Held Annual Meeting.

The Bay View Reading Circle held their annual business meeting at the home of Mrs. G. W. Palmer on Monday evening.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—Mrs. John R. Gates.

First Vice President—Mrs. Wm. Bacon.

Second Vice President—Mrs. Geo. Walz.

Secretary—Miss Nina Crowell.

Treasurer—Mrs. D. H. Wurster.

The work for the coming year was laid out and it was decided to hold the annual picnic of the circle the first day of June on the lawn at Mrs. John R. Gates' home in the afternoon. The society decided to tax each member fifty cents for the purpose of raising a contingent fund.

This meeting was the last of the course and at the close of the business session they adjourned until the second Monday evening in September. A scrub lunch was served.

Elected Officers.

The members of Oak Grove Cemetery Association held a meeting in the town hall last Friday afternoon and elected the following trustees to fill vacancies: J. Bacon, L. P. Vogel, W. K. Guerin and Jas. Taylor. H. S. Holmes was re-elected as a trustee. The retiring officers were W. J. Knapp, Jas. L. Gilbert, T. E. Wood and F. H. Sweetland.

The newly elected board of trustees organized by electing the following officers:

President—J. Bacon.

Secretary—L. P. Vogel.

Treasurer—H. S. Holmes.

C. H. Kempf and L. T. Freeman are also members of the board of trustees as their term of office has not expired. The association is out of debt and have done considerable work in improving the grounds this year.

Big Gathering Next Month.

June 21, 22 and 23 at Ypsilanti this year commencing the day after graduating exercises of the Normal College is the 33rd annual encampment of the G. A. R., Dept. of Mich.

This assembly never came to Ypsilanti before, never can come again. The old soldiers are passing away at the rate of 40,000 a year. Never did Ypsilanti entertain such honored guests.

The exercises are of an unusual character. Particulars will be given next week. Meantime the executive committee are looking up entertainment for the ex-soldiers, wives, widows, etc.

They are coming by thousands for well they know they can come but a few more years.

Ypsilanti has secured rooms for 4,000. But they expect 10,000 guests.

Students Must Be Vaccinated.

Goodloe Harold Rogers, who is a senior lit and a freshman law student and whose home is in Pontiac, has been taken to the detention hospital, suffering with smallpox. This case is the hardest so far that has appeared in Ann Arbor and the most typical one.

Rogers, who has not been feeling any too well for several days, attended the May festival concerts last week and also classes till Monday when he decided he was not feeling well enough for that and went to the doctor's office instead. One look at the patient and the doctor said: "The best house for you."

Attacks Child.

Little Marion Wood, the four year old daughter of Ed. Wood, who lives on the Russell farm, about two miles southwest of Tecumseh, was the victim of an alleged criminal assault shortly after noon Monday. Charles Allison, a man employed on the farm, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Teachout, who placed him in jail at Adrian.

Little is known about the assailant. He is about 40 years of age and claims that he has spent most of his life working in the mines. He has been employed by several of the farmers of the county and but recently went to work for Mr. Wood. He claims to have a sister in Manchester.

Good Baseball Game.

Baseball patrons of Chelsea witnessed a good game last Saturday afternoon between Albion high school and the Cardinals, the locals winning by the close score of 5 to 3. The attendance was not as large as the game deserved, but no doubt this will increase as the quality of play improves. Early mention should be made of Catcher Kratzmiller's exhibition of long hitting and was the most prominent feature. The result of the game can easily be surmised by those in attendance had those two home runs and three bagger been omitted from the program. "Barney" is surely appreciated by his team mates.

"Barney" Kratzmiller Going to Bat.

Pitcher Anderson, Chelsea's south-paw, was also there with some goods and barring a couple of innings, had things coming his way.

Excitement was up and down like an elevator and the most trying one to both spectator and player was the one inning when with no one down and all corners occupied Chelsea retired Albion scoreless, a fast double play ending the inning and greatly disappointing the Albion boys.

Next Saturday the boys will appreciate a good attendance and promise their best work in exchange for the patrons encouragement.

Injured in Runaway.

Michael Maubetsch, who resides in Salem township, was probably fatally injured when his team ran away in Ann Arbor Wednesday afternoon, pitching him out upon his head.

When Maubetsch was picked up, his head was split open from his forehead to the back of head. His right hand was frightfully lacerated, the bones protruding through the skin. The injured man was thought to be dead for some time after he was picked up, but finally regained consciousness. He is in one of the hospitals in Ann Arbor. So great was the speed at which the horses were going that the wagon pole pierced a telephone pole.

"The Girl of My Dreams."

Miss Leila McIntyre who is the co-star with her husband, John Hyams in "The Girl of My Dreams" comes to the Whitney theatre on Saturday, May 27, has been on the stage since she was four years old.

Her first public appearance was at a church entertainment. Several of her uncles were ministers and she was in great demand because of her cute childish manners.

Soon she began to take child's parts and says she has acted every kind of character since, except an old man. She has played villainess and star—played tragedy and comedy, but her forte is childish bits. And as a demure little Quakeress in "The Girl of My Dreams" she is said to be exceptionally well cast.

Besides being very pretty and girlish Miss McIntyre, has that undeniable quality called "charm."

Mr. Hyams, too, is well known for his clever work and especially for his dancing and he gives admirable support to his clever wife.

A Father's Vengeance.

Would have fallen on any one who attacked the son of Peter Bondy, of South Rockwood, Mich., but he was powerless before attacks of kidney trouble. "Doctors could not help him," he wrote, "so at last we gave him Electric Bitters and he improved wonderfully from taking six bottles. It's the best kidney medicine I ever saw." Backache, tired feeling, loss of appetite, nervousness, wren of kidney trouble that may end in dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease. Beware, take Electric Bitters and be safe. Every bottle guaranteed. 50c at L. P. Vogel, H. H. Fenn Co. and L. T. Freeman Co.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the State Pioneer and Historical society will be held at Lansing June 7 and 8. One of the principal and probably most interesting of the speakers will be Mrs. Burling of Ripton, Wis., daughter of Michigan's last territorial governor. One evening will be a University of Michigan evening, at which a reunion of the alumni association will be held and a paper read by Lewis A. Chase of the U. of M. on subject, "Michigan and the Early History of Transportation."

The Centenary of the War of 1812

The true story of the opening battle told for the first time
By Prof. B. J. Cigrand.

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY W. G. CHAPMAN.

ON May 16, 1811, one hundred years ago, the first shot was fired in the second war with England. Thus the one hundredth anniversary of the beginning of the war of 1812 is not in 1912, but fell on May 16, 1911. It was the beginning of a naval engagement off the coast of Virginia, and the thunder of the opening gun has been referred to as "The second shot which was heard around the world." Indeed the battle might well be known as "the Lexington of the war of 1812." Yet, strange to say, both the American and British governments have persistently endeavored to eliminate from history's pages this unique naval combat, and apparently tried to keep the people in ignorance of what actually transpired on the high seas on that memorable occasion. Though nearly a score of sailors were slain, the affair was hushed up as far as possible through governmental influence on both sides of the water, notwithstanding that the incident helped to change the geography of the Western Hemisphere and marked a red letter day in our naval annals. It was the awakening of the new American spirit, the inauguration of the real foreign policy of the United States, the beginning of our international influence.

