NOTICE

Within the next-two weeks we shall adopt a new system of handling credit accounts, "The McCaskey Account Register System." You will get a slip or bill of your purchase every time you make one and on each bill will appear the total amount of your indebtedness to us. We respectfully ask that you carefully keep these slips on file, as they will be the only itemized account you will receive.

Before we adopt this system we ask our customers to make an extraordinary effort to commence with a clean sheet, or with as small a balance as possible earried over from the old methed of book keeping.

MO DOUBT ABOUT THE FLAVOR

Mr. Simon Was Fully Satisfied That He Got All There Was in the Mixture.

Edgar Selwyn, the actor-playwright, was dining at the Cafe Madrid the other day when the proprietor came to his table, according to a New York correspondent. "I want to thank you or having referred to my restaurant in your latest play," said George Rec. St. Joseph Will Not Share in the ttor. "In what manner can I reciprocate, Mr. Selwyn?" Mr. Selwyn said that he might name a cocktail for Mrs. Selwyn-who is Margaret Mayo in playwriting ranks. "Not being an expert on cocktails," said he, "I'll send my brother Mike in to sample it." So Mr. Rector devoted his skilled inttention to the work of building a new gargle. Mr. Simon-Selwyn's mame was Simon before he went on the stage-proved uncommonly hard to suit. Mr. Rector would toss towether a new collection of acids and Mr. Simon would come in, drink the mixture wisely, head on one side. "Let me try another," he would say. "I don't quite make that." So the patient Mr. Rector would scramble jauntily. Mr. Rector hailed him. "I Mr. Simon robbed a water glass of all Its ice and went about with his mouth open, and panting for fresh air. By and by he sat down and watched Broadway through the window with veyes dull and glazed. His hand went to an aching forehead. "Try another, Mike," said the malicious Mr. Rector. "Maybe you didn't get the full flavor." "The devil I didn't," said Mr. Simon ance. They have turned their atten-*crossly, as he went out.

Envied for Peculiar Reasons. Into the immigrant homes there come girls occasionally who have only to let down their hair to insure a kind of hero worship from the other girls.

"It is not the hair they now have that makes them so interesting, but looked upon as sweethearts. the hair they once had," said the matron of a Hungarian home. "They have sold their hair and have come to America on the proceeds. Contrary to general belief marketable hair is not clipped close all over the head. The hair for commerce is cut from the center of the head and enough of the the serious charge. Served Himself First.

"That," said Senator Beveridge, discussing in Indianapolis a political fight-"that was unseemly. It was thocking and annoying. It reminds me of the steamboat steward.

"Once, on a certain steamboat, rang and said to the steward: "Rring me, please, a mild Havana cigar.' 'Sorry, boss,' said the steward, with an apologetic smile, 'but I smoked the last Havana in the box not half an hour ago."

Railway Board's Report Issued.

The annual report of the state rail road commission for the year ending December 31, 1909, was issued. The book contains more than one thousand pages and gives in detail all information concerning the various steam and electric roads in the state age, and other details of the growing and work of the commission accomplished last year.

According to the statistics compiled in the report there were 88,848 employes connected with the various steam and electric roads in the state. This figure included every one from the high officials to the section hands and roundhouse employes. The total passenger fares collected on all steam roads in Michigan for the year ending June 30, 1909, amounted to $13,-820,875.04, while the total earnings from all sources, including fares, for $80,346.13. the same period of time totaled $17. 260.472.88. The total passenger fares collected from all electric lines which do an interurban business was $9,723.-831.93. The total freight revenue of steam roads for the same period amounted to $37,300,139.22.

Commissioner Barry's Report. The annual report of Insurance Commissioner Barry for the year 1909 has just been issued. It shows that n 1909 the 60 companies in Michigan wrote 27,105 new policies, amounting to $40,840,325.50. There were in force at the end of the year 176,453 policies, amounting in all to $279,921,191,43. The premiums amounted to $10,039. 327.53 and the losses paid totaled $3.

The cost of maintaining the insurance commission for the year ending June 30, 1910, was $22,499.90, while the receipts amounted to $515,583.57. Of this amount the primary school fund was enriched to the extent of $483.-110.04, while $32,464.53, which includes retaliatory fees and receipts from assessment, life, accident and sick benefit associations, was turned into the general fund of the state. Therefore the insurance commission turned into the general fund $9,964.63 more than it cost to maintain the department for the year.

