Nothing Harmful in Baby Cough Syrup

You must be particular—exact, when choosing a remedy for Baby's cough. There are so many remedies containing habit forming drugs that baby's health will be greatly impaired unless you know absolutely just what the remedy contains and the action of each ingredient, so you can be sure it is harmless.

Nyal's Baby Cough Syrup

IS SOLD BY US ON A POSITIVE GUARANTY

—we know the contents and the action and know that it will do as represented. It breaks up a cough in short order, protects the membranes of the throat against irritation and infection, rids the throat of all injurious deposits, and prevents further accumulations.

A SLIGHT BLAZE.

The Baptist Church Damaged by Fire Sunday Afternoon.

About three o'clock Sunday afternoon a fire was discovered around one of the hot air registers in the auditorium of the Baptist church. The Junior Union was in session at the time and one of the children smelling smoke spoke of it. Rev. F. I. Blanchard made an investigation and an alarm was turned in and the fire department was soon on the scene.

The interior of the church is badly smoked and will have to be redecorated and the ceiling of the basement is considerably scorched. It is estimated that the damages will amount to about $500. The society carries an insurance of $3,800 and their loss is fully covered.

When Rev. Blanchard attempted to get some water in the church he was unable to do so, as the water pipes were either frozen or else the water had been turned off. Water was secured from a nearby residence and the blaze was under control when the department arrived.

A meeting of the trustees of the church was held the first of the week and arrangements made for the necessary repairs to be made as soon as possible.

Admits the Charge.

William Lewis, arrested on the charge of setting fire to the hotel at Manchester November 27 last and who has been in jail at Ann Arbor six weeks awaiting trial, has made a complete confession to Prosecuting Attorney Burke. In his confession he implicates J. J. Beagle, of Wellsville, N. Y., owner of the hotel.

Lewis alleges that Beagle offered him $1,500 to burn the hotel, on which Beagle held $6,000 insurance and that Beagle paid him part of the money before he started the fire. He says that Beagle bought the oil which was used and brought it to Ann Arbor in a suitcase, where he delivered to Lewis.

Lewis also declares that Beagle planned all the details for burning the hotel. Cans of oil he says, were placed under the beds in all the sleeping rooms with holes punctured in the bottoms to permit the oil to leak slowly upon lighted candles. He also says holes were made in partitions between rooms and concealed by pieces of furniture in order to insure the rapid spread of the flames.

On the night the fire was set by Lewis a man passing the hotel was attracted by a blaze in the upper story of the hotel and gave the alarm. The flames were extinguished before much damage was done and the attempt to destroy the hotel was then discovered.

Lewis disappeared from Manchester the night of the fire and suspicion was directed toward him. Officers were unable to locate him, but a few days later he returned to Manchester and was placed under arrest on the charge of arson. He has been in jail here since.

Prosecutor Burk says he knows where Beagle is, but has not decided whether to put the county to the expense of bringing him to Ann Arbor.

A Successful Year.

The annual business meeting of the Congregational Church and Society was held at the church Thursday evening. The reports from the various departments of the church indicate a year of unusual prosperity. The pastor's salary and all other expenses have been paid in full and the society is entirely out of debt.

The Ladies' Guild have decorated the interior of the parsonage at a cost of $75; enlarged and decorated the church dining room and kitchen, installed a fine range in the kitchen, purchased new table linen, silverware and dishes for the dining room and added three dozen chairs to the equipment of the Christian Endeavor room.

The Men's Bible class, monthly meetings and banquets under the auspices of the Brotherhood have been largely attended and the men are a vital factor in all the activities of the church. The Brotherhood has painted and repaired the parsonage and is conducting a very successful entertainment course.

The Sunday school has finished the most successful year in its history with an average attendance of 119 and contributions amounting to $219.

The missionary offerings of the church amounted to about $300, of which the ladies contributed $120 and the Sunday school $38. The amount expended in the local field for all purposes was $2,000.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Trustees—F. E. Storms, J. Bacon. Clerk—J. G. Webster. Missionary Treasurer—F. E. Storms. Ushers—R. D. Walker, D. H. Wurster, James Schmidt, Paul Belsler. Deacons—Wm. Davidson, J. Bacon. Deaconesses—Mrs. A. A. VanTyne, Miss Mantie Spaulding.

Advocates Oral Arithmetic.

Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction Fred L. Keeler talked to 126 Washtenaw county public school directors at Ann Arbor Tuesday and exploded a bomb in their midst when he advocated cutting out all written arithmetic up to at least the sixth grade.

"Give the children mental arithmetic," said he, "the good old fashioned kind and plenty of it."

He told the directors their teachers must teach on February 22 if they expected pay and he advised them not to be too hasty in closing their schools for long periods.

"In case of an outbreak of some contagious disease fumigate the building, quarantine the exposed pupils and then go on with the school," said he.

Lincoln Day Addresses.

Several members of the Michigan delegation are planning trips to their districts for Lincoln day celebration. Senators Smith and Townsend are to be at Grand Rapids February 12. Congressman J. M. C. Smith will be among the speakers at Albion and Hillsdale. Congressman Wedemeyer will begin a series of engagements this month, first addressing the Michigan Alumni association at a banquet in New York January 19. February 12 he will speak in Chicago, the day following he will address the Lincoln club at a banquet in Jackson, and February 14 will speak at the McKinley banquet in Adrian. Congressman Smith will speak at Pontiac and Flint. Congressman Fordney will not be in Michigan for the Lincoln celebrations, but will address the Republican club at a banquet in Jackson January 31.

Inspected the Flocks.

Manchester Enterprise: A government inspector has been here conferring with Charles Burtless and other sheep dealers regarding scab. There have been some sheep shipped from this state that were afflicted with scab and the government has been called upon to look into the matter. We understand that no flocks were found here that had scab but one large flock near Clinton was found and the inspector went last Thursday to see about 2000 sheep dipped. It is too cold to do such work; it would seem to us and ought to be postponed until the weather moderates.

New Social Club.

The Flanders Social Club is a new organization of the employees of the Flanders Manufacturing Co. The club meets in the hall of the welfare building.

The following are the officers of the club: President—A. F. Graves. Vice President—J. B. Swegles. Secretary—B. F. Marty. Treasurer—H. L. Cramer. Social Manager—T. S. Hughes. Athletic Manager—T. J. Kelley.

FAREWEL BANQUET.

Given Rev. M. L. Grant by Brotherhood of Congregational Church.

The Brotherhood gave a luncheon in the dining room of the Congregational church last Friday evening in honor of their departing pastor, Rev. M. Lee Grant.

After a business session in the parlors of the church the participants adjourned to the dining room.

After the luncheon was disposed of President F. H. Belsler on behalf of the society presented Rev. Grant with a beautiful gold watch and fob. Rev. Grant in his response said many good things about the Brotherhood and thanked them for the gift.

Rev. A. A. Wood, pastor of the Congregational church at Grass Lake, Rev. F. I. Blanchard of the Baptist church, and Frank Hendry, Dr. H. W. Schmidt and H. D. Witherel made short addresses.

Report of Divorce Cases.

County Clerk Charles L. Miller has just completed his annual report on the number of divorce cases begun and finished in this county during the past year.

