Sudden Death.

Henry Hafley was born in Freedom, November 7, 1836, and died at his home in Sylvan Center, Saturday evening, November 5, 1910;

Mr. Hafley was in Chelsea Saturday where he delivered two loads of hay, one in the forenoon and the other in the afternoon, reaching his home about 5 o'clock, was soon after stricken with apoplexy, his death occuring very suddenly. He has been a well known resident of Sylvan for the past thirty years. He was a member of St. Paul's church. December 11, 1879, he was united in marriage with Miss Kate Schilinger of Bridgewater. He is survived by his wife, 'our sons Andrew, Fred, George and William, who reside at the family home. The funeral was held from the Sylvan Center church at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating, and the choir of St. Paul's hurch rendered the music. Interment Maple Grove cemetery.

What more beautiful title could a woman desire than that of "Friend of Many Children?" And that was what Margaret Madden of St. Louis was sketches tell of her life spent in making children happy. She held a humble place in the community, conducting a little store where candy and cakes were sold, her patrons being almost entirely the little people of the neighborhood, and she never sold them anything that by any possibility could do them harm. The St. Louis Times devotes an editorial to Margaret Madden, and pays this tribute: The children knew her as a friend, and when she died an account of her death published in a St. Louis paper bore a headline which contained the words, 'Friend of many children.' That would not seem a great distinction; but the world is filled with people who have won no distinction at all. And it would be very hard to think of any kind of fame so lovely and touching as that which fell to the let of this St. Louis shopkeeper. For to be 'the friend of many children' is a blessing vouchsafed to but few. Children's friendships are largely of the heart-not of the judgment, of intuition, not of expediency. It is their blessed privilege to love those who do not always attract attention from older pecple. You may see only the little shop, the trembling smile, the narrow eutlook and the long procession of dull days. But " is the heritage of the child that I can see the heart, rather than the bare surface indications. It can see the vision that was not realized—the power that was only latent. It senses the kindness that came with sacrifice. It knows more than the misleading What Is, and looks beyond into the great domain of What Might Have Been."

The Friends We Leave Behind. I find the one great thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving. To reach the port of heaven we must sail sometimes with the wind and sometimes against it, but we must sail and not drift, nor lie at anchor. There is one very sad thing in old friendships, to every mind which is really moving onward. It is this: That one cannot help using his early friends as the seaman uses the log, to mark his progress. Every now and then we throw an old schoolmate over | county will give Dickema 505 majority the stern with a string of thoughts tied to him and look-I am afraid, with a kind of luxurious and sanctimonious compassion-to see the rate at which the string reels off, while 846; Helme (Dem.), for state senate, he lies there bobbing up and down, 151; Graves (Rep.), a majority of 640. poor fellow! and we are dashing along with the white foam and bright sparkle at our bows-the ruffled bosome of prosperity and progress, with a sprig of diamonds stuck in it! -From Holmes' "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

His Illustration.

Several times cynics had attempted to trap the auctioneer who was selling the retired druggist's stock of medicine into an admission that the medicine he boomed was fake goods, but always he was too quick witted for them. But when he got to the cough sirup warranted to relieve tickling in the throat and stop the worst cough in five minutes after taking they thought they had him sure. The cold that had hampered the auctioneer throughout the day developed into a racking representative, is unopposed. Only 70 cough which punctuated his praises per cent of a vote was cast. of the peerless medicine.

"Why don't you stop talking long enough to take some of your own cure, eh?" a wag called out. "My dear sir," barked the auctioneer. "If I should do that I would have no cough handy to illustrate the kind of cough my medicine will cure.

Johnson's Opinion of Rousseau. One evening, at the Nitre, Johnson votes. said sarcastically to me, "It seems, sir, you have kept very good company abroad-Rousseau and Wilkes." I answered with a smile, "My dear, sir, you don't call Rousseau bad company; do you really think him a bad man?" ingly of this, I don't talk to you. If you can be serious, I think him one of the worst of men, a rascal who ought to be hunted out of society, as he has been. Three or four nations have expelled him, and it is a shame that he is protected in this country. Rousseau, sir, is a very bad man. I would sooner sign a sentence for his transportation than that of any felon who has gone from the Old Bailey these many years. Yes, I should like to have him work in the plantations." -From Boswell's Life of Johnson.

*Re-elected.

