Columbian Stock Regulator

Is a fine granulated compound, of which a small quantity is added to the animal's regular ration of grain or other feed. When given to stock which is in good condition, it acts as a digestor and general invigorator, saves you grain and hay, rapidly puts on flesh and makes money for the feeder. For every pound of Columbian and makes money for the feeder. For every pound of Columbian Stock Regulator you feed, you will get over five pounds of beef or pork. When fed to stock which is out of condition, Columbian Stock Regulator not only cures, but at the same time builds up and invigorates the system, thus repairing the ravages of disease and nivigorate animal in a profit-paying condition without delay.

Fake Fire Insurance.

Chicago authorities have uncovered a new scheme of the conscienceless "get-rich-quick" grafters. The latest is the "fake" fire insurance company, and many instances have been found where some unfortunate sufferer from a fire has discovered that he has been swindled by such companies. The policy which he so carefully paid for was valueless and the alleged company was without capital and in one case without offices. An energetic campaign is to be made against the fraudulent companies, and it is hoped a few prison sentences may be issued to the promoters and workers of the

- STATE LEGISLATURE IN SPECIAL SESSION

> THE HOUSE CONVENED AT NOON MONDAY WITH 79 MEMBERS IN THEIR SEATS.

CHAS. S. PIERCE MADE SENATE CLERK, PAUL KING RESIGNS.

Lansing Chamber of Commerce Has Extended the Legislature the Use of Their Rooms-Hotels Crowded.

The house convened at sharp 12 o'clock Monday, being called to order Speaker Baker. Seventy-nine members were in their seats and the majority absentees were excused because of illness or for business.

Benediction was invoked by Rev. T. Legear, of the Lansing Central M. E. church, who read the seventysecond Psalm.

A committee from the senate, consisting of Senators Miller, Barnabee and Collins, notified the house that the senate was in session and ready to receive matters from the house. A committee was appointed to notify the governor that the house awaited his pleasure. The resignation of Paul King, senate clerk, was received and Charles S. Pierce was unanimously elected to succeed him. About 100 people were in the gallery, including a number of women. A motion was adopted to have all Oates by his deputies in various parts of the state, forest fires caused a loss of approximately $3,569,583.69 during the past year. Warden Oates has made no attempt to estimate the loss to seed lings, which would undoubtedly raise the total loss considerably.

From April to December 230' fires were reported in 36 counties. Last July 118 fires were reported to the department. The reports show 13,285 acres of hardwood were burned, 13,-226 acres of meadows, 121,526 acres-of slashings and plains and 28,235 acres of swamp.

The loss by counties is as follows: Iosco, $3,033,375; Presque Isle, $106, 760; Otsego, $59,450; Cheboygan, $114. 379; Charlevoix, $41,750; Alpena, $28, 560; Antrim, $24,665; Mackinac, $25 .-530; Alger, $34,730; Roscommon, $30, Scores State For Forest Fire Loss.

Prof. C. L. Hill, of the forestry department, University of Michigan. spoke before the members of the Detroit Mycological club and Audubon society in the Central high school. He characterized the means taken by the state of Michigan to fight forest fires as antiquated. He claimed there was no need of forest fires, as on the United States government lands the damage done by fire was but a fraction of 1 per cent. The cost of protection is three cents per mile. The only proper thing is to have forest rangers. A fire cannot go very long without their detecting it and they are instructed in up-to-date methods in cutting the fire off. Michigan loses hundreds of times in timber what it would cost to protect the forest, to say nothing of lives lost and towns and always shall endeavor to reduce to destroyed.

$3,569,583 BY FOREST FIRES. THEO. ROOSEVELT IS A CANDIDATE

> NOMINATION IF IT IS TENDERED ME"

ANSWER TO PETITION OF EIGHT GOVERNORS

Announcement Comes Just as Michigan Legislature Is About to Consider Presidential Primary Bill.

