RAILROAD STATISTICS SHOW SLIGHT INCREASE IN EARNINGS

GEN. STONE WOULD EXCHANGE FLAGS WITH REES.

He Believes that if Trophies Were Returned at Gettysburg Reunion It Would be a Great Prawing Card.

(By Gurd M. Hayes)

Apparently there are grounds for the poverty wails emanating from the representatives of the various railroads operating in Michigan. At least, a comparison of last year's business, with the business of 1911, according to statistics of the state railroad commission, show that there was but a slight increase. During the last session of the legislature and in the course of the Pere Marquette investigation, the point was raised that the increase in business was not keeping pace with the increased expense.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911 the freight revenue for all steam roads in the state amounted to $41,-541,184.37, while for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912 the business increased to $44,359,780.24, a gain of $2,818,595.87. Taken as a whole this might be considered a comfortable increase, but distributed among all the roads of the state it is not considered flag of the Vriginia "Taylor Greys" a very excellent showing.

In 1911 the total passenger earnings from all steam roads amounted to $15,820,337.21. Last year the total was $16,436,741.02, an increase of only $416,403.91. Almost without excep-· tino the railroad men appearing before the legislature last winter declared that there was no money in the passenger business and that the earnings on the freight end were being reduced through governmental regulations.

The records of the state railroad commission show that the railroads carried 78,191,024 tons of freight last year as compared with 72,838,893 in 1911. This is an increase of 5,353,121. The total number of passengers carried by steam roads in 1912 was 23,351,881 as compared with 22,243,340 the previous year. This section of the report shows a gain in the number of passengers carried of 1,108,541.

the Michigan Central amounted to $4,-449,816.26, and for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912 the books show $4,-616,98. The passenger earnings of the Pere Marquette amounted to $3,-095,967.07 in 1911 as compared with $3,174,572.56 in 1912. The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern increased its passenger earnings from $1,287,208.03 to $1,315,222.31. The Grand Trunk advanced from $2,251,256.01 to $2,516,-008.20. The figures are taken only on the principal roads but the averages are approximately the same.

The four big roads made but little gain in the revenue received from handling freight. In 1911 the Michigan Central received $10,669,081.17. while last year the total was $11,356,-848.22. The Pere Marquette shows an increase from $8,460,641.95 to $8,832,-399.93. The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern advanced from $1.878.746.55 to $2,144,026.29 and the Grand Trunk dering which might later cause fires. from $4,922,144.61 to $5,319,445.73.

However, time and the Spanish-American war has apparently cured many of the Michigan veterans of their intense feeling towards the southerners, the fact that several confederate veterans are to travel with the Michigan men to Gettysburg for the big reunion July 4 is given as evidence of the fact that times have changed.

While a crowd of veterans were standing in the lower corridor of the capitol where the war relics are displayed in glass cases, some one remarked that it was about time to return the confederate flags. There was some debate on the pichosition and a poll showed that the men were unanimously in favor of this proposition.

The flag of the First Alabama Rebel Cavalry, which fell into the hands of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry is one of the interesting relics of the war that may be returned. The guidon of the Ninth Louisiana Battalion captured by Company F. Sixth Michigan Infantry at Baton Rouge, August 5, 1862 is also among the interesting souvenirs. Another banner is the one carried by the Fifty-fourth Virginia Infantry which was captured at Bentonville, North Carlina by the Fourteeth Michigan Infantry March 19, 1865. There is a flag belonging to a North Carolina company which was taken at Ashville, N. C. In the case of war relics is the which was captured by Capt. James L. There are also three other confederate flags in the Michigan war museum, but their identity has not been preserved and apparently no one knows to what company they originally belonged.

State Fire Marshall C. A. Palmer makes a plea for a safe and sane observance of Independence Day in a bulletin issued from his department. He points to the fact that in 1909 there were 20 cities in the state where sane celebrations were held and he says that the list of dead and injured has decreased each succeeding year. He claims that there was not a single injury in the cities where the fourth of July was quietly observed last year. "Each year our celebration of Independence Day is marred and our satifaction and pleasure made less keen by accidents which apparently in many cases might have been avoided, says Palmer." It may be well that we in the celebration of this day in which we all take so much pride should co-operate with the fire chiefs and others whose duty it is to combat conflagations and to prevent the same where possible. Affairs at the Flying Heart Ranch were not all to Jack Chapin's liking. Ever since that memorable foot-race, more than a month before, a gloom had brooded over the place which even the presence of two Smith College girls, not to mention that of Mr. Fresno, was unable to dissipate. The cowboys moped about like melancholy shades, and neglected their work to discuss the disgrace that had fallen upon them. It was a task to get any of them out in the morning, several had quit, the rest were quarreling among themselves, and the bunkhouse had already been the scene of more than one encounter, altogether "Cut that out, Mex! The packages were opened and each one found a musical instrument and all joined in singing 'When Good Fellows Get Together,"

