect enemies. So it would seem that if this French scientist is right, that in making their fight for the birds the defenders have been making their fight for man, a fact which is not appreciated by some of those who would suffer were it not for the constant saving efforts of men whom on occasion they have seen fit to call cranks.

To lead up to the establishment of the Audubon societies, of which nearly every state in the Union has one, it might be said that it was not until the year 1883 that the public in the United States awakened to the fact that too many wild birds were being slaughtered, largely for millinery ornaments and other decorative purposes. In addition, thousands of song and insectivorous birds were killed annually for food. In his story of the movement for bird protection President Dutcher told of the beginnings of the crusade to save the lives of the songsters which year by year were coming back to the farm and the garden in greatly decreased numbers. Mr. Dutcher said, speaking of the condition in 1883:

"The newspapers published items almost daily on the subject, and many strong editorials were written. A quotation from one of these entitled 'The Sacrifices of Song Birds' will show the earnestness of the press in respect to the situation: 'The destruction of American wild birds for millinery purposes has assumed stupendous proportions. The ungodly work gives employment to a vast army of men and women and this army wages its campaign of destruction with a diabolical perfection of system.'

"The editorial in question further refers to details of the work published in other columns of the paper, which furnishes evidence of the ghastly character of the business. The logical result of this newspaper agitation was that the American Ornithologists' union at its annual meeting held in New York city September 30, 1884, appointed a committee of its members to investigate the extent of the alleged wild bird destruction and to devise means to stop the slaughter by legal or any other legitimate method.

"This committee found that the claims of the press and of individuals were not in the least exaggerated, but on the other hand did not fully represent the terrible inroads that were being made on the non-domestic birds, National Association of Audubon Societies for the Protection of Wild Birds and Animals has resulted, although in the interim there were many periods when the outlook for bird protection in North America seemed doomed to failure."

It was the result of an appeal made to congress by the council of the Ornithologists' union that led congress to vote an appropriation of $5,000, the money to be administered under the direction of the department of agriculture for the purpose of taking means to save the lives of the native American birds which were useful to man.

As William Dutcher says further in his story of the protective movement: "In recognition of the action taken by the American Ornithologists' union in securing the appropriation, the secretary of agriculture invited the council of the union to select a superintendent to carry on the work and at a subsequent meeting held in Washington, Dr. Clinton Hart Merriam was selected as the superintendent and Dr. Albert K. Fisher as his assistant. Both of these noted ornithologists were among the founders of the American Ornithologists' union."

It was from this humble beginning that the present biological survey, a division of the United States department of agriculture, has grown. It is perfectly apparent from the letters which agriculturists send to Washington constantly that the work of the biological survey has its value appreciated more and more every year. The survey has published a great mass of valuable statistics of the food habits of birds and their relation to agriculture and forestry.

As has been said, there are Audubon societies for bird protection in nearly every state in the Union. They are affiliated in one great society called the National Association of Audubon Societies. The writer of this article from personal knowledge can speak of the beginnings of one of the largest and most active of the state organizations.

Persons who were known to be interested in birds were asked to meet to form a protective organization. A good many persons not particularly interested in bird protection also were invited. Several women came to that first meeting, wearing the plumage of wild birds in their hats. At first the society intended to do its work by persuasive missionary efforts, and along this line to a considerable extent the endeavor has been ever since,

After a lapse of a quarter of a century it is hard for the people of the present day to realize the enormous number of birds that were slaughtered for the millinery trade alone.

"The greatest sufferers were the white plumage sea and swamp birds, such as terns, gulls and heron, but incredible numbers of land birds also were sacrificed, some 60 or 70 species being included in the lists. In one millinery establishment alone 150 skins of the Baltimore Orioles were found.

"From the work started by this committee in 1884 the present well-organized and financially endowed corporation known as the National Association of Audubon Societies for the Protection of Wild Birds and Animals has resulted, although in the interim there were many periods when the outlook for bird protection in North America seemed doomed to failure."

but it was soon found that while some people were willing to be guided by pleas of humanity and by stories of the destruction of the growing things because of the rapid increase in insect life, there were others who could not be reached by any except hard handed methods.