The war of the Revolution ended in 1783. England withdrew her troops from New York city and reluctantly admitted the independence of the United States, but in spirit refused to accord the young republic a respected place in the household of governments. She constantly sought opportunities to humiliate her conqueror, and assumed an especially aggravating attitude in insisting upon the right to take from our vessels, merchant or naval, any sailors who were supposed to have been born under the British flag. Men made captive thus were forced to enter and serve upon British ships of war. This was a very practical illustration of the edict promulgated by the English cabinet: "Once an Englishman, always an Englishman." A most distressing situation for America grew out of the British kidnapping policy, and such of the impressed men as endeavored to escape, or manifested discontent with their seizure, were severely punished according to the naval standards of the day, which were not remarkable for gentleness.

For a score of years the young republic endured these high-handed outrages on the persons of its citizens. Our statesmen, among whom were Adams and Jefferson, seemed unable to handle the problem, and their endeavors to enlist European sympathy against Great Britain's drastic proceedings were in vain. But what a whole nation seemed powerless to accomplish was at length achieved by a single person equipped with the necessary amount of nerve and a fine disregard of consequences. It was a plain case of "the right man in the right place at the right time." On May 16, 1811, this unusual combination of qualities and circumstances was harmonized to cope successfully with a national emergency. Our histories lay little stress on this really important event, and a close investigation of the nation's unpublished archives reveals certain salient facts concerning it which are now set forth fully in print for the first time.

The British frigate Guerrriere stopped an American vessel, the Spitfire, about fifteen miles from New York. English officers went aboard her and arrested for impress a young sailor, whom they declared was an Englishman by birth. The American captain protested in vain.

"I have known this lad personally from childhood," he asserted, "and know him to have been born in the state of Maine."

"All that may be so," responded the British captain, "but what can you do about it—he has no protection!" Under the circumstances the argument was unanswerable, and the lad was carried off in the Guerrriere. The Washington authorities were duly notified of the occurrence, but apparently they had become so accustomed to such happenings that little or nothing was done in the matter, and the documents relating to the inquiry rested in dusty pigeonholes of departmental desks. Finally a genuine sea captain chanced to assume the duty of the hour, and the war department, acting under some pressure the details of which are not made clear in the official records open to the public, gave orders for the frigate, The President, to cruise on the Atlantic coast.

On the evening of May 16 Commodore Rodgers, in command of The President, sighted a sail on the eastern horizon, and concluded that the strange vessel was none other than the Guerrriere, which had forced the boy from Maine into British service. Rodgers at once gave orders to sail in pursuit and to ascertain what flag the stranger flew. Several hours passed ere the vessels came within close range of each other. The sun had set and darkness was falling when Rodgers sprang into the rigging and tried to decipher with the aid of his glass the ensign borne by the object of the chase. But the shadows of night had rendered the colors undistinguishable, and Rodgers, seizing his speaking trumpet, shouted with the full strength of his powerful lungs, "What ship is that?"

There was no reply, and again Rodgers repeated his hail. Then a response came from the stranger in the shape of a sheet of flame and a round-shot which hurtled along the upper deck of The President and buried itself in the main mast. Before Rodgers could give the command to "return fire" one of his eager gunners anticipated his leader's instructions, and the first shot fired by an American vessel in the war of 1812 thundered forth defiance to the foe. The commodore then gave the order to engage, and the broadsides of both craft crashed in unison. A pall of blackness had now descended on the deep, and the battle raged fiercely on by the dim rays of the deck lanterns and red flashes from the cannon's mouths. Suddenly the enemy ceased firing, and Rodgers gave orders to follow suit, believing that she had surrendered. But the momentary lull was broken by another broadside from the stranger, and the powder-begrimed, cheering Americans replied in kind. Through the darkness of the night they fought on steadily, until again their adversary's fire was silenced. For the third time Rodgers' stentorian voice roared across the waters:

"What ship is that?" The response came back faintly: "We are his majesty's ship." The wind was blowing strongly and away from The President, and prevented the conqueror from hearing the name of the defeated craft. The rigging of the enemy was badly cut up and shattered and her decks were crimson shambles. At daylight Commodore Rodgers ascertained the name of the battered hulk his guns had hammered so mercilessly through the night to be the Little Bell, a consort of the dreaded Guerrriere.

When The President reached home and the news of her exploit and vicissitudes was made known, the heroes of the battle were everywhere received with tremendous enthusiasm. For a short while Commodore Rodgers was praised and lionized on all sides, but suddenly negotiations were opened between the Washington and British cabinets, and a change of scene took place. The American diplomats saw fit to keep the heroes of the combat from public view, and the people were naturally bewildered by their actions. To climax matters a court of inquiry was appointed by our government as a result of a claim put forward by A. B. Bingham, the British commodore, in which he stated that The President had fired the first shot and commenced a sudden and unwarranted attack upon his ship. The unwinding of a vast quantity of diplomatic red tape followed, and both governments were seemingly desirous of hushing up the whole business. But the American people at large believed in Rodgers and his gallant crew, and made their protests heard in no gentle tones. A real and not visionary war cloud lowered on the international horizon, and Rodgers himself, disregarding what were practically orders of silence from the war department, made the following bold declaration:

"I may be censured, but I was determined not to be the aggressor, nor would I suffer the flag of my country to be insulted with impunity. And that is why I gave a general order to fire, and we have taught England a lesson."

To the foregoing spirited announcement the American public—contrary to the wishes of President Madison and his peace-loving policy—gave hearty and unstinted applause. It transpired that the British vessel was fearfully damaged during the engagement, besides sustaining a loss of 31 men killed and wounded, while The President escaped almost unscathed, and had but one injured, a boy slightly wounded in the hand. In his recent history Julian Hawthorne depicts less than a page to this initial battle of the war of 1812, and the following sentence is worthy of being quoted:

THE BROADSIDES OF BOTH CRAFT CRASHED IN UNISON.

The story spread that Rodgers had sailed under express orders from our administration to pursue the Guerrriere, and to demand our impressed citizen at the mouth of her guns. But the court of inquiry which ensued clearly demonstrated that the American government had no special responsibility in the lucky accident for our flag and the prowess of our navy.

These are the only lines which emphasize and indicate the importance of the battle, lines which give the credit by inference, where it should be placed by direct statement, to Commodore Rodgers. To the latter belongs the glory of having been bigger than his government, in that he would not allow the flag of his country and spirit into the staid circle at Washington. Among the latter were Henry Clay of Kentucky and John Calhoun of South Carolina. These two became leaders in house and senate, and it was chiefly owing to their fiery eloquence in defense of Rodgers' action, and in favor of adopting punitive measures with regard to England, that President Madison was finally forced to declare war.

More than one writer has fallen into the error of declaring Commodore John Rodgers to have been of foreign birth. As a matter of fact, he was American to the core, having been born in the state of Maryland, July 11, 1771. His favorite vessel was The President and with her he accomplished wonders of naval warfare. When the war with England opened he was sent out on a cruise, and in 148 days captured 11 British merchant ships and the English armed schooner, the Highflyer. The crew of the latter vessel had burned and plundered Havre de Grace, Maryland, the home of Rodgers, so that the commodore may be said to have had private as well as patriotic reasons for wishing to lay the President alongside of her.

