Fell Out of a Window.

Lewis Coon, of the Soldiers' Home at Grand Rapids, who is visiting at the home of his brother, John Coon, met with a serious accident just after midnight last Thursday. Mr. Coon, who is 70 years of age, is blind in one eye and the vision of the other is badly impaired, fell from the second floor over Kelley's restaurant to the sidewalk, breaking his right wrist, the left pelvis bone, and his left side was badly bruised.

Christian Breustle, the night watchman on the Main street crossing of the Michigan Central, heard the injured man moaning and went to his assistance. About the time he arrived the brother of the injured man, who rooms over his place of business, appeared and they carried the man to his room and Dr. G. W. Palmer was called.

It is supposed that Mr. Coon, who had arrived here Thursday evening, mistook the open window for a door and walked out of it.

Mr. Coon is recovering from his injuries quite rapidly and will return to Grand Rapids as soon as he can possibly be moved.

Held Annual Reunion.

Fifty-eight members of the Seventeenth Michigan Infantry, known as the "Stonewall Regiment," held their thirty-third annual reunion in Ypsilanti Tuesday. The exercises in the afternoon were held in the Masonic temple, and one of the features was the presentation to each member of a badge commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Antietam which took place September 17, 1862. The badges were presented to the old soldiers by Mrs. Withington, of Jackson, widow of Col. Withington who commanded the Seventeenth.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, O. F. Kaywood, Jackson; vice president, Christian Rath, Jackson, who was provost marshal when President Lincoln's assassins were executed; local secretary, David Lane, Jackson; Theo. E. Wood of this place is permanent secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. Wood is assistant secretary. The next reunion will be held at Jackson.

Long-Hindelang Wedding.

Hamilton (Ont.) Herald, September 3: A quiet wedding took place this morning at St. Mary's cathedral, when Rev. Dr. Mahoney united in marriage Miss Mary Estelle Long, youngest daughter of Mrs. Walter Long, 193 Park street north, to Mr. Leo J. Hindelang. The bride, who was simply gowned in her traveling suit of navy blue cloth, with velvet hat in tan, was attended by her sister, Miss Anna Long, as bridesmaid, who wore a lovely gown of navy blue and white striped silk and navy hat to match. The groom was attended by Mr. Fred Loosley. The bridal couple left immediately on a wedding trip to Detroit, Lansing and other points in Michigan, and on their return will reside at 25 Arthur avenue.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Hindelang, who formerly resided in Chelsea.

To Mothers—And Others.

You can use Bucklen's Arnica Salve to cure children of eczema, rashes, tetter, chafing, scaly and crusty humors, as well as their accidental injuries—cuts, burns, bruises, etc., with perfect safety. SHOULD BE SAFEGUARDED.

Another Accident at the Main Street Crossing of the D., J. & C.

The Main street crossing of the D., J. & C. electric line was the scene of another accident last Friday forenoon which resulted in an automobile being put out of commission.

O. C. Burkhardt accompanied by a number of ladies was driving on Main street from the south, and as he approached the crossing a car from the west suddenly appeared without giving a warning. Mr. Burkhardt saw that he could not stop his machine in time to avoid a collision with the car, and so he turned toward the gutter and ran into a telephone pole. The left frame, fender and lamp of the auto was twisted and broken from the force of the impact, but none of the occupants of the car were injured.

This is the second or third accident that has happened at this crossing in a short time and something should be done to protect the public. A driver of either a team or automobile has no opportunity to see an electric car until they are almost on the track. The motormen as a rule, seldom ever give a warning blast of their whistle as they approach the station from either the east or west, and the buildings completely shut off the view of an approaching car to drivers of vehicles coming into or going out of town. The state railway commission should be called upon to have the crossing put in a safe condition for the public.

Amendments to the Constitution.

Proposed amendments to Section 1, Article 3, and Section 21, Article 8, of the constitution will be submitted to the electors at the election to be held on Tuesday, November 5, 1912.

The effect of the proposed amendments to Section 1, Article 3, is to give a city or village power to every village, a citizen of the United States and of the state of Michigan, above the age of twenty-one years.

The proposed amendment to Section 21, Article 8, of the Constitution is as follows:

"Section 21.—Under such general laws, the electors of each city and village shall have power and authority to frame, adopt and amend its charter and to amend an existing charter of the city or village heretofore granted or passed by the legislature for the government of the city or village, and through its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, subject to the constitution and general laws of this state."

