A Pleasant Evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Moore entertained a small party of their friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Negus on the eve of St. Valentine's day. The evening was spent in playing cards until a late hour when the party adjourned to the dining room, which was prettily decorated with pink and white. The table was decorated with cut and potted flowers. One unique decoration was a large bouquet of carnations made up of button hole bouquets which was passed by the hosts at the end of the refreshments and each guest took one as a souvenir. Then there was a flash light picture taken of all the guests, when the party adjourned to the parlor where they spent the remainder of the evening in dancing, winding up with the old Virginia reel. All expressed themselves as having a good time.

Smuggled Dope to Convicts.

Mrs. Ida Johnson, arrested Saturday night on a charge of attempting to smuggle opium into the Jackson state prison, Monday confessed to Chief of Police Strobel that she was guilty. Mrs. Johnson admitted buying the drug in a local store and placing it in the packages of tobacco in which it was found by prison officials.

"I visited my half-brother, Sylvester Lewis, in the prison, three weeks ago," Mrs. Johnson told the officer, "and he asked me to get him some opium. I did not dare try it until Saturday. I had never attempted to get any drug into the prison before."

Despite Mrs. Johnson's statement that this is her first offense, the police are investigating, with the idea that she has been connected with the smuggling for several months past. The woman's half-brother, Lewis, to whom the package of tobacco in which the opium was found was consigned, is serving his third term in the prison. He has served six years of the sentence of from five to ten years for larceny from the person.

When the Michigan Central railroad train from Grand Rapids pulled into the station at Ann Arbor at 2:40 Sunday afternoon 4,000 people were crowded into the grounds surrounding the station, hoping to get a glimpse of, and possibly hear something of, President Roosevelt might say. Those who expected to hear him talk were in the main disappointed as the obliging train crew saw to it that Mr. Roosevelt's car was stopped at the most inaccessible point. This being the case Mr. Roosevelt's remarks were addressed chiefly to some one or two hundred students who had proved equal to the task of reaching a place where they were in sound of his voice.

Mr. Roosevelt talked to the students. He spoke of their sports, gave them good advice about the value of games in the battle of life, which he likened to a game of football, and said a few nice things about the University of Michigan.

Have Plan to Cut Expenses.

Ann Arbor Times News: The board of auditors last week Wednesday took another step toward economy when they passed a resolution directing the printing of order blanks for the prosecuting attorney and the sheriff for use in settling with officers not on salary.

No constable or deputy sheriff not on salary is to be allowed fees for work for which he cannot show an order signed by the prosecuting attorney or the sheriff. At present bills are presented for which there is nothing to show except the statement of the man who hands them in. While the auditors do not claim that there has been any padding of such accounts with fictitious items, they prefer to have the records show specifically just why and how the county becomes indebted. The new system will centralize the control of the sheriff's force, and prevent unnecessary duplication of work. It is estimated that the new plan will save the county at least $1,500 a year.

Another saving effected by the auditors affects the transportation of insane cases. Heretofore physicians and officers have been allowed $10 for insane cases. Hereafter they will get $5 and 10 cents a mile. In the case of insane patients at Ypsilanti for instance the new plan will save $3.

Transportation of prisoners from Ann Arbor to Detroit was also put on a more definite and economical basis. Taking a case to the house of correction will now cost the county $3.50. Under the fee system it cost $6.40.

The board refused to allow a back board bill of $178 presented by ex-Sheriff Sutton a month or more ago and held over till Wednesday.

Swindler Abroad.

Registers of deeds throughout the state have received word from Sheriff W. R. Taylor of Ionia describing one Samuel Kramer who, it is alleged, forged a deed on a farm and secured $2,000 on a mortgage. He is about 50 years old, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches tall and weighs about 200 pounds, dark complexion and dark hair tinged with gray. He is known as a smooth duck and the sheriff wanted all the real estate dealers notified as he has been operating in this portion of the state, also in Canada.

Prehistoric Discoveries.

Dean James Savage of Most Holy Trinity church, Detroit, a brother of Edward Savage and Mrs. Jas. Wade and Mrs. John Lingane of this place, and Daniel E. Soper, whose reports of finds of finds of prehistoric copper, stone and clay relics in Michigan have provoked widespread discussion among the archeologists and curators of the country, believe they now are in a position to prove the genuineness of their relics. Accordingly they are making arrangements for a meeting of scientists in the spring.

Their plan is to present their specimens for examination, and to go on an extended campaign in search of others. They intend to take the experts, if the experts are willing, to places where prehistoric mounds are to be found, and to demonstrate with spade and pick and ax that tablets, wax implements and ornaments like those they possess are still in the bosom of the lake state. In this way they hope to silence all doubts. Both men say they are convinced that their discoveries are only a promise of much more to come, and that close investigation of the soil of Michigan will result in very great archeological finds.

In the last few months the dean and Mr. Soper have worked hard and have been well rewarded. Some of the specimens Dean Savage values most were dug up in December and January almost within stone's throw of Detroit. Among these are two tablets, portraying the creation of man, the fall, the deluge, Babel, the dispersion and the attempted sacrifice of Isaac. Both these tablets are slate. One was found about three miles from Norris, the other near Highland Park.

Dean Savage says his latest finds have convinced him that the people who worked the copper mines of Lake Superior and buried their dead in the lower peninsula—the mounds are largely burial places—were descendants of the lost 10 tribes of Israel. He maintains that they had no connection with the Toltecs, the civilizations of the Mexican valley. He believes they were finally destroyed by the Indians, and he refers to a tradition current among the Attiwanderon Indians that their fathers utterly exterminated a great white people.

Accused of Stealing.

H. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me., boldly accuses Becklen's Arica Salvo of stealing—the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—the distress from boils or piles. "It robs cuts, corns, bruises, sprains and injuries of their terror," he says, "as a healing remedy its equal don't exist." Only 50c at L. P. Vogel, H. Penn Co. and L. T. Freeman Co.

To Go Up Higher.

George and Max Eck, of Dexter, are two Washtenaw county boys who will have a chance for promotion into the Southern Michigan and the American leagues the coming baseball season. Both formerly played with Hastings. Max Eck, whose job is holding down the short field, will report to Indianapolis March 15th. His brother will join Jackson for a tryout in the infield in April.

Graham, the Ann Arbor boy, who will work on the infield for Traverse City in the Michigan State league, will report some time in the latter part of April. The season opens May 15th.

Democratic County Convention.

The Democratic county convention will be held at the city hall in Ann Arbor Monday, February 27th.

The call for it was issued Tuesday by County Chairman Ross Granger. In addition to nominating delegates to the state convention the county convention will nominate candidates for auditor and school commissioner. Delegates to the county convention will be selected by ward and township caucus, Chairman Granger having received a specific opinion from the attorney general covering the interpretation of the primary law covering this point.

County Chairman George Sample Tuesday issued his call for the Republican county convention, which is to be held at the court house at Ann Arbor on Monday, February 27.

Twenty-two delegates will be nominated to the state convention which meets at Saginaw March 2. Delegates to the county convention will be selected by the old fashioned caucus system, the primary law not applying to spring elections in this instance. About 222 delegates to the county convention will be thus selected.

Besides selecting delegates to the state convention the county convention will nominate candidates for auditor and school commissioner. At Saginaw the state convention will nominate two supreme court judges, each to hold for eight years, one superintendent of public instruction, two regents of the university, one member of the state board of education and two members of the state board of agriculture. The dates of the ward and township caucuses will be set by the ward and township chairmen.