Fifty decrees were granted during 1911 by Judge Kinne and six cases were withdrawn or otherwise disposed of. Ninety-eight cases were begun during the year. The total number of cases pending at the end of the year was 294. Statistics for the years since 1900 are given below: 1910—69 cases begun; 58 decrees granted; no cases withdrawn; 1909—cases begun, 69; cases withdrawn, 1; decrees granted, 47; 1908—cases begun, 68; cases withdrawn, 3; decrees granted, 52; 1907—cases begun, 88; cases withdrawn, 1; decrees granted, 53; 1906—cases begun, 62; cases withdrawn, 2; decrees granted, 42; 1905—cases begun 63; cases withdrawn, 2; decrees granted, 34; 1904—cases begun, 62; withdrawn, 1; granted 39; 1903—begun, 89; refused 6; granted 55; 1902—begun, 49; granted 55; 1902—begun, 49; granted, 37; 1901—begun, 71; withdrawn, 6; refused, 2; granted, 46; 1900—begun, 77; withdrawn, 3; refused, 1; granted, 52.

In the 12 years covered by those figures 865 cases have been begun; 25 have been withdrawn; nine refused and 565 decrees granted.

The number of new cases this past year is the largest in the 12 years, 1903 ranking second with 89. The year of 1910 holds the record in regard to number of decrees granted, 58 having been signed in that year, as against 50 in 1911.

Thirty-two of the 50 couples divorced during the year had children, and the total number of children involved was 69.

Nearly twice as many women as men sought divorce. Only 17 men appeared as complainants as against 33 women.

Thirty of the 50 cases were not contested. In every case in which a decree was granted the decree was absolute.

Communication.

Word has gone forth that new law against selling or giving away of rabbit meat is to be enforced. The last legislature evidently found time hanging heavy on its hands to spend it in such dam-fool legislation. It is said the purpose was to stop the country boys from making a little spending money and save the bunnies for the guns of the city chaps who like to trespass on the farmer's fields and carry the rabbits he has fed all the year—Pinecky Dispatch.

In addition to this the fruit growers in the north part of the state will suffer more than ever, as the rabbits will not be killed off and will bark the trees. It is reported that one man killed 1,900 rabbits last winter and on the same marsh this winter rabbits are as plentiful and will not be killed off on account of the law prohibiting their sale.

Many poor families in the north depend on the sale of rabbits for buying their groceries during the long cold winter, but now they will not be allowed to take them to market. The law is one of the greatest nuisances of any law ever passed in the state of Michigan.

In the western states the counties pay a bounty on rabbits to get them off. Gardeners also suffer from them and where they become very plentiful they become diseased and are not fit for food.

TENTATIVE TAX PLAN IS $4,952,000

THIS IS BASED ON TAX COMMISSION'S ASSESSMENT OF PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATIONS.

RAILROADS ARE BOOSTED A TOTAL OF $1,077,500.

The Michigan Central and Grand Trunk Railroads are the only ones whose valuations were raised.

The state tax commission completed the tentative assessment of the public service corporations of the state, which are assessed under the ad valorem system. The total is $239,150,550, as compared with $236,695,850 in 1910. The railroad companies were valued at $212,793,500, an increase of $1,077,500 over last year. The telephone and telegraph companies were raised from $21,754,800 to $23,172,300, the express companies from $1,465,400 to $1,470,500. The car loaning companies are assessed at $1,164,200 as against $1,119,650 in 1910.

If the tentative figures of the commission are not changed, the assessment will yield approximately $4,952,000 in taxes for the primary school fund, on the basis of the average rate of $20.71 in 1910, at the rate of $20.53, the taxes assessed against these corporations amounted to $4,857,000.

The big roads of the state, the Grand Trunk and Michigan Central were the only ones whose valuation was increased. The Grand Trunk was increased $340,000, making its total $252,825,000, while the Michigan Central was increased $500,000 to $54,850,000.

The Manistee & Grand Rapids was reduced from $235,000 to $275,000. The Michigan State Telephone company is boosted from $12,000,000 to $12,750,000. The Western Union Telephone company was increased from $1,500,000 to $1,650,000, while the Postal was not disturbed.

TAX COMMISSION CLAIMS CREDIT

Official Statement Intended to Answer Criticisms.

The board of state tax commissioners issued a report to vindicate the creation, existence and work of the commission.

It is shown that largely through its work the tax duplicate of the state was increased $929,865,271 in the past 10 years, whereas in the previous 10 years the increase was only $29,426,881. Its work, the report claims, is bringing about more just taxation for all.

The commission points with pride to the fact that in the past 10 years it has added $2,208,000 to the tax duplicate of public utilities doing a state-wide business.

It indicates as one of its greatest accomplishments that it has added $75,000,000 to the state duplicate in adjusting tax lists since last August; also that it has increased the proportion of personal property to real estate, on the tax duplicate, from 14 to 22 per cent.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF MICHIGAN

HOW ASSESSED VALUATIONS IN MICHIGAN HAVE RISEN SINCE 1901.

AVERAGE RATE, CORPORATE TAXES IS TO BE $20.71.

Michigan Puts Ban on Marble Chocolate Drops—The Bean Crop Is Way Below Average.

How Assessed Values Have Risen.

The statement prepared in the state tax commissioner's office of comparative assessed valuations, taxes levied, and average rate of taxation for each of the 11 years from 1901 to 1911 shows that the total assessed valuation of the state in 1901 was $1,325,109,918, and in 1911 it was $1,895,107,358.

In 1901 the total state taxes were $5,335,850.19; county taxes, $3,141,052.28; township taxes, $2,194,042.27; school taxes, $6,155,861.77; highway taxes, $2,252,039.48; county road taxes, $166,441.75; drain taxes, $145,612.27; other taxes, $6,123,022.31; village taxes, $784,412.16; total, $23,550,404.37.

In 1911 the total was $25,470,735.55; county taxes, $15,145,612.27; township taxes, $10,145,612.27; school taxes, $30,252,039.48; highway taxes, $10,252,039.48; county road taxes, $666,441.75; drain taxes, $545,612.27; other taxes, $10,123,022.31; village taxes, $984,412.16; total, $140,847,358.11.

The average rate of taxation per $1,000 of valuation for each of the 11 years, which is the rate the tax commission fixes for public utility corporations such as railroads, telegraph and telephone companies and express companies, is as follows: 1901, $16.53; 1902, $16.53; 1903, $16.53; 1904, $16.53; 1905, $16.53; 1906, $16.53; 1907, $16.53; 1908, $16.53; 1909, $16.53; 1910, $16.53; 1911, $16.53.

What "Keeps" Soda Water Syrups. To State Analyst Fern L. Shannon, of the Michigan dairy and pure food department, is accorded the honor of determining the preservative that certain New York manufacturers of fruit syrups sold at soda fountains have been using for some time, and Mr. Shannon says that the substance is formic acid, a preservative exploited in European countries under various names for several years.

Mr. Shannon says that formic acid retains the taste and natural flavor of the fruit, and at the same time prevents the product from becoming sour. However, he calls attention to the fact that the pure food law of Michigan requires that the names of foreign substances shall be stamped on packages, and he declares that this has not been done.

