Rev. and Mrs. Blanchard will reside here until the latter part of March, when Mrs. Blanchard will leave for Springfield, Missouri, to pay a visit at the home of her parents.

Gone After The Owner.

Sheriff Stark left Ann Arbor Tuesday afternoon for Wellsville, New York, with papers from Governor Osborn for the extradition of James J. Beagle charged with complicity in the burning of the Manchester house at Manchester last November. The sheriff was joined in Detroit by State Fire Marshal Wolf.

Wm. Lewis, the last proprietor of the burned hotel is in the county jail at Ann Arbor. It was his confession substantiating the evidence of others, that enabled the prosecutor to draw up the extradition papers, which were signed by the Governor last week.

Beagle is a real estate and insurance agent at Wellsville and the owner of the burned hotel. After the fire Lewis disappeared for a time but later was arrested and the two affidavits furnished by him implicate Beagle and C. E. Young.

John Keelan.

John Keelan died at his home in Sylvan at 2 o'clock Thursday morning, February 15, 1912, aged 60 years.

Mr. Keelan was born in Chelsea and for several years followed railroad work but for the past 20 years or more has devoted his time to farming, and was a man who was highly respected in this community. He was a member of Chelsea Tent, No. 281, K. O. T. M. M., and of the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart. His death was caused from pneumonia and he had been ill but a few days.

He is survived by his wife, one son, three daughters and one sister. The funeral will be held from the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, next Saturday morning, Rev. Fr. Conside officiating.

White-Holmes Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Mabel White and Mr. Howard Holmes of this place will take place at the home of the brides' parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. White of Findlay, Ohio, at 7:30 o'clock this Thursday evening. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Dr. Lewis.

The couple will be attended by Miss Estella White, sister of the bride, and Mr. Chas. B. Franklin, of Denver, Colorado. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Holmes, parents of the groom, Mrs. D. C. McLaren and Miss Beryl McNamara of this place will be present.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home to their friends on McKinley street in the residence which the groom has just had built.

Pioneer Resident.

Uncle Tommy Speer died Tuesday, February 6, 1912, at his home in Somerset after an illness of several weeks. He was 87 years of age. Besides his wife and one son, Henry, he leaves many friends in Somerset and this township where for many years he was a familiar resident of Jefferson. Honest and upright as a citizen many will miss this kind old man who always had a word of cheer for all he met.—Brooklyn Exponent.

The deceased was a brother of Henry Speer of Chelsea and was a frequent visitor at the home of his relatives in this place.

Do Not Have to Pay.

Edward Graham, of Dimondale, who could not be forced to pay a $5 barbers' license, has made the fact known that the fee, which has been paid by barbers for the past 10 or 12 years, has been on a repealed law and though his shop is a small one, he is now a pretty big barber as far as notoriety goes.

Mrs. Thomas Shaw.

Mrs. Thomas Shaw, died at her home in Ypsilanti, Sunday morning, February 11, 1912, after a short illness. Mrs. Shaw was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hooker and was born in Chelsea. She was united in marriage with Dr. Thomas Shaw and for several years the couple made their home in this place, moving from here about 23 years ago to Ypsilanti where they have since resided. Mrs. Shaw was an active member of the Methodist Episcopal church and for a number of years taught the infant class of the Sunday school in the church of her home town.

She is survived by her husband, who is an invalid, one daughter, Miss Mary L., two sisters, Mrs. Higgins, of Detroit, and Miss Kathryn Hooker, of this place, and an aunt, Mrs. L. Babcock, of Chelsea. Funeral services were conducted in Ypsilanti Tuesday morning. The remains were brought here in the afternoon and taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Babcock, where services were held Wednesday afternoon being conducted by Prof. Samuel Laird, of Ypsilanti, a former classmate, assisted by Rev. J. W. Campbell of this place. The remains were placed in the vault at Oak Grove cemetery.

Foolish Fence Fuss.

The officers of school district number two of this township and Henry Musbach have gotten into the circuit court in a chancery suit over less than a quarter of an acre of land worth less than fifteen dollars. The school board claims to hold the land by adverse possession and Musbach by title deed.

While the time they get through, while probably neither Mr. Musbach or the district will have as much money as they now possess, they will all be thoroughly posted on the statutes relating to real estate from the time of Adam and Eve were disposed from the Garden and Eden up to the taking of the Panama Canal strip.

Where no principle is involved, nowadays people who get into court over fifteen dollar matters are considered jokes by courts, lawyers and disinterested bystanders.

Princess Theatre.

The Princess program for their Saturday matinee and night shows, is one that should appeal to all classes of patrons. It is headed by a great comedy picture entitled "A Gay Time in New York City," by the Lubin company. Artie takes a day off and goes to the city, and his boss does likewise. The boss meets Artie's mother, who is a pretty widow, and now Artie calls his boss "Pop" and takes a day off every time he wants it. It's a really funny picture. Then "Madge of the Mountains" a story of Kentucky and its distilleries, with beautiful scenery and great action, occupies second place on the program. One other picture and two songs complete the bill.

Instructive Institute.

Those who attended the Farmers' Institute held at the German M. E. church near Francisco voted it one of the best of its kind. W. F. Taylor, the state speaker, handled his subject in a very instructive and entertaining way. The chairman, H. J. Kruse, kept questions moving and the discussions were lively, an excellent program by local talent was carried out. The paper on spraying by N. W. Laird deserves especial mention it was instructive and was delivered in a very pleasing manner. At the evening session a very large crowd gathered to listen to the lecture given by the state speaker on "How to win out." That every one was well pleased was evinced by the enthusiastic cheering.

In Dying Condition.

Robert McCormick, a Detroit youth who murdered Henry C. Minor of Ypsilanti at the Ypsilanti-Michigan Central depot on January 7, 1910, is dying in Jackson prison. McCormick with two others attempted to rob a store in Ypsilanti and were discovered in the act by the police. They ran to the depot where they were stopped and in attempt to get away killed Minor and severely wounded M. J. Emmet of this place, who assisted in the capture of the young desperados. McCormick was shot in the throat at that time and never fully recovered.

The Trials of a Traveler.

"I am a traveling salesman" writes E. E. Young, E. Berkshire, Vt. For all stomach, liver or kidney troubles they are unequalled. Only 25 cents at L. P. Vogel's, E. H. Fenn Co., L. T. Freeman Co.

St. Paul's Sunday School to Entertain Winning Side.

On Washington's birthday, Thursday, February 22, the losing side of St. Paul's Sunday school will serve a banquet to the winning side at the town hall.

The school was divided into sections last fall and each side entered into a strife for attendance, the losing side to serve a banquet to their opponents.

To Supreme Court.

An appeal to the supreme court in the case of the Peerless Pattern company against the Gauntlet Dry Goods company of Milan is expected in a day or two.

The pattern company brought suit in chancery to compel the dry goods company to accept a $300 shipment under a five year exclusive contract. The dry goods company claims that it refused to accept because of the exclusive feature of the contract, and its attorneys, George Wright of Milan, and Andrew Sawyer of Ann Arbor, demurred to the complainant's bill. Judge Kinne overruled the demurrer and the defense is now preparing to take the case to the supreme court, alleging that the contract with the Peerless company is opposed to public policy and therefore should not be enforced.

Frank McIntyre in "Snobs."

