INSPECTED CHELSEA

The Plan of Operation of This Organization—Co-operation With State Fire Marshal.

On Wednesday of this week the Michigan State Fire Prevention Association made a complete inspection of the business district and the mercantile buildings of Chelsea, as has been done at Jackson, Battle Creek, Flint and a number of other Michigan cities.

The Michigan State Fire Prevention association was organized at the request of the state fire marshal, and this inspection is done under the supervision of the state fire marshal's department. The fire prevention movement is based on the principle of locking the barn before the horse is stolen, and on the old and trite saying that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

The plan of inspection is to appropriate the business section of each city into a number of districts, and assign two inspectors to each division. Careful inspection is made of each building, both inside and out, and notation is made of any defects in way of rubbish, poor electric wiring, faulty heating apparatus or chimneys, poor repair or any other defects which would in any way endanger the property or render it a menace to life or other buildings. The inspectors report faulty conditions to the secretary and an official request is mailed to him to the property owner or tenant, citing the defects and soliciting correction of same, with request that notification of compliance be mailed to the office of the secretary at Lansing. After a period of ten days, if the owner does not respond to the secretary, a second notice is mailed, and in case no reply thereto is received after another ten days, the case is referred to the state fire marshal, who will have one of his deputies make an inspection and if the conditions are found to be still faulty a notification and order will issue from the state fire marshal to comply with the law, the act creating the department giving the marshal power to order elimination of dangerous conditions with a penalty of $10 to $50 per day for failure to comply with the order.

All citizens should have a public-spirited interest in co-operating in work of this character. The fire prevention movement is worthy and commendable and every business man should welcome the inspection and aid the inspectors in the work and comply with all reasonable requests.

Rev. Thomas Holmes, D. D.

Rev. Thomas Holmes, D. D., was born in Royalton, New York, November 24, 1817, and died at the Aged Ministers' Home at Lakemont, New York on Sunday afternoon, January 20, 1913, aged 95 years, 1 month and 27 days.

He was taken with a shock last August, but gradually recovered therefrom till he was fairly comfortable, through his strength returned but in part. He suffered but little until Monday, January 13, when heart trouble set in. Everything that skill could do was done, but the heart action did not lessen, and he passed away without any decrease of the trouble. He was conscious till the last, and always clear headed and courageous.

Rev. Holmes had only moderate opportunities for an education in his youth and attend schools only winters after he was 12 years of age. In the winter of 1836 he taught his first term of school at Malta, New York. In November, 1836 he came to Michigan and resided at the home of his uncle near Northville until the following March, when he went to the home of his father in Pittsfield. For 14 years during the winter months he taught ungraded country schools, five of which were in Washtenaw county.

In 1841, he entered Oberlin college where he devoted his time for nine years in taking a classical and theological course and received his A. B. degree in 1847, and that of A. M. in 1850. In 1853, he was chosen professor in Greek in Antioch college, Ohio. From April, 1855, to August, 1857, he spent in traveling and studying in Europe. The next few years he devoted to the ministry in the eastern states. In 1865, he was elected president of Union Christian college at Merom, Indiana, which position he filled until 1875.

He was united in marriage with Lettice Smith, of Ann Arbor, October 14, 1847. Mrs. Holmes died about two years ago.

Dr. Holmes became a resident of Chelsea in 1877 and for about seven years of the Chelsea Congregational church. At the close of his pastorate he purchased the Chelsea Herald, which he conducted for about two years. After retiring from the newspaper business, Dr. Holmes devoted his time to the ministry, as a supply for churches with a vacancy, delivering lectures and in literary work. He published a number of books on religious subjects. During his residence here he united in marriage many couples, some of whom are residents of this place, and officiated at the funerals of a host of the pioneer residents of this county.

Dr. Holmes left here two years ago the coming April and has since resided at the home for aged ministers at Lakemont. A. H. Holmes, of Ann Arbor, is a brother, and the interment took place in that city.

HELD CONFERENCE.

Beakes Tells Wilson State Machine Still Balks.

Representative-elect S. W. Beakes, of Ann Arbor, while in Trenton, N. J., told Gov. Wilson Tuesday that the Michigan state democrat organization had not exerted itself to the fullest measure to obtain the election of a United States senator and that it is not worthy of recognition by patronage. Beakes said he had been compelled to fight the organization from the start, when he was one of the leaders for Wilson's nomination at Baltimore.

The representative-elect held quite a protracted conference with the governor.

Among other visitors during the day was Sir Horace Plunkett. Gov. Wilson after the conference said that Sir Horace had interested him greatly in his discussion of farmer's co-operative organizations.

Efficiency in public service and the merit systems rather than partisan politics will be the basis upon which President-elect Wilson will make his appointments to office, he indicated Tuesday.

"The Balkan Princess."

All the top notes in opera are not confined within the four walls of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, nor the Auditorium in Chicago. Miss Julia Gifford made it emphatically clear that tunes in light opera may sail as high as anything belonging to its more dignified and classical sister in the world of music. And it is said Miss Gifford will liberate a few exceedingly lofty trills at the Whitney Theatre, Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, January 28. She will appear in the title role of "The Balkan Princess," the gaily capricious musical comedy in which, as the Princess Stephanie of Salaria, she right royally reigned the realm of song for a season extending over six months in New York at the Herald Square and Casino theatres, setting a new high-water mark for attractions of this class in the Metropolis.

But it has not been any one particular element that has enabled "The Balkan Princess" to repeat in New York the sweeping success it recorded at the Gaitey in London, where it ran for an entire year. It has a plot, clean, clear and logical. A romantic story of sufficient dramatic strength to stand on its own feet as a novel, which has been widely published in serial form. It is a skillful play, believable and charming. Nor is the score confined to soaring arias for the prima donna. There are many novel and diversified numbers. One song which does not call for the principal singer by elaborate choruses girls and a like number of chorus men. It is called "Arms and the Man" and is one of the prettiest things ever seen in opera. And the piece is endowed with a spirit of comedy that moves with zest. Several reviewers have referred to it as possessing sufficient comedy to supply three or four musical successes. There are many graceful dances, some that move with sustained vim. One of the best reviews ever written of "The Balkan Princess" referred to it as a "Musical Prisoner of Zenda." The locale and subject immediately suggest the most picturesque costumes and scenic environment and the management has invested it unsparingly. The second act, in the Bohemian restaurant, opens with a smash and a whirl with the chorus, with stage full of action and spontaneous gaiety, a riot of color, which is at the same time harmonious and unusually artistic. Here is introduced much of the merry jest, the lilting song and the graceful dance that has made this opera famous on two continents.

The company is unusually large and travels in a special train, consisting of three 80 feet baggage cars, two coaches and a dining car. The advance sale of seats opens Saturday, January 24. Phone 480.

Killed in Scuffle "In Fun."

Isaac Talbert, 35, who worked in the D., J. & C. power house at Ypsilanti was shot and killed Friday evening in Frank Powell's club house in the alley behind the south side Congress street stores. The bullet entered Talbert's chest just below the right breast and came out the left breast.

Powell claims that he and Talbert with two others, one a fellow employe of Talbert's named Jim Grimmauer, were scuffling in fun. Powell was sitting on the table and Talbert grabbed his leg and tried to pull him off. Powell in fun had drawn his gun, and in falling, the gun went off. Talbert bent over and exclaimed "Why, Frank, you hit me," and walked into the other room, the others not thinking he was badly hurt. Talbert talked a little but soon became unconscious and died. Talbert was unmarried and lived with his mother. Coroner Clark of Ann Arbor held an inquest Monday. Powell insisted that he never meant to shoot and that he will never carry another gun.

Princess Theatre.

For the second of its Monday night state rights features the Princess offers an unusual western feature "The Bys of the Golden West" a stirring three reel drama of the early days in the west. It is a feature different than any of the regulation westerns shown at the Princess, having a dash and a go to it, that makes westerns so popular. Remember the date Monday, January 27.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

THE SUPERVISION OF SERVICE BY TELEPHONE COMPANIES IS SOME STUNT.

VISIONS OF GREAT IRON WORKS TO BE ESTABLISHED.

The Regulation of Telephone Service and the Taxation of Mines Present Very Interesting Features to the People of Michigan.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

There is a possibility that the present legislature will eliminate all state supervision over the telephone properties of the state. What to do about the regulation and supervision of the telephone business is a matter over which there is a great deal of difference of opinion and not a great deal of information upon which to base a decision.

For instance, the state railroad commission has been requested by a dozen different cities to aid in getting rid of the double telephone service, while from about a dozen others have come applications for authority to organize a competing system and install double telephone systems in these communities.

Conserve Mineral Resources.

In the near future a bill will be introduced in the legislature to conserve the mineral resources of the state for the benefit of Michigan. It is pointed out that the vast store of mineral resources of the upper peninsula, is under the present system, sent out of the state to enrich others, resulting ultimately in the state being left with numerous deep holes in the ground and a decrepit section robbed of its riches with no corresponding return to the commonwealth or its people.