Puts Ban on Marble Chocolate Drops.

William T. Hulseher, state food and dairy inspector, stepped down on the "Pops" candy bar, at Battle Creek, one of the biggest wholesale candy concerns in America, and seized 1,000 pounds of "chocolate drops." The candy was designed for "marble draws," school boys buying them to get the marbles within. Inspector Hulseher acted on complaint of mothers, who feared their children would swallow the candy whole and choke on the marbles. The Taylor company agreed "to use no more 'marble fillings'."

Michigan Bean Crop Short.

According to delegates to the annual meeting of the Michigan Bean Jobbers' association, which opened in Detroit, the Michigan bean crop was about 1,000,000 bushels last year, amounting to something over 5,000,000 bushels, in place of 1,677,000 in 1910. The retail price of 10 cents a quart, however, will stand for the coming year. Michigan leads the country in beans, but F. A. Spragg, of the Michigan Agricultural college, says that Michigan farmers could do even better if they would save their beans from their best vines each year for seed.

Wayne First to Help Out State.

Wayne county is the first county in the state to come forward with a contribution to the state treasury in taxes. Auditor-General Fuller having transferred $300,000 from the county treasury in view of the deficiency in funds which has existed for some time the early payment of taxes by Wayne has been a matter of favorable comment by state officers. Gov. Osborn has written to the heads of all state institutions calling their attention to the deficiency which exists in the state treasury at the close of the year, when it was expected that the state would come through with sufficient funds to meet every claim.

SEVEN TURK SHIPS SUNK

First Important Naval Engagement of Italian-Turk War.

The first important naval battle in the Turco-Italian war occurred in the Red sea Jan. 7, with the result that an Italian cruiser squadron sank seven Turkish gunboats after a sharp conflict.

A large number of Turkish seamen were rescued by boats from the Italian warships. A Turkish yacht was captured and is being brought to Italy.

The Turks were believed by the Italians to be preparing to convoy a military expedition which was to cross Egypt and join the Turkish forces in Tripoli.

The division of Italian cruisers which has been scouring the coasts of the Red sea in search of Turkish war vessels and ships conveying contraband destined for the Turkish garrisons in the Yemen province, in Arabia, encountered the flotilla of Turkish gunboats and at once opened fire. The Turks replied, but their feeble armament succumbed to the superior weapons of the Italian war vessels. The fight was stiff, but soon ended in the victory of the Italians.

This action occurred outside the bay of Kunfida, a small walled town with a garrison and two forts, about 500 miles north of Aden, on the east coast.

U. S. SOLDIERS OFF FOR CHINA

MAJOR-GENERAL BELL ASKS MEN TO STAY CLEAN AND POLITE.

WILL UPHOLD RIGHTS OF AMERICANS IN THE PHILIPPINES ISLANDS THOROUGHLY INSPECTED.

Every Man in the Expedition Leaving the Philippines Islands Thoroughly Inspected.

The transport Logan, carrying the first battalion of the Fifteenth U. S. Infantry to China, left Manila.

The United States transport Logan left with a battalion of the Fifteenth Infantry and other details on board, on the way to Chin Wang Tao, in northern China. The American troops, after they have disembarked, are to be employed in guarding a section of the Peking railroad from Tang-Shan to Lanchow against the possible attack of either imperialists or republican troops.

The departure took place in the presence of a throng of civilians and soldiers of other regiments while women crowded the quay bidding tearful farewells and wishing Godspeed to the troops. No women were allowed to accompany the expedition.

Major General J. Franklin Bell, commander-in-chief of the army in the Philippines, made a short parting speech to the officers and men of the expedition just before the transport sailed. General Bell urged the troops to show pride in their American citizenship while they were on foreign soil. The Chinese, he said, were worthy of a square deal and he expected the American soldiers to treat them in a worthy way. He begged the officers and men to be very particular in regard to courtesies and salute to other foreign officers, and he impressed upon the men the necessity for maintaining their reputation for cleanliness and a neat personal appearance. In conclusion he explained the desirability of the most friendly relations with all foreigners with whom they should come in contact.

The speech from the throne at the opening of the riksdag contained the announcement that a bill was to be introduced enfranchising women and making them eligible in the elections to the riksdag on the same conditions as men.

Every Swede over 21 years of age and not under any legal disability has the right to vote for members of the second chamber.

On behalf of the government it was stated that King Gustave, who opened the sessions of the riksdag in person, regards it as right and in the best interests of the state that women should be placed on this equality with men.

5,258 Buildings Burned—30,000 Homeless. A series of fires which broke out in Osaka, Japan, swept uncheckered across the southern half of the city, fanned by a strong wind. The conflagration was not under control until late in the afternoon when, according to official figures, 5,258 buildings had been destroyed and 30,000 persons rendered homeless. During the first four hours the flames consumed more than 1,300 houses.

Ice Jam at Grand Haven is Broken. The ice jam which held the six steamers in the ice off Grand Haven for days, has been broken and the steamers are again making regular trips, as far as the Milwaukee cross-lake service is concerned. The Chicago-Grand Haven service, however, will probably have to be abandoned because of the ice off Chicago where the Goodrich and Milwaukee Racine boats are trapped.

Famous Hotel Burns. The Revere house, one of the oldest and most famous hotels in Boston, was partially destroyed by fire. Quick work by the employees and the firemen saved all the guests, although there were many narrow escapes. The loss is estimated at $100,000. A systematic search was made of the ruins at daylight but no bodies were found.

A Golf Story.
There's another story of a man who rang the bell at the gates of Paradise and asked Peter if he might go through.
"What were you on earth?" asked the saint.
"Well," was the response, "during the latter part of my life I didn't do much but play golf."
"Got a golf ball on you?"
"Yes; here's a 'Chancellor.'"
St. Peter took it and threw it over his shoulder, where it rolled away.
For a minute or more he looked critically at the applicant, then shut the gate in his face and locked it.
"What's the game?" said the man.
"You are no real golfer," said St. Peter. "You don't even know the first rule of golf—to keep your eye on the ball and follow through."

IN AGONY WITH ITCHING

"About four years ago I broke out with sores on my arms like boils. After two months they were all over my body, some coming, and some going away. In about six months the boils quit, but my arms, neck and body broke out with an itching, burning rash. It would burn and itch, and come out in pimples like grains of wheat. I was in a terrible condition; I could not sleep or rest. Parts of my flesh were raw, and I could scarcely bear my clothes on. I could not lie in bed in any position and rest. In about a year the sores extended down to my feet. Then I suffered agony with the burning, itching sores. I could hardly walk and for a long time I could not put on socks.

"All this time I was trying everything I could hear-of, and had the skill of three doctors. They said it was eczema. I got no benefit from all this. I was nearly worn out, and had given up in despair of ever being cured when I was advised by a friend to try Cuticura Remedies. I purchased Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, and used exactly as directed. I used the Cuticura Remedies constantly for four months, and nothing else, and was perfectly cured. It is now a year, and I have not had the least bit since. I am ready to praise the Cuticura Remedies at any time. (Signed) E. L. Cate, Exile, Ky., Nov. 10, 1910.