Henry B. Harris offers as the attraction at the New Whitney Theatre Ann Arbor, Washington's Birthday, Thursday, February 22. Frank McIntyre starring in "Snobs" a satirical farce by George Bronson-Howard, which has found favor in both New York and Chicago, enjoying long runs in these cities respectively at the Hudson and Illinois Theatres. Although he has been a leading player for a many years and will very likely be recalled to any who have forgotten him as the Bob Blake in James Forbes comedy "The Traveling Salesman" in which he appeared for three seasons in every city in the United States. Previously Mr. McIntyre was the leading comedian in Mr. Robert Edson's companies appearing in "Strongheart," "Classmates" and other plays. In "Snobs" he will first be revealed as a humble milkman but before the play has progressed very far, he will have been created a Duke and will have entered society much to the enjoyment of the portion of the 400 he descends upon. Three very clever settings are required for the scenic investiture of "Snobs" and the cast includes such famous players as Myrtle Tannehill, Eva McDonald, Katherine Stewart, Marie Fitzgerald, Orlando Daly, John Cumberland, Roy Fairchild and Frank Brownlee.

Underwent Surgical Operation.

Mrs. J. B. Stanton, who has been quite ill the past three weeks, had a surgical operation performed at her home last Thursday morning by Dr. Gates of Ann Arbor assisted by Dr. S. Chapin and Mrs. Chas. Pullen of this place. Mrs. Stanton is now being cared for by a trained nurse from Ann Arbor, and while suffering a great deal of pain she is doing as well as possible.—Milan Leader. Mrs. Stanton is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Lake of this place and resided here for a number of years.

BOY A LAW UNTO HIMSELF

What He Knows and Thinks No Mature Person Can Understand—His Secrets Are His Own.

No man, young or old, knows what is in a boy's mind. Once he knew. Once he was familiar with the ritual, force of the fellowship, understood the degrees and administered them to others. Suddenly he was expelled and he has never been able to get back in again. His mind, ruthlessly deprived of the memory of passwords and grips and observances, seeks in vain to recall them. Though he beat for ever on the door it never will be opened to him. Nothing is more remote from the mind of the grown-up person than the apparently simple matter of the division of a boy's year.

Philosophers have studied and guessed, but they never have been able to explain why at one time boys play at marbles, at another time spin tops and at still another time fly kites, and why in every part of the world they abandon one pastime in a body and take up another. The boys know. They all know. But the rigorous freemasons won't tell. Are they bound by some frightful oath not to reveal the secrets of their caste? Do traitors and informers among them suffer dreadful penalties? Is it possible that the sad little boys who are sometimes seen gloomily trending their way through the winter streets, wearing low socks and French berets or the velvet clothes of little Lord Fauntleroy, with curls hanging down their lace collars—is it possible that these are the Morgans of this freemasonry, that this is their fate because they have communicated the secrets of their order? It must be true, for no mother in her right mind would so punish her offspring. He wears the uniform of the outcast. Every boy's hand is raised against him. But if it is a punishment, the punishment is excessive. No boy could if he would communicate these secrets to the mature.

It would be more difficult for a boy of ten to explain what he knows and thinks to a man of forty than it would be for a Tibetan priest to elucidate in his own language to a Wall street broker at a quick-lunch counter.—F. P. Dunne, in Metropolitan Magazine.

Why He Wanted a Pistol. A proprietor of a second hand store on Wells street told the following story yesterday:

A neatly dressed young man rushed into the store and demanded to see the boss. As the proprietor approached, the visitor exclaimed: "Well, don't swear at me. I am no school ma'am. Say, have you a pistol?"

"Well," said the owner of the store. "For what purpose do you want the revolver?"

"Don't feed me with such slang again," remarked the visitor. "It's my business to know what I need a pistol for. But, say mister, be a good friend of mine. You tell me what kind to get. You know, my mother-in-law is six feet tall, and weighs about 250 pounds."—Milwaukee Journal.

Silly Questions. While he was in Chicago recently Strickland W. Gilliam, author of "Off Agin, On Agin, Gone Agin—Finnegan," told a number of his best stories at a dinner.

"Over in Lelpic, O. last winter," he said, "I sat at the same table with the man who had charge of the lecture course there. During the conversation I remarked that I would like to have a glass of water on the stage that night while I was talking.

"To drink?" he asked.

"No, I make a high dive in the second act," I replied.—Chicago Tribune.

Saved by a Snake. Count Zinzendorf, the founder of the Moravians, visited North American in 1742, and for a short time labored as a missionary among the Shawanoe Indians. When he first came to them they received him with coldness and a plot was formed to assassinate him.

The count was sitting one evening in his wigwam upon a bundle of dry weeds which had been gathered for his bed. While he was writing by the light of a small fire a rattlesnake, warmed into activity, crawled over one of his legs.

Just then the murderous savages lifted the blanket that served for a door and looked in.

They stood motionless for some minutes watching the aged man, and then, gliding from the scene, fled into the forest. From that night the missionary found them friends and listeners.

GOV. OSBORN CALLS SPECIAL SESSION

LEGISLATURE TO MEET ON MONDAY, FEB. 26, TO ENACT PRIMARY.

OBJECT, EXPRESSION AS TO PRESIDENTIAL PREFERENCE.

The Call Mentions "Such Other Matters as May Be Submitted in the Future Messages."

Gov. Osborn is preparing a call for a special session of the legislature to meet Monday, Feb. 26, to take up the question of legislation for presidential preference primaries.

The governor's proclamation says: "To all whom it may concern: Greetings:

"This is an era in this country during which government by the people is becoming a reality. The tendency is to have the government function exercised on the part of the people as directly as possible.

"The best thought that is applied to the solution of problems involved by the exercise of government. It is equally the result of a demand on the part of the people that their actions shall be subject to no arbitrary or harassing scrutiny, and that the rights of those who are living in a subordinate capacity shall not be trespassed upon or in any manner endangered or selfishly directed by those in positions of strength and influence over them and above them.

"Any condition that makes for unfair competition in exercising the rights of citizenship causes both oppression and suppression. If this nation and this state, under God, are to be perpetually an land of liberty where worthy humanity of all races and all shades of color shall find asylum and the insurance of equal rights, there must be provided the fullest and fairest means of expression of those rights. This is at all and to be in any sense meaningful.

"A state of mind that relies upon all the people for the defense of our country in time of war, that it will sacrifice the lives of our citizens without regard to number or value in the service of the country, and in peace withhold from all of our citizens the most sacred privileges or trammels them with difficulty in their use, is intolerable.

"Because of the growing appreciation of this sentiment the legislatures in Michigan and legislatures in other states have improved and are still improving the methods of election in Michigan at this moment there exist an extraordinary condition and occasion which have never been paralleled.

"Thousands of voters in both of the great political parties, and many in parties of less magnitude as well, demand an opportunity to vote directly upon presidential candidates.

"If this which is the right, is withheld at this time there can be no excuse of it for four more years, even if obtained by legislation in regular session during that time.

"To obtain this privilege through a majority of the citizens of Michigan, immediately to have a presidential preference primary law, I have decided to call the legislature in a special session. Acting under the authority of section 7, article 6, of the constitution of the state of Michigan, I hereby call the legislature of the state of Michigan to meet in extraordinary session on Monday, the twenty-sixth day of February, A. D. 1912, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of acting a presidential preference primary law, and the consideration of such other matters as shall be submitted by special message."