The bill as proposed provides for a tonnage tax on ores, based on a scale which will meet the differences in mining conditions and the richness of the ores. That part of the measure is ancient having been a fruitful source of political argument for many years, but the new feature which looks attractive to those interested in the well being of the state, adds a provision for rebating of this tax if the ore is manufactured into iron within the confines of the state.

It is pointed out that if the owners of the iron resources of the state were obliged to manufacture the ore into iron within the state, huge mills would be established at ports along the lakes and industrial centers would be established that would give to Michigan the place now held by those cities in the east famed for their wealth made from the ores mined in Michigan.

Drinking Cups for Sale.

Railroads and those in charge of public buildings will find themselves guilty of misdemeanors if they fail to establish drinking cup vending machines at their drinking fountains, if the bill introduced by Rep. Schmidt, of Osceola, ever becomes a law. The bill provides that the vending machine must be maintained near the fountains and that the cups may be sold not to exceed one cent each.

State Police Force.

A bill has been introduced by Rep. J. N. McBride, of Shiawassee, providing for the establishment of a state police force of 100 men to do the work of the game, forest and fire warden's department as well as to act as a state constabulary in case of disturbance or need anywhere in the need of an organized force. In explaining the bill Rep. McBride said that the intention was to relieve the Michigan National Guard of all duty of this nature within the state.

Trunk Line State Roads. William H. Alloway, national progressive senator from the twenty-fourth district, will be the good roads advocate of the present session. His ideas on the need of good highways are a little advanced of even the average enthusiast on good roads and his scheme for a basic system of trunk line state roads is attracting attention and general commendation.

Governor Favors Suffragists.

Governor Ferris gladdened the hearts of the suffragists of this state when he declared at the annual meeting of the Michigan Equal Suffrage Association that he was absolutely in favor of their cause and that he would do everything in his power to assist them when the constitutional amendment is submitted to a vote in this state again.

State Wide Prohibition.

Despite the fact that many members were anxious to avoid it, there is every indication that the liquor question will play a prominent part in the deliberations of present legislature. Rep. Dunn of Sanilac county, started the ball rolling when he introduced a concurrent resolution to be submitted to the electors of Michigan at the fall election in 1914 providing for state wide prohibition.

This year the leaders are evidently inclined to the belief that the time is ripe for success and the league is willing to devote itself to prohibition for the whole state instead of confining its efforts to local option.

The method of submitting the matter as an amendment to the constitution is deemed to involve more work but if successful is certain to be more secure. In a long interview J. F. Burke, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league commends the resolution and the state wide prohibition.

However, it is not expected that the Dunn resolution will have an easy time going through the two houses and it would not be surprising if the measure is killed outright. It is known that there will be strong opposition to it and it is doubtful whether the supporters of the state wide prohibition movement will be able to muster two thirds of the upper house in its favor.

Various Bills.

Rep. Follette introduced a bill compelling railroads carrying live stock to give precedence over all other freight. Rep. Catlin of Ingham has introduced a bill placing all county officials on a salary basis and eliminating the fee system. It is not thought that this bill will pass, as the office of sheriff, county clerk and register of deeds are fixed by the constitution which provides that they may receive fees and it would require a constitutional amendment to change the present system.

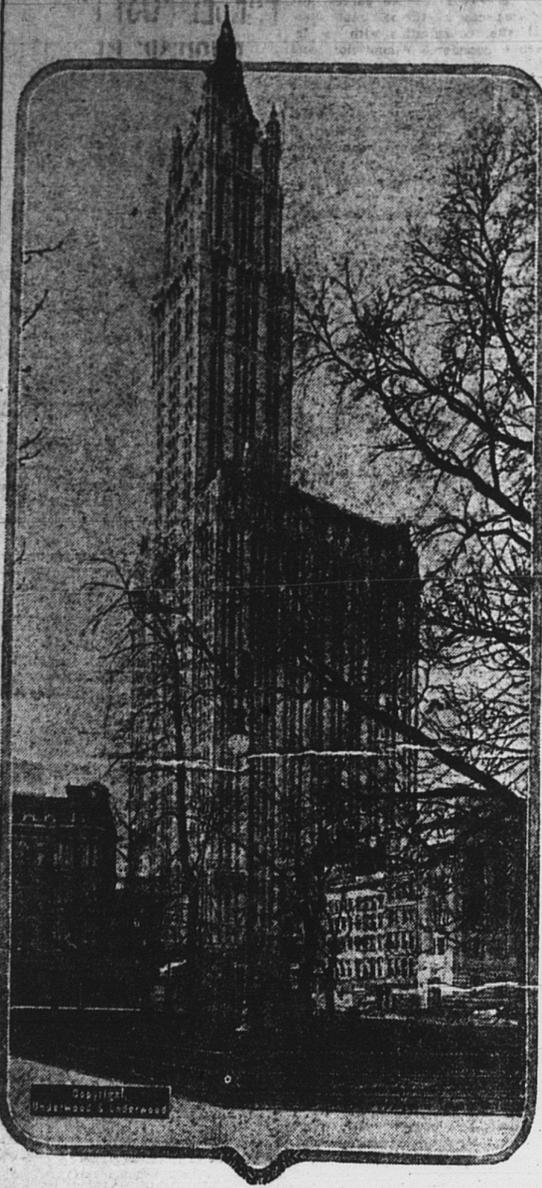

Rep. Whelan of Hillsdale has introduced a bill providing for the pensioning of school teachers. Rep. McBride of Shiawassee has presented a bill requiring itinerant creamery projects to file evidence of responsibility with the state dairy and food department before they are permitted to establish a line of credit in the purchase of milk.

It was not so very many years ago that Senator Smith, then "Billy" Smith, was a page in the legislature, running the errands of the members of the house. For the second time he has been elected by the legislature to serve the people of Michigan as the United States senator.

State Tax Commission.

If the senate affirms the appointments of Governor Ferris the democrats will control the state tax commission as the chief executive has named Thomas Kearney, of Ann Arbor and Orlando F. Barnes, of Macomb to succeed Thomas D. Wolfe and W. B. Mershon. Barnes has twice been the democratic candidate for land commissioner and a number of years ago was democratic mayor of the city of Lansing. Kearney has long been a prominent democrat in Washtenaw county.

TALLEST OF ALL SKYSCRAPERS

Standing in City Hall Park, New York, one sees the towering Woolworth building, just completed, through the branches of ancient elms which stood there long before Manhattan's loftiest structures were even as high as the old postoffice, a corner of which is visible at the left side of the picture.

Inequality Found in Parcel Post.

Patrons of the parcel post in the northern part of the United States have discovered they are unable in all cases to send packages the full fifty miles prescribed as the extent of the first zone.

This is due to the fact that a degree of longitude is considerably shorter in the northern than in the southern part of the country.

The phenomenon has led to the complaint that parcel post patrons are being overcharged on first zone distances and to the suspicion that a mistake was made in the working out of the zone maps. The department tsates, however, that the variation is unavoidable and that no injustice is involved.

Michigan Office Holders May Keep Jobs.

The latest development in the senate hold-up of presidential appointments is that Michigan's postmasters, customs internal revenue, judicial and other republican appointive officers may continue in office indefinitely after the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson.

Michigan will be one of the few states in the Sixty-third congress represented by two republican senators. The rule laid down a few days ago by the democrats of the senate may then be read back at them.

25,000 Albanians Slain by Serbs.

Twenty-five thousand Albanians have been "more or less wantonly" killed in the Turkish province of Kosovo by the Serbian regulars and irregulars since the invasion by them of European Turkey, according to the Reichpost of Vienna.

The newspaper demands the dispatch of a European commission to investigate the reports of horrible atrocities.

Rep. James Henry, of county, opposes the state tax commission and is planning to introduce a bill at the present session of the legislature to have the commission discharge and its work in Michigan declared null.

Fire, which is believed to have originated in a clothes chute where someone carelessly threw a match, destroyed the Holly Inn at Holly.

After pleading with her husband for forgiveness, Mrs. Victor Smith, of Bay City, missing for about a week, went to her room and ended her life by draining a two-ounce bottle of poison.

Almost exhausted from cold and exposure, a boy believed to be a pupil of the Michigan School for the Deaf, was found wandering in the open road eye miles south of Ponton.

U. S. Interested in P. M.'s Train.

Postmaster General Hitchcock is going to take a hand in the proposal by the Pere Marquette railway to discontinue train No. 1, running between Detroit and Saginaw.

If the Pere Marquette persists it may forfeit every mail-carrying contract it now has with the United States.

The head of the postoffice department is known to take the stand that it is not proper for railroads, for the sake of escaping a temporary loss, to discontinue the operation of federal mail trains.

It is further known that Postmaster General Hitchcock is of the opinion that railroads should not be allowed thus to disarrange the mail service on one route without being made to suffer on other routes. Many mail contracts are renewable about this time and if the train in question, which carries heavy mails, is withdrawn, it is likely to affect negotiations as to other routes in the state.

No Inaugural Ball for Wilson.

"There will be no inaugural ball," declared William C. Rustie, chairman of the inaugural committee, after an informal conference with several members over President-elect Wilson's letter requesting that the committee consider the feasibility of omitting the function.

"The wishes of President-elect Wilson will be complied with," said Mr. Rustie. "The committee will take official action here."