While the normal majorities of recent elections in Michigan have been educed somewhat, the entire Republican state ticket has been elected by a decisive vote. There developed no such evidence of dissension in the party's ranks as effected such a revolution in Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and other eastern states, and in some sections of the west.

Even in the contest for representatives in congress, but one district, the First, entirely within the city of Detroit, proved close, Frank E. Deremus, Democrat, running Congressman Edwin Denby a race that appears by unofficial figures to have been successful.

The legislature shows Democratic gains, but not so general as to have any effect, and Congressman Charles E. Townsend, the choice of the Republicans in the primaries, is insured a seat in the United States senate to succeed Senator Julius C. Burrows, whose term expires in March. Early reports of the result in the state by counties follow:

DEMOCRATS CARRY NEW YORK, NEW JERSEY, MASSACHUSETTS AND OHIO,

Republicans Retain Majority in Congress, Despite Opposition Gains in All Sections.

4 421.28

Democrate Gain in Congress. Early returns received indicate that the Democrats have gained 10 seats in the national house of representatives. This is partly offset by a gain by the Republicans in one New York district. The returns would indicate that the Democrats still lack seven seats of the 22 now necessary to give them control of the house. The known Democratic gains are three in New York, one in Massachusetts, one in Maryland, one in Kentucky and one in North Carolina. The probable Democratic gains are three in Iowa, five or six in Illinois and one in North Carolina. Dix Elected in New York.

John A. Dix, Democrat, has been elected governor of New York over Henry L. Stimson, Republican, by between 55,000 and 65,000 plurality. These figures may be reduced or increased by returns from up-state rural districts.

New York city gives Dix a plurality of at least 100,000, which more than offers the greatly reduced plurality of of at least 100,000, which more than offsets the greatly reduced plurative of the Republicans up state. Two years ago the greater city gave Chanler for governor less than 60,000 plurality.

Below Mr. Dix on the ticket the result is uncertain, although tending toward Democratic success. Thomas F.
Conway, Democratic nominee for lieutenant-governor, running only slightly behind Dix.

The complexion of the legislature, which will select a successor to Senator Chauncey M. Depew, will be settled only by more complete returns, although it seems probable that the Republicans will hold a working majority.

In New York city Herbert Parsons,
Republican, was defeated for re-election as a representative to congress by J. M.

as a representative to congress by J. M. Levy, Democrat, as was William S. Ben-net, Republican, by Henry George, Jr. Theodore Roosevelt's home district in Oyster Bay, L. I., gave Dix a plurality of 204, as against a plurality of 793 for Hughes in 1908

Hughes in 1908. In Utica, Charles T. Talcott, Demo-crat, defeated Hillington, Vice-Presi-Sherman's nominee for congress,

Wilson in New Jersey. Returns from the election in New Jersey were very slow in coming in, but figures indicate the election of Woodrow Wilson, Democrat, for governor, the only state office to be filled, by between 10,000 and 20,000 plurality over Vivian M. Lewis, his Republican oppon-

Early returns on the vote for con gressman and members of the legisla-ture are too meager to give an indica-tion of the outcome. The political comtion of the outcome. The political complexion of the legislature which will choose a successor to Senator Kean is in doubt with both sides claiming a victory on joint ballot. Later returns give the Democrats nine out of ten congressmen and a majority in joint ballot in the legislature.

Harmon in Ohio. A remarkable delay in the counting of the vote is reported throughout Ohio because of much scratching of ballots. Incomplete official returns from outside the major cities indicates a gain of approximately five votes to a precinct for Governor Harmon, which if carried throughout the state would elect him by a plurality of more than 40,000, Landslide in Illinois.

Returns indicate a landslide in Chicago, where the Democrats have elected their entire county, judicial and municipal tickets and eight out of ten congressmen—Cook county—a gain of five.

Democrats also claim three of the state districts, and that a majority of their delegation in congress, will be Democrats.
The state is very close, with a probability that the Republican ticket is defeated,

Connecticut Democratic.

Baldwin, Democrat, is elected governor of Connecticut by about 4,000 Democrats gain one congressional district, the second. The Republican majorities in the others are cut down. The Democrats gain 15 seats in the senate and 50 in the house, but the legislature remains Republican. Result in Maryland.

Maryland elects five Democrats and one Republican congressman, a gain of two for the Democrats. The last dele-gation was composed of three Republi-cans and three Democrats.