Theodore Roosevelt is a candidate for the presidency. He says so himself. His letter replying to that of eight governors who urged him to accept the nomination was made public at the Outlook office Sunday night.

Roosevelt's Letter.

Gentlemen-I deeply appreciate your letter, and I realize to the full the heavy responsibility it puts upon me, expressing as it does the carefully considered convictions of the men elected by popular vote to stand as the heads of government in their several states. "I absolutely agree with you that this matter is not one to be decided with any reference to the personal preferences or interests of any man, but purely from the standpoint of the interests of the people as a whole. I will accept the nomination for president if it is tendered to me and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference. One of the chief principles for which I have stood and for which I now stand, and for which I have always endeavored action, is the genuine rule of the people; and therefore I hope that so far as possible the people may be given the chance, through direct primaries, to express their preference as to who shall be the nominee of the Republican presidental convention. Very truly yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

the best remedies for eczema I have ever heard of. My mother had a child who had a rash on its head when it was real young. Doctor called it baby rash. He gave us medicine, but it did no good. In a few days the head was a solid mass, a running sore. It was awful: the child cried continually. We had to hold him and watch him to keep him from scratching the sore. His suffering was dreadful. At last we remembered Cuticura Remedies. We got a dollar bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a box of Cuticura Ointment; and a bar of Cuticura Soap. We gave the Resolvent as directed, washed the head with the Cuticura Soap, and applied the Cuticura Ointment. We had not used half before the child's head was clear and free from eczema, and it has never come back again. His head was healthy and he had a beautiful head of hair. I think the Cuticura Ointment very good for the hair. It makes the hair grow and prevents falling hair." (Signed) Mrs. Francis

Strength in Calmness.

The calm man, having learned how to adapt himself to others; and they, in turn, reverence his spiritual strength, and feel that they can learn of him and rely upon him. The more tranquil a man becomes, the greater is his success, his influence, his power for good. Even the ordinary trader will find his business prosperity increases as he develops a greater self-control and equanimity, fo people will always prefer to deal with a man whose demeanor is strongly equable.-James Allen.

Truth Alone Not Sufficient.

Just consider for a moment how ridiculous it would be for a lawyer to attempt to win a case on his client's bare assertion as to the facts. The facts as stated might be true, but truth alone is not sufficient either in law or in advertising—there must be proof positive or at least evidence (reasons) sufficiently good to convince. the jury or the judge that the asser's. tions made are probably true.-John E. Dan's father had heme of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had heme of Lady Galorey during been courteous to Lord Galorey during been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl is his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is a diracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church, and he had never forgotten her. The Gahe had never forgotten the secret in the star, ban recognizes her as, the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him, He learns that Prince Ponictowsky is suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily: he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Dan to build a home for disappointed theatried people. Dan visits Lily, for the time forgetting Letty, and later announces his engagement to the duchess. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily. Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money.

"How can it hurt her, my dear man, to tell her you are poor?"

"It's a lie. I'm not up to lying to her; I don't care to. And you mean to think that if I told her I was busted she would throw me over?"

"Like a shot, my green young friend -like a shot."

"You haven't a very good opinion of women," Blair threw out with as near a sneer as his fine young face could

"No, not very," agreed the pool player who had continued his shots with more or less sangfroid. When Galorey had run off his string of balls he said, looking up from the table: "But I've got a very good opinion of that 'nice girl' you told me of when you first came, and I wish to Heaven she had kept you in the states."

This caught the boy's attention as nothing else had, "There never was any such girl," he said slowly; "there never has been anywhere; I rather guess they don't grow. You have made me a cad in listening to you, Gordon, but as to playing any of those comedy tricks you suggest, they are ot in my line. If she is marrying me Thorough cultivation is another factor in producing good sugar beets. It is a common saying among the past ten years, that is, approximately Germans that "the sugar must be hoed into the beet.'

In no time of its life should a sugar beet be allowed to stop growing, for if it once becomes stunted it is doubtful whether it will ever make as good a beet as it would have been under conditions of continuous growth.