Miss Molly Williams opens a three day engagement at the Princess tonight. Miss Williams is a character singing soubrette, and comes highly recommended from the Variety theatre of Battle Creek, where she has appeared the first three days of this week. Miss Williams changes her program each night, and in addition there will be two reels of pictures and illustrated songs.

The management of the Princess announces two additions to their staff. Miss Mary Spinnagle will hereafter sing two illustrated songs each Saturday night and Clarence Rafferty has accepted a position as trap-drummer.

The Princess theatre program will be a winner on Saturday night. Two feature reels of pictures, both new, two illustrated songs by Miss Mary Spinnagle, and a high class singing act by Miss Molly Williams. Special effects by Miss Wright and "Casey" Rafferty, the diminutive drummer, complete the program.

GOOD NEIGHBORS AND BAD

Old Innkeeper Wise in His Generation and His Knowledge of Human Nature.

A man moving his family and household effects across the country stopped at a wayside inn for the night. During the evening, as was the custom, the proprietor, an old Scotchman, chatted with his guests. "Why move so far?" he asked and was overwhelmed with tales of backbiting and gossip and unkindness among their former neighbors.

"Well, strangers," he said, "I'm loath to say aught against my neighbors, but I'm afraid you'll find the same kind of folks here—and the travelers regretfully decided to move on, expressing their disappointment that so promising a looking country should be infested with those 'tale-bearing, backbiting kind of folks.'"

"Well," said the old innkeeper, sagely, "I'm 'fraid you'd find 'em here if you stayed; and as they drove away the next morning he chuckled to himself, 'Glad I got rid of those folks. Bad neighbors always make bad neighbors.'"

A week later another mover's camping outfit stopped at his doors, and during the evening a similar conversation ensued, and the question, "Why move so far?" was propounded a second time. "Because my health required it," said the man, who coughed frequently, and then followed tales of the homeland, and of the friends and neighbors they had left behind. They were good neighbors, and kind, and the verdict repeated again and again during the evening's conversation, and sometimes the innkeeper noticed there were tears in their eyes as they spoke feelingly of those dear ones in the far eastern state.

"Where shall you settle down?" queried their host, kindly. "Oh, most anywhere now," was the reply. "Think we've come about far enough, and we're just looking for some homy little place that won't cost too much."

"Just the thing," burst out the old man. "I know just the place for you, only a little way up the road here. And you'll find good neighbors here, too," he assured them. "Mighty good ones. I'll take you up there myself in the morning to see the place."

And as they trooped off to bed he nodded his grizzled old head and chuckled softly to himself: "Good neighbors always make good neighbors. They're the kind of folks we want here."—Youth's Companion.

Woman Dies for Her Claim

James Balkwell, a farmer, brings to Seattle the story of an aged woman's fight with the elements in the Cascade mountains and her subsequent death. The woman was Miss H. E. Conradson, a spinster, aged 55 years. Miss Conradson had mining claims in the mountain. Braving the snow and icy blasts she determined to remain on her claim this winter rather than run the chance of losing it.

About ten days ago she contracted a severe cold. In desperation she started toward civilization and medical aid. Her strength, however, was not equal to the task. Racked with cold and fever and further weakened by the lack of proper food, she staggered into the Balkwell home on Thursday night barely able to tell her story. She died before medical aid could reach her.—Seattle Correspondence Portland Oregonian.

The Man and the Likeness

The obstinate refusal of the every-day man to sit for his picture is almost humorous in its dogged sincerity. And right here, it might not be out of place to state that the brusque, good-natured modesty of man on these lines is a thousand times more sincere and heartfelt than the very evident demureness of the more comely sex. But think a moment, men. The portrait may not mean much now, but in years to come, after the lines and shadows have deepened perhaps it will make your heart young to look upon a faithful likeness of yourself when you were a debonair, dashing young sapling. And, no doubt, even at present, there are a score of dear ones who would give much to possess your picture.

A Double Cross

"I made my husband cross this afternoon," said Mrs. Caller. "How was that?" queried Mrs. Homer. "He was on the opposite side of the street, and I beckoned him to come same, but the supreme court sent the case back for retrial on a technicality."

The Individualist

"What is Bigg's grievance against the railroad company?" "He has two grievances. One is that some of the trains don't stop at his station and the other that after he gets on board the train loses time by stopping at other stations."

A Freak, Indeed

Mrs. X.—I don't care for that Mrs. Chisling. She is a hypocrite. Mrs. Y.—A hypocrite? Why, that woman is two-faced from the crown of her head to the soles of her feet.

COL. ROOSEVELT IN GRAND RAPIDS

GIVEN ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION AT ANNUAL LINCOLN CLUB BANQUET.

FAVORS DIRECT ELECTIONS OF U. S. SENATORS; ALSO ABOLITION OF ELECTORAL COLLEGE.

Also Endorses Pending Reciprocity With Canada as Good Thing in Every Way.

Speaking at the Lincoln club banquet in Grand Rapids, Col. Theodore Roosevelt declared himself in favor of the direct election by the people not only of United States senators, but also of the president of the United States. He said that the present method of choosing senators through the legislatures of the several states was a relic of olden times, and that the electoral college was also a useless appendage of the government, and should be abolished. He also endorsed the pending reciprocity treaty with Canada as a good thing in every way, saying that it "marked a signal advance in bringing about the closest and most friendly relations between the two countries."

The banquet demonstrated that Col. Roosevelt, though an ex-president, can still draw a crowd. Nearly 1,600 sat down to the spread that was served in the Coliseum, while an equal number, most of them ladies, were packed in the galleries.

Kalamazoo Lincoln Club Banquet. The Kalamazoo Lincoln club held its annual banquet in the Auditorium in Kalamazoo with more than 500 Republican guests present. The speakers of the evening were Congressman-elect J. M. C. Smith, of Charlotte; Hannis Taylor, former ambassador to Spain; Gov. Osborn, D. G. F. Warner, Charles Flowers of Detroit.

Judge F. E. Knapp was toastmaster. Congressman Smith responded to "The American Banking System." Mr. Taylor gave the address. He gave in Grand Rapids on "Lincoln and the Constitution," and Mr. Flowers spoke on "Lincoln, the Conservative." He received one of the biggest ovations of the evening and his speech was well received.

Jackson Lincoln Club Banquet. Six hundred people were seated at the seventeenth annual banquet of the Lincoln club of Jackson at the Masonic temple, Monday night. Benjamin Williams, candidate for circuit court judge, acted as toastmaster. Rep. W. W. Wedemeyer, of Ann Arbor, spoke on "Some Problems of Today." Senator Charles E. Townsend toasted "Lincoln." James R. Garfield, secretary of the interior in Roosevelt's cabinet, gave an address on "Conservatism," and Congressman Diekmann spoke on "Nineteen-Twelve."

Woman Mourned as Dead Returns. Mrs. Belle Brown, whose three children, one of them is Clayton Brown, of Owosso, petitioned some time ago to have her declared legally dead, that they might collect her share of the estate of her father, Sanford Burgess, valued at $6,000, appeared suddenly, calling on Brown, and disappeared as suddenly without making any explanations.

Mrs. Brown left Owosso suddenly ten years ago, leaving her three children and husband. She has never been heard from since. Saturday night, however, her son, who works at the National hotel, was approached by a well-dressed woman, who threw her arms about his neck, called him her darling boy, and after a few more words, left. Brown does not remember what his mother looked like and is therefore not sure that this woman isn't an impostor. The petition to declare the woman dead comes up on Feb. 20.