A new topic for the special session came up. It is believed in some quarters that the governor will bring forward a bill providing for direct primary nomination of all state officers.

Sue Defunct Bank Officials. Suits have been started in the circuit court at Battle Creek, by Attorney E. R. Loud for Receiver Frank L. Irwin, of the defunct Albion National bank, against the embezzling cashier, H. M. Dearing, who is at present awaiting sentence in the Wayne county jail, at Detroit, for forgeries amounting to nearly $300,000, and against Dr. Willoughby O'Donoghue, the president of the bankrupt bank.

The suit against the latter is to realize on $4,500 in promissory notes, given by the former president and placed in the bank. That against H. M. Dearing is an attachment against property said to be worth $10,000, for him to the bank. The latter suit was instituted because it had been learned that Dearing, through a Detroit attorney, had assigned some of his property to a relative. The writ of attachment was therefore issued at once.

Attorney Loud says there will be other suits started but as far as he knows they will be civil suits, not criminal. The suits just started are irrelevant to those which will be instituted against the former cashier and president, to realize on the amount of stock which they held in the bankrupt institution, providing they do not pay.

Hope college's debating team, to meet Olivet and Alma, is composed of Harry Hoff, Gerrit De Motts and Anthony Ludens.

Attorney General Kuhn has taken no action in the appeal of Saginaw of the Pere-Marquette to enable the road to better its service.

The Owosso & Corunna electric railway has been sold to the Lansing Northeastern Railway Co. Both lines will be sold shortly to the M. U. R., it is said.

GOLD RECORDS SHATTERED

Baldwin, With 48 Degrees Below Zero, Has a Close Second in Ionia With 41 Below.

Cold records of half a century were shattered Friday night and Saturday morning all over Michigan. Baldwin thermometers Saturday morning registered 48 degrees below zero; Marietta, 33; Fire Lake, Reed City, Lathrop, 32; Kalamazoo, 32 from 4 a. m. to noon; Saginaw, 32 at 5 a. m., 22 at 7 a. m., breaking records of 20 years; Kalkaska, Sherman, 30 below; Mantion, 29; Pontiac, 28—raining hundreds of peach and plum trees; Flint, 26—beating records by 3 degrees and imperiling city water mains; Eaton Rapids, 25—lowest in 40 years; Howell, 30—coldest ever known there; Saginaw, 32 at 5 a. m.; Cadillac, Lake City, 26 below; Marion, Thompsonville, 25; Owosso, 30; Allegan, 29; Petoskey, 24; Coldwater, 20; Ionia, 41; Traverse City, 32; Jackson, 28; Grand Rapids, 16; Holland, 22; Grandville, 24; Port Huron, 25—coldest since 1876; Bay City, 22; Muskegon, 22—one place; Atlas, Genesee county, 34; 30 places in Shiawassee, Leapeer, Oakland, Livingston, Tuscola, Saginaw and Genesee counties, 29 to 30 degrees below zero.

The record shows impartial distribution of the blanket of chill. Damages and troubles were much the same everywhere in the state. In Flint, Muskegon, Bay City, Port Huron, Jackson, Grand Rapids and other cities more waterpipes burst than all available plumbers can repair in a week—and these are the minor items. Flint ground is frozen to a depth of four feet and soon frost must reach another foot only avertable by speedy arrival of moderate temperatures. Other cities are in as perilous plight.

Fuel shortage worries every town of consequence in Michigan to a greater or lesser degree. In some towns it is hanging near the edge of calamity to industry. In some places fuel supplies actually are the vanishing point, making the cold winter of 1912 sure of its mark in history in Michigan.

STATE BRIEFS.

There are now more than 100 homeless people in the Huron county poorhouse, breaking all previous records. Forty-five cents a dozen is the price charged for eggs in Saginaw, the highest since the war, according to the oldest citizens.

Unless relief comes soon a score or more factories in Saginaw and in the vicinity of Saginaw will have to close down for lack of fuel.

Urgent appeals for coal continue to come into the offices of the railway companies. All tell of the low ebb the fuel supply of Michigan cities has reached.

At a meeting of the Gull Lake club it was decided to build a $15,000 club house just as soon as the weather permits. The club was but recently organized.

The regents of the U. of M. have decided to raise instead of remodel the old medical building those who donated funds for the latter purpose are receiving their money back.

Prof. H. C. Anderson and H. E. Riggs of the engineering department of the U. of M. have been employed by the city of Newark, Ohio, to make a valuation of the gas property of that city.

William Wepley, a Grand Trunk engineer, living in Battle Creek, was scalded to death in his cab at Chicago, when a valve blew out. Wepley's fireman dragged him from the spot and stopped the train.

George Shannon, 20, was seriously burned in Carland when he replenished a fire by pouring gasoline on it. His clothes caught fire, but the flames were extinguished by Lee Head, who wrapped a coat about the man.

The announcement of the officials of the Saginaw & Southern Interurban Co. that they are to build a viaduct under the P. M. tracks and Saginaw is to have another interurban line by a different route to Flint.

Announcement has been made that another gift of $1,000 has been made to the Kalamazoo Y. M. C. A. The giver refused to let his name be known. A few days ago Charles B. Hays gave a check of $1,000 to the association.

Five hundred attended the banquet given by the Saginaw board of trade in commemoration of Lincoln's birthday. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of New York county delivered the principal address of the evening, taking as his subject: "Statesmanship of Lincoln."

The Co-operative Association of farmers has secured a hearing before the state railroad commission relative to the high telephone rates in force in Shiawassee county. The association was formed when the company raised the rate on its farm lines from $12 to $15 per year.

High rollers of the Flying Rollers of Benton Harbor have just been advised by L. L. Wright, superintendent of public instruction, that they have a right to conduct a school providing they teach all of the subjects required. Efforts have been made to force the Flying Rollers to send their children to district schools.

Edward J. Robinson, recently appointed deputy U. S. marshal for the upper peninsula district, has arrived in Marquette from Grand Rapids, to succeed Joseph Willis, of Laurium. Robinson is a nephew of U. S. Marshal Nicholas Whalen, of the western district of Michigan.

ASK RELIEF FROM PERE MARQUETTE

SAGINAW BOARD OF TRADE ASKS ATTY-GEN. KUHN TO END PRESENT INTOLERABLE CONDITIONS.

BUSINESS IS BEING SERIOUSLY DAMAGED BY POOR SERVICE.

Alleged That State is Deprived of Proper Service for Benefit of High Financiers of New York City.

Alleging that the Pere Marquette railroad is hopelessly in debt, that its earnings are swallowed up in payment of enormous interest, which goes to high financiers instead of into the road, and that the company is unable to serve properly the transportation needs of the state of Michigan, the Saginaw board of trade asks attorney-general Franz C. Kuhn to take action under the laws and rescue the property.

It is said that the action is without parallel in the state. The board of trade really has in mind the seizure of the road by the state, through insolvency proceedings or some other action which will give the state full control over its affairs.

The complaint of Saginaw is backed by financial, manufacturing and commercial interests amounting to many millions of dollars. The Saginaw district wants relief from conditions which are said to be intolerable, and which are seriously handicapping business and advancement in scores of other cities and towns. The board looks to other sources in Michigan to help wrest the grip of the road from Wall street.