SYNOPSIS.

Archibald Terhune, a popular and indolent young bachelor of London, reto the estate of his Aunt Georgiana, with an income of $20,000 a year, on condition that he becomes engaged to be married within ten days. Failing to do so the legacy will go to a third cousin in America. The story opens at Castle Wyckoff, where Lord Vincent and his wife, friends of Terhune, are discussing plans to find him a wife within the prescribed time. It seems that Lady Vincent is one of seven persons named Agatha, all close girlhood chums. She decides to invite two of them of the evidence of my own eyes that For myself, I followed my wife out to the castle and have Archie there as one of the guests. Agatha Sixth strikes Archie as a handpainted beauty. Agatha First is a breezy American girl. Lady Vincent tells her husband that Agatha Sixth already cares for Archie. He gains from Agatha Sixth the admission that she cares for him, but will require a month's time fully to make up her mind. Agatha First, neglected by Terhune, receives attentions from Leslie Freer. Four days of the precious time have passed when Terhune is called to London on business. Agatha First, on the plea of sickness, excuses herself from a motor trip planned by the Vincents. Later they see Agatha First picking flowers with a strange man. The Vincents discuss Agatha's seeming duplicity. We met her at the foot of the stairs just as we were going up, wrapperclad and with long black braids hanging over her shoulders. I felt myself grown quite cat-like in regard to seeing in the dark, and had perceived who she was and the vital necessity of keeping our discovery a secret from her, before my wife had time to more than gasp a greeting.

"Is that you, Agatha Lawrence?" she inquired.

"Yes. What is it?" whispered back Agatha Sixth, peering at us from the stairs, and by Jove, I felt so sorry for the poor girl if she should see what we had just seen that I rather lost my head.

"Dogs," I said, my voice quite hoarse with whispering, "one of 'em's got shut in the drawing-room some way, and he's knocked over a vase!' "Did he also light the lamp?" demanded Miss Lawrence suspiciously, as she came and stood beside us. And I cursed myself for a blunderer as she said it. Then Dearest had a go at the situation, and I felt that if this attempt failed we could do nothing more to save the girl from the certain misery she seemed so eager to bring upon herself.

"I lit the lamp, darling," she said, standing directly in front of the doors so that Agatha Sixth's view was cut off. "to see if there was much damage done. We forgot to turn it out, but Wilfred will do it now if you'll come along upstairs with me and not bother." But the girl was not to be turned from her purpose so easily. Some instinct seemed to tell her that what lay behind those closed doors concerned her nearly.

It didn't take long, the delivery of the blow, and Agatha Sixth took it like a martyr. One glimpse was enough. Then she turned and silently led the way to the stairs.

At the door of our guest's room which we passed before reaching our own suite, my wife stopped.

"Good night, Wilfred," she said. "Agatha, dear," to the girl, and taking her hand, "you must let me spend the rest of the night with you." And as I stumbled on to my own room I couldn't help thinking that if anything in the world could comfort her, if consolation was to be found, Agatha Sixth would find it in those dear arms.

"Grey" and "Gray." What is the difference, if any, beween "grey" and "gray," aside from the matter of spelling?

The editor of the Oxford Dictionary some years ago made extended inquiry as to usage, and found that opinions in London varied. Replies to his questions showed that in Great Britain the form grey is the more frequent in use, despite the authority of Dr. Johnson and later lexicographers, who give the preference to gray. Many correspondents said that they used the two forms with a difference of meaning, or application, the distincthat grey donates a more delicate or. lighter tint than gray. Others considered the difference to be that gray is a warmer color, or that it has a mixture of red or brown. Another group held that grey has more of sentiment, gray more of color, which may mean that grey is a suggestion rather than a positive outline.

She was scandalized when the family staid up till 11 o'clock and decided that she wouldn't tell pa anything about it when she wrote home next day. "He might think we have fallen into evil ways," she said to herself as she was going off to sleep. She awoke at her usual time 4 o'clock, and the house seemed strangely quiet. "Town folks do get lazy," she thought, "and they probably don't get up till 6." She dressed and went downstairs and watched the clock until 5. Not a sound; the she waited till 6, and at 7, between hunger and alarm, she was almost brazed. "They've been murdered in their beds!" she yelled at 8 o'clock from the front steps, and soon the house was filled with people rushing in to see what had happened. The family were surprised and indignant when police, market gardeners, newsboys, etc., rushed into their bedrooms home that day. "I never expected." she sobbed to pa, "that any girl would

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING REDUCED

Much has been said about the high cost of living, its causes, and the possibilities of its reduction. But little has been said about the most costly leaks the false economy existing today in nearly every household.

