DISASTROUS FIRE

Barn and Contents on Farm of Allen Skidmore Burned to Ground.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock Wednesday morning a fire broke out in the large barn on the farm of Allen Skidmore, of Lyndon. The fire was one of the most disastrous that has occurred in that vicinity in several years. When Mr. Skidmore was ar-roused the roof of the barn was in flames and he used the telephone to turn in a general fire alarm. When the neighbors arrived at the scene
they were unable to save any of the contents of the buildings as the blaze was practically beyond control when discovered.

The barn, sheds, silo, fences around
the barn yard, wagon, hargesses, about two-thirds of the hay crop of this season and sixty chickens were consumed. A high wind prevailed which blew the flames away from the residence or else it would have been burned to the ground.

Just what caused the blaze is unknown, but is thought that spontaneous combustion was the cause. It is estimated that the loss of Mr. Skidmore will be about $1,500.

The property was insured in the Washtenaw Mutual Fire Insurance
Co., and director O. C. Burkhardt visited the scene of the fire Wednesday forenoon and adjusted the loss.
The insurance on the barn was $700
and the contents were covered by insurance. The loss to the insurance company will be about $1,000.

Celebrated Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. John Messner celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage at their home on Jefferson street last Friday. On July 4, 1863,
Miss Christine Keegris and Mr. John
Messner were married in Marshall, Michigan, and were participants in a double wedding. The other couple,
Mr. and Mrs. George Elipper, who were residents of Marshall, are both deceased.

One of the pleasant events of the occasion was that a number were who witnessed the ceremony of fifty years ago. They were: Mr. and Mrs.
Charles Neuman and Mrs. Eva Elman, of Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Chris.
Weber, of Sylvan and Mrs. Joseph Schatz.

A dinner was served to about fifty guests and Rev. A. A. Schoen performed a second marriage ceremony,
after which he delivered a short address. Mr. Messner came to this country in 1854, from Germany and for a number of years was employed by F. Staffan as a carpenter. In 1860, he located in Freedom and in 1864 settled on the farm in that township at present owned by Jacob Schneider.
Mr. and Mrs. Messner have been residents of Chelsea for about 17 years.

Their children consisting of Mrs.
W. H. Bahnmiller, of Lima, Henry
Messner, of Lyndon, Charles Messner, of Lima, and Mrs. Fred Wellhoff, accompanied by their husbands, wives and children as well as guests from Marshall, Jackson, Sharon, Freedom and Chelsea were present to assist in celebrating the event. The couple were presented with a number of gold pieces, a couch and quantity of chinaware.

In the evening the couple were given a surprise party by their Chelsea neighbors and friends and after congratulations a supper was served.

Amasa A. Harper.

Ex-Judge A. A. Harper was born in Junius, Seneca county, New York,
October 13, 1833, and died at his home
in Corunna, Thursday, July 3, 1913.

The parents of the deceased became residents of Sylvan when he was a small child and he received his education in the Chelsea school. In his younger days he clerked for John C.
Winans and for a few years he conducted a mercantile business at Sylvan Center. In 1858 he located on a farm at Perry. Later he conducted a mercantile business in Perry and was clerk of the township. He was township treasurer for four years and served as supervisor of the township
from 1871 to 1880. In the fall of 1880 he was elected judge of probate of Shiawassee county and served for eight years. He was mayor of Cor-runna for two years, a member of the M. E. church and was also a member of the Masonic order. He was twice married, and both of his wives were former residents in this vicinity. His first marriage was with Miss Cornelia J. Burchard, who died in 1904, and in 1905 he was united in marriage with Mrs. Mary F. Winans.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, two brothers and two sisters. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon, Rev. Clifford Doty, assisted by Rev. Homer Dunning, officiating.
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Campbell of this place attended the funeral.

IMPROVING THE STREET

Ground Broken on South Main Street
for Extension of Pavement.

The village authorities on Monday
of this week set men and teams at work on south Main street for the extension of the paved district. Most of the excavating will done with teams and very little of the earth will have to be drawn away, as it will be used in extending the parking on each side of the street.

The roadway from the south line of the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Van Tyne will be cut down so that it will be 29 feet in width and the parking
in front of the lot line to the curbing will be about 15 feet. This strip of land when the work is completed can be utilized as a grass plot, or set out to flowers and small shrubs that will greatly add to beautifying of the residences along the paved section.
When the work is completed, Main will have a stretch of paving that will extend from the south line of the Michigan Central tracks to the south
line of the D., J. & C. electric railway.

The village board has engaged Geo.
P. Staffan to superintend the work.
Davidson & Bauer will do the concrete mixing, and the labor and team work will be done by residents of this place. The surveying is being done by L. G. Palmer.

Mrs. Anthony L. Holden.

Miss Mary A. Guerin was born in the state of New York, March 13, 1848, and died at her home in Sharon,
Friday, July 4, 1913.

