THE PIONEER SOCIETY.

Held Annual Meeting in Chelsea Wednesday—Good Attendance.

The annual meeting of the Washtenaw Pioneer and Historical Society was held in the Baptist church Wednesday of this week. There were about eighty-five members of the society present from different parts of the county and enjoyed themselves by relating many incidents that occurred in the pioneer days. The ladies of the Baptist church served the dinner.

There were two sessions, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon. The sessions were presided over by Jay Everett, president of the society. The following program was carried out: Music; Rev. C. J. Dole read the 90th psalm and offered a prayer; address of welcome by the president; secretary, Robert Campbell read his report; treasurer, O. C. Burkhardt read his report which showed a balance on hand of $22.80; necrologist, Geo. McDougall, reported 113 deaths in the society during the past year, the oldest being Mrs. Mercy Boyd, who died last February at her home in this place, aged 101 years; miscellaneous business and reports of standing committees. At noon the society adjourned for dinner.

The afternoon session opened with a musical selection; report of nominating committee; reading obituaries of deceased members and short talks. It was decided to hold the annual meeting at Ypsilanti in June of next year.

Sneak Day by Senior Class.

The senior class accompanied by Miss Leona Belser and Supt. and Mrs. Hendry chartered a special car for Detroit intending to spend the day in Bob-Lo but as the boats making this trip were engaged by the Parke-Davies people they were compelled to journey to Belle Isle. Dinner was served soon after the arrival at the island after which the afternoon was spent in canoeing, and sight-seeing around the island. A few of the class chaperoned by Russell Emmett and Clayton Heschelwerdt could not forgo the pleasure of visiting the native land of our superintendent. They report that the things most in evidence were signs reading "Marriage licences here." The chaperons claim they had some difficulty in keeping some of the class out of these places.

At five o'clock supper was served after which the entire company boarded the Britannia and spent the remainder of the day riding back and forth to Belle Isle. At eight o'clock the special left for home. The entire class report that it was one of the happiest days of their lives.

Children's Day Exercises.

The children's day was fittingly observed by the Sunday school in the Methodist church last Sunday morning. The large auditorium of the church was well filled and the special music which was rendered by the Misses Bacon, Barch and Riemschneider was a treat for all who were present.

The baptismal service was very impressive and the pastor, Rev. J. W. Campbell administered the sacrament to Raymond Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Dancer, and to Albert Ethlyn and Robert Orrin, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Winans. A very attractive feature of the program was the cradle-rol parade, when ten handsome decorated floats each containing two small children were drawn twice around the church by twenty little girls singing while they marched "Hosannah to the Children's King." The choruses by sixteen girls, the primary department, the ten "Little Buttercups" solos by Elsie Glenn, Bernice Prudden, Kenneth Broesamle, Doris Foster; the address of welcome by Ralph Axtell and recitations by Mark Glenn, Lucile Broesamle, Louis Stipe, Eleanor Nagle, Doris Dancer and Paul Glenn called forth unlimited applause. A very generous offering was contributed which will go for the education of poor students.

Children's day exercises at the Congregational church last Sunday morning by the Sunday school was a very enjoyable event. Except one song by the primary, the music was rendered in five sections by the class of girls taught by Miss Leona Belser. Prof. Hildebrand presided at the pipe organ throughout the entire program.

The program was varied one, from the inspiring recitations of the small child to the flag salute and dialogues by a class of boys.

Three children were baptised and five boys and two girls graduated from the primary into the main Sunday school. The graduating exercises consisted of the concert recitation of the 23d psalm. A Bible was presented to each graduate. Five of the scholars having been present every Sunday of the year, were given Bibles and other books, and in presenting the Bibles the pastor, Rev. C. J. Dole, gave to each a card with two verses of Scripture beginning with the initials of their given and surnames.

The following are the names of the graduates: Allen Kaecher, Rowena Waitrous, Lee Whipple, Percy Brooks, Llewlyn Hughes, Florence Vogel, Clarence Leach. Those present every Sunday during the year were: Ruth Dancer, William Freeman, Marion Gentner, John Bacon, Floyd Gentner.

A very liberal offering was contributed which will go to the Sunday School Missionary Society.

Don't fail to hear Mr. Harry Newton, in the leading part of Joe Morgan, with Eiler's Ten Nights in a Bar Room at Chelsea June 16, under canvas.

Howard Everett.

Jay Everett and wife were among the large number that went to California in those early days when the lure of gold and adventure drew so many from their eastern homes to that land of expectation. They were young people from Washtenaw county and had been married only a few years.

While residing at Alameda on San Francisco Bay, their first child was born October 1, 1854, and was named Howard. When two years of age, the parents sought again the home land and settled on a farm adjoining the original Everett homestead in Sharon township, Washtenaw county. Here the early years of Howard were spent. His education was begun in the district school and here he learned those elements of industry and application to the duty at hand, that has been characteristic of his whole life.

About the age of 20 he sought a wider training for life's work in the schools of Grass Lake, Ypsilanti and Detroit. When this was completed he, like many boys, tried to find a business opening that would be more congenial and afford a larger return than the farm; but after an extended search, returned to the farm and has ever since made it his home. At first as a partner with his father and later as owner of the ancestral acres and home. Other land was added from time to time as opportunity and ability afforded until at his death there were 360 acres under cultivation—provided with up to date buildings and equipment.

His first marriage was July 21, 1880, to Miss Agnes Allyn. Two children were given to them, a boy who lived only four months, and Susa who still survives and is well and favorably known in this community. Death took the first wife after ten years of companionship.

His second marriage occurred January 1, 1892, to Miss Myrtle Spalding. Four children remain from this union, Merle, Clarence, Harmon and Esther. Twenty years ago he became a member of the Baptist church of Chelsea. During these years he has had a deep personal and growing interest in all its activities. By his presence with his family, at its many services and by his counsel as well as his finances has contributed to its sustenance and upbuilding.

Realizing the importance of co-operation and social fellowship he has always taken an active interest in the Farmer's Club of this section, was also a member of the Grange.

Perhaps, because of his own experience he has appreciated the value of education for his children and has encouraged them to secure it as rapidly as possible. Susa has graduated from high school and from Kalamazoo college. Clarence is a member of the graduating class of Chelsea high school of 1912. The other boys are in high school classes and Esther is in the grades.

For three years his health has not been perfect; but there seemed to be no well defined disease until last August when the break came. The physicians pronounced the trouble "Hodgkins Disease." After a few weeks of sickness a strong constitution seemed to assert itself for a time but since January there has been a constant falling with intense suffering. In the winter the family moved to Chelsea that better conditions of recovery might be provided, but though every attention that medical skill and loving friends could provide, was given the grim reaper claimed his own on Friday, June 7, 1912.

The funeral service was held from the home in Chelsea on Monday, conducted by Rev. R. C. Fennor, a brother-in-law, and attended by a large number of relatives and friends. Interment was made in the family lot in Vermont cemetery there to await the resurrection call.

Improving Their Property.

Wm. Schatz is having his residence on Lincoln street pebble dashed. J. L. Klein, of Sharon, is having several improvements made to his farm residence.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL.

The Commencement Exercises will be Held Sunday Evening, June 23.

The commencement exercises of the eighth grade of St. Mary's school will be held in the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening, June 23. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Fr. Doyle, of Jackson.

The program for the evening will be as follows:

Processional—Hymn of the Blessed Virgin.
Sermon—"Christian Education"—Rev. Fr. Doyle.
Conferring of Diplomas and Distribution of Premiums by Rev. Fr. Conside.
Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.
Recessional—"Hymn to the Pope."

Baseball Notes.

Last Sunday the Chelsea base ball team defeated the Jackson Independents by a score of 12 to 3. Dillon Kratzmiller, Bacon and Kelley for Chelsea, did some fine work at bat, getting six singles, one double and one triple. Barry in the box for the locals only allowed three scratch hits and had 14 strike-outs to his credit.

Sunday, June 16, the Jackson Stars of Equity will cross bats with Chelsea at Ahnemann park. This team is exceptionally fast and a good game is sure to be seen on this date. Chelsea will be strengthened by the services of Chas. Kelley who returns from school Thursday. The manager of the Chelsea team wishes to thank the public for the support they gave last Sunday and as long as the people turn out they will be sure of seeing first-class baseball. There will be lots of good teams coming here this year.

Troutner, of Detroit; Good Lucks, of Detroit; Superior Mfg. Co. of Ann Arbor; Sparks-Wilmington Co. of Jackson, and others.

Engagement Is Announced.

Formal announcement of the wedding of Miss Margery Murray and Lee E. Chandler, on June 26, was made at a charming four-course six o'clock dinner given at the home of Miss Murray's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Murray, Lawrence avenue. Saturday evening, 20 of Miss Murray's young lady friends being present.

The house was prettily decorated. May poles being the center pieces at the tables. Pink roses were used throughout. The announcement was made, two hearts having the initials inside.

Miss Alice Chandler of Chelsea and Miss Hazel Burris of Jackson were out of town guests.

The bride-to-be is one of Charlotte's most charming young ladies. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Murray and Charlotte has always been her home. She is a graduate of the Charlotte high school and graduated from the Maryland College for Women, last year. Since New Year's she has been teaching in the Charlotte school, in place of Miss Spaulding, resigned.

Mr. Chandler has made Charlotte his home for the past three years, being employed in the drug store of Roehm & Moyer. His home previous to coming to Charlotte was in Chelsea. Mr. Chandler is a fine young man and has a host of friends in Charlotte.—Charlotte Tribune.

They Paid For The Fun.

Ann Arbor Times News: Justice Doty Tuesday morning fined David Fisher, of Jackson, $25 and costs for refusing to let Deputy Game Warden Otto Rohn search his boat on a lake in Lyndon township Sunday. Fisher attempted to push Rohn out of the boat and refused to submit to search until the game warden covered him with a gun. J. B. Buckley, Lyndon, and Samuel Stockdale, of Allegan, both of whom were caught nearby about the same time, each paid fines of $10 and costs Tuesday morning. Buckley was charged with using a spear and Stockdale with having caught a big mouth black bass out of season. All three pleaded guilty to the charges brought against them.

Princess Theatre.

For their Saturday night feature at the Princess the management has secured the ever popular play "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" in two reels or over 2000 feet. The picture is about the best drawing card ever produced and the very fact that it can be seen for a dime, along with other pictures, should pack the Princess Saturday evening.

EXECUTIONS IN OLD BAILEY

Breakfast Was Served to the Guests Invited to See Hanging of Criminals.

Executions, when criminals were hanged in the Old Bailey in London, had certain customary sequels. The governor of Newgate, for instance, always gave a breakfast to those friends he had invited to see the hanging, and by established custom the principal dish, although, as John Hollingshead had related, nearly every one was obliged to swallow a glass of brandy first.

Another function described in "London in the Sixties" was the reception held afterward by the hangman at the Green Dragon, in Fleet street, where he took refreshment with his admirers and sold the fatal rope at the rate of sixpence per inch.