So it is that the bird protectors not only have carried on a great work in the education of children and in moral suasion among the elders, but they have taken cases into court and have prosecuted wilful and persistent violators of the law, until today the bird protective laws are as much feared as any other laws on the statute books. There always have been some laws against the wanton killing of useful birds, but until the men and women of the American Ornithologists' union and of the Audubon society went earnestly at their labors the laws were laughed at and violated with impunity and almost always with immunity.

Years ago untold thousands of useful native birds were trapped to be sold as pets in cages. The women of the south complained to the women of the north who were engaged in bird protection work that their mocking birds and red birds (cardinals) were being trapped in multitudes because of the demand by the trade in northern cities for caged songsters. The bird protectors of the north took the matter up and in nearly all places today it is illegal to sell caged wild native American birds.

About fifteen years ago there was a week of zero weather in some of the southern states. The blue bird, which is a northern favorite, does not go far enough south in winter to escape all of the storms of the winter season. The unusual cold of that winter fifteen years ago almost annihilated the tribe of bluebirds. There were only a few left to come back to the northern fields in the spring. The blue bird, however, was protected, and the efficiency of the Audubon society's work was never more clearly shown than in this case. The blue birds today have recruited their ranks under protection and are as numerous as ever they were.

For years the bird protectionists went ahead with their work with the treasury at a low point.

It always had been hoped that some kindly disposed person would realize the strength and beauty of bird protection work and would give of this substance to the cause. The man known as a scientist nor as a bird student. One day, however, Albert Wilcox saw a newspaper account of some of the bird protection work done by the national Association of Audubon societies and he wrote a letter asking for more details. He received the information that he wanted and he wrote to say that he was about to make a new will and felt so much pleased with the work of the society that he would give it annually during his lifetime a considerable sum of money to be used in carrying on the work of the association, and that when he died he would give the society a legacy of $100,000 in his will, and he added, "I may not limit it to this amount."

Albert Wilcox died four years ago. He left $100,000 to the Audubon society as he had promised, and in addition he made the society his residuary legatee to the extent of one-half his estate. Today the National Association of Audubon societies, through the generosity of Mr. Wilcox, is placed on a sure and lasting foundation. The bird protective work has been going on for a quarter of a century. It had all sorts of trials and tribulations, but today it seems that the friends of the feathered kingdom have triumphed in their cause. The promise is that there will be no cessation of the work which means so much to the bird and more to man.

NATURE'S SIGNALS.
The first indication of kidney disorder is often backache. Then comes pain in the hips and sides, lameness, soreness and urinary troubles. These are the warnings—nature's signals for help. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used at the first sign.
Ira Clark, North Main St., Savannah, Ill., says: "I was confined to bed with kidney trouble and never expected to be up again. A doctor said I had acute inflammation of the bladder, but he could not help me. How grateful was I for the prompt relief Doan's Kidney Pills gave me! Continued use removed every sign of kidney trouble."

One of the Best Rest Cures.
Is a good story.
To many women it is as good as a trip away from home.
When you are tired out and your nerves are on edge, try going off by yourself and losing yourself in some good story. You will, in nine cases out of ten, come back rested and invigorated.
One woman who has passed serenely through many years of hard work and worry that go with the managing of a house and bringing up of a large family of children, said that she considered it the duty of every busy housekeeper to read a certain amount of "trash" light fiction, for the rest and change to the mind that it would give.
Try it, you who lead a strenuous life, and who sometimes grow exceedingly weary of the same.

Getting a Reputation.
There is a desk in the senate particularly convenient as a place from which to make speeches. It is next to the aisle and almost in the center of the chamber, and affords an opportunity for the speaker to make everybody hear.
At least a dozen senators, according to the Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Star, have borrowed this desk when they had special utterances to deliver to the senate. This led, not long ago, to a mild protest from its legitimate occupant.
"I am perfectly willing to give up my desk," said he, "but I am afraid people will think that the same man is talking all the time. I don't want to get the reputation of constantly filling the senate with words."
Youth's Companion.