Gov. Wilson pointed out that use of the pension office building, where the inaugural balls have been held for generations, would mean a costly stoppage of government work.

The suggestion was made that, instead of a ball, President and Mrs. Wilson receive at a formal reception, to be held in the rotunda of the capitol.

Calhoun county will no longer divide smallpox and other contagious disease cases between competing physicians. Hereafter the health officers will do all the work and, if necessary, employ doctors to help them.

The Northern Gas & Oil Co., owning and operating the newly struck oil field at Allegan, has increased its capital from $20,000 to $50,000.

The members of the Michigan state tax commission began a series of hearings to listen to objections to the tentative assessment of railroads made public last week.

MISSISSIPPI ON RAMPAGE

Hundreds of Families Are Seeking Safety in Memphis, Tenn.

The Mississippi river is now over its banks at all points between Cairo and Helena, Ark., flooding farm lands and not protected by levees. Hundreds of families have left their homes, seeking safety in Memphis or towns on the bluffs.

Certain parts of the manufacturing sections of North and South Memphis are under water and mills have closed down. Unless the river gets to the 40-foot stage there is no danger to property back of the levees. Maj. E. M. Markham, United States engineer, has rushed laborers and supplies to Beulah, Miss., where there is a place in the levee still unrepaired since the last flood. If caught in its present state thousands of acres will be overflowed. A crevasse occurred at Beulah in April, 1912.

Practically all the business section of Hickman, Ky., is from one to four feet under water. All railroad traffic into the town has been suspended.

Tiptonville, Tenn., is surrounded by water, but the town is situated on a small bluff and no immediate danger is anticipated.

A terrific current is sweeping through Hen and Chicken channel above Memphis which engineers of the government think will create a new channel, throwing the Mississippi back into a course abandoned 20 years ago.

Night Riders in Georgia.

A panic has been created among the people in the southern portion of Whitfield county, Georgia, by night riders who are whipping men and women for alleged immorality and for other offenses.

The night riders have been at work for some time and they have whipped many persons and they have whipped others that they will be whipped unless they mend their ways.

Bluffers Had Perfect Right to Be Mad Considering the Extremely Unfortunate Circumstances.

Bluffers bounced into the club jammed his hat down on a table with a fierce, resounding bang, and flung himself into an easy chair.

"What's wrong today, Bluffers? You look bad."

"I'll never forgive myself. I kicked a man out of my house last night!"

"Humph! I've kicked out many a one. Young fellow, I suppose?"

"No, past middle age."

"Well, these old codgers have no business to be coming round courting young girls. I would have kicked him out myself."

"Yes, but I have found out since that this man wasn't courting my daughter. He was after my mother-in-law."

"ECZEMA CAME ON SCALP"

Lebanon, O.—"My eczema started on my thigh with a small pimple. It also came on my scalp. It began to itch and I began to scratch. For eighteen or twenty years I could not tell what I passed through with that awful itching. I would scratch until the blood would soak through my underwear, and I couldn't talk to my friends on the street but I would be digging and punching that spot, until I was very much ashamed. The itching was so intense I could not sleep after once in bed and warm. I certainly suffered torment with that eczema for many years."

"I chased after everything I ever heard of, but all to no avail. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. Imagine my delight when I applied the first dose to that awful itching fire on my leg and scalp, in less than a minute the itching on both places ceased. I got some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the second day I never had another itching spell, and Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured me. I was troubled with awful dandruff all over my scalp. The Cuticura Soap has cured that trouble." (Signed) L. R. Fink, Jan. 22, 1912.

Rev. E. Healop. After using 5 boxes of Dods' Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dods' Kidney Pills. BIG FIGHT COMING

FEDERAL AND STATE RIGHTS CONSERVATIONISTS LINED UP FOR BATTLE.

BRYAN CLASSED WITH FORMER

Strength of the Opposing Forces May Be Revealed First in the Matter of the Coosa River Dam in Alabama.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—Since Gifford Pinchot made his speech to the Washington convention of men interested in forestry the other day it has become sharply apparent that a hard fight is to begin between the federal conservationists and the state rights conservationists as soon as the Wilson administration begins.

The representatives of the federal idea are making preparations to combat the representatives of the state rights idea and already the representatives of both have descended on the capital to prepare for the coming conflict.

In these dispatches a month ago it was said "When Woodrow Wilson takes office he will find conservation added to the tariff and the trusts to complete a trio of administration worries."

Mr. Wilson is said to incline to the state rights view of the conservation matter, but his friends say he does not believe in letting go of anything over which the government has control until it is known definitely that the individual state intends to make proper use of it.

The instant that the name of a certain governor of a northwestern state was mentioned to the president-elect as a proper man for the position of secretary of the interior Mr. Wilson paid high compliment to the general character of the man proposed.

This man is known as a state rights conservationist and the federal conservationists say this means that he "is a bitter opponent of any federal plan for saving to the people their natural inheritance."

One of the most prominent conservationists in the country said of this possible choice of the northwesterner for the cabinet position: "His appointment would be ideally evil."

These things show how wide is the difference between the leaders of the two forces.

Bryan Federalist in This. The conservationists hope that William Jennings Bryan will be made a member of the next cabinet. As to the methods of saving the country's natural resources, Mr. Bryan and Mr. Wilson do not agree.

In this matter Mr. Bryan may be called a federalist and it is the one chief matter of government policy in which, so far as is known at present, his views differ greatly from those of the incoming president.

The conservationists believe that Mr. Bryan would use his influence to keep the water power, the mines and the forests out of the hands of private corporations to be exploited largely for their own benefit.

Protests are coming into Washington daily from individuals and from societies all over the United States against the granting of the right to a private Alabama corporation to build a water power dam on the Coosa river in Alabama to be used, it is claimed, without proper federal regulation.

The Coosa dam matter promises to be as prominent in the conservation fight as was the proposed James river, Mo., dam of some years ago. In the Missouri matter President Roosevelt intervened with a veto.

The Democratic leaders who own Alabama as a home, it is said, are in favor of giving the private corporation what it asks in the state. This means that the fight of the conservationists must be directed against a concern which has with it the influence of men high in the Democratic party's councils, who will be chiefly instrumental in framing Democratic legislation in the house of representatives, and who hold they are absolutely right in the matter in hand.

May Buy Out Express Companies. Preparations are being made by friends of the parcel post system to attempt through congressional action to secure legislation for the purchase of the express companies and to give Uncle Sam a virtual monopoly of the package carrying business. This plan has thousands of opponents, and it may never come to the fruition, but those opposed to the scheme may as well know definitely now that the friends of the proposal are going to work persistently to secure the end which they have in view.

It is even possible that the present administration of the postoffice department may urge what can be called government ownership of the express business. The attempt which is to be made to extend the parcel post business is only to a degree a party measure. It is possible that more Democrats than Republicans favor it, but some of the strongest advocates of the proposal are Republicans who on other matters have been called conservatives.

One wonders if the public generally realizes that without any additional legislation it is within the power of Uncle Sam to enlarge the parcel post operations to an almost unlimited extent under the authority which the law gives to the postmaster general acting with the interstate commerce commission.

Hitchcock Has the Power. The law provides that if the present system does not work well and economically and if modifications of

PARCEL POST IS RUSHING IN STATE

OFFICIAL REPORTS SHOW BIG RUSH OF BUSINESS AT START OF SERVICE.

DETROIT HANDLED FOUR TIMES AS MANY PACKAGES AS GRAND RAPIDS.

Following is a List of the Number of Packages Handled by the Various Cities Having Free Delivery Service.

According to the first official report made by the postoffice department, the parcel post venture is starting off with a rush in most of the Michigan cities.

The report of Postmaster Homer Warren shows that during the first week in which the new system was in operation 44,651 packages were handled in the Detroit postoffice. That virtually was five days' business, for none of the postoffices did much business either New Year's day or Sunday, Jan. 5. The Detroit postoffice during the first week handled four times the number of packages handled by Grand Rapids, the next highest city.

Detroit merchants did not use the parcel post extensively for delivery within the city during the first days of its operation. That is shown by the fact that only 588 packages were received in the seven days for local delivery. The postage on that number amounted to $35.50. The entire postal receipts on the parcel post business originating in the Detroit office during that period amounted to $2,230.75. There were 295 insured packages sent from the Detroit office during the first seven days and sent from the office 30,223.

The number of packages handled in other Michigan postoffices having city delivery service were as follows: Adrian, 1,704; Albion, 548; Allegan, 430; Alma, 347; Alpena, 382; Ann Arbor, 1865; Battle Creek, 3,435; Bay City, 1,738; Beidling, 344; Benton Harbor, 923; Big Rapids, 534; Boyne, 284; Cadillac, 571; Calumet, 232; Caro, 209; Charlotte, 454; Cheboygan, 269; Coldwater, 706; Detroit, 44,651; Dowagiac, 69; Escanaba, 505; Flint, 1,814; Grand Haven, 351; Grand Rapids, 11,339; Greenville, 452; Hancock, 270; Hartsville, 500; Hillsdale, 569; Holland, 929; Ionia, 696; Iron Mountain, 369; Ironwood, 326; Ishpeming, 332; Jackson, 5,627; Kalamazoo, 5,875; Lansing, 3,796; Lapeer, 226; Laurium, 242; Ludington, 819; Manistee, 538; Marquette, 532; Marshall, 5,317; Menominee, 495; Mt. Useless Tariff Hearings. Representative Oscar W. Underwood and his Democratic colleagues forming a majority of the ways and means committee already have heard the pleas and the protests on chemicals, on earthenware, glassware, metals and a host of other things and they will go on hearing "the fors" and "the agains" on other imports until the last day of this month and then they will prepare tariff revision measures in virtually the same form as those made ready at the last session.