Another way the beet has been improved is by increasing its sugar content. This has been done without increasing the size of the beet.

If a largely increased yield of beets s combined with a much higher sugar ontent it is entirely possible to obtain three times as much sugar per acre as is produced on an average at the present time. The present average yield of beets per acre in this country is about 10 tons, and the percentage of sugar ectually extracted and refined does not exceed 12, making the average yield of sugar per acre approximately 2,400 pounds.

Yields of more than 30 tons of beets per acre are sometimes obtained, and yields of more than 20 tons are common.

From 20 to 25 per cent of the sugar in the beet has been reported so frequently that it is safe to assume that an average sugar content of 18 per in this country. enough to roll thin. Apple Sauce Cake .- A half cup of shortening, a cup of sugar, a cup of sifted apple sauce, a teaspoonful of soda, one and three-fourths cups of flour, and spice to taste. Add raisins or currants if desired, and bake in small cakes or in a loaf.

Hot Water Gingerbread.-Dissolve in a cup of boiling water two teaspoonfuls of soda; add a cup of molasses, a quarter of a cup of melted shortening, and cinnamon, ginger, clove and nutmeg to taste. Use flour enough for a soft batter and bake in small patty tins. These are delicious with apple sauce and cottage cheese for luncheon or a dessert.

Feather Muffins.—Take a cup of milk, a tablespoonful of melted lard or butter, a half teaspoon of salt, a tablespoonful of sugar and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix together with flour enough to make a batter as stiff as an ordinary cake batter. Bake in muffin rings.

No Tigers In Africa. The natives of Africa fear the leopard almost as much as they do the lion. Once in a while some traveler tells of tigers in Africa. No tigers are there, but careless writers thus misname the leopard, which has terrors of its own and is scarcely less formidable than the monarch of the Bengalese animal kingdom.

The TAMING OF INDIA LAURISTON WARD.

sition in that Asiatic empire which she has governed so successfully for more than a hundred

These are questions which Indians and Englishmen alike are asking. Lord Curzon, Lord Minto and others have announced that they will bring the matter up in the house of lords as soon as parliament meets again. Mr. Asquith has given assurances that it will receive due consideration in the commons. While no one professes to regard the announcements made by the king as anything but final, there seems to be a growing realization of the gravity of the changes, which at the time of their announcement were somewhat overshadowed by the pomp and pageantry of the great Durwhich will affect 82,000,000 human beings and an area as large as that of France or Germany. The province of Bengal, which was partitioned by Lord Curzon in 1905, against the violent protest of its people, and which has been the headquarters of the sedition in India ever ince, is to be reunited. The great divisions of Behar, Chota Nagpur and Orissa, which now belong to Bengal, although their populations are distinct in race and language, will be detached from Bengal and form a new province, under the control of a lieutenant governor and council. Assam is to be separately administered by a chief commissioner, as was the case prior to 1905. Lastly, the province of Bengal is to be raised to the rank of a presidency (after the example of Madras and Bombay) with a governor from England appointed by the

It is hardly an exaggeration to say that no such sweeping administrative change as this has taken place since the British crown took over the government of the country from the East India company at the close of the mutiny in 1858. As to the motives which prompted the move there is a conflict of opinion. The nationalists regard it as a victory for their cause. They consider that the modification of the partition of Bengal-which the English authorities have repeatedly declared would never be altered-is a confession of weakness on the part of the government, and some of the leaders of the unrest are bold enough to say that the government transferred the capitol to Delhi because Calcutta had got too hot to hold it. On the other hand, the dispatches which passed between Simla and London, which have now been made public, contain an array of practical arguments in favor of the change, which successfully disposes of any theory that the government was driven to the measure as the result of seditious agitation. In less troublous times the move would seem justified on plain administrative grounds. As it is, it must be considered as a bold experiment, which is admirable in theory, but which in practice can only be justified by success.