Excentric Surgeon Dies. "When I die, I want you to take my body to Detroit to be cremated. Select three or four Masons to go with my body and after the cremation take them to the Cadillac hotel and buy them a fine dinner. Let them drink a toast to 'Old Doc Farnum.'"

This was the request made four months ago of Undertaker Albert Falk by Dr. James K. Farnum, for many years the best known surgeon in Port Huron. Dr. Farnum died in the city hospital following an operation, the amputation of his foot, which was injured two weeks ago in a fall.

Dr. Farnum was regarded as excentric and for several years lived almost the life of a recluse. He was a Mason and a Knight Templar. When his orders for the disposition of his body were given, Dr. Farnum said, "Life is uncertain and I want to make my funeral arrangements. Send my ashes to my old home, Berkshire, Mass."

The Lenawee county circuit court jury awarded Dr. L. J. Marshall of Adrian $7,507 damages for personal injuries received in the Wabash wreck between Holloway and Britton three years ago. The former verdict of $10,000 was awarded by the same court, but the supreme court sent the case back for retrial on a technicality.

Rev. W. L. Tedrow, 57, one of the best known English Lutheran preachers in Michigan, died at his home in Kalamazoo, after a long illness. He organized churches in Detroit, Grand Rapids and Battle Creek and several other Michigan cities.

Because of the continued slump in the price of spring lambs, stockmen in Shiawassee county, the greatest lamb feeding district in the middle west, stand to lose a sum estimated all the way from $100,000 to $500,000. They bought many thousands of lambs, expecting prices to be high, but spring lambs are now selling at $1 less than the price feeders paid.

STATE BRIEFS.

Gov. Osborn has accepted the invitation of Soc Hibernians to address them at their annual banquet to be held March 20.

The Cheboygan County Bar association has gone on record as against the bill to redistrict the judicial circuits of the state.

John E. Gerow, of Ovid, has been appointed state drug inspector by Dairy and Food Commissioner Gilman Dams.

The output of the broom factory at the Michigan Employment Institution for the Blind at Saginaw has been greatly increased since Supl. Frank G. Outnam took charge and the sales last month were the biggest in the history of the factory.

The Saginaw Power Co. Friday filed a first mortgage for $1,500,000 with the county register of deeds. The action is necessary where branches of the Commonwealth Power & Light Co. do business, as the holding company will float a bond issue for the above amount.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the northern Michigan development bureau, held in Saginaw, it was decided to ask the legislature to pass a law giving the board of supervisors a right to levy a special tax for the purpose of supporting development bureaus.

Ann Arbor section men have been notified that on March 1 the 10-hour day will be again installed at their working day. Many of the men quit last fall when the day was cut to nine hours, this action bringing the wages down to $1.35 per day. At 10 hours per day the wage will be $1.50.

Alva M. Cummins, who was a candidate for congress against Samuel W. Smith last fall, has entered the race for judge of the Ingham county circuit, his petition having been filed with the secretary of state. Judge West and Judge Collingwood, Republicans, are also circulating petitions.

In a long letter written to Senator William Aiden Smith, Maj. N. S. Boynton, of Port Huron, advocates reciprocity, not only with Canada, but with every other country on the American continent. "I could never see the sense or benefit of isolation from the countries of the western hemisphere," the letter says, in part.

Dell Scottford, a janitor, who stole from a Grand Rapids hardware store, where he was employed, to buy food and fuel for a sick wife and baby, was released on probation, after Mrs. Scottford had pleaded with the court to let him go. When Scottford reached home, a few minutes after being let out of a cell, his baby was dead.

Joseph Barton, of Big Rapids, announced he will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for circuit judge for the short term to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Palmer. This leaves A. B. Cogger the only candidate from Mecosta county. Both Mecosta and Newaygo counties have 11 delegates each.

After several weeks' fight, during which they paid fines and incidental expenses amounting to $115, two moving picture theater proprietors of Ishpeming have given up the attempt to keep their places open Sundays. Juries in the first two trials disagreed, but the third resulted in a small fine. Mayor McCorkindale, who was the prime mover in the closing fight, is organizing a baseball league for next summer, and those who favor open theaters on Sunday threaten to stop Sunday baseball.

Frank J. Phillips, professor of forestry in the Nebraska state university, who ended his life by inhaling gas, in his home in Lincoln, Neb., was a former student of the Michigan Agricultural college, Lansing. His home was in Grandville, Kent county. After completing the full agricultural course he went to the U. of M. and a few weeks ago was offered an assistant professorship in the state school at Ann Arbor. Phillips left three letters, one to his wife, instructing her how to care for the body when found, and the others to the chief of police and the coroner.

Henry Irwin, 47, of Ionia, ended his life by hanging himself in a woodshed. His body was discovered by his 5-year-old daughter. Irwin attempted to kill himself once before with acid. He leaves the widow and four children.

C. W. Perry, Democrat, president of the Michigan State Bar association, has announced his candidacy for circuit judge in the twenty-first judicial circuit, comprising Clare, Isabella and Midland counties. The position is now being held by Peter F. Dodds, of Mt. Pleasant, who has presided for 18 years, and is a candidate for the fourth term.

THE LEGISLATURE AND ITS WORK

THE TAX LEVY LOOKS LIKE ONE OF VERY LARGE FIGURES JUST AT PRESENT.

THE TONNAGE TAX ON MINES NOW REPORTED OUT WITHOUT A RECOMMENDATION.

The Matter of Legislation is Becoming Very Interesting to the Tax-payers of the State.

(By L. C. Ward.)

The legislature heard long arguments pro and con on the tonnage tax on iron and copper ore. James Helme of Adrian and S. H. Clink of Muskegon appeared for the state grange and argued for the specific tax and there was a big array of Upper Peninsula men opposed to them. Most interesting matter was presented to the taxation committee of the house and senate but it is doubtful if any votes were changed either way. However, Gov. Osborn, who was called upon, took a firm stand against the tonnage tax and urged that the ad valorem system be brought to the highest state of perfection. In particular he advocated that the legislature at once pass the Lord bill, which will give the state tax commission the right to engage such expert help as is needed to properly review the assessments in the state so that the valuation of the property may be brought to a proper level. If this is not done the railroads will refuse to pay their taxes, which would mean that many of the schools of the state would have to be closed because of the depletion of the primary school fund, it being the contention of the railroad companies that they are assessed higher than the general property of the state.

The committee, however, reported out the tonnage tax without recommendation, although the committee was about evenly divided on the proposition. No effort was made to influence the house either for or against the proposition. It was made a special order for Feb. 16. The openly expressed opinion of Gov. Osborn against the measure is having some effect with the rural members and it is not likely to pass the house. In a reference to the Lord bill after the hearing the governor said: "While we are carefully considering changes in our tax system we should take steps to bring our present system to the highest state of perfection. It is necessary that the tax commission be given sufficient authority and the men to do the work, so that it may begin at once to bring the general property of the state to a fair basis for taxation."

While he has not said so directly, the governor intimates that if action is not taken very soon he will make it the subject of a special message.

The Enormous Tax Levy. Aud-Gen. O. B. Fuller started the State Association of Supervisors when he estimated that bills now before the legislature would provide for a tax levy of $15,000,000 during the next two years, if they are all passed. At the same time he estimated that the present assessed valuation is not high enough, and that it will doubtless be raised from $1,734,100,000 to $2,000,000,000, the federal government having placed it at $3,500,000.