Before he sailed from Boston Rodgers had obtained from some unknown source a partial knowledge of the secret signal code of the British navy, and caused certain flags to be constructed accordingly. When he came in sight of the Highflyer he flew the British ensign, which was immediately hailed. A signal was then displayed on the English vessel, and Rodgers succeeded in answering it correctly. He then signaled that he was the British ship Seahorse, and the two vessels ranged alongside each other. One of Rodgers' officers donned the uniform of a British lieutenant and went aboard the Highflyer, where he informed the commander that part of the Highflyer's signal code was lost, and asked that he be allowed to make good the deficiency. The permission was graciously granted and taken advantage of, after which the British clans were sent home and their places taken by youthful enthusiasts who infused fresh blood and spirit into the staid circle at Washington. Among the latter were Henry Clay of Kentucky and John Calhoun of South Carolina. These two became leaders in house and senate, and it was chiefly owing to their fiery eloquence in defense of Rodgers' action, and in favor of adopting punitive measures with regard to England, that President Madison was finally forced to declare war.

THE STRANGERS RESPONSE WAS A ROUND-SHOT

officer accompanied his new acquaintance aboard the American vessel. Rodgers greeted him courteously, and then asked:

"Do you know what ship you are aboard of?"

"Why, yes," responded the British officer; "it is his majesty's ship, Seahorse."

"Did you ever hear of a vessel called The President?" inquired Rodgers.

"Indeed I have," replied the unsuspecting Englishman. "That is the craft we are supposed to take."

"Well, The President has taken you," smiled Rodgers.

The full truth of the ruse by which he had been betrayed flashed at once upon the chagrined Briton, but he saw that he was helpless. The crew of The President were at quarters ready for instant action, and the Highflyer lay at their mercy under the frowning muzzles of the American guns. There was nothing for it but to submit as gracefully as possible. Rodgers ordered the British colors struck, and soon the stars and stripes floated in the breeze over both vessels. The sword worn by Hutchinson, the English commander, was the personal property of Rodgers, taken amidst other plunder at the burning of Havre de Grace, but destined to be returned to the owner in token of the surrender of one of his majesty's crack sea-fighters. The Highflyer was taken captive to the American shore, and the country once again rang with the praises of the dashing and ingenious Rodgers.

To Rodgers and The President also belongs the peculiar distinction of having fought for 80 hours in absolute daylight. This is explained by the fact that the engagement in question took place in the Norway latitudes where perpetual daylight exists at a certain season of the year. It was Rodgers who broke up the blockade of the port of New York, and who became known to friends and foes alike by the fitting title of "the swamp fox of the seas." He was acting secretary of the American navy in 1823, and on August 1, 1828, he died at Philadelphia in his fifty-eighth year.

Then They Got It. It was at the breakfast dinner of the Rotary club the other night, in the Hermit-club, that Tom Goss, the insurance man, commented upon the departure from the regular course of life. "As for me," he said, "I prefer the—"

"Table d'hôte," broke in Ferdinand Bliss, the Mazda man, pronouncing the word as if it rhymed with "dotty."

"I thought that word was pronounced as if it ended like dot, or lot," said Will Hunkin, the building contractor.

"You're both wrong," continued Tom Goss. "But you can easily learn to pronounce the word if you make it rhyme with what we all most need. Now, all together!"

And together they pronounced it correctly. They all needed the dough Cleveland leader.

Their Gift

"I s'pose," Ardella said at last, "we must send her something!"

"Yes," said her sister in a similar tone. "I s'pose so!"

Ardella still held the big creamy square which informed them in the most expensive of shaded old English lettering that Susanne Gish White had become the bride of Raymond Arthur Linscome. Susanne's father was their cousin and although they had not seen him for many years they kept track of him through the newspapers. John Gish White was a man who did things and the people he did usually objected violently in public print. Cousin Ardella and Cousin Annie were shocked at and yet secretly proud of their famous relative. Susanne herself they had not seen since she was a doll-like wonder of ten, because since then she had been in finishing schools or in Europe.

"Well," said Ardella, "what'll we send?"

There was a wrinkle of worry on her brow. She wore her gray hair banded down from a central parting and was addicted to black dresses, with a bit of white tating at the neck.

"Well, what do you think?" queried her sister, who looked just like Ardella but had fewer ideas.

"It can't be anything expensive, of course," Ardella said, with a little sigh. "Still, the cost doesn't so much matter, and I've no doubt John has seen to it that Susie has everything she really needs to start housekeeping. You might send her something ornamental. I remember when John was married and they started housekeeping the place looked so bare because they were too poor to buy bric-a-brac and pictures. Bric-a-brac is something you don't have to have and so are always glad to get."

"Rendall's has some new stuff in," offered Annie with a burst of brightness. "I saw them unwrapping some real pretty vases and lamps as I went by to the postoffice. I expect they cost a lot."

"She's Cousin John's girl!" rebuked Ardella a trifle sternly. "It'd look queer if his own relatives didn't step forward and do the right thing! I shall take the chicken money!"

Annie gasped. The chicken money, which was carefully saved during the year, always went to buy their spring bonnets, and the china pig in which it was kept was very heavy and ready to be opened. And they needed new bonnets if anybody in town did.

"Oh, we'll get them somehow!" Ardella promised recklessly as she saw her sister's face. "Besides, who notices what we have on our heads? We're more than 16."

"The ribbon's been turned twice on mine," her sister said. "Then she added hastily: "But of course you're right! It doesn't make any difference, and Susie might feel hurt if we forgot her!"

They went downtown to Rendall's store the next day to pick out the presents and had all the sensations of being wildly extravagant as they found themselves surrounded by the glories of his new stock just in for the spring trade. The shelves were brilliant and glittering.

Finally, after eliminating the banquet lamp that was $15 and the cut glass punch bowl that the agent had promised Rendall he could return if he didn't sell it, as he vowed he never could in that town, there was left a chop plate and a vase. Putting them on a table, they sat down and looked over them.

"I like the plate," said Ardella, "because the roses on it are so bright and warm looking! Any kind of meat'd taste good off it! But the vase—"

"The vase is powerful pretty," agreed Annie, "with all them trees and hills and the river on it and the cows on the bank. I expect she has lots of places she could put that vase!"

But finally they sent the chop plate. Rendall promised to pack it for them. It glittered with its gilt edge and red roses and every time they remembered it they felt justified in the extravagant sum they had spent for it. There was only 60 cents left in the china pig.

The box was awaiting the bridal couple on their return from the south together with other belated packages piled up on the carved library table in the $300 month apartment. Susanne had carte blanche in furnishing it. She and her husband pounced on the parcels with great glee and the color rose in her cheeks as a solid silver tray, a valuable painting and a Persian rug were revealed. Raymond Arthur Linscome, as he looked at her, reflected again that his wife was the prettiest girl he had ever seen.

"What on earth is that?" Susanne cried, as he pried open the last box and drew forth the gilt chop dish, with its bright red roses. She reached for it, her clutch failed and the dish dropping to the hardwood floor, crashed into bits.

"Well," said the bride, as she surveyed the wreck, "to tell the truth, I'm glad of it, because it was the most impossible thing I ever hope to see. Wasn't that a card?"

"Miss Ardella and Miss Annie Gish," the bridegroom read from the pencilled pasteboard he had picked up. "Who are they?"

"My goodness!" said Susanne, frowning her hair as she looked in the mirror. "I wonder how they happened to send anything. Oh, they're some relatives of father's up in the country! Did you say you had telephoned for theater seats for tonight?"