The effect of the proposed amendment to Section 21, Article 8, is to give a city or village power to amend an existing charter through its regularly constituted authority, without making a general revision of the old charter or framing of a new charter.

"In Old Tennessee."

Full of human interest and heart throbs, fascinating to the last foot; a faithful photo play of the romance and thrilling excitement of the life of a moonshiner and an enthralling story of the remarkable work of a detective in the haunts of the law breakers, is the way the Imp press agent describes the Imp Company's latest production, "In Old Tennessee." It's an unequalled, perfectly finished production with tense situations that will cause the heart to flutter. It's a love story, romantic and sublime with beautiful and unrivaled scenic effects. It comes with King Baggett and Miss Jane Fernley playing the leading roles. It will be presented at the Princess on Tuesday evening, September 24.

Among the early bookings at the Princess is Edwin's beautiful production of "Robin Hood" in two reels. This story is so well known that it needs no further comment. It will be shown at the Princess Thursday, September 26.

"The Spring Maid."

Miss Hattie Fox, the charming niece of Della Fox, and now playing Annamir in Werba & Lusscher's production of the "Spring Maid," which will appear at the Whitney Theatre, Ann Arbor, on Saturday, September 21, matinee and night, bears the distinction of being the only leading lady on record who after establishing herself as such voluntarily went back to the position of chorus girl.

While Miss Fox was rehearsing with "The Spring Maid" prior to its opening, a little chorus girl friend of hers playing in a musical comedy on Broadway was taken ill. She told Miss Fox her tale of woe, how the manager would put another girl in her place, and how she would be out of an engagement with a long period of idleness and rehearsing, and enlisted the actress' sympathy.

Miss Fox and she then entered into a little scheme. It was agreed that the former should report to the stage manager, telling him that she was the sick girl's sister, that they were in dire financial straits, and then ask him to allow her to substitute for the sick sister.

The scheme worked like a charm, and Miss Fox was duly rehearsed and appeared in the first row of the chorus. The ex-leading lady occupied this position for three nights without anyone discovering her identity, but on the fourth a friend seated in a box discovered who she was and told the manager of the company.

He questioned Miss Fox and she confessed. When he heard the story he was so impressed by it that he agreed to hold the place open for the sick girl, and sent her the salary for every performance she missed. Miss Fox says she rather liked the experience.

"The Spring Maid" is one of the events at the Whitney this season, and the Chelsea people will be well taken care of, as there are two performances, matinee 2:15, and night performance 8:15. The D. U. R. cars wait for all performances.

Rivalry in Discovery of Synthetic Rubber

Is the world on the eve of another commercial revolution due to an accidental chemical discovery? Is synthetic rubber going to take its place upon equal terms of competition with the juice of the trees and plants which so long have supplied the rubber commerce?

Just at the present time English and German chemists are disputing over their claims to precedence in finding a way to create from certain raw materials a chemical counterpart of natural rubber. The world at large is not directly concerned in the determination of this question of priority, but it has a very deep interest in the commercial practicability of these discoveries.

Two years ago Dr. F. E. Matthews of England, then associated with other distinguished chemists, among them Prof. W. H. Perkin, Sir William Ramsay and Prof. Perbach, was seeking to perfect a cheap process for the manufacture of synthetic rubber and by chance left some isoprene and metallic sodium in contact for a period of about two months, going off in the meanwhile for his summer outing. Upon his return Dr. Matthews was amazed to find that the isoprene had in the interval been converted into solid rubber. The long sought key to the riddle was thus uncovered by an accident.

Isoprene is an oily, volatile hydrocarbon. It was obtained by distillation from caoutchouc fifty years ago by Williams, and the analysis of isoprene showed that it was chemically identical with the oil of turpentine. The problem since that day has been twofold; first, to derive isoprene from abundant raw materials, and then to effect its conversion into rubber through the medium of plentiful and cheap reagents. In order to compete with nature's product it was necessary that artificial rubber should be made in large quantities and at a cost which would put it on a par at least with the expense of gathering troil and that the synthetic rubber factory would be located where it could reach easily its raw materials and its market for the finished output. Climatic and geographical conditions have prescribed the zones in which the rubber plant can be successfully grown, even though its cultivation be subject to scientific methods and are free from the haphazard ways of the rubber hunter.