"Already," said the auditor general, "state institutions throughout the state have asked for enough money to cover the deficit of $501,000 and the $1,199,000, which should be raised for general purposes, would make the tax levy total $1,762,123.29—about as large a tax levy as the state has ever seen. During the past two years the tax levy amounted to $10,658,000. This amount asked for by various state institutions is divided up as follows: Educational, $1,425,000; asylums, $976,000; charitable institutions, $481,235; penal institutions, $317,120; miscellaneous, $278,650. Auditor General urged that the supervisors should be especially careful in making their assessment rolls this year, declaring that in view of the trouble that is to follow with the railroads, more than ever before these rolls will be scrutinized and even taken before the courts.

The Bribery Case. The hearing of the graft charges against Senator William H. Bradley of Greenville, was continued Tuesday afternoon. Sherman H. Townsend, of Ionia, alleges that Senator Bradley tried to shake him down for $75 for getting Townsend a job as assistant sergeant-at-arms. The hearing was taken up Friday before a special committee of the senate consisting of Senators Miller, Taylor and Watkins. Mr. Townsend is represented by James Scully, former member of the railroad commission, and Patrick H. Kelley, ex-lieutenant-governor, and Senator Bradley is represented by Arthur Tuttle, ex-senator. Deputy Attorney-General Chase is conducting the case for the committee. The charge has stirred up considerable excitement about the capital.

The woman's suffrage proposition will be brought up in the senate, the house having left the opening by reconsidering the action of last week and laying the resolution on the table. The lobby of women is back in force and they will try to put the proposition through the senate this week.

By a resolution of Rep. Stewart of Kent a special committee of two senators and five members of the house will be appointed to consider all employers' liability bills now before the two bodies and report back not later than March 10.

Tonnage Tax Hearing.

There was an extended hearing on the tonnage tax and other mining taxation bills before the joint committee of the house and senate on Tuesday evening. S. H. Clink of Muskegon and James Helme of Adrian spoke for the tonnage tax and they were opposed by a big raft of upper peninsula lawyers. The opponents of the specific tax on iron and copper ore based their objection primarily on the proposition that a flat tonnage tax would work an injustice to the mines producing a low grade ore and would compel many of them to shut down while it would also keep a deal of capital out of the state which is now invested in mines each year.

Fraternal Insurance.

Rep. Noble Ashley has introduced a bill putting the fraternal societies doing business in Michigan under the control of the insurance department of the state that is occasioning more or less comment. While it is extremely general and covers the situation from many angles, the most important provisions are those which prevent cheap fraternal organizations, which make a rate too low to safely do business, from coming into Michigan, and provisions which compel a yearly inventory of the assets of the societies, and giving them the right to increase the rates not more than 5 per cent every three years to bring them up to an absolute safe basis.

A Salary Question.

The two houses passed different bills on fixing the salary of the insurance commissioner and there will have to be a conference on the subject. The house fixed the salary at $3,000 and the senate at $3,500 and there the matter rests. It is possible that Gov. Osborn may veto the measure unless the salary is raised to $4,000 at least. Under the fee system the position has paid nearly $7,000 per year.

Busy Mr. Miller.

Senator Miller has introduced a bill in the senate which will largely change the handling of the automobile question in the state. Under the measure proposed owners of cars must file a great deal of detailed information with the secretary of state which will be valuable in case of accidents, etc. Senator Miller has been one of the busiest little bill introducers the senate has seen and most of his bills are important, too.

A Needed Regulation.

Senator F. D. Scott of Alpena is preparing a bill which will give the railroad commission complete jurisdiction over the express companies of the state and especially their rates, allowing the commission to fix a maximum and minimum rate between any two points in the state. This is a very important measure and will be fought hard by the express companies.

The Senate Quartet.

John Conley, the Democrat elected senator in the Lapeer-Tuscola district to succeed the late Senator Fox, has taken the oath of office and assumed his place in the senate. He makes the Democratic representation in the upper house a quartet, but as yet there is no signs of their doing very much singing.

Fight Reciprocity.

There is a movement under way among the farmers of the legislature to pass a resolution protesting against the reciprocity program of President Taft. Senator Watkins has introduced a resolution on the subject and laid it on the table because of its importance, as there is a big protest against such action from the cities.

Short Term Governor.

Lieut-Gov. John Q. Ross was governor Friday, Saturday, Sunday and a part of Monday. Gov. Osborn was down to New York for the Alumni of Michigan banquet. There were no particular duties to discharge, but the handsome president of the senate had the honor of being governor for some several days.

To permit hotels in dry counties to operate bars is the scheme proposed by the bill presented by Rep. Smith of Lapeer. This bill provides that state licenses may be issued to hotels in dry counties upon recommendation of a board of excise commissioners consisting of the judge of probate, county clerk and the county treasurer, who also have power to revoke the license. A license of $1,000 is to be charged.

Resolutions have been introduced in the Senate both for and against the reciprocity program of President Taft. However, the sentiment is so divided that it is impossible to predict what will be done. A Democratic resolution has also been introduced in the House, but as it attacks the reciprocity there is no chance of its passing.

Gov. Osborn has announced that he will veto all appropriations bills which seem to him to be unreasonable. This is a new departure for a governor as the executives have allowed the legislature to assume the responsibility for providing for the expense of conducting the state.

The bill asked by Governor Osborn providing for a commission to investigate all departments of the state has passed. It carries with it an $8,000 appropriation.

Rep. Copley of Detroit has prepared a corrupt practice act for reforming elections. It provides for a heavy penalty for all violations of the laws governing the handling of elections and goes into detail regarding both the primary campaigns and the regular campaigns, and prescribes a course of conduct for candidates.

TIMBER ONLY FOR 55 YEARS IN U. S.

HERBERT KNOX SMITH BLAMES LAND SERVICE FOR MILLIONS OF LOSSES.

OWNERSHIP OF BILLIONS OF ACRES CENTERED IN FEW MONOPOLIES.

113 Holders Have 66 Per Cent of Forests in Michigan and Lake State District.

Concentration of the control of standing timber in a very few hands, vast speculative holdings "far in advance of any use thereof," an enormous increase in the value of "this great natural resource," incidentally "an equally sinister land monopoly" and "a closely connected railroad domination" are the findings reported to the president by Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, in the first installment of his longwaited report on the lumber industry in the United States. The report was made public by the president sending it to congress. The foremost facts shown are: (1) The concentration of a dominating control of our standing timber in a comparatively few enormous holdings, steadily tending toward a central control of the lumber industry. (2) Vast speculative purchase and holding of timber land far in advance of any use thereof. (3) An enormous increase in the value of this fast diminishing natural resource, with great profits to its owners. This value, by the very nature of standing timber, the holder neither created nor substantially enhanced.

There is now left in continental United States about 2,200,000,000,000 board feet of privately owned standing timber, of which 1,748,000,000,000 in the investigation are covered in great detail by the bureau. This area includes the Pacific northwest, the southern pine region and the lake states, and contains 80 per cent of all the private timber in the country. In addition, there are about 539,000,000 feet in the national forests and about 90,000,000,000 feet on other than private lands. Thus the total of standing timber in continental United States is about 2,800,000,000,000 feet. The annual drain on the supply of saw timber is about 50,000,000,000 feet. At this rate the timber now standing, without allowance for growth or decay, would last only about 55 years.

