Princess Theatre.

The Princess theatre offers a sen-sational fire picture for their Satur-day matinee and night show called "Old Billy." The story of "Old Billy"

is as follows:

Baby Lillian, a dear little threeyear-old, is the unconscious medium through which Tom Downey, Captain of Engine Co. 24, falls in love with little widow Marming, the baby's mother. The fire inspectors decide that "Old Billy," the veteran horse of No. 24, has outlived his usefulness to the service and he is therefore to the service, and he is therefore sold at auction, much to the dislike and regret of the widow, Baby Lillian and Tom. The once proud fire horse now descends to the burden of a milk now descends to the burden of a milk wagon. Six months later, while "Old Billy" is peacefully standing before a house on his master's milk route, a fire breaks out in the apartment house occupied by the little widow and her child. Tom and his company are quick to respond, and as the engines go down the street, they pass "Old Billy." What happens then makes a fine finish to a great picture.

The Messages. .

The messages in full are as fol-"To the Forty-sixth legislature of the state of Michigan: "Gentlemen-You are hereby authorized and requested to give your consideration to a bill or bills to smend section two of act 313 of the public acts of 1887, entitled 'An act to provide for the taxation, licensing and regulation of the bus-iness of manufacturing, selling, keeping for sale, furnishing, giving or delivering spirituous and intoxi-cating malts, brewed, fermented and vinous liquors in this state.' The purpose of this requested leg-islation is to make it unlawful for

"In Michigan, and throughout the United States, and all over the world where excessive use of alcohol is a curse and one of the gravest dangers that confront mankind, attention is being given to the necessity for bettering conditions. An official British parliamentary commission has reported that alcommission has reported that alcoholic poisoning is the great cause of their national degeneracy. The French government has placarded that country with appeals to the people, attributing the decline in the birth rate and the increase in the death rate to a widespread excessive use of alcoholic beverages. The German emperer has stated that leadership in war and in peace will be held by that nation whose people use the least alcohol and has with serious emphasis to pointed with serious emphasis to the dangers arising from the ex-cessive use of beer in Germany. All of the countries of continental Eu-rope are alert in combating the fearful menace. Out of the degen-eracy produced by excessive alco-holism or from the deaths from alcoholism produced by degeneracy, and it matters not which, because the cause and effect are so intimately associated as to be inde-terminable, flow crime, misery, di-rect and indirect private and public burdens, political abuse, moral breakdown, and all the influences that make for depreciation and de-struction of society. The world ad-mits the danger. How can it be

Assails Brewer-owned Saloon.

"There may be some questions of human rights and personal liberty involved and there may be a plane where regulation and prohibition become super-sumptuary. With 11,-560 inmates of Michigan state charitable, penal and correctional insti-tutions, and thousands more in county houses and private sanitariums, with crime on the increase in our fair state, with the owners of big breweries, through their strings of saloons and otherwise, mischievous. ly and boldly active in endeavors to control elections, legislation and public officials, there is aroused in terest on the part of all classes of

"While there may be some argument as to whether saloons shall be permitted to exist in this state, there is no argument against a dectaration that saloons which notoriously vicious and lawless shall not exist. There are those who not exist. There are those who argue and sincerely believe that the saloon is the poor man's club. But they have no defense for the vile saloon which is a combination grogshop, den of prostitution, resort of sahara and cambling hell pobbers and gambling hell.

"In the state of Michigan there are, in all counties, 4,366 saloons. In the city of Detroit there are 1.570 saloons, or one for every 300 persons. In Wayne county there are 1.752 saloons. It is estimated that two-thirds of the saloons in Detroit and more than two helf of Detroit, and more than one-half of those in the state, are brewery-owned. This number of saloons, so disproportionate to any need that can be shown by any person, has been made possible because the big brewers of Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee and elsewhere are in the business of starting, encouraging, capitalizing, owning and conaging, capitalizing, owning and con-trolling saloons,