Delaware Republican. Indications are that the Republicans have carried the state, including a majority of both houses of the legislature. This means the re-election of Senator Dupont, Republican.

West Virginia. Democrats of West Virginia have made large gains in every section of the state. The election of John Davis for congress, First district, W. G.

for congress, First district. W. G. Brown, Second district and John M. Hamilton, Fourth district is claimed by the Democrats. Big gains in the Third and Fifth districts are also recorded. Five state senators and 30 or more members of the legislature are also gained, according to the claims, but the results are so close the official count will be necessary. The Republicans concede large losses in the state.

North Dakots. North Dakota.

The state has elected a Republican legislature, which insures the re-election of McCumber to the United States senate and the election of Congressman G. Ronna to fil the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Johnson. Both Republican candidates for congress Democrats Carry Indiana. The Democrats have carried the Indiana legislature, thus assuring the election of John W. Kern as United States senator to succeed Albert J. Beveridge, Republican.

Republicans Victorious in Idaho. Scattering returns indicate the elec-ion of the entire Republican ticket headed by Brady for governor, but by reduced majorities. French, an insurgent, seems certain of election to congress. The legisla-ture will be Republican, but there is no United States senator to elect.

New Hampshire Republican Gains.

Indications point to the election of Robert P. Bass. Republican candinate for governor, by a plurality of at least 6,000. The vote shows Republican gains, Frank D. Currier is re-elected to congress from the second district gains. Frank D. Currier is re-elected to congress from the second district. Cyrus A. Sulloway is also believed to be elected from the first district, but by a greatly reduced majority.

The legislature will be Republican by a good margin.

There is no United States senator to be elected this year.

Tennessece Elects Fusionist. With east Tennessee giving Hooper, Republican, a handsome majority with the exception of the Chattanoper (control the exception of the Chattanoor (strict, which went overwhelmingly for Taylor, Democrat, the Republicans claim Hooper is elected by 20,000 majority, regardless of what west Tennessee may show for Taylor.

Pennsylvania Safely Republican. State estimates are coming in slowly. Twenty-two out of 67 counties, including Aliegheny, in which is located Pittsburg, but not including Philadelphia, give Tener, Republican, for governor an estimated plurality of 10,000 over Berry (Keystone), Grim, Democrat, is running far behind. Republican Congressman in Alabama? Republican Congressman in Alabama?

Prohibition played a part in the election in Alabama today and many people remained away from the polls rather than vote against the Democratic candidate. Emmett O'Neal, Democrat, is elected governor of Alabama, over J. O. Thompson, Republican, by 20,000 to 30,000 majority at least. Thompson received a big vote because of being a prohibitionist.

PORT HURON VOTES FOR NEW SYSTEM

MAYOR AND FOUR COMMISSION ERS WILL RUN THE CITY AFTER JANUARY 1 NEXT.

Many Offices Will Be Abolished Under the New Form of Government.

Port Huron has taken its place in the ranks of the cities which have adopted the commission form of gov-ernment. The vote polled Saturday was lighter than was anticipated, but a majority was returned in every one of the 11 wards excepting two favoring the adoption of the new plan. The majority was 764.

With the adoption of the new form of city government the next move will be to hold a primary election at which candidates for mayor and commissioners will be voted for. The eight men having the highest number of votes will go before the people again in an election to be held later in December, and from this number the four having the highest number of votes will become commissioners. The two candidates having the highest number of votes at the primary for mayor will also go before the people at this election, and the one polling the highest number of votes becomes mayor and head of the com-

For the primary election it will be necessary for the candidates to file petitions and the regular routine will be followed as in the regular primary elections. Under the new form of government the city administration is to be in charge of the mayor and four commissioners. There will be abolished the office of city controller, the water works department, public works department as at present conducted, city council, board of estimates and a score of minor boards. One commissioner will look after the parks and public works, another will have supervision over the police and fire departments and another over the financial affairs of the city. The city clerk and city treasurer will be appointed by the board. The city controller's office will be merged with that of the city clerk, and the water board's duties will come into the city treasurer's hands. There is still a mass of detail to settle, but it will not take tangible form until the commissioners and the mayor are elected. This will be done in December and the new regime will become active January 1

Central Wheat Best in State.

The October crop report issued by the department of state shows the average condition of wheat in the state to be 98. In the southern counties it is 97, in the central counties 100 and in the northern counties 99. The average in the upper peninsula is 92.