Much foodstuffs are bought with but one point in view: "How cheap can set it" without a thought of quality or "after cost." One of the most serious is baking powder.

By the use of perfect baking powder the housewife can derive as much economy as from any other article used in baking and cooking. In selecting the baking powder, therefore, care should be exercised to purchase one that retains its original strength and always remains the same, thus making the food sweet and wholesome and producing sufficient leavening gas to make the baking light.

sufficient leavening gas to make the baking light.

Very little of this leavening gas be produced by the cheap baking powders, making it necessary to use double the quantity ordinarily required to secure good results.

You cannot experiment every time you make a cake or biscuits, or test the strength of your baking powder to find out how much of it you should use; yet with most baking powders you should do this for they are put together so carelessly they are never uniform, the quality and strength varying with each can purchased.

Sealed in air-tight cans, Calumet Baking Powder does not alter in strength and is not affected by atmospheric changes. In using Calumet you are bound to have uniform bread, take or biscuits, as Calumet does not contain any chemical commonly used to increase the weight. Further, it produces pure, wholesome food, and is a baking powder of rare merit; therefore, is recommended by leading physicians and chemists. It compiles with all pure food laws, both STATE and NATIONAL. The goods are moderate in price, and any lady purchasing Calumet from her grocer, if not safisfied with it, can return it and have her money refunded.

"Seven Days."

Fun-clean, wholesome, joyous fun -is the stuff in which "Seven Days" is made, the comedy by Mary Roberts Carl Straub and Nelson Peterson Rinehart and Avery Hopwood that is returned Thanksgiving day from their now in its second year in New York hunting trip, each bringing their two and will be at the New Whitney Theatre Wednesday, December 7, matinee and night.

A great deal of praise has been Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Collins, of giving with E. J. Musbach and family given to the authors for writing an American comedy that, as one critic said, "has more real humor in it than any twenty of the so-called popular successes" without so much as a hint of impropriety. "Seven Days" is clean comedy. Quoting from the dramatic critic of the New York Miss Velma Richards spent Satur- Globe, "this joyous howl of a farce hasn't a line or an incident in it that couldn't be laughed at unblushingly." day with the latters parents in Nor- The unparalleled success of this play proves that the American public prefers to laugh at the theatre, and likes best of all to laugh at wit and humor and merriment that are free from coarseness. "Seven Days" is untainted by the broadness and suggestiveness upon which so many depend to create laughter, and it contains more laughter than all the others put together: It is in the second year of its New York run which continued all summer. It ran six months in Chicago. No comedy in years has caught on as this one has. Messrs. Wagenhals & Kemper, producers of this exceptional success, are sending a cast whose members appeared at the Astor Theatre, and the production is an exact duplicate of the one in New York. It will be a Broadway "Seven Days" in every respect.

> Tobacco Patch in Heart of City. Probably the most up-to-date tobacoo patch in the whole white burley district is the four-acre piece of land in Lexington, Ky., on which W. L. Petty will this year raise a crop of the valuable plants.

First-class tobacco land is at a high premium these days and Mr. Petty paid about as much rent for the use of this city lot as he would have for a good sized office building. The land, however, has every advantage which could possibly be desired for the purpose to which it has been dedicated. It is virgin soil, in the heart of the city, within 31/2 blocks of the Phoenix hotel, is supplied with electric lights. city water hydrants and concrete sidewalks on the adjoining street, on the corner of which is a police patrol and fire department box, and is thus in every way furnished with every protection and convenience afforded to

As far back as we can go we find man cooking his food. As to how men came by their knowledge of fire there is room for a wide difference of opinion. Its use was probably first known in some volcanic region, where it was suggested by nature itself. Then came the two sticks, and later on the flints, by means of which men could

Trial by Ordeal In Japan.

Trial by ordeal still exists in some parts of Japan. If a theft takes place in a household, all the servants are required to write a certain word with the same brush. The conscience is supposed to betray its workings in the waves of the ideographs written. Tracing an ideograph involves such an effort of muscular directness and undivided attention that this device Jacob Lehman and family spent often leads to the discovery of the guilty party. The test is, at all events, Miss Lydia Koebbe has been sick more humane than the ordeal by boiling water, to which accused persons were formerly submitted in Japan.