In England the present discoveries are hailed by Sir William Ramsay and his fellows not so much as a promise of commercial advantage but as a professional achievement which puts the British chemist ahead of his rivals across the Channel. That the Germans have good reason to be satisfied with their own accomplishments in this very field is undoubtedly true. The Germans claim that they have now a method for making rubber synthetically which will soon be ready to compete with the output of the tropical forests.

Back in the '80's Tilden, an Englishman, gave long study to the problem of making synthetic rubber, but abandoned his work finally because he did not believe the attainment practicable. The individual was powerless to cope with so gigantic a problem and his resources were unequal to the task. Capital was necessary as well as the united efforts of many men. In fact in one factory alone in Germany there were 300 college bred chemists concentrating upon the technical researches litres of it. This showed us that we had the right formulae, the scientific execution of which was no longer questionable. But with the making of isoprene our troubles were not ended; on the contrary, they were but beginning.

"We were confronted with the problem of converting this liquid into that tough, elastic, plastic colloid which was to be a successful substitute for rubber, in truth its very counterpart. Theoretically the task was easy, because, as Bellstein says, isoprene is converted into caoutchouc by treating it with muriatic acid. Of course, we tried that at once, but for our pains we got nothing but oily chlorides—not a trace of rubber. We were apparently defied.

"We tried all sorts of likely and imaginable physical and chemical mediums in connection with isoprene, but the wilful stuff refused to thicken. Finally I discovered the power to perform this miracle hidden away in heat. There was nothing new in heating isoprene, but the result we obtained thereby was new. Other authorities had tried heat, but all they got was either an oily or at best a resinous substance.

"Polymerism in chemistry is that property peculiar to some compounds by which they differ in their molecular weights and also in their chemical properties even when formed from the same elements and combined in the same proportions. In other

Thousands upon thousands of experiments have thus been brought to a crystallized knowledge which makes it possible and practicable to embark upon the manufacture of rubber synthetically from available cheap materials. The plantations in the far east have been developing over a period of fully thirty-five years, and in a sense they have the start of the artificial product in a quantitative estimate, but this advantage will not continue if the chemist manufacturer can make rubber synthetically as cheaply as Dr. Hofmann predicts.

In 1910 and 1911 the world production of India rubber reached a total of about 80,000 tons and the world consumption of caoutchouc was in the neighborhood of 75,000 tons. Figuring the cost of this rubber at an average of $1 a pound the total value of the production reaches $160,000,000.

Synthetic rubber, it is believed, would make it possible to widen the field of application of rubber. Make-shifts and substitutes of one sort or another are now used in many directions, because natural rubber is too expensive. Therefore, the public is interested in the artificial product first because it will add stability to the price of the rubber from trees, and next it will make it possible to apply it in many ways now prohibited by price and the relatively limited output of plantations and the wild growth.

Whether the basic isoprene be made from a starchy substance after the English process or from a product of coal, as Dr. Hofmann has chosen, there will be immense quantities of by-products which will be a part of the systems employed in making isoprene, and in converting it into counterpart caoutchouc in either case. It would be financially prohibitive to neglect these by-products in concentrating upon the manufacture of artificial rubber.

Dr. Hofmann says that if 25 per cent of artificial rubber could be produced from every pound of basic material, then a factory turning out half a million pounds a day would require 2,000,000 pounds of the mother substance, three-quarters of which would accumulate every twenty-four hours in the form of by-products. This gives an idea of what the chemist-manufacturer has before him, even though the secret of synthetic rubber has been identified with the work undertaken. As success each year crowns the efforts of the management, the feeling takes root with the dairy people that this show should be the mecca to which all men interested in dairy progress should make an annual pilgrimage and bring their fellows with them in goodly numbers.

This show is the mart for exchange of experiences and ideas that have made or broke those following the lines disclosed. It is the mart where all that is best in dairying, be it breeding, feeding, fitting for show yard, or developing to the highest standard of production for market purposes is discussed; where all that is modern in farm and dairy machinery is displayed in practical manner. Here the east meets the west; the younger rubs elbows with the veteran. In fact, no fair or exposition can hope to attain the value and importance that this exposition has attained. It stands today honestly administered for the dairy industry as a whole; it knows no breed or interest above another and is the highest exponent of all that is best in dairying. The seventh annual show, better equipped with all features of merit amplified, new and instructive features added in the government educational exhibit, no matter what character of stock raising he is engaged in a day or two spent at the show must be helpful to the man who wants to advance in his methods and make more money from his farm. It is a farmer's show, the less pretentious scale you farm on the more need you have of its teachings. The railroads are doing a great work along their respective lines and they, together with the agricultural and dairy press, are rendering valuable support to this show. This show is held in Chicago every year. This year October 24 to November 2. Adv.