It is probably true that the representatives of high protection who are now in Washington to be heard by the ways and means committee fully realize that their pleas will be of no service, for they made the same pleas at the last session and then the committee went ahead and wrote such bills as seemed right from the Democratic standpoint, and this is exactly what is going to be done at the extra session. The hearings have been granted for the purpose of giving everybody a chance to say what he chooses and to allow no opportunity for anyone to complain, when the bills are presented, that only one side of the case was heard.

No "Cut to the Bone." As has been said before, "The Democrats are not going to cut the tariff to the bone." This much is assured and no one here seems to be particularly scared over the result to business when the new laws shall come into force. The high protectionists through their representatives predict disaster, but few of the members of congress at seemingly believe the predictions. At any rate the Washington legislators of the protection ranks are preserving a remarkable equanimity if they think that the precipice is just ahead and that business soon is to break its bones at the bottom of the abyss.

The tariff hearings in the house committee on ways and means will end on Friday, January 31. If Mr. Wilson shall call congress together in extra session on March 15 Mr. Underwood and his comrades will have six weeks' time in which to prepare their tariff bills. If it were not for the clerical work involved in the thing could be done in a week, for a secure copying guide is to be found in many cases in the bills which went through the house last year.

Protection to Make Its Fight. It will not surprise anybody if the representatives get through with their tariff debate by the end of the first week in April. The time of debate in the house will be limited, but Sereno E. Payne, Joseph W. Fordney and some others of the protection chiefs, will make the most of the time allotted to them to speak in opposition. The protection members in the house will not let tariff legislation be enacted quickly without giving every possible minute of time to get into the record in opposition. The house protectionists are utterly at odds at present with the senate protectionists in the matter of the wise and strenuous opposition to cutting the rates.

In the senate Mr. Penrose, Mr. Smoot and others who hold the high wall as sacred as a temple are of a mind to "let the Democrats do their worst" and do it quickly. Mr. Penrose and Mr. Smoot are perhaps the only two men in the United States congress who really think that business is going to smash within a week after the Underwood bills become

NEWS OF MICHIGAN.

Banking Commissioners Report.

The annual report of Banking Commissioner E. H. Doyle for 1912 shows that 41 state banks and five trust companies transacted business in Michigan, with total deposits of $319,311,715; total loans of $305,306,425.75. For the year loans increased $33,639,463.75, while the gain in deposits is shown at $23,541,271.36. Since the organization of the department in 1889, deposits in state banks have increased $288,027,590.88, with a gain in loans during the same period of $274,490,728.62.

During 1912 there were organized 29 state banks, with capitalization of $772,500. Nineteen state banks increased capital stock to the amount of $1,480,000. Banks in process of liquidation, consolidation and conversion took from capitalization $250,000, leaving a net increase of $2,002,500.

The total increase in number of depositors in state and national banks was $4,845, being an increase of 71,573 in state banks and 13,273 in national banks. The average deposit by each of the 1,232,208 depositors in state and national banks was $350.74.

Collections on total assets of 17 failed banks since 1889 amounted to $5,260,993.25, or 53.08 per cent, total amount collected from assessments on stockholders amounted to $281,324.45, or 27.56 per cent on a total capital stock of $1,021,000. Bank supervision in Michigan for the year 1912 cost the people of the state $12,215.38, an increase of $948.99.

In addition to the recommendations recently published with reference to needed changes in the banking law, Mr. Doyle recommends the adoption of what is known as the "blue sky" law.

What Feeble-minded Cost State. Asylum and homes for feeble-minded in Michigan cost annually $2,148,474.18. More than the cost of state normal schools, colleges and universities, which is $1,440,056.36. Yet there are at large, feeble-minded—potential criminals—to the number of 8,200. And the state is asked for additions to state institutions for their care to provide at each $400,000.00.

That the state of Michigan last year paid out nearly twice as much for the care of feeble-minded, insane and degenerate men, women and children as it did for all state educational purposes, is one of the startling facts submitted by Rep. Arthur Odell, of Allegan, in support of his bill to sterilize those unfit to perpetuate human life.

The total cost of the asylums and homes for the year was $2,148,474.18. For normal schools, colleges and universities the total cost was $1,440,056.36. That the expense of caring for defectives can be wiped out gradually—wiped out to a large degree, at least—under the operation of the sterilization law, is the contention of Rep. Odell.

Suffragists Alter Their Basic Law. Provision for county associations and the later establishment of congressional district units was made in a change of by-laws effected by the Michigan Equal Suffrage association, in session at Lansing.

Mrs. Susan M. Sellers, Wayne county chairman, stated that this plan would afford a much closer organization of the state association and would greatly facilitate the vigorous campaign that is to be launched in the spring.

Mrs. Sellers declared that the plan would tend toward more equal representation at the state and congressional district meetings. One delegate will be allowed for each 25 members of the county associations. The local clubs and societies will be fused into the larger organizations only in business matters and during the more important meetings. They will retain their individuality in minor affairs.

Formal notice of their determination to re-submit the question of equal suffrage to another vote in April was given.

Insurance Companies Bucking State. According to Commissioner C. A. Palmer insurance companies furnishing indemnity under the employees' liability act have combined to beat the mutual company operated by the state department. He says the private companies have refused to furnish other kinds of insurance to employers who have enrolled with the state company, hoping to force them into line.

After the members of the legislature who are now investigating the election of several of their own members return, there is evidence that an avalanche of bills will be dumped into the mill bearing on every conceivable subject.

Rev. Moses Smith, a full-blooded Chippewa Indian, and his well-educated white wife are conducting a series of special meetings in Arenac county. A daughter, a graduate at Mt. Pleasant, accompanies them.

With a fortune of $25,000 in gold hidden in Old Mexico, David Larkins is working as a day laborer at the Bryan paper mill in Kalamazoo. Larkins was driven from Mexico at the early stage of the present revolution and his activities, and had barely time to secure the money before making his escape.

The Alpena Shippers' association has complained to the state railroad commission against the Western Trunk Line association of railroads, alleging rates recently instituted by the association on sulphuric acid are prohibitive.

Residents of Iron and Dickinson counties are after the scalp of Secretary Burgess, of the state tax commission, because the tax counties were invaded by the commission last year and their assessed valuations greatly increased.

Westwood, Md.—"I am a farmer's wife and do most of my own work when I am able. I had nervous spells, female weakness and terrible bearing down pains every month. I also suffered much with my right side. The pain started in my back and extended around my right side, and the doctor told me it was organic inflammation. I was sick every three weeks and had to stay in bed from two to four days."

Queer Sex. "Yes," said the man at the end of the bar, as he ordered his second drink, "women sure are queer creatures. I came home tonight and thought my wife looked a little down in the mouth. So I said: 'After supper let's go to the theater.' And she burst into tears and said: 'Me busy all day doing up preserves and you come home and ask me to go to the theater.' She was still crying when I came out. It beats all, doesn't it? Bartender, I think I'll take just one more."

Slow Chap. "Yes," laughed the girl with the pink parasol, "he is the slowest young man I ever saw."

"In what way, dear?" asked his chum.

"Why, he asked for a kiss and I told him I wore one of those knotted veils that took so long to loosen."

"And what did he do?"

"Why, the goose took time to untie the knot."—Mack's Monthly.

HIS ONE FAULT.

"Is your husband a good man?" "Yes; he's a good man. I can't complain. But he always sneaks out whenever the clergyman calls."

A GOOD BREAKFAST. Some Persons Never Know What It Means.

A good breakfast, a good appetite and good digestion mean everything to the man, woman or child who has anything to do, and wants to get a good start toward doing it.

A Mo. man tells of his wife's "good breakfast" and also supper, made out of Grape-Nuts and cream. He says: "I should like to tell you how much good Grape-Nuts has done for my wife. After being in poor health for the last 18 years, during part of the time scarcely anything would stay on her stomach long enough to nourish her, finally at the suggestion of a friend she tried Grape-Nuts."

"Now, after about four weeks on this delicious and nutritious food, she has picked up most wonderfully and seems as well as anyone can be."

"Every morning she makes a good breakfast on Grape-Nuts with cream. It comes from the package with cream, or milk added; and then again the same at supper and the change in her is wonderful."

"We can't speak too highly of Grape-Nuts as a food after our remarkable experience." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.—Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in page "There's a Reason."

Will Test Eyes.

