THE CORSAGE BOUQUET.

A report from Paris announces that the passion for unbroken lines in women's garmenting has gone to such extent that during the coming season not even so much as a bouquet will be permitted to mar the symmetrical simplicity of the gown. She that would have a show of flowers about her must content herself with such as embroidery about the waist-line can simulate. Suggestion adds that slender girls may weave whole garlands of silken blooms about them, but those of a plumpness must be content with a delicate spray. Should this edict hold sway for any considerable period, there will pass away from romance and from dramas one of the most useful as well as beautiful of their joint properties. Hardly anything of a maiden's dress has been so often remembered by lovers and described by novelists and poets as the corsage bouquet. In days of old, when real flowers were worn, the bouquet was generally a gift of the adoring one. If the lady wore it, all was well. If she did not, either the unscrupulous duenna had stolen it or the end of sweet love was at hand. Even when artificial bouquets came in there was a chance for love to use it as a token and for beauty to wear it as a sign. It was something about feminine dress a man could recognize overcome.

It would be difficult to find anybody this country. The date was May 20, 3845, and the place a spot on the shore near Gosport. Lieutenant Hawkey of the Royal Marines, believing Lieutenant Seton had paid too much attention to his wife at a South Sea function, called him a villain and blackguard, threatening to horsewhip him and attempted to kick him. Although dueling had been forbidden by articles of war in 1844, after the horror caused by the death of Colonel Fawcett at the hands of his brotherin-law. VICTIMS ARE WELL KNOWN RES-DENTS OF LA SALLE.

The Automobile Was Demolished and the Bodies of the Victims Were Strewn Along the Track for One Hundred Feet.

Six persons were killed and two fatally injured Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock just south of Alexis, Mich., when a Lake Shore & Michigan Southern train from Detroit due in Toledo at 4:20 o'clock struck an automobile containing nine people. Two women, a man and three boys were killed outright. Their bodies were horribly mutilated. The accident happened on a grade

> State Officials May Get After Sheriffs. Following the report of Secretary Dixon, of the state board of health, M. T. Murray, secretary of the state board of corrections and charities, summoned Sheriff Barnes to his office for a conference relative to situations in the Mason jail. Murray investigated the situation himself and then sent Dr. Dixon over to get a medical examination.

> He informed the sheriff that it was up to him to relieve the prisoner who is suffering from a loathsome disease or the state officials would take a hand in the case. Several jails have been closed recently by the board and the secretary intimated drastic action on the part of the state officials if another warning was necessary.

END COMES AT 12:43 TUESDAY; WAS ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIRST EMPEROR.

CROWN PRINCE YOSHIHITO HAS SUCCEEDED TO THRONE.

Japan's Awakening From the Bar baric State Was One Feature of His Long Reign,

The mikado died at 12:43 Tuesday morning, July 30, after struggling for 10 days for life. The cabinet and many of the leading nobles were in the palace waiting for the end, which had been expected at any moment since early Sunday.

Acute nephritis was given as the cause of the mikado's death. The crown prince, Yoshihito, has succeeded to the throne.

Mutsuhito, the one hundred and twenty-first emperor of Japan, was born at Kioto, Nov. 3, 1852, and his reign, beginning in 1867, on the death of his father, Kamei, has extended over almost the whole of the awakening and modernizing of his country. Coming to the throne when he was but 15 years old his part in the struggle which took place during his earlier years was certainly small, and little is known of it. It was nearly over by the time he became of an age to take any active part in public affairs, but since that time he has accepted with apparent enthusiasm the place of a constitutional monarch, and has taken a leading part in the development of the kingdom during the last 35 years.

The mikado's tastes have been largely military, rather than administrative, and his part in the internal government is understood to have been identified chiffy with the development of the magnificent army and navy which astonished the world in the war with Rusisa

AFTER HIGHER-UPS.

Lieut. Becker Arrested for Murder of New York Gambler,

Lieut. Charles A. Becker, whose arrest came as a dramatic climax to the past fortnight's investigations of the Gambler Rosenthal murder, has been a member of the New York police force for nearly 20 years, his appointment dating back to Nov. 1, 1893.

The first serious case in which Becker was concerned was the shooting dead of a young plumber's helper, John Fay, who was killed in a burglar chase. Becker and another policeman were suspended following an investigation, but were later reinstated

Becker was placed in charge of the so-called strong arm squad on June 30, 1911. Since that time he has been much in the public eye, making many spectacular raids. Last March a man was killed by a bullet fired during one of his raids. Becker was relieved from charge of the squad for a time, but was later reassigned to it

During the year he was in charge of the strong arm squad Becker made more than 75 raids, including the attack on Rosenthal's gambling place on April 15.