In the good old times nearly every criminal who was executed was credited with a confession and "last dying words," whether he uttered them or not. According to Case and Comment these were printed in thousands by Mr. Catnach of Seven Dials. And sometimes an offender was relieved on his way to Tyburn and had the pleasure, like Lord Brougham, of reading his own obituary notice.

Many of these broadsides, printed on a peculiar white-brown paper, can still be obtained in the neighborhood of the Dials at certain quaint little shops that seem to have defied all time and the "improvement acts." You can see them in the window alongside of old ballads, forgotten comic songs, children's toys, and bottles of sticky looking sweets.

An execution which never came off was that of Edward Dennis, the public hangman, who in 1780 was sentenced to death for complicity in the Gordon riots. He was respited and resumed his occupation. So thoroughly did Dennis regain favor that in 1785 the sheriff of London presented him with a gorgeous robe "as a testimony to his excellent model of performing business." Dennis found this robe not only inconvenient when at work but rather conspicuous at other times, so he sold it to Old Cain, a well known charlatan of the day. Decked in the hangman's robe and a pasteboard crown the fortune teller cut an imposing figure.

Wall Paper Wrecked a Family. Everything was running smoothly with Mr. and Mrs. James A. Mackay of Yonkers until they tried to select the color of the paper for the wall. Then they had a dispute that led to a separation and to court. Mrs. Mackay suggested having the wall of their home papered. Mackay consented and expressed his preference for green. Mrs. Mackay said red would please her better. Mrs. Mackay's mother, 80 years old, said red was the only decent color for wall paper and bade her daughter go and buy it. Mackay was offended and bade his mother-in-law depart. Mrs. Mackay told her to remain. Mackay packed his grip and departed.

Child's Act Delayed Wedding. Just as a prospective bride and bridegroom were about to be married the other night at the home of the bride's parents in Pittsburgh, Pa., the marriage license was missed and the young couple and their assembled friends and relatives were thrown into a state of consternation. The ceremony was delayed 15 minutes while a frenzied search was made. Finally the document was found clasped in the chubby fist of an infant daughter of one of the guests, the child having been attracted by the large gold seal on the document.

British Possessions in South Africa. The British possessions in South Africa, comprise Cape Colony, Natal, the Orange River Colony, the Transvaal, and the protectorates of Bechuanaland and Basutoland, with an aggregate area of about 865,000 square miles, and a population of about five and one-half millions. To the north Rhodesia extends into the heart of the continent; but South Rhodesia, bounded on the north by Zambesi, may be included in South Africa. The only territory in the United States proper is the District of Columbia, Arizona and New Mexico having been admitted to statehood.

Chance and Choice. "So you are going to marry Tom?" "You saw the announcement, didn't you?" "Yes, but—" "It wasn't a fake." "But, dearie—I never thought that Tom would be your choice." "Tom ain't my choice. He's my chance. Have you any other questions to ask, darling?" "Darling decided she hadn't."

Kittens Saved By a Life. Two kittens that followed him wherever he went, were responsible for saving the life of a little two-year-old child living in Plain Sun, Md. Missing her son, the mother made a search and across the fields saw the kittens walking to and fro on the banks of a pond. She hastened to the scene, and noticing a bubble on the surface of the water, jumped in, the child being almost to her neck, and found the boy. Restoratives were applied, several hours elapsing before respiration became normal.

PRIMARY FUND LAW HITS MANY SCHOOLS

WHERE MONEY IS ON HAND TO PAY TEACHERS, NOTHING IS TO BE GIVEN BONDS.

NEW LEGISLATION PREVENTS SHARING IN STATE CASH.

Statistics Compiled Show That 496 School Districts Will Not Share in July Apportionment of School Money.

Statistics compiled by the state superintendent of public instruction show that under the law passed by the 1911 legislature, 496 school districts in the state representing 43,182 children of school age will not share in the July apportionment of primary school money. Under the law no school district in the state having enough money on hand to pay teachers' salaries for two years is entitled to share in any apportionment of school money.

The school census of the state shows a total of 782,727 children of school age. State officers say the primary apportionment this year will amount to at least $8 per capita, and in that event $345,456 will be distributed that would have gone to the 496 districts. There are 7,384 school districts in the state and 496 of them are affected by the law.

The amount of money disbursed this year will reach an enormous sum. Taking the 496 districts, representing 43,182 school children out of the entire school census, there are 739,545 school children to share in the apportionment and making approximately $5,916,360.

There are a number of counties in the state not affected by the new law. Again, there are a large number whose income from the primary school fund will be decreased to a large extent. Among those counties hit the hardest are Bay, Huron, Macomb, Saginaw, Tuscola and Wayne.

MARINES LAND IN CUBA.

President Gomez is Unable to Protect Property of Foreigners.

With the sending of 450 United States marines into Cuban territory followed by the order for four battleships of the Atlantic fleet carrying 1,000 marines to proceed at once to Guantanamo, the Cuban situation advanced one step further toward a third American intervention.

The moves made were accompanied by and in response to most alarming reports of conditions in Cuba.

All information received in Washington from numerous sources realized fears previously entertained by the progress of the negro uprising. Depredations on American property by negro rebels are increasing and Americans in Cuba are now demanding that the United States afford that protection to American interests which the Cuban government has failed to provide.

UNION LABOR LAWS.

Conference of Governors of Michigan and Five Other States to be Called.

A conference of governors of six states looking to uniform labor legislation and a uniform enforcement of the various laws is being arranged. J. W. Smith, of Detroit, deputy state factory inspector and secretary and treasurer of the labor commissioners' international organization, has been instructed to send invitations to the governors of Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota. It is desired to hold this conference soon, the program and the place to be selected by the governors, with a strong possibility that it will be held in Detroit. This was decided on at the meeting of factory inspectors and labor commissioners from all the states held in Washington.

Ann Arbor Ry. May Buy M. & G. Ry. The Manistee board of trade is endeavoring to induce the Ann Arbor Railroad Co. to make that city its principal Lake Michigan port. The Ann Arbor now runs ferry lines from Frankfort to Manitowoc and Menominee, and the Manistee people hope to capture this business. If a large appropriation for the improvement of Manistee harbor is made at the present session of congress it is understood that the Ann Arbor will purchase the Manistee and Grand Rapids road, running from Manistee to Marion, where it connects with the Ann Arbor. The M. & G. R. has been on the market for some time.

Stephen A. Chase, of Fall River, Mass., treasurer of the Christian Science church of America, is dead after a few days illness.

George Edmund Foss, aged 82, father of Gov. Eugene N. Foss, of Massachusetts and Congressman Geo. E. Foss, of Illinois, is dead.

Analysis proves that a piece of metal weighing 55 pounds, which Wallace Smeak plowed up on his farm near Shelby, is native copper, testing out 95-98 pure. It is believed it was transported to Oceana county from the Lake Superior country during the glacial period.

A special election is to be held in Ludington June 27 to vote on a proposition to bond the city for $50,000 for street improvements.

During the funeral of Mrs. James Parkhurst of Flint, a party of motorists in six machines forced the funeral cortege from the road into the ditch. The police are trying to learn the names of the "joy riders."

A dull coal market is having its effect on mining conditions in Saginaw. The principal consumers are the railroads, and they are keeping a few mines busy. The mines will run full capacity as soon as present stocks are exhausted.

FRENCH SUBMARINE SUNK

Vessel Cut in Two by Battleship in Collision Off Cherbourg.

One of the worst disasters in the long series of accidents that has marked the use of submarines in the French navy occurred near Cherbourg when the submarine Vendeuvre was struck by the battleship St. Louis and sank in 180 feet of water.

There were three officers and 24 enlisted men on board the tiny craft when she was sent to the bottom, and there is no hope that any of them are alive. At the time of the disaster a squad of battleships were engaged in maneuvers with the submarine fleet.

The accident occurred between Aurigny island and Cape Hague, in the Race of Alderney, where violent tidal currents prevail. The battleship was steaming along quietly.

Rebel Agent Nabbed in Texas.

Gonzale C. Enrile, until recently financial agent of the Mexican revolution, is under arrest in El Paso. Wounded by stabs and bullets from would-be assassins, Enrile reached Juarez on his way to Los Angeles, Cal., for treatment. He came to El Paso and was arrested by Texas Rangers. No charge has been made against Enrile, but Mexican Consul Lorente had been busy wiring to Mexico City in an endeavor to establish a case that will warrant the United States holding the wounded man for extradition proceedings.

Rebels Make Attack on U. S. Marines.

Co. A. of the United States Marines, guarding property at Cuero mines, near Santiago, Cuba, was attacked by rebels in the darkness. More than 100 shots were fired before the negro insurgents were driven off. There were no casualties. The marines were under command of Capt. Manwaring. These were the first shots that have been fired against United States marines since men have been landed from warships for the protection of property.

QUEEN ALEXANDRINA.

The new queen of Denmark was Princess Alexandrina of Mecklenburg-Schwerin when she married the crown prince in 1898. She is the mother of two sons.

Mrs. Caspar Marcus of Saginaw, who was shot twice by her husband, who killed himself, will recover, says attending physicians.

Four boys may lose their sight and two others were seriously injured as the result of the explosion of a can of giant powder which one of their number found on a pile of refuse in Jersey City, N. J.

Women relatives of the United States army and navy officers will back the movement to erect in Washington a great monument to the men who died on the Titanic to save the women and children.

It is the intention of P. A. B. Widener to build a wing to Harvard university library in which to house the almost priceless treasures of his grandson, Harry E. Widener, who lost his life when the Titanic went down.

Grand jury action against witnesses who testified in the trial of the Chicago meat packers, who were acquitted on a charge of violating the criminal section of the Sherman law last winter, may not be taken up until next fall.

Methodist preachers of Chicago have agreed that hereafter they will not marry divorced persons who refuse to grant 10 days for the examination of their records. These preachers believe that this precaution will tend to lessen the number of divorces.

The Tacoma anti-treating ordinance is valid, the supreme court ruled, in upholding a conviction in a Tacoma, Wash., justice court. It was shown that a saloonkeeper had served drinks to two persons, and one had paid for the liquor. The court says regulation of "treating" is not a violation of any right of an individual.

The Marcellus Improvement association has leased 10 lots for five years to be used as a ball park. The grounds are being put in shape and a fence and grandstand erected.

Because of a serious shortage, the Canadian government has reduced by one-half the duty on cement and water lime in barrels, bags or casks. The reduction will apply between June 1 and Oct. 31, 1912. The duty in the period mentioned will be 26 cents on importations from the United States, 17 cents on those from Great Britain and 25 cents when bought in Belgium, which comes under the intermediate tariff.

LAPEER HIT BY $100,000 FIRE

BUSINESS BLOCK VIRTUALLY DESTROYED AND SEVERAL FIRMS SUFFER.

TELEPHONE GIRLS STUCK UNTIL RESCUED BY FIREMEN.

The Village of Ortonville, Oakland County Also Hit Hard by Fire—Flint Fire Department Called On.