When she was six years old her parents settled in Lima. She was united in marriage with Anthony L. Holden July 3, 1870, and the day before her death
the couple in a quite way observed the 43d anniversary of their married life. The ceremony took place in Detroit and was performed by Rev.
E. E. Caster, D. D. The couple have resided at the home in Sharon for the past 41 years. To this union three sons were born, one of whom died 15 years ago. The deceased has been in failing health for a number of months.

The death of Mrs. Holden will long be felt as a great loss in her home community. She was a constant Christian, an active worker in all lines of Christian work and especially in the Sunday school of which she was twice an honored and efficient superintendent.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, Ashley L. Holden, of Chelsea, Edgar W. Holden, of Perris, California, three brothers, William and Daniel J. Guerin, of Detroit, and Warren K. Guerin of this place. The funeral was held from the family home Sunday afternoon, Rev. H. R. Beatty, of Grass Lake, officiating. Burial at the Raymond cemetery.

Trains Came Together.

A mistake in order at the Kleinschmidt gravel pit, four and one-half miles west of Ann Arbor, about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, sent a loaded gravel train backing down the sidetrack onto the main line, where a moment later it was struck by a fast
Michigan Central freight train going west.

In the wreck that followed, 15 box cars were piled up, one man was injured and another barely escaped with his life. Traffic was delayed until late Friday morning.

Engineer Frank McGuire of Detroit, driver of the freight, was badly injured about the hips when he jumped from the rushing locomotive
a moment before the crash.

His fireman had a miraculous escape from death. He leaped from the engine just as it struck the gravel
train and in the crash, a freight car toppled from the rails towards the leaping man. Luck alone saved him for he landed uninjured, and was able to gain his feet and run to safety,
but not a moment too soon, for a second later the big car dropped amid a shower of splintered wood on the exact spot where he alighted.

McGuire was taken to Ann Arbor
for treatment and was removed to his home in Detroit Saturday morning. The wreck is under investigation.

Grange Meeting.

The next meeting of North Sylvan Grange will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Young, Wednesday, July 16. The following program will be carried out:

Song—Hail to the Harvest.
Roll call—Patriotic quotations.
Paper—Better Baby Contest, by Mrs. C. E. Foster.
Song.
"Children's Welfare"—Clippings by members.
Question Box.
Closing Song.

FACTORY STARTS UP

Harris Brothers Company to Manufacture Motorcycles in Chelsea.

On Monday of this week the motorcycle department of the Chelsea plant
of the Harris Brothers Company, of Chicago, started up and they will give employment to between forty and fifty operators.

D. W. Caswell, who was formerly
chief of the engineering department,
has been engaged as general manager of the plant and nearly all of the foremen of the motorcycle department have been engaged and will return
here and take their old positions.
Many of the workmen in this department who reside here will be given their former positions.

For the present The Standard is informed that the business will be confined to the manufacture of two single cylinder models and the name of "Flanders" will be retained as the name of the motorcycles. The company will make up a line of motorcycle tools and will also carry on a series of experiments on other lines.

For the present the power for the plant will be supplied by the village and the power plant of the Flanders
Mfg. Co., has been shut down.

The Harris Brothers Company expect to begin shipping out motorcycles
about the first of August and the business will crowd forward as fast as possible.

The automatic screw machine department will not be placed in operation, but the machinery will sold as soon as buyers for it can be found.

A Golden Occasion.

Plymouth Mail: In 1862 the Detroit
Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church sent a young preacher to the Washington Ave. church, Bay City. It chanced that about the same time fate or providence directed a young lady whose parental home was in Jackson, to visit a sister in Bay City. For some cause or other,
one of the teachers in the public school resigned her position and the aforesaid young lady visitor was induced to fill the vacancy. Being very well instructed in music under one of the Normal professors she became a member of the church choir and very naturally the aforesaid pastor greatly admired her qualifications and graces.

A year later, on the 24th day of June, 1863, Miss Hattie L. Wilbur—that was her name—allowed her name to be changed to Mrs. E. E.
Caster. That pastor and the teacher have now shared unbroken confidence and love for fifty years, and would be willing to repeat life's campaign.

Their children, three in number,
Mrs. Smith Burnham of Philadelphia,
Miss Florence of Plymouth, and Dr.
E. W. Caster of Detroit, planned a complete surprise for them at their home in Plymouth, on their golden anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Caster had tried to keep it a secret but somehow it leaked out and after partaking of an elaborate seven o'clock dinner, and while engaged in the lawl pursuit of domestic enjoyment the door opened and in came a company of friends and neighbors who completely filled the spacious home.

The evening was one of splendid enjoyment, never to be repeated. At a seasonable hour the company departed leaving Mr. and Mrs. Caster to count fifty gold dollars which each received in a new purse; the twice fifty carnations which were brought were greatly appreciated.