It is claimed that in depriving the state of proper service the harvest goes to the big guns of the New York financial world. The petition says that the company is insolvent, that its liabilities aggregate $125,000,000, while the assessed valuation is $30,000,000 and the funded debt has increased within the last four years until it reaches $20,000,000. This has come about, it is claimed, since J. P. Morgan & Co. secured control of the road, and that a crisis is due seems certain. It is asserted that there will be a $1,500,000 deficit for the current year and that there are $5,000,000 of bonds falling due July 1 to J. P. Morgan to meet which no provision has been made.

Engine failures, freight shortage, traffic blockades, congestion, etc., have come to be looked upon by the management and patrons as matters of course.

Lumber "Trust" Raises Defense Fund. A determination to fight until cleared of all suspicion of illegal acts, as charged in the recent federal grand jury indictments of members and officers of various lumber dealers' associations of this country, was the keynote of the opening session of the Retail Lumber Dealers' association in Lansing. About 300 dealers and traveling salesmen were present at the initial meeting and the Michigan balance, $1450, of the general defense fund of $150,000, was raised without difficulty. Officers of the association were re-elected as follows: President, F. S. Mickey, Detroit; vice-president, Irwin Earle, Detroit; secretary-treasurer, H. M. Jessop, Detroit.

U. S. TROOPS IN HONDURAS

Marines Land to Protect Property of Americans.

There has been a clash between United States and Honduras authorities over enforcement of a government decree directing representatives of W. S. Valentine to surrender to government authorities the railroad wharf and other properties held under lease by the Valentine syndicate. Seventy-five marines from the U. S. submarine Petrel landed and seized the wharf and railroad. Honduran troops were then ordered to stop all trains. The governor had filed a protest.

Retailers Unite for Protection. Several different lines of trade in Michigan formed the Michigan Federation of Retail Merchants, hoping to unite all state associations of retailers in the state into a strong, non-partisan political organization.

Arthur L. Holmes, of Detroit, father of the idea, was present and urged that the merchants, like railroad men and others, ought to have the right to meet to discuss the cost of running their business, and to arrange for a fair margin of profit. Mr. Holmes is one of the lumbermen recently indicted in the federal court in Detroit under the Sherman anti-trust law, which he declared should be amended so that retailers should not be prosecuted under it.

Officers of the Michigan Federation were elected as follows: President, E. S. Roe, Buchanan; vice-presidents, G. V. Rowe, Detroit; secretary-treasurer, F. M. Whitbeck, Lansing. These, with Arthur L. Holmes, of Detroit, will draw up a constitution.

Peach Buds Killed by Cold. The committee appointed by the local fruit grocers' association to examine the orchards in the central section of the state, finds, after an investigation of two weeks, during which many orchards in Eaton, Ingham, Jackson, Clinton and Barry counties have been visited, that the peach buds have been almost completely destroyed by the extreme cold weather. Plums, and all varieties of small fruits have shared practically the same fate. The apple orchards visited showed that only small damage has been done to buds of most varieties but some of the less hardy ones have suffered to a considerable extent.

MANCHUS ABDICATE; RECOGNIZE REPUBLIC

MANCHU DYNASTY COMES TO AN END AFTER CENTURIES RULE OF CHINA.

REBELS AND ROYALISTS REACH AN AGREEMENT.

Trouble Expected to Terminate Quickly and Chinese Will Once More Govern China.

After three centuries of absolute rule the Manchu dynasty yielded up its power and abdicated the throne of China in favor of a representative form of government.

This was proclaimed in three simultaneous edicts, the first announcing abdication, the second declaring that the throne accepted the republic, while the third approved all the conditions agreed upon by Premier Yuan-Shi-Kai and the republicans.

This edict approving of all the conditions agreed upon between Yuan-Shi-Kai and the republican representatives created even much astonishment. It has been expected that the Manchus would demand conditions which would safeguard many of their privileges, but according to the proclamation, the surrender is unconditional.

The third edict informed the viceroys and provincial governors of the retirement of the throne from political power and instructed them to continue doing their duty and to preserve peace throughout the land.

It declared that the step taken by the throne was in order to meet the wishes of the people.

The Mongolian princes who have been leaders in the anti-abdication agitation at the court have called to Dr. Sun Yat Sen, insisting that unless Yuan-Shi-Kai gets the presidency they will consider themselves entitled to take further measures against the establishment of the republic.

Yuan, known as the "strong man of China," who was once dismissed by the throne, was frantically appealed to take the premiership when the revolution against the throne was started by Dr. Sun and his followers.

He has stood between the throne and the rebels in the present crisis as a buffer and has succeeded in bringing the two sides together after months of dickerings. By the terms of the Manchus are to retain their emphy titles and may be voted heavy pensions, but the government is to be in the hands of the people, the majority of whom are Chinese instead of Manchus, the descendants of the tartars, who came down from the north centuries ago, conquered the Chinese and have been governing them since.

Ask T. R. to Run Again. A memorial bearing the signatures of eight state executives is being carried by special delivery to Col. Theodore Roosevelt at his home in Oyster Bay. The document recites the history of the progressive Republican movement and of the industrial and political difficulties which have stricken the country in the last three years and declares that in the opinion of the signers the desire of the nation is that the former president stand for re-election. The colonel is petitioned to tell the country whether or not he will accept the urgings of his friends and admirers and be a candidate for the presidency, or if he does not wish to appear as a seeker for the office, to make some statement calculated to encourage his supporters and advise them they are not working in vain.

Yaqul Indians On the Warpath. Dispatches from the state of Sonora confirm reports of an uprising of 3,000 Yaqul Indians near Guaymas, Mexico. The Indians, infuriated because President Madero has failed, as they say, to keep his promises, have secured modern rifles, plenty of ammunition and good horses, and have gone on a rampage. A section gang employed on the Southern Pacific, of Mexico, was surprised and captured by the Indians. With the exception of the foreman, all were tortured to death. The foreman escaped and made his way to Euhaling. Gen. Viljoen is mustering troops to take the field against the Yaquls. Papago and Pima Indians, friendly to Madero, are being enlisted to fight for the government.

HE WAS SOMEWHAT REVERENT

Attendant at Spiritualistic Seance Considered Himself Aggrieved and Said So.

Charles M. Cross of Indianapolis thinks variety adds spice to life, and went to a spiritualistic seance. It was a lively affair with sparkling voices sounding through tambourines playing mysteriously in mid air, and cold, clammy hands partially materialized men and women making free in the dusky room with those who were in the flesh. In the midst of it something dealt Mr. Cross a vicious whack on the nose and he called for lights in a tone not to be disobeyed. With the light the details as disclosed was all natural and human again. The most human member of it was Mr. Cross, with a woody nose, spilling for a fight and a "madder" because he did not know whom to fight.

"Who did that?" he demanded of the medium.

The medium said the gay spirits were that of St. Peter.

But even this explanation did not satisfy Mr. Cross.

"Well, all I ask of St. Peter," he said, "is to materialize for just one minute and if I don't make a vacancy for a new gatekeeper I won't ask to get in."—Indianapolis News.

Washington's Real Name

BY PROF. BERNARD J. CIGRAND

THE real name of the first president of the United States was not Washington. His baptismal name was George, and he was born February 22 in the year 1732. The old colony of Virginia was his birthplace, but the true name of his male ancestors was not Washington. This may seem a sweeping statement in the light of generally accepted history, but careful research has established beyond doubt that the ancient founder of the family from which came the Father of our Country was named William De Herburn. The key to this apparent paradox lies in the fact that, in common with many noblemen and monarchs of Europe, the first president possessed an estate name and a real, or family name, the latter being known as the patronymic, or paternal name.