A Strong Preference.

"She is literary, isn't she?"

"Yes, indeed; she'd rather read than do housework any day."

Not Particular.

She—I heard Freddy Finkle has decided to marry and settle down to a particular girl.

He—Huh! She can't be.

Local Color.

"I understand that sixteen different women have brought suit for breach of promise against Ritter. What's his defense?"

"Oh, he claims that he was simply getting material for his annual output of summer love stories."—Pack.

His Wurst.

The German proprietor of a Brooklyn delicatessen store has got far enough along to pun in English. A writer in the New York Sun reports the fact.

Hanging in the window of the little shop is this advertisement:

"The Best You Can Do Is Buy Our Wurst."—Youth's Companion.

A Poetic Prosecutor.

John Burns, city prosecutor, of St. Paul, was trying to show Judge Finck that why some young men ought to be fined for tearing pickets off the fence of Mrs. Joe Goesik. Mr. Burns said:

"I know Mike Chicklet tore off that picket, and the lady took offense."

"No lady is charged with taking a fence," replied Judge Finck, "and, besides, this is no place for poetry."

"SHE WHO HESITATES IS LOST."

Myrtilla—He proposed, but I didn't say yes. I want to keep him on the rack for awhile.

Miranda—Be careful, or you may find yourself on the shelf.

FEED YOUNG GIRLS

Must Have Right Food While Growing.

Great care should be taken at the critical period when the young girl is just merging into womanhood that the diet shall contain that which is up-building and nothing harmful.

At that age the structure is being formed and if formed of a healthy, sturdy character, health and happiness will follow; on the other hand unhealthy cells may be built in and a sick condition slowly supervene which, if not checked, may ripen into a chronic condition and cause life-long suffering.

A young lady says:

"Coffee began to have such an effect on my stomach a few years ago that I finally quit using it. It brought on headaches, pains in my muscles, and nervousness."

"I tried to use tea in its stead, but found its effects even worse than those I suffered from coffee. Then for a long time I drank milk at my meals, but at last it failed on me. A friend came to the rescue with the suggestion that I try Postum."

"I did so, only to find at first that it didn't fancy it. But I had heard of so many persons who had been benefited by its use that I persevered, and when I had it made right—according to directions on the package—I found it grateful in flavor and soothing and strengthening to my stomach. I can find no words to express my feeling of what I owe to Postum!"

"In every respect it has worked a wonderful improvement—the headaches, nervousness, the pains in my side and back, all the distressing symptoms yielded to the magic power of Postum. My brain seems also to share in the betterment of my physical condition; it seems keener, more alert and brighter. I am, in short, in better health now than for a long while before, and I am sure I owe it to the use of your Postum." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason."

"Ever read the above, before? A man once appeared from time to time in the crowd, from the back of the audience."

"What on earth is that?" Susanne cried, as he pried open the last box and drew forth the gilt chop dish, with its bright red roses. She reached for it, her clutch failed and the dish dropping to the hardwood floor, crashed into bits.

"Well," said the bride, as she surveyed the wreck, "to tell the truth, I'm glad of it, because it was the most impossible thing I ever hope to see. Wasn't that a card?"

"Miss Ardella and Miss Annie Gish," the bridegroom read from the pencilled pasteboard he had picked up. "Who are they?"

"My goodness!" said Susanne, frowning her hair as she looked in the mirror. "I wonder how they happened to send anything. Oh, they're some relatives of father's up in the country! Did you say you had telephoned for theater seats for tonight?"

THE WAY OF THE FISHERMAN

It is Made Hard for Him When He Has Big Story to Tell.

A fisherman who was working for trout on the Ythan had just laid his rod down to visit his sandwich box, when without warning it suddenly rose in the air and soared away like a Bleriot biplane over Haselmont Woods.

For one wild moment he thought there were visions about, but the explanation was soon apparent. A trout had seized the worm and had then in turn been seized and gorged by a heron. Away flapped the heron, only to find that it had captured something of unusual weight.

Still it bravely flew towards its nest in the treetops, and the angler might never more have recognized his rod had it not got entangled in some telegraph wires, with the result that the cast snapped, the heron went free and the rod was eventually restored to its owner.

I remember telling this story to a man who before I had even got as far as the telegraph wires interrupted me assuring me that it was more every-day commonplace to what had once befallen a friend of his when masher fishing in India.

It seems that his angling friend was casting with a large spoon, and in a back cast drove it into the ear of a tiger which had been going to spring on him from behind. Goarded by the pain, the brute sprang clean over him and into the river, and the fisherman actually played with it for an hour as it swam to and fro in mid-stream.

It is such stories which bring down on fishermen the unmerited reproach of being liars.

Once when I had been describing some memorable fight with one of the big fish of the past I wrote:

"I live over those tense moments again and again."

Did the printer so interpret me? Not at all. What he preferred was:

"I lie over those tense moments again and again!"

This sort of thing is very hard. What made it worse at the time was the fact that the friend who drew my attention to the misprint was a golfer.—Bailley's Magazine.

Why She Didn't Cry.

"It wasn't much fun," says Annette F. McCrea, one of the most successful women architects in the United States, when speaking of her early struggles. "I left the youngsters with a house-keeper and they had a cheerful way of writing me every day that they were lonely and miserable."

"I used to sit up half the night answering their letters, writing in bleak, cheerless hotel rooms—I had no money for luxuries. The craving to be with the children was a thousand times harder than the work. Sometimes when I could not bear it any longer I dragged them around with me."

"No part of it was easy. For every step forward in my work I had a thousand disappointments. I remember one day I went to a man's office expecting to land a good contract. I failed; somebody else had landed it. When I walked out onto the street I thought I'd die if I couldn't cry. But there wasn't any place to cry, and I didn't."—Designer.

Gull and Fisheries.

At a recent meeting of Yarmouth Town Council, when a draft order was approved designed to secure further protection to wild birds, comprising woodcock, great bustard, crossbill, kingfisher, owl, sandmartin and bearded tit, while all birds are to be immune on Sundays and the eggs of certain species will be protected throughout the year, complaint was made of the depredations of the seagulls.

J. T. C. Salmon, who represents the fishing quarter of the town, said that gulls consume more fish than the fishermen could catch and the fishing ports ought to petition for their destruction and that they ought to be considerably reduced especially in the breeding season, as they were a source of great damage to the fisheries. The mayor said that gulls would not be protected by this order—London Standard.

Strange Meeting.

Two sailors with the Atlantic fleet, brothers, who had been separated from each other for months because they were on different battleships, met by chance on the streets of London the other day. The father of the two sailors, Captain Ney, secretary of the fire department, received a letter a day or two ago telling of the strange meeting.

Harry Ney, one brother, is on the Nebraska. Will Ney, the other, is on the South Carolina. The two ships were in sight of each other for weeks, but the brothers were still separated. Each received five days' furlough in England and met at a strange corner. The rest of the story can be imagined.

Logical Opposition.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, advocating woman suffrage in New York, said: "I have never heard in all my life a single syllable of logical opposition to woman suffrage. The average opposition is neither better nor worse than the argument of a certain carter."

"Ah," he growled, "not worth women do with a vote if they had it? Contrary critics! Why, if I says to my old woman, 'Gimme liver and bacon for dinner,' do I get it? Naw! I get sauce and onions."