Procrastination.
"I heard a tale the other day of a postponing chap, who thought he'd buy a wheel so gay, but—'they will be cheaper, perhaps.' And so he dallied year by year, the cheapest wheel to buy; but long before the cheapest gear, that yep he had to die! And so, by putting off the day, we miss the wine of life; and some there are in just that way who thus will miss a wife! Get busy now, you timid swain, procrastinate no more, for time is surely on the wane, and you a bachelor! Some wait too long to make a pick of husbands or of wife, and then some take a broken stick and make a mess of life."—H. B. Benedict, in Judge.

Not Easy.
Pat was a married man—a very much married man. He had married no fewer than four times, and all his wives were still in the fore. According to Pat's own account before the court where he was tried for bigamy and found guilty, his experiences were not altogether satisfactory. The judge, in passing sentence, expressed his wonder that the prisoner could be such a hardened villain as to delude so many women.
"Yer honor," said Pat, apologetically, "I was only tryin' to get a good one, an' it's not aisy!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Love-making and Practice.
The only way to become an expert at love-making is to practice. This was the information handed out to a handful of hearers by the Hindu philosopher, Sakharum Ganesh Pandit, in a lecture on "The Science of Love."
"Love is a divine discontent," said the philosopher, "and if you want to arouse love in others it can be done only by giving them love. How to develop the emotion of love in another, is the great question of today—the art of making love. It needs a great deal of study and a great deal of practice."

A Chrysanthemum Luncheon.
Judging from the numerous letters from brides-elect, Cupid must have been unusually busy with his little bow and arrow. There are so many requests for pre-nuptial functions, I am sure the description of this chrysanthemum luncheon will be very acceptable.

It was gorgeously brilliant, the color scheme being yellow; especially fitting for this month as November claims the topaz and the chrysanthemum; in this instance it was also the bride's birthday month as well as her wedding day season. For a centerpiece there was a mound of yellow "mums," kept in place by embedding the stems in sand. At each place there was a little yellow jardiniere containing one stiff, straight little yellow "mum" to which the name card was attached with a yellow ribbon. The grape fruit cocktail had a wee "mum" in the center of the glass there was a fluffy bow of white tulle. The plates on which the frappe glasses stood had a wreath of yellow "mums" around them and the ice-cream was in boxes concealed by petals of yellow crepe paper "mums." The candle sticks were of silver and had yellow shades. At each place were yellow slippers filled with salted nuts. Just the bridal party were included in the guests, I mean the girls in the party and two matrons of honor.

bearing the monogram of the bride and groom elect, which the guests retained as souvenirs.

A Neck-Tie and Apron Party.
This really is an old time stunt, but like many other old things has been rejuvenated. The hostess prepares as many cheese cloth aprons as there are men and as many pieces of silk or ribbon as there are girls. When all arrive the men are given spools of thread and told to find the girl who has an apron to match it. In this way partners are chosen and the girls put on the aprons after the men have sewed the hems and sewed on the strings. Allow half or three-quarters of an hour for this. Next the girls are given the necktie pieces and they are gathered together and put through a door, each girl having hold of an end, the door is closed and the men are to come in and take hold of an end. When each man has an end, the door is opened and the girl who has hold of the other end must fashion a necktie for her swain. The latter puts it on and the girl puts on her apron, and thus partners are selected for supper or refreshments. This is a very jolly party, adapted to private parties or for a church social.

MADAME MERRI.

To Clean a Black Skirt.

To clean a black skirt, lay the skirt as flatly as possible on a clean table. Remove all grease spots with brown paper and a hot iron, then with a sponge dipped in strong coffee rub over the whole of the dress, paying special attention to the front and edge of the skirt. When the whole of the skirt has been sponged and is still damp, iron on the wrong side until perfectly dry.