Farmers marketed in October total of 274,785 bushels. The estimated total marketed in the three months of August, September and October is placed at 3,750,000 bush-

The estimated average yield of corn in bushels in the state is 32; potatoes average 99 and the average condition of live stock is 97. The per cent of farmers who have used commercial fertilizer on their wheat this fall is 20 in the state. The same per cent is given for central counties, 26 per cent is credited to southern counties, 6 per cent to northern counties and one per cent to the upper peninsula.

Judges Back Dr. Shumway.

Dr. F. W. Shumway, secretary of the state board of health, who was charged last week with receiving two salaries from the state contrary to law, has secured the opinions of Judge R. H. Person and Judge Edward Cahill, of Lansing, on the question. Both the jurists have answered that the law does not prohibit Dr. Shumway from drawing salaries both as secretary of the state board of health and of the board of registration of nurses. The law states that he may not receive extra compensation for work in connection with either of the offices, it is explained, but may draw pay for work separate and distinct from them.

Burns to Death in Fire.

George J. Stevens, an employe of the Peerless Portland Cement company, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the factory of the company at Union City, entailing a loss of $115,000. The fire originated from a small stove and the flames went beyond the control of the village fire department. The warehouse, which was 200 by 100 feet, was consumed with $30,000 worth of cement packed in barrels ready for shipment and much valuable machinery. A. W. Wright, of Alma, is president of the company.

An inventory of the estate of the late A. C. Bird has been filed and gives assets of $335,245.04. The liabilities are not given.

A teacher from one of the northern towns who attended the recent convention of the State Teachers' association in Bay City as soon as he returned to his school was put in quarantine by the authorities, and told he would have to stay there, on the theory that he had been exposed to smallpox. There has not been a case of that disease in Bay City in several months, and the teacher has written the Bay City health officer explaining his predicament and asking assistance and advice.

DEER PLENTY IN REASON OPENED NOV. 10, AND MANY HUNTERS ARE AL-READY ON THE GROUND.

GAME WARDENS' WATCHFUL NESS HAS RESULTED IN AN INCREASE OF GAME.

Alpena Scotchmen Are Preparing for a Big Celebration in Honor of Their Patron Saint.

The season for deer opens Michigan Thursday, November 10.
The indications are that this season will be a splendid one. Game Warden T. J. Maney says: "Within the past few weeks I have been pretty well over the country, and every-where deer are plentiful.

"In the opinion of most of those with whom I have talked the increase in game is due to less hunting out of season. I have kept an especially careful watch of the country north of Marquette, where hundreds of deer and partridges were killed last year by pot hunters, but residents near Birch and Big Bay tell me that this year there has been almost none of that. More arrests were made during the summer than usual, and the aggressive policy of the game wardens seems to have had a salutary effect. With the exception of wolves, there has been little to bother the deer this summer, and they have multiplied rapidly."

UNITED STATES CANNOT ADMIN-ISTER AFFAIRS OF CANAL ZONE WITHOUT CONTROL.

MERICANS THERE SAY FRICTION WITH PANAMA OFFICIALS OCCUR DAILY.

President Taft's Assurance That There Is No Danger of Annexation Is Not Accepted in Colon.

Despite Minister Arosemena's supposedly assuring conference with President Taft, which resulted in the announcement that the United States has no intention of attempting to gobble up the Panama government, the original story is the source of much excitement in Colon, particularly when it is considered in connection with the government's dismissal of Councilman Carrillo for the utterance of anti-American feeling at public meetings.

Americans on the Isthmus realize that the successful administration of the Panama canal can never be undertaken unless Washington has absolute control of the entire situation on the Isthmus, which amouts to nothing less than the annexation of the territory.

Close observers during the last three years have known of continual conflicts between United States officials and the officers of the Panama government. These clashes are of daily occurrence, particularly among the petty officials of both governments. Intelligent Panamans recognize the serious side of the situation. They say they would rather see Panama completely gobbled up by the Washington government than exist under the thumbs of officials of the big northern republic.

Shate Militia Officers Resign.

A general upheaval in Texas military circles has resulted because of the conviction and sentencing to life imprisonment of J. D. Reichenstein died of his wounds.

Because of the verdict, Maj. E. H. Roach, of the Third regiment; Capt. H. W. Kinnard, of Co. E, of which Manley was a sergeant; Lieut. George F. Callier and Lieut. Tracey D. "Padlock Bill" Is Passed in Spain.