The first Washingtons were of French, and not English, origin, and were numbered among the powerful knights of the northern portion of France. When the Duke of Normandy conceived the ambition of becoming King of England he called to his aid the Catholics of France, and among those who responded to his appeal was an ancestor of George Washington. The duke gathered his soldiers about him and announced that by right and promise he deserved and intended to be the new King of England. His spirited address had the desired effect and the knights and their vassals thronged to the standard until there was soon gathered under the leadership of William, Duke of Normandy, the greatest army France had ever mustered, ready for the field and thirsting for the glories of conquest. Among the many banners thrown to the breeze appeared the shield of the multi-great-grandfather of our own George Washington. His name was William de Herburn. The 60,000 followers of the duke set sail in 3,000 vessels of war for the English coast and landed without opposition, because of the English King Harold's conflict with the Norwegians in another part of his invaded domains. On October 14, 1066, the rival armies met, and on the field of Hastings took place one of the most terrific battles in the history well as an accurate record of the biographical and heraldic character of the new or French proprietors. And in this last seemingly unnecessary entry appears the statement that the brave, ever reliable Knight, Sir William De Herburn, Sir William De Herburn, for military service, to William I, be granted with feudal rights and power the extensive estate known as Wessyngton, and henceforth said Sir Knight shall be known as Sir William de Wessyngton; but he shall still be a vassal of the bishop and his heraldic denomination shall continue to be, Arms: Argent, two bars gules (red); in chief, three mullets of the second. Crest: A raven with wings endorsed proper, issuing out of a ducal coronet or (gold)."

As a further demonstration of the importance of the De Herburns, or "Wessyngtons," history furnishes the information that the estate in question was under the command of the Bishop of Durham, and situated in a locality exposed to the attack of the Scots of northern England. On this border there was constant warfare, and the king naturally selected the bravest and most warlike of his adherents to hold lands in the disputed district. For nine years this country between Durham and York was laid waste, and for ten years it was practically a desert, no man having the courage to attempt cultivation of the blasted fields or inhabit the ruined towns. One hundred thousand people died in this debatable strip of land, and there, where active hostilities ever reigned, the De Herburns, or Wessyngtons, were stationed. This record of the great family is absolutely authentic in every detail, having been proved by minute research and personal visits to the locality where its members were lords of the soil—a task which embraced fifteen years of heraldic investigation.

Later the estate known as Wessyngton was spelled and entered officially as Wessington, the proprietors assuming the same name. Then it was recorded as Washington, and a natural change of the owner's name in accordance with that of his land followed. The proprietors became known as William, John, Lawrence, Robert and Nicholas De Washington. Finally the heraldic shields and French prefix of "De" was dropped and the modern spelling of WASHINGTON prevailed.

The Washingtons were very prominent in the military as well as the civic phases of English life. In the days of Henry VIII, when that monarch was in conflict with the pope of Rome, Lawrence Washington sided with the king, and the latter confiscated the monasteries, convents and churches of the Roman Catholic church, giving to this Washington the Sulgrave estate, where for over a century the Washington family ruled supreme. A decline in their fortunes then appears to have taken place, for in 1620, the year the Pilgrims set sail for America, the Washingtons were practically driven from the Sulgrave estate to take up residence at Brighton with minor manors and holdings. The loss of rich meadows and harvest fields was in a measure counteracted by the marriage of a Sir William Washington to a sister of George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham.

This union brought about new alliances and affiliations which made Washingtons possible in America, and ultimately led to the rearing of George Washington to be the military leader of the colonies and eventually our first chief executive.

This marriage brought the Washington family into direct domestic social and court relationship with the prominent and powerful favorites of the then reigning monarch, and political circumstance destined the Washingtons to espouse the cause of the king, rather than the ideal of the Commons—Oliver Cromwell. The Washingtons performed heroic services for the king, but when Cromwell proved victorious and seized the reins of government, they found England to be no longer a safe dwelling place. Prison sentences, exile and death was the unhappy lot of the royalists, or King's Cavaliers; and rather than bow to one whom they looked upon as a usurper, many of the Washingtons fled to foreign lands. John and Lawrence, brothers, came to Virginia, the former being the grandfather of George Washington, the first president of the United States.

Among the distinguished Washingtons who escaped persecution by flight from England was one whose identity genealogists long sought vainly to verify—the brother of General George Washington's great grandfather. This Washington's name was James, and he fled to Rotterdam, Holland, where in 1650 he wedded Clara Vander Lanen, daughter of the mayor of the port.

From this union was derived the present Dutch and German Washingtons—a sturdy folk who adapted themselves to these governments under which they have held and are at present holding official positions of high station. One of these German Washingtons offered his services in a military capacity to the United States consul at Frankfurt-on-Main in 1862. He expressed himself as anxious to enlist in the Union army, and presented the consul with a verified genealogical chart prepared from the records of the Dutch government. This gentleman was Baron de Washington. The statement has been certified by William W. Murphy, consul at that point, and attested by the Honorable Frederick Kapp, of New York City, who was visiting in Germany and wrote a letter in which the circumstances were fully described.

The original correspondence and data in my possession relating to the Dutch and German Washingtons prove the baron to have been a direct lineal descendant of the James Washington who landed in Holland in 1650. He married a Bavarian lady and held a certificate of honorable discharge showing that he had been a lieutenant in the Bavarian army. To obtain a commission as officer in the Federal army was his wish, but because of the inability of our consul to assure him of this honor, and possibly because he deemed that sufficient respect had not been shown to one of such noted ancestry, he did not emigrate to the United States. However, before the interview was closed, he deposited with the American consul a certified genealogical chart on which the following appears:

"Baron de Washington is a direct descendant of the ancient and honorable Washington family of England, the earliest emigrant to Holland being James Washington, one of the four brothers of Stuart sympathizers (Charles I). James came to Holland in 1650, his two brothers emigrated to Virginia, and the third brother remained in England, where he was serving as a divine."

This remarkable bit of genealogical history gives the earliest and most authentic record of the Dutch and German Washingtons, of which there are many and of whom the church records abound in entries of marriages, births and deaths. Further investigation brings to light the fact that this earliest Dutch emigrant, James, was married in the English church of Rotterdam, all of which tends to corroborate that he was of English training. Baron de Washington was born in 1833, and his brother Max married the Duchess of Oldenburg and in this way became connected with one of the oldest sovereign families of Europe. The House of Oldenburg is the prime branch of the Holstein-Gottorp stock, which has given emperors to Russia and Kings to Denmark, and is prominently related to the present King of England, George V. And Jacob Washington was first lieutenant of the Dutch navy in 1845, this branch being related to the wealthy banking firm of Cornelius L. Keunrauer of The Hague. Upwards of seventy-five Washingtons are numbered among the inhabitants of Holland and Bavaria. Hence the Washingtons, in the farthest genealogical tracings, hail from France. We next find them in England and then in Holland and Bavaria.