"The Business Man, Lawyer, Physician, Priest or Poet, who earnestly tries to serve his neighbors will earn both money and real happiness. But the man who works for money alone gets that for which he works, and nothing else."—Thomas Drier.

Rev. J. W. Campbell returned from the Association at Morenci on Wednesday and reports a very interesting and profitable meeting. On Monday evening the sermon was given by Dr. Honeywell, assistant to Wm. Sunday, and the singing was conducted by Miss MacClaren, one of his chorists.

The following guests were entertained at a "pot luck" dinner and supper on Wednesday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. McLaren: Mesdames L. B. Johnson, Louis Johnson and son Erwin, C. E. Ulrickson, Marks, Gage Parshall, Wellham, Wm. Dunbar, all of Jackson, and Mrs. B. Button, of Detroit.

E. J. Schmidt of Ann Arbor began suit in the circuit court Tuesday against Otto Hoppe for $3,000, alleging that when they dissolved the co-partnership in the photographic business in April Hoppe agreed to turn over the supplies after the dissolution and then failed to do so. Mr. Hoppe is a well known resident of Sylvan and engaged in the photographic business in Ann Arbor about the first of January.

Come in and Talk it Over

Most of the get-rich-quick schemes are especially arranged for the benefit of the other fellow. He shows you great dividends (on paper) and refers pityingly to those shortsighted people who put their money in savings banks where it only draws 3 per cent. Before you allow yourself to be interested better come in and talk it over with us. Your interests and ours are identical, your prosperity means ours, we cannot afford to advise you wrong. The get-rich-quick fellow has no interest in you save to get your money and to this end he makes the scheme very alluring and promises things impossible to perform. Your money in this bank is safe, and before you withdraw it to invest in anything, you should take every possible precaution against loss. Let us talk it over with you first, then you can do as you please.

A trial package of Munyon's Paw Paw Pills will be sent free to anyone on request. Address Professor Munyon, 534 S. Jefferson St., Philadelphia, Pa. If you are in need of medical advice, do not fail to write Professor Munyon. Your communication will be treated in strict confidence, and your case will be diagnosed as carefully as though you had a personal interview.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour, they do not gripe, they do not weaken, but they do start all the operations of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and constipation is responsible for most ailments. There are 25 feet of human bowels, which is really a sewer pipe. When this pipe becomes clogged the whole system becomes poisoned, causing biliousness, indigestion and impure blood, which often produces rheumatism and kidney ailments. No woman who suffers with constipation or any liver ailment can expect to have a clear complexion or enjoy good health. If I had my way I would prohibit the sale of nine-tenths of the cathartics that are now being sold for the reason that they soon destroy the lining of the stomach, setting up serious forms of indigestion, and so paralyze the bowels that they refuse to act unless forced by strong purgatives.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverish it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope; they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physical.

Regular size bottle, containing 45 pills, 25 cents. Munyon's Laboratory, 534 S. Jefferson St., Philadelphia.

FRUIT AND PUDDING PUFFS

Elaborate Direction for the Making of Material Upon Which So Much Depends.

Fruit Puff 1.—One pint of flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon soda. Sift all together and stir in sweet milk until stiff batter is formed. Put tablespoons of batter into teacups until half is used, add to latter in each cup a spoonful of any kind of canned fruit, preserves or stewed apples without juice. Put a spoonful of batter on top of the fruit, set cups in steamer and steam. Good served with milk or sweetened fruit juice.

Fruit Puff 2.—Mix together one cup of milk, one and a half cups of flour, one heaping teaspoon baking powder, a little salt and a small handful of dried currants. Place in well greased cups and steam 20 minutes. Sauce: One cup of milk, two-thirds cup of sugar, one teaspoon flour, piece of butter the size of a small egg, vanilla flavoring. Cook until consistency of cream.

Pudding Puffs.—One egg well beaten, two tablespoons of sugar, two tablespoons of butter, one cup of milk, one teaspoon baking powder. Put in buttered cups and steam one hour. Sauce: Two tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon flour, one cup of boiling water, one teaspoon vanilla.

Puff Pudding.—One-half cup of sugar, butter size of walnut and melted, one-half cup milk, one egg well beaten, one cup of flour, two teaspoons baking powder. Mix well and bake in patty tins for 20 minutes. This will make six. Caramel sauce: One cup of brown sugar, one teaspoon of flour. Cover with water, add small lump of butter, and boil until thick. It is better to cook this in an iron frying pan, as it burns easily in granite-ware.

PUDDING OF FROZEN GINGER

Delicacy That Is Greatly and Properly Appreciated in Kaiser Wilhelm's Empire.

Another pudding served in the German household is a frozen ginger pudding. This is made by making a custard of one quart of milk and three well-beaten eggs and three tablespoons of sugar. This is put into the refrigerator until thoroughly cooled and then one quart of whipped cream flavored with a few drops of vanilla is added, together with one-half pint of preserved ginger and one-half pint of the syrup in which it is preserved. The ginger should be sliced very thin or chopped fine. Pour the whole into a freezer and when about half frozen add three-eighths of a pound of almond macaroons which have been rolled fine and a little candied orange peel. Freeze this until it is firm and creamy. This is very delicious and some people add a cupful of orange pulp cut into small pieces.—Housekeeper.

Bride's Cake.
One pound of butter, four cupfuls of flour, two cupfuls of sugar, one pound of citron peel, three pounds of currants, four pounds of sultana raisins, ten eggs, four nutmegs, four teaspoonsful of cinnamon, four teaspoonsful of ground cloves, two wineglassfuls of sherry wine, and two wineglassfuls of brandy. Beat the butter and sugar together thoroughly to a cream, beat up the eggs and add them gradually then the brandy, wine, spices, chopped citron, the currants, raisins and flour. Dissolve half a teaspoonful of baking soda in a little of the wine and add it. Turn into a buttered and papered cake tin and bake slowly for four hours.

Salad Dressing Made Without Oil.
Tablespoon flour, tablespoon sugar, tablespoon mustard (scant), one-half teaspoon salt, pinch of cayenne pepper. Mix all together dry. Beat two eggs and stir in the dry mixture. Add one cup of vinegar and one of milk. Cook in double boiler till thick. Remove from fire, add butter size of an egg and beat until smooth. This is fine and will keep it bottled and set near the ice. I never use oil in any way, but I guess you could add the oil instead of butter if you liked it better.

Fairy Loaf.
Four eggs beaten separately; one and a fourth cups sugar, half a cup of butter, half a cup of sweet milk, two and a half cups of flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar, scant half a teaspoon soda; flavor to taste. Sift flour, then measure; add soda and sift three times. Cream butter and sugar lightly. Beat yolks to a foam, add cream of tartar and whip stiff. Add milk, whites of eggs and flour. Stir hard. Bake in a moderate oven about 30 minutes.

Apple Sauce Cake.
Two cups apple sauce, two and a half cups flour, one cup sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon, half a teaspoon cloves, one and a half teaspoons soda (scant), one cup raisins, shortening size of egg, pinch salt. Stir to cream sugar and shortening; add warm apple sauce (strained), flour and spices. Stir well; add raisins and beat again; grease and flour pan, then add soda to cake and let it stand ten minutes before baking.