Did you ever hear of a boat party? Well, neither did I until recently, and I am telling you all about it just as soon as I can. This affair was given for a boy's eighth birthday, and he just loved boats better than anything else, so his mother had the tinsmith make an oval pan four inches deep, which she filled with water and put in the center of the dining-room table. Around the edge she arranged ferns and vines with moss, and in the water she placed the gold fish from the aquarium. At the toy store she bought ducks, miniature rowboats, sailboats, a little steamer, swans, frogs and play fish. There was a five-cent sailboat at each place, with the name of child stance, say the natal day is in June, a on the side. The cake had a sailboat bunch of roses, or any gift, for June done in pink icing for decoration;

Passing Pennies.

This is a jolly pastime much en joyed by children and hailed by mothers as something new. Place five chairs in a row and five chairs opposite them with a small table or tabouret at each end. Ask ten children to take the seats thus provided, with a captain at each head of the line. Then the captain takes five pennies that are given him and lays them on the head table. Every other child must hold out its hands for the penny to be dropped into them, the palms flat and close together. Now the captains sitting beside the head table start sending the pennies to the other end. They pick one cent off the table, drop it in the next child's hand, then the third person picks it out and drops it in the next hand and so on until and have been intending to pass it the last player is reached and the along but other things have crowded. | coin is laid on the foot table. Two or three such collars keep the waist fresh looking and save its too frequent tubbing.

Shadow laces have proven well adapted to these neck pieces. They are combined with narrow beadings and edgings and often made up with net. A pretty example is shown here having a plaiting of net set on to one of the lace.

Strong cluny lace is so durable and at the same time so dainty that it is of all the favorite for trimming summer gowns and for making neckwear. A collar and jabot of this lace shows the straight band of lace edged with fine batiste. Two little points are turned down and fastened with small dress.

The lines are curved, the scallops indented, the flower spray graceful and the work done with exact neatness and finish. The effect shows much intelligent care. A quantity of explosives had been discovered outside of the city gates and investigation led to the discovery of the conspiracy. WILSON ASKS NEW CUPRENCY SYSTEM

President Wilson Reads Message to Joint Session of Congress.

Revision of the Banking and Currency Laws Must Go Hand in Hand With Revision of the Tariff.

Washington, June 23.-President Wilson today read his special message on the subject of banking and currency reform to the joint session of congress. The message follows:

Mr. Speaker, Mr. President, Gentlemen of the Congress: It is under the compulsion of what seems to me a clear and imperative duty that I have a second time this session sought the privilege of addressing you in person. I know, of course, that the heated season of the year is upon us, that work in these chambers and in the committee rooms is likely to become a burden as the season lengthens, and that every consideration of personal comfort, perhaps, in the cases of some of us, considerations of personal health even, dictate an early conclusion of the deliberations of the session; but there are occasions of public duty when these things which touch us privately seem very small; when the work to be done is so pressing and so fraught with big consequence that we know that we are not at liberty to weigh against it any point of personal sacrifice. It is absolutely imperative that we should give the business men of this country a banking and currency system by means of which they can make use of the freedom of enterprise and of individual initiative which we are about to bestow upon

It has been reserved for us indeed with the slothful security of their dependence upon the government; some took advantage of the shelter of the nursery to set up a are to ensue.

.It is not enough to strike the shackles from business. The duty of statesmanship is not negative merely. It is constructive also. We must show that we understand what business needs and that we know how to supsuperficial his observation of the concan fail to see that one of the chief things business needs now, and will need increasingly as it gains in scope and vigor in the years immediately ahead of us, is the proper means by which readily to vitalize its credit. corporate and individual, and its originative brains. What will it profit us to be free if we are not to have the best and most accessible instrumentalities of commerce and enterprise?

The principles upon which we should act are also clear. The country has sought and seen its path in this matter within the last few years-see it more clearly now than it ever saw it before-much more clearly than when the last legislative proposals on the subject were made. We must have a currency, not rigid as now, but readily, elastically responsive to sound credit, the expanding and contracting credits of everyday transactions, the normal ebb and flow of personal and corporate dealings. Our banking laws must mobilize reserves; must not permit the Steamer Col. James M. The committees of the congress to which legislation of this character is referred have devoted careful and dispassionate study to the means of accomplishing these objects. They have honored me by consulting me. They are ready to suggest action. I have come to you, as the head of the government and the responsible leader of the party in power, to urge action now, while there is time to serve the country deliberately and as we should, in a clear air of common counsel.