An entire business block on Main street in Lapeer was practically destroyed by fire. The loss is $97,000. The blaze was discovered in the Henderson department store. The department store occupies a three-story brick structure. The flames rapidly worked their way into the ceiling and communicated with the adjoining buildings.

The telephone office and telegraph office were soon filled with smoke and the operators forced to abandon their instruments. This cut off communication with nearby cities and forced the volunteer fire department to work alone. The postoffice was also in the affected district and it was closed early.

Fire at Ortonville.

The greater part of the business section of Ortonville was wiped out by fire. The fire started in Sherman Bros' general store. Lack of equipment handicapped the local fire department, and Flint was called on for aid. The Flint department sent their gasoline fighting apparatus. It made the trip of 25 miles in 45 minutes. The fire was soon under control after the arrival of the Flint men.

DR. W. H. KESSLER DEAD

Past Grand Commander K. T. Died as Result of Overstrain at Conclave.

Dr. William H. Kessler, past grand commander of the Knights Templar of Michigan, died at his home in Detroit. Dr. Kessler's death was sudden. Last week during the state conclave in Detroit he was stricken while reviewing the exhibition drills on Belle Isle. He recovered sufficiently to be able to attend the sessions of the grand commandery next day.

Dr. Kessler was very active in Masonry, being the past eminent commander of Detroit Commandery, No. 1, a member of the Michigan Sovereign Consistory and of Peninsular Chapter R. A. M. He was presented with the past grand commander's jewel only last week.

His death recalls the death of the late James Findlater, eminent grand commander, who died last year during the state conclave at Saginaw.

CAN VOTE TAXES

School District Boards, Not Electors, Have Power.

Important changes in the school law make the election of suitable officers at the annual school meeting to be held in Lansing on Monday, July 8, in the various districts throughout the state of vital importance. Under the law, as amended by the 1911 legislature, the school district being able legally to vote money only for the erection of school houses, buying of sites and the payment of tuition in excess of $20 per pupil. Taxes for all other purposes are voted by the school board. The board is to use its own judgment as to the amount of taxes necessary for repairs on school property, new school equipment, fuel, teachers' wages, water supply, heating plant, apparatuses such as woodshed, fence, etc. The electors have no right to let contracts for fuel or anything else, nor to dictate as to the amount of their wages. Such business is left entirely to the board.

Michigan Men to Leave Washington. Members of the Michigan delegation discouraged by the indications of an all-summers session, are planning to leave Washington before adjournment. The on-to-Michigan movement will be headed by Congressman Fordney, of Saginaw. He will leave, intending to remain away until December. Rep. J. M. C. Smith says he will not stay in Washington after July 1, and Congressman Hamilton is planning to get away about that time. Senator William Alden Smith and the other members of the committee on territories will leave for Alaska as soon as congress adjourns. They expect to make a trip to the interior to investigate the possibilities of developing the coal fields and the construction of railroads.

Helen Hearn, of Saginaw, is one of three women now in the United States against whom divorce proceedings have been started in parliament at Ottawa.

Mrs. Anna Johnson, Schoolcraft county, has been awarded $728 damages against Philip Grouden, saloon keeper, because he sold liquor to her husband, who abused her while drunk.

One hundred high school and Y. W. C. A. girls of Muskegon won 10,000 tags and raised $1,100 for the safe and sane celebration of the Fourth.

The Detroit Zouaves won the Elks prize drill on the closing day of the state convention in Saginaw.

The Alpena chamber of commerce has accepted the offer of the Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena railroad to extend its line from Gaylord to Alpena, thus giving the city a new freight outlet to western Michigan and Chicago.

War on the tipping evil and agitation for better sanitary regulations in hotels, including nine-foot sheets and individual towels, are the principal objects to be worked for by the United Commercial Travelers of Michigan during the coming year.

RICHARD LINDABURY

Mr. Lindabury is chief counsel for the United States Steel corporation, whose dissolution the government is seeking to bring about.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Boring for gas or oil is in progress on the Mundy & Fifield farm, north of Saginaw.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dorsey, wife of the fifth white man to settle in Traverse district, north of Frankfort, is dead.

Gov. Osborn has appointed Jacob Fahrner, of Ann Arbor, county auditor for Washtenaw county to fill the vacancy.

Rep. A. McEachren, of the Schoolcraft district in the state legislature, who underwent a delicate surgical operation in Chicago, is recovering.

All the business places of St. Johns were closed during the funeral of Aviator Phil O. Parmelee, who was killed by a fall in Washington.

Battle Creek's original estimate of $1,500,000 for 1912 improvements, will fall short by half a million dollars, according to recent announcements.

Dr. Leon Gillette, formerly mayor and alderman of Battle Creek, was taken to Kalamazoo asylum for treatment. His case is regarded as hopeless.

Crystal Falls citizens have formed an association to protect small taxpayers at the review to be held in Iron county by the state tax commission.

The affairs of the Bank of Ironwood, now closed pending an investigation of the Karste estate in Sheboygan, appear to be in a very muddy condition.

The average daily wage paid workmen in Michigan factories in 1911 was $2.23 as compared with $2.13 in 1910, according to Labor Commissioner Power's report.

Detroit was selected as the next year's meeting place of the state W. C. T. U., which closed its convention in Manistee with the re-election of its old officers.

Pontiac officials are doubtful about solving the identity of the man whose decomposed body was found by children. Nothing has been found that would aid the officers.

By the addition of $100,000 the endowment fund of Hope college, at Holland, has been increased to approximately $500,000. Andrew Carnegie has contributed $25,000.

Charles Crampton, Bay City, was elected president of the Michigan Firemen's association which closed its convention in Kalamazoo. Cheboygan is the 1913 convention city.

A committee of business men have taken up the work of raising $100,000 capital stock to retain the Lion Motor factory in Adrian and which was recently destroyed by fire.

The stock of the Scandinavian Hospital society in Holland will be increased from $15,000 to $30,000 and arrangements will at once be made for an addition to the present building.

Kent camp No. 1080, Grand Rapids, will demand the executive officers of the Modern Woodmen of America to review the manner in which the rate adjustment of last January was accomplished.

The Michigan Pioneer and Historical society took the first step along the lines of making it a state organization. All relics will be kept hereafter by the state rather than by the private organization.

Six states are represented in the graduating class of health and household economies at the sanitarium school, in Battle Creek. Rep. Caroline Bartlett Crane will deliver the commencement address.

The department of public instruction urges all school districts without libraries to establish them. The library costs the district nothing, but entitles it to a share of the fines imposed on offenders in the county.

A $50,000 central heating plant will be erected at Olivet college during the summer. The amount of $15,000 was voted by the board, but it is estimated the cost will be $50,000. Electric lights will also be installed at the college during the coming year.

Charles H. Baugher, of Paw Paw township, was arraigned in the circuit court and pleaded guilty to a charge of having violated the local option law. Baugher furnished Indians whiskey and Judge Des Voignes sentenced him to four months in the Detroit house of correction.

The Michigan Pioneer and Historical society, at Lansing, elected the following officers Friday: President, C. M. Burton, of Detroit; vice-presidents, W. L. Jenks, of Port Huron, and C. E. Bement, of Lansing; treasurer, B. F. Davis, of Lansing; assistant secretary and custodian, Mrs. M. B. Ferry.

INCIDENTS BEFORE THE BIG REPUBLICAN CONTEST IN THE COLISEUM AT CHICAGO

Chicago, June 10.—The chief duty of the Chicago hotel clerk just now is to point out the political celebrities. It has been necessary to describe big men of the convention for persons seeking them so many times that John Burk, head clerk of the Annex, can give finest identifying details of attire and build of a statesman in a moment.

A great part of the population of the hotel consists of newspaper, magazine, and free lance photographers. Twelve snapshots were in an arc about Senator J. M. Dixon of Montana, Colonel Roosevelt's manager, when he consented to be photographed on his arrival.

Before the senator reached the hotel on Wednesday two men had been led out on Michigan avenue by the camera squad in the belief that each of the accommodating strangers was the Montanan. One photographer would be "tipped off" that "the tall, white haired man in the Panama is Senator Dixon."

The stranger at once would be invited out in the street for different poses in the sun. Of the two cases of mistaken identity one was A. B. Butler of Washington, a Taft camp aid. It is said the other was a Boston linen salesman. He did not deny he was Senator Dixon, and posed graciously with and without his hat and facing in different advantageous angles.

A New One From Texas.

Col. Cecil Lyon of the Texas delegation, and an irresponsible supporter of Roosevelt, had a new story to tell to take the place of his old one about the cataclysm in Yoakum county, Texas, where a Democratic county convention instructed for Roosevelt, causing Wilson supporters to bolt.

"I was walking down the street with Charles Hilles in Washington the other day," began Colonel Lyon, after some one had said President Taft's secretary had arrived at the Blackstone hotel.

"A small delivery wagon passed," the colonel continued. "I looked up and saw four large volumes stacked on top with the titles facing us. Three of the books were reports of the Republican conventions of 1900, 1904 and 1908. The fourth was 'Problems of the Day,' by William H. Taft. I directed Mr. Hilles' attention to the load of books. He seemed offended."

Borah's Bushy Hair.

Senator Borah of Idaho is one of the few big men of the convention who cannot be called picturesque, unless his bushy hair entitles him to that description. It is said his only reason for wearing so much hair is to conceal a bad scar on the back of his head received in an accident in his youth.

Mr. Borah, like Jonah K. Kallanias, Hawaiian delegate, has a round, chubby, Buster Brown type of physiognomy. His dignity, however, is such that none would think of calling him "Cupid"—and that is the brown skinned islander's nickname in congress.

Has His Name on $5 Bill. A southern delegate was much excited over the appearance of a tall negro at the Coliseum annex who figured in several conversations.

"Have you a $5 bill?" asked a friend. When the currency was produced the friend called attention to the signature of the registrar of the treasury, Judson Lyon.

"That same dark person over there is Judson Lyon, delegate from Georgia," was the explanation.

Urey Woodson's Story.

Urey Woodson, secretary of the Democratic national committee, is telling a story which has what he claims is a moral.

"You Republicans," says Mr. Woodson, "remind me of old Colonel Gunfire, who, although a Democrat, lived in a stronghold of Republicanism. One winter he blew in and asked to be sworn in as a member of the Democratic legislature."

"Colonel, did you sure enough beat a Republican?"

"Sure, I beat three of 'em at once." "Now that is what we are going to do in less numbers. Get together and scrap, but after it is over watch us Democrats beat two of you, Taft and Teddy, all at once."

Want Sherman Renominated. Former Governor Franklin Murphy of New Jersey took his seat with the national committee minus the vice-presidential boom which he had with him four years ago. This year Mr. Murphy is singing the praises of Vice-President Sherman for another term.

"I know that custom is against renominating a vice-president," he said, "but there is a strong current in favor of renominating Vice-President Sherman and all the gossip I have heard has been for Sherman."

Mr. Murphy added that the "vice-presidential bee" has ceased to buzz in his direction.