All-black hats are seen in satin, velvets, brocade, hatter's plush, velours, beaver, beaver cloth.

More dress hats are in all-black or black-and-white with a touch of metal or color than in any other shade.

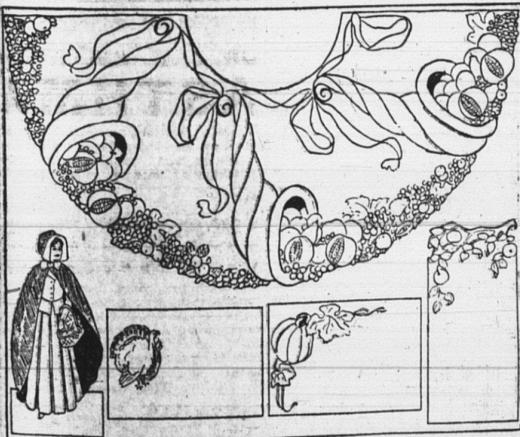

Ostrich feathers, willow plumes especially, are much in demand. Shaded box and two-tone effects lead in favor.

Brimmed turbans are seen, with upright brims almost as high as the hat itself and close to it except at the back.

Hat shapes are of three sorts—the large, wide-brimmed hat (the most popular, the cloche, or Charlotte Corday, and the turban.

As a variation on these there is the large hat with the mushroom brim in a wide variety of shapes, all generally following the mushroom type.

For Thanksgiving

VERY housekeeper does herself proud in getting up the Thanksgiving dinner. Besides the snowy linen, sparkling silver and glass, and savory dishes, some decoration is needed to make the festive occasion quite complete.

These decorations are no small item of expense if purchased in the art shops where hand work brings its price. Any woman or girl may, however, make her own decorations at very small expense and in a short time.

We are giving today several designs which work out attractively in color. The candle shade, representing the horn of plenty, always in evidence in Thanksgiving decorations, is to be traced on thin water-color paper by means of carbon paper, and tinted in water-color. The horn is to be purple—not too dark—the ribbons green, and the fruit of the gay richness of the natural color. The inside of the horn may be tinted dark green.

To add to the effect when lighted, put a bright bit of color on the wrong side of the shade under any gay colored fruit, such as orange or apples. Leave a little seam on each end of the shade and fasten with brass broods. The edge is cut out irregularly around the fruit. When the painting is done go over all lines with waterproof black ink, and do the work carefully.

Four place cards are given, one a demure Puritan maiden to be colored in light gray gown, darker gray cape with bright red lining, cap to match the cape with a white facing and tie and kerchief—which just shows a little in front.

Paint the face and hands in the natural color. Red and yellow, if properly mixed, will give a satisfactory flesh color for beginners.

The lines in all the cards should be gone over with a pen and ink outline.

The turkey is to be painted brown, light and dark shades, with a bit of red on the head, and outlined. The pumpkin is a brilliant orange and color with dark green leaves, and the apples shaded in light and dark red and green leaves, with brown stems.

The water-color cards may be bought by the dozen, or very stiff and heavy water-color paper may be used.

Those who do not already possess a box of water-color paints may secure a very excellent little box of a new make, with all the necessary brushes and pencils. A five-cent point, which will come to a very fine point, will answer all purposes for doing the work.

NEWS OF MICHIGAN.

Uniformity of text books throughout the state will also be sought by legislative enactment.

Grand Rapids was the leader in the movement and Sybrant Wessolus, of Grand Rapids, addressed the teachers upon the subject.

Elias Roser, of Grand Rapids, and Herbert L. Hesse, of Whitehall, are among the list of persons awarded medals by the Carnegie hero commission at Pittsburg.

The fifth bill will ask for the legalization of the office of superintendent of schools, making it an office requiring an oath, and defining the superintendent's duties and powers.