By COL. H. C. WHITLEY, Former Chief U. S. Secret Service and ever active-at glarthe brown-stone front and lowly tenement-everywhere and at every hour is this insidious enemy of social order wideawake and on the alert. It takes an acute mind and level head to contend against and bring the ingenious criminal to the bar of justice. During our civil war counterfeiting blossomed into a fine art. It became almost omnipresent in every channel of trade and the government detectives were impotent to totally eradicate the evil, expose the plots and defeat the operations of these criminals, until some time after peace had been restored.

To meet and destroy these vampires of society it was often necessary to resort to measures of seeming wrong, that good results might be obtained. One of the most ingenious oriminals that fell into the hands of the secret service division during my official career was one Thomas Brownie, the ton of a man of wealth, occupying a fine residence on an aristocratic street in New York City.

Young Brownie was possessed of a handsome, refined face, slight figure, polished address and the self poise of a man thoroughly trained in the best circles. Reared under the tuition of a good and tender mother and supplied with every luxury by a kind and indulgent father, it seems quite unaccountable that he should choose to enter the society of criminals. On account of his expertness in dodging the officers of the law he gained the confidence of many of the leading counterfelters and forgers of the country. When I first learned of him he was leading the life of a man of inexhaustible means. His extravagance in dress and living was in keeping with the man of millions. Through various sources of information it was discovered that he was handling counterfelt money in a wholesale way and that he was connected with what was then known as the Miner gang of "Ceniackers."

He had for some time been cute enough to deal in the bogus stuff in a manner to baffle the skill of the government officers. On more than one occasion when the officers thought him to be almost in their grasp, he would manage to clude them and disappea: from their sight. The time came when neither the subtle ingenuity of his plans nor the wealth and respectability of his family served to shield him from the hands of the officers. He was a difficult man to capture, but norwithstanding his remarkable skill and adroitness he met his match at

It was while at the height of his criminal glory and while he was daily strutting Broadway with the air of a man of unimpeachable character and inexhaustible wealth that evidence sufficient for his conviction had been gathered and brought to my office. I at once directed his arrest and plans were laid for his capture.

At about the same time he suddenly disappeared from his usual haunts and the officers were unable toodiscover his hiding place.

The detective's heart was throbbing sight. The hot blood of the Italian was surging to his head. He was quite bewildered.

Collecting his scattered senses he was soon able to convince the young woman that he was a man of consequence, and that while their meeting was but casual, he was greatly delighted because of the opportunity offered to make her acquaintance.

It was late in the evening when they predicament for her to be placed in; promise to meet again on the arrival of the steamer at Fall River in the

I found her fully posted on the nature of my business. Inviting me to be seated, she began the conversation to Montreal, where she hoped to meet her brother, Thomas Brownie, She had learned through a friend that her brother was anxious to quit counterfeiting and that he could, if given an opportunity, put the government officers in a position to arrest a number of leading counterfeiters. She did not know the particulars, but was sure that her brother would, if permitted to return to New York, render the government important service. She said that her father had nearly lost his mind on account of the action of his son and that he was ready to undergo almost any secrifice and pay any reasonable sum of money for the purpose of saving his boy.

What she said was quite reasonable. and after questioning her for some time I had about come to the conclusion that her offer, if carried out as promised, would be a good thing for the government. There were a number of counterfelts then on the market and I was exceedingly anxious to break up the gang by arresting its leaders and securing the plates. The Miner gang had first and last cost the government a considerable sum of money. - While talking over the details of the prodow and raised the shade, upon which the sun suddenly shone forth, lighting up the room and casting its bright rays fully upon the face of the lady before me. Drawing my chair a little nearer and more in front of her I was enabled to look her straight in the face. My eyes resting on hers seemed to disconcert her. She blinked and turned her head. I straightened up a little and stared at her. She started to rise. "Keep your seat," I commanded, in an authoritative tone.

At this moment I saw defiance mingled with terror in her eyes. At first I had noticed nothing in her appearance or actions to create suspicion. As was quite natural, she now seemed excited. This might have been attributed to a disturbed condition of her mind on account of the actions of her brother-a natural sequence under the circumstances. She again turned towards me and the sun shone upon her face. I at once detected the work of an artist skilled in the use of shades of paint. I noticed, too, that her hair had not the stossy appearance of natural growth. I was quite sure she was in disguise.