"Examination will show that 85 per cent of dives are brewery-owned saloons. The evil participation of these his brewers in the spicen business not only constitutes source of greatest danger to the health, safety and morals of society, but it is unfair to the independent saloonkeepers and to the small brewer who cannot afford to start. own or control a string of saloous. The man who is thrifty and saves erough money to go into the saloon business, and who may try to be a decent saloonkeeper and who is reterred to as such, must compete with the fellow who, without money or character, is set up in business by a big brewer. The brewer finds a pash barkeeper who has attracted friends and who is willing to be his man. He is started in business. His fixtures are owned by the brewer; he is bound to buy his beer of the brewer who owns him and at a greater price than the independent saloonkeeper pays; he is compelled to pay a usurious rate of interest upon the license money and other investments, and in other ways he is made the slave of the brewer as much as any peon ever wins his revenue is any manner possible and his only concern is not to be caught at his repeated violation of all the laws that make for human decency and protection. He sells drugged liquors, he rolls and robs his drunken victims, he profits from the prostitution plied by human derelicts, he harbors the white slave traffickers, he gives police officers hush mony, he encourages every form of gambling and he gets his money to pay his brewer master in anyway possible, just so he gets it. The snug brewer master sits in his office or in his parlor and takes this blood money as did the absentee landlord in Ireland, without thought of its in Irdiand, without thought of its source so long as it is paid to him on time, and it must be paid.

Time to Curb Traffic.

"It is within your power to remove this breeding place of vice, the brewery-owned saloon, the evilbaited man trap that is set to catch the weak and the unwary. Pass a law prohibiting and punishing brewery-ownership of saloons and you will have done more for the welfare of Michigan than any other legislature in its history you will legislature in its history; you will have done a real act for the protec-tion and conservation of our sons and daughters and those who work until they are overweary and those who, though older, are like children in their weakness and lack of self-control, and finally you will have done the only thing that will give the so-called decent saloon-keeper a chance to make of his keeper a chance to make of his business a legitimate calling, if such is within the power of mankind.

"Unless you do this and curb the low saloon curse, the day will soon come when the people of Michigan wide prohibition, which obtained in this state from 1856 to 1876. Far down in the hearts of the people they are moral and desire that which is right and wholesome. If they can cure without fanaticism or resorting to extremes, they will do so, but, in time they will cure.

By its monopoly it has a peculiar and sinister hold upon and influence over the saloon-keepers of the entire state. They must pay double the amount usually enarged for other bonds; they must do the bidding of the Michigan Bonding & Surety com-pany or obtain no bonds at all. "Damage suits against saloons are Damage suits against saloons are fought with a vigor and ability that could not be commanded in any other way, resulting in delay and defeat of these who have been damaged by the saloonkeepers, whether widowed mothers of wayward sons are ward sons and daughters or wives of drunken husbands. On February 21, 1910, the board of directors of this Michigan Bonding & Surety Co. adopted the following resolution, which perfectly explains its policy: Be it resolved. That in order not to establish a precedent that settle-ments with the company are easy to obtain, it is the sense of this meeting to continue appealing the case for a judgment more favorable and the discouragement of future litigants. This resolution is taken from the official records of the company, and explains why only $16,070 has been paid for claims in the three and one-half years of its life. "In the interest of the welfare of the people of this state, the exist-ence of the Michigan Bonding & Surety Co. as a political monopoly should be made impossible under the laws of Michigan.

Anti-Saloon Men Throughout the State Report Encouraging Conditions for the Movement.

The nine cement manufacturing companies of Michigan whose annual output is about 4,000,000 barrels, are very much pleased over a new tariff rate on eastern-made cement, which becomes operative March 25. The new rate will be worth about 3 cents a barrel to the Michigan manufacturers, or approximately $120,000 a year. The interstate commerce commission approves the new rate, and the Michigan state railroad commission will also officially sanction it.

The new rate will remove the discrimination in favor of Lehigh Valley and other eastern made cements which, it is asserted, has existed for some years. This discrimination, cement men say, was the main cause of putting four Michigan cement companies out of business in the past three years. For a little more than three years a contest has been on in the courts, the interstate commerce commission and the state railroad commission, between the cement manufacturers and the railroads over freight rates. This contest now ends,

All of us | erest of them all), James Clark Ross, came, in February, 1842, upon this remarkable ice wall. Even at that time he observed the great bay, but, of course, did not venture into it with salling vessels. For years after the Barrier was regarded as a bar to all further advance southward.