Because he sold in Grand Rapids the flesh of a cow that had been condemned because it had cancer, Elias E. Wells, of Allegan, was sentenced by Judge Stuart in superior court to pay a fine of $150 and $100 costs.

The sixth bill will ask that boards of education be required to secure the sanction of boards of health of all plans and specifications for new school buildings and to grant boards of health special power to condemn unsanitary school buildings now in use.

While her husband lay dying in the hospital at Ann Arbor with tuberculosis, Mrs. Frank Coronta, of New Haven, near Owosso township, expired of heart trouble. The husband went away ten days ago to learn what his trouble is, and will never come back alive.

Because a conductor on the M. U. R. threatened to put her off the car and said, "To show you that I am a gentleman, I will pay your fare," Mrs. Humphrey, of Comstock, brought proceedings in circuit court and was allowed $500 by a jury at Kalamazoo, took the initial steps in the most important work it has ever attempted—the launching of a movement to secure several radical legislative enactments at the next session of the state legislature. Six bills will be offered.

The first will ask for pensions for school teachers who have served a specified number of years and have reached a certain age, the general provisions to be patterned after the Rhode Island bill.

Grand Trunk Held Responsible.

The state railroad commission issued its findings as a result of the investigation of the Grand Trunk wreck at Durand last August, in which ten persons lost their lives. Relative to the officials of the road, who were in charge of the train service, the commission is unanimously of the opinion "that they are primarily responsible for this wreck."

SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST GARFIELD

ATTORNEY-GENERAL GOT FACTS THROUGH A SLIP OF THE PEN OF AN EMPLOYEE.

CHARGED HE LET HARRIMAN ROAD BOTTLE UP RICHEST FIELD IN WYOMING.

Former Secretary of Interior May Face Charges More Serious Than Those Against Ballinger.

Former Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield, of Ohio, will be called upon to defend himself against more serious charges than have ever been made against Secretary of the Interior Ballinger. In an investigation which will be conducted this winter either by the Ballinger-Pinchot committee, or by another special committee of congress, it will be charged that Mr. Garfield did not merely attempt to, but actually did shield the Interior Pacific Railway company while it defrauded the United States out of a great belt of coal land in Wyoming.

During Mr. Garfield's administration, it will be charged, while minor offenders, individuals, who undertook fraudulently to acquire a quarter section of land contrary to law, were prosecuted, convicted, and sent to jail, the Union Pacific, which actually defrauded the government out of the best coal land in Wyoming and the west was permitted to go scot free upon the payment of a royalty of eight cents a ton.

Over twice as much land is involved in this Union Pacific fraud as in the Cunningham claims. While the Union Pacific coal is located within easy reach of the market, it is extremely doubtful whether the coal on the land covered by the Cunningham claims, which brought about the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, will ever be available.

The real history of these Union Pacific coal land frauds has been buried in the archives of the interior department, and has only now come to light. It appears from the records why the facts have long been suppressed, for these records show that Mr. Garfield, before being appointed secretary of the interior to relieve E. A. Hitchcock, of Missouri, was apprised of the embarrassment in which the railroad corporation found itself, and actually went into office pledged to protect the Union Pacific against both criminal and civil prosecution in the federal courts.

Grahame-White Wins Trophy.

America lost the Gordon Bennett international aviation speed cup at Belmont park, New York, to England, when Claude Grahame-White, of the English team of flyers, circled the international course of five kilometers twenty times a total distance of 62.1 miles, in 61 minutes 4.03 seconds.

The English flyer won the trophy with a French aeroplane propelled by a French engine. He flew a Blériot monoplane equipped with a Gnome engine of 100 horse power.

Score Fragg Marriages.

Divorce and the white slave evils will be among the principal topics at the World's Christian Citizenship conference which will begin in Philadelphia November 16. A preliminary draft of the report of the committee on divorce of the National Reform association, which will be offered to the delegates, strongly advocates a national divorce law as well as throwing safeguards around young people who contemplate marriage. "Freak marriages" are scored in the report.