"Before this business goes any further." I said, "I want you to remove your false hair and wipe the paint and powder from your face.'

As I arose in front of her she started up with an indignant glare and attempted to push me away. In a flash I reached for her chignon. Giving it a quick jerk, its fastenings gave way and it rolled on the carpet. There was no longer any use for concealment. Thomas Brownie stood before me. The game was up. There was no more room for dodging. He began pecling off layer after layer of his feminine apparel. When he had fully disengaged himself from his dressmaker's outfit he opened his traveling bag and proceeded to clothe himself in masculine attire.

Merito, who had during this interview remained in the hall, was now requested to come into the room. I handed him a pair of handcuffs and Brownie immediately put up his hands to receive them. He was completely done for and offered no further resistance.

In taking the trip on the steamer 'Providence" and playing the part of a fascinating woman, it was not surprising that Brownie was able to dupe the detective. As a gifted impersonator he could reproduce to a nicety the tones and modulations of the detective's voice. His description and imitation of the impassioned love scene that took place between himself and Merito was very entertaining. Brownie was too crafty and gifted a criminal to run at large. He was put on trial, convicted and sentenced to the Albany penitentiary for a term of fifteen years. Merito was so chagrined and overwith the sister of Brownie. Through come on account of his escapade with cunning 1 made her acquairtance and Brownie that he lost his assurance to meet her brother Thomas. She tells ficers. The last I heard of him he Alaskan Hawk, Which Makes Prodiglous Journeys from Top to Bottom of the Hemisphere-The Mysterious Chimney Swift.

Chicago.-No theory yet advanced by ornithologists accounts for the migration of birds. Why does the Alaskan hawk quit his home in the Arctic regions and journey with such mighty toil through the torrid zone to reach the Antarctic ice fields, only to return in a little while over the same route to the starting point, spending his whole life in the repetition of these prodigious but apparently useless journeys back and forth from one end of the earth to the other. We know more about the forces at play in the solar system than we know about the impulses of the migrant bird; we know more Halley's comet than we know of the forces that impel the flight of the Alaskan hawk or the golden plover.

The golden plover is one of the most remarkable travelers in the bird good. They said she had eczen kingdom. The plover passes northward in May to its breeding site burning and itching was so see around the north pole. The eggs are laid on a cake of ice in June and six had about given up all hopes weeks later the old bird and the chicks start south. They loiter along slowly until they reach Labrador. where they make a stand for some weeks feasting on crow berries and becoming very fat. Suddenly all the plovers in Labrador rise as by signal and make for the sea. The route is now over the broad Atlantic 400 miles from land, southward to the Bermudas, over the Gulf, through Venezuela and Brazil, across the entire continent of South America to far off Patagonia. The journey completed the weary, emaciated travelers rest for two weeks before starting upon the return trip. The long and terrific voyage over the sea is exhaustive to the last degree. But the plover lives ten or even twenty years, moving perpetually, and in the course of a lifetime may travel 200,000 miles; a record which few species can equal. Nature has made the bird the greatest travelers in the universe. The chimney swift, perhaps the most numerous of bird species and the most universally distributed over the earth, goes south from our latitude in September and for some weeks swifts are plentiful over the Gulf states, where they congregate seemingly for some great purpose. They are seen there by the millions and millions. Suddenly they all disappear and no mortal man knows whither they go. The winter destination of the chimney

Hawks and vultures collect in the upper air and when a large congregation has assembled they move off silently and majestically at a great al. titude and we see them no more until next spring, when they return one at a time, without any parade or spec tacular performance. # COLDS 40 GIRLS BURNED;

FOUR-STORY BRICK BUILDING AT NEWARK, N. J., SCENE OF AWFUL HOLOCAUST.

MOST OF THE VICTIMS IN THE FACTORY BLAZE ARE YOUNG WOMEN.

Many Leap From the Top of the Structure Through Smoke That Hides Rescue Nets.

A death-dealing fire, the most fatal that ever visited Newark, N. J., occurred when the old Domestic Sewing Machine building, at High and Orange streets, burned to the ground. Probably 40 girls employed in the building met death, and 50 were taken to Twenty-three bodies have been recovered, and of these 19 had been identified. The identity of the four others may never be determined.