Regarding the Washingtonian coat-of-arms some odd discoveries have also come to light. Quite contrary to our American belief the Washington shield does not contain "stars and stripes," notwithstanding that more than a thousand books and as many more published articles so proclaim it. The facts are that the Washington shield contains "bars and mullets" (spurs of the Knight's boots). The earliest reference which I have been able to find which announces the Washington shield blazoned with stars and stripes, relates to a public banquet at Baltimore, Maryland, in 1851, where the ideas of an English poet—Martin Tupper by name—were voiced, proclaiming that the American flag, with its heraldic notions, was borrowed from the Washington shield, which possessed stars and stripes. Ever since this banquet American authors and orators have, without further investigation, accepted the statement as correct. The English poet was misled by his fervid fancy, for the Herald's College at London, the highest authority on British heraldry, writes as follows: "A Washington shield with stars and stripes (pales) has never been of record." It is altogether probable that Tupper, as well as others, was deceived by the shape of the "mulletts." These spurs, as worn by the knights of old, were round in form, resembling modern cog-wheels somewhat, and their bristling points possibly suggested the "stars" of which Tupper spoke.

Hundreds of writers have also announced that the crest on General George Washington's coat-of-arms is an eagle, and that this family emblem was the foundation of the suggestion that the eagle be the emblem of the American republic. While the crest may appear like an eagle, the facts are that the heraldic grant of arms to this Washington branch present a raven issuing from a golden ducal crown, the crest of the family. Furthermore, Washington himself clearly shows by correspondence with the Herald's office at London that it was not an eagle, and the letter is dated ten years after the eagle had become the emblem of the republic (June 20, 1782). His letter was sent from Philadelphia May 2, 1782, the third year of his presidency, and the package was sealed with the Washington family arms as is indicated in a letter which reads:

"The arms enclosed in your letter are the same that are held by the family here; though I have also seen, and have used, as you may perceive by the seal to this packet, a flying griffin for the crest."

The Washington crest, "a raven issuing from a ducal coronet, gold," was evidently given because of the sportsmanship of the early English Washingtons. In fact the crow, falcon and hawk have been for more than four hundred years the emblem of sport. The pastime of hawking was engaged in only by the wealthy and the Washingtons were noted for their love of hunting and sporting. Benson J. Lossing lent some color to the foregoing conclusion when he wrote of the English Washingtons:

"For more than two hundred years the De Wessyngtons, or Washingtons, were conspiring after their kind (robber knights) fighting, hawking, carousing and gaming."

This grant of the raven was in 1500; at about the same time that hawking was at its height as a sport, for at about the same period was attempted in Spain the son of Columbus attempted to prove that his father was of aristocratic and also of heraldic family in that "he was of a people who kept their own hawks." This alone, in those days, stamped the man as a falconer, as only people of high social standing were permitted by license to engage in that enjoyment; hence a raven, a falcon, a crow or a hawk on the shield or crest indicated prominence. This sporty and hunting disposition of the Washingtons was distinctly manifested in the Washingtons of Virginia, of which our first president also gave liberal expression.

There are five distinct Washington shields, but in the heraldic records they are pronounced of the same origin, as follows:

A silver (argent) shield upon which are two red (gules) bars; in the top (chief) three red mullets (spurs of knights' boots).

A red (gules) shield with a single white (silver) bar charged with three mullets.

A red shield with a white bar upon which are three cinquefoiles, also red.

A red shield with two bars white, in chief three martlets.

A shield of four bars, white and red, three mullets.

A shield in green, a lion rampant in white, within a border gobonated white and blue.

These constituted the heraldic arms of all Washington people as recorded in the English College of Heralds. Washington was fond of genealogical investigations, and in the College of Heralds can be seen a score or more of pages he wrote at various times in his eager search after family arms and crests. He was proud of his heraldic ancestors, and this family estimate is well expressed in the frequency with which he blazoned the Washington shields upon his choice tokens and valuables.

Many such instances may be noted in his heraldic watch charms, his several personal seals; the doors of his carriage; the porcelain of his dinner set; the silver ware of his liquor service; the fireplace and the mirrors; the picture frames and his library walls; his bookplate and his saddle, and practically everything upon which a family signature or shield might be engraved, painted or printed.

"Very well," replied Lee. "It will be all right this time. What's your cousin's name?"

"Say," said Lee, grabbing him by the arm, "come out here in the middle of the street and yell 'Cohen.' You'll probably be able to find him in the crowd that answers."

Being anxious as to his prospects in one of the early attempts to enter parliament, Herbert Samuel consulted his agent, who said the chances were not rosy, because he was a "carpetbagger."

Mr. Samuel thereupon promised to live in the division if he were successful, and bills were immediately posted that "if Herbert Samuel is returned next Tuesday he will come to live here."

Some of the other side, however, posted one of these bills on a pigsty. Mr. Samuel did not win the election.—London Telegraph.

SERIAL STORY

THE GIRL FROM HIS TOWN

By MARIE VAN VORST

SYNOPSIS.

Blair, the 22-year-old son of the million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Me., is a guest at the English manor of Lady Galore. Dan's father had been sent to the United States and the young man had returned to the manor to help his father in the business. He meets Lily, Duchess of Devonshire, a beautiful widow, who is engaged to be married to a man who is a rival of his father's.

"Why, the old duffer is as happy as a house afire," said the boy. "Not to worry, I've done the whole thing up as well as I know how. I've got him into that health resort you spoke of, and the girl seems to have got a regular education vice! She wants to study something, so she's going to school."

"On talking," the actress invited indignantly. "I love to hear you talk that way. Dan visits Lily, for the time being, and she is engaged to the duchess."

"I didn't think you'd act like this to a boy you'd known all your life."

delay, an English ballad and something or other, I don't know what now, and I expect you don't realize how cheaply you are getting them." She laughed, and began to hum a familiar air. "I wish you would sing just one song for me."

"For another thousand?" she asked, lifting her eyebrows. "What song is it?"

And as Dan hesitated, as if unwilling to give form to words that were so full of spell to him, she said delicately: "Why, can you see a London drawing-room listening to me sing Presbyterian hymn tune? Without lifting her head from the pillow she began in a charming undertone, her gray eyes fixed on his:

"From Greenland's icy mountains, From India's coral strands, Where Africa's sunny fountains Roll down their golden sands."

Blair, near her, turned pale. There rose in him the same feeling that she had stirred years ago in the little church, and at the same time others. He had lost his father since then, and he thought of him now, but that big, sad emotion was not the one that swayed him.

"Please stop," he pleaded; "don't go on. Say, there's something in that hymn that hurts."

he could only offer her this politeness from the woman he was going to marry. "I never sing out of the theater." Her profile was to him and she looked steadily across the room. "It's a perfect fight to get the manager to consent."

Blair interrupted and said: "Oh, I'll see him; I'll make it all right."

"Please don't," she said briskly, "it's purely a business affair. How much will she pay?"

Dan was rather shocked. "Anything you like."

And her bad humor faded at his tone, and she smiled at him. "Well, I'll tell Roach that. I guess I'll make my singing a sure thing."

She changed her position and drew a long sigh as though she were very tired, leaned her blond head with its soft disorder back on the pillow, put both her folded hands under her cheek and turned her face toward Dan. The most delicate coral-like color began to mount her cheeks, and her gray eyes regained their light.

"Will two thousand dollars be too much to ask?" she said gently.

If she had said two million to the young fellow who had not yet begun to spend his fortune, which as far as he was concerned was nothing but a name, it would not have been too much to him; not too much to have given to this small white creature with her lovely flushed face, and her glorious hair.

"Whatever is your price, Miss Lane, goes."