Herford Marshall, counsel for "Jack Sullivan" (Jacob Reich), the gobetween between Lieut. Becker and Jack Rose, now held in the Tombs in connection with the case, announced that Sullivan was ready to tell all he knew on the witness stand and that his story would prove more astounding than any yet told. Sullivan, he said, would not talk to the police or the district attorney.

The indictment and arrest of Police Lieutenant Charles A. Becker for the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, soon after the confession of "Bald Jack" Rose, "Bridgie" Webber and Harry Vallon, revealed to District Attorney Whitman the "police system" in all its hideousness. The public prosecutor, following the trail of the three confessions, continued his search for evidence that would implicate those higher up than Becker, and more indictments of police officials are expected by the district attorney.

Settle Sugar Frauds.

Alleged sugar frauds at Philadelphia under investigation by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh and Attorney-General Wickersham for the last year have been settled by the payment of nearly a quarter of a million dollars to the United States government by the sugar refining companies involved.

This announcement was made by the treasury department Tuesday. Investigation of alleged sugar frauds at New York and New Orleans it was reported, are approaching conclusion. These constitute the final act of the nation-wide inquiry that resulted in the revelations of abuses in sugar importations at New York several years ago.

Cyclone Does Great Damage in Gladvin County.

A terrific cyclone, accompanied by hail, went through Gladwin county Monday evening. It went the entire width of the county, taking a strip about two miles wide and 20 miles long. It his Grant township, the best part of the county. The damage to buildings was slight, although a num-ber of houses and barns were blown down. The principal loss was on the crops. All kinds of grain and fruit were totally destroyed, in many places trees being uprooted and in others the bark torn off. The damage in this county is over $250,000 No lives were lost, but many persons were injured. Many people were knocked unconscious by the hall, it was the worst storm of the kind ever experienced here, as it hit the best farming district in the county. It will probably cripple local finances.

ITHOUT knowing where or how the cruise would end, but confident it would lead to trouble—though I did not imagine how much of it there really would be or how unpleasant it would prove-I bought the Alice tons, and got a general cargo for Rosario, Brazil, on the River Parava. From Rosario I went 100 miles the river to St. Stephens and took on a carof wheat for Rio Janeiro. While the cargo was being unloaded my expectant eye distinmished signs of a nice little revolution which was just being shaped up, so I sold my ship and took quarters at the Hotel Freitas to watch

When the last emperor of Brazil, Dom Pedro II., was dragged out of hed at night and deported without the firing of a shot, in "peaceful revolution" of November 15, 1889. Deodora da Fonseca was made president. Before his weakness had become apparent he was made constitutional president, and Floriano Peixotto was elected rice-president. Deodoro's policy was weak and vacillating, and his popularity waned spidly. A revolution had been quietly formed by Floriano, the vice-president. He soon had the army at his back and mined the support of Admiral Mello, ranking officer of the Brazilian navy, and Admiral Solfanha da Gama, commandant of the naval academy. They brought matters to a head on the morning of November 23, 1891. Mello took up position at the foot of the main street of Rio a the cruiser Riachuelo, the finest ship in the havy, trained his guns on the palace Itumary, and sent word to Deodoro that he would open fire on him in two hours if he did not abdicate in favor of Floriano, Deodoro abdicated in two minutes, dropping dead soon fterward from heart disease, and Floriano was proclaimed president.

considered that he was rightfully entitled to the power behind the throne.

Mello worked chiefly among naval officers, manded. ristocrats, adherents of San Pedro and the Catholic clergy, and in the end they all became is allies.

As Mello's plot shaped up I began to susect that his real purpose was to restore om Pedro to the throne and make himself he power behind it. It was amusing to watch the development of fello's revolution. One would have thought wo friendly leaders were planning rival surrise parties, in which there was to be nothing nore serious than the throwing of confetti. It was along in July of August, 1893, that fello sent for me and expressed a wish that go down to Santa Catarina island, off the outhern coast of Brazil, and blow up the depublica, the one Brazilian warship whose floers had so far remained loyal to Floriano. While we were still negotiating I received call from one of Floriano's aids, who asked ne to accompany him to the palace. He took se in the rear entrance and up a back stairway o Floriano's private sala, where, after present-ng me, he left me, alone with the president, "I understand," said Floriano, "that you ere in Venezuela with President Guzman and ave had military training and experience. "That is correct, sir."

"I am told, too, that you have made a study high explosives, and have invented a remark-"That is also true."

Would you be willing to undertake mission that would involve considerable anger, but for which you would be well paid?"
"I am open to anything except vulgar assasation. That is my business." "What do you charge for your services?"

"That depends entirely on the nature of the ork."

"Consider yourself, then, in the service of rail."

A few days later the revolution was declared. nder conditions such as one would look for a the light-opera stage, but never in real life, of even in South America. On the evening september 5, Floriano went to the opera, ccompanied by Mello, Soldanha and several ther officers of the army and navy, and they ll sat together in the presidential box. Mello and Soldanha excused themselves after the econd act. They left their cloaks in the box and said they would be back in a few min-Knowing full well the reason of their ture, Floriano bowed them out with an onical excess of politeness.