Onion and Lettuce Salad.
Cut two Bermuda onions in very small bits, shred one-half head lettuce and mix with the onions, season with salt and pour over French dressing.

For the Hostess

Fruit-Tree Blossom Luncheon.

This is the month, and the only one, in which these decorations are available. A hostess realizing this is planning to use branches of apple, pear and peach blossoms, making her house one bower of spring beauty. The wild pink crabapple blossoms she is going to use exclusively in the dining room. A very Japanese effect may be achieved with these blossoms and her idea for this affair is drawn largely from the celebration of the feast of cherry blossoms so lovingly observed by our little brown neighbors across the western sea. Brown wisteria baskets will be used to hold single branches and the tint of the rooms is all soft grays and tans, the result will be truly artistic and pleasing. From these hints I am sure all our readers will want to give May luncheons, and what could be prettier than these decorations for a house or church wedding? The practice of using what is seasonal and at hand is becoming more and more popular and we do not need to force flowers not in season just because it costs a fortune to get them, but use the blossoms nature provides for each season as it rolls around.

Spoon Shower.

This affair was given by the girls of the bridal party at the home of the maid of honor. The table was round, covered with a lace cloth over green; as green and white were the bridal colors. White roses and ferns made the center piece, with white green banded china, glass candle sticks with lace shades over green. The place cards were cut out white roses tied with a bow of green and the bride-elect's chair was tied with a huge fluffy bow of green and white tulle. White and green horseshoe shaped candy boxes held the green and white bon-bons and a green and white Jack Horner pie was passed with dessert, from which the guests drew pretty green and white snapping crackers. Each parcel had the donor's card on which was written an appropriate sentiment. The spoons were all the same pattern and as there were six it made a very nice set. The men of the wedding party, knowing about this gave a half dozen forks and the same number of tablespoons of the same pattern.

Dainty Centerpiece.

Last year a hostess living in a delightful country place had this unique centerpiece at a luncheon which she gave for some of her city friends. She had an enormous straw hat tied as a basket filled with roses. It was held by a big bow of gauze ribbon. At each place small baskets filled with unhusked strawberries rested on a dolly of grape leaves. To the handle was a bow of pink gauze ribbon, with the name card pinned to it with a dainty imitation coral stick pin; just one pink rose rested on the handle. It was all very simple, but the rustic effect was lovely.

A City Supper.

Instead of having vials typical of countries, a Ladies' Aid Society gave a variation of this idea by announcing a supper the food to be typical of certain cities. Those represented were: Baltimore by oysters; Boston by baked beans and brown bread; Philadelphia by scrapple; Chicago by cold ham; Savannah by corn pone and beaten biscuit; Atlanta by fried chicken; New Orleans by chicken pilou (chicken stew with rice), and San Francisco by oranges or Chinese dishes.

MADAME MERRI.

LANCIES OF FASHION.

The aeroplane hat is seen everywhere.

All vivid colorings are used for evening.

Pongee is worn again this season, as always. New colors and new weaves are to be had in the shops.

It is a great ribbon season. It is used for trimming, and in shades of rose and cerise is much used.

Bright blue combined with cerise is used on a smart crepe de chine blouse decorated with eyelet embroidery.

Figured crepes, trimmed with plaited ruffles, are quaintly pretty for afternoon wear, as well as for the blouse.

Embroidery in bright colors worked in oriental, Persian and Bulgarian designs are decorating all kinds of gowns.

The silhouette in the new gowns remains much the same, the skirts are narrow and the kimono sleeve is still much in evidence. The waist line is slightly raised in the gowns as well as in the newest French tailor made suits, and in these, nothing is more noticeable than the short, jaunty length of the coat.

The Egyptian motifs show such designs as the beetle or scarab, the rising sun, the cobra, the lotus, palm, papyrus buds and reeds, animals, fan shaped ornaments, the ram, human figures and so on. The colors show such combination as black, yellow and red; red, blue and white; green and black; dark red, medium yellow and blue.

Reception or Tea

In almost every home there comes an occasion when refreshments must be provided for many guests; and the mistress of the household, with one or at most two to help, is appalled at the thought of catering to so unusual a number. She should remember that to attempt too much is far worse than to err on the side of great simplicity.

No up-to-date housekeeper spreads upon her table a cloth laundered with many folds; she prefers to have it folded but once lengthwise and then rolled over a board made just the width of the folded linen. No matter how heavy or lustrous the cloth, it should be laid over a padding or undercloth on the table and should be large enough to reach nearly to the floor on all sides.

The table illustrated is set for a home reception or tea and the single basket of roses is more artistic than the effect of flowers scattered over the table or trailing vines in festoons at the sides of the cloth, for these become disarranged easily and are not effective in average-sized rooms. A low arrangement of flowers is appropriate at dinner or luncheon, as it does not awkwardly obstruct the view across from guest to guest, but a taller effect is in good taste for a reception table, even if it be laid over color, is better than linen embroidered with flowers, as the natural and embroidered flowers both lose something of their best effect when brought together in this way.

Small white china cups and saucers with a narrow gold band are not expensive and make a pretty addition to the handsome plates and salad dishes with which every china closet is ordinarily stocked. Arrange the coffee service at one end of the table, the cups at either side in rows meeting in a point in front of the urn. A bowl of whipped cream and spoon and another of loaf sugar should be placed at the side. Place the tea service at the other end of the table with cups, sugar and cream. There should be piles of plates and if salads are served small fringed or hemstitched napkins. Small and large spoons and forks should be arranged in orderly diagonal rows upon the cloth and never bunched together. Place here and there small cut-glass or silver dishes for bonbons.

For an afternoon reception, such as one might give in honor of some special guest, or a wedding reception given by the bride's parents, chicken salad, thin bread and butter sandwiches, ice cream, fancy cakes and chocolate would be sufficient for refreshments. Another more simple menu would include sandwiches of white bread with a variety of fillings, and of Graham or brown bread spread with cream cheese; cakes, chocolate and tea. In either case bonbons are included. If sandwiches are cut in diamonds, bars or rounds, there is less waste than if cut in more fanciful shapes. To serve fifty people provide the quart of chicken salad, ten quarts of ice cream, 12 dozen sandwiches and a variety of fancy cakes and macaroons.

KIDNEY CHILLS AND BACKACHE.

If, when you get wet or take cold, it "settles on the kidneys" and there is a shivery, chilly sensation in the back, it shows kidney weakness which is often the beginning of serious disease. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used persistently until the backache and other symptoms disappear.

C. D. Kessler, 408 E. 5th St., Mendota, Ill., says: "Kidney trouble came on me about 20 years ago and became so bad I was unable to work for weeks. I was thin, worn out and nervous; the doctors admitted they could not help me and my friends expected me to die. As a last hope I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and shortly after passed a gravel stone. Later on several more stones passed and from then on I improved until cured."

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Husband Who Had "Married Money" Acknowledged the Truth to His Friends' Query.

Appropos of a beautiful young wife, worth $40,000,000, who had just divorced her penniless husband in order to marry again, Henry E. Dixey, the comedian, said at a dinner in New York:

"The young man who marries for money has none too easy a time of it. His rich wife is likely to tire of him and throw him out in a few years, or else she is likely to limit his allowance to 25 or 50 cents a day."

"I married money," a man once said to me.

"Wasn't there a woman attached to it?" I asked.

"Yes, you bet there was," he exploded. "So much attached to it that she never parted with a penny."