LIVERPOOL'S NEW CATHEDRAL

THE CATHEDRAL FROM THE SOUTH-WEST

Of the many splendid enterprises now being worked out in this country, none is more interesting than that to which Liverpool has set its hand. Only recently a rather dramatic turn was given to the progress of this great undertaking by the announcement of a far-reaching change of plan. The original design of Mr. Gilbert Scott had two towers, but for various reasons that plan has been abandoned, and the building will be crowned by a single tower, as shown in our artist's drawing. So remarkable a change of plan must be very rare in the case of an undertaking of such dimensions. It has been pointed out that St. Paul's cathedral, as completed, was not in the least like the design which Wron submitted to Charles II., but in that case probably the first drawing was never intended to be taken seriously. If one looked for other features, besides this alteration of design, which distinguish the Liverpool undertaking, one might find them not only in the dimensions of the building, which are in some respects unprecedented for this country, but also in the fact that, setting aside St. Paul's, this is the second cathedral the Church of England has built since the Reformation. The only other has been that of Truro.

The building of a cathedral is not a new idea in Liverpool. It is, in fact, nearly as old as the diocese—which is itself very old. The see was established in 1878, and in 1881 the first proposal to erect a cathedral was mooted. A site was actually selected, but the diocese was not yet equal to the undertaking. Well for it perhaps that it was not; for one cannot imagine the mood of those days rising adequately to the occasion. The truth is no doubt that the religious feeling of the diocese had not yet been sufficiently organized and concentrated. There was, in fact, plenty of other work to be done, all of it urgent and, in a sense, preparatory to the task that is now being taken in hand with such courage and devotion.

It was not until the present bishop, Dr. Chavasse, came upon the scene that the building of a cathedral on a really great scale was determinedly undertaken. The way had largely been made clear for it, but the manner in which the matter was advocated by Dr. Chavasse was an immediate inspiration. He fired the torch that was waiting to be lit. In a very short while promises of £100,000 were forthcoming, and this soon mounted up to £225,000. The very necessary work of raising the funds was chiefly in the hands of that broad-minded prince of commerce, Sir William B. Forwood.

The selected eminence upon which the cathedral is being built is a singularly suitable one, worthy in every sense of the most noble structure. The site is St. James' mount in the southern portion of the city. It is the crest of one of the sandstone ridges on the slopes of which Liverpool has raised itself. It is a finely commanding situation. The sides of the mount are tree-clad; on the eastern side is the quiet St. James' cemetery. Turning to the west one overlooks, from St. James' mount, the great panorama of Liverpool's wonderful trade. The docks and the Mersey lie below; the ocean stretches beyond. Across the river are Birkenhead and Wallasey, the "bedroom of Liverpool," with the hills of Wales bordering the dim distance.

One of the striking facts in the story of this cathedral is the discovery of Mr. Gilbert Scott, the architect, who at the age—the tender age, one almost says—of twenty-two was singled out for the excellence of his design. Liverpool has good reason to treasure the memory of another young architect,

FOUR U.S. ROADS IN MICHIGAN

National Highway Association Outlines System of State.

Michigan is to have four national highways, according to the proposal of the National Highway Association, which advocates 50,000 miles of national highways.

The Michigan highways are outlined as follows:

(A) Detroit—Chicago, running through Detroit, Pontiac, Saginaw, Bay City, Cheboygan, and terminating at the Straits of Mackinac.

(B) Detroit—Chicago, running through Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, and joining the northern transcontinental main highway at South Bend.

(C) Detroit—Grand Rapids, running through Lansing.

(D) Chicago—Mackinac, connecting the Straits of Mackinac with Muskegon, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, and joining at South Bend the northern transcontinental highway leading to Chicago.

The proposed system of roads calls for three main highways from coast to coast, northern, central and southern. Coupling the main points on each of these roads are trunk highways, making a coarse network over the entire country. By means of a third series of roads known as "link national highways," the entire country will be covered by a fine network of roads.

Michigan congressmen are much interested in the elaborate proposal.

THE EFFECTIVE LAXATIVE

Tastes Like and is Eaten Like Candy.

In our experience in the handling of drugs and medicines, we believe we never had experience with any remedy that gave such great satisfaction to our customers as do Rexall Orderlies. This remedy is not like any other laxative or cathartic. It contains all the good features of other laxatives, but none of their faults.

Our own faith in Rexall Orderlies is so strong that we offer them to you with our own positive personal guarantee, that if they do not thoroughly satisfy you, you only need tell us and we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for them. Therefore, in trying them upon our recommendation you take no risk whatever.

Rexall Orderlies taste like and are eaten like candy. They do not grip, cause nausea, excessive looseness, or any other annoyance. They act so easily that they may be taken at any time, day or night. They are particularly good for children, aged, or delicate persons. They are put up in convenient tablets in three sizes of packages. Prices, 10c., 25c., and 50c.

Remember, Rexall Remedies can be obtained in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. L. T. Freeman Co.

GAMBLERS OF HIGH POSITION

Great Ladies of England Formerly Played Continually and for the Highest Stakes.

A little over a century ago there were hundreds of great ladies in England who made their drawing rooms regular gambling dens, and many in the most excited social positions lost, or won, as the case might be, thousands of dollars in a single night's play. The royal princesses did not hesitate to play for the highest stakes, and a faro bank was a portion of the paraphernalia of Dame Fashion.

Queen Elizabeth was fond of cards, but she was inclined to be somewhat peevish and lost her temper at the game. Mary, Queen of the Scots, carried her infatuation to the extent of wagering her personal attire on a game. She would play continually from Saturday to Monday, and sacrifice her wardrobe, if necessary, to do so. Queen Ann of Austria was fairly pursued by ill luck, we are told, but she is said to have played without passion or greed.

Anne Boleyn was an inveterate gambler, as were all the wives of Henry VIII, with one exception—Catherine of Aragon did not gamble, as she had no love for the card table. Nell Gwyn lost 400 guineas one night to the niece of a notorious gambler, Mazarin, who afterward died insolvent, having lost at cards an enormous fortune left to her by her cardinal uncle. Cards are still popular among the hostesses of many of the English drawing rooms, but not to the extent they were a century ago.

HUMOR IN HIS EXAGGERATION

Jabish Furlong's Recital Illustrates the Characteristic That Makes Maine Stories So Amusing.

Novel and exaggerated smiles and comparisons characterize Maine speech. Instead of such commonplaces as "As light as a feather" and "As dark as a pocket," the comparisons are likely to be "Forty pounds lighter than a straw hat" and "As dark as the inside of a cow."

And it is this same humorous exaggeration that makes many a Maine story so likeable. Jabish Furlong, who worked for old man McKusick in haying time, had it.

"I had the greatest luck outgunning the other day," said Jabish. "I was walking a log across a deep hole in the brook, when I see a squirrel up a spruce on the fuder bank. I up right there and fired, and I fetched down the squirrel and a partridge besides that was settin' in the spruce budbin'. But the old gun kicked me into the brook. Well, I floundered around, catchin' hold of everything, and fakin' it when I found myself up on the bank, I had a milk in one hand, a mushquash in t'other and the seat o' mer pants was full o' trout."

Where Wesley Wrote Hymns.