Concerning Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin, known as the lake states, the report says that there are 100,000,000 feet of privately owned timber. In Wisconsin 94 holders have three-fourths of all the timber. In Michigan 113 holders have 66 per cent. In Minnesota six holders have 54 per cent of the very valuable white and Norway pine, 16 per cent of the other conifers and 20 per cent of the hardwoods. Taking all three states 215 holders have 65 per cent of all the timber.

$1,000,000 Needed to Feed Hungry Chinese.

The Presbyterian board of foreign missions has received from its missionaries in the province of An Hui, China, an account of famine conditions. The missionaries declare that at least $1,000,000 will be needed to tide the suffering provinces over till next harvest time.

Rev. E. C. Lebonstine writes: "The inhabitants are fast to face with the worst famine in their history. The rainfall last summer was the greatest of which there is any record and the autumn crops were a total failure over a region of approximately 7,000 square miles. It is estimated that 2,500,000 persons are practically starving. The death roll of the coming months is bound to be very great."

Kaiser's Illness Serious.

The indisposition of Emperor William apparently is more serious than has been indicated in the official announcements, though it is insisted that no anxiety concerning the outcome is felt. The first bulletin described his majesty as suffering from a cold, but with the absence of any fever. Subsequently it was admitted that an attack of feverish influenza had been experienced.

It is stated that the emperor is up after two days in bed, but that he will be confined to his chamber until the end of the present week. The court ball set for Wednesday night has been postponed.

CANADA GETS $1,500 TROPHY.

NATIONAL CORN EXPOSITION, AT COLUMBUS, OHIO, AWARDS TROPHY FOR PECK OF OATS GROWN IN SASKATCHEWAN.

Again Canada is to the fore, and has secured at the National Corn Exposition just closed at Columbus, Ohio, the magnificent Colorado silver trophy valued at $1,500, for the best peck of oats. These oats were grown by Messrs. Hill & Son, of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, and, as may readily be understood, were of splendid quality to have been so successful in a contest open to the world, and in which competition was keen. At the same Exposition there were exhibits of wheat and barley, and in all these competitions, the grain shown by Canada secured a wonderful amount of attention, and also a number of awards. During recent exhibitions at which grain from Western Canada was given permission for entry, it always took first place. At the Spokane Interstate Fair, last fall, where the entries were very large, and the competition keen, the Province of Alberta carried off the silver cup, given by Governor Hay, for the best state or province display, and a score of prizes were awarded Canadian exhibitors for different exhibits of wheat, oats and barley threshed and in the sheaf. Vegetables also received high awards. A pleasing feature of these exhibits was they were mostly made by farmers who had at one time been American Citizens and were now farming in Canada. The Department of the Interior is just in receipt of a magnificent diploma given by the Tri-State Board of Examiners at the Fair held in Cincinnati last fall for agricultural display by Canada.

The Surveyor-General of Canada has just completed a map showing that a large area of land was surveyed last year in the northern portion of Saskatchewan and Alberta in order to be ready for the rush of homesteaders to that district during the coming spring and summer. It is understood surveys covering several hundreds of thousands of acres will be made in addition to these during the coming summer.

A return just issued by the Dominion Lands Branch shows that 48,257 homestead entries were made last year as compared with 37,061 in 1909; of this 48,257, 14,704 were made by Americans. North Dakota coming first on the list with 4,810, Minnesota gives 2,528, South Dakota 1,133, Wisconsin 745, Washington 730, Michigan 706, Iowa 645, while other states show less, but with the exception of Delaware, District of Columbia and the Indian Territory, every state and territory contributed.

The prospects for an abundant crop in all parts of Western Canada for 1911 are said to be excellent. In the districts that required it there was an ample rainfall last autumn, and the snowfall during the present winter is greater than in many previous years. Both are essential factors to the farmers, who look upon the moisture that these will produce as being highly beneficial.

A large immigration from the United States is expected, and the demand for literature and information from the various Government Agencies located at different points in the States is the greatest it has ever been.

Since the above was written word has been received that in addition to honors won at Columbus, Ohio, Canada won first and second on wheat and first and second on oats, as well as diplomas.

Norman Cherry of Davis, Saskatchewan, who was in the reserve for first on wheat, secured the award, with G. H. Hutton of Lacombe, Alberta, second. J. C. Hill & Sons got first on oats besides the silver trophy. G. H. Hutton took second in oats.

SERIAL STORY When a Man Marries

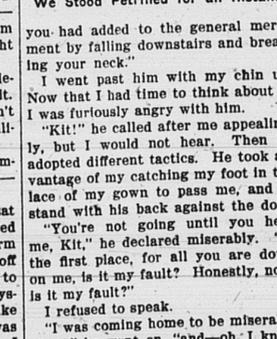

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART Author of The Circular Staircase, The Man in a Coat, etc.

James Wilson or Jimmy as he is called by his friends. Jimmy was a young man who had just graduated from college...

narrow hall past the refrigerating room, to a huge, cemented cellar, with a furnace in the center, and a half-dozen electric lights making it really brilliant.

But it was my turn to grip Bella. From behind the furnace were coming the most terrible sounds, rasping noises that fairly frayed the silk of my nerves. We stood petrified for an instant. Then Bella laughed. "They are not all gone," she said carefully. "Some one is asleep there."

CHAPTER V. (Continued.) "No one would think that, Bella," I soothed her. "Everybody knows you love him—Jim, too."

you had added to the general merriment by falling downstairs and breaking your neck? I went past him with my chin up. Now that I had time to think about it, I was furiously angry with him.

would they think of me? After letting her call me Bella, and him—Jim, if Mr. Harbison ever learns the truth—I will take poison. If we are going to be shut up here together, we will have to carry it on. I couldn't stand the disgrace.

"You're a girl in a thousand, Kit," he said forlornly. "If I were not so damnably, hopelessly, idiotically in love with somebody else, I should be crazy about you."

"Beautiful girl!" cried the impulsive young man on the shadowy deck of the lake steamer. "Nonsense!" laughed the pretty maid. "Beauty is but skin deep."

They Saw the Joke. An inveterate punster of this city happened to be at a county fair lately in the art embroidery section, when he saw approaching a pair of acquaintances whose front names were Eliza and Ferd.

"If the present legislature passes all of the appropriation bills that have already been introduced in both houses, the tax levy for the year would amount to something like $16,000,000," stated Auditor General Fuller, in a talk before the State Association of Supervisors, at the city hall.

STATE CONTROL OF MINES

Will Eventually Result From Taxing Mineral Reservations.

Gov. Osborn's suggestion in his message that the state should enforce a tax upon mineral reservations seems to have opened a field for consideration by the legislature which offers possibilities to those interested in spreading the cost of government over all classes of property. For many years the big corporations interested in mining in the upper peninsula, as well as other corporations and individuals, have sold lands with a mineral reservation in the deed, under the terms of which the original owners reserve the right to enter upon, explore, mine, and take from any ores lying under the surface of the lands.

THE EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS. The attendance at the union service in the city hall on Sunday evening was large, nearly every seat being occupied. Mr. Brew conducted the singing, and a very pleasing feature in the service was when the leader called on little Miss Ruth Hendry to stand on her chair and sing to the congregation the chorus of the "Glory" song. This she did perfectly, much to the delight of the large congregation. The sermon by Rev. E. A. Johnston was both instructive and eloquent and left a deep impression on the listeners. All the services have been very effective and interesting and the general public could not do better than to attend them. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Evangelist E. D. Johnston will speak to "Men Only" and boys of twelve or over, at the Baptist church on Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Subject of address, "Chickens Come Home to Roost."