Rev. E. E. Caster, D. D., was a former pastor of the Chelsea M. E.
church, and during their residence here gained many friends. The family have been frequent visitors here since they moved to their present home at Plymouth.

Mrs. U. D. Streeter.

Miss Helen A. Noble was born in Iosco March 15, 1842, and died at her home on Park street, Chelsea, Thursday evening, July 3, 1913.

She was united in marriage with U. D. Streeter, March 24, 1869, and the couple took up their residence in Chelsea where they resided 23 years.
From here they moved to Fowlerville, where they resided for 13 years,
and 7 years ago they returned to this place where they have since made their home. Three children were born to this union, two of whom died in infancy. The deceased had been in failing health for a number of years and her death was sudden. She had been sitting on the front porch
at her home visiting with neighbors and entered the house about eight o'clock and expired almost instantly.
She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Franc Holt, one brother and a number of nephews and nieces. Seven of her nephews attended the funeral and six of them acted as bearers. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon from the Congregational church, Rev. C. J.
Dole officiating. Burial at Oak Grove cemetery.

RAILROAD STRIKE IS THREATENED

NINETY-FOUR PER CENT. OF MEN FAVOR WALK OUT, ACCORDING TO VOTE

ERIE WITHDRAWS FROM JOINT MEETING.

Over Seventy-five Thousand Men Are Involved and Fifty Thousand Miles Would Be Tied Up.

Ninety-four per cent. of the members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and of the Order of Railway Conductors out of 76,833 participating in a strike vote in the wage dispute with the eastern railroads are in favor of a strike.

These figures were announced at a joint meeting of union representatives and a committee of railroad managers. When the conference convened the Erie railroad announced that it had withdrawn from the proceedings on the ground that it would be unable to meet any advance which might result. This practically invites a strike.

A general strike would tie up 30,000 miles of railways.

I. W. W. Leader Goes to Pen

Patrick Quinlan was taken to state's prison at Trenton, N. J., to serve not less than two years nor more than seven, for inciting riot among the striking silk workers, the first of the Industrial Workers of the World leaders to be convicted of inciting riot.

Indictments stand against Wm. D. Haywood and others. Tentative plans were announced by a citizens' committee, calling for the appointment of a committee of 15 to go to Washington and place the strike situation before congress.

Daredevil Hurt in Three-foot Fall

Rodman Law, after being shot out of a cannon, dropped from balloons and airships, dumped into the ocean on a speeding motorcycle, and escaping unharmed from a score of other dangerous feats, came to grief at Hackensack in a three-foot fall from a wagon. His shoulders were sprained badly and a finger so lacerated that it must be amputated. Although not serious, the injuries are the worst he has had.

Commoner Will Be Issued Monthly

In order that he may find time to continue the active editorship of the "Commoner," W. J. Bryan has decided to change his publication from weekly to monthly, this week's issue being the last as a weekly paper.

"In a editorial written by Mr. Bryan himself," the formal announcement will say, "the Commoner will feel attacks of those opposed to Democratic platforms."

The paper will be doubled in size without change in price.

Lieut. Call Is Killed

Aviation by the death of Lieut. Call, on the Mexican border, claimed its tenth victim from the army and navy, the previous toll having been seven commissioned officers and two instructors. Lieut. Call was a son of Lewis W. Call, chief clerk and solicitor in the office of judge-advocate general of the army at Washington.

Strike Riots in South Africa.

The strike which involved practically all the gold mines on the Rand ended at Johannesburg, South Africa. During its brief existence anarchy reigned in the city; there was much bloodshed and the casualties are estimated at more than 100. The authorities were finally compelled to declare martial law and during several hours the troops raked the streets with rifle fire.

Gun Boat Joins Rebels.

Private advices reaching Nogales, Arizona, report that the commander of the two federal gunboats in Guaymas harbor espoused the insurgent cause. The boats were said to have turned their guns on the federal positions in Guaymas, declaring all of Ojeda's troops prisoners of the constitutionalists. General Ojeda was reported to have been boarding the boats at the time.

The Marshall board of commerce has petitioned the state Western Union Telegraph Co. to reinstate its office here. The offices were recently discontinued and it is necessary to telephone all messages for Western Union wires to Battle Creek.

Suffocating passengers of a Southern railway train stumbled blindly through a mile long tunnel when the engine, baggage and mail cars were derailed midway in the bore near New Albany, Ind.

William Killinger, who resides at Loranger on the Hauptman branch of the M. C. R. R., has been awarded a medal and $10 by the railroad company for discovering a broken rail, flagging a train and averting a serious accident. The train, in charge of Conductor Walsh, was going at the rate of 60 miles an hour when flagged.