Religiously preserved in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, is the Liberty Bell which rang to celebrate the adoption of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776. It was brought from England in 1752 and the next year was recast with the words "Proclaim Liberty Throughout All the Land, and Unto All the Inhabitants Thereof" inscribed on it. For many years it was rung annually on the Fourth of July, but in 1835, while being tolled in memory of Chief Justice Marshall it was broken. Liberty Bell in past years has been taken to many cities for exhibition, but of late this practice has been abandoned in order that it may be preserved.

there were 5,307 victims of their own or another's carelessness. Last year 161 cities made a point of holding sane celebrations, but there remains over 1,100 cities of 5,000 population that have not embraced the reform. It is hoped that this year many other cities and villages will fall in line.

Besides the gain in ridding the day of fires and accidents, the sane method of observance has given a larger amount of pleasure to the public and in many localities has been historically instructive as well. In New York city many large celebrations are planned for different centers which will include parades, pageants, histor- ters of the postal service and keeps ical tableaux, music and speeches by well known men on events and people connected with our national history. Beside the celebrations, devised for our English-speaking residents, there will be special festivals and celebrations in the Italian, Hungarian, Bohemian and Jewish sections of the city where our more newly arrived citizens will hear the history of their adopted land explained in their own tongue and illustrated by stereopticon views or tableaux.

An example of this kind of celebration was set two years ago in Springfar to see it, and the idle passerby is field, Mass, at the instance of the settlement workers of that city. It required, to be sure, some time and thought, but the result was a beauti-

How Circus Lion Inflicted Just Retribution on a Cruel Trainer.

By SIGISMUND B. TAILER. Nero had not been quite the same for several weeks. Signor Blanco, his trainer, had perceived nothing amiss. because his eyes had lost their fine keenness and his brain had grown sodden and bewildered. Nero obeyed as quickly as ever, but when he his pedestal, there was a slight quivering of his sides, a lashing of his tail, which would have told Blanco a story-once. But Blanco was mad the open door of their tent. with drink and jealousy of his young wife, Minetta.

Every trainer knows that the old story of Daniel and the lions is true. The lion fears a good man more than trainer drink or give way to any base impulse and his power is gone.

As for Majolica and Betty, they were mere kittens of creatures, hardly larger than well-grown Newfoundlands. And Parsifal, the tiger, was old and toothless. Nero carried off the honors in Blanco's menagerie, and Nero was so magnificent a Nubian specimen that he would have made any show respectable.

Minetta had noticed it. So had Giuseppe. The girl had told Giuseppe, and the apprentice had warned Blanco. Blanco had laughed and sneered and cut Nero across the face with his heavy training whip. Nero retreated, growling and licking his paws; he longed to sink their needle-like points into Blanco's white flesh.

The truth was that Blanco had been beating his wife. Minetta was only nineteen and they had been married two years. Blanco was forty-five. He had found Minetta starving on her arrival from Italy to marry Giuseppe, who came from her village, and to whom she had been pledged ever since they were children.

Minetta had missed Giuseppe, for Blanco, having seen her photograph, had cunningly contrived to send Giuseppe astray. He trailed her for three 'days until her money was exhausted. Then he made himself known to her at her boarding house, just as she was in the act of being turned into the street. "Giuseppe has another girl," he told her. "I am Signor Blanco. No, I do

Poor little Minetta, helpless and hopeless, fell an easy victim to Blanco. It must be admitted, though, that he was deeply infatuated with her girlish beauty. So they were married and lived happily three months. And then-Giuseppe came back.

Blanco had taken advantage of the raw youth's ignorance to have him shanghaied aboard a Chesapeake oysterman. He had thought the life would kill him; instead of which he had grown strong. He came back to find Blanco married to Minetta.

"Pooh, that is nothing!" Blanco said airily. "I thought you had run away. It was for your sake I married her. Listen, Giuseppe, I want an assistant again. Stay with me and I will give you ten dollars weekly."

This seemed a fortune to Gluseppe And he would have worked for nothing to be within sight of his beloved might arrive when he could help her. Blanco had laughed quietly at his triumph. He felt sure that his cunning act, showing Minetta how he despised her former sweetheart, would make her despise him too. But Minetta did not despise Giuseppe. Blanco, watching them, saw that the old love was only dormant. He knew that, though she would not have dared let herself acknowledge it, Minetta still loved Giuseppe. He dared not send him away, for he wanted to have him in his sight constantly.