ECZEMA BROKE OUT ON BABY

"When my baby was two months old, she had eczema, and rash very badly. I noticed that her face and body broke out very suddenly, thick, and red as a coal of fire. I did not know what to do. The doctor ordered castile soap and powders, but they did no good. She would scratch, as it itched, and she cried, and did not sleep for more than a week. One day I saw in the paper the advertisement of the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, so I got them and tried them at once. My baby's face was as a cake of soap."

"When I first used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I could see a difference. In color it was redder. I continued with them. My baby was in a terrible condition. I used the Cuticura Remedies (Soap and Ointment) four times a day, and in two weeks she was quite well. The Cuticura Remedies healed her skin perfectly, and her skin is now pretty and fine through using them. I also use the Cuticura Soap today, and will continue to, for it makes a lovely skin. Every mother should use the Cuticura Remedies. They are good for all sores, and the Cuticura Soap is also good for shampooing the hair, for I have tried it. I tell all my friends how the Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured my baby of eczema and rash." (Signed) Mrs. Drew, 210 W. 18th St., New York city, Aug. 26, 1910.

Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, Mass., for free booklet on the skin.

Do You Feel This Way?
Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a cough, or a blood-spitting, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice. Don't be wheedled by a penny-grubbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicine, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Pierce's medicine are of known composition. A Strange Situation.

"Humor is a funny thing," said Blinks.

"It ought to be," said the Philosopher.

"Oh, I don't mean that way," said Blinks. "I mean that it is a strange thing. Now, I can't speak French, but I can always understand a French joke, and I can speak English, but I'm blest if I can see an English joke."

"Most people are," said the Philosopher.

"Are what?" said Blinks.

"Blest if they can see an English joke," said the Philosopher. "It is a sign of an unusually keen vision."—Harper's Weekly.

"Kicking the Bucket."

When we speak facetiously of some one for whom we have no reverence as having "kicked the bucket," we employ a phrase that would seem to be a piece of latter-day slang, but as a matter of fact, it dates back to old England, when, about the year 1725, one Bolsover hung himself to a beam while standing on the bottom of a bucket, and then kicked the bucket away. Although at first used only in cases of suicide, it has been applied in the course of years to any death, without distinction.

To the Point.

Over in Hoboken in a shop frequented by Germans, hangs a sign framed in mournful black, reading thus:

"We regret to inform our honored customers that our good and generous friend, Mr. Credit, expired today. He was a noble soul, always willing and helpful, but has been failing for some time. May he rest in peace. PAY CASH!"

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of my life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition. I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others, you may publish my letter."—MRS. NATHAN B. GREATOR, 51 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Princess Theatre.

The management of the Princess announces a double feature bill for Saturday evening, making the biggest offering ever given on a Saturday evening. There are two features, the greatest of these being the late war picture "Across the Mexican Border" or "Uncle Sam's Soldiers on the Borderline." This picture which was taken only a few weeks ago during the height of the Mexican rebellion is a great scenic and educational one, showing scenes never before shown by motion pictures. The maneuvers of Uncle Sam's soldiers are shown as well as scenes of the Mexican armies. The other feature is "The Warrior's Squaw" by the Bison company, a fine western picture. Two other pictures, "Matilda Chased" a comedy, and "A Child's Prayer" a drama, are on the bill as well.

CHAS. PUAL.

KNOW IT WELL.

Familiar Features Well Known to Hundreds of Chelsea Citizens.

A familiar burden in every home. The burden of a "bad back." A lame, a weak or an aching back. Tells you of kidney ill. Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you. Here is Chelsea testimony to prove it:

John Kelly, West Middle street, Chelsea, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they helped me wonderfully. My back was sore and lame and it was difficult for me to stoop on account of the acute pains across my kidneys. I also had trouble from irregular passages of the kidney secretions. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box and commenced their use. I have had no trouble from my back or kidneys since taking this remedy and have felt better in every way."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and ask no other.

A LONG-FELT WANT FILLED.

"Why in the world have you put all these seats along the wall in the upper hall?"

"That's a little idea of my own. The architect didn't want to do it, but I insisted on it. I think it would be a fine thing if everybody who builds a new house would adopt the scheme. You see at least twenty-five men can sit here comfortably."

"Yes, but why should twenty-five men wish to sit here?"

"Lord! Haven't you ever been out in society? Suppose we are giving a party. Well, the men can sit here during the half-hour or more that they are compelled to wait while their wives are getting ready in the rooms where they are laying off their wraps and getting their hair fixed to suit the dress, eh?"

"An ounce of preventative is worth a pound of cure." Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea has been the "preventative" for thirty years. Nothing so good to keep you well and make you well. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. L. P. Vogel.

BREVITIES

PINCKNEY—Home-coming will be celebrated in Pinckney, August 2 and 3.

BRIDGEWATER—H. R. Palmer has a gang of masons at his place building the foundation walls for his new barn.

GRASS LAKE—Wm. Fuchs has started mandamus proceedings against the village council, to compel them to show cause why they should not grant him a saloon license.

MILAN—Wylie McManus, who shot to death Hugh Hanlon, was examined at Monroe on Wednesday of last week by an insanity commission composed of Drs. Dawe, McCallum and Stiffer, who pronounced him insane. His hearing took place in the probate court the day following, when he was committed to the insane asylum at Kalamazoo.—Leader.

STOCKBRIDGE—While walking over his farm, about a mile from this place Wednesday afternoon of last week Robert Howlett, and old and respected Stockbridge citizen met his death. He left his home early in the afternoon, and when he did not return for supper his family became alarmed and a searching party was organized, which found the body about 8:30, he evidently having been dead for three or four hours. Justice Sayles was notified and a jury impaneled, the jury deciding that death was due to heart failure. He leaves a wife and two sons.

ANN ARBOR—Mrs. Louisa Walker of Manchester began suit in the circuit court against Albert J. Kress, a saloonist of Manchester and the surety on his bond, the Michigan Bonding and Surety company, for $1,000 alleging that Kress sold liquor to her son, Edward, a minor, and to her husband, Charles, to whom sale had been prohibited. She alleges that because of the liquor obtained at Kress's Edward became drunk a number of times between last May and last December so that he is now unable to work and that her husband also got the habit.—Ann Arbor Times.

NORTHVILLE—The nine slot machines are still doing a land office business in the village and enough money is being gambled away through them each week to support about ten ordinary families. About $100 a week is a fair average for the machine robbers. This would almost pay the village taxes for a year. The majority of the people of the village protest against the running of these machines in defiance of the law. The Woman's club have verbally petitioned the council and yet no action has been taken, and the gentle dropping of the nickels of school children and boys, and men who are not school children, still continues. Now the school board has requested the council to act.—Record.

PLYMOUTH—W. P. Jarvis, alias John Paul and several other names, was arrested at Howell by Deputy Sheriff Springer at Howell last Saturday and brought back to Plymouth to face a charge of larceny Jarvis had been soliciting subscriptions for the Woman's World, offering three years' subscription for 50 cents and in addition an enlarged picture from photo as a premium. While here last week he was held at John Miller's and when he left last Friday forenoon he took with him Miller's $5 derby, leaving his own well-worn "bonnet." Miller made complaint before Justice Campbell and the warrant was placed in Officer Springer's hand with the result as above stated. He pleaded guilty in court Saturday evening and Justice Campbell imposed a fine of $15, which was paid. The fellow also admitted that the money secured on subscription was a clean graft and the people who paid their 50 cents are out the money.—Mail.