The Spanish senate, by a vote of 149 to 58, passed the "padlock bill," which prohibits the creation of further religious establishments in Spain until the revision of the concordat with the vatican has been completed. The conciliatory attitude of Premier Canalejas toward the ecclesiastical senators during the debate in the senate on the bill led to the impression in official circles that a way would be found to resume the negotiations between the government and the vatican for the revision of the concordat when the bill was passed.

Said He Helped Blow Up Times.

A sensational story of participation in the destruction of the $\text{Los Angeles}$. Times building was told in Phoenix, Ariz., by Edward Gilham, a waiter in a Chinese restaurant, at a Salvation Army meeting. Gilham was arrested, but now denies the story. He says he was drunk or he wouldn't have said it.

Gilham said he was one of 17 blindfolded men who drew lots at Los Angeles union headquarters and that he was one of three chosen to do the job. He said the plan was to blow up the paper after it went to press, but some employes encountering the wire caused the explosion to occur shortly after midnight.

STOPPED SHORT Taking Tonics, and Built Up on Right Food.

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on so-called tonics-drugs. New material from which to rebuild wasted nerve cells is what should be supplied, and this can be obtained only from proper food. "Two years ago I found myself on the verge of a complete nervous collapse, due to overwork and study, and to illness in the family," writes a Wisconsin young mother. "My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics prescribed by physicians, but their effects wore off shortly after I stopped taking them. My food did.

CHELSEA'S CHANCE.

One year ago Chelsea was on the verge of winding up as a manufacturing center with over fifty empty houses and rents nominal, scarcely enough to pay taxes and insurance. Last spring the plant of the Stove Company was sold to gentlemen who asked no bonus for coming to Chelsea nor had stock to place on the local market.

Now, although we are only on the fringe of what the plant is capable of doing, it hardly being in running shape in even two of the departments, we are confronted with a house famine, as there is scarcely an empty house in town that is in condition to rent, and houses sell readily at a 25 per cent advance over prices asked at the beginning of the year.

There are fifty-five business institutions in town, not counting the pro fessional men, all of which are and will be benefited by the increase in population. While all of these institutions are not in shape financially to do building, many of them are, it would seem that fifty houses could be put up by the business men financially benefitted by Chelsea's boom, especially as any houses erected could be easily rented until sold at rents paying a big interest on the investment.

The Grant & Wood Manufacturing Co. have spent and are spending a grest deal of money in our midst, all coming in from outside, and Chelsea ought to rise to her opportunity and take care of the increase in growth without putting rents beyond the limits of tolerance. We can have just as many new families as we can take care of.

Gur- unless forced to do so, and that I did this way he deceived the queersmen pression of his face. sixth, the shover or circulator. The capitalist is the most difficult man to reach as he seldom handles any of the plates or spurious money. Hence the chief offender in this line may walk calmly about, defying the detective, each tacitly understanding the other in his relative position; one suspecting and watching, the other patiently and tirelessly picking up, crumb by crumb, convicting evidence.

The methods pursued by detectives to entrap counterfeiters are rarely better illustrated than in the following account of the capture of William M. Gurney, alias "Big Bill" the Koniacker, one of the foremost wholesale dealers in "queer" of his day. He was born of respectable parentage, reared in the quietude incident to country life, educated and supplied with a sufficient amount of money wherewith to live like a gentleman and, strangely enough, he chose a path that led to his ultimate ruin.

In the excitement of those tumultuous days the city of New York was well stocked with men possessed of a genius for conceiving and concealing crime, Perhaps no other city in the civilized world has ever afforded a better opportunity for fleecing the public. Gurney had been handling counterfeit money for several years but had managed to escape punishment. He was one of the chief distributors for Joshua D. Miner, who was the head and front of a powerful octopus whose tentacles were stretched out in almost every section and the country.

Gurney was by no means unattract-Tive in appearance, and there were view men walking Broadway in his day whose physique could compare favorably with his. He stood six feet two inches in height and was correspondingly well proportioned, while his expansive chest and well-developed limbs gave him the appearance of a man possessing the muscular strength of a giant. His black eyes were sharp and severe, or mild and pleasant, to suit occasions. In conversation he was easy and interesting and, among strangers, would readily have passed for a gentleman of marked ability. To be a leader among the counterfeiting fraternity seemed to have been the crowning glory of his highest am-

In the spring of 1869 I was appointed chief of the government secret service and, though I had had experience with General Butler in New Orleans, and later in the internalrevenue service, I was unknown among the counterfeiters.