WOMAN SURVIVOR OF BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG

That woman played a prominent part in the greatest battle of the Civil war that was fought just fifty years ago, is apt to be forgotten until a mute reminder such as is seen in the photograph is brought to our attention. Fifty years back is a long time to remember, yet here one of those who fought under the stars and bars, five decades ago, is greeting one of the women nurses and one of the few remaining ones whose husband was the comrade in arms of the grizzled old veteran.

SIDELIGHTS OF GETTYSBURG REUNION

The great reunion of the blue and the gray on the battlefield of Gettysburg has passed into history. It was in all respects the most unique gathering of the soldiers of the 60's ever held. Men who fought each other fifty years ago this year fraternized as long-separated brothers. Naturally such a gathering would be productive of many incidents, both pathetic and humorous. As many stories were floating about as there were veterans at the reunion.

The camp is full of unexpected meetings. Every day brings forth numerous meetings between men who have not seen one another for many years. Many are commonplace, but some are extraordinary. For instance, here is one:

I. D. Munsee of Erie county, Pennsylvania, a soldier in the 11th Pennsylvania, was captured by the confederates at Peachtree Creek, Ga., when he was one of Sherman's army on the celebrated march to the sea. He was being conveyed to the rear by a confederate soldier when the union batteries opened fire upon the party among whom he was a prisoner. The man who was guarding Munsee was hit and fell, knocking Munsee down and lying on top of him.

Seeing his chance of escape, Munsee lay very still under the unconscious confederate while the battle raged around them. That night he slipped from under the body and escaped to the union lines.

"I thought that fellow was dead," said Munsee, "but I saw him today. Poor fellow, his mind's bad, and he didn't recognize me, but I was sure of him. I couldn't even get his name, but I'm going over later to the Georgia camp and try to find out who he is."

Here is a story which was told by A. T. Dice, vice-president of the Reading railway:

Once upon a time there were a veteran in gray and a veteran in blue. They came to Gettysburg and in the course of events and visits to hotels they happened to meet. They looked over the sights of Gettysburg and the monuments of the field. But they found they must part.

The one in blue lived in Oregon; the one in gray in New Orleans. They went weeping together to their station and passed by train after train, deterring the parting that must come. Just what they said, just how they reached the final grand idea of the meeting, Mr. Dice did not know.

But, however, yesterday they finally decided that the time for parting had come. The one from Oregon could not figure how to reach home via New Orleans and his gray comrade, while willing to see the west, didn't have the money for a ticket.

They lined upon on the platform as their trains stood waiting and then before the crowd, they slowly stripped off their uniforms and exchanged them there while the curious looked on.

The Oregonian who came proudly to town with a coat of blue, went as proudly away with one of gray and the veteran from Louisiana who boasted the gray of the south sat with swelling chest in his new uniform of blue.

A striking contrast is seen in the menu provided for the soldiers fifty years ago and what they enjoyed this year:

1863—Breakfast—Hardtack, bacon, beans and coffee.

Dinner—Bacon, beans, hardtack and coffee.

Supper—Beans, hardtack, bacon and coffee.

1913—Breakfast—Puffed rice, fried eggs, fried bacon, cream potatoes, fresh bread, hard bread, butter and coffee.

Dinner—Fricassee chicken, peas, corn, ice cream, cake, cigars, fresh bread, hard bread, butter, coffee, iced tea.

Supper—Salmon salad, macaroni and cheese, fresh bread, butter and coffee.

Chief Clerk George G. Thorne of the state department at Harrisburg told of the call made by a Union veteran early on the morning of the fiftieth anniversary of the start of the battle, who related that his conscience troubled him because of the fact that on that fateful morning many years ago he had succumbed to temptation and stolen a quantity of onions from the Thorne garden, which was located near the historic Seminary ridge. He told Thorne that he desired, at this late date to pay for the onions and thus relieve his conscience.

Needless to say, his offer of money was refused, but the Thornes would like to learn the identity of the soldier who upset eight beehives in the dead of night and appropriated all the honey they contained.

A remarkable coincidence of the camp was the meeting of two men of exactly the same name, coming from towns of the same name, but in different states. One fought on the union side in the battle of Gettysburg, and the other with the confederates.

These two men are John Carson of Burlington, N. J., and John Carson of Burlington, N. C.

They met by the merest chance. The Jersey Carson was walking along one of the streets, and saw a man in gray. Just to be friendly, the Jersey man stopped him and gave him a greeting. It was not until they had talked for several minutes that they discovered their names were identical, as well as the names of their towns.

A grandson of Francis Scott Key, composer of "The Star-Spangled Banner," is here. He is John Francis Key, aged eighty-two, of Pikeville, Md., and he is a veteran of the Second Maryland Infantry of the confederate army.

Wearing a suit of gray, Key came into town, weak and almost drooping. He has been in failing health, but declared he was "going to see Gettysburg on this occasion or die."

One of the oldest veterans in the big camp is Captain W. H. Fleig of Houston, Texas. He was ninety years of age on his last birthday, February 23. During the war he served with distinction in the marine department of the confederate army. Captain Fleig is one of the best preserved men in camp and is more active than many of the other veterans a score of years less advanced.