THE NATIONAL DAIRY SHOW.

As shows and expositions are supposed to emphasize progress, to bring out by comparison new and better methods of operation, and as this is an era of close margin in business, the best minds of the country are constantly engaged in evolving low cost of production, and marketing methods. It is reasonable to expect that an industry involving a billion of dollars annually, as does the dairy industry in America, must have the best brains of the day working out improvement in the vast problems that are attached to its many branches. That this stupendous industry might receive its proper recognition among the world's activities, a few patriotic men organized this association for the purpose of holding an annual dairy show that would be a short course in dairy husbandry unequalled anywhere else, mapping out a line of work to produce an educational event that would supplement the work of our agricultural colleges, which was much to be desired in the dairy world, and each recurring show taking advantage of experience gained in the previous shows has improved until it is today somewhere near what its founders intend it shall be.

Twelve hundred to fourteen hundred head of the best breeds of dairy cattle are promised for exhibition this year, being judged by competent trained experts on type and performance, with all records of breeding and feeding developed by masters in the industry placed at the disposal of the visitor, and with the highest achievement of the genius of man on lines of caring for and marketing dairy products before you, the 1912 show promises to surpass all its predecessors, and it would indeed be a lagard who would not justify time and expense of attendance upon this great show. Within its portals the old-timer can gain most useful knowledge for his dairy farm activities, and a beginner can equip himself with the groundwork for embarking upon a successful dairy enterprise. The handful of men who commenced this show have been supplemented by several hundred others from all over the country who from contact were convinced of the integrity of purpose of its founders and desired to become identified with the work undertaken. As success each year crowns the efforts of the management, the feeling takes root with the dairy people that this show should be the mecca to which all men interested in dairy progress should make an annual pilgrimage and bring their fellows with them in goodly numbers.

This show is the mart for exchange of experiences and ideas that have made or broke those following the lines disclosed. nature's rubber and delivering it at the factories.

Permentation is an action set up by various kinds of germs, and Prof. Perbach found the germ that would convert certain plentiful starchy materials into fusel oil, and from this fusel oil he obtained cheap isoprene. It was this isoprene which Dr. Matthews learned by accident how to turn into rubber by means of sodium. Sir William Ramsay and his associates believe that rubber can be made in this way at a cost of about 24 cents a pound. From 25 to 28 cents a pound is what it costs now to collect rubber in the far east and amid the forests of the Amazon. The heaviest after expense is involved in transporting the raw material to manufacturing centers, and also in purifying this rubber so that it shall be fit to go into the finished products.

The rubber hunter mixes the juice of latex of many trees, and the raw stuff is seldom uniform; and is frequently filled with foreign substances, and even poisons, the latter hidden away in the gum to increase the weight. The cost of getting rid of these things is heavy, and this fact must be borne in mind in giving proper value to any process for the synthetic making of rubber. It is natural to suppose that a chemical production would be subject to perfect con-involved in that single establishment. Many factories in the fatherland had joined in this international effort to find an artificial process by which rubber could be built up synthetically from raw materials readily available, but to the Elberfeld Farbenfabriken belongs the distinction of priority in the solution of the problem. Dr. Fritz Hofmann, director in charge at Elberfeld, gives his own story of the pursuit of the elusive key.

"By mere chance my attention was called to this question of synthetic rubber through a lecture delivered in London about six years ago by Prof. Doustan. As a pharmaceutical chemist in a dye factory my work did not take me in the direction of rubber, but the problem fascinated me.

"I found on reading up the subject that caoutchouc was based on isoprene, and I tried to prove it. To do that I had to have isoprene, and, what was more, I had to have synthetic isoprene and not the kind obtained by a dry distillation of rubber such as had hitherto generally been used. I had a task before me.

"To the organic chemist coal is an ideal mother substance, and I chose it as my basic material. In this we were justified, and in March of 1909 Carl Coustell and I succeeded in obtaining the first large quantity of pure synthetic isoprene—several words, the structural atoms are differently arranged, and the body or substance thus differs from another of the same chemical get up but with its tiny units otherwise distributed.