"I'll sing three songs: one from Man-

you worry about it a bit. If you'll come and sing we will make it right about the price and the charity; everything shall go your way."

She was seized upon by a violent fit of coughing, and Dan leaned toward her and put his arm around her as a brother might have done, holding her tenderly until the paroxysm was past.

"Gosh!" he exclaimed fervently, "it's heart-breaking to hear you cough like that and to think of your working as you do. Can't you stop and take a good rest? Can't you go somewhere?"

"To Greenland's icy mountains?" she responded, smiling. "I hate the cold."

"No, no; to some golden sands or other," he murmured under his breath. "And let me take you there."

But she pushed him back, laughing now. "No golden sands for me. I'm afraid I've got to sing in Mandalay to-night."

He looked at her in dismay. She interrupted his protest: "I've promised on my word of honor, and the box-office has sold the seats with that understanding."

By her sofa, leaning over her, in a choked voice he murmured: "You shan't sing! You shan't go out tonight!"

"Don't be a goose, boy," she said. "You've no right to order me like that. Stand back, please." As he did so she whisked herself off the sofa with a sudden ardor and much grace. "Now," she told him severely, "since you've begun to take that tone with me, I'm going to tell you that you mustn't come here day after day as you have been doing. I guess you know it, don't you?"

He stood his ground, but his bright face clouded. They had been so near each other and were now so removed. "I don't care a damn what people say," he replied.

She interrupted him. She could be wonderfully dignified, small as she was, wrapped as she was in the woolen shawl. "Well," she drawled with a sudden indolence and indifference in her voice, "I expect you'll be surprised to hear that I do care. Sounds awfully funny, doesn't it? But as you have been coming to the theater now night after night till everybody's talking about it—"

"You don't want my friendship," he stammered.

And Letty Lane controlled her desire to laugh at his boyish subterfuge. "No, I don't think I do."

Her tone struck him deeply: hurt him terribly. He threw his head up defiantly.

"All right, I'm turned down then," he said simply.

"I didn't think you'd act like this to a boy you'd known all your life!"

"Don't be silly, you know as well as I do that it won't do."

He did know it and that he had already done enough to make it reasonable for the duchess, if she wanted to, to break their engagement. Slowly preparing to take his leave, he said wistfully: "Can't I help you in any way? Let me do something with you for your poor. It's a comfort to have them between us, and you can count on me."

She said she knew it. "But don't come any more to the wings; get a habit of not coming."

Of the many curious customs which mark Brittany as an especially interesting field for the traveler is this one relating to marriage. At the close of the wedding ceremony the bridegroom gives the bride a box on the ear, saying:

"This is how it feels when you make me vexed, after which he kisses her, adding, "and thus when you treat me well."

Dan, who had started to rise, now came toward her and said: "Don't

"You don't want my friendship," he stammered.

And Letty Lane controlled her desire to laugh at his boyish subterfuge. "No, I don't think I do."

Her tone struck him deeply: hurt him terribly. He threw his head up defiantly.

"All right, I'm turned down then," he said simply.

"I didn't think you'd act like this to a boy you'd known all your life!"

"Don't be silly, you know as well as I do that it won't do."

He did know it and that he had already done enough to make it reasonable for the duchess, if she wanted to, to break their engagement. Slowly preparing to take his leave, he said wistfully: "Can't I help you in any way? Let me do something with you for your poor. It's a comfort to have them between us, and you can count on me."

She said she knew it. "But don't come any more to the wings; get a habit of not coming."

Of the many curious customs which mark Brittany as an especially interesting field for the traveler is this one relating to marriage. At the close of the wedding ceremony the bridegroom gives the bride a box on the ear, saying:

"This is how it feels when you make me vexed, after which he kisses her, adding, "and thus when you treat me well."

Dan, who had started to rise, now came toward her and said: "Don't you worry about it a bit. If you'll come and sing we will make it right about the price and the charity; everything shall go your way."

She was seized upon by a violent fit of coughing, and Dan leaned toward her and put his arm around her as a brother might have done, holding her tenderly until the paroxysm was past.

"Gosh!" he exclaimed fervently, "it's heart-breaking to hear you cough like that and to think of your working as you do. Can't you stop and take a good rest? Can't you go somewhere?"

"To Greenland's icy mountains?" she responded, smiling. "I hate the cold."

"No, no; to some golden sands or other," he murmured under his breath. "And let me take you there."

But she pushed him back, laughing now. "No golden sands for me. I'm afraid I've got to sing in Mandalay to-night."

He looked at her in dismay. She interrupted his protest: "I've promised on my word of honor, and the box-office has sold the seats with that understanding."

By her sofa, leaning over her, in a choked voice he murmured: "You shan't sing! You shan't go out tonight!"

"Don't be a goose, boy," she said. "You've no right to order me like that. Stand back, please." As he did so she whisked herself off the sofa with a sudden ardor and much grace. "Now," she told him severely, "since you've begun to take that tone with me, I'm going to tell you that you mustn't come here day after day as you have been doing. I guess you know it, don't you?"

He stood his ground, but his bright face clouded. They had been so near each other and were now so removed. "I don't care a damn what people say," he replied.

She interrupted him. She could be wonderfully dignified, small as she was, wrapped as she was in the woolen shawl. "Well," she drawled with a sudden indolence and indifference in her voice, "I expect you'll be surprised to hear that I do care. Sounds awfully funny, doesn't it? But as you have been coming to the theater now night after night till everybody's talking about it—"

State Will Not Pay Tips.

The anti-tipping campaign started by commercial travelers has enlisted a powerful recruit in W. E. Davis, state auditor of Kansas. Mr. Davis has decreed that Kansas state officials, when traveling on the state's business, are not entitled to charge the public treasury for tips paid.

Mr. Davis has issued a set of rules for the benefit of employees who travel for the state, in which he says: "Tips or gratuities are recognitions of special service, not an actual and necessary expense for the service itself and will not be allowed."

The controller of the treasury of the United States, on the other hand, has ruled that tips are a necessary incident of travel and are properly collectible from the public funds.

Justifiable Suspicion.

"I guess I must be getting old." "Why do you think so?" "A pretty girl dropped one of her gloves on the sidewalk this morning and I permitted another man to beat me to it."

Change of Fortune.

Don't try to get along without a Gas Stove.

For it, unlike a coal stove needs no bin or shed, requires but one stick of kindling—a match.

Gas will soon be in Chelsea. It is now time to think about it.

Don't Trust to Luck in Cooking. Abandon the hit or miss methods. Cook with gas. To cook on a coal stove without jarring your dinner or your temper that's chance. Your stove might not get hot—it might get too hot—or it might get hot at the wrong time. Depends upon your "luck."

How Maiden Lady of the Old Dominion Saved Her Lawn From the Road Builders. If women ever come to sit on the bench in old Virginia, there's a maiden lady living on her ancestral acres just across the Potomac from Washington who can qualify for the job. Recently a realty company bought a tract of land the other side of her property and platted it into suburban lots. Desiring ready access to the capital, they instituted proceedings to run a public road through the old lady's land; worse, as she learned, the projected road would cut right through the prettiest part of her trim lawn, dear with its memories of her childhood.

She consulted her lawyer, only to be told there was no help for it, since private property may, under the law, be condemned for public use, no matter how unwilling an indignant owner may be. Far from resigning herself to the ruthless inroad on her cherished lawn, the old lady buried herself in the musty law library handed down from an ancient ancestor, once a prominent judge in the Old Dominion.