Fifty years to the hour from the time when the first shot preceding the battle was fired a reunion meeting of the blue and the gray was held in the big tent. The gray cavalry men who fought the skirmishes that led up to the three days' fight pledged themselves in the shadows of the stars and stripes to "forget" and their brother in blue swore by the stars and bars that the fight was over for all time.

There were several women from the village in the tent and six one-time schoolgirls, gray-haired and aged now, sang "Rally 'Round the Flag, Boys," while the veterans wept like boys, but with pride. The six women who sang the battle song were among those who thronged the streets of Gettysburg after the advance guard of the southern army left it 50 years ago. On the night when Buford's men came riding into the village on the heels of Wheeler's men in gray, maidens strewed flowers along the streets and bells in the churches pealed out the news of the coming of the blue and the towz went wild.

Of all the scores of girls who welcomed the vanguard of Meade, only a half dozen could be found, and they stood, white-haired with tears in their eyes on a platform in the big tent and sang to the weeping soldiers in the seats below.

"I'm afraid we can't sing like we sang 50 years ago," said the matronly woman who acted as leader as she led the way up the steps to the platform.

"We don't care; just sing again," shouted the veterans. As the first notes of the war-time melody came from them in quavering tones, the veterans both of the north and of the south sat quiet with eyes fixed upon the singers. The hum of the chorus came from every side, and the old men wept openly.

Aside from the old soldiers themselves, an interesting figure is Mrs. Longstreet, widow of the commander at the front of the Confederate lines in the third day's battle. Mrs. Longstreet walked a mile through the broiling sun out to the old Rogers house to interview General Sickles.

Some time ago Mrs. Longstreet sent a long telegram as representing the southern veterans in protest against the old Union veteran being thrown in jail in New York because of some financial affairs. It was said that Sickles misunderstood the spirit and his pride was so hurt that their meeting today would not be cordial.

"General, I have written an article about you for publication," said Mrs. Longstreet at the meeting, and she read several pages of the highest tribute to the old corps leader, whom she characterized as having come back and being once again in the saddle. Half a hundred old Sickles' men gathered on the lawn and the reading became dramatic. General Sickles leaned back in his big chair, closed his eyes, and looked back to meeting with Longstreet.

Here his widow was praising to the world the valor which she claimed had gone unrecognized by the government. Tears flowed down the Sickles cheeks now fanned by his ninety-third summer, and his old followers doffed their hats and mingled their tears with those of their old leader, wetting the ground upon which long ago had been soaked by their blood.

James H. Lansberry of St. Louis, Mo., who enlisted in the Third Indiana cavalry from Madison, Ind., rectified to his comrades the details of his capture early on the morning of the fiftieth anniversary of the start of the battle, who related that his conscience troubled him because of the fact that on that fateful morning many years ago he had succumbed to temptation and stolen a quantity of onions from the Thorne garden, which was located near the historic Seminary ridge. He told Thorne that he desired, at this late date to pay for the onions and thus relieve his conscience.

Needless to say, his offer of money was refused, but the Thornes would like to learn the identity of the soldier who upset eight beehives in the dead of night and appropriated all the honey they contained.

A remarkable coincidence of the camp was the meeting of two men of exactly the same name, coming from towns of the same name, but in different states. One fought on the union side in the battle of Gettysburg, and the other with the confederates.

These two men are John Carson of Burlington, N. J., and John Carson of Burlington, N. C.

They met by the merest chance. The Jersey Carson was walking along one of the streets, and saw a man in gray. Just to be friendly, the Jersey man stopped him and gave him a greeting. It was not until they had talked for several minutes that they discovered their names were identical, as well as the names of their towns.

A grandson of Francis Scott Key, composer of "The Star-Spangled Banner," is here. He is John Francis Key, aged eighty-two, of Pikeville, Md., and he is a veteran of the Second Maryland Infantry of the confederate army.

Wearing a suit of gray, Key came into town, weak and almost drooping. He has been in failing health, but declared he was "going to see Gettysburg on this occasion or die."

One of the oldest veterans in the big camp is Captain W. H. Fleig of Houston, Texas. He was ninety years of age on his last birthday, February 23. During the war he served with distinction in the marine department of the confederate army. Captain Fleig is one of the best preserved men in camp and is more active than many of the other veterans a score of years less advanced.

VETERANS HEAR THE PRESIDENT

Mr. Wilson Delivers Address at Gettysburg Celebration.

DRAWS LESSON FROM BATTLE

Declares Great Army of the People Must Fight Peacefully to Perfect the Nation

Gettysburg, Pa., July 4.—National day in the semi-centennial celebration of the Battle of Gettysburg was made especially notable by an address delivered by President Woodrow Wilson. In his audience were many thousands of the veterans who fought in the great battle, as well as a great throng of other visitors.