At daybreak Mello seized all of the govment shipping in the bay and announced i blockade of Rio harbor. He then sent ord to Floriano that if he did not abdicate, thout naming his successor, by four clock that afternoon, he would bombard Floriano's reply was an emphatic refusal abdicate, and precised at four o'clock answered it with one shell from a inch gun, which exploded near the Amerconsulate and killed a foreigner. During next week Mello fired 40 or 50 shots into city every day, but they did little damage. ery soon after the firing of the first shot, in, English, German, Austrian and Portuwarships appeared at Rio, ostensibly to ect the rights of their citizens.

About a week after the firing of the first I was on my way to the water front to ss the regular afternoon duel between the an and Fort Santa Cruz, when I was riakan by a government carriage and Colonel Pimental, whom I knew well, asked me to get in with him, as he had orders for me from Floriano. He drove along the shore of the bay to a new galvanized building at a point some distance beyond the island of the naval school and near the railway machine shops. On the way he explained that this building had been erected for my use and in it I was to construct, as rapidly as possible, a large torpedo with which to destroy the Aquidaban.

The torpedo I built for this business was the largest I had ever made.

While Mello had selzed all of the government vessels in the harbor, there were a few tugs left, which, to prevent his interference, were flying the British flag, on the pretense that they were owned by Englishmen. I was to be given one of these tugs, and my plan was to steal around into Nichtheroy bay at night and anchor close under the hill at the end of the peninsula, where I would be hidden from the rebel fleet. In the morning I would load the torpedo and wait the daily exchange of cannon courtesies between the Aquidaban and the fort. An officer at Santa Cruz was to signal me when Mello left his anchorage and then, towing the submerged torpedo by wire rope too small to be detected, I would steam out across the course of the Aquidaban, which would pick up the towing line on her bow, drag the torpedo alongside and be destroyed by the contact.

My tug, in charge of a French engineer and four Brazilians, was sent down to me on the afternoon of September 25, and as soon as it was dark, with the torpedo covered with canvas on deck and twelve 50-pound boxes of dynamite in the pilot house, we steamed around to Nictheroy bay. To have loaded the torpedo before we started would have been extremely dangerous, for any accidental pressure on one of its arms would have blown all of us to pieces. We anchored well out of sight of the rebel fleet, and as soon as it was daylight I unscrewed the manhole of the torpedo, and proceeded to pack it full of dynamite.

I was just puting in the last box of the explosive when there was a shrill whistle, and a launch from the Sirius swung alongside. The Before he had time to get his new chair lieutenant in charge jumped aboard of us and came aft before I could brush the dynamite from my arms.

"Who commands this craft?" he de-

"I do," I replied.

"What are you doing with that flag up there?" pointing to the British ensign

"That flag was there when I came aboard and took command," I said, which was true. "I am flying it for protection from a pirate fleet, just as others are displaying it on Rio bay and in the city. Your commanding officer has sanctioned that custom by his silence. I am an officer of the established Brazilian government obeying the orders of my superiors in Brazilian waters, and I ciaim the right to take advantage of that custom, if I care to do so, just as others have done and are doing"

"I think the other cases are different from yours," replied the lieutenant. "What is that?" pointing to the dynamite. "Examine it for yourself."

"It looks like dynamite."

"Probably." "Well, sir, I am ordered by Captain Lang to take you on board her majesjty's ship

It was no use to make a fight, so I accompanied him, with excessive and sarcastic politeness. He took all my ceew with him. leaving a guard on the tug. Captain Lang was on deck waiting for me and was quite agitated when I was brought before him, but he was much more heated before we parted company, and it was a warm day to begin with

"Captain Boynton, what does this mean?" he roared. "What does what mean?" I innocently answered. "Your lying over there in a vessel loaded with munifions of war and flying the British flag!"

"It means simply that I am an officer in the Brazilian army, on duty under the guns of a rebel fleet, and that I am flying the British flag for whatever virtue it might have in protecting me from that pirate, Admiral Mello. That flag has been used as a protection by many others and you have silently acquiesced in such use of it."

"But I tell you that it is piracy to fly the British flag over the ship of another nation and carying munitions of war!' '

"It might be just as well, Captain Lang for you to remember that you are not now on the high seas. An act of the British parliament is of no effect within another country, and if you will consult your chart you will find that we are in the enclosed waters of Brazil. Under such conditions no mandate of yours which affects my rights can be enforced unless you have the nerve to take the chances that go with your act."