A group of out-of-town newspaper representatives were on the point of making an enumeration in the vicinity of the Coliseum of emergency cafes for reference in times of busy sessions.

Col. Cecil Lyon has just put through a motion making newspapermen guests at a cafe service to be installed in headquarters at once, said a committeeman who left the session before adjournment.

Colonel Lyon was proposed for dark horse candidate immediately and unanimously.

Good Nature the Rule.

Good nature is the rule among all the national committeemen and delegates. None is too harassed by zipping political entanglements to deny any one a smile and handshake.

"An old crab has lots of luck in this game—I don't think!" laughed Senator Dixon, Roosevelt's manager, after he had passed out a dozen palm-leaf hand grasps. Then he walked over to former Senator Dick-Taft contest director—in the lobby of the national committee headquarters at the Coliseum annex and slapped him on the back.

"Lo," said Mr. Dixon, "Right back at you, senator," smiled Mr. Dick.

Those who were near the two chiefs of the hostile camps could hear a boyish "Joe" and "Charley" being exchanged at times. They were like college chums. Friendly eye twinkling scenes between chiefs and lieutenant and subalterns of the opposing forces were common.

One noteworthy meeting that started amicably and ended in a torrid argument was between Joseph Keating of Indiana and Congressman Lucius C. Littauer of New York.

Importance of the Bell Boys.

The bell boys of the big hotels have been pressed into service for all sorts of duties. They not only carry water and life preservers to the various headquarters and rooms of delegates, but also serve in the capacity of page, "state house messenger," marshal of delegations, office boy, introducer, and general headquarters attaché.

There are hundreds of different documents to be exchanged between headquarters, with verbal explanations to go to the men in charge.

"Here's the list of delegates from Alabama with the Twenty-third district left out," a delegation chief explains to the boy in buttons. "Take it up to Senator Blank with my compliments, and inform him I will send the rest to him in half an hour."

When a hop was dispatched with a copy of the recommendations of the rules committee, to be submitted to the national committee, a senator remarked:

"That young man has a mission of more widespread influence than that of any other boy in America."

"Whoo-ee," sighed a bell boy. He was counting change. "Nine hours on the hop and only $1.60 in tips. I am going to vote the Democratic ticket straight."

Teddy's Bulldog.

When the Roosevelt press bureau arrived from Washington they brought with them a new campaign song, which is causing a smile even among the Taft delegations. It is to the tune of "Casey Jones."

Teddy's gotta dawg, but he ain't so bound, He's a square jawed bull, and his face is round, His legs is short, and he's close to the ground, And you bet they ain't kickin' Teddy's dawg around.

CHORUS.

Square jawed bull, and his face is round, Squared jawed bull, and his face is bound, Short legged bull, close to the ground, And you bet they ain't kickin' Teddy's bull around.

The Democratic dawg, the unlucky bound That the boys have all been kickin' around Is the same old dawg that's been stickin' in 'em Since old Abe Lincoln came to Washington town.

And now he comes back, the meastly bound, With his face and his tail still hangin' down, The hungry, sly old lop eared bound, No wonder the boys have been kickin' round.

All Taft Types.

It has been noticed that a great part of the delegates that have arrived are robust men. "All Taft types," commented an admirer of the president. Chief among the heavyweights is A. M. Stevenson, Colorado national committeeman, who hails from Denver. Mr. Stevenson weighs more than 300 pounds.

SYNOPSIS.

That Harry Mallory is ordered to the hospital. He and Marjorie Newton, who is his wife, are in the hospital. The doctor says that he is not serious, but that he is very ill. The doctor says that he is not serious, but that he is very ill.

Her nether lip trembled and her eyes were filled, but they were brave, and her voice was so tender that it seemed to him that she was not crying. He looked at her, and found her so dear, so devoted and so pitifully exquisite, that he was almost overcome by an impulse to gather her into his arms and there, and then, indifferent to the immediate passengers or to his far-off military superiors. An hour ago they were young lovers in all the light and glow of elopement. She had clung to him in the gloaming of their taxi, and it sped like a genie at their whim to the place where the minister would unite their hands and raise his voice in blessing. Thence the new husband would have carried the new wife away, his very own, soul and body, duty and beauty. Then, ah, when in their minds the future was an unwinding honeymoon, the journey across the continent, a stroll along a river's lane, the Pacific ocean a garden lake, and the Philippines a chain of fortunate islands decreed especially for their Eden. And then the taxi encountered a lamp-post. They thought they had merely wrecked a motor car—and lo, they had wrecked a Paradise.

The railroad ceased to be a lover's lane and became a lingering torment. The ocean was a wailing Sahara, and the Philippines a Dry Tortugas of exile. Mallory realized for the first time that heavy burdens he had taken on with his shoulder straps; what a dismal life of restrictions and hardships an officer's life is bound to be. Perhaps young Mr. Montague and young Miss Capulet, instead of waiting, "No, that is not the lark whose notes do beat the vaulted heaven so high above our heads," would have done no better than Mr. Mallory and Miss Newton. In any case, the best these two could squeeze out was: "It's just too bad, honey."

"But I guess it can't be helped, dear."

"It's a mean old world, isn't it?"

"Awful!"

And then they must pile out into the street again so lost in woe that they did not know how they were cramped or elowed. Marjorie's despair was so complete that it paralyzed her. She forgot Snoozezzles! A thoughtful passenger ran out and dropped the basket into Mallory's arms as the car moved off.

Fortune relented a moment and they found a taxi cab waiting where they had expected to find it. Once they were cosy in the flying twilight, but their grief was their only baggage, and the clasp of their hands talked all the talk there was.

Anxiety within anxiety tormented them, and they feared another wreck. But as they swooped down upon the station, a kind-faced tower clock reassured the reassurance that they had three minutes to spare.

The taxi cab drew up and halted, but they did not get out. They were saying good-byes, fervently and noisily, while a grinning station porter winked at the winking chauffeur.

Marjorie simply could not have done with farewells.

"I'll go to the gate with you," she said.

He told the chauffeur to wait and take the young lady home. The lieutenant looked so honest and the girl so sad that the chauffeur simply touched his cap, though it was not his custom to allow strange fares to alight in crowded stations, leaving nothing more negotiable than instructions to wait.

CHAPTER IV.

A Mouse and a Mountain.

All the while the fabled elopers were eloping, the San Francisco Chamber was filling up. It had been the receptacle of assorted lots of humanity tumbling into it from all directions, with all sorts of souls, bodies and destinations.

The porter received each with that expert eye of his. His car was his laboratory. A railroad journey is a sort of test-tube of character; strange elements meet under strange conditions and make strange combinations. The porter could never foresee the ingredients of any trip, nor their actions and reactions.

He had no sooner established Mr.

Wedgewood of London and Mr. Ira Lathrop of Chicago, in comparative repose, than his car was invaded by a woman who swung herself into the first seat. She was flushed with running, and breathing hard, but she managed one gasp of relief:

"Thank goodness, I made it in time."

The mere sound of a woman's voice in the seat back of him was enough to disperse Ira Lathrop. With not so much as a glance backward to see what manner of woman it might be, he jammed his contract into his pocket, seized his newspapers and retreated to the farthest end of the car, bouncing down into berth number one, like a sullen snapping turtle.

Miss Anne Gattie's modest and homely valise had been brought aboard by a leisurely station usher, who set it down and waited with a speaking palm outstretched. She had her tickets in her hand, but transferred them to her teeth while she searched for money in a handbag old-fashioned enough to be called a reticule.

The usher closed his fist on the pittance she dropped into it and departed without comment. The porter advanced on her with a demand for "Tickets, please."

She began to ransack her reticule with hurried haste, taking out of it a small purse, opening that, closing it, putting it back, taking it out, searching the reticule through, turning out a handkerchief, a few hairpins, a few trunk keys, a baggage check, a bottle of salts, a card or two and numerous other maidenly articles, restoring them to place, looking in the purse again, restoring that, closing the reticule, setting it down, shaking out a book she carried, opening her old valise, going through certain white things blushing, closing it again, shaking her skirts, and shaking her head in bewilderment.

She was about to open the reticule again, when the porter exclaimed:

"I see it! Don't look no mo'. I see it!"

When she cast up her eyes in despair, her hatbrim had been elevated enough to disclose the whereabouts of the tickets. With a murmured apology, he removed them from her teeth and held them under the light. After a time he said:

"As near as I can make out of this—the undigested portion of this ticket, yo' nomba is six."

"That's it—six!"

"That's right up this way."

"Let me sit here till I get my breath," she pleaded. "I ran so hard to catch the train."

"Well, you caught it good and strong."

"I'm so glad. How soon do we start?"

"In about half a hough."

"Really? Well, better half an hour."

"I beg your pardon?"

Without further invitation, the mammoth descended on the Englishman's territory.

"I'm a broken-hearted man, Mr.—Mr.—I didn't get your name."

"Er—ah—I dare say."

"Thanks, I will sit down." He lifted a great carry-all and airily tossed it into the aisle, set the Gladstone on the lap of the infuriated Englishman, and squeezed into the seat opposite, making a sad mix-up of knees.

"My name's Wellington. Ever hear of it? Jimmie Wellington? That's me."

"Any relation to the Duke?"

"Nah!"

He no longer interested Mr. Wedgewood. But Mr. Wellington was not aware that he was being snubbed. He went right on getting acquainted:

"Are you married, Mr.—Mr.—?"

"No!"

"My heartfelt congratulations. Hang on to your luck, my boy. Don't let any female take it away from you. He slapped the Englishman on the elbow amiably, and his prisoner was too stupefied with terror to emit more than one feeble "Pawtuh!"

Mr. Wellington mused on aloud: "Oh, if I had only remained single. But she was so beautiful and obey. Mrs. Wellington is a queen among women, mind you, and I have nothing to say against her except that she has the temper of a tarantula." He italicized the word with a light flip of his left hand along the back of the seat. He did not notice that he flippity the angry head of Mr. Ira Lathrop in the next seat. He went on with his portrait of his wife. "She has the 'stravaganza of a sultana'—another flip for Mr. Lathrop—the 'zhealousness of a cobra, the flirtatiousness of a humming bird.' Mr. Lathrop was glaring round like a man-eating tiger, but Wellington talked on. "She drinks, sweats and smokes cigars, otherwise she's fine—a queen among women."

Neither this amazing vision of woman-kind, nor this beautiful example of longing for confession and sympathy awakened a response.

Then as Mr. Wellington shook with joy at the prospect of "Dear old Reno!" he began unconsciously to draw Ira Lathrop's head after his hair across the seat. The palm of it shot the tears into Lathrop's eyes, and he writhed and twisted he was too full of profanity to get any one word out.

"Chaufeur! chaufeur, don't go so fast 'round these corners."

He collided with a small train-boy singing his nasal lay, but it was the behemoth and not the train-boy that collapsed into a seat, sprawling as helplessly as a mammoth oyster on a table-cloth.