The Rev. J. H. Wicksteed, vicar of Bexley, Kent, England, has presented to the Wesleyan Methodists of Gravesend and Dartford circuit a tree from the vicarage garden, a sapling of the old oak under whose branches John and Charles Wesley, with George Whitefield, often met in friendly conference.

It is believed that Charles Wesley composed some of his hymns under its shadow, and John, in his diary of September 22, 1740, writes: "I went to Mr. Piers, the vicar of Bexley, where in the mornings and evenings I expounded the sermon on the mount and had leisure during the rest of the day for business of other kinds." He was there again Saturday, December 2, 1749, "and preached about 11."

Blue Devils.

When you find yourself in the possession of sundry blue devils, proceed to out-devil them. If they would have you go a mile to two miles. Put your will into it and see how blue you can be. "Pretend" you are a bluer blooded aristocrat than any of those that have come to visit. Be polite to them and let them entertain you. Do anything they bid you do. Sit down and mourn and wall to their heart's content. Be rate everything and everybody. Just try it. Blue devils are such contrary imps that they never stay long where they are well treated. Their good mission is to torment. A hearty welcome sends them flying.—Elizabeth Towne in Nautilus.

New Russian Oil Region.

While Baku is known as the great oil producing province of Russia, and its wells have produced immense quantities, its reputation bids fair to be overshadowed by the new region, the Sallany Steppe. Sallany is about 125 miles distant from the city of Baku, on the shore of the Caspian sea, at the mouth of the Kura, the largest river in the Caucasus. Its position is a commanding one, both for supplying the European and eastern market. The petroleum deposits in the Sallany steppe have been known for years, but only recently has attention been attracted thereto. The possibilities are very great.

Forced to it. "Did you ask father if you might have me?" "Yes, darling." "What did he say?" "He said he would rather see you borne to your grave."

"Oh, pahaw, then we'll have to take it up with mother personally."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Ware That Wears

Guaranteed 15 Years

It doesn't pay to buy cheap ware that soon peels, cracks, leaks, tarnishes, rusts or wears out. Even at a lower cost such ware is the most expensive because it is dangerous to health and unreliable in service—doesn't last.

"1892" Pure Spun Aluminum Ware

is guaranteed for 15 years. There is practically no wear out to it and scientific investigation proves it the most sanitary cooking ware made. Particles can't chip off and cause chronic troubles nor spoil the food. Germs do not breed on its smooth surface and odors can not be absorbed by it.

You'll have better food and save trouble, time and fuel by using only "1892" Pure Spun Aluminum Ware. Look for trade mark on every piece.

NATIONAL GRANGE

Edited by Charles M. Gardner, Editor National Grange, Westfield, Mass.

JD GRANGE PLATFORM

State Master of Massachusetts Outlines One That Is Applicable to Other States.

In his annual address on the work of the year, State Master Charles M. Gardner of Massachusetts, at the annual state session in Worcester, outlined a "Grange Platform," which is as applicable to other states as to Massachusetts and which summarizes in a particularly concise and instructive way the grange attitude in today's affairs. It was as follows:

A GRANGE PLATFORM.

1. That we shall recognize the great present need of agriculture for encouragement and shall endeavor to meet that need by every means within the power of this great far-reaching organization; by legislation, by appropriation, by education, by cooperation; to the end that to the farmers themselves a greater realization of the dignity and honor of their calling may be brought, and to all other classes a new appreciation of how vitally essential to the very existence of life is a prosperous and growing agriculture.

2. That we shall recognize the right of the Grange to champion rural interests, anywhere and at any time, in state or national councils, and shall earnestly accept our distinct duty to so champion those interests; affording the leadership in constructive lines that the exigencies or the times continually demand, relying upon the constant support of every subordinate and Pomona Grange to sustain and advance that leadership.

3. That we shall recognize the supreme need of rural affairs today as a federation of rural town forces, for its own elevation and improvement; the power of church and school and home and grange; and the enlistment of all rural capacities, individual and collective, in one broad, energetic cooperative purpose for the betterment of all things in that particular locality. And that the grange shall supply leadership where leadership is lacking; or with equal cheerfulness shall furnish support for other leadership when support is the greater need.

4. That we shall recognize that the improvement of the rural community, the farmer and the farm, must come from within rather than from without; and that to develop latent or unused capacities is far better than to import them. In this respect the grange strikes the very keynote of the rural problem, in trying to do with the rural people rather than doing for them—while illustrations are furnished by the score of what rural communities can do for themselves, by themselves, when once aroused to a realization of their own capacities, by a capable and effective leadership.

5. That we shall recognize that the future of the town, the state and the nation depends upon its young people, and that to their best training and development we may well seriously address ourselves. Every effort made for them, every cent expended in their behalf, every thought for their welfare, every plan for their future a golden investment certain to yield dividends beyond human estimate, the grange in this respect alone possessing an opportunity of unparalleled magnitude.

6. That we shall recognize that the only organizations which have withstood the test of time are those which have rendered to their locality and generation a service larger than that measured by purely personal advantage to their own membership; and behold herein the grange avenue to permanence, through distinct and definite community service, along the practical lines so much in evidence the past few years and which must be further extended and intensified.

Hears From the Grange.

President Taft has heard from the farmers in no uncertain tone regarding his secretary of agriculture, James Wilson, through an expression of condemnation of said secretary unanimously passed by the great National Grange session at Columbus, O. Not only was the vote for the resolution unanimous, but its passage was accompanied by deafening applause from the entire gathering while it was promptly voted to send immediately copies of the resolution to Secretary Wilson and to President Taft. The resolution thus heartily adopted was as follows:

"Whereas, The grange is always openly and aggressively for temperance and looks with displeasure upon a suggestion that would place the farmers of the country in a position as endorsing the traffic in intoxicating beverages, therefore

"Resolved, That this organization therefore registers its disapproval of the action of our national secretary of agriculture, James Wilson, in consenting to act as honorary president of the National Brewers' congress; especially in view of the fact that it has been proved that but twenty-five brewers in the country, out of the many doing business, manufacture their product from barley, hops and malt; the greater bulk of the beer, ale and porter placed upon the market being compounded from sorghum, glucose, etc. which fact in itself is against the pure food laws, which this organization has always commended."

Welcome.
It was 3 o'clock on a cold and frosty morning, and the weary cyclist had still many miles to go.
Passing through a lonely village he saw a lighted window. Perhaps, he thought, he might be able to get something to eat and drink. So he knocked.
"Who's there," came a gruff voice from within.
"A traveler," the cyclist replied in clear tones.
Back like a shot came the answer: "Then travel."

Mistaken There.
The phenologist was exclaiming the bumps on Sambo's head.
"Curiously and acquisitiveness abnormally large."
Sambo rolled his eyeballs and showed two rows of white ivory.

Waiting for Nerves.
The nerves suffer from want of pure oxygen. They run like a work all through the skin and when they are overwrought the skin is apt to be dry and colorless. Working an excellent tonic for the nerves, gives them strength to control the self.
If one has means or leisure, there are plenty of other more enjoyable exercises. But few forms are beneficial as the regular daily walk of four or five miles for obtaining good complexion.