"You may soon find to the contrary!" shouted the captain, who was letting his temperget the best of him. "I have a mind to send you to Admiral Mello as a prisoner! You know what he would do to you!" "Oh, Captain Lang!" I said jeeringly. "You

"And pray why not, sir?" "Because you dare not do it, and that's why!" I told him, as I pointed to the U. S. S. Charleston, which, with her decks cleared for action, was anchored only a few hundred yards off to port. "I dare you to do it! I defy you to do it! Send me aboard the Aquidaban if you dare!"

I was making a strong bluit, and I got away with it. The outraged Britisher swelled with anger and turned almost purple, but he did not reply to my taunt. Instead, be summoned the ant to take me aboard the Charleston. I will not deny that I was a bit easier in my mind when I saw my own flag flying over me, yet had I known the treatment I was to receive under it I would have felt quite differ-

It was easy to see, from the reception Captain Picking gave me, that he had been influenced by the attitude of Captain Lang. I told him that I was an American citizen, temporarily in the employment of the Brazilian government; that I had violated no law of the United States or of Brazil, and I demanded that I be set ashore. He coldly informed me that I would be confined to the American minister and communicated with Washington, and soon after I arrived on the Charleston I was confined to my room as a dangerous character who threatened the peace of nations. With this decidedly unpleasant recollection, however, it is a pleasure to know that the other American naval officers, who arrived later, took exactly my view of the whole situation and became champions of my cause. They told Picking that Mello was a pirate and should be treated as such, and that I was being deprived of my liberty without the slightest warrant of law, but they were powerless to accomplish my release.

Looking forward a little, the matter in which that old fighter, Rear Admiral Benham, put an end to the "revolution" in the following January, soon after his arrival at Rio, should be well remembered for it was a noble deed and an example of the good judgment generally displayed by American naval officers when they are not hampered by foolish orders from Washington. In the vain hope of arousing enthusiasm for his lost cause. Mello had gone down the coast, where he figuratively and literally took to the woods when he saw the folly of his mission, leaving Da Gama in command of the blockading fleet. The captains of several American merchant ships, who had been reevented for weeks from landing their cargoes for Rio, appealed to Admiral Benham, who took prompt action.

To show his contempt for the rebels, whom he properly regarded as pirates. Admiral Benham assigned the smallest ship of his squadron, the little Detroit, commanded by that great little man, Commander (now Rear Admiral, retired) W. H. Brownson to escort the merchantmen up to

The "revolution" ended right there, but uncortunately I was not present to witness its

It was in vexed Venezuela that I was destined to end my days of deviltry, but not until after a protracted warfare, none the less bitter because it was conducted at long range, with Castro the Contemptible, who came into power two years after I had Anally settled down at Santa Catalina as manager for the Orinoco company. Cipriano Castro had been in congress as diputado, as member of the house, from one of the Andean districts while I was in Caracas with President Crespo, and, though he was regarded as a good ighter and a disturbing element, he was never considered as a presidential possibility.

After getting the development work well started I returned to Caracas and early in 1879 resumed my old confidential position with President Crespo. His term expired the following February and I found that he had already decided on General Ignacio Andrade as his successor. He had planned to continue as dictator of the country, a la Guzman, and spend much of his idle time and money abroad, and he wanted a man who could be relied on to keep his organization intact and turn the office back to him at the end of his term, for the Venezuelan constitution prohibits a president from succeeding himself.

The peons idolized Crespo, and he had such a strong grip on the country that he was able to carry out his plan, but with disastrous results. For a popular election it was the weirdest thing that could be imagined.

It was immediately followed by mutterings of discontent from the better class of citizens and on the night of Andrade's inauguration General

Hernandez, the famed "El Mocho," who was minister of public improvements in Crespo's cabinet, but an opponent of the new president, took to the hills at the head of 3,000 troops. Crespo really was responsible for the curse of with fresh berries and leaves. The two armies met in the mountains near Victoria, June 12, 1898. Hernandez was into a trap, given a drubbing and captured. After the battle Crespo walked across the field and was leaning over a wounded man when he was shot from behind and instantly killed. Some few months after Crespo's death, Castro, who had made himself governor of the like that-one stitch at a time taken pa state of Los Andes, visited Caracas and called on Andrade to demand an important position in the new administration, as the price of peace. Andrade, to his credit be it said, flouted him. Castro left the Yellow house in a rage, sought the councils of Andrade's enemies and, after many conferences, a general insurrection was arranged for early the following summer. The presidency was to go to the leader who developed the greatest strength during the cam-

Almost the first thing he did was to annul our concession, along with a dozen others, on the ground that its terms had not been complied with, as the beginning of his war on all foreigners. I denied this right to cancel our grant, especially as it contained a clause which stipulated that any disagreement between the government and the concessionaire should be referred to the Alta Corte Federale, or Supreme Court for adjustment.