CLINTON—Daniel Babcock, for many years a resident of Bridgewater township, was found drowned in the river between Napoleon and Michigan Center, in Leoni township, Tuesday. It has not been decided whether he met with foul play or not but an inquest was held Thursday. The remains were brought here Wednesday night and taken to the undertaking rooms of J. B. Hause & Son, and on Thursday they were brought to the home of Ray Mitchell in Bridgewater where the funeral was held with burial in Benton cemetery. He had been living with his daughter in Tecumseh for a time but left there Monday and she did not know where he was until notified of the finding of the body. Deceased was 69 years old. An examination of the body found the neck broken and a bad bruise on his forehead. The bridge where he fell off, or rather the river under the bridge, is quite rocky, so it is a hard matter to solve the problem. We understand the examination also disclosed the fact that there was no water in his lungs, indicating that he was dead before he reached the water.—Local.

DEXTER—Miss Ruth Jedde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Jedde of this place, has accepted the position as principal of the Dundee high school upon her graduation at Ypsilanti in June.

GRASS LAKE—It is rumored about town that if there is no buffet established here parties in Franciscan ready to supply the deficiency. So far as Grass Lake village is concerned the matter pro or con will depend on the decision of the circuit court before whom the matter is to be brought.

GRASS LAKE—Work has been started on the new houses to be built by J. C. Kendall on west Main street and Chas. Cassidy on East church street. Thus our village grows a little each year. Mr. Kendall will build a barn on his property now and later in the fall he expects to erect a handsome residence thereon.—News.

YPSILANTI—William Bergin, an employe on one of the work cars on the D. J. & C. railroad, was terribly injured when a load of ties on one of the cars toppled over and rolled down a steep embankment carrying him with it. Nearly every rib on his left side was broken and his left arm partly crushed. The accident occurred on the M. C. bridge near Jackson, and after his wounds were dressed he was brought to this city, where he is resting as well as can be expected.

GRASS LAKE—Little Florence Hall, aged 5 years, a few days ago suddenly disappeared. She was searched for high and low, the parents being assisted by the neighbors, but she could not be found. The fields were searched, the windmill tanks and wells, investigated, and after two hours' search effort was given over in despair. At this juncture the mother was moved to lift the cover to a heavy trunk. Inside the trunk she found her child insensible and gasping for breath. She was resuscitated, but in a few moments more would have been beyond help.

JACKSON—Mrs. Emma Smith was bitten frightfully about the face by a pet bulldog about 10:30 Saturday night, the brute tearing the woman's lip completely from her face. Mrs. Smith in some manner angered the dog, with which her little son was playing, and the animal made a vicious lunge at her, fastening his teeth in her face with such a grip that he could not be torn loose until the upper lip had been torn away. The ambulance was called and the unfortunate woman was taken to the city hospital, where an operation was performed. The physician states that if the wound heals nicely the disfigurement will be slight.

OLD SPAIN IN CALIFORNIA

King's Highway Created When Colonies Were Struggling for Liberty Still Stands.

It is not a highway in Spain—this Camino Real—that I mean to follow, but a highway in our own land, Spanish as any in Iberia, a road of infinite variety, long enough to traverse that peninsula, and running, as if it could there, from the desert wastes of mountain plateaus to the orange groves and palm-trees of soft lands of sunshine.

While our patriot fathers were struggling for their liberty along our eastern seaboard, an old padre—"el infatigable operario de la Vina del Senor," as his friend and companion called him—was establishing his missions along our western coast. His chain of churches, when completed, was linked by this road, known to the Spaniards as El Camino Real, the king's highway—the only road marked by DuRoi de Maufrais on his map of upper California, published in Paris just two years before the American occupation. It still remains the lonely highway that it always was, the only road connecting the old missions—a mere long scratch upon the bare brown hills that skirt the sea.

The sole part of California that the Spaniards exploited was the portion included in these Coast Range mountains, De Maufrais on his map marking the great interior valleys only with the generic legend: "This country is even more beautiful than the inhabited portion of California; its climate is milder, it offers fertile fields, superb forests for lumber and vast prairies where graze herds of deer, antelope and wild horses."

The coming of the gringo changed all this. Mining, agriculture, lumbering, interested him far more than stock raising and the breeding of fine horses on the hill slopes of the sea. Consequently the trend of travel moved inland, down the fertile river valleys. The Camino Real, since so little traveled as its Spanish character more, I think, than any other portion of the state.—Ernest Flexotto, in Scribner's Magazine.

Balked at Cold Steel.

"I wouldn't let a doctor cut my foot off," said H. D. Ely, Bantam, Ohio, "although a horrible ulcer had been the plague of my life for four years. Instead I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my foot was soon completely cured." Heals burns, boils, sores, bruises, eczema, pimples, corns, sure cure. 25c. At L. P. Vogel, H. H. Fenn Co. and L. T. PREACHED HIS BEST

CANDIDATE THOUGHT HE MADE AN IMPRESSION.

But He Should Have Heard the Comments of the Flock He Was So Anxious to Shepherd.

The candidate has done his best. He believed that it had made a deep impression on the church, before which he was "candidating." He might have changed his mind had he heard the following comments on his effort by the people as they passed out of church or lingered for the afternoon tea sort of chatter that obtains in some of our modern churches:

"Well, how did you like him?" "Fairly well, but he ain't no way up to what dear Pastor Elder was."

"Did you notice that he said 'eye-ther'?" "I always hate to hear a minister say that."

"His delivery wasn't none too good. I could not make out some of his words."

"I didn't just like him having that pink rose in his buttonhole. Looked a little vain to me. I like to see a minister dress rather soberly."

"Didn't his coat fit awfully? Did you notice that the sleeves were too long? And his trousers were too short. I think that a minister's dress has a lot to do with the impression he makes."

"I can't bear to see a man with his hair parted in the middle, and if he should be called to us I wouldn't make no bones of telling him so."

"Wasn't some of that poetry he quoted beautiful? I do love to hear a minister express himself in poetry."

"Seemed to me he wasn't very deep. When you come to think it over, he didn't say much I hadn't heard before."

"Seemed to me he was rather sing-song in his delivery. Didn't Pastor Fourtherly have a beautiful delivery? He never said much of anything, but his delivery was so beautiful that he held you with it."

"I didn't like the way he hammered the pulpit with his fist. I like to see a minister calm and dignified in the pulpit. Always makes more of a lasting impression."

"Did you notice the way he began so many his sentences with 'And'?" "And I was just reading the other day that one should never begin a sentence with 'and'."

"I didn't like the way he rolled up his eyes. It seemed so sort of sanctimonious."

"It didn't seem to me there was much real spirituality in his sermon, and I don't like a sermon unless it is downright spiritual."

"I don't believe that he is the man for us."

"Seems to me that he's better suited to some church where they don't really expect much of the minister."

"If they called him I think that I should take my letter to some other church."

"Wasn't he just splendid. I think his sermon was just lovely! Seems to me he is just the man we are looking for!"

"I wouldn't want it said as coming from me, but I have heard that he didn't resign of his own accord the last pastorate he had. If his resignation was asked for, seems to me we ought to know the reasons why."