United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, has leased a 14-room apartment on Park avenue, New York, and it is declared that, following his retirement from the senate, he will make his home in New York the greater part of the year.

Imports of the United States for the nine months ending with September, 1910, aggregated in value $1,172,400,000, as compared with $1,069,600,000 for the corresponding period of 1909, according to statistics of the department of commerce and labor. The greatest importations for the nine months of 1910 were sugar, $102,100,000; crude India rubber, $78,900,000; hides and skins, $70,000,000, and coffee $45,300,000.

After fighting the flames from midnight until long after dawn, the tired residents of Bosswell, a mining town in Somerset county, Pa., looked out upon a scene of desolation. Property to the value of $75,000 had been destroyed. The hotel, business houses and seven dwellings were burned. The fire was fought with buckets and water from every available source of supply, aid from nearby towns being provided because railroads could not provide locomotives to carry fire engines to the stricken village.

Booker T. Washington, who is touring North Carolina, arrived in Durham Sunday and will be the guest of honor at a banquet given by the Durham Businessmen's league.

When the secret service men arrested H. Nathan Secrest in Chicago a few days ago and charged him with counterfeiting 1,500,000 pesos in Nicaraguan notes, they thought they had nipped in the bud another revolution. Now that Secrest's stories have been investigated, Chief Wilkie's men are not inclined to believe Secrest's revolution story and think he was counterfeiting notes for his own benefit.

WRONG IN THAT DIAGNOSIS

Physician's Method May Have Been All Right, but Here He was at Fault.

We are told that the latest sensation in the medical world is the assertion of a doctor that he is able, by looking into a patient's eye, to make an accurate diagnosis of the complaint which the patient is suffering. But is this really as novel as it is supposed to be? I recollect hearing some time ago of a doctor who said to a patient who was under examination: "I can see by the appearance of your right eye what is the matter with you. You are suffering from liver."

"My right eye?" asked the patient. "Yes," returned the doctor. "It shows me plainly that your liver is out of order."

"Excuse me, doctor," said the patient, apologetically. "My right eye's a glass one."

AWFUL BURNING ITCH CURED IN A DAY

"In the middle of the night of March 30th I woke up with a burning itch in my two hands and I felt as if I could pull them apart. In the morning the itching had gone to my chest and during that day it spread all over my body. I was red and raw from the top of my head to the soles of my feet and I was in continual agony from the itching. I could neither lie down nor sit up. I happened to see about Cuticura Remedies, and I thought I would give them a trial. I took a good bath with the Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment. I put it on from my head down to my feet and then went to bed. On the first of April I felt like a new man. The itching was almost gone. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and during that day the itching completely left me. Frank Gridley, 325 East 43rd Street, New York City, Apr. 27, 1909." Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world; Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Proprietors, Boston, Mass.

Mutual Expectations.

A notoriously close-fisted man was taking his golfing holiday in Scotland, where he hoped to improve his game, and, by driving a hard bargain, had managed to secure the exclusive services of a first-class caddy, who was known to be a very good player. "Mind, now," said the ambitious southerner, "I expect to receive some really good tips from you during my stay here, you understand?" "Aye," replied the Scotsman, hitching up the heavy bag, "an Ah'm expectin' the like frae ye, ye ken."—Golf Illustrated.

Planning a Desperate Revenge.

The haughty, imperious beauty handed him back his ring. "Now that all is over between us," she said, "I suppose you will buy a revolver and put an end to your wretched existence?" "Worse than that!" he hissed, being careful to introduce the necessary sibilant; "far worse—! I shall steal a revolver! And I shall shoot your measly little sore-eyed puddle!"

A wild shriek burst from her lips. She fell upon her knees and— But he had gone.

The Exception. "Doesn't your husband like cats, Mrs. Blinks?"

"No, indeed. He hates all cats except a little kitty they have at his club."

His Luck. "I know a man who is always up against it." "Who is he?" "The paper hanger when he has to fix a new wall."