The Boy—The Girl.
He—Crime seems in a pretty way. Only last week some woman kidnaped a baby—photographs of it all the newspapers.
She—What did she take it for?
He—Nothing else to take, I suppose. I should have thought myself anybody who kidnaped a baby would stand an earthquake or borrow a stack of Asiatic cholera.
She—Babies are not so bad as that. The only thing I have really got against them is that if you let them long enough they grow up into human beings.

It is the common lot of man not to get an uncommon lot.

...down for girls who in their art. When the luck I have had and these things have been from the beginning, and how money has just poured in, why," she said ardently, "it just makes my heart ache to think of the girls who try and fall, who go on for a little while and have to give up. You can't tell"—she nodded to Ruggles, as though she were herself a matron of forty—"you can not tell what their temptations are or what comes up to make them go to pieces."

Ruggles listened with interest. "I haven't thought it all out yet, but so many come to me tired out and discouraged, and I think a nice home taken care of by a good creature like my Higgins, let us say, would be a perfect blessing to them. They could go there and rest and study and just think, and perhaps," she said slowly, as though while she spoke she saw a vision of a tired self, for whom there had been no rest home and no place of retreat, "perhaps a lot of them would pull through in a different way. Now today"—she broke her meditative tone short—"I got a letter from a hospital where a poor thing that laugh with the least possible merriment in it. "Oh, heavens, marry old Job Roach! So they say that, do they? I never heard that. I hear a lot, but I never heard that fairly tale." She put her hands to her cheeks, which had grown crimson. "That's not true!"

Dan swore at himself for his tactless stupidity.

Ruggles had heard both sides. She was adored by the poor, and as far as rumor knew, she spent thousands on the London papers, and the West-erner, who had never been given to reveling in scandals and to whom there was something wicked in speaking ill of a woman, no matter whom she might be, listened with embarrassment to tales he had been told in answer to his other questions; and turned with relief to the stories of Letty Lane's charity, and to the stories of her popularity and her success. They were more agreeable, but they couldn't make him forget the rest, and now as he looked at her face across the bouquet of orchids and ferns, it was with a sinking of heart, a great pity for her, and still a decided enmity. He disapproved of her down to the ground. He didn't let himself think how he felt, but it was for the boy. Ruggles was not a man of the world in any sense; he was simple and Puritan in his judgments, and his gentle nature and his big heart kept him from pharisaical and strenuous measures. He had been led in what he was doing tonight, by a diplomacy and a common sense that few men east of the Mississippi would have thought out under the circumstances.

"Tell Mr. Ruggles," he heard Dan say to her, "tell him—tell him!"
And she answered:
"I was telling Mr. Blair that, as he is so frightfully rich, I want him to give me some money."
Ruggles gasped, but answered quietly:
"Well, he's a great giver, Miss Lane."

Unkind.
"I must get out of this hot wind must take care of my complexion, you know."
"Well, I must go and look after my touring car."
"You have no car!"
"That is very unkind of you. I did not say a word when you claimed to have a complexion."

SYNOPSIS.

Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church, and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Ponlotowsky is a suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily; he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper.

"Yes," she accepted, "out of sight of Blairtown and everybody I ever knew, I went away the next day." She lifted her glass of champagne to her lips.

"Here's one thing I oughtn't to do," she said, "but I'm going to just the same. I'm going to do everything I want this evening. Remember, I let you drink six glasses of chocolate soda once." She drained her glass and her friends drank with her. "I like this soup awfully. What is it?"—just touching it with her spoon.

"Why," Ruggles hastened to tell her, "it ain't a party soup, it's Scotch broth. But somehow it sounded good on the bill of fare. I fixed the rest of the dinner up for you and Dan, but I let myself go on the soup, it's my favorite."

She did not eat it, however, although she said it was splendid and that she was crazy about it.

"Did you come East then?" Dan returned to what she had been saying.

"Yes, that week; went to Paris and all over the place."

She instantly fell into a sort of melancholy. It was easy to be seen that she did not want to talk about her past and yet that it fascinated her.

"Just think of it!" he exclaimed. "I never heard a word about you until I heard you sing the other night."

The actress laughed and told him that he had made up for lost time, and that he was a regular "sitter" now at the Gaiety.

Ruggles said, "He took me every night to see you dance until I balked, Miss Lane."

"Still, it's a perfectly great show, Mr. Ruggles, don't you think so? I like it better than any part I ever had. I am interested about it for the sake of the man who wrote it, too. It's his first opera; he's an invalid and has a wife and five kids to look after."

And Ruggles replied, "Oh, gracious! I feel better than ever, having gone ten times, although I wasn't very sore about it before! Ain't you going to eat anything?"

She only picked at her food, drinking what they poured in her glass, and every time she spoke to Dan a look of charming kindness crossed her face, an expression of good fellowship which Ruggles noted with interest.

"I wish you could have seen this same author today at the rehearsal of the play," Letty Lane went on. "He's too ill to walk and they had to carry him in a chair. We all went round to his apartments after the theater. He lives in three rooms with his whole family and he's had so many debts and so much trouble and such a poor contract that he hasn't made much out of 'Mandalay,' but I guess he will out of this new piece. He hugged and kissed me until I thought he would break my neck."

A Hold-Up

An Oppressive Trust.

Before the Coffee Roasters' Association, in session at Chicago on Thursday, Thomas J. Webb, of Chicago, charged that there is in existence a coffee combine which is "the most monstrous imposition in the history of human commerce."

There is very slight exaggeration about this statement. It comes very close to being literally true. There is a coffee combine in Brazil, from which country comes the bulk of the coffee used in the United States, which is backed by the government of Brazil and financed by it, which compels American consumers, as Mr. Webb said, "to pay famine prices for coffee when no famine exists."

The worst thing about this is that the consumers of the United States have been compelled to put up the money through which this combine, to further cinch them, has been made effective. There were formerly revenue duties imposed upon all coffee entering the United States. Those taxes were denounced as an imposition upon the people; as taxing the poor man's breakfast table, and the like. The taxes were removed. Immediately thereafter Brazil imposed an export duty upon coffee up to the full amount of the former customs taxes in this country. The revenue which formerly went into the treasury of the United States was diverted to the treasury of Brazil. The poor man's breakfast coffee continued to cost him the same old price.

But this was only the commencement. The "valorization" plan was evolved in Brazil. Through this plan the government, using the revenues derived from the export duties for the purposes, takes all of the surplus crop in a season of large yields and holds it off the market, thus keeping the supply down to the demands of the market and permitting the planters to receive a much higher price than they would otherwise have done.

The United States consumes more Brazilian coffee than does the rest of the world. We are the best customers of Brazil, and Brazil buys little from us. Now Brazil is promoting, financing and maintaining a trust designed, and working effectively for the purpose, to compel American consumers to pay an exorbitant price for the coffee they use. What is the remedy?—Seattle Post-Intelligencer—Nov. 19, 1911.

POSTUM

is a pure food-drink made of the field grains, with a pleasing flavour not unlike high grade Java.

A Big Package About 1 1/4 lbs. Costs 25 cts. At Grocers

Economy to one's purse is not the main reason for using Postum.

It is absolutely free from any harmful substance, such as "caffeine" (the drug in coffee), to which so much of the nervousness, biliousness and indigestion of today are due. Thousands of former coffee drinkers now use Postum because they know from experience the harm that coffee drinking causes.