Shortly after my appointment I received information, at my headquarters in Washington, regarding a rather unique affair that had taken place at one of the drinking resorts on Houston street, in New York city. William Gurney, with his characteristic push and daring, had invited a party of "queersmen" to partake of a banquet at this place. There were 24 persons present at this function, three ex-detectives being among the sum-

On the following day I was furnished with the particulars of this remarkable assembly, and the ex-detective who reported it also provided a list of the banqueters. Among other things I learned that my appointment as chief of the secret service was discussed at the affair, and pronounced a good joke upon the government. Gurney addressed his guests, boastfully declaring that "the new chief might do for a preacher or an internal revenue clerk, but that he could never cope with shrewd men like the queersmen."...

"Now is our opportunity," he said, "to reap a rich harvest." At the same time he advised his friends that he was going to take the new chief into his confidence and keep him well stuffed with fictitious information. "In the meantime," he continued. "I keep myself posted as to his proposed movements.

This plan pleased the fancy of the scoundrels, and they agreed that Gurney was a great man. They were to me." and they drank to Gurney's health while the ex-detectives and counterlokes good-naturedly as they contemplated the easy times in store for

Shortly after the melee one of the crowd suggested to Butts that he call in the police. He promptly replied: "No police for me," and the detective was thereupon received without hesithe next seven or eight months Butts worked with this gang of counterfelters as a shover of queer.

"Counterfeit shovers," as they are called, usually travel in pairs. One fellow carries the bogus money and remains outside, while the other takes one bill, enters a place of business, purchases some trifle, tenders cepted $300 of the "queer" for the dia- the counterfeit note in payment, and receives change in good money. Bower had completely won investigation, and this establishes his Gurney's confidence. Telling him that he was about to take a trip to cepted by them as sufficient voucher Texas, he inquired if he could buy that he is a member in good standing $3,000 in counterfeit money at a wholesale figure.

"Of course; any amount of it," answered Gurney.

A deal was arranged for its delivery on the New York side of Fulton Ferry. Bower was to be at a designated spot at a certain time, and Gurtation or mental reservation. During ney was to pass along, hand over the spurious and receive good money in payment.

At the appointed time there was large crowd standing around the ferry landing waiting for the boat. Bower was there, and a few paces from him stood a seemingly honest tinsmith with a joint of stove-pipe under his arm and a pair of snippers in his hand. His clothes and the soot upon his hands and face bore unmistakable witness to his calling. Near by, looking in another direction, stood a stoutly-built business man of ample girth. In one hand he carried a hat box, in the other a valise. In the immediate vicinity was a tall, reverential appearing gentleman, with neat side whiskers, whose white tie and the ministerial cut of his coat were in keeping with the sanctimonious ex-

When the ferry boat struck the dock Gurney stepped off, peered cautiously and carefully around, scanning the faces of those who were standing near. Being satisfied that there were no suspicious persons about, he drew a package from under his coat and stepped toward Bower to deliver it.

At this instant the ministerial-looking man raised his hand. The fat man dropped his luggage and the tinsmith his tools. Both seized Gurney by the arms and held him while the tall brother, with a quick movement, snapped handcuffs on his wrists. Everything was done so quickly that Gurney did not have time to catch his breath before he was securely ironed.

The prisoner was taken to the secret service office. I removed my side whiskers and made some change in my clothing, then entered the office and shook hands with the crestfallen criminal.

During that day and evening the government officers were engaged in arresting the shovers of the gang, against whom Butts had secured evidence. Two of the ex-detectives, guests at Gurney's banquet, had already been arrested for passing counterfeit money-one at Pittsburg and the other at Cincinnati. By 11 o'clock that night the officers had arrested 20 of the gang. They were arranged in a circle at the office, and the right hand of one was handcuffed to the left hand of the next. Gurney, appropriately, happened to be the center-piece.

I could not help a feeling of pity for the unfortunates, but they had voluntarily preyed upon society and transgressed the laws of their land, and the common weal required that they be punished. They were all tried and convicted, most of them entering a plea of guilty.