It is expected that the eyes of every school child in the state will be tested before spring. Supt. of Public Instruction Luther L. Wright has had furnished to every teacher in the commonwealth a proper eye-testing card with explicit instruction as to how to make tests of children. In other states the percentage of children having defective eyesight has proved appalling. The tests in Michigan are given with a view of helping the child. Often a child is considered dull, but this is sometimes due to the fact that the hearing or eyesight is defective and the teacher does not recognize the handicap. Sometimes by moving a child's seat nearer a window relieves a decided strainer. It is expected that in quite a number of cases the condition of eyesight will be found so bad as to warrant the services of an optician. The teacher will then take the matter up with the parent, in this way making it possible for the child to become a better student. Those children whose eyesight is so defective that school work is impossible must under the compulsory school law be sent to Lansing.

Studying Agriculture.

Beginning with the current month every rural eighth grader in Michigan is studying agriculture. This subject became a part of the prescribed course of study this year and examinations in it will be conducted in May along with other subjects. Textbooks have been provided and in addition to these the department of public instruction has available for distribution a bulletin concerning the subject prepared by Prof. W. H. French of the M. A. C. The Michigan Agricultural college and the department of agriculture stand ready to send to teachers in valuable aids for the teaching of this new subject. Naturally the work finds the teachers unprepared, but progressive farmers throughout the state are showing a disposition to help make this work efficient. The introduction of agriculture into the course of study by Superintendent of Public Instruction Luther L. Wright is the first step toward ruralizing the county schools. So earnest is Mr. Wright in his feeling that agriculture should be the most live subject in the country school that he makes the statement that if a board from a question really had to make a choice between a dictionary and a milk tester, they ought to purchase the tester.

Rival of the Potato.

The rival of the potato has a rival in the dasheen, described by the bureau of plant industry at Washington as "a new root crop for the south." Like the potato, the dasheen has its habitat in South America, but is related to the Hawaiian taro and the half-wild taro of the southern states. The cooked tubers are more nourishing than the potato, tasting slightly like boiled chestnuts. Their edible qualities were thoroughly tested at the last annual banquet of the National Geographic society, and they received a favorable report by the house committee of an influential New York club. Half an acre at Brookville, Fla., yielded last year 225 bushels of dasheens, richer in flavor than baked potatoes.

Native Meeting-Places in Sumatra.

Every district of importance in the town of Sumatra, says the Wide World Magazine, possesses a balee, or native meeting-place, which the Dutch Regent visits periodically in order to discuss with his subordinates the affairs of the district. These Sumatran equivalents of a County Council hall are decorated with beautiful inland work at the ends and a tapering roof of pine palm, ornamented with bright brass work, which glitters in the sun, setting it off most picturesquely against a background of tall coconut trees and a forest of tall tropical plants.

The Women's Candidate

By BYRON WILLIAMS

Copyright 1912, Western Newspaper Union

SYNOPSIS.

In a spirit of fun Mayor Bedight, a summer visitor, is chased through the woods by ten laughing girls, one of whom he catches and kisses. The girls form themselves into a court and sentence him to do the bidding of one of their number each day for ten days. A legislative measure regarding woman suffrage, which dropped from the mayor's pocket, is used to compel him to obey the mandates of the girls. His first day of service is with Miss Andrews, who takes him fishing. They are threatened by the sheriff with arrest. Miss Vining sees what she considers a clandestine meeting between one of the girls and the mayor. The next day he goes driving with Mabel Arney. They meet with an accident, are arrested and locked up, but escape. The mayor returns to the hotel, finds the sheriff waiting for him, and takes refuge in the room of Miss Brooks. He plans to get possession of the incriminating bill. With Harriet Brooks the mayor goes to investigate an Indian mound. They are caught in a thunder storm.

"I'm afraid," almost sobbing. The mayor put his arm about her gently, soothing her as only a tactful man may soothe a nervous woman. Unconsciously she drew toward him. "Lightning seems terrible," he said evenly, "but as a matter of fact there is always more danger on the cars. Statistics prove—" "What's that?" cried the woman, apprehensively. "I heard a voice." The mayor peered out. "The sheriff!" he muttered under his breath. Three men were running toward them on the beach, their heads down, ducking the rain. Scrambling from under the boat, Mayor Bedight set off at top speed up the beach, pausing at the start long enough to whisper. "The sheriff! Wait!" The sheriff and his two deputies, weathering the gale with lowered eyes, had not seen the mayor's flight. In fact, so blinded were their eyes that they ran almost into the girl and the boat before they could stop. "Hello!" bawled the sheriff. "You're from Squirrel fan, ain't ye? Where's yer bear?" bluntly. "We're lookin' fer him." Miss Brooks drew her feet back under her skirt and replied coldly: "One of the best ways to find a man," witheringly, "is to go where he is." The sheriff's chest shot out immediately. "Now, look-a-here, young lady, none of your smartness or we'll take you along for accessory before the act. Understand?" blustering. "You are wasting your time trying to bully me," replied the girl, without a tremor in her voice. "I am perfectly harmless and I have told you all I know. The man has gone up the beach." "Aw, come on, Sid," broke in a slender young fellow, turning his back to the rain. "What the use of arguin' with 'er? She ain't 'th' one we had yesterday." Without a word the sheriff veered around the boat and, following the fast fading trail, set out in haste after Bedight. Fifteen minutes later the mayor came up from the opposite direction. "I am sorry, Miss Brooks," he said, sorrowfully, "but I'm afraid you'll get wet after all. We've got to get away from here! I crept around and found the boat these fellows left. I set it adrift with a gale blowing it across the lake, but they are not far behind. We must get under way as soon as possible." "I don't mind a soaking," replied the young woman, bravely. "It's the lightning that frightens me—and that's about quit."

proclaimed the witchery of the night. With a scarcely perceptible tilt, the boat grounded on the shelving sandy shore. Bedight sprang out and pulled the craft further upon its cushioned anchorage. The girl sat in the boat, intently watching the mayor. That gentleman took from the locker a basket well laden. Quickly gathering some dry wood, he stacked it over a bunch of tinder-like weeds, touched a match to the pile, set the basket at a safe distance and pulling a revolver from his pocket, fired in the general direction of the moon. Having maneuvered thus peculiarly, he hastened back to the boat, shoved off and rowed from the shore a hundred yards. Resting on his oars, he let the boat toss idly upon the lake. Five, ten minutes passed. The dry wood burned brightly, making a beacon of light, into the circle of which there came, at last, three shadows, followed by unintelligible conversation. "They've found it," said the mayor, picking up his oars and turning the boat toward the hotel. It was midnight when the sides of the craft rubbed its sister boats at Mine Host's dock. The mayor and the girl crept softly up the winding pathway toward the hotel. Suddenly, in the moonlight ahead, the form of a woman appeared advancing to meet them. The mayor and the girl saw her simultaneously. He stopped instantly with a restraining hand upon the girl's arm. "Quick!" he commanded, springing in front of his companion and turning her about face. "Walk rapidly down the path to the boathouse."

She complied instantly. Over his shoulder the mayor saw the woman hesitate, then follow determinedly through the shimmering moonlight. "Go into the boathouse," directed Bedight hurriedly. "Wait until I engage her in conversation. Then open the rear door and run for the hotel. And be quiet!" "I understand," whispered the girl, excitedly. Slipping through the door, she closed it softly. Pulling a cigar from his pocket, the mayor scratched a match on the sole of his shoe and blew a puff of smoke at the same target which earlier in the evening he had failed to hit with his leaden missile.

The woman rounded the corner and came directly toward him. "I beg your pardon, Mr. Bedight," said "Judge" Vining in a cold, formal voice, "for following you, but as chaperson of the young ladies at the hotel I feel that it was my duty to do so."

The mayor bowed. "Duty to the one performing it," he interrupted gallantly, "is oftentimes irksome, but begrudgingly done frequently conveys pleasure to another. I do not desire to appear selfish in your eyes, but I find your duty pleases me greatly," bowing again. "Now, the moonlight—"

The "judge" made a deprecating gesture. "Do not attempt to evade," she warned. "I am deeply in earnest. Where is the—"

She seemed at a loss to proceed. Finally she threw diplomacy to the winds. "Who was the girl with you—alone—at this hour of the night? I have a right to know and I—had thought you a gentleman, though I should have known that no gentleman would have—have—"

she finished lamely. "Kissed you?" questioned the mayor, or the frivolity scarcely gone from his voice. "Certainly!" she flashed. Bedight puffed thoughtfully at his cigar, the fragrant pungency of the tobacco wafting to Jackie as she stood in the moonbeam's path, the light giving an ethereal beauty to her trim, erect figure.

"It was wrong, I admit," he said impulsively. "I am willing to admit that—but I refuse to believe that no gentleman could be other than honored by such a privilege. As one who has tried to be such, I would be willing to do it again."

"Mr. Bedight!" the voice was keen now—and the mayor hesitated. "I did not come here to bandy words. I never shall cease regretting that I am in a sense guilty of a misdemeanor which makes it impossible for me to condemn you as I should—but I warn you not to presume to justify further presumption."

Miss Vining passed on without a word. "But you have not answered my question, Mr. Bedight," she continued. "Who was the girl that came down the path with you?"

The man drew closer to her. The diffidence was gone from his voice. His face was earnest.