The porter rushed to his aid and hoisted him to his feet with an uneasy sense of impending trouble. He felt as if someone had left a monstrous baby on his doorstep, but all he said was:

"Tickets, please."

There ensued a long search, fat, flabby hands flopping and fumbling from pocket to pocket. Once more the porter was the discoverer.

"I see it. Don't look no mo'. Here it is—up in yo' hatband." He lifted it out and chuckled. "Had it right next his brains and couldn't remember!" He took up the appropriately huge luggage of the bibulous wanderer and led him to the other end of the aisle.

"Numba two is yours, sah. Right heah—all nice and cosy, and already made up."

The big man looked through the curtains into the cabined confinement, and groaned:

"That! Haven't you got a man's size berth?"

"Sorry, sah. That's as big a bunk as they is on the train."

"Have I got to be locked up in that pigeon-hole for—how many days is it to Reno?"

"Reno?" The porter greeted that meaningful name with a smile. "We're doo in Reno the—the mawnin' of the to'th day, sah. Yassah." He put the baggage down and started away, but the fat man seized his hand, with great emotion:

"Don't leave me all alone in there, porter, for I'm a broken-hearted man."

"Is that so? Too bad, sah."

"Were you ever a broken-hearted man, porter?"

"Always, sah."

"Did you ever put your trust in a false-hearted woman?"

"Often, sah."

"Was she ever true to you, porter?"

"Never, sah."

"Porter, we are partners in mis-sis-ery."

And he wrung the rough, black hand with a solemnity that embarrassed the porter almost as much as it would have embarrassed the passenger himself if he could have understood what he was doing. The porter disengaged himself with a patient but hasty:

"I'm afraid you'll have to excuse me. I got to he'p the other passengers on bo'de."

"Don't let me keep you from your duty. Duty is the—the—" But he could not remember what duty was, and he would have dropped off to sleep, if he had not been startled by a familiar voice which the porter had luckily escaped.

"Pawtuh! Pawtuh! Can't you raise this light—or rather can't you lower it? Pawtuh! This light is so infernally dim I can't read."

To the Englishman's intense amazement his call brought to him not the porter, but a rising moon with the profound query:

"Whass a lit thing like dim light, when the light of your life has gone out?"

"I beg your pardon?"

Without further invitation, the mammoth descended on the Englishman's territory.

"I'm a broken-hearted man, Mr.—Mr.—I didn't get your name."

"Er—ah—I dare say."

"Thanks, I will sit down." He lifted a great carry-all and airily tossed it into the aisle, set the Gladstone on the lap of the infuriated Englishman, and squeezed into the seat opposite, making a sad mix-up of knees.

"My name's Wellington. Ever hear of it? Jimmie Wellington? That's me."

"Any relation to the Duke?"

"Nah!"

THE REPUBLICAN
CONVENTION

UP TO SATURDAY NIGHT 72 CONTESTS HAD BEEN DECIDED IN FAVOR OF TAFT.

LIVELY TIME EXPECTED WITH SOUTHERN CONTESTS.

Convention May Be Held Up Until Credentials Committee Can Hear All Cases That Will Be Taken To It On Appeal.

Decisions of contested delegates before the convention up to Saturday night are:

FOR TAFT.

Saturday's decisions: Arkansas—Delegates in third, fourth, fifth and seventh districts—8.

Florida—Delegates at large, 6; delegates in first, second and third districts—6.

Georgia—Delegates at large, 4; delegates in 12 districts—24.

Total Saturday, 48.

Total Friday, 24.

Total for Taft, 72.

For Roosevelt—None.

Seventy-two contests have been decided up to Saturday night and Taft is the winner of every one.

Friday gave him 26, Alabama's 16 and 10 in Arkansas.

Saturday gave him 46 more, six in Arkansas, 12 in Florida and 28 in Georgia.

Roosevelt workers have agreed tacitly to let the national committee make all possible speed with the southern contests, demanding only that enough time be taken to admit of putting the cases on record, so that they may be brought before the credentials committee of the convention.

There is an indication that the convention may be held up until the credentials committee can hear all the cases that will be taken to it on appeal.

Of course, the tactical advantage lies with Taft, on the credentials committee since the state delegations that elect the members to the credentials committee will be the delegations as made up by the temporary role of the national committee. Taft men declare they will dominate the credentials committee by at least 10 to 20.

MONDAY'S SESSION.

The six Indiana delegates-at-large were given to Taft by the Republican national committee after the most heated session so far.

Monday began the week of the real fight for the Republican nomination for president. Last week the contests were confined to the southern states where no Republican electoral votes are to be found, whose Republicans for that reason are not listened to with profound attention when they object to the course of procedure in the seating of delegates.

But now comes the Indiana contest and following it the consideration of those in Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Washington and other states in the great Republican belt.

TUESDAY'S SESSION.

By an increased majority, President Taft's Kentucky delegates-at-large were placed on the temporary roll call of the national Republican convention.

The national committee of the party sitting in judgment of the contests brought by Roosevelt men rejected the colonel's claims by a vote of 38 to 11. In previous divisions of strength Roosevelt had mustered 13 votes in the committee.

Michigan men who were elected contesting Roosevelt delegates in the rump state convention at Bay City practically concede they have no hope of being seated at Chicago.

Towns Buried by Volcano.

Kodiak and Woody islands, villages of Alaska, are buried under a foot of ashes as a result of the eruption of Katmai volcano, which lasted 48 hours. No lives have been lost in Kodiak, but many other settlements near the volcano must have suffered indestructibly. The revenue cutter Manning was in port when the eruption began and furnished refuge for all the inhabitants of the town, 500 men, women and children, doubtless saving many lives. The Manning is now carrying distilled water and government rations to the destitute people, the water supply having been polluted and springs filled with ashes.

President's Yacht Has Close Call.

The presidential yacht Mayflower, with the president and Mrs. Taft and party of distinguished guests aboard, narrowly escaped a collision with the steamer Northland not far from Point Lookout, where the Potomac river empties into Chesapeake bay. Only the vigilance of the officers of the Northland and the Mayflower and their prompt action prevented what looked for a minute like an accident.

The deadly public drinking cup closed its career in Kentucky at midnight Sunday night, the recently enacted statute prohibiting its use being operative.

The International Brotherhood of Rollercoasters, Shindiggers and Helmsmen convened in Little Rock, Ark., in its tenth biennial gathering.

As a first move toward lining up the old world in an effort to unite every Christian communion into one body, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity, and three of the most prominent bishops of the Episcopal church, will leave on board the Mauretania for England. They will confer with prelates of the Church of England, looking toward a union between the mother church in England and her "daughter" in this country as an initial step.

SPEAKING ABOUT LOVE

FOUR CHERISHED ADAGES ARE CALLED MERE JOKES.

Pessimistic Writer Undertakes to Show That These Oft-Quoted Expressions Concerning Tender Passion Are Only Nonsense.

In regard to love we hear expressions like these:

"Love rules all."

"All the world loves a lover."

"A maid should obey the dictates of heart."

"Love laughs at locksmiths."

And others too numerous to mention.

Perhaps the first one is the best joke of the lot. Love rules all! That is one of the funniest things you ever heard! Some even go so far as to think children can be ruled by love.

It has been seen in practice. This is the way it works:

"Come, now Johnnie. Come, dear."

"Not a budge from Johnnie."

"Come on, darling. Mamma wants you to come now, sweetheart. Come on."

Nothing stirring.

"Johnnie must come now. Johnnie be a good boy. Mamma will give Johnnie a cookie tomorrow."

"Donwanto."

"Oh, yes, you must come! It is getting late now. Come on, dear."

Johnnie doesn't.

"Come on, now, Johnnie. You must come. Mamma's tired of waiting. Mamma spank!"

Johnnie still unconvinced.

Whack! Whack! Whack! Johnnie comes.

"All the world loves a lover!" Another joke.

What do we love about him? Perhaps the florid and candy man love him, and that's about the extent of it.

In the olden days when the lover did a great deal of sighing and desperate hair pulling and provided entertainment for the neighbors by eloping with the girl once in a while, people felt mildly grateful for the show. But it hardly amounts to love. And certainly his serenading beneath her lattice was more likely to bring brickbats than demonstrations of affection.

"A maid should obey the dictates of her heart," is rather good.

Some people evidently adhere to the belief that "there is a heart that heaven has made for thee," or they have faith in the text of some humorous ballad.

But, as most of us know, when a fellow has special talents in the love making line, and time and inclination to perfect his talents, he can make any girl think he is the one to furnish the heart that "heaven has made for thee;" whereas, men who have neither time nor talent nor inclination in that direction must go unloved and unused, and the latter kind of man could carry seven or eight of the former kind in his vest pocket.

Sometimes the young woman must choose between a college professor and a saloon keeper. One can give her social position and car fare; the other an electric brougham and a pink plumed bonnet. It is hard to decide in such a case. The dictates of her heart are led in one direction by the ostrich plumes, and in the other by the prospect of having a hat off and at home expression at a college commencement—a very great thing, indeed, and a thing to create heart longing.

"Love laughs at locksmiths!" An ancient joke!

Girls do not elope by ladder any more. If they did the father would probably furnish the ladder.

To the Point.

E. R. Smith, formerly schoolbook man and now a farmer and fruit grower, tells a story of a boy's essay, written in a few seconds on the subject of suddenly coming into possession of wealth.

"The teacher instructed her pupils to write an essay on 'What Would I Do If I Suddenly Became Possessed of $10,000,'" relates Mr. Smith, "and she warned them that their work was to be seriously considered. Papers and pens were passed, and it was only a few seconds until one boy began to squirm in his seat, appeared to be in a hurry and suddenly announced he had finished."

"You're through already?" the teacher asked.

"Yes, I'm through."

"Remember, now, I'm going to mark your essay very closely. It doesn't seem like you could finish such a subject so quickly."

"Go ahead; I'm ready," the boy said.

"The teacher opened the folded paper and read:

"What would I do if I suddenly became possessed of $10,000?"

"Not a darned thing!"—Rebosh Sunday Herald.

Would Work Convicts on Roads.

California has the parole system, but it has also, unluckily, its fair share of convicts who can not be trusted at large, and it is now proposed to have a chain gang help in planting trees for the beautiful forty-two-mile highway which is to be constructed from Sacramento through Greenback lake. The trees will be placed 100 feet apart, and varieties will alternate, one kind running for three or four miles along the way. It is expected that as an attraction this handsome "loop" highway will be second only to Del Paso park.

MADE FROM CREAM OF TARTAR DERIVED SOLELY FROM GRAPES, THE MOST DELICIOUS AND WHOLE-SOME OF ALL FRUIT ACIDS

Its superiority is unquestioned
Its fame world-wide
Its use a protection and a guarantee against alum food

Alum baking powders are classed by physicians detrimental to health.

Many consumers use alum baking powders unaware. They are allured to the danger by the cry of cheapness, by fake tests and exhibitions and false and flippant advertisements in the newspapers. Alum baking powders do not make a "pure, wholesome and delicious food" any more than two and two make ten.