"It fell to the lot of a Norwegian, Carsten Borchgrevink, in the Southern Cross in 1900, to prove that this was not the case. He succeeded in entering a small bay (which has since disappeared and been merged with the adjoining great bay), and thence getting on to the Barrier. Here he made a short expedition and found that the Barrier extended southwards in the form of a wide, level plain, reaching as far as the eye could see. This demolished the theory of its unassailable character, and opened the way towards the south, Subsequently an Englishman, Captain Scott, succeeded in landing in Mac-Murdo strait and thence made an expedition southwards. Sir Ernest Shackleton's brilliant expedition in 1908, in which he reached a latitude of 88 degrees 23 minutes, will be known to everybody. "The great bay, running southwest into the Barrier, which I have chosen as the base of an expedition towards the south pole, has been observed not only by Ross and Borchgrevink, but also by Scott and Shackleton, and thus appears to be a constant formation, something that can be counted upon. Shackleton also thought he saw a ridge of hills at the head of this bay, which would indicate land. After reading these various accounts and thinking the matter over, I came to the conclusion that this bay, which has been proved to have had the same situation for a period of 60 years could not be a chance formation in the Barrier caused by the breaking off of icebergs, but must have been produced by underlying land or rising ground. If not, the Barrier would have continued its course unchecked and no ay would have been formed. "The day after we sighted the Barrier we reached this bay, still in the same situation-about longitude 164 degrees west. It was so full, however, of recently 'roken up bay ice that there was no question of getting We therefore took a little run eastwards along the edge of the Barrier to await events. The next mornin; (January 13) we returned, and then found that so much of the ice had floated out that there was an opportunity for us to get in. My belief as to the origin of the bay was dealers everywhere, but the truth of strengthened as we got farther south; the formations stood out more | without cost by sending to "Cuticura," clearly and sharply, and at the south- Dept. "It is three weeks since we began the building of our station, and now everything is ready. The desolate, icy landscape has undergone a great mail to families everywhere, saving middlements everything is ready. The desolate, icy change. The silence is broken. Where formerly only a solitary penguin or the track of a seal crossed the height there now lies a whole little village. Our solidly built little house stands safe and secure, sunk four feet down in snow as hard as rock and supported by backstays on all sides. We have given it the name of Framheim. Its longitude is about 164 deg. west, its latitude 78 deg. 40 minutes south, so that it is probably the most southerly human habitation. Round it are set up fifteen tents large enough to accommodate sixteen men each, for the use of the dogs and as storehouses for our provisions, coal, wood, clothing, etc.

"The principal food depot is about a kilometer from the station and contains provisions sufficient for two years. "WHY SHOULD I USE CUTICURA SOAP?"

"There is nothing the matter with my skin, and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, is is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary tolles soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and. these claims may be demonstrated

Its patented hollow blocks of vitrified clay, have double dead air spaces to prevent severe freezing. They absorb no maisture and will never crumble or decay. An IMPERISHABLE SILO, never blows down, which is in marked contrast with stave silos. Superior to concrete for it is acid, proof and non-porous. It keeps the silage perfectly clear up to the wall. Can not crack or bulge from pressure of silage as the channel blocks carry steel bars buried in mortar, protected from air and can not rust. These afford abundant strength and are warranted to resist silage pressure.

THE GIRL Trom =

By MARIE VAN VORST Mustrations by M. G. KETTNER

(Copyright, 1910, by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.) SYNOPSIS.

Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the affty-million-dollar copper king of Blair-town, Mont. is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church, and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a Loydon theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Poniotowsky is sultor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily; he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty fil from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Danto build a home for disappointed theatrical people. Pan visits Lily, for the time forgetting Letty, and later announces his engagement to the duchess. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money, and it is disclosed that he and the duchess have been mutually in love for years.

Dan felt his heart grow cold. If she had awakened him when he was a little boy, she thrilled him now; he could have wept. Lady Calwarn did wipe tears away. When the last note of the accompaniment had ended, Dan's friend at his side said: "How utterly ravishing! What a beautiful, lovely creature!"