"We soon recognized that the polymerizing power of heat could be furthered by numerous chemical admixtures, but we soon found that there are many more substances that work in opposition to this end. In August of 1909 I obtained the first rubber polymerized by heat in the laboratory of the Elberfeld works. In September of that year I submitted a sample of this material to Dr. Gerlach. He was the first to confirm our product actually contained caoutchouc. A month later Harries tested our synthetic material with his ozone method, and by this means was able to establish that our heat polymerized isoprene was veritable India rubber."

Dr. Hofmann frankly admits that should the extensive rubber plantations cultivated under English direction in the Malay Archipelago meet expectations synthetic rubber will not be so necessary in supplying at a more reasonable rate the present market. However, he says that the synthetic has so adjusted conditions that he can compete with his ware in price and quality with the natural product.

difference will prove vital either at once or later in the employment of the synthetic substance has yet to be established.

Summer School.
Particularly significant is the growth of summer schools in the Carolinas, where the movement started comparatively late. At the University of North Carolina there was an attendance of 450 this year, just double last year's enrollment. At the normal school at Greensboro, North Carolina, a session of eight weeks was held, the first in the history of the institution, and 200 enthusiastic teachers were in attendance. At the summer session of the Winthrop Normal College, Rock Hill, South Carolina, particular attention was paid to problems of industrial education and rural schools, and men of national prominence participated in the work.

Growth Attached to It.
"You've been sleeping in the telephone booth, I believe," said the manager of the summer hotel.

"Yes."
"I can give you a billiard table now, if you like."
"No; I'll stick to the booth. I rather like the room. It isn't large, but it's cozy."

It's the Best Polish Ever Used

That's What Every One Says Who Tries

Black Silk Stove Polish

Don't imagine for a moment that all brands of stove polish are the same. Don't get the idea that to keep a nice glossy shine on your stove you must black it every few days. It's not a question of off-repeated application. It's a question of the stove polish to use.

Black Silk Stove Polish is so much better than other stove polishes that there is absolutely no comparison—it's in a class all by itself.

It makes a brilliant glossy shine that doesn't rub or dust off. It answers to the iron—becomes a part of the stove. It makes old stoves look like new and lasts four times as long as any other shine.

Get a can and give it a trial. Try it on your parlor stove, your cook stove, or your gas range. If you do not find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Black Silk Stove Polish has been made by the same formula and sold under one name for 30 years.

Here is what some of the ladies write us:

"I sent you for a can of Black Silk Stove Polish and found it so much better than any I had ever used that I asked my hardware dealer to order a supply. He did so, and is now selling nearly everyone in the place your polish. I had no idea there could be such a difference in stove polishes."

"I was visiting friends and they used Black Silk Stove Polish on their stoves. It made the best shine I ever saw, and after blacking, the polish did not rub or dust off. It is what I have used for years."

Ask Your Dealer for Black Silk Stove Polish and refuse a counterfeit brand. Costs you no more than the ordinary kind, so why not have the best. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works, Sterling, Ill.

Use Black Silk Air-Drying Iron Enamel for grates, fenders, registers, stove pipes, etc. Prevents rusting. Not affected by heat or cold. Produces a permanent glossy black surface. Can, with brush for applying enamel, only 25 cents. Ask your dealer.

Use Black Silk Metal Polish for nickel, brass, silverware or tinware. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

A Plain Statement of IHC Wagon Value

SOME farmer saves money every time an IHC wagon is sold. Not because it costs less money to begin with, but because of the length of service it gives, an IHC wagon is the cheapest wagon you can buy. The longer a wagon lasts the cheaper it is. That is why it is economy to buy the best wagon—one that will outlast any ordinary wagon. When you buy an IHC wagon

Weber Columbus

New Bettendorf Steel King

you invest in a wagon built of the highest grade material which experience and care can select or money can buy, built in the most thorough, painstaking manner, by skilled workmen, in factories which have modern appliances for doing work of the highest standard at the lowest possible cost.

All lumber used is air-dried in sheds with concrete floors. This insures toughness and resiliency. All metal parts are made of especially prepared steel, guaranteeing the longest service. Each wagon undergoes four inspections before being shipped so that it reaches the purchaser in first class condition, ready to be put to work at once, and able to carry any reasonable load over any road where a wagon should go.

Weber and Columbus wagons have wood gears, New Bettendorf and Steel King have steel gears. The IHC dealer knows which wagon is best suited to your work. When you see him get literature from him, or write