If you wish to avoid a danger to your food,

The Only Way.

An elder while baptizing converts at a revival meeting advanced with a wiry, sharp-eyed old chap into the water. He asked the usual question, whether there was any reason why the ordinance of baptism should not be administered. After a pause a tall, powerful-looking man who was looking quietly on remarked:

"Elder, I don't want to interfere in your business, but I want to say that this is an old sinner who has got hold of, and that one dip won't do him any good; you'll have to anchor him out in deep water over night."—Life.

IT IS CRIMINAL TO NEGLECT THE SKIN AND HAIR

Think of the suffering entailed by neglected skin troubles—mental because of disfigurement, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. These blessings, so essential to happiness and even success in life, are often only a matter of a little thoughtful care in the selection of effective remedial agents. Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston, will secure a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on skin and scalp treatment.

Tag Day in Chelsea.

Mrs. Mary Boam and W. L. Holland, of St. Joseph, have arranged for a tag day next Saturday for the benefit of the Michigan Children's Home Society located in St. Joseph.

Last year this society held a tag day in Chelsea, as in other cities in the state, and realized a substantial sum. This year it will sell tags the same as they did last year. The society has no other means of raising funds for the support of the crippled children in its institution. The society takes cases from all over Michigan, and in addition to providing treatment and schooling for unfortunate children places them in good homes.

The state institutions are not opened to the crippled children, and the only place for them is the county poorhouse. The Michigan Children's Home Society provides a refuge for such unfortunate and dependent children—those who are bright minded and the cases that can be aided by medical or surgical assistance. The great work the society has accomplished for the normal dependent child, (over 1,300 having been found good homes) is now being extended to those even more unfortunate.

The society has cared for many cases this past year with great results. The final solution of many such cases received has been that the child was cured of its ailments and placed in a good home permanently.

Tag day will be Saturday, June 15, and tags will be offered for sale by the young ladies of Chelsea. The members of the Bay View Circle and the Research Club will have charge of the sale.

Appointed Auditor.

Chris Horning, of Freedom, on Tuesday sold to O. C. Burkhardt 26 fleeces of wool which weighed over 200 pounds. The clip was one of the finest that has been placed on the Chelsea market this year.

The family of J. A. Pate, who is employed by the Flanders Mfg. Co., arrived in Chelsea last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Pate will make their home in Chelsea and will commence housekeeping as soon as their goods arrive here.

Married, Saturday, June 8, 1912, at the home of the bride's brother, C. M. Kellogg, of Rock Stream, New York, Mrs. M. Ellen Hamilton, of Jackson, formerly of Chelsea, and Mr. Geo. S. Staunton of Bridgeport, Conn. The couple left last Monday for Scranton, Pa., where they will reside for the present.

Died, Monday evening, June 10, 1912, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Savory of Lima, Nathaniel Curtis, aged 76 years. The remains were brought to the undertaking rooms of F. Staffan & Son Tuesday morning and the funeral was held from there at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Interment at Grass Lake.

Died, Tuesday evening, June 11, 1912, at his home in Grass Lake, Mortimer L. Raymond, aged 68 years. He was born in Sharon and was a resident of that place until 8 years ago when he moved to his present home. He is survived by his wife and one son. The funeral will be held Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Interment at Grass Lake.

The village authorities have commenced work on the Park street paving job. A contractor from Ann Arbor is setting the curbing. Material for the Middle street job is being delivered on the ground. The Bell Telephone Co., has been notified to remove their poles from the curb line and both job are to be pushed forward to completion as rapidly as possible.

Miss Leona Belser last Saturday evening at her home on South street gave a miscellaneous shower in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Ruth Barich. A mock wedding was one of the pleasant events of the evening, the following young ladies of Chelsea taking the various parts: bride, Beryl McNamara; groom, Winifred Bacon; bridesmaid, Anna Walworth; groomsman, Ruth Bacon; clergyman, Leona Belser; flower girl, Mabel Weed and Elma Schenk. Mable Bacon played the wedding march.

MISSIONARY WORK IN AFRICA

CLIMBING THROUGH A JUNGLE

THE Rev. A. L. Kitching and his wife were the first Europeans in the Teso country on "The Back Waters of the Nile." They went out from England as missionaries and their experiences were unique. They were on friendly terms with cannibals, for Alogi Lange has not a corner on those strange people. They lived among the most primitive tribes, men and women who were only heads and feathers and others who wore not even as much clothing as that.

Mr. Kitching lived for ten years among the savage tribes of East Africa, speaking their languages and studying their habits and customs in their original surroundings, and thus gained a knowledge of their inner mode of life not possessed by any other white man. He is not only an observer but also an agreeable and graphic writer, and he gives an unusually clear idea of the child mind and the point of view of these primitive people.

The Protectorate of Uganda, he says, is a miniature edition of the British empire as most people know it, for few penetrate beyond its borders. The subdistrict of Bugoma is famous for its fine forest, which teems with life of every size and description. From the herds of immense elephants and the chimpanzees which are frequently met with, down to the gorgeous butterflies which often throng the air and paint the pools in the paths in countless brilliant hues and patterns.

Next to Bugoma is Bugahya, where the dialect spoken is so broad as to correspond to the Yorkshire which Tennyson loved to imitate. From these districts the plateau dips suddenly over to the Albert lake, on the shores of which live people whose habits have been moulded by the abundance of fish and the proximity of the Nile supplies, which provide them with exports.

Overrun With Pests. On the foothills of Ruwenzori and on the sides of the range nearly up to the bamboo line live a little known tribe of low order whose language has so far not been reduced to writing. These are the Bakonjo, whose physical handicaps enable them to hunt the coon and sleep in the open close up to the snow line, but whose tastes do not exclude rats and snakes from the daily diet. Those who accompanied Mr. Kitching's party up to the foot of the glacier would sleep sometimes in caves, but at other times in the open.

These Nile districts possess few attractions to the average traveler. Not only are the natives far from being attractive but the country is overrun with tropical pests. Of these Mr. Kitching enumerates "mosquitoes, embryos or dog flies, termites, wild pigs, leopards, and worst of all the tsetse fly. It is, as the Irishman said, 'a distressful country.' One may get used to having one's person devoured by the embryo, one's house by the termites and one's children by the leopards and hyenas. One may even ignore the bites of the tsetse until he begins the dread infection of the sleeping sickness. Then, as the deadly tsetse of the disease creeps over the infected, the equally deadly numbers of despair and indifference and fatalism paralyze the healthy."

On the confines of the protectorate, in the extreme west and the extreme east to the two cannibal tribes of Uganda, the Bahuku and the Bagisu. The Bahuku are the last tribe met with to the west before the traveler plunges into the gloomy wild of the Congo forest. They are not very numerous and speak a Bantu dialect of which nothing much is known at present, and they have as yet no written language, no European having ever lived among them. I found them in 1892 very wild and shy, owing to the unwelcome visits of Belgian soldiers, and with difficulty persuaded one or two to lead me for an hour or so into the great forest. On the same occasion pygmies were not to be seen, having fled south for the same purpose of avoiding the attentions of uncontrolled police.

"The other cannibal tribe, the Bagisu, inhabit the slopes of Mount Elgon, where they are crowded together in a comparatively small area of fertile country, which they have brought to a high degree of cultivation. The clan system is well developed among them and its regulations rigidly observed. Each clan for the most part occupies a strip of country running down from the foothills of Elgon, and to that strip it is obliged to keep for all purposes."

The Sleeping Sickness. The sleeping sickness, many cases of which came under Mr. Kitching's personal observation is graphically described: "From this place (Iganga) we went to visit one of the sleeping sickness camps, at a place called Buso, some two miles away. The horrors of the disease had been aggravated by the famine; in spite of all efforts on the part of the doctor in charge, food was almost impossible except in small quantities, and with five hundred patients in the camp large supplies were needed to give each even a little."

"Deaths at the time were running up to seventy or even ninety in a month; as we passed from ward to ward we saw the corpse of a man who had just died lying in the courtyard awaiting the doctor's orders for burial. In every direction sat groups of hopeless sufferers, in different stages of the disease and various degrees of starvation, mere skeletons many of them, barely able to crawl about."

"As if disease and famine were not enough, a plague of fleas and jiggers had defied all the efforts to exterminate them, and the feet of many patients, especially the children, were in a horrible condition of ulceration. Some of the less afflicted patients, still in early stages of the disease, were engaged in the unpleasant duty of removing the jiggers and dressing the feet of those too weak to do it for themselves. Those comparatively strong ones lived in huts by themselves, only the more advanced cases being taken into the wards."

"Fresh cases were constantly being brought in: one man apparently died in the hammock on the way to the camp, and his bearers had commenced to bury him on the roadside, but he sat up in the grave and was brought on. When we saw him he was able to walk about, better food having no doubt done much to temporarily restore him."

"One of the saddest sights was the house set apart for the reception of patients in whom the disease induced mania; there is great fear with such cases that they may set fire to the camp, either deliberately or by accident, during the night, so they are made to sleep in a place entirely without windows, and which can be securely locked up during the hours of darkness. One such house, to which I went at another camp, in Buganda, was occupied by perhaps fifteen such unfortunate; as they were mostly in the advanced stages of sleeping sickness, they probably suffered little, if at all, being unconscious practically all the time."

NAMES OF VARIOUS PARTS OF APPLE GIVEN AND DESCRIBED

While There are Great Ranges of Variation Within Individual Limits of Any Variety, There are Certain Characteristics Constant and Dependable for Classification.

One of the readers has asked me to "analyze an apple, giving the names and descriptions of the various parts." To anyone who is interested in scientific pomology this is quite necessary to be well understood, writes H. E. Van Deman in the Rural New Yorker. For the benefit of the general reader, I will try to make the analysis as plain as can be, thus serving, if possible, both the scientifically inclined and the more ordinary worker with fruits.

An apple is known in science as a pome, which is a fruit that contains its seeds in capsules surrounded by a fleshy pulp. Other examples of the pomes are the pear, quince, wild hawthorn fruits and those of the rose. All of these have five capsules containing the seeds, which together compose the core. In making a scientific or pomological description of an apple we begin with the outward appearances. There have been various systems or methods of classification by pomologists for centuries past. Some of them have been very curiously, not to say absurdly, founded on certain real or imaginary characteristics, while others were quite reasonable and practical. The best of them all, according to my judgment, is the system devised and published by Dr. John A. Warder, of Ohio, in his American Pomology. The first divisions in his classification are based upon the shape of the vertical sections and are four in number: Class I, Oblate or Flat; Class II, Conical; Class III, Round or Globular; Class IV, Oblong. Next come the shape of the cross or transverse sections, called Orders, of which there are two, Regular and Irregular. The third stage in the system is regarding the flavor, which are termed Sections, of which there are two. Section 1 includes the varieties that are sweet and Section 2 those that are subacid or sour. The last set of this descriptive classification is made up of three Subsections. The first of these includes all varieties that are yellow or green and may be blushed and even quite covered with red in some cases, but never striped. By this system almost any apple may be properly classified, and if listed and described in detail might be identified by any careful student of pomology.