The boastful Gurney now fully realized the trap into which he had fallen. He had been hoisted by his own petard, a circumstance that seemed to humiliate him almost beyond measure. With little or no pressure he weakened and confessed that from Joshua D. Miner, who was the capitalist that owned the plates upon which the National Shoe and Leather twenties were printed.

Among the secret service officers Miner was known to be a counterfeiter, but on account of his great wealth and political standing, he was considered a difficult man to grapple with. He was a large city contractor at this time, and employed about one hundred men opening up a new road at the end of Ninth avenue.

Gurney was altogether too timid to make a deal with Miner in order to give the officers an opportunity to capture him red-handed, but he finally agreed to go with me to see Miner who, he believed, would surrender the $20 counterfeit plates for the purpose of shortening his sentence.

Leaving a carriage on the boulevard, I walked with Gurney a short distance on Sixty-ninth street toward Miner's house. We met Miner on the sidewalk and I was introduced by Gurney, who then explained the trouble he had gotten himself into. Miner said he could do nothing for him and, as a last resort, I requested Miner to step aside with me, where I told him that I was convinced that he was the owner of the counterfeit plates of the National Shoe and Leather bank. This he firmly denied. but I insisted and threatened to arrest him. He finally said that he would make an effort to secure the plates. I knew what this meant and. upon his promise to meet me the fol- Dickinson. lowing day, I left him.

Miner appeared on time, but was still doubtful in regard to his ability to make the surrender demanded. He was a hard nut to crack but, before we parted, I succeeded in convincing him, by the use of language not less threatening than it was forcible, that it was for his interest to surrender the plates. This he now promised to do and, shortly after another interview at his home, I received a check for a piece of baggage at the Grand Central depot. A detective went to the baggage room at this depot and obtained an old hair trunk in which were found the plates, According to promise, Gurney, through my intercession and explana-

The officers of the secret service all considered him a dangerous person and none was anxious to encounter a man of such gigantic proportions and apparently desperate character.

My first move against Gurney was to send Mike Bower, a newly-fledged government detective, to form his acquaintance. Bower was selected because his appearance was anything the belief that he was completely debut that of a detective. SYNOPSIS.

Archibald Terhune, a popular and inlolent young bachelor of London, ceives news that he has been made heir to the estate of his Aunt Georgiana, with in income of $20,000 a year, on condition that he becomes engaged to be married within ten days. Falling to do so the floor by that time. egacy will go to a third cousin in America. The story opens at Castle Wyckoff, where Lord Vincent and his wife, friends of Terhune, are discussing plans to find him a wife within the prescribed time. It seems that Lady Vincent is one of seven persons named Agatha, all close girlhood chums. She decides to invite two of them to the castle and have Archie there as one of the guests. Agatha Sixth strikes Archie as a handpainted beauty. Agatha First is a breezy American girl. Lady Vincent tells her husband that Agatha Sixth already cares for Archie. He gains from Agatha Sixth the admission that she cares for him, but will require a month's time fully to make up her mind. Agatha First, neglected by Terhune, re-ceives attentions from Leslie Freer. Four days of the precious time have passed when Terhune is called to London on business. Agatha First, on the plea of sickness, excuses herself from a motor trip planned by the Vincents. Later they see Agatha First picking flowers with a strange man. The Vincents discuss Agatha's seeming duplicity.

"Our marriage," I corrected. "Naturally," she said indulgently and laughed. "But I 've always admired her," she went on; "she's so big and strong and has such tremendous vital force. I'm a little surprised that any one of such an open character could develop into such a plotter. It's all so frightfully under

"Perhaps Mrs. Chiltern could throw some light on the subject," I suggested.

"I shouldn't wonder at all!" exclaimed Dearest. "Agatha First stayed much longer with her than Agatha Sixth did. I shall telephone her in the morning. What a smart little boy it is, to be sure, to think of that!" And I was more than paid for my happy thought by a pair of exquisite arms about my neck.

"I wonder what they'll have to say for themselves when they come in?" I said as we were going down to the drawing-room a little later.

"O, they won't come in together." said my wife; "that would be too much of a give away." And just then we perceived Agatha First standing at the foot of the stair-case waiting for us. She was alone, as Dearest had prophesied she would be.