Curiously enough, its first effect has been precisely the opposite of what was expected. It was thought that the Mohammedans would hall with joy the establishment of the central government in the ancient capital of the Moghul emperors. On the contrary, they have been the first to denounce the arrangement, declaring with true indian perversity that sentimental considerations mean nothing to them in comparison with the loss of their political power in the abolition of the province of Eastern Bengal: It is not the Mohammedans, but their ancestral foes, the Rajputs, who welcome the establishment of the capital within easy reach of their territory. The Bengalis, too, who were expected to resent the loss of prestige to Calcutta involved in the transfer, have declared that they are more than compensated by the wished-for union of the Bengali peo-The Hindus in Eastern Bengal have been lighting bonfires for a month past in celebration of the event. So far as can be ascertained the inhabitants of the newly created province of Behar and Orissa are pleased at their release from Bengal domination. Bombay, the Punjab and the United Provinces are sensible of the advantages that will accrue to them for geographical reasons. The rest of India is in-

Delhi is regarded by the government as a better place for a capital than Calcutta, because of its historic traditions, central location, and better climate, which will enable the vicercy and his staff to reside there for all but four months of the year. On the other hand, it is more removed from the amercial interests and active life of modern India, Europeans in Calcutta have not besttated in declaring that it will be little better than a "Simia of the Plains." The rearrangent of the provinces will make for greater adinistrative efficiency, though that again is ized on the ground that the modifi the partition of Bengal is a useless conwhile it will undo all the good sich has been started in the backward

SCENE IN DELHI - 1. OOKING

The announcement of the great changes has had at least one effect that is already apparent; ft has immensely impressed Hindus and Mohammedans alike with the power of the emperor. Although King George stated at the Durbar that he was acting on the advice of his ministers, this seems to have been ignored by the mass of his subjects, who felt that here was a ruler indeed, whose lightest whim was law, and who could change at a word the foundations of government and the established order of generations. I suppose that few official announcements have ever been more dramatic. Perhaps a dozen men out of India's 300,000,000 were in the secret, and to the rest the declaration came with the surprising force of a revelation It is precisely for this reason that anxiety is felt over the ultimate reception of the proposals by the Indian people. When the awe caused by the visible presence of the sovereign has passed away, it is feared that fierce opposition may break out in many quarters. The original partition of Bengal was thought at the time to be an innocent measure, but it stirred up disloyalty in half of India, turned two provinces into hotbeds of sedition and provoked a series of anarchistic crimes which has not yet come to an end. The present changes claim to be purely administrative, but the peculiarly secret and arbitrary way in which they were determined may prove an excuse for new discontent. More than one English official who was at the Durbar expressed the opinion that the next year or two would see another wave of anarchy and sedition incomparably greater than anything India has yet known. The government does not hold this view. It remains to be seen who is right.

Two important facts, in any case, have been made clear by the publication of the disnatches. The first is that India is at last being governed once more from India and not from London, as was the case when Lord Minto was viceroy and Lord Morley secretary of state. The entire scheme for the change of capital and redistribution of provinces originated at Simla, and was embodied in a dispatch from the central government to Lord Crewe, who accepted the proposal without a change. would be interesting to know whether Lord Hardinge or his council are principally respensible for the undertaking. If the former proves to be the case, current views of the new viceroy will have to be revised. It argues more than a little courage and initiative in a man who has been in India barely a year to risk his official reputation on such hazardous measure.

The other fact disclosed by the dispatche is an important intimation of England's regarding the future government of India. Lo Hardinge and his associates state in so ma