He scarcely answered. He was making his way to Letty Lane, and he wrung her hand, murmuring, "Oh, you're great; you're great!" And the pleasure on his face repaid her over and over again. "Come, I want you to meet the Duchess of Breakwater, and some other friends of mine."

As he let her little cold hand fall and turned about, the room as by magic had cleared. The prime minister had arrived late and was in the other room. The refreshments were also being served. There was no one to meet Letty Lane, except for several young men who came up eagerly and asked to be presented, Gordon Galorey among them.

"Where's Lily?" Dan asked him; "I want her to meet Miss Lane."

"In the conservatory with the prime minister," and Galorey looked meaningly at Dan, as much as to say, "Now don't be an utter fool."

But Letty Lane herself saved the situation. She shook hands with the utmost cordiality and sweetness with the men who had been presented to her, and asked Dan to take her to her motor. He waited for her at the door and she came down wrapped around as usual in her filmy scarf. "Are you better?" he asked eagerly.

"You look awfully stunning, and I don't think I can ever thank you enough."

She assured him that she was "all right," and that she had a "lovely new role to learn and that it was coming on next month." He helped her in and she seemed to fill the motor like a basket of fresh white flowers. Again he repeated, as he held the door open:

"I can't thank you enough; you were a great success."

She smiled wickedly, and couldn't resist:

"Especially with the women." Dan's face flushed; he was already deeply hurt for her, and her words showed him that the insult had gone

"Where are you going now?" "Right to the Savoy."

Without another word, hatless as he was, he got into the motor and closed

"I'm going to take you home," he enformed her quietly, "and there's no use in looking at me like that either! When I'm set on a thing I get it!"

They rolled away in the bland sunset, passed the park, down Piccadilly, where the flowers in the streets were so sweet that they made the heart sche, and the air through the window was so sweet that it made the senses in the drawing-room in leaving, and thought the boy's face was a study. The duchess held out her hand to Dan as he came across the room.

"Come here," she called agreeably. "Every one has gone, thank heaven! I've been waiting for you for an age. Let's talk it all over."

She couldn't quite shake him off. He was beginning to be imperious in his demands on her; and, in spite of her cupidity and her debts, in spite of the precarious position in which she found herself with Dan, she could not break with Galorey yet. She went upstairs humming under her breath the ballad Letty Lane had sung in the music room:

"And long may his lady look from the castle wall."

Bay of Islands is a picturesque place, attractive in the summer, even though a winter's stay there would prove monotonous. As its name implies, it is studded with islands, some of which rise to a lofty height. At its entrance the bay is 15 miles wide, and it is there that most of the islands are situated. Easily accessible, it is a spacious inlet, being 15 miles in depth, with a fine anchorage on the southern side. From the eastern side of the bay several arms make out, known as North, South and Humber Arms, or to fishermen, as Big, Little and Middle Arms. The most important of these arms is that called Humber sound, which extends from the southeastern part of the bay for about 28 miles easterly into the country. The river Humber is at its mouth, and is the second largest stream of the island. To the south of the sound rises a range of hills called Blo-mi-don, or Blow-me-down lills, varying in height from 800 to 1,000 feet. THE USE OF DRIED FRUITS.

Most housekeepers hardly appreciate the value of dried fruits. They are much more wholesome for the children's eating than the sweet preserves and canned fruit that is considered necessary in nearly all homes. One of the mistakes of the housewife in her lack of appreciation is that she doesn't cook such fruits long enough to develop the flavor, so they think they are tasteless and unpalatable, and give up serving them at all. The secret of delicious dried fruit is long, slow cooking. The fireless cooker is an ideal place to cook dried Plants may also be set in the fall, if extra attention and care are given them. It does not pay to set the plants in dry soil or in a dry season, unless plenty of water for irrigation purposes is available.

Any land that will grow a good crop of corn will grow strawberries. Sod land should never be used if it can be prevented, as it is likely to contain grubs and cut-worms, which will eat off the roots of newly-set plants. A well-drained, friable clay loam is probably best for strawberries-a soil that warms up easily and yet will hold sufficient moisture for the crop.