He had tried in various ways to kill him. Once he teased Nero and sent Giuseppe into his cage. But Nero only crouched down at his feet. Another time he rubbed Giuseppe's time, and with childish curiosity clothes with catnip. Giuseppe smelled asked questions. dignantly he struck her in the face. NERO, THE AVENGER Giuseppe saw the bruise.

"You have hurt yourself, Minetta!" he exclaimed. "What have you done? Did you fall?"

"Yes, I fell downstairs," sobbed Minetta, shamefacedly. If she had been a little older she might not have been so frightened. But Blanco was all in the world to her; bad as the man was, she loved him because she had given herself to him.

Blanco watched her all the time. Giuseppe began to notice it. First he was indignant and thought of taxing Blanco with it. Then he waited, as is the Italian nature. No good, he knew, ever came out of evil.

Blanco drank constantly. Nero sprang, at the word of command, upon knew it. Nero was watching him as quietly as he watched Giuseppe. The climax was very néar when Giuseppe saw Blanco strike Minetta through He had been counting the receipts,

"He is a devil!" shouted the young man, fingering his blade. "Minetta!" They looked at one another and fell into each other's arms. They knew now that their two years had been fruitless: they would always love one

"Giuseppe, you must go," Minetta sobbed at length. "Go now, before sin come upon us."

Giuseppe fought the hardest battle of his life that moment. At last he conquered; raising Minetta's hand to his lips he walked slowly back to the collection box. He would leave that afternoon; he would never see Minetta again.

Minetta went into the lion house presently. Blanco, who seemed particularly amiable, called her into the cage. She was not loath to go; she was a better trainer than he.

Blanco caught his wife by the arm. "Minetta-dear Minetta," he said, smiling like a devil; "I saw what happened five minutes ago. Kneel down, Minetta, and pray."

Minetta kneeled down and prayed, because she was docile and it seemed the only thing that she could do. Blanco stepped toward Nero and cut him savagely across the loins. The cat leaped from his pedestal and crouched, snarling, in a corner. Blanco stepped back toward the half-open door. He took his eyes from Nero. He knew that he could reach the door and close it on his wife before Nero could spring. He leaped for the door, tripped, and stumbled. He had fallen upon Minetta's whip, which she had cast aside. He strove wildly to rise. He saw a great shape darken the daylight over

It was Minetta's scream that called Giuseppe from the collection box. When he arrived he saw her beating with her little fists on Nero's face, while the lion blinked and snarled over the body of Blanco.

"Speaking of parents and daughters," said Van Patter, "let me remark that parents are pretty dense sometimes.

"Now, there's Elsie, my niece. She's the prettiest thing that ever happened. She has light, fluffy hair and long, curly lashes that make a fellow feel as if he were standing on top of a lightning rod and looking down at the world about a thousand feet below. Elsie is one of those dainty gorilla act like a piano salesman, or, at least, wish that he could.

"Elsie's father is as dense as sack of meal. It has never occurred to him that Elsie is old enough to have a beau.

"The other evening a young fellow dropped in. Young fellows are mighty apt to drop in when there is a girl like Elsie around. Elsie and her father were sitting in the library when the young man appeared. The old man was finishing a cigar and Elsie was just sitting there looking like peaches and cream.

"The old man invited the young fellow to have a cigar and began to be polite and entertaining. He chatted and imparted information and asked polite questions and inquired about his parents and ran the whole gauntlet of stereotyped conversation.

"The young man took hold and talked back. They went around like a 60-day race without either of them getting fagged and having to drop out. Elsie just sat there, taking no part at all in the talk. Along about ten o'clock, when they had done 40 laps, the old man began to wabble a little. Once or twice he asked questions he had asked before-nice, polite questions. He was reassured as to the health of the young man's mother three times, and was also informed several times as to the young man's father's welfare. Elsie sat there as light and airy and unruffled as a butterfly

"About the 60th lap, when it was getting along toward eleven o'clock, the-old man was all in. He was wabbling all around the track. He was no longer rational. Part of the time he didn't talk at all. "Elsie never turned a hair. She was as smiling as a summer's morning. She gurgled like a merry brooklet. But she offered no theories as to the visit."

IS IT RIGHT TO ADVERTISE COCA COLA?