In the evening at 7 there will be a mass meeting for everybody at the M. E. church. Members of the G. A. B. and W. R. C. are cordially invited to attend this service as guests of honor. The evangelist will preach on the subject, "Heroes and Cowards." We are glad to note that the meetings are growing in interest and power from night to night. On Thursday night the topic will be "The baneful effect of the theatre and the curse of cards" and on Friday night, "The dance and its attendant evils."

"Bright Eyes."

Rewriting a popular farce into a musical comedy was an experiment three years ago which proved enormously successful when "Three Twins" was made from the farce "Inocog."

The musical version of the farce was immediately popular, and ever since has been the most successful entertainment of its kind on the road.

Joseph M. Gaites, the producer of "Three Twins," now announces a successor to that play in "Bright Eyes," a new musical play by the same authors. "Bright Eyes" is a musicalization of "Mistakes Will Happen," one of the most popular farces of recent years. It was used as a starring vehicle a long time by Charles Dickson, who has made the book for the new play, and who has been assisted by Otto Hauerbach and Karl Hoschna, respectively the lyricist and composer of "Three Twins." Mr. Gaites has engaged a very strong company for the new play, headed by Cecil Lean and Florence Holbrook, and has supplied a very large chorus, every member of which can sing and dance as well as look pretty. The same superb mounting and gorgeous costuming, together with novel and elaborate mechanical and electric effects, will again be seen. Mr. Gaites believes that "Bright Eyes" will prove as delightful and pleasing as "Three Twins," "Girl of My Dreams" and "Madame Sherry." The new play will be seen at the Whitney theatre for a return engagement, matinee and night, February 22.

Saving Them for Her Funeral.

The wife of a prominent southern statesman tells a story of her ancient colored cook, who took a liking to every article of apparel in her mistress' wardrobe. It was "please give me this" and "please give me that," until the lady took a trip to St. Louis and had in a generous supply of hosiery and underwear and outer garments for the old mammy. The gifts were received with gratitude, but presently the cook was at her old tricks, asking for stockings, aprons and wrappers. "What did you do with all those things I brought you from St. Louis?" demanded her employer.

"Why, missis," answered the woman, "I couldn't use them things. Not for nothing, I am saving them all to be buried in."

Restoring George Washington's Will

THE last will and testament of George Washington—perhaps the most precious and the most interesting of all the relics of the Father of His Country—has recently been saved to the nation. Moreover this rescue of the most significant document penned by our first president took place just in the nick of time. A few years more and the country might have had to mourn the loss of this priceless souvenir just as it has been mourning these many years past the disappearance of the original penned drafts of some of the famous speeches delivered by some of our most famous men on historic occasions.

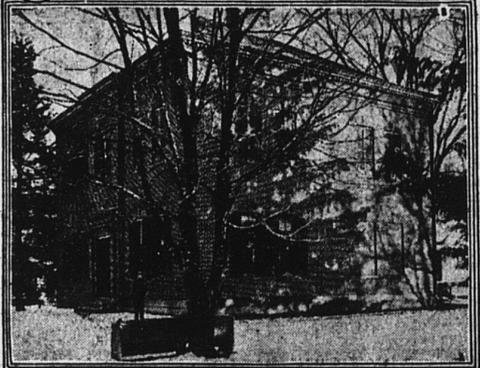

It was not, in the present case, that fire or theft threatened the Washington relic—although it must be admitted that there is a possibility of loss by either of these means so long as it remains in its present depository. However, the destructive agent that recently aroused some of the nation's most prominent officials to the peril of the Washington will is nothing less than the ravages of time. Until attempt to sew delicate sheets of paper, it transpired that subsequent handlings of the sewed threads had caused the paper and ultimately the pages were literally in shreds. All the while the relic was on display in an ordinary wooden box with a glass cover which permitted the will to be constantly exposed to the light while on exhibition at the county seat of Fairfax county and which would probably have faded out the handwriting entirely had not the document been penned with an exceptional quality of ink.

It was at this juncture that the government officials who volunteered their services were allowed to take a hand to save the wreck. The work of restoration was placed in the hands of a federal expert who has made a life work of the saving of damaged papers and manuscripts. He devoted weeks to the work and what he has wrought is little short of a miracle. In so far as the casual observer can detect the will is in practically the same condition as it was when it left the hands of its distinguished author. It is only when a page is held to the light that one realizes that, technically, the document is but a ghost of its former self.

All sorts of obstacles were encountered in connection with the restoration of the will. It was at first planned to have the odd salvage work undertaken by the department of state, the manuscript surgeons of which branch of the government had already worked wonders with the Constitution of the United States, the Declaration of Independence and other documents. However, in order to get the benefit of the skill of the state department's experts it would be necessary to remove the will to Washington for the interim while the work of restoration was in progress, and the county officials at Fairfax who had the say in the matter refused flat-footed to allow the document to leave Virginia.

It looked for a time as though this might block the whole plan, but finally the officials of the library of congress, who have on their staff a manuscript surgeon almost as skillful as the one at the state department, offered to send this wizard to Fairfax Courthouse and have him carry on the work there. This was done and the outcome has been as satisfactory as though the work of rejuvenation had been conducted in the well-equipped plant at the national capital. However, there were many handicaps and not the least of these was found in the necessity for transporting to Fairfax a heavy press and other paraphernalia needed for the intricate piecing of the torn and ragged pages and mounting them on the cardboard mounts, one of which has been provided for each page of the will.

Unquestionably the gratifying success which has attended this attempt to restore the Washington will to the appearance it bore one hundred years ago has been due in no small measure to the aid afforded by a number of blank sheets of paper made especially for George Washington and watermarked with his name. When the government officials first inspected the torn and tattered will with a view to applying their ingenious "first aid" treatment they at once realized that an inordinate amount of piecing and patching would be necessary and they were in a quandary where to obtain material that would match the original, for, of course, the will was written on very distinctive paper, and to patch it with ordinary paper of present-day manufacture would have resulted in only partially concealing the wounds made by time and careless hands.

There was a long search for paper that could be used with confidence that no person examining the restored document without the aid of a magnifying glass could tell where the original left off and a patch began. Finally the officials discovered in a second-hand bookstore in Washington a number of sheets of the writing paper which General Washington had manufactured especially for his personal use and this paper was used wherever new tissue had to be grafted on the original document, with the result that the appearance of the original has been simulated so as to defy detection. Each sheet of the will has been so backed or mounted upon "crepe paper" that it will stand any reasonable amount of handling and the ink of the will has been "set" so that there is little danger of further fading.

However, for all that the precious document has been put in condition to stand another century of strenuous existence if need be, it is not likely that it will ever again be called upon to suffer such neglect or abuse as in the past. The county officials who are the custodians of the will appear to be aroused to the necessity of giving it more intelligent care than it enjoyed in years gone by. To that end the pages of the will have been bound in the form of a book with handsome red levant cover and a special fireproof, burglar-proof steel safe, made specially for the purpose under the supervision of the government officials will henceforth be the repository of this relic.