The building had four floors, and contained five manufactories. It had formerly been occupied by the Domes- army.' tic Sewing Machine Co. Portions of it were oil-soaked, and flamed up instantly. There was but one fire es cape, and in a couple of minutes after Federal Government Files Petition the alarm of fire it was enveloped by flames

One hundred and twenty-two girls were employed in the building by the five firms quartered there.

Madero's Silence Mystifies Many. Until the whereabouts of Francisco L. Madero is definitely known, it cannot be asserted definitely that the present compulsory quiet in Mexico will continue. This is the opinion of Texans who know Mexico and its people as they know their own state. A great mass of correspondence has come in during the last three days from Parral, Chihuahua and Torreon, from business men, lawyers, doctors and quasi-newspaper men. All minimize the disorders of a week ago and all declare that the government is in control except in a few scattered places.

The fact that the insurrecto leader's whereabouts is not known leads to the supposition that he is engaged in an attempt to join some band of his sympathizers with arms and other munitions of war. But this is only a supposition. If he fails to do so, the small bands now abroad undoubtedly their present form. will be gradually exterminated.

Red Cross to Send Ou: First Aid Car. Covering-a wider field than the portable rescue station being put into service by the bureau of mines, a car will be put on the road by the American Red Cross society about December 5, which will teach firstaid-to-the-injured work to railroad employes, employes of factories, as well as covering other ground where there is danger from accidents.

While this car, which will be known as "the American Red Cross first aid car," will over a somewhat different field than the bureau of mines' cars, it will work in the mining districts and also will be available in case of mine disasters.

The car, which is now in Buffalo receiving its equipment, was presented to the American Red Cross society by the Pullman Car Co., and the railads will make no charge for hauling ne portable first aid school throughut the country.

Dr. M. Whitfield Glasgow of Birmingham, Ala., will have charge of the car.

Parcel Post Urged by Hitchcock. A limited parcels post for the rural free delivery routes will be recommended by Postmaster General Hitchcock in his annual report. In announcing this the postmaster general foresees the establishment of a general parcels post throughout the country as soon as the postal savings system is thoroughly organized.

As the preliminary step in the development of such a service Mr. Hitchcock will ask congress to authorize the delivery on rural routes of parce's weighing as high as eleven pounds, which is the weight limit for the international parcel post.

This form of service, it is maintained, can be conducted with little, if any, additional expense to the government.

DIAZ MALES STATEMENT. President of Mexico Says That Coun-

"The recent riots in certain portions of Mexico are the political work of Francisco I, Madero. According to the proclamations he published on throwing himself into an attempted revolution, his object was to attain the presidency by force, since he was unable to do so by the votes of his fellow-citizens.

"This political movement will not extend, since hitherto it has limited itself to riots in Puebla, Gomez Palacio, Parral and Ciudad Guerrero. In all these places they have been repressed by the police and the federal forces. The rest of the republic has remained completely tranquil.

"The Mexican people love peace and understand its benefits and will not accept any revolution. Further, the business men understand their interests would be in danger in the hands of persons who profess Socialism and carry on an anarchistic propaganda. # The Birthday Dinner ...

"Harry says it proves again the ne cessity of absolute confidence between us," said Janet, chopping somewhat recklessly at the mince meat she was preparing. "That was what made me maddest-madder than seeing the hammer, even. As if I didn't tell him everything but surprises! Hand me those raisins. It's sweet of you to help. There's a pink checked apron in that drawer. Hilda simply can't make mince meat, and it's her day out. Though why I am making it except from habit I cannot see---'

"For Harry, dear," smiled Louise, because he loves homemade mince ples. As a peace offering, isn't it? What's the trouble all about? The hammer sounds ominous,"

"It was the worst dinner I even gave," Janet began again. "I'm sorry I ever wanted to cover that shirtwaist box with blue. The pink did very well, and I wouldn't have thought of the hammer if it hadn't been for that box." "Now," said Louise, determinedly, "begin at the beginning and try to talk sense." .