"Miss Vining, you have inferred that I am guilty of conduct unbecoming a gentleman. A few mornings ago you ran after me in a spirit of mischief, and in the same spirit I caught you in my arms and kissed you. If I have hurt you I am sincerely sorry, but I, too, am reaping the fruit of folly. You have chosen to arm yourself with a distant demeanor toward me, you rebuff my attempts at entering the circle of your real self, you are 'judge' both on and off the bench, distant, suspicious, haughty. You pursued me; I took toll. With your permission I promise to forget that you ran, but I cannot forget that I kissed you. I am not a boy. I have seen some of the world. I do not know much about love. I have been too busy trying to do something, to fall in love, or else I never happened to meet the woman. Since coming here I don't know exactly what sort of an enchantment I have entered—but I do know that I cannot forget the ecstasy of the moment when our lips met. You may scorn me and it lies within your power to discipline me—or defeat me—but I shall not try to obliterate the thrill of that brief moment!"

Jackie Vining did not meet his eyes. In her heart she felt a strange, new feeling of elation, a softening of resentment, but women were theorems long before mathematicians struggled with right-angle triangles and hypotheses, and all their non-understanding descendants, beautiful and sweet and charming as they are, still persist in being man's hardest problem.

"Your frankness in some things," she said without emotion, "is as commendable as your lack of it in others. Must I repeat my question still another time? Who is the girl?"

The mayor spoke firmly and with decision. "As a man who is at least that much of a gentleman, I refuse to answer. The girl has done no wrong. She—"

"Mr. Bedight, on Tuesday night I saw one of my crowd of young ladies leave the arbor after a clandestine tight meeting with you. Tonight I chance to blunder upon you at midnight, again in the company of a young woman. There are no others here, aside from our party. I feel a responsibility and I must insist on your answering."

The mayor shrugged his shoulders. "Who was she?" asked the "judge" for the fourth time.

"Why don't you ask her yourself?" said the mayor.

"Where is she?"

"The last I saw of her she went through that door," he replied, doggedly.

Miss Vining stepped toward the door and opened it. In the farther end of the boathouse a second door stood open and through it the moonlight streamed.

"I see I have been outwitted," angrily.

"May I walk to the hotel with you?" asked the mayor humbly.

"I prefer to go alone," she replied in a tone of finality, starting up the path.

"Miss Vining!"

It was the mayor calling from the dock. She stopped.

"What is it, Mr. Bedight?" impatiently.

"You remember saying the girl with me must be one of your party because there were no other young ladies about?"

"Yes," crisply.

The mayor's voice had something of the old ring in it as he asked: "Did you think of the colored cook?"

But the "judge," going up the path briskly, did not deign to reply. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Figgs and Raisins. Consul Horton at Smyrna notes that the Reform, a Smyrna newspaper, estimates the raisin crop for this year at about 700,000 quintals ($7,164,000 pounds) and that of figs about 75,000 camel loads (35,052,500 pounds). But from what has been able to learn it seems that exporters and dealers mostly are trying to keep the crop reports at a low figure in order to be able to begin with high prices, and that if the weather continues favorable the raisin crop will amount approximately to 95,616,000 pounds, against 55,034,000 pounds last year, and the fig crop to 100,000 camel loads, against 120,000 camel loads last year. In Varna, the business men raised a fund of 30,000 francs for this purpose alone, and the relief work will be carried on until the country is once more under normal conditions. Nor is only money given. In Pleven one citizen gave 1,000 francs worth of tobacco and cognac. The Jews in Dupniza, a very small town, gave twenty completely equipped beds to the Red Cross society, in addition to four dozen suits of underwear and stockings. All this is aside from what the municipalities are doing for the same end. In Ruzhuk the municipal council appropriated 100,000 francs for distribution among the families of soldiers, while Jambol, a much smaller town, could give only 30,000 francs. Special committees have been appointed to administer these funds.

In the outlying villages, beyond the reach of the activities of the municipal committees, the peasants are showing themselves equally capable of handling the situation. The peasants are often rich in grain, firewood, and the other necessities of life, which they store away for their own consumption during the winter. It would be useless to send out subscription lists, for there is little ready cash above that which has been laid aside to pay the heavy taxes. The village authorities follow no rule, and in many places the relief work is carried on entirely with donations in kind. But this is not the most important work of the village committees.

The lives of the peasants depend on their crops. If these fail poverty, and even famine, will follow. The men were going to war just as the winter crops of wheat should have been sown, but village committees are undertaking to sow the fields of their fellows who have enlisted. In one village, Novo Selo, the committee worked so energetically that it has almost finished its task. The rich peasants contributed the seed; one man alone gave 1,100 kilos, over one-ton, of wheat. Behind much of this activity are the co-operative banks; they are advancing much money and quantities of seeds to the families of those of their members who have gone to the war, and they are superintending much of the committee work in planting the winter wheat crop.

All the schools and gymnasia in Bulgaria have been closed; only the girls assemble to sew clothing and prepare bandages for the hospitals. This is true also of schools in Serbia. Many of the teachers and professors are drilling in the barracks. The women teachers have entered the special training courses for nurses which have been opened in every town. In Tirnovo the monks in one of the large monasteries sent a petition to the mayor asking that they be allowed to join the army or enlist in the Red Cross corps. Now a dozen of them are taking up the Red Cross training courses.

Naturally there is a scarcity of able-bodied men which, in some of the towns might result in disorder if the local authorities did not show ingenuity in solving local problems. In Pleven all the policemen were called to the barracks and the streets were left unprotected. The prefect called on all the boys of the upper gymnasium classes to organize themselves into a provisional police force. Being only boys, two were made to fill the place of one policeman, so now the streets of the city are patrolled by pairs of boys in the green-visored caps of the gymnasium.

That the women are responding quite as eagerly to such emergency calls is shown in word coming from Sofia which, after stating that almost all the street cleaners had entered the army, adds: "Now the women have organized themselves into a street-cleaning brigade."

BULGARIANS AT HOME IN WAR TIME

OFFERING CANDLES FOR THOSE AT FRONT

INTERMINGLING with the roar of the Maritza rises the wailing of widows. For thirty years Bulgaria has sung these words of her national hymn, embodying the temperamental Slavic melancholy which permeates her literature and music. But now the wall of centuries deepens into a paean of victory; the children and the soldiers are now singing this new version of the old melody: The blood-red Maritza is foaming, Mortally wounded Turkey lies groaning; On, on, Zarigrad (Constantinople) is ours. One, two, three, march the infantry. "During all my twenty-five years here," writes a Russian exile, a civil engineer in southern Bulgaria, in a personal letter to a friend in New York, "I have never seen the Bulgarian people so deeply roused. The women are organizing committees to raise funds for the Red Cross work and for the relief of the families suffering because all their male members have gone to the front. For several days after hostilities broke out it was impossible to buy bread. The bakers were working night and day, but they would not sell to the civilians; all was for the soldiers. Young Boys Volunteer. "Our arsenal is three kilometers from the barracks, and the authorities were puzzled how to transport the Mannlicher rifles for the new recruits over to the barracks. The soldiers were all on duty or drilling, and every wagon in town was in use for carrying supplies. Help came to them from an unexpected quarter. A committee of three boys appeared and asked that they be allowed to solve the problem. All the small boys of the town—they ran in age from eight to fourteen—marched out to the arsenal, organized into large companies, and, each company under the direction of an old man, the little fellows trudged those three kilometers over plowed fields to the barracks, retracing their steps many times until every Mannlicher had been carried over to the barracks."

This is a war that the people have wanted and have been expecting for many years, so they gladly have come to the financial assistance of the government. In every town citizens formed committees to raise the necessary funds. In Lom, one of the smaller provincial towns, such a committee collected 4,100 francs the first day the subscription was opened, 4,800 francs on the second day, and at the end of the fourth day it had 15,000 francs in hand. In this particular case the money was used to equip volunteer companies which were escorted to the trains by all the city officials and the citizens who had not yet been called to the colors.

Each small town is the market center of its surrounding district, and it is in them that the commissary department of the army has established depots for gathering in supplies for troops. Every day the peasants come driving in their cattle and sheep and pigs, and compete with each other in giving. Many old peasants, who fought in the Russo-Turkish war, or in the war with Serbia, are trying to have themselves enlisted again. One old man from Boyana drove into town in a wagon drawn by two buffaloes and sought out the recruiting officer. Giving of Slender Stems. "I know I am too old to fight," said, "but you need men to drive the supply wagons. Can't you make use of me and my wagon and my buffaloes?"

In the towns the very poorest people are giving all the clothes they can spare for the use of the soldiers. These families which have been left without means of livelihood, because the men have gone to the front, are being amply provided for by committees of women and the wealthier citizens. In Varna, the business men raised a fund of 30,000 francs for this purpose alone, and the relief work will be carried on until the country is once more under normal conditions. Nor is only money given. In Pleven one citizen gave 1,000 francs worth of tobacco and cognac. The KITCHEN CABINET

SHOW me the plan, great Build, or of my life? Nay, anxious soul, Thou art not strong nor wise enough as yet To see the whole."

A FEW UNUSUAL RECIPES.