THE POST OFFICE BUILDING, CALCUTTA words that the only solution of the Indian situation lies in the practical autonomy of the provincial governments. In other words, the old bureaucratic regime, which began with the first victories of Clive and the taking over of the Bengal diwani by Warren Hastings is confessed at least to be a failure. Decentralization is to be the watchword from this time onward. A new India is gradually to be former, on the model on Canada. It will consist of a group of confederated states, financially independent and legislating for themselves in local matters, but subject to the control of the central government in imperial affairs. In name there will probably be little change, for the government of India is slow to move and conservative, yet this is, baldly stated, the signification of the plan. At the same time a further extension of the principle of self-government is indicated. To judge from the words of the dispatch, the central authorities are at last alive to the fact that the government of India must not only be for the Indians, but to a large extent by them, if it hopes to endure. Lord Hardinge's words foreshadow a speedy enlargement of the elective element in the legislative councils and are the most important pronouncement in this respect that has been laration to grant his famous reforms. The general effect of the king's visit seems to have been strengthening the loyalty of the Indian people to a degree that surpassed expectations. The wonderful spectacle of the Durbar made a prefound impression, and when the king and queen later stood on the wall of the fort in Delhi and received the homage of an adoring crowd of more than 100,000 natives, it is said that the scene was indescribable. Gray-bearded men bowed themselves to the ground and others wept for joy and mothers held up their babies above their heads to see and be blessed by the emperor. An incident that happened at the laying of the first stones of the new capital gained the king a great reputation among the people. As he was about to touch one of the stones with his golden trowel he noticed that it was not quite straight, and asked the master mason to bring it into better alignment. The ceremony was stopped for a few minutes while this was done. The story spread like wildfire through the bazars, and was accepted as an omen by the natives, who now firmly credit their emperor with almost supernatural powers of discernment and a determination to establish the foundations of his city so surely that it will last through all the ages to come.

No seditious attempts were made on the life of the king, although the murder of a police inspector in Eastern Bengal the night before the Durbar gave eloquent testimony to the fact that disloyalty still exists in some sections of he nonulation. The release or remission of sentence of over 180 political prisoners was a move of the king's, which added to his popularity, while his concessions to the native army and the grant of money for the extension of education were deeply apsay that if the new reforms are followed by a further extension of rep-

Juma, and also to realize the mortality of empires, for one can clearly see, as in Rome, cities built upon the ruins of cities, and in addition the relics of many a Hindu capital of special interests, take advantage of The Delhi of today is of course the mighty city of Shah Jehan, with its seven gates and as many arches. The Delhi of the future will be built on the site of the recent Durbar camp. This is situated some miles from the site of the old Mogui capital, as the famous mutiny ridge camp separated the latter from the former camp. It will have the advantage of being built on fresh ground, a by no means trifling detail in India, where sanitation is of paramount importance. From the point of view of climate, also, there is no doubt that Delhi possesses great advantages over Calcutta. To the newcomer in India Calcutta is described as having one hot month and eleven-hot months, whereas the cold weather of Delhi is delightful.

Another important feature of the proposed change is that the position of Delhi will remove the headquarters of the government from the environment of what is known in India as the Bengall element. This type of supereducated Indian native has undoubtedly been responsible in no small measure for the agitation caused by the partition of Bengal. This innovation was initiated by Lord Curzon and though the agitation against it was never really popular or in any sense national, yet this noisy Bengali element succeeded in raising a clamor quite out of all proportion to their actual numbers, aided as they were by the vernacular press. The further partition of Bengal, recently announced, may have the advantage of further decentralization of the unwieldy machine of teeming millions already divided by Another great advantage in the change of the capital is the fact that Delhi is undoubtedly much more in the center of the fighting races than Calcutta. The great native princes much more easily can assemble there. The Shikh and the Rajput princes are nearbythe Maharajah of Kashmir, the Gaekwar of Baroda, the important Nizam of Hyderabad. and the head of that well governed state of Mysore, are mostly at no great distance away, took his first degree in Duxbury and these all undoubtedly will welcome tho change of capital.

WHERE MOVEMENT IS STRONG

Washington State Superintendent Reports Great Progress of the Movement in That Western State.