The troops were continually spying on us and annoying us with fictitious charges, but it was a year or more before the government, angered by its failure to get rid of me, resorted to extreme measures. A new governor was sent down with strict orders to remove me, by force if necessary. He advanced toward the house with about 75 soldiers. That little encounter produced pronounced respect for the Americans among Castro's soldiers, and they did not give us much trouble afterward.

FROZEN DISHES.

There is no dessert which ever takes the place of ices and ice creams during he hot weather; they are not only rereshing but nourishing, and are so universally well liked that one cannot go amiss to serve them on all occa-

The plain Philadelphia ice cream may be used as a foundation for any number of delightful combinations, for example:

Nougat Ice Cream.-Add a half cupful each of chopped filberts, walnuts and almonds with a teaspoonful each of almond and vanilla extract. One can buy the plain cream all froten in many places so reasonably, and it can be repacked with any additions of fruit or nuts, making the work very light. The flavor of peach is given by putting two cups of strained peach pulp and a teaspoonful of lemon juice to plain ice cream

A delicious flavor of almonds is given to ice cream in this manner: Blanch and chop a cup of almonds, carmelize four tablespoonfuls of sugar and add the almonds. When cold grind to a powder, add to the cream with a teaspoonful of almond extract.

The most delicious of creams is made by adding two cups of squeezed and strained raspberries to the cream. The color is enhanced by the addition of a teaspoon of lemon juice.

A pretty and easy way to make fancy dessert is raspberry bombe: Line a melon mold with raspberry ice and fill with vanilla ice cream or with a pineapple ice or ice cream. Pack in ice and salt and let stand four hours. Serve with whipped cream or garnish Sultana Roll.-This is a great favorite and can be made without the use der cans with pistachio ice cream (this is plain cream with the chopped nuts cream. Pack as usual. Serve with

He Knew.

The owners of a certain farm had butter and eggs brought them daily by the daughter of the farm. A trained nurse had a case at the owner's home. One day the farmer's wife and daughter were discussing this, when the little boy, who had been listening. said: "Rita, if I go with you tomorrow, will you show me the trained nurse?" The girl said she would, and the next day he accompanied her. The nurse came into the kitchen, said a few words to him, and went out. He ran home at once, and arrived breathless. "Mother," he cried, "the trained nurse is nothing but a girl!"-Harer's Bazar.

High-Handed Justice at the Canal. Mr. Bishop, characterizing Col. G. W. Goethals, emphasizes especially the big man's many-sidedness. Besides putting through the biggest engineering job in the world, he has been, during his years at Panama, a stanch fighter for the laws of economic decency.

Colonel Goethals is a fighter and he will fight a trust as readily as he will fight a labor union. Whole cargoes of tainted meat have been shipped back by the commissary, because the beef trusts' goods were not up to sample. Thousands of square yards of screening were condemned and left unpaid for, as soon as it was discovered that the copper trust had put in so much iron that they were rapidly falling to pieces with rust. Colonel Goethals in determined that no contractors shall become rich by supplying the Panama canal with rotten food and shoddy material, as so many did in the days of the De Lesseps company.

World's Debt to Books.

How safely we lay bare the poverty of human ignorance to books without feeling any shame. They are masters who instruct us without rod or ferule, without angry words, without clothes or money. Love Element in Writer's Lives. Alfred de Musset's love fon irrespon sive George Sand gave his thoughts such an extraordinary elevation that he wrote many brilliant poems in consequence. Chaucer sang the praises of many queens, but his one great love was Philippa Picard de Rouet, the Lady-in-Waiting to Queen Anne of Bohemia. He waited nine years to marry her, but made it a matter of complaint in several poems.

The Downtrodden Farmer. An Ottawa man heard that a farmer wanted to sell a motor car. He sympathized with the poor farmer and his family, because they were forced to part with the machine for financial reasons, he believed, and went out to the farm to buy it. Overland

A Foreword About 1913

Just before the 1912 season opened we advised the public to wait and see what we had to offer. Thousands of people were rewarded when they bought our famous $900 touring car, the car that took the country by storm, for it proved the ecual of any $1200 car shown during the entire 1912 season. Our advice or 1913 is the same as for 1912:

Wait for the Overland Announcement!

We will make our 1913 announcement on August 17th. On this date the world at large will awaken to still more car for still less money.

She is also bound for Reno with same object. Likewise Mrs. Sammy Whiteman. Latter blames, Mrs. Jimmie for her marital troubles. Classmates of Mallary decorate bridal berth. Rev. and Mrs. Temple start on a vacation. They decide to cut loose and Temple removes evidence of his calling. Marjorie decides to let Mallory proceed alone, but train starts while they are lost in farewell. Passengers join Mallory's classmates in giving couple wedding hazing. Marjorie is distracted. Ira Lathrop, woman-hating hanchelor, discovers an old sweetheart. Anne Gattle, a fellow passenger. Mallery valuly hunts for a preacher among the passengers. Mrs. Wellington hears Entite Jimmie's voice, Later she meets Mrs. Whitcomb. Mallory reports to Marjorie his failure to find a preacher. They decide to pretend a quarrel and Mallory finds a vacant berth.