Most of us know and have prepared pigs in blankets—that is bacon wrapped in a small piece of steak, browned in fat and then simmered in a little water—but this German dish, although similar, is one quite unusual. Cut pieces of well-pounded round steak, cut thin, in pieces about five inches wide; salt and pepper well, lay a slice of pickle, a slice of onion and a strip of bacon on each piece and roll it up. Brown in a little fat, add a bay leaf and enough water to simmer for an hour or two. Be sure that the meat is either skewered or tied with a string. If the meat is rolled or dusted with flour the gravy is slightly thickened.

Chocolate Cookies.—Take a cupful of brown sugar, one-half cup of butter, one cup of sour milk, one egg and one-half teaspoonful of soda. Melt two squares of chocolate, add one and a half cups of flour, a half cup of raisins, a half cup of nutmeats well broken. Mix and drop by teaspoonfuls on buttered pans.

Bran Muffins.—These are good for people troubled with constipation, and are often recommended by physicians. Beat an egg and add a pinch of salt, then a half cup of molasses, a cup of milk, two cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix well and bake twenty minutes to half an hour. This makes a dozen muffins.

Peanut Butter Fudge.—Put two cups of brown sugar and two-thirds of a cup of milk in a granite sauce pan, set over the fire and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Boil until a little dropped in cold water will form a soft ball, then add four tablespoonfuls of peanut butter; stir until the butter is melted, then beat until creamy. Add a teaspoon of vanilla and a third of a cup of sultana raisins.

Here is a new one of the old favorites: Chili Con Carni.—Grind through a meat chopper one and a half pounds of beef, one and a half pounds of veal, a pound of pork, and a quarter of a pound of suet. Put into a large kettle, add a quart of tomatoes chopped fine, six large onions minced, and a quart of chili beans or lima beans. Season with salt and cayenne, adding a bay leaf. Tie up in a piece of cheese cloth two teaspoonfuls each of whole peppers and allspice and a few cloves. Fill an eight quart kettle with water and the mixture and cook six hours. The longer and slower it is cooked the better.

Hot Tamales.—This is another popular recipe often called for. Cover a chicken with water and stew until tender, salting the fowl when nearly done. Drain off the liquor, and when cool remove the fat. Cut up the meat and chop fine; season with paprika and garlic to taste. Make a thick mush of cornmeal and boiling water. Form the seasoned meat into rolls and increase each in the mush, making it into a long roll. Cover these rolls with the inner husks of the corn after they have been well washed. When the tamales are all wrapped in the husks, tie them up and return them to the liquor in which the chicken was cooked; add a few red peppers and cook fifteen minutes, drain and send to the table. The real Mexican tamales are highly seasoned with red pepper.

Pear Salad.—Pears cut in halves and garnished with balls of cream cheese and maraschino cherries, served with French dressing, makes a most delicious and attractive looking salad.

Breath Was "Out of Place." Papa took Harry to the country to visit his grandparents. They lived a short distance from the village where the train stopped. Harry insisted on running as they approached the home of his grandparents. They had not gone far, however, until Harry's breath was coming in short jerks and he could hardly talk.

"Wait—wait—a minute—papa," he gasped.

"What's the matter, son?" asked the father.

"My—breath—is all out of place," gasped the little fellow.

CHEAP SUBSTITUTE FOR ORDINARY MEAT

The fact that rabbits are easily grown and are a cheap and excellent substitute for the ordinary meats is likely to turn the attention of many persons to rearing the animals. They can be propagated without costly investment in land and buildings in a peculiar advantage. Further, the presence on the farm of another animal which, like poultry, may be killed and prepared for the table entire and at short notice, is exceedingly desirable. All these circumstances make it extremely probable that the business of rearing rabbits will grow in importance.

The Belgian hare is one of the best rabbits for table use. It weighs more than most breeds, develops very rapidly, and the quality of the meat is superior to all the others. The Flemish giant is a Belgian hare bred exclusively for large size, but with the result that the meat is coarser and less delicate in flavor. These characteristics are regarded by some persons as desirable, but this is largely a matter of individual taste. Most people would prefer the white, finer-grained flesh of the original Belgian hare. It should be remarked, however, that much of the excellence of the rabbit as food depends upon its cooking. As often prepared, it is dry and insipid; while in the hands of an experienced cook it becomes all that the most fastidious taste can wish. An especial requirement in cooking the Belgian hare is that none of the natural juices of the meat be lost in the process.

The Belgian hare does not do well when kept wild in open warrens. The common English rabbit is better for this purpose. A good many Belgians have been turned out in various parts of the United States, and in the vicinity of the city of New York and on the western coast there have been some complaints of damage to crops by wild Belgian hares. As a rule, however, and fortunately for the farmer, these animals, when obliged to shift for themselves, fall an easy prey to their enemies and disappear within a few months.

Belgian hares may be successfully managed in two ways: (1) Entirely in hutches, or (2) in outdoor fenced runs, or courts, with hutches for does when having young, and sleeping hutches for other stock. The hutch system with various modifications is the more common, and is the only method adopted by rabbit fanciers who raise for show. The use of small runs or rabbit courts to give the animals healthful exercise in fine weather is of advantage.

The rabbits may occupy part or all of a barn or shed, or be kept in a sheltered space in the angle between buildings or walls. The indoor rabbitry has decided advantages. The place should be well ventilated, but not subject to draughts of cold or damp air. These may be prevented by ventilators in the roof, or by a system of stowed pipes, passing through the sides of the building and reaching a height of 2 or 3 feet above the openings. Hutches for the Belgian hare should be somewhat larger than those intended for smaller breeds. They should be built of good lumber, should have tight floors, and should have at least 12 square feet of floor space and a height of 2 feet. If there is plenty of room in the rabbitry it is best to have the hutches separate; but they are usually set in tiers or stacks, two or three in height. Each hutch in the rank is complete in itself, so that its position may be shifted at any time.

A rabbit court may be paved or floored, or it may be a grass court surrounded by a rabbit-proof fence. Sleeping hutches inside the court may be small boxes of any sort if they are stout and waterproof. They should have sliding doors to confine the rabbits if desired, and should also have small holes near the top for ventilation. If a court is used, hutches will still be needed for breeding does. A rabbit-proof fence to inclose a grass court should be made of heavy poultry netting 6 or 6 feet wide and of 1 1/2-inch mesh. The posts, projecting 3 or 4 feet above the ground, should be well set outside the edge of the court. The netting is stapled to the posts, leaving a projection of 6 inches or more at the top and about 18

ALINE'S SOILED GOWN

By J. N. NOWLAND.

"Oh, I've ruined it! What shall I do? Virginia, do come here! Oh, Virginia!" Virginia came running from the dining room of the little flat where she and Aline Carr had been keeping house for two years. Her face was flushed, and her eyes were wide with fright.

"What in the world is the matter, child? Are you hurt? What is it?" she exclaimed as she rushed into Aline's tiny bedroom and found that small person in a sobbing heap on the bed.

"Aline, what have you done? Come, dear, you mustn't cry. Aline, speak to me." Aline lifted her tear-stained face and brushed back a mass of thick golden curls. "Just look at it! See what I've done to my dress—it's ruined! Oh, Virginia, I can't go to the ball. What will you think? What will his mother think? What will his mother think?"

"Ink all over the front of my gown—say pretty new gown! Isn't it just terrible? There's no time to get anything else. It wasn't a fancy dress party, I could manage, but I can't go in just an evening gown, and there is no possible way for me to get even a domino to put over my pink frock."

Again the pretty head was buried in the pillow, and the slight form of the girl shook with sobs. Virginia looked with alarm and interest at the lovely lady's frock flung over a chair back. All over the front and side was a dark blue stain, a big blotchy stain that completely spoiled the pretty laces and chiffon.

Virginia knew that she looked on a tragedy. Aline had been engaged to Winston Scott just two weeks. She was to meet his mother for the first time that evening—the mother who would be critical, who was giving a costume ball for Winston's sister, and would expect great things from her daughter-in-law-to-be.

Virginia knew that Mrs. Scott was not the sort of a woman to look with favor upon her son's marriage with a girl who earned her own living; but she knew Aline could win even the sternest woman's heart with her gentle manner and sweet, loving disposition if she only had a chance.

"Don't cry, little one. I think we can fix it all right. Come along with me. I may have something that will do as well as this shepherdess dress."

Wonderingly, Aline followed Virginia into her room, where the older girl knelt beside a large trunk taking things out of it until she drew forth a package wrapped in tissue paper. Opening it, she held up a lovely crepe kimono, a real Japanese garment, of the palest shell pink, with cherry blossoms embroidered over its surface so that they looked as if some merry summer breeze had scattered them there. It was lined with dreamy satin.

Aline gasped with joy. She could wear the lovely robe over her pink slip and represent a daughter of Japan. Virginia helped her to arrange her hair with tiny tans and pretty pins. Her brows and eyes were penciled; a little rouge applied deftly to her cheeks and lips gave her the piquant appearance of a dainty geisha girl.

"Where did you get this lovely kimono, Virginia? How sweet of you to lend it to me." "I wore it once—to a party—five years ago," replied Virginia, and then quickly changed the subject.