The attention which this restoration of the will is receiving is expected to result in the visits in future of considerable numbers of tourists and sightseers to Fairfax Courthouse, the Virginia hamlet where the will has its home—the more so since this historic spot can now be reached by trolley from the national capital. The county seat of the county where Washington lived and died has many picturesque landmarks not the least interesting of which is the old courthouse in which Washington's will was probated and which presents today the same appearance that it did on that historic day more than a century ago. The will is not kept in the courthouse but in the office of the clerk of the court, which occupies a separate building. The work of restoring the Washington will, had it been entrusted to any manuscript surgeon outside the government service—and there are only a few such in the country—would have cost $200 to $300 at least and it is probable that several times the latter sum might have been demanded for the service for which the government made no charge.

perfectly preserved. It is constructed of two or three layers of bricks set in asphalt and covered with a thick coating of asphalt.

King Nabonid, it is proved, built his fortifications out of the ruins of works constructed by his predecessors, as the excavators found brick with a four lined inscription of Heriglossar, in which this ruler, whose inscriptions have hitherto been missing, describes himself as "the accomplisher of god deeds."

The excavations made in Assur by Dr. W. Andrae in the season April to October yielded still more important results. The complete ground plan of the Temple of Assur was laid bare, and the history of the great building pushed back to the third millennium, B. C. This makes it the oldest-Mesopotamian temple so far discovered.

The temple was renewed by the King Sams-Adad about 1800 B. C., and it was burned down 600 years later under Salmamassar I, who, however, reconstructed it on exactly the old lines.

Many important finds were made by Dr. Andrae. Near the door in the southeast front were found remains of a relief of a bull three-within the past few months the public at large did not know of the whereabouts of the Washington will, it indeed it even knew of the existence of the paper. However, the officials of the state department and the library of congress knew its resting place in an obscure county courthouse in Virginia, and whereas they realized the futility of their ambition to ever get permission to transfer it to Washington, where it ought to repose as a great national relic, they still had sufficient interest in it to keep a watchful eye on it, so to speak.

Some months ago it suddenly came to the ears of these interested parties that the will—long known to be in a poor state of preservation—was in imminent danger of going utterly to ruin. Obviously quick action and heroic measures were necessary and thereupon there was inaugurated that project which has lately witnessed the complete restoration of the will by means of a miracle of manuscript surgery and document restoration carried on by the greatest experts in the country in this highly specialized line of work.

Persons who are at all conversant with the care with which Uncle Sam fosters and safeguards all the important state and private papers of historical value that are in his keeping—for instance, the Declaration of Independence which is never even exposed to light—may naturally marvel that so priceless a trophy as the will of Washington should have been allowed to fall into decay. The explanation is found in the fact, above noted, that the will is not and never has been in the possession of the federal government. It was filed for probate in the year 1800 at the county seat of the county in Virginia where Washington resided and in that state it has remained ever since. A century of wear and tear might be expected to play havoc with almost any document and at times during this cycle the Washington relic saw some rather rough handling for so fragile an object. During the Civil war, for example, it was carried to Richmond for safe keeping and came near being lost entirely in the confusion that attended the fall of the Confederacy.

However, the worst experience of all came only a few years ago and resulted from an error of judgment on the part of the custodians of the will, who supposed that they were acting for the best. It had come about that as a result of the handling of the will the pinning together of the 23 pages and the wear along the lines of the creases in which it had been folded almost every one of the sheets was completely severed through the middle. The persons in charge of the will realized in a vague sort of way that something ought to be done and they finally hit upon the plan of sewing together the severed sections of each sheet.

When the government officials and other prominent men interested in all existing mementoes of George Washington heard what had been done they were all but ready to weep. As though it were not bad enough to

The Deutsche Orient-Gesellschaft gives an interesting account of the past year's excavation work in three different parts of Babylon. In the town quarter known as Kasr were laid bare several hundred meters of a wall about 35 feet thick, broken by numerous door openings which were originally flanked by towers. The most interesting find here was a coffin of burned clay, on the lid of which was a relief of a bearded head.

Near the north wall of the quarter known as Sakh was discovered a system of drains, built of brick, laid in asphalt. Here were also found several fragments of tablets with cuneiform inscriptions from the time of Nebuchadnezzar. This discovery enabled the excavators to complete fragmentary tablets discovered some time before.

The legend proved to refer to the building of the Ziggurat, the temple tower of Babylon. The beginning reads as follows: "Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, reverer of the great gods, establisher of Esagila and Ezida, son of Nabopolassar, of the king of Babylon, am I. When Marduk, the great lord, elevated my head I abased myself reverently before Marduk, the god who created me."

After this Nebuchadnezzar goes on to boast that he made the temple "brilliant as the day with bitumen and blue glittering bricks" and that for the same end he has had mighty cedars prepared. The inscription ends with Nebuchadnezzar's prayer that Marduk will reward his pious deeds by granting him "eternal days."

Work was also carried on at the town wall built by Nabonid, the last king of Babylon, who reigned 555-539 B. C. About 400 meters of this wall were uncovered. The wall is about 25 feet thick and has a tower every 60 feet.

HITTITE DEITY IN BRONZE

Statuette of Goddess is Discovered in Egypt Which May Be of the Time of Joseph.

From Cairo comes news of the discovery of a bronze statuette which may be of the time when Joseph was sold into Egypt. It seems to be the first discovered specimen of a Hittite deity executed in the round.

It represents a goddess standing upon the back of a lion, whose tongue is protruding and tail turned up. The goddess wears the Cappadocian or Hittite style of tiara and carries in her arms an infant held to the breast.

No features of the work denote an Egyptian artist, but all point to Syria, and it is almost a precise copy of the Hittite reliefs upon the ruined palaces at Boghas, Kenoi and elsewhere, in which the gods stand upon the backs of animals. The proportions given to the body and the arrangement of the hair are also Syrian, but the shoes have not the upturned toes usual with Hittite figures.

Should this statuette be accepted as of Hittite workmanship it will give support to the Old Testament statements as to the existence of Hittites in southern Palestine and will tend to show that the Hyksos or shepherd kings who reigned for centuries in North Egypt were Hittites or of an allied race.

FAMILY BIBLE OBSOLETE

Publisher Says the Trade in That Once Popular Form of the Sacred Book is Dying Out.

A Philadelphia publishing house that makes a specialty of the sacred book says the family Bible trade is languishing. The Bible continues to be the best seller, but it is no longer the immense volume that stood on the parlor center table, and contained marvelous steel engravings of the tower of Babel and the fall of Nineveh, and had room for all the family records. The thing now is a thin paper student edition with flexible covers, concordance and notes and all suited to the overcoat pocket. It hasn't room for any family history, but it can be introduced into a stinky city flat without crowding the family.

The passing of the family Bible is significant of an interesting change in the keeping of vital statistics. Records of births, deaths and marriages have ceased to be a family and become a state function. It is done better and more completely than in the old days and the records are more useful to the public. That fact need not prevent our dropping a tear at the passing of an old cherished institution.—Success Magazine.

That Did It

"The hardest audience in the world to play to is an audience of typical first-nighters," said the theatrical manager. "The first-nighters are mostly deadheads, and those who pay their way are of the blasé type, hard to enthrall. I have in mind one man in particular who never misses a first night, and who, to hear him talk, gets about as much enjoyment out of it as he would out of an attack of mumps. I put on a comedy last season that was one of the big money makers of the year. The first-night audience regarded it as mourners attending the obsequies of a dear departed. I met this particular one I speak of in the lobby after the performance.

"Well, what did you think of it? I said, 'Pretty funny, eh?'"

"One of the funniest things I ever saw," he admitted. "In fact, it was so funny I had to read the jokes on the program to keep from laughing."