> Men who play the wily game of politics have discovered that the best way to distract the attention of the public from their own shortcomings is to make a loud-mouthed sensational attack upon someone else. As the cuttle-fish eludes its pursuer by clouding the surrounding water with the contents of its ink sac, so the political ad venturer takes advantage of the ignorance and prejudices of the people to escape from his indefensible position by muddying the waters of public opinion. A case in point is the recent attack made upon the religious press for carrying Coca-Cola advertising. This attack was made by a politician who was supposed to be an expert in chemistry but who, having brought a suit against the Coca-Cola Company, was humiliated by having to acknowledge that he could not qualify as an expert. The court decided in favor of the Cpca-Cola Company as it was clearly shown that the only essential difference belittle creatures who would make a tween Coca-Cola and coffee or tea is that the former contains only about half as much caffeine as the latter and that the flavor is different.

The question as to whether it is right to advertise Coca-Cola seems to resolve itself therefore into the question as to whether it is right to advertise coffee, tea, chocolate, cocoa and other beverages of the caffeine group.-Adv.

How Mad She Was,

The limit of forgiveness was surely reached by the woman who, after receiving 25 gashes from a hatchet and having two ribs broken, refuses to prosecute her husband, and asks: What is the use of starting up a lot of trouble?" Perhaps it is as much dependence as forgiveness. In London, where wife-beating is a favorite sport of the slums, the police find the greatest difficulty in bringing the offenders to book because women have to choose between denying that they were ill-used or starving while their brute husbands are in jail. One woman was brought into court all bruised and beaten up, but she denied that her husband had done it and pleaded that she had fallen downstairs. "But," said the judge, "a piece of your ear has been bitten off." "Yes, I did that myself; I was so mad."-San Francisco Chronicle

So Badly Handicapped by Its Weight the Reptile Could Not Make Escape.

Rockwood, Pa.-Up at his home near Cresaptown, Md., Gibson Umstott, a wealthy farmer, has a castiron rabbit painted in the natural colors of a bunny, which is used to hold the front door open.

The other night Umstott heard thumping noise on his porch and going out was astounded to find a monster blacksnake in the act of swallowing the cast-iron rabbit. Soon the snake completed the process of swallowing the iron rabbit; but could not escape with it. He was badly handicapped in his efforts to squirm away and was easily captured by Umstott and his hired man. Umstott, taking the big reptile by the tail with the help of his man finally forced him to disgorge the rabbit. Then taking a silk handkerchief he pulled the snake's teeth rendering him harmless. He then took the snake to the distillery in Cresaptown and fed him rye mash, causing his snakeship to go to sleep. Umstott later brought the reptile here and turned it over to the police where it was measured and found to be nine feet and one-half inch in length. The reptile was pronounced by Chief of Police Warren to be the largest blacksnake ever seen in these parts where big snakes are common.

Prince Spent His Allowance.

London.-An Oxonian, who vouches for its truth, tells the following story: Frequently when undergraduates make up a dinner party preceding a visit to a theater it is understood that each pays his own shot.

One day a Magdalen man, on meeting the prince of Wales, asked him to on his back slowly winding his way join a party for a dinner and play. "I should love to go," the prince said, "but the fact is I haven't the three shillings." "Why don't you write home?" the friend asked.

"I have," the prince replied, "but mother says I must make what I have do until the end of the term."

CONDITION OF THE FARM WORKINGMEN

There is no doubt that the condition of the farm workman has been greatly improved during the last few years. This jail comprises four large apartments hewn in the side of a hill of solid quartz rock. The entrance is situated in a boxlike vestibule built of heavy masonry and the gates have three sets of steel bars. At intervals in the rocky walls holes to serve as windows have been blasted and in these apertures a series of massive bars of steel has been fitted firmly in the rock. The floor of this rockbound jail is of cement. The prisoners are confined wholly in the larger apartments. In certain places the wall of quartz about the jail is no less than fifteen feet in thickness. So solid and heavy are the barriers to this institution that no prisoner has ever attempted escape.—Harper's

Notice of Paving.

The Village Council has under consideration the proposed paving of a certain portion of Main street, Chelsea, Michigan, and has caused to be made plats and diagrams including estimates of the expense of such pav-ing, which plats, diagrams and estimates are now on file with the Village Clerk at the council room, for the purpose of public examination. That portion of said Main street to be paved, is all that part which lies between the south line of the present pavement and the north line of land wned by Jacob Hinderer.

All the lots and parcels of land abutting upon that portion of said Main street, above designated, as shown by the maps and diagrams of the proposed district to be paved, now on file with the Village Clerk, will be assessed, under a special assessment for the purpose of defraying the expense of said paving. Such property to bear eighty per cent. of the cost of such paving outside of the intersections.

The common council will meet at the council rooms on the 7th day of July, 1913, at 7 o'clock p. m., to consider any and all objections to the said proposed paving. Dated, June 18, 1913.