Strawberries require a rich soil, hence it is well to thoroughly manure the land that is to be used for the crop in the fall, and plow under from four to six inches deep. In the spring disk, drag and smooth thoroughly. This gives a loose soil in which to set the plants, and a firm sub-soil to hold the moisture, and yet open enough to let the roots through. A northern slope is to be preferred, as the plants do not start so early in the spring. They thus escape the early frosts and they are not so likely to be dried out by the hot winds at fruiting time. Many growers, however, obtain good results on a south-

REVOLUTION IN MEXICO

First Big Battle Is Imminent at Torreon This Week.

That the first big battle of the revolution, possibly the deciding one, will be fought at Torreon during the present week is the bellef following recelpt of dispatches that rebel forces in Lauguna have occupied Gomez Palacio and that Orozco's army will reach Terreon shortly. Gomez Palacio is four miles from Torreon. The main body of Orozco's troops are on their way and rebels from the Lauguna district are arriving. Federal troops from Mexico City are hurrying toward Torreon, though they have been delayed by burned bridges.

That the entire rebel and federal main forces will engage with 5,000 to 8,000 men on a side is the general bein Address.

Conception of What the Organization Ought to Stand for Set Forth

A very clear conception of what the Grange organization should be and should stand for was well set forth in the recent annual address of Mrs. Sarah G. Baird of Minnesota, who has the distinction of being the only woman in the world who is the master of a State Grange organization Mrs. Baird said in part:

"Every Subordinate Grange should be an active aggressive force, not a factious meddler, but a potent influence for good, doing its work so well that it will command respect, elevating the standard of farm homes and improving the condition of the occupants of those homes. We must cultivate those graces and virtues that wifi bind us closer together in one harmonious band.

"We are taught the importance of securing sufficient growth of mind and soul to enable us to avoid all differences of a personal nature, to forget and forgive much that seems sharp, harsh and uncalled for, to overcome evil with good. The amount of good accomplished always depends upon the individual responsibility and individual effort; and if these are real ized and rightly directed they will lead out of the old ways and into new and better ways. It would set the members of the Grange to studying their own especial lines of business, to better understand them in all their phases of operation and management

"The Grange has been a leader in many sections in successful co-operative effort. Farmers generally do not understand the importance of this, and as a result receive the least for their labor of any who toil. It is estimated that nine-tenths of all farm and breathed in her ear: business is still handled on a non-cooperative basis, in the face of repeat ed demonstrations of the effectiveness along?" of co-operation in securing larger returns to the farmer. Granges should discuss this matter, consider it seriously. Get together for business. Get what money you are entitled to. Make your business as profitable as any other requiring equal intelligence, invest ment, skill and labor.

"The inspiration to agricultural progress has come from within our order. And its future depends on united action of its membership exerting all their influence to secure for agriculture and the farmers some of the comforts and luxuries of life they sc richly deserve. The Grange must help decide whether the government shall control the corporations or the corporations control the government; whether the cost of distribution shall take two-thirds of the dollar, or whether agriculture shall receive a square deal. A right decision can only be secured through ably directed and loyally supported organizations. Union means *power, co-operation, victory. There is no salvation for farmers except through the effort of enlightened and aroused farmers themselves."

A Competent Leader.

The new master of the New York State Grange, Mr. Willet H. Vary of Watertown, has the advantage of bringing to his position a large experience in Grange work. He is 67 years old and was born and reared on a farm, being for years a large cheese maker. YPSILANTI—Mr. Joseph Warner, master of the Ypsilanti Grange, and one of the most enthusiastic workers in the county for the adoption of the county system, slipped on an icy side-walk in Ypsilanti Sunday night and injured himself so severely that he will probably be confined to his home for six weeks, Mr. Warner was walking allow the hair roots has been extinguished, ting down Pearl street when his foot struck a sheet of ice. In attempting to save himself he wrenched his left ankle, tearing the ligaments of one side almost entirely loose from the bone. The attending physician said today that it would be six weeks before Mr. Warner would be able to use the injured foot.

While working on a car these steps gave way and Wier was precipitated to the cement floor of the basement, with a crank shaft and the heavy fly wheel of the engine, the distance being about ten feet. He sustained a broken jaw bone, an injured leg and other bruises that will lay him up for some time. How he could have fallen such a distance with the heavy parts of the engine and escaped being killed outright is hard to understand.