It was nearly midnight when Aline sank down in a secluded corner of the conservatory just to "get her breath and think for a minute." She had been a success. Mrs. Scott had received her most graciously. Winston had told her over and over how lovely she was, and his sister had admired her costume and said she was the prettiest girl in the ballroom. It was almost time to unmask.

She leaned her head back on the cushions of the divan and closed her eyes behind their satin mask. Suddenly she was conscious of some one sitting down beside her; then— "Virginia! At last I have found you. I came late, and only caught sight of you in the crush. Why have you hidden yourself from me, Virginia?"

"I beg your pardon. I am not Virginia. I suppose you mean Virginia Taylor." And Aline quickly pulled off her mask, revealing her face to the man in monk's costume seated by her side.

"Pardon me. I'm sorry I made the mistake—but surely, that is—it was your kimono that led me to think you were Miss Taylor. She has, or had one just like it."

"This is Miss Taylor's kimono. She let me wear it tonight because I spoiled my own dress." "You know Virginia? Tell me, is she here?" "No." "But I can find her! I am Jack Howard, an old friend; in fact, we were engaged to be married, but after a foolish quarrel I left for the west without seeing her, and I have not been able to find her since my return to New York. She was wearing that kimono the last time I saw her. Tell me where I can address her, please."

ALL MEXICO AFLAME; U. S. SHIPS READY

VERA CRUZ SITUATION SO BAD AMERICAN WARSHIPS ARE CONSIDERED NECESSARY.

THE MADERO GOVERNMENT IS PROVIDING NO PROTECTION.

Disorder and Widespread Rebel Activities Continue in the Southern Part of Mexico.

Reports of a grave situation at Vera Cruz, Mex., caused state department officials to seriously consider detaching one of the warships from the first division of the Atlantic fleet at Gauntanamo for immediate duty at the Mexican port.

Continued disorders and widespread rebel activities in southern Mexico, in which official dispatches say small towns and ranches have been attacked and pillaged, women have been carried off and bandits have demoralized the populace, have aroused apprehension for the safety of Americans in the disturbed zone.

That the Madero government is providing little or no protection for foreign interests has again been made evident by the recent action of American planters in announcing that they proposed to pay tribute to the rebel Zapata to protect their growing crops against other rebel bands and raiders.

State department officials admitted that their reports were of a condition so grave as to indicate that the presence of a United States warship might be necessary to protect Americans.

Mexican Volcano in Eruption. Colima volcano in Mexico is in violent eruption and inhabitants of several towns and villages near the mountain are fleeing to escape death by strangulation.

The big crater is vomiting enormous quantities of lava, sand, ashes and poisonous gases. Thousands of cattle and other animals have met death.

The eruption began at noon. Rumblyings far down in the earth followed by terrific detonations. Then a shower of lava and sand covered the surrounding country. The railroad tracks were buried to a depth of several feet, making the passage of trains impossible. Smoke blotted out the sky and added darkness to the other terrors that drove the residents of the small towns from their homes, guided only by the light from the bewitching volcano.

A report from Guadalajara, 100 miles from the volcano, said that ashes and gases there caused great discomfort. If the eruption continues, it is feared several towns will be destroyed.

Poincare Elected President of France. Raymond Poincare, republican, was elected president of the Republic of France. He is the present prime minister and was the most popular of the seven original candidates.

Poincare is thus made ninth president of the third republic, succeeding President Armand Fallieres. Poincare was chosen on the second ballot amid scenes of the wildest confusion, after he had challenged to a duel Georges Clemenceau, a former premier, and after a second duel challenge had been sent by Deputy Moizet, a Poincare supporter, to former Minister Boucaux, an adherent of Jules Pams, secretary of agriculture.

The incident between Poincare and Clemenceau arose out of a letter sent by the former premier, to Mr. Poincare, the contents of which were considered offensive by Mr. Poincare.

Teachers to Meet in Ann Arbor. At a meeting of the executive committee of the State Teachers' association in Lansing, Ann Arbor was decided on as the place for holding the next state convention, the time chosen being the last week in October. Ann Arbor was successful because of superior auditorium facilities. Besides Detroit, Ann Arbor and Kalamazoo, other cities which wanted the convention were Grand Rapids, Battle Creek and Saginaw.

Rolled 30 feet along the track. Oscar Ehrman, aged 5, barely escaped death under a street car in Kalamazoo. Action was taken by the supervisors of Saginaw county with a view of terminating the fee system in vogue in the sheriff's office and placing that official on a salary. A resolution was adopted requesting the legislature to pass a local act carrying with it a change in the system.

The threatened bread famine in Kalamazoo, is a thing of the past. When a strike was called in one of the biggest bakeries only three bakers walked out.

Opposition to the municipal coal yard developed in the council in East Creek and it was by only one vote that Ald. Yaw was given permission to purchase several cars of

"The Wall Street Girl."

Blanche Ring, with her smiling good-humor and breezy buoyancy, comes to the Whitney Theatre, Ann Arbor, Thursday, January 30, in her musical comedy success, "The Wall Street Girl" which has met with such favor in New York, Chicago and all the large cities. Miss Ring has gained the right to be called America's foremost singing comedienne. Her personal magnetism, her charm of manner, and her inimitable method of singing songs has gained her an enviable reputation the country over. Miss Ring's new piece could not have better parentage, for the book is by Margaret Mayo, author of "Baby Mine" and Edgar Selwyn, who wrote "The Country Boy," the lyrics are by Hapgood Burt and the music by the late Karl Hoschna and various other.

The heroine of "The Wall Street Girl" is the daughter of a man who was anxious to have a son when she was born. Consequently she was brought up like a boy and enters her father's office in Wall street to become a broker. She makes a success of her career until she meets Dexter Barton, a young man from the west, with whom she falls in love. She takes a half interest in gold mining proposition, which her father has turned down, and later this mine saves the brokerage firm from failure.

The music of "The Wall Street Girl" is said to be most tuneful and Miss Ring has a half dozen catchy songs, which will be sung as only she can sing them. Will Rogers, expert with the lariat, who made such a distinct hit on Broadway with both his rope-throwing and quaint humor last spring, and has duplicated it in Chicago and elsewhere, is featured. Miss Ring, it is said, has the prettiest aggregation of girls on the road this season. Advance seat sale opens Tuesday, January 28. Phone 480.

Aching Kidneys Cured in Chelsea

If Your Back Aches and Your Kidneys are Weak, Get the Kidney Remedy That Has Been Proved GOOD Again and Again Right Here in Chelsea.

Chelsea People Tell It:

Madison Street	Garfield Street	Park Street
F. A. Hammond, Madison St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with the best of results. My back was very lame and every cold I caught made the trouble worse. When Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I used them and they quickly gave relief from the pains and regulated the passages of the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly deserve my endorsement in return for their good work."	Mrs. Lewis Burg, Garfield St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills for I know them to be a remedy of great merit. I suffered intensely from backache and in the morning upon arising I felt lame and weak. A distressing kidney weakness clung to me persistently and these troubles made me very anxious to get relief. Finally I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and soon after I began using them I was free from my aches and pains. I have been feeling much better every way since."	B. F. Hawley, retired farmer, Park St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are by no means a new remedy to me. I have used them on several occasions and they have always had a beneficial effect. I was subject to attacks of backache and also had acute pains through my kidneys. The kidney secretions were highly colored and there was sediment in them. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me prompt relief from these troubles and I have had no serious attack since. I willingly give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement."
S. Main Street	W. Middle Street	McKinley Street
Mrs. Charles Grant, S. Main St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "From personal experience I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy for kidney trouble. I suffered intensely from dull, nagging backaches and the kidney secretions caused me much annoyance. I had pains through my kidneys and felt poorly in every way, when I read about Doan's Kidney Pills. Procuring a supply of this remedy, I commenced its use and it proved very prompt in relieving my aches and pains and removing the kidney trouble. I have felt better in every way since taking Doan's Kidney Pills."	John Kelley, west Middle St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they helped me wonderfully. My back was sore and lame and it was hard for me to stoop on account of acute pains across my kidneys. I also had trouble from irregular passages of the kidney secretions. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box and used them. I have had no trouble from my back or kidneys since taking this remedy and have felt better in every way."	Mrs. S. J. Trouton, McKinley St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "I suffered a great deal from backache and acute pains through my kidneys. Headache and dizzy spells annoyed me and the kidney secretions caused me annoyance by their too frequent passages. I tried a number of remedies but found no relief until I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills. The contents of one box removed the backache and also strengthened my kidneys. I am pleased to give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement."

Are YOUR Kidneys Weak?

HOW TO TELL—First read the testimony and learn what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for others.

Then if your back aches, if sharp pains strike you when stooping or lifting; if you are lame in the morning and inclined to worry over trifles; if the kidney secretions are highly colored and full of sediment; if passages are too frequent, scanty, painful or scalding, it is likely that your kidneys need quick attention.

Take a sample of the urine and let it stand for 24 hours. If a sandy, brick-dust like sediment settles to the bottom of the receptacle, there is evidence enough to suspect the kidneys.