The following extract from the last report of State Master C. B. Kegley of Washington gives an illuminating view of the position to which the grange has arrived in that far western state and indicates much for grange influence and power in the future if wisely directed. Mr. Kegley says: "The grange is now the dominant non-partisan political influence in the state of Washington. We will carry the initiative and referendum and recall by one of the largest votes ever given to a Constitutional amendment. The grange good roads movement has utterly confounded the automobile boulevard schemers and wild land exploiters. How successfully these selfseekers have been blocked is shown by the bitterness of their attack. Equal suffrage has proven even of more importance in purifying politics than was ever predicted for it by its most ardent friends. The city of Seattle, long dominated by a vicious political ring, was cleaned up in recalling Mayor Gill, and thus securing the dismissal of the chief of police. In no other way could this have been accomplished than by giving our women a voice in public affairs equal to that of the men. Thus the great blot on the government of our large cities of police graft and protection of criminals was wiped out in the leading ful remedies the world has ever known, city of our state as a result of giving the women the vote and placing in their hands the power of recalling and dismissing from office unworthy public servants. Patrons, liberty and the recall go hand in hand. "During the past two or three years we have had in Washington a growing appreciation of the dangers that menace a farmer organization when it becomes an acknowledged power in the state. We are beginning to experience some of the difficulties that confronted the ploneers in grange work preciated. It is safe to in lowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, filinois and other middle western states. While we were weak in numbers no attention whatever was paid to the resentative government grange by the great corporate inter-King George will be re- ests which in all new, rapidly developgarded by the mass of his ing territory have fastened their Indian subjects as one of strangle hold on the people, thus conthe best beloved emper- trolling all legislation that would restrain them in their mad rush to gob ble up all valuable natural resources and monopolies. As soon as the grange had demonstrated its strength on numbers and influence, the political cenresentatives of these great monopolies -corporation attorneys, etc .-- are by every device known securing a hold in some of our subordinates. Some, finding it difficult to secure admission in granges near at home or their places of business, secure membership in some remote grange, then quickly taking their demit to their grange near their home, membership in which could not have been secured in any other way. Others of these schemers, who seek to control the grange for the cry "back to the farm" and secure a tract of land, large or small, and at once press their claim to a right to membership in the grange. We congratulate ourselves that thus far we have been very fortunate in escaping this destroying plague of the farmer movements. But we are alive to the danger and we realize fully that once these parasites have fastened themselves on their state organization, as was done in the middle western states in the early years of the grange, it will only be a case of history repeating itself."

National Treasurer's Statement.

Financial strength is a pretty valuable asset in any organization and many a meritorious association has gone to pieces because this valuable adjunct was lacking. Whether the National Grange is strong in this respect or not can be judged by the following statement made by the national treasurer, in reporting for the past year:

gently on the liver. Cure The total assets of the National Grange as reported October 1, 1910, were $118,825.83, and the total assets October 1, 1911, were $113,903.04, showing a decrease of $4,922.79, largely due to the cost of extension work authorized at the last session. The total assets of the National Grange at the close of the fiscal year in 1901 were $62,440.95, showing a net gain in cash assets during the ten-year period of $51,462.09, during which time there has been a net gain in paid membership of 305,745.

Quick Promotion Record. A Massachusetts young man has made the record for quick promotion in the Grange. November 4, 1911, he Grange No. 288. Two weeks later he received the final degrees and so became a full-fledged fourth degree member of the order. Three weeks later he took the fifth or Pomon Grange degree, and on December 13th he took the sixth degree at Worces er, which made him a member of the Massachusetts State Grange. On De ember 20th he was elected an officer n Duxbury Grange and on Januar 6th he was formally installed ther to. And the young man in question has but just passed his 15th birthday.