"Last week Harry had a birthday." explained Janet. "He told me once he had never had a birthday cake, so I got to planning and decided that, conin the United States circuit court in sidering the lovely chinchilla set he New York the long-expected bill of had just given me, I would celebrate

"He has been having some dreadful abstract cases and has stayed down nights several times this month, so to be sure that he'd come home I asked him to bring me a hammer. I made combination and conspiracy exists for | it so important that he wouldn't have dared stay downtown for dinner and I mentioned that it was his birthday, pany, the National Sugar Refining Co., for fear he might think I had forgotten it, and I added that we should have a nice evening at home.

"Harry, said he'd come home early and went away flattered to death with the new umbrella I had given him. I had lost mine and two of his, so I thought it only fair to make him a birthday present of one.

"Then I asked the Weavers and the Bartons to come for a 7 o'clock dinner, since the trip out here is so long. I made the cake and got out mother's old-fashioned glass cake stand and covered it with pink candy hearts and wound it round with smilax. And I got twenty-one of those pink rose candleholders-oh, of course, he's older, but you can't say 'sweet sixteen' to a man. And Hilda and I got up a beautiful dinner.

'Everybody was lucky and caugh' the right train and seemed filled with the birthday spirit. But Harry didn't

"By and by I got nervous and went to the phone. He had left the office at 5, and so I told Hilda to heat up the soup and make the gravy-we had ducks, my dear, beautiful wild ones.

"'Well, we waited and waited. At last at 8 o'clock-I made them wait so long-we went out to dinner without Harry. Hilda had lighted the candles, as it was a part of the program, and Mr. Barton took the head of the table. Everything had a 'kept warm' taste to me and I couldn't eat for fear Harry had been robbed or run over, and it was dreadful all around. "When did he come? At 8:45!

"He came right out to the dining room, saying he was starved or something. And the candles were all out and the cake was cut and everything was as bad as possible.

"Of course, he was surprised, but all he said was, 'Here's that hammer, and you're lucky to get it.' Then he handed me a rusty, battered old thing that made everybody scream with laughter.

"That was the reason-the hammer. "He had taken an early train home and when he got to our station he remembered the hammer and took the next train back. He got there so late that the stores were closed, of course, and so he went back to the office to get the office hammer. The boy had looked it in his looker.

"Then there was a search for the janitor and duplicate keys. Nothing mattered but the hammer. It was like a gold nugget by that time to Harry. He finally got the night watchmen and between them they dug it out, while we at home were eating our soup. Fortunate'y, he caught the last express train, or he would not have reached home till 9:30.

"Oh, he told a great story. It made a tremendous hit. Nobody could see why I wasn't pleased over Harry's display of obedience and devotion. He even told them that I said I had to have the hammer that night or I couldn't sleep, because the box must be covered by noon next day, as the embroidery class was to meet here that afternoon. I may have told him that, but he should have known that I didn't mean it.

"He wouldn't take a bit of the blame insisted that if he had been invited to his own birthday party he would have let the hammer rest in Johnnie's locker. And then they laughed more and I all but cried with rage. Hand me the citron, please." Janet sighed as she got out a blue mixing bowl. "Did you cover the box?" asked Louise, tremuously.

"No, I didn't. The embroidery class doesn't meet till next week, anyway. But Harry fixed it for me the next night for fear I would commit suicide with the hammer, he said, and, be sides, Johnnie might need it."

Metropolitan Dailies Giving Advice How to Check Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble.

This is a simple home recipe now being made known in all the larger cities through the newspapers. It is intended to check the many cases of Rheumatism and dread kidney trouble which have made so many cripples, invalids and weaklings of some of our brightest and strongest people.

The druggists everywhe e, even in the smallest communities, have been notified to supply themselves with the ingredients, and the sufferer will have no trouble to obtain them. The prescription is as follows: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce, and Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Recent experiments in hospital cases prove this simple mixture effective in Rheumatism. Because of its positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, it compels these most vital organs to filter from the blood and system the waste impurities and uric acid which are the cause of rheumatism. It cleanses the kidneys, strengthens them and removes quickly such symptoms as backache, blood disorders, bladder weakness, frequent urination, painful scalding and discolored urine. It acts as a gentle, thorough regulator to the entire kidney structure. Those who suffer and are accustomed to purchase a bottle of medicine should not let a little inconvenience interfere with making this up, or have your druggist do it for you.

Net Income From 28 Acres of California Land

The original price, per acre was $40. Planted to peaches, plums, grapes and pears it yields $3,000 a year net, and would be cheap at $500 an acre.

This is only one example of what has been done in a climate that draws tourists from all over the world.