Gladstone and the Heckler. Mr. Gladstone was altogether intolerant of the heckler. During his last Middlethian campaign he was questioned by Sir, then Mr., John Usher of Norton, who had once been Gladstone's chairman of committee, on the subject of so many political friendships.

To one or two inquires a friend reply was given, "Am I to understand"—Mr. Usher was beginning.

"Understand!" The old statesman leaped to his feet. "I am responsible for the understanding that the Almighty has put in this skull of mine," tapping his forehead. "I am not responsible," pointing his finger at the questioner, "for the understanding that he has put in that skull of yours."

The effect of this rebuke was overwhelming. Mr. Usher sank speechless into his seat.

Names in Samoa. Travelers visiting Samoa are puzzled at first by the fact that many boys bear feminine names, while girls as frequently have masculine names.

The visitor learns after awhile, however, that this confusing use of names instead of being due to ignorance is in reality the result of a native custom which is highly poetic.

Thus if a girl is born soon after the death of a brother the latter's name is given to her in the belief that his spirit and all his good qualities have been transferred to her. On the other hand, if a boy is born after the death of a sister he takes the latter's name and, as the Samoans believe, all her lovable traits become his.

FIRST OF ENCYCLOPEDIAS

It Was Published in Queen Anne's Reign and John Harris Was Its "Onlie Begotter."

Encyclopedias are an English invention. I hasten to add that they owe a great deal of their early and later development to Scottish brains. The earliest true encyclopedia was published in the second year of Queen Anne. John Harris, the "onlie begotter" of this remarkable work, was born in the year of the great fire of London, and Shropshire piously claims that he was a Shropshire lad. He passed through Oxford to the vicarage of Ickleham, Sussex, to which he added the care of Winchelsea parish. London preferments followed, and a Fellowship of the Royal Society, and a good deal of London religious controversy. For the rest, we know that Harris lived in a house in Amen Corner, and that he received and boarded pupils. We know also that he gave free lectures in mathematics at the Marine Coffee House in Birch Lane. The Marine Coffee House has not been much noticed by London topographers. Mr. H. B. Wheatley has unearthed a curious advertisement proclaiming that water gruel was to be had there every morning from six to eleven o'clock. The announcement proceeds: "This not yet generally known; but there comes such company as drinks usually four or five gallons in a morning."

NATURE'S WONDERFUL COLOR

Their Shades and Tints Never Yet Have Been Duplicated by the Manufacturers of Paints.

Nature paints in the most striking colors and shades and tints with a delicacy never achieved by the brush in the hands of the artist. The highest ambition of the manufacturer of paints is to produce colors which look like nature's. They have never succeeded. Grass has a green of its own color. So has the leaf and so has the distant ocean. None of these has ever been reproduced and put in cans with a price label on them.

Honor awaits the man who can combine colors to produce the tints of red of the Baldwin and Northern Spy. They come pretty near it, that is all. The same is true of the colors with which October first touches the maple leaf.

If all the paint grinding works in the world were multiplied 10,000 times they couldn't turn out pigment enough in a year to do what nature does in a change from season to season.

Nature's brush is busy everywhere all the time. In the life of a leaf it applies the brush day by day, following with its tints from budding time until it flutters from the branch. It touches the valleys and the hills, the growing grains, the flowering plants. Never is it idle.

Interminable Job. The new pastor was a stickler for ceremonial observances. He could read his share of the responses with one eye and watch the congregation with the other. Each member was expected to take part in the reading, and the person who shirked that responsibility was detected sooner or later and brought to account. On the first three Sundays of his new pastorate he noticed a man in a front pew who sat silent throughout the service. The third Sunday evening, although in a hurry to reach the bedside of a sick parishioner, he took time to let the delinquent know he had been found out.

"I am sorry to see," the pastor said, "that you have never read the responses."

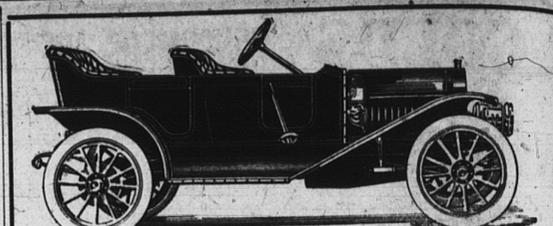

"F-f-f I had d-d-d-done th-th-that," said the silent man, "s-s-s-b-but you'd t-t-time d-d-d-done y-y-your p-p-p-preaching?"

The Marshness of Napoleon. In the service and in the intercourse with his officers he was cold, almost repellent, severe and inflexibly just. One day Gen. Guvion Saint-Cyr, afterwards marshal, appeared at the emperor's morning audience at the Tuilleries. Napoleon said quietly to him: "You come from Naples, general?" "Yes, sire, I relinquished my command to Marshal Perignon, whom your majesty sent to relieve me." "And no doubt you have leave of absence from the minister of war?" "No, your majesty; but I had nothing else to do in Naples." "Unless you are on your way to Naples within two hours, you will be shot on the plain of Gravelle at 12 o'clock precisely," said the emperor, returning his watch to his pocket.—Kiehlend, "Napoleon's Men and Methods."

Sentimental Juries. Maitre Henri Robert, the most famous advocate in criminal cases at the Paris bar, told an audience almost entirely composed of ladies that before any jury a woman with some youth, some looks and a pretty voice has 50 chances out of 100 of being acquitted, whereas a man would be acquitted only one. If she knows how to shed tears at the right moment she need not worry—a verdict of not guilty is a dead certainty.

PATCHWORK AN ANCIENT ART

It Had Its Origin Many Ages Ago but Now is Distinctly An American Institution.

The idea that patchwork had its origin in America is not founded on fact. A thousand years before the Christian era a queen of Egypt went down the Nile to her last resting place under a wonderful canopy of skins that were dyed and pieced together in a mosaic pattern. Years before this work had reached perfection and acquired a definite place among the arts. Then, too, patchwork quilts were made in England in the eighteenth century, as witness the lines written by Cowper to a Mrs. King upon receipt of "A kind present of a patchwork quilt of her own making."

Patchwork is distinctly an American institution. In this big new country, where woman's work was never done, where even the few conveniences of the day were lacking, women had no time to spend on any but the practical things of life. The mothers of this nation left behind them no wonderful historical needlework, like the Gobelin tapestries of France and the beautiful laces of Italy. There were all too few to attend to the spinning and weaving and household duties in the homes where dwelt not only the large family, but the hired help as well.—Charlotte F. Boldt-mann in Woman's Home Companion.

NOVEL FRAUD ON A JEWELER

How a Clever French Swindler Obtained Jewels, Paying for Them With Tradesman's Own Money.

A novel method of defrauding a jeweler was successfully carried out by a Paris thief. He drove up in a carriage to the jeweler's shop with his right arm in a sling, and was ostentatiously attended by a footman carrying a rug. He selected jewels to the value of $1,000, and when the moment came for payment asked whether the jeweler minded him sending his man home for the money.

No objection was made to this course, and then there was another request.

"Would you mind writing for me?" said the customer. "I have hurt my arm. Just write, 'Please give Robert $1,000,' and sign it 'Henri.'"

The jeweler wrote the note and in 15 minutes Robert was back with the cash.

When the jeweler went home a light dawned.

"What," his wife asked, "did you want that $1,000 for?"

The thief had made the jeweler, whose name was Henri, pay for the gems with his own money.