When some days later a party of surveyors appeared with stakes and chains to lay out the line of road, they found the owner, spade in hand, just setting out the last of a phalanx of young apple trees squarely in front of the lawn and right in the line of the proposed highway. "If you set foot inside this orchard," she said defiantly to the astonished surveyors, "I'll have you all thrown out and then arrested for trespass."

With that she called up half a dozen trusty young countrymen wearing down the barn for the summons. "What does all this mean?" asked the leader of the surveying party, in whose contract there had been no mention of fighting. "We are surveying for a public road and can go anywhere."

"Anywhere—except through an orchard!" exclaimed the old lady, pulling a musty volume from under her apron. "It's been the law in Virginia since the days of Patrick Henry that you can't run even a public road through an orchard, so you stay out!" The old lady had dug up an ancient law unknown to modern attorneys, confounded her opponents and saved her lawn.

ANN ARBOR—What is thought to have been an attempt to burglarize Judge Kinne's home Saturday afternoon was frustrated by the watchfulness of the judge's pet dog, "Brownie."

GRASS LAKE—Word comes that W. A. Boland, who was a great sufferer from rheumatic gout, left New York a few days ago for Arizona, where he will remain for a time to recuperate his health.

GRASS LAKE—Game Warden E. L. Farrand wishes us to state that it is unlawful to catch and hold perch that will weigh under four ounces. This takes a perch that will measure about eight inches in length. Beware, he is after you.—News.

MILFORD—The Milford Fair will be held September 24-27 inclusive. At a recent meeting of the directors it was decided not to declare dividends from the $500 now in the treasury but to use the money on improvements for the fair grounds and buildings.

MANCHESTER—The change long talked of by the New York Central lines, to haul the coal from Toledo to Jackson over the Lake Shore instead of the Central by way of west Detroit, took place Monday. A night operator has been supplied this station and the trains will be operated day and night.—Enterprise.

JACKSON—While the state board of pardons will continue to hold meetings, during the absence of Dr. Bradley, of Eaton Rapids, the chairman, no paroles will be granted to long-term prisoners during his absence. He is not expected back until spring. The records show that during 1910 there were 133 inmates of Jackson prison paroled, and in 1911 there were 222.

ANN ARBOR—Attorney George Wright of Milan Monday filed suit for divorce on behalf of Mrs. Julia Meyers of Milan against Henry Meyers. Mrs. Meyers claims that her husband has failed to support her since last August and has shown so marked a preference for another woman not named, that he had left home. They were married in 1905 and have one daughter.

PLYMOUTH—Sunday evening, Officer Springer was notified of two men breaking into box cars down at Canton Center switch. He went down the P. M. track and met two Italians, Charlie Capozzo and Philip Accordo, with a hundred pounds of sugar on their backs. They were taken before Justice Campbell on Tuesday, plead guilty and fined ten dollars and costs, which was readily paid.—Mail.

HILLSDALE—Watering the milk that he sold was the charge made against Charles Benjamin of Adams by Elmer Teall, deputy pure food inspector, and Mr. Benjamin came into justice court and paid a fine of $10 and $5.50 costs. According to Mr. Benjamin, who is quite an old man, his wife had scalded out the cans and then put cold water in them, and he had poured the milk in without noticing the water.—Daily.

MANCHESTER—In one way the new road law has not been a success. Formerly when the snow was badly drifted, the farmers would turn out and shovel a way through, so mail carriers, physicians and others could get through, but since they had to pay money tax they would not shovel, unless ordered by the highway commissioner and paid for so doing. That is the reason why some roads are impassable after a snow storm.—Enterprise.

ADRIAN—The Lenawee County Bar association will hold its first annual banquet on the evening of March 11. The legal lights of the county are planning "high jinks" for the occasion.

DEXTER—The Dexter flouring mills have been leased to Blanchard & Sons, of Brooklyn. Thos. Birkett, the owner of the property, will expend about $2,500 in repairs on the property.

MANCHESTER—The traveling public are finding considerable fault because they are unable to get good accommodations here. It is being talked up to have the business men buy the Manchester house which is offered so cheap at present.

JACKSON—That Manley C. Christwell, the Lansing printer, whose dead body was found in the Carroll house Monday, came to his death from convulsions caused by corrosive poison administered by himself, was the verdict of the coroner's jury.

BRIGHTON—The water works question is being quite strongly discussed in the village at present, in fact a petition was presented to the village council at the last regular meeting Thursday night asking them to procure estimates on the cost of construction.—Argus.

SALINE—The old pioneer oak tree which stood in front of Dr. Woodbridge's home for many long years was cut down Tuesday. The electric wires which passed through its top since the electric road came here have constantly kept it charged until it was nearly dead.—Observer.

MILAN—The first mail carried during transit by aeroplane to pass through the Milan postoffice came last Friday. It was carried by Beachy from Aviation Field, Los Angeles to Rodondo, Cal., and was stamped "aeroplane mail." The matter was sent by Dwight Bunce to his aunt, Mrs. Chas. Gauntlett.—Leader.

JAPANESE SILK IS REVIVED. Chemical Process Has Been Discovered That Strengthens the Fabric and Facilitates Spinning. According to the North China Daily News the ladies of America and Europe are to have the restoration of the popular Japanese silk fabrics in large supply and greater beauty than ever before. It is claimed that an expert connected with the Fuji Spinning company has discovered a chemical process which will be a great boon to the spinners and also to the admirers of Japanese silk. While Japanese sericulture was yet in a primitive condition no chemical was used to soften the cocoon before it was spun into thread. Later the spinner succeeded in getting out a thin, soaplike substance, which fulfilled the long-felt want with some success; but the difficulty was that it weakened the fabric and took away the natural luster. Thus Japanese silk has been steadily losing the popularity it once enjoyed and its market has from time to time been encroached upon by the Italian product. Mr. Inouye has now hit upon a method of strengthening the elasticity and strength of the fabric, and at the same time greatly facilitating the spinning into thread. One more benefit from this process will be that manufacturers will be able to obtain 15 per cent. more produce than by the old-fashioned way. Furthermore, the new substance has an antigerms and anticropping effect, and will not injure the hands of operatives. Some time ago an American is reported to have discovered a chemical compound which would preserve silk; and this is said to be something similar in composition to the Japanese invention.

Novel Way to Rest. It seems imperative for a certain member of the family to rest an hour after the noon meal each day. The weather had grown mild, and to draw the shades so as to exclude the light kept out the air also, so the sista lost much of its refreshing quality.

A thick pad of absorbent gauze some eight inches long and four inches wide was finished with an elastic band just tight enough to hold the pad securely. This was slipped into place over the eyes.

Days when the eyes burned or ached a compress wet with cool salt and water was placed under the pad, and eyes and nerves were soothed at the same time. By the last named means the eyes were strengthened and the crow's feet indicative of eye strain were ironed out.—Harper's Bazar.

Dead Slang. Is there anything so dead as dead slang? At most it is quite fresh, or it offends the nostril. And no one should talk slang without the assurance that it is both infantile and immortal. John Galsworthy is modern. And in "The Slang of Property" he produces "the slang expression of the eighties. "A daverdy woman." It is a term of contempt for a woman. But is there any one born in the eighties who could explain that slang term, or remember fresh—there is little of it that stands the tinned preservation.