And now he was sprawled and snormajestically among his many luggages, fike a sleeping lion. Revenge tasted good to the humble porter; it tasted like a candled yam smothered in possum gravy. He smacked his thick lips over this revenge. With all the insolence of a servant in brief authority, he gloated over his prey, and prodded him awake. Then murmured with hypocritical deference: Excuse me, but could I see yo' ticket for yo' seat?"

"Certainly not! It's too much trouble," grumbled the half asleeper. "Confound you!"

The porter lured him on: "Is you sho' you got one?" Wedgewood was wide awake now. and surly as any Englishman before breakfast: "Of cawse I'm shaw. How dare you?' "Too bad, but I'm 'bleeged to ask you to gimme a peek at it."

"This is an outrage!" "Wassah, but I just nachelly got to Wedgewood gathered himself to gether, and ransacked his many pockets with increasing anger, muttering under his breath. At length he produced the ticket, and thrust it at the porter: "Thah, you idiot, are you con-wheed now?" The porter gazed at the billet with 131-concealed triumph. "Yassah. I's convinced," Mr. Wedgewood settled back and closed his eyes. "I's conwinced that you is in the wrong and absolved himself with a curt, "I's got otha passengers to wait on now." "I shall certainly report you to the company," the Englishman fumed.

"Yassah, I p'sume so." "Have I got to go to bed now? Really, I-" but the porter was gone, and the irate foreigner crawled under his curtains, muttering, "I shall write a letter to the London Times about this." To add to his misery, Mrs. Whitcomb came from the Women's Room, and as she passed him, she prodded

The porter rolled his eyes again, and turned away, only to be recalled by Marjorie's voice: "Porter, take this old handbag out of here."

The porter thought of the van quished Lathrop, exiled to the smoking room, and he answered: "That belongs to the gemman what owns this berth."

"Put it in number one," Marjorie commanded, with a queenly gesture.

The porter obeyed meekly, wondering what would happen next. He had no sooner deposited Lathrop's valise among the incongruous white ribbons, than Marjorle recalled him to say: 'And, porter, you may bring me my own baggage."

"Yo what-missus?" "Our handbags, idiot," Mallory explained, peevishly.

"I ain't seen no handbags of youalls," the porter protested. "You-all didn't have no handbags when you got on this cah." Mallory jumped as if he had been shot. "Good Lord, I remember! We left 'em in the taxicab!" The porter cast his hands up, and walked away from the tragedy. Marjorie stared at Mallery in horror. "We had so little time to catch the train," Mallory stammered. Marjorie leaped to her feet: "I'm going up in the baggage car."

"For the dog?"

"For my trunk." And now Mallory annihilated her completely, for he gasped: "Our trunks are on the train ahead!" Mariorie fell back for one moment then bounded to her feet with shrill commands: "Porter! Porter! I want you to stop this train this minute!" . The porter called back from the depths of a berth: "This train don't stop till tomorrow noon:" Marjorie had strength enough for only one vain protest: "Do you mean to say that I've got to go to San Francisco in this waist—a waist that has seen a whole day in Chicago?" The best consolation Mallory could offer was companionship in misery He pushed forward one not too immaculate cuff. "Well, this is the only

"Say, porter, that rice-trap. Aren't they going to flop the rice-trap?" The porter shook his head sadly.

'Don't look like that flopper's a'goin to flip. That dog-on bridal couple is done divorced a'ready!"

CHAPTER XVI.

Good Night, All! The car was settling gradually into peace. But there was still some murmur and drowsy energy. Shoes continued to drop, heads to bump against upper berths, the bell to ring now and then, and ring again and again.

The porter paid little heed to it; he was busy making up number five (Ira Lathrop's berth) for Marjorie, who was making what preparations sah?" "Did I ring! Paw-tah, you may draw my tub at eight-thutty in the mawning.

"Draw yo'-what, sah?" the porter gasped. "My tub."

"Ba-ath tub?"

"Bahth tub."

"Lawdy, man. Is you allowin' to take a ba-ath in the mawnin'?" "Of course I am."

"Didn't you have one befo' you stanted?

"How dare you! Of cawse I did." "Well, that's all you git." "Do you mean to tell me that there is no tub on this beastly train?"

Wedgewood almost fell out of bed with the shock of this news. "We do not carry tubs-no, sah. There's a lot of tube in San Francisco, though." "No tub on this train for four days! Wedgewood sighed. "But whatever does one do in the meanwhile?"

held at arm's length, as if it were a venomous monster, Snoozleums. And he yelled: Say, whose durn dog is this? He bit two men, and he makes so much noise we can't sleep in the baggage car.