"Bring her out?" Muriel Tepeated; but her aunt was already opening the door, and Muriel, in an agony of embarrassment, knew that she had not even taken off her green-checked apron. She gave a hasty glance over the table. A little warmed-over fricasseed chicken, left from Sunday's dinner, and some quince preserve from supper, bread and butter and dried beef, radishes and tea-and the two pieces of custard pie and one portion of snow pudding! It could not be that Aunt Elizabeth would bring a visitor out! But she was interrupted by Aunt Elizabeth's voice, cordial and full of pleasure:

Osler's Cure for Gout! Since his proposition that man should be chloroformed at sixty, Dr. William Osler has been regarded more or less as a grim monster by many people, says "One Who Knows Him." In reality Doctor Osler is a mild mannered man, with a fund of genuine humor, as witness the following cure for gout which he once recommended to a friend:

"First, pick a handkerchief from the pocket of a spinster who never wished to wed; second, wash the handkerchief in an honest miller's pond; third, dry it on the hedge of a person who has never been covetous; ourth, send it to the shop of a physician who never killed a patient; fifth, mark it with a lawyer's ink who never cheated a client; and, sixth, apply it, hot, to the gout-tormented part. A speedy cure must follow."

COUNTS INCREASE IN NUMBER OF AMERICANS GOING TO CANADA

Although Western Canada suffered. as did many other portions of the west, from untoward conditions, which turned one of the most promising crops ever seen in that country, into but little more than an average yield of all grains, there is left in the farmers' hands, a big margin of profit. Of course there were many farmers who were fortunate enough to harvest and market a big yield, and with the prices that were secured made handsome returns. From wheat, oats, barley and flax marketed to the 1st of January, 1912, there was a gross revenue of $75,384,000. The cattle, hogs, poultry and dairy proceeds brought this up to $101,620,000 or 21 million dollars in excess of 1910. There was still in the farmers' hands at that time about 95 million bushels of wheat worth at least another sixty-five million dollars (allowing for inferior grades), besides about 160 million bushels of oats to say nothing of barley and flax, which would run into several million of dollars.

There is a great inrush of settlers to occupy the vacant lands throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The reports from the Government show that during the past year upwards of 131,000 Americans crossed the border into Canada. A great many of these took up farms, over ten thousand having homesteaded, in fact the records show that every state in the Union contributed. A larger number, not caring to go so far away as the homesteading area, have purchased lands at from fifteen dollars an acre to twenty-five dollars an acre. The prospects for a good crop for 1912 are as satisfactory as for many years. The land has had sufficient moisture, and with a reasonably early spring, it is safe to predict a record crop.

Those who have not had the latest literature sent out by the Government agents should send to the one nearest, and secure a copy.

He had taken part in the fight at Kenesaw mountain, and when he found his heir awaiting him he suggested the name Kenesaw Mountain. That is how my brother, who has become more or less noted as a judge, came to be named.

"But it was not that incident that made my Christmas so memorable. Kenesaw was a baby. I had other goers at the Whitney Theatre Friday brothers. We were living a few miles from a small town in indiana, and father had only a few days' leave. > Heine and London. Heine did not like London, but the London county council likes Heine, for the passer-by is now reminded by the usual encaustic tile that the poet once lived in Craven street, Strand. As he looked out of his lodging Heine exclaimed, "Send a philosopher to London, but no poet. This downright earnestness of all things; this colossal uniformity, this machine-like movement, this moroseness even in pleasure, this exaggerated London smothers the imagination and rends the heart." But if Heine did not love London he found something within easy reach to warm the imagination and fire the heart—the chalk cliffs of Ramsgate in mid-June, with a beautiful Irish girl to assist in the pro-COSS.

A New Kind of Exercise.

It is a morning exercise invented by a Parisian actress, who takes the fragments are thrown upon the floor up and collects those pieces, and the point is that not a fragment is lost. For this is the new way of gardening know of for the purpose for which it and the material for the new building -the stooping cure that is recommended by every doctor. You can do it in your home, and do not require a garden. It is only to buy the morning paper, tear it into fragments, chuck them on the floor, and pick them up. Quite as good as garden-

Chelsea people tell of it. Tell of relief that's quick and sure

Here is a case of it: F. A. Hammond, Madison St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with the best of results. My back was very lame and every cold I caught made my trouble worse, When Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention I commended their use and they quickly gave relief from the pains and regulated the passages of the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly deserve my endorsement in return for their good work."