While there was never but one edition Dr. Warder's book on apples, American Pomology, and that was issued in 1867, and many valuable varieties have been introduced since that date, it is even now the best of all our books on apples, by which they may be studied and identified. While there are great ranges of variation within the individual limits of any variety, there are certain characteristics that are quite constant and dependable, and upon these any intelligent classification must be based. Mere alphabetical or other ordinary arrangement is of much less value.

To describe an apple in such manner as will lead to an understanding of its individual peculiarities I have made a drawing of a specimen of the Delicious that was grown in California. The most important parts are named and pointed out in such a way that they may be studied. To begin with, the form, which is one of the first points that anyone will notice, may be flat, conical, round or oblong, as looked at from the side, and round, elliptical, irregular or even angular when observed from either end. The size may be large, medium or small. The depression in which the stem is set is called the cavity, and it may be regular, irregular, or lipped; large or small; deep, medium or shallow; with a steep, abrupt or wide slope; it may have russet markings that are large, medium or faint, or none at all. The stem may be long, medium or short; slender, stout or fleshy. Sometimes a variety will have stems of all these descriptions, but they are generally of one type. The depression at the calyx or blossom end of an apple is called the basin. It may be regular, irregular, waved, furrowed or knobby; deep, medium, shallow or wanting; wide or narrow; marked with russet either cracked or smooth. The calyx may be open or closed; with the sepals long or short, upright or reflexed. The surface is smooth, rough, bloomed or russeted. The color, yellow, green, blushed, red striped and with all possible variations of intensity and lightness of shading, mottling, splashing and suffusions. The dots are very characteristic and quite constant. They are numerous or scattering; large or small; dark or light; round or pointed; with light, dark, green and sometimes on raised bases. The skin may be thick and tough or thin and tender. The flesh is yellow, white or stained with red and very rarely pink throughout; and its texture may be fine or coarse; firm, tender or soft; and in weight light or heavy. The core may be large, medium or small; conical, round or oblate; open or closed; meeting or separate from the tube. The calyx tube large or small; long or short. Axial diameter long or short. Seeds numerous or few; large or small; plump or narrow; light or dark brown. Flavor sweet, subacid or sour; rich aromatic or spicy. Quality good, very good, best or poor. Season very early, early, mid-summer, fall, early winter, mid-winter and late winter.

Thus it is that a pomologist would describe an apple. Blanks for descriptions are prepared for the government records and also by some of the states. I have them for my own private use in keeping records of the varieties I have examined. Paintings, models and historical notes of all interesting fruits are also made and carefully preserved in the office of the U. S. Pomologist at Washington, which is work that I planned and instituted when I was in charge of that office over 20 years ago. These records are of inestimable value and will be more so as time advances.

EXCELLENT FEED FOR THE CHICKS

Hard Boiled Infertile Eggs, Ground in Meat Chopper and Mixed With Bran are Good.

(By PROF. W. A. LIPPINCOTT, Kansas Agricultural College.)

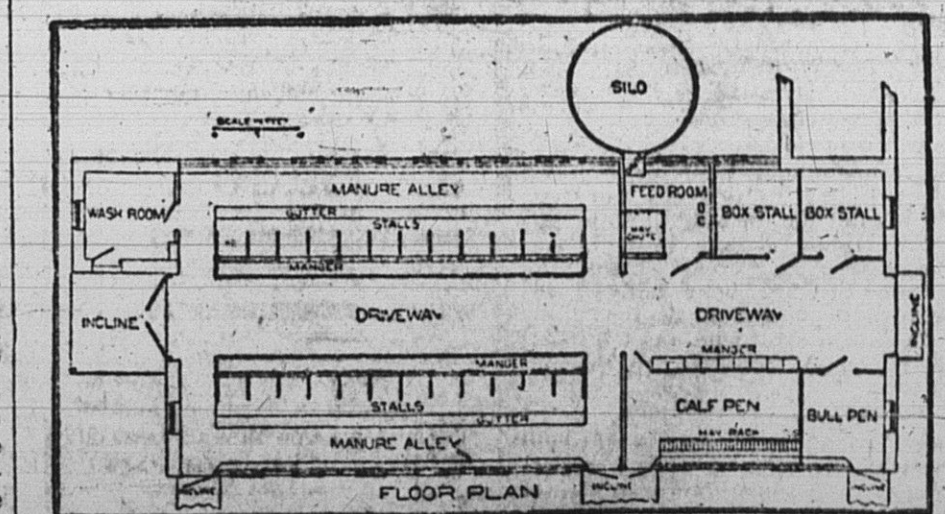

An excellent food for the chicks is made in this way: Take the infertile eggs—those that have been tested out of the incubator—hard boil them, and grind in an ordinary meat chopper. Mix this with bran and moisten with water. If you have some old, dry bread which has not become moldy it may be crumbled and added to the bran and ground eggs. Do not make the feed sloppy or the chicks may gorge themselves.

Many other good feeds, such as fine cracked corn, cracked wheat, cracked kafir and steel-cut oats may be fed. Milk curd and beef scraps make a good change in the food. These two supply to the chick about the same food elements it would get by eating insects and worms.

Charcoal, fine grit or finely ground bone should be kept where the little chickens can get it. If it is possible, they should be kept on a grassy plot, and if not, green stuff should be supplied them. Alfalfa is the best for this, and may be given them occasionally.

Ostrich Raising. Some farmers in Southern Missouri are experimenting with ostrich raising.

FLOOR PLANS FOR A DAIRY BARN

The accompanying illustration gives the floor plans of a modern dairy barn for 24 cows, as designed by the bureau of industry of the United States department of agriculture. The stalls are planned to be three feet six inches wide, and from four feet eight inches to five feet long, depending upon the size of the cows. The manure gutter should be from 16 to 18 inches wide and about four inches deep. The manure is planned to be two feet wide and six inches deep, the bottom being two or three inches higher than the floor of the stalls. Patent stanchions may now be bought so cheaply (one to two dollars each) that it is scarcely worth while to bother about making them at home for a small herd of cows.

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

A well supplied vanity box, which is still light enough to be carried about in the suit case or hand bag, is about the most precious thing the woman traveler can take along with her.

Many young ladies who have learned the economical tricks of beauty buy theatrical make-up boxes for the holding of the cosmetics and soft little rags that they will need, the girls getting these empty and fitting them up as they see fit. One will buy charming little celluloid boxes—the sort called "Parisian Ivory," for powder, rouge, nail paste, forehead plaster, and so on, putting the liquids she will require into bottles as dainty. Another will make use of any small cardboard boxes in convenient sizes she has on hand, employing ordinary vials, old or new, for the liquids. For the make-up rags, which are indispensable, tops of old white stockings are used, fine old handkerchiefs, bits of silk underveils, etc., and the maid who understands traveling will never fail to fasten all the tops of the boxes on with a rubber band.

Now traveling by land and sea have differing consequences, but both methods of transportation threaten enough hurt for the complexion to make a complexion cream and a skin wash most valuable things to have in the vanity box. Then as many young women are unaware of the fact that the soap supplied travelers is never of the best sort, and that sometimes there is none at all, I would advise including a cake of some familiar sort. Grease paint is better, too, for traveling use than the dry sort, this hurting the skin less and keeping on better, and for powder I would suggest a little scented talcum, which could be sewed up for convenience into a little cheesecloth bag. Or if one is used to powder leaves, and knows that the face must first be cleansed with one and then powdered with fresh ones, a book of these would be still more convenient.

Dust is inevitable with travel by train, and as it is not always possible to obtain the means of a face bath, and if left on long the dust will seriously hurt the skin, the face should be cleansed at least twice a day with cold cream and a little of the wash carried along. For the last benzoin will be found excellent, a teaspoonful of this in half a cup of water supplying quite a good face bath. Pour the diluted benzoin on a soft bit of rag and go over all the face with wiping movements, doing this after the skin has been first cleansed with cold cream. After the face has dried, powder as usual.

In place of the benzoin it is possible to employ orange-flower water or alcohol—or any good cologne or toilet water—for taking off the grease after the cream cleansing, or even for the soil itself, but it is never wise to use too much of any of these things, as they all scorch the skin after a while.

Upon arrival anywhere the face should be washed immediately with warm water and a bland soap, and since one cannot count always on soft water a small box of borax would be another precious adjunct for the vanity box. Dust, by the way, is curiously destructive to the delicacy of the skin, inflaming it and sometimes settling so deeply into the pores that blackheads ensue. The hygienic soaps of French manufacture are all good, these being healing as well as cleansing to the skin. Old castle is another good soap more easily procurable, as it can be found in every drug store and in many little country groceries.

The injuries of the sea trip come through the influences of salt air and wind, many complexions taking on sudden eruptions or tanning badly. Sometimes the pimples come from neglect of the powels, as salt air is constipating to some constitutions; so a little box of some mild laxative could be included in the supply of beautifiers. Take one of these every night as long as is necessary, and help the good work along by taking a warm sea bath every day. If your eyes are used to glasses keep them on, for you will be more susceptible to seasickness if you leave them off.

For protecting the skin from wind burn, prepare it before putting on the powder with cold cream, rubbing this well down into the pores and wiping off the surplus. Wear a red-brown veil on the ship's deck, or when taking the little boat sail, as this color is about the only one that will resist the tanning agents of Dame Nature; but if you can go without the veil without serious injury to your skin, do so, as air, just air itself, is one of the body's most important beautifiers.

Sleeveless Waists of Chiffon. Sleeveless kimono waists of chiffon, over lace or embroidered blouses, are one of the pretty styles of the moment. The edges at neck and arms are finished with hemstitching and sometimes a narrow lace trim or a quilling of ribbon. Whatever is the finish it must be as flat as possible, otherwise the effect is bad.

Social Forms and Entertainments

Very Impolite.

Your valuable advice have helped me before, so I come to you again. This is a small town with but one play-house which changes programs every other night, or three performances a week. I took a couple girl friends there one evening and during the show they said they attended the night before and saw the same show. Now these girls knew the rules of the house, and so knew it would be the same performance. Was it proper not to let me know before, or should they have told me at all?—"Stung."

If the girls you were kind enough to take to the show were so discourteous as to say they had seen it before, without your asking if they had, they certainly were lacking in good manners. If they had seen it and did not care to see it again they should have told you so and said they would be glad to go when the bill was changed, or they should have said nothing.

For an Announcement Party. Will you kindly make a few suggestions for an announcement party. The announcement is to be made to a club of girls and I would be glad if you would make some suggestions for the lunch and some inexpensive favors.—Anxious.

Write an original story of the girl's life and wind up with the engagement, read this aloud as an interesting tale and "they" will all soon begin to catch on. Of course you use fictitious names. For favors have little baskets holding bon-bons tied with ribbons and a wee "wedding" bell tied to the handle. For luncheon have cream of asparagus soup, lamb chops, green peas, new potatoes, cherry salad, mint sherbet and small cakes.