The president's address followed: Friends and Fellow Citizens: I need not tell you what the battle of Gettysburg meant. These gallant men in blue and gray sit all about us here. Many of them met here upon this ground in grim and deadly struggle. Upon these famous fields and hillsides their comrades died about them. In their presence it were an impertinence to discourse upon how the battle went, how it ended, what it signified. But 50 years have gone by since then and I crave the privilege of speaking to you for a few minutes of what those 50 years have meant.

What have they meant? They have meant peace and union and vigor, and the maturity and might of a great nation. How wholesome and healing the peace has been! We have found one another again as brothers and comrades in arms, enemies no longer, generous friends rather, our battles long past, the quarrel forgotten—except that we shall not forget the splendid valor, the manly devotion of the men then arrayed against one another, now grasping hands and smiling into each other's eyes. How complete the union has become and how dear to all of us, how unquestioned, how benign and majestic, as state after state has been added to this great family of free men! How handsome the vigor, the maturity, the might of the great nation we love with undivided hearts; how full of life and confident promise that will crown its strength with glorious justice and a happy welfare that will touch all alike with deep contentment! We are debtors to those 50 crowded years, they have made us heirs to a mighty heritage.

Nation Not Finished.

But do we deem the nation complete, and finished? These venerable men crowding here to this famous field have set us a great example of devotion and utter sacrifice. They were willing to die that the people might live. But their task is done. Their day is turned into evening. They look to us to perfect what they established. Their work is handed on to us, to be done in another way but not in another spirit. Our day is not over; it is upon us in full tide.

Have affairs paused? Does the nation stand still? Is it what the 50 years have wrought since those days of battle finished, rounded out, and completed? Here is a great people, great with every force that has ever beaten in the life blood of mankind. And it is secure. There is no one within its borders, there is no one power among the nations of the earth, to make it afraid. But has it yet squared itself with its own great standards set up at its birth, when it made that first noble, naive appeal to the moral judgment of mankind to take notice that a government had now at last been established which was to serve men, not masters? It is secure in everything except the satisfaction that its life is right, adjusted to the utmost to the standards of righteousness and humanity. The days of sacrifice and cleansing are not closed. We have harder things to do than were done in the heroic days of war, because harder to see clearly, requiring more vision, more calm balance of judgment, a more candid searching of the very springs of right.

Tribute to Their Valor.

Look around you upon the field of Gettysburg! Picture the array, the fierce heats and agony of battle, column hurled against column, battery bellowing to battery! Valor? Yes! Greater no man shall see in war; and self-sacrifice, and loss to the uttermost; the high recklessness of exalted devotion which does not count the cost. We are made by these tragic, epic things to know what it costs to make a nation—the blood and sacrifice of multitudes of unknown men lifted to a great stature in the view of all generations by knowing no limit to their manly willingness to serve. In armies thus marshaled from the ranks of free men you will see, as it were, a nation embattled, the leaders and the led, and may know, if you will, how little except in form its action differs in days of peace from its action in days of war.

May we break camp now and be at ease? Are the forces that fight for the Nation dispersed, disbanded, gone to their homes forgetful of the common cause? Are our forces disorganized, without constituted leaders and the might of men consciously united because we contend, not with armies, but with principalities and powers and wickedness in high places. Are we content to lie still? Does our union mean sympathy, our peace contentment, our vigor right action, our maturity self-comprehension and a clear confidence in choosing what we shall do? War fitted us for action, and action never ceases.

Our Laws the Orders of the Day.

I have been chosen the leader of the Nation. I cannot justify the choice by any qualities of my own, but so it has come about, and here I stand. Whom do I command? The ghostly hosts who fought upon these battlefields long ago and are gone? These gallant gentlemen stricken in years whose fighting days are over, their glory won? What are the orders for them, who rallies them? I have in my mind another host, whom these set free of civil strife in order that they might work out in days of peace and settled order the life of a great nation. That host is the people themselves, the great and the small, without class or difference of kind or race or origin; and undivided in interest, if we have but the vision to guide and direct them and order their lives aright in what we do. Our constitutions are their articles of enlistment. The orders of the day are the laws upon our statute books. What we strive for is their freedom, their right to lift themselves from day to day and behold the things they have hoped for, and so make way for still better days for those whom they love who are to come after them. The recruits are the little children crowding in the mines and forests and fields, in the shops and factories. Every day something must be done to push the campaign forward; and it must be done by plan and with an eye to some great destiny.