"Hello!" she greeted us composedly. "Was it a nice party? Did you miss me?" And although I couldn't help thinking there was a new beauty about the girl in the unusual brilliance of her dark eyes and the deeper glow of her color as she stood there, I thought such cheek deserved

"Rippin!" I said, before Dearest could answer. "But where have you been? I thought you were supposed to be on the sick list today." But she didn't seem a bit embarrassed. "I was," she replied. "I didn't really feel like going way over to Northbury with you, but I thought a little outing would do my head good, so I went for a stroll." "I see!" I said, and thought with indignation of the scene in the woods even as I noticed that the young lady did not wear the pongee auto coat she had worn then. "Left it in the machine, probably, to prevent suspicion!" I thought to myself, while Dearest said sweetly: "That's nice, der: I'm glad you felt like going.

Run along now and get ready for dinner. It's almost eight." It was what we called between ourselves "The Incident of the Checked Coat" that really decided my wife to consult Mrs. Chiltern about Agatha First's strange behavior. The morning was fine and we had planned to take our guests to see some interesting ruins not quite 12 miles away, where an automobile was hand somehow. Why can't she come mobile coat! Did you ever, Freddy, and tell me frankly all about it, did you ever!" And she held it up and looked it over from collar to coattail as if it were enchanted and could tell us more than our own eyes could gather.

"I've got to see!" she cried back to me, and I went up after her, although I knew it wouldn't be any use her seeing it, since she had not seen the one in the automobile.

"Yes," I said, "the very same!" "Then it must have been Terhune! "Beyond a doubt!" I answered houghtfully. "But isn't it too queer! In the first place I didn't know he could handle a machine, and in the second, where did he get it from. By Jove!"

"And why does he have to meet Agatha First in secret that way?" wondered my wife as we left the castle and started for the scene of the picnic by a series of short cuts the others did not know.

But all our marvelling brought us no enlightment, only the conclusion on Dearest's part that she would consult Mrs. Chiltern on the subject as soon as an opportunity presented itself.

CHAPTER VII.

We arrived at the group of ruins which formed the goal of our walk in good time, although the others were there ahead of us and were just spreading a cloth and taking things out of the automobile which had met them there, as we came up.

"Hurry up, slow coaches!" called Agatha First cheerlly, "or we won' leave you anything to eat!" "Lend me a hand with this cloth Vincent!" was Terhune's request, and I fell to with a will and had the thing right in a jiffy. And maybe it wasn't good fun sit ting there on a lot of jolly boulders and clumps of rock that I had collected with great pains and a ranged at intervals about the cloth, grinning at each other across its goodly array of picnic dainties.

Dearest is a famous hand at planning that sort of thing. We had camped upon a small rise in the middle of an open space where great oak trees cut us off from sight of the road on the one hand, and broad meadows and wooded stopes fell away toward Hartsmere stream on the other: the latter streaking the green of it all with silver a field or two away.

Close at hand the ruined chapel or convent which we had come to see piled itself in picturesque confusion. and we had reached that point in our merry-making when we were simply content to gaze apathetically upon it and listen uncomprehendingly to Freer recite its history with neverflagging accuracy and zeal.

He knows everything, that chap!
And is disgustingly ready to give everybody else the benefit of his learning at all times.

Agatha First was sitting near him tho' not making any attempt to disguise her indifference to his pedantic discourse, while Arch and Agatha Sixth, I am glad to say, were carrying on a whispered conversation together on the other side of the cloth. Terhune's room, I said, when I had finished lacing her long boots, "and see if I can't find that old fishing hat see if I can't find that old fishing hat of mine I used to sport last summer of mine I used to sport last summer others could not hear I thought Arch ly.

CURING CATARRH

Accept Our Advice and Try This Remedy at Our Risk.

Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membrane. The mucous membrane is, one may say, the interior lining of the body. Catarrh therefore may exist in any part of the system.

When the catarrhal poison attacks the muscous membrane, inflammation and congestion are produced and nature fails to throw off the accumulated poisons. The organ which has been afflicted ceases to perform its proper function as nature intended it should. The result is, complication opon complication, which may lead

"The Merry Widow."

Perhaps more than any other opera ever written, has "The Merry Widow" come to be considered by those who you can obtain it only at-The Rexall have not heard its full score, an opera of one number. So continuously has the famous waltz music been played by street pianos, brass bands and orchestras, that it has grown to be considered representative of the whole. Such is not the case, however, longing and beautiful minor tones is for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhages, weak lungs. 50c. $1.00.