Perplexing Question. What should a girl tell a boy when he asks her if she loves him (if she really does love him) and he says he loves her but has never done anything to prove it?

How long should a girl of seventeen wear her dresses? How should she fix her hair?—"Country Girl."

I wonder how a seventeen-year-old girl knows if she really loves a boy or he her when they are both not much more than babies? Wait at least three years and then see how you both feel. Dresses should be just below the shoe tops and hair is very pretty in the Madonna braids around the head, either with or without bows.

Idea for a Dinner Party. Will you give me a few suggestions for a dinner party? How many courses? What to serve? What sort of a center-piece? I don't want anything elaborate and for about six persons.—Waiting Bess.

Use the flowers available in a basket for the center of the table. Serve sardine appetizers for the first course, then cream of pea soup, fried or broiled chicken, asparagus on toast, new potatoes with butter and parsley, tomato and mayonnaise for salad, with cheese balls, and a frozen dessert with after-dinner coffee either in the drawing room or at the table.

Correct Use of Cards. Will you please tell me the correct way of using cards when calling?—Ignorant Bride.

All you have to remember is to leave two of your husband's cards and one of your own when calling upon a couple, one of each for each woman and one of your husband's for each man in the household.

Reply to "J. S." Your letter was most excellent considering you have only been in this country two years. The best advice I can give you is to see the principal of your home school and see what studies are required. Tell him your hopes and ambitions and I am sure you will find the desired assistance.

Reply to Dolly. Boys usually like cushions, dress shirt protectors, silver key rings, silver pencils, card cases, etc. Send the gift as soon as you like before commencement and write "Congratulations and good wishes" on your card. Coats with collars are always in good style. Your writing is legible, but a bit cramped.

Reply to Jane. Look in the dictionary in the proper names to find out the meaning you wish to know. I think girls of seventeen are decidedly too young to marry. Wait two or three years, then think about it.

Reply to M. F. H. Regarding the stain, the best thing to do is to consult a first-class druggist and see if he knows any chemical that will restore the color.

What has become of the old-fashioned girl who used to chew "wax"?

For years Garfield Tea has been on the market. This must mean a remedy worth while.

Even the thirst for glory may have its direful after effects.

Only Thinking.

"Where are you thinking of going this summer?" "In thinking of England, Norway, and Scotland, but I'll probably go to Punk Beach."

His Changed Fortune. "Wow! There went Smithing in his new six. When I knew him a few years ago he had a junk shop." "He still has. Only he moved it to a fashionable street, kept the same stock, and labeled it 'Antiques.'—Judge.

Delicate Point.

They are a happy Sewickley couple. They haven't been married very long, in fact, the honeymoon has barely started. An elderly friend met the bridegroom downtown yesterday and slapped him on the back.

"Well, happy as a lark, I suppose?" "Oh, yes."

"How's the cooking?" "I have one trouble there. It's just this, my wife has been preparing angel food every day for 'dinner.'"

"You must be getting tired of it." "I am. Yet I feel a hesitancy about saying anything. How soon after the honeymoon would it be proper to ask for beefsteak and onions?"—Pittsburg Post.

Oddities of Justice.

That the whole theory of penal codes is practically unsound and opposed to the modern conceptions of the relation of the state to crime, is the contention of Eugene Smith of the New York bar, writing in the May number of Case and Comment, the lawyers' magazine. Illustrating the absurdity and disparity between penalty for crimes in different states, Mr. Smith says: "The average sentence for perjury in Florida is ten years, in Maine one year; for larceny, in Delaware ten years, in the District of Columbia ten months; the penalty for arson in Pennsylvania is twice that of burglary, but in Connecticut the guilt of burglary is twice that of arson; the guilt of counterfeiting in Ohio is twice that of perjury, but in Rhode Island the guilt of perjury is twice that of counterfeiting."

In the Growth of Corn

there's a period when the kernels are plumped out with a vegetable milk, most nutritious.

As the corn ripens the "milk" hardens, and finally becomes almost flinty.

Post Toasties

Are made from this hard part of choice selected corn.

It is carefully cooked; treated with sugar and salt; rolled into thin bits; then toasted to an appetizing brown—without a hand touching the food.

It has been said that Post Toasties are the most deliciously flavoured particles of cereal food yet produced.

One can render an opinion upon trial.

BREVITIES

GRASS LAKE—The officers of Lake Tent K. O. T. M. M. have decided to surrender their charter and the members of the order will unite with Tents in their neighboring towns.

BRIGHTON—There will probably be no banquet held by the Alumni association here this year. It is a fact that there has been a gradual falling off of interest, of late, in the alumni doings.—Argus.

MILAN—Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Gate, left recently for Hart where they will make their home. Mr. Gate was editor of the Leader for several years and sold his paper a few weeks ago to the present owner.

GREGORY—Last Friday the first issue of the Gregory Gazette made its appearance. The paper is published by the owner of the Pinckney Dispatch and is devoted exclusively to the local interest of Gregory.

JACKSON—A warrant charging Charles Curtis with cruelty to a horse has been issued and placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Dixon, of Munith, to serve. The complaint was made by Humane Officer Pulling.

ANN ARBOR—Washtenaw council, 45th United Commercial Travelers, will hold its third annual picnic at Whitmore Lake on June 29. The program will include a ball game, races, rowing, boat rides and dancing in the evening.

POWELLVILLE—Look out! She's coming! A woman who will want to appoint your special agent for a certain medicine and collect $15 for a dozen boxes which she says she has sold about town. She puts up good talk dope. If you bite, goodbye $15.—Standard.

MILAN—The little two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Don G. Richards who live five miles northwest of here drank the contents of a bottle of carbolio acid left within his reach Monday afternoon. Despite the efforts to save his life he died at 9:30 that evening.—Leader.

ANN ARBOR—Carroll B. Hall of Kansas City, Mo., lit. '13, was elected captain of the 1913 track team of the University of Michigan Monday afternoon. At the same time he was notified of his selection by the Olympic committee as a member of the United States team.

SALINE—Our high school will close on June 20 when the following members of the senior class will be graduated: Ellen and Esther Rentscher, Grace Haney, Eva Zahn, Ethel Tripp, Helen Finch, Gayle Skinner, Helen Lederer, Arthur Lutz, Arthur Heininger, Donald Burkhardt.—Observer.

UNADILLA—A W. C. T. U. was organized at the M. E. church last Wednesday with ten charter members, and the following officers: President, Mrs. Gentner; 1st vice president, Mrs. Watson; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Goodwin; 3rd vice president, Mrs. Marshall; secretary, Iva Richmond.

DEXTER—The annual commencement exercises of the Dexter high school were held Friday evening in the opera house. The following is the class roll: William B. Arksey, Claude A. Bucklew, Ruth L. Cole, Claire F. Cunningham, Mox E. Eck, Hazel R. Hodson, Alice M. Jewell, Teresa E. Kratzmiller, Agnes E. Quinn, W. Don Kittleton, Maud Virginia Reade, Harold L. Bilder, Bernard E. Richmond, Harold C. Schoen, Emory E. Smith, George H. Stebbins, Caroline E. Stoffer, Marie C. Wenger, Ralph Lodge Whitney.

YPSILANTI—Nine year old Fred Brooks lies at the point of death as the result of an accident with which he met at the high school athletic meet held at Recreation park last Friday. The lad was shooting the chute, and was at the top of the chute, when a bigger boy gave him a push and he fell down. Nothing was thought of the affair at the time and although when the boy reached home he complained of feeling sick his people did not think it was anything serious. He became unconscious in a few hours and has remained so ever since. It is not believed that he can live. "The boy is colored, but is a bright little chap."

THINK THIS OVER

L. T. Freeman Co. Back Their Claims With a Most Liberal Offer.

We will either relieve you of kidney and urinary disease, or pay for all the medicine used during the trial. You pay us nothing if we fail to make the treatment entirely satisfactory to you. Remember we are right here where you live, and our personal reputation is at stake when we make this statement. Certainly nothing could be more safe and secure for you.

The most scientific, safe, efficacious and altogether dependable treatment we know of for kidney diseases, and urinary ailments in general, is Rexall Kidney Pills. In all our experience in the compounding and selling of medicines we have never found anything else that is so good. That's why we can sell and recommend Rexall Kidney Pills with our own personal guarantee to furnish them free if they do not do as we say they will. Price 50c.

You had better think this over, and come and see us about this offer. You will be well repaid if you do. Sold in this community only at our store. L. T. Freeman Co.

"Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" the thrilling temperance play (not under canvas) but at the Princess Saturday evening for a dime.

Famous Stage Beauties

Look with horror on skin eruptions, blotches, sores or pimples. They don't have them, nor will any one who uses Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It glorifies the face. Eczema or salt rheum vanishes before it. It cures sore lips, chapped hands, chilblains, heels, burns, cuts and bruises. Unequaled for piles. Only 25c at L. P. Vogel, H. H. Penn Co. L. T. Freeman.

Alley J. Olds.

Alley J. Olds, of Jackson, died at 6 a. m., Friday after a few hours illness from diphtheria, aged 32 years. Mr. Olds was down town Thursday. At 3 o'clock Friday a council of physicians was called, but night could be done to check the rapidity of the disease. Mr. Olds was employed as a tinsmith by Holmes & Walker during the past winter and moved his family to Jackson from here about three weeks ago. He was in Chelsea a week ago last Friday. He is survived by his wife, two children, his father, mother, three sisters and one brother. The remains were taken to Munith the home of his parents for interment.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS SICK?

Many Chelsea People Have Kept Well by Keeping Their Kidneys Well.

The first symptom of kidney trouble may be only a slight pain in the back, a feeling of stiffness or soreness in the loins, or some annoying irregularity of the urinary passages. Urine is discolored and sediment gathers upon standing. Next comes a dull, throbbing backache, sharp, knife-like pains, headache, dizziness and usually lameness when arising in the morning. No one can afford to delay until these troubles become serious. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills, the tried and tested kidney remedy that has cured thousands. Chelsea readers should find convincing proof of merit in the following statement. It's from a resident of this locality.

Mrs. Lewis Burg, Garfield street, Chelsea, Mich., says: "I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills for I know them to be a remedy of great merit. I suffered intensely from backache and in the morning upon arising I felt lame and weak. A distressing kidney weakness clung to me persistently and I was anxious to get relief. Finally I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and soon after beginning their use, I was free from my aches and pains. I have been feeling much better every way since taking this remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

"Darwin, the missing link" "a chimpanzee" will be seen on the street during the band concert of Ellier's Ten Nights in a Bar Room at noon. This animal understands the English language and during the show at night will do some wonderful stunts. Under canvas at Chelsea June 15.

Could Shout For Joy.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart" wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as though made for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice, and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism. Electric Bitters have no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50 cents at L. P. Vogel, H. H. Penn Co., and L. T. Freeman Co.

It's at the Princess Saturday evening "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" the great drama. Other pictures.