How shall we hold such thoughts in our hearts and not be moved? I would not have you live even today wholly in the past, but would wish to stand with you in the light that streams upon us now out of that great day gone by. Here is the nation God has builded by our hands. What shall we do with it? Who stands ready to act again and always in the spirit of this day of reunion and hope and patriotic fervor? The day of our country's life has but broadened into morning. Do not put uniforms by. Put the harness of the present on. Lift your eyes to the great tracts of life yet to be conquered in the interest of righteous peace, of that prosperity which lies in a people's hearts and outlasts all wars and errors of men. Come, let us be comrades and soldiers yet to serve our fellow men in quiet counsel, where the blare of trumpets is neither heard nor heeded and where the things are done which make blessed the nations of the world in peace and righteousness and love.

GOING SOME

A ROMANCE OF STRENUOUS AFFECTION

BY REX BEACH

SUGGESTED BY THE PLAY BY REX BEACH AND PAUL ARMSTRONG

SYNOPSIS.

Cowboys of the Flying Heart ranch are heartbroken over the loss of their much-prized photograph by the defeat of their champion in a foot-race with the cook of the Centipede ranch. A house party is given at the Flying Heart. J. Wallingford Speed, cheer leader at Yale, and Culver, the Centipede inter-collegiate champion runner, are expected. Helen Blake, Speed's sweetheart, becomes interested in the loss of the photograph.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

"The Centipede crowd took their defeat badly on Frontier Day, and swore to get even."

"And was Humpy Joe defeated?" asked Helen.

"Was he?" Still Bill shook his head sadly, and sighed for a third time. "It looked like he was running backward, miss."

"But really he was only beaten a foot. It was a wonderful race. I saw it," said Jean. "It made me think of the races at college."

Miss Blake puckered her brows trying to think.

"Joseph," she said. "No, I don't think I have seen him."

Stover's lips met grimly. "I don't reckon you have, miss. Since that race he has been hard to describe. He passed from view hurriedly, so to speak, headed toward the foothills, and leaping from crag to crag like the hardy shamoock of the Swiss Alps."

Miss Blake giggled. "What made him hurry so?"

"Us!" Stover gazed at her solemnly. "We ain't none of us been the same since that foot-race. You see, it ain't the financial value of that Echo Photograph, nor the 'double cross' that hurts; it's the fact that the mangiest outfit in the Territory has trimmed us out of the one thing that stands for honor and excellence and 'scientific attainment,' as the judge said when we won it. That talking-machine meant more to us than you Eastern folks can understand, I reckon."

"If I were you I would cheer up," said Miss Blake, kindly, and with some importance. "Miss Chapin has a college friend coming this week, and he can win back your trophy."

Stover glanced up at Jean quickly. "Is that right, Miss Chapin?"

"He can if he will," Jean asserted. "Can he run?"

"He is the intercollegiate champion," declared that young lady, with proud dignity.

"And do you reckon he'd run for us and the Echo Photograph of New York and Paris, if we framed a race? It's an honor!"

But Miss Chapin recalled her brother's caution of the day before, and hesitated.

"I don't think he would. You see, he is an amateur—he might be out of training."

"The idea!" exclaimed Miss Blake. Indignantly. "If Culver won't run, I know who will!" She closed her lips firmly, and turned to the foreman.

"You tell your friends that we'll see you get your trophy back."

"Helen, I—"

"I mean it!" declared Miss Blake, with spirit.

Stover bowed loosely. "Thank you, miss. The very thought of it will cheer up the gang. Life 'round here is blacker in a spade fush. I think I'll tell Willie." He shambled rapidly off around the house.

"Helen dear, I don't want Culver to get mixed up in this affair," explained Miss Chapin, as soon as they were alone. "It's all utterly foolish. Jack doesn't want him to, either."

"Very well. If Culver doesn't feel that he can beat that cook running, I know who will try. Mr. Speed will do anything I ask. It's a shame the way those men have been treated."

"But Mr. Speed isn't a sprinter."

"Indeed!" Miss Blake bridled. "Perhaps Culver Covington isn't the only athlete in Yale College. I happen to know what I'm talking about."

"I don't think he will consent when he learns the truth."

"I assure you," said Miss Blake, sweetly, "he will be delighted."

CHAPTER III.

It was still early in the afternoon when Jack Chapin and the youthful chaperon found the other young people together on the gallery.

"Here's a telegram from Speed," began Jack.

"It's terribly funny," said Mrs. Keap. "That Mexican brought it to us down at the spring-house."

Miss Blake lost her bored expression, and sat up in the hammock.

"Mr. Jack Chapin," read the owner of the Flying Heart Ranch. "Dear Jack: I couldn't wait for Covington, so meet with brass-band and fireworks this afternoon. Have flowers in bloom in the little park beside the depot, and see that the daisies nod to me—J. Wallingford Speed."

"Park, eh?" said Fresno, dryly. "Telegraph office, water-tank, and a lousy"

catt'-chute. Where does this fellow think he is?"

"Here's a postscript," added Chapin. "I have a valet who does not seem to enjoy the trip. Divide a kiss among the girls."

"Well, well! He's stinging with his kisses," observed Berkeley. "Who is this humorous party?"