Boil it according to directions (that's easy) and it will become clear to you why—

Economic Wintering of Breeding Sheep

By PROF. R. S. SHAW,
Dean of Agriculture, Michigan Agricultural College

Western Lambs Fed at Michigan Agricultural College—In Good Weather Sheep Like to Get Away From Their Pens, and Relish Their Rough Feed Better Out of Doors.

The economic wintering of the flock is dependent to some extent on their condition at the end of the grazing season and the time at which they have been bred to produce lambs in the spring. If breeding ewes come into the sheds at the beginning of winter thin and weak from scant pasturing or undue exposure or a combination of the two it will require larger quantities of more expensive feed to winter them than if they had been strong and in moderate flesh. When the ewes are bred to lamb before March 1 a long period must elapse before grass is ready during which an abundance of rich, succulent food must be provided if both ewe and lamb are to thrive.

One of the most common mistakes made is endeavoring to winter ewes with difficultly digested roughage alone, such as timothy hay, straw or cornstalks or some combination of these. Dry, unnutritious, fibrous material if fed alone continuously is likely to produce indigestion, constipation and other digestive disorders resulting in serious loss. The feeds named, while dangerous if used alone, are really useful when supplied along with some succulent factor.

Keep Your Oil Can Handy

A good farmer takes care to avoid friction in farm machinery. He listens for the tell-tale squeak and at once applies a good lubricating oil to the spot. He does it to save the unnecessary wear on the engine, reaper or mower as the case may be. A thoughtful housewife does the same thing for her sewing machine, sweeper or washing machine. If a door hinge or any mechanical device binds or squeaks, it should be oiled at once and thus save a wasteful expenditure of strength and nervous force. Do not use too much oil or apply it indiscriminately; use just enough and in the right place. It is much better not to wait until there is an audible disorder, but rather prevent any possible friction by getting ahead with the oil can.

This principle might be applied to the various relations of life in which friction is likely to occur. Be ready with your oil can. By this we mean a heart filled with the common "milk of human kindness," which upon the least occasion will pour forth in looks, words and acts. This is nowhere found to be more genuine than in the hearts of our farmer folk, but is there not a tendency to keep it "cooked up?" At this season of the year, even cast-iron countenances are wont to crack with a sympathetic smile, and rusted-in stoppers are drawn to allow a few drops of feeling an exit. Why wait for the Christmas-tide to apply our "friction-oil," or why real it up when the season has passed? The farmer family in their daily routine of life need the give and take of the cheerful smile and helpful word. The formal "good morning" salutation of the day starts machinery running smoothly, and "good night" falls like a benediction on the tired heart after the day's work is ended. Some men would as soon think of saying "good morning" and "thank you" to their favorite cow before and after extracting her generous supply of milk as to use the same terms in his family. His cow receives a gentle pat on the shoulder, his family nothing. He has not learned the value of a judicious use of expressed appreciation; nor has it occurred to him that the failure to give expression to his feeling of good will today lessens the desire and the ability to voice it tomorrow, and in time the feeling itself is reduced to a minimum. It has been said that a "man is known by the position he holds," but it is more true that he is known by the way he holds his position, be it a humble or an exalted one. There are people filling very small niches in life who are so uniformly cheerful and courteous that they not only avoid friction in their own small part of the complicated machinery of human affairs, but they influence others to apply the same "oil" in theirs. A few years ago there was in a large city in a neighboring state an old black man, "Uncle George," who drove his sleek horse and dry in gathering and removing the garbage from a certain neighborhood. A look was sufficient to bring of the old, battered hat and cause a smile to overspread his face, and that man or woman thus favored could do a better day's work because of "Uncle George's" smile. He was an automatic lubricating machine with the children, and they all loved him, rich and poor alike.

The value of the application of oil to cold steel ends with the saving of friction, the machine remains the same. Not so with the human machine. The person who is habitually cheerful and imparts cheer to others, stands more erect, breathes more deeply and keeps the elasticity and buoyancy of youth longer; and for this reason can do more and better work than the impassive, unresponsive, crusty individual. Women are perhaps more dependent upon words and looks than men. The consciousness of chores well done seems to be all the ordinary man needs to fit him for a day of plowing or mowing, but a "good morning, Mary" breakfast smells mighty good, and you look like a young girl in that frock," will help his wife to do a big washing with her other work and not get "blue." Unconsciously your "oil can," Mr. Man, and voice some of those good things you have been hiding away for so long.

Egg-Producing Experiment.
At the New York state experiment station an experiment was made to find what effect a ration containing more than an average amount of fat would have on laying hens. The hens in one pen received as much tallow as was readily eaten with a moderate grain ration. Another lot was fed a similar ration with linsed meal substituted for the tallow. The average egg production was somewhat in favor of the hens having the linsed meal. The greater difference observed was that the hens having the linsed meal molted nearly all at the same time, earlier in the season and more rapidly. Only a few of the hens which had been fed tallow had begun to molt at the close of this feeding trial, October 4, by which time several hens from the other pen were in new plumage.

Carrots and Parsnips.
With a covering of straw, leaves or barnyard litter, so the ground will not freeze too solid, carrots and parsnips for family use will be greatly enhanced in flavor and crispness by thus freezing.

Destroy Grasshopper Eggs.
Plow up the fallow fields, and destroy the grasshopper eggs. Burn the rubbish in the corners and along the fences, and expose them to the action of the frost.

ENGLISHMEN MAKE A NEW ENGLAND TOWN

Residents of Hingham Have Stepping Stone to Massachusetts Namesake—Presented by British Ambassador.

The old stepping stone which for 700 years stood in the public square at Hingham, England, was presented to Hingham, in this state, on behalf of the citizens of the English village by James Bryce, the English ambassador, the Springfield (Mass.) Republican says. The stone is to be used as a corner stone for a bell tower to commemorate the landing at Hingham 275 years ago of a band of pilgrims from Hingham, England.

Mr. Bryce said that he was glad to be privileged to express on behalf of the people of old Hingham in England, whence came the settlers of the new Hingham here, the sentiments with which they had sent this stone from their village green to the descendants of their common, Norfolk ancestors. Used as a mounting block for riders in the old country, it spoke of a time when riding on horseback was practically the only means of travel. It spoke not only of its origin, but of all the changes that had passed in 300 years and of the warm goodwill and affection which those of the old town felt for those of the new town after all that lapse of time.

Looking through the list of settlers who had crossed the sea to this Massachusetts town in 1633 to 1638, he found many of the best known New England names. Among them was one name especially interesting, because its bearer is believed to have been the ancestor of the greatest American of the nineteenth century, Abraham Lincoln. There was, however, something more and something deeper than a mere continuity of families. There was a continuity of institutions and traditions.

"The settlers," said Mr. Bryce, "who came from Norfolk to Massachusetts bay to escape the oppressive rule of King Charles I. and Archbishop Laud, brought with them ideas and beliefs and habits already deeply rooted among the Englishmen of East Anglia, one of the most truly Teutonic parts of England. The love of freedom in the state, the love of freedom in religion, the sense of duty to God and to conscience. It was for the sake of these things that they left their quiet Norfolk homes to face the stern winters of a new and almost unknown land, in whose forests lurked unknown dangers from wild beasts and wild men. And it was on the foundation of these principles that they built up their institutions here, set up their self-governing towns, legislated in the general court of their self-governing colony and in due time joined in framing the constitution of their state and of the federal republic.