Marjorie went flying down the aisle to reclaim her lost lamb in wolf's clothing, and Snoozleums, the returned prodigal, yelped and leaped, and told her all about the indignities he had been subjected to, and his valiant struggle for liberty.

Marjorie, seeing only Snoozleums, stepped into the fatal berth number one, and paid no heed to the dangling ribbons. Mallory, eager to restore himself to her love by loving her dog, crowded closer to her side, making a hypocritical ado over the pup.

Everybody was popping his or her face out to learn the cause of such clamor. Among the bodiless heads suspended along the curtains, like Dyak trophies, appeared the great mask of Little Jimmie Wellington. He had been unable to sleep for mourning the wanton waste of that lovely

When he peered forth, his eyes hardly believed themselves. The elusive bride and groom were actually in the trap-the hen pheasant and the chanticleer. But the net did not fall. He waited to see them sit down, and spring the infernal machine. But they would not sit.

In fact, Marjorie was muttering to Harry-tenderly, now, since he had won her back by his efforts to console Snoozleums-she was muttering tenderly:

"We must not be seen together, honey. Go away, I'll see you in the morning.'

And Mallory was saying with bitterest resignation: "Good night-my

And they were shaking hands! This incredible bridal couple was shaking hands with itself-disintegrating! Then Wellington determined to do at least his duty by the sacred rites.

The gaping passengers saw what was probably the largest pair of pajamas in Chicago. They saw Little Jimmie, smothering back his giggles like a schoolboy, tiptoe from his berth, enter the next berth, brushing the porter aside, climb on the seat, and clutch the ribbon that pulled the stopper from the trap. Down upon the unsuspecting elopers came this miraculous cloudburst of ironical rice, and with it came Little Jimmie Wellington, who lost what little balance he had, and catapulted into their midst like the offspring of

He was dreaming that he was a boy in Brattleboro, the worst boy in Brattleboro, trying to get up the courage to spark pretty Anne Gattle, and throwing rocks at the best boy in town, Charlie Selby, who was always at her side. The porter woke Ira, an hour later, and escorted him to the late bridal section.

Marjorie had fled with her dog, as soon as she could grope her way through the deluge of rice. She hopped into her berth, and spent an hour trying to clear her hair of the multitudinous grains. And as for Snoozleums, his thick wool was so be-riced that for two days, whenever he shook himself, he snew.

From a Mere Man. Will you kindly advise me the duties of the "best man" at a home wedding? I am to wear a dress suit. Will you state the accessories that go with

The best man is supposed to be the moral support and adviser of the bridgegroom; he sees to the details, such as having the necessary credenlials at hand required by the state and clergyman, pays the latter, stands by the bridgegroom and enters with him; he takes the maid of honor (if there is one) under his especial protection after the ceremony. In fact, he is supposed to be the official thinker' for the bridgegroom. Pearl studs and cuff links, a white bow tie, white kid gloves and white waistcoat, with patent leather pumps, go with full evening dress.

The Proper Thing to Do. Being in doubt I come to your helpful department for information. Is it necessary to write anything upon the card that is sent with a wedding gift? mula for this delicious toilet water If so, what? Must an invitation to a calls for four pounds of rose petals wedding be acknowledged?

It is not necessary to say anything on the card, on the other hand, it is perfectly proper to do so. The words "Sincere good wishes" or "Hearty congratulations" seem to bring the donor into closer touch with the recipient, but as with all things, this is a matter of personal feeling. Dame Curt sey has said time and again that an invitation to a home wedding demanded an immediate "acceptance" or "regret" the same as for any social function at a home. A wedding at the church does not require a reply.

Fift for a Mam.

Will you name a few articles that a young woman may with propriety give to a man who is about to leave for a distant city to study law?

It is supposed that the man in question will have a "den" of some description and there are a number of things to provide which are useful as well as ornamental. For instance, a bronze incense burner to hold cigar ashes, a stunning metal desk set, a brass candlestick with a bayberry candle, a metal letter holder, book ends of wood or metal, a framed sentiment, etc. In fact, there is almost no-limit Dr. Temple in a nightgown and to acceptable objects outside of the ever-present pillow, of which, like teaspoons for a girl, "there can never be

While not perfumes exactly, toilet waters are always scented, and their use is very beneficial to the skin, particularly in the summer, when it needs all the refreshment it can get. The scented waters are diluted with plain water for use, for some of the vinegars are so strongly perfumed as to long summer and I can't go, too! Why, seem disagreeable when used full you'll have forgotten that I'm on earth

The liquid is left doubt me!" to dry on the skin, as one of the chief purposes of the toilet water is its tonic effect. After a weary day, a rubly diluted, makes one feel like a new natural that with a lot of those Willie down with a good toilet water, properbeing, and while it is very convenient boys hanging around you whose fathto get the vinegars ready made they can be turned out at home very easily and sometimes much more cheaply.

Of all the fragrant toilet waters none is so much used as rose water. and when this is pure it possesses the greatest cosmetic virtues. One forand ten quarts of water. The water is first distilled and then poured cold upon the petals, which are shaken around in the liquid. Then the vessel is loosely covered and put in a cool, dark place for several weeks, until the liquid becomes odorous. Then it is again distilled, and the drippings are gathered in small bottles and closely corked.

Another formula calls for putting he rose petals in an earthern jar and covering them with a weak brine of common salt. The roses may be gathered every day, and the petals added as they come handy.

An improved still can be made by fastening an india rubber tube to the spout of a tea kettle and passing it through cold water to condense the steam. The distillate, or drippings should be received in a glass or earthen receptacle; for if toilet waters ome in contact with copper, zinc of lead, they will exidize the metals. Stills for home use, however, can be bought very cheaply in the shopsfrom a dollar and a half up.

Many other garden blooms with pungent odors, or even faintly delicate ones, can be used for exquisite and helpful toilet waters-mignonette, lilies of the valley, clove-pinks, valerian, heliotrope, honeysuckle, violets, gardenias, jasmine, etc. In New Orleans and Charleston Creole ladies often drop the more richly scented blooms into pure alcohol, allowing them to digest or soak in the spirits, when the odor thoroughly permeates the alcohol.

A toilet liquid much used by the ladies of the olden times, and often called to this day "angel water." is much esteemed for its beauty value. It can be made at home in the followng manner

Orange-flower water 5 ounces Myrtle water21/2 ounces Essence of ambergris drachm Essence of musk drachm

Mingle the various substances and agitate the bottle for several hours, continuing the shaking during the day quite frequently for some weeks. Keep the bottle closely stoppered and in a warm, dark place. Let it stand for two weeks or longer, then decant the liquid, and if it is not perfectly clear, filter it. Properly made, angel

Farm Machinery

It would seem superfluous to point Just about the time of the ripening out the need of care and protection the fruit grower notices that trees ever, many farmers who do not give have a ragged look and in many cases, this matter the attention it deserves, they lose their natural green color and we are led to inquire whether and become a sickly yellow. If a they are fully convinced that it is a leaf is examined, it is found that it matter of dollars and cents, or, on the is thickly peppered with small, round other hand, one of carelessness and more careful attention to this phase of farm management the following figures are presented. Though some assumptions are made as to the period of usefulness of the machine in question they are based on the judgment of good authorities and may be verified by the experience of the reader. Using the latter figure and will, therefore, be a weak growth next assuming that the house could be spring and a very poor crop of fruit, used for 15 years, a yearly cost of nearly $17 would be shown. Not taking into account interest on investment for the purpose in mind the total annual cost of protected machinery would be $25 plus $17 equals $102. as against an annual cost of $120 per year for unprotected. From these figures a saving of $18 per year will

It should be remarked, too, that in a well-designed implement house the to spend time in covering it with can- Mele was or otherwise protecting it temporarily in the field, as must be done, for instance, with the binder. The implement house should have ample floor space. Height is not so essential, but space may often 'be economized by using a hoist of some description to lift and hang the lighter tools and implements off the floor. This would be desirable, particularly for implements or tools used only for short periods of the year. The implement floor should also be open and free from posts if possible to facilitate moving the larger units. The doors should be wide enough to accommodate any implement and close enough together to permit taking machines out of the building without making it necessary to move a great number of others. It might also be said in this connection that an effort should be made to group together those implements in use at the same time. Using this scheme, the whole group may be taken out at once. A concrete floor made level also makes moving heavy implements an easy task. Two men can move a loaded wagon on a cement floor that would be a load for a team The farmer has an endless number of details to look after and hence work as possible. This not only economizes time but leaves his mind free to plow rather than carry and hold a suggestion intended to show what is meant. Summer is a busy season and it is difficult to find time to put an implement in order when through using. This is, however, the best time because the operator has in mind the details which need replacing or re pairing. This scheme will help economize time and yet bring to mind what is to be done. Procure some shipping tags about 21/2x41/2 (cost $1 to $1.50 per M). An old darky with an old gray mule hitched to a ramshackle wagon stood on the incline of Capitol hill, in Washington, during one of the worst sleet storms in January.

The old man huddled in his rabbitskin cap, shivering, the mule trembling with the cold. Two congressmen, waiting for a belated car, were attracted by the strange outfit and wondered, as time went on and the darky made no effort to depart, what ailed the old fellow.

One of the congressmen walked over and said: "Why don't you move on, uncle?"

The old darky pointed a trembling finger at his "team" and replied: "'Cause dis yere mule won't go 'les' I whistle at him, and it's so cold I cayn't whistle!"-Everybody's.