"That the American people have grown to a greatness and prosperity undreamed of by the little band who came from Old Hingham nearly three centuries ago is due partly to the sturdy spirit of the old race, but largely also to the faith that has never faltered in the principles and belief which the early settlers of the Bay state brought with them, and in their loyalty to which they and their descendants have never faltered. The history of American freedom is a continuation of the history of English freedom and both countries have alike given an example to the world of what these principles can accomplish."

A "Typical" Russian Scene.
At our feet, moored to one of the supports of the bridge, was a flat barge, and on it a soldier, in a black tunic and high boots, was washing his linen himself; he must have climbed down the bridge to get there. There was not a sound in the air, except the splash made by the washing. And then from the plain, dusty, rutty road a whole line of flat carts creaked along, one in front of the other, five of the foremost being without drivers; all of these carts were full of sacks. Alongside of the sixth walked the owner, a bearded peasant, dressed in a brown leather and very dirty coat lined with sheepskin. And every now and then he influenced the march of the line of carts by shouting a word or two to the horses. Not long after this the line of carts crossed the bridge and turned into the town, and the creaking died away in the distance; the lazy stillness fell upon the place once more; and so great was that stillness that the whole landscape seemed like a colored slide of a magic lantern—Maurice Baring's in "The Russian People."

Remembering the Absent.
"I guess I'm getting into this social game all right," said Mr. Cumrox. "Be polite and courteous, yet formal. That's the idea."

"What have you been doing?" inquired his wife, sharply.

"You know them people who sent regrets because they couldn't come to our party?"

"Yes."

"Well, after I saw the party I sat down and sent 'em congratulations."

Proof.
"Our neighbor has a great deal of push about him, hasn't he?"

"I should say he has. He has enough to get through the crowd of women getting on the cars to secure one of the front seats."

On the other hand, it was very, very old-fashioned puppy, and the magistrate inflicted the usual fine. Shortly afterward the farmer was met by a friend who wanted to know how he had fared at the police court. "Nobbut middlin'," was the reply. "Did they fine you?" "Yes," responded the victim; "an' ang me if I can understand it! Last year an' the year afore that I told the same tale about the same dog, an' it wor alius good enough afore! Who's been tamperin' w' the law sin' last year?"

Eager to See.
"I have a poem here entitled 'Alone with Nature,'" said the sallow young man with the long hair and the frayed trousers. "It is a personal impression."

"Is it?" replied the editor of the Chicago Record-Herald, as he hastily glanced at the opening lines. "Have you ever been alone with nature?"

"I have, and, oh, it is glorious—glorious!"

"Here's a dime. Get on a trolley car and ride as far as you can. Go back to nature and spend another hour or two alone with her. You say you plucked the hazel blossoms by the stream. If you are able to find any place where you can do that let me know. I want to watch you while you do it."

Saw No Difference.
"People who seek books from the fiction section make some funny breaks," says a librarian of the Library of Congress. "I have made note of a member of these, but none of them amused me more than the request of a sour-looking spinster."

"She sternly demanded of me a copy of 'The Recollections of a Liar.' I told her that I didn't know it, but that I could give her 'The Recollections of a Married Man.'"

"That will do," said she acidly. "It's practically the same thing."—Lippincott's.

Had to Put in Human Interest.
An old negro preacher, says the Atlanta Constitution, gave as his text: "De tree is known by its fruit, an' it's de impossible to shake de possum down."

After the benediction an old brother said to him:

"I never knowed befo' dat sich a text wuz in de Bible."

"Well," admitted the preacher, "it ain't set down dat way. I throwed in de possum to hit de intelligence of my congregation."

A Fright.
"Lady," said Meandering Mike, "would you lend me a cake of soap?"

"Do you mean to tell me you want soap?"

"Yes'm. Me partner's got de hiccup an' I want to scare him."

"Even when they have nothing to do some people can't seem to do it gracefully."

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first specialist in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as you write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Free Buffalo, N. Y.

UNADILLA—William Tuttle, who has been living with Ed. Joclyn south of Unadilla village, for the past two years, met with a serious accident the latter part of the week. While bringing in a pail of water, he in some way slipped on the ice, breaking his leg just above the foot, the bone projecting through the skin.

MANCHESTER—The new Catholic church which had been under construction here during the past year is nearly finished and the Rev. Fr. Fisher has decided to have the dedication on Wednesday of this week. Bishop Kelly with a large number of the clergy attended. The bishop dedicated the building with their assistance. The church cost about $14,000 and will be free from debt.

ANN ARBOR—Deputy Sheriff O. Kelsey was committed temporarily to the psychopathic hospital here, Tuesday, where the physicians were rather hopeful of his mental recovery. Should he not respond to treatment he will be taken to Pontiac. For the last fourteen years Mr. Kelsey has been either under-sheriff, chief of police or deputy sheriff. He has been mentally deranged for some time, but Tuesday when he insisted in appearing on the streets thinly clad with an umbrella over his head and the thermometer below zero, his friends took charge of him.

BROOKLYN—A smooth magazine solicitor who signed himself "G. Wilson" left pink receipts with quite a number of Brooklynites about two months ago, but as yet the magazines ordered have not been sent. The fellow claimed to represent the Moore Publishing Co. He offered a combination of three magazines all for 50c per year, but if one or two of them did not suit he would obligingly substitute any of the standard periodicals at a price greatly below what they could be obtained for at any reputable agency.

SALINE—W. C. Webster of Detroit and S. P. Smith of Ypsilanti, representing Fairbanks, Moore & Co., of Detroit, were in town Monday looking over the conditions and met with the Council Monday evening to talk over the subject of water works.

THOSE SUDDEN TWINGES Bring Suffering to Many a Chelsea Reader. Pain is nature's signal of distress. A warning that must not be ignored. Those sharp twinges in the back—Those sudden, stab-like pains when stooping.

MANCHESTER—Tuesday evening Mrs. A. Hough put her four-year-old son and the baby to bed upstairs as usual and a short time after the twelve-year-old son heard a cry and ran upstairs to see what was the matter. He found the room dark and filled with smoke, but he rushed to the bed and grabbed the baby and carried it down stairs where the family saw that it was as black as a negro with smoke and smut. The father rushed upstairs and rescued the other child which was almost choked with smoke. The room was heated by an oil stove and they had used best quality of oil but the merchant happened to be out of that grade and sent an inferior oil which they think caused the stove to smoke and very nearly caused the death of two children.—Enterprise.

Resolutions. Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God in his wise and never erring providence to take out of this life our beloved sister, Mrs. Fred Hoppe, be it Resolved, that we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Salem German M. E. church at Francisco; she being the oldest member of our society, experience the loss of our sister deeply and humbly submit to the divine will.

BALD HEADS NOT WANTED Baldness is Too Generally Considered a Sign of Advanced Age. A bald-headed person does not have an equal chance with one blessed with a healthy head of hair, because baldness is too generally accepted as an indication of age.