"He was a Freshman at Yale the year I graduated," explained Jack.

"Too bad he never got out of that class." It was evident that Mr. Speed's levity made no impression upon the Glee Club tenor. "He hates to talk about himself, doesn't he?"

"I think he is very clever," said Miss Blake, warmly.

"How well do you know him?"

"Not as well as I'd like to." Fresno puffed at his little pipe without remarking at this.

"Well, who wants to go and meet him?" queried Jack.

"Won't you?" asked his sister.

"I can't. I've just got word from the Eleven X that I'm wanted. The foreman is hurt. I may not be back for some time."

"Nigger Mike met me," observed Fresno, darkly.

"Then Nigger Mike for Speed," laughed the cattle-man. "I've told Carara to hitch up the plintos for me. I must be going."

"I'll see that you are safely started," said the young widow; and leaving the trio on the gallery, they entered the house.

When they had gone Jean smiled wisely at Helen. "Roberta's such a thoughtful chaperon," she observed, whereupon Miss Blake giggled.

As for Mrs. Keap, she was inquiring of Jack with genuine solicitude:

"Do you really mean that you may be gone for some time?"

"I do. It may be a week; it may be longer; I can't tell until I get over there."

"I'm sorry," Mrs. Keap's face showed some disappointment.

"So am I."

"I shall have to look out for these young people all by myself."

"What a queer little way you have of talking, as if you were years and years old."

"I do feel as if I were. I—I—well, I have had an unhappy experience. You know unhappiness builds months into years."

"When Jean got up this house-party," young Chapin began, absently. "I thought I should be bored to death. But—I haven't been. You know, I don't want to go over there."

He nodded vaguely toward the south.

"I thought perhaps it suited your convenience." His companion watched him gravely. "Are you quite sure that your sister's guests have not had something to do with this sudden determination?"

"I am quite sure. I never liked the old Flying Heart so much as I do today. I never regretted leaving it so."

"We've Got Another Foot-Runner."

much as I do at this moment."

"We may be gone before you return."

Young Chapin started. "You don't mean that, really?"

Mrs. Keap nodded her dark head. "It was all very well for me to chaperon Helen on the way out from the east, but—it isn't exactly regular for me to play that part here with other young people to look after."

"But you understand, of course—"

"Jean must have explained to you. Jean must have called away suddenly, and Mother was called back home. You surely can't get back now. You surely can't leave—"

"Chapin added: 'Why, you would break up happily. You see, there's no up Jean's party. Here to take your place.'"

"But—"

"Nonsense! This is an unconventional country. What's wrong with you as a chaperon, anyway? Nobody here even knows what a chaperon is. And here I'm back as soon as I can."

"Do you really think that I can help?" Roberta's eyes laughed humorously.

"I'm not thinking of the others. I'm thinking of myself," declared the young man, boldly. "I don't want you to go before I return. You must not! If you go, I—I shall follow you." He grasped her hand impulsively.

"Oh!" exclaimed the chaperon. "This makes it even more impossible. Go! Go!" She pushed him away, her color surging. "Go to your old Eleven X Ranch right away."

"But I mean it," he declared, earnestly. Then, as she retreated farther: "It's no use, I shan't go now until—"

"You have known me less than a week!"

"That is long enough. Roberta—" Mrs. Keap spoke with honest embarrassment. "Listen! Don't you see what a situation this is? If Jean and Helen should ever discover—"

"Jean planned it all; even this." Mrs. Keap stared at him in horrified silence.

"You do love me, Roberta?" Chapin undertook to remove the girl's hands from her face, when a slight cough in the hall behind caused him to turn suddenly in time to see Berkeley Fresno passing the open door.

"There! You see!" Mrs. Keap's face was tragic. "You see!" She turned and fled, leaving the master of the ranch in the middle of the floor, bewildered, but a bit inclined to be happy. A moment later the plump face of Berkeley Fresno appeared cautiously around the door-jamb. He coughed again gravely.

"I happened to be passing," said he. "You'll pardon me?"

"This is the most thickly settled spot in New Mexico!" Chapin declared with an artificial laugh, choking his indignation.

Fresno slowly brought his round body out from concealment.

"I came in to get a match."

"Why don't you carry matches?" Fresno puffed complacently upon his pipe. "This," he mused, as his host departed, "eliminates the chaperon, and that helps some."

Still Bill Stover lost no time in breaking the news to the boys.

"There's something comin' off," he advised Willie. "We've got another foot-runner!"

If he had hoped for an outburst of rapture on the part of the little group, man he was disappointed, for Willie shifted his holster, smiled evilly through his glasses, and inquired, with ominous restraint:

"Where is he?"

Being the one man on the Flying Heart who had occasion to wear a gun, Willie seldom smiled from a sense of humor. Here it may be said that, deceived at first by his scholarly appearance, his fellow-laborers had fished at Willie's affectation of a swing in holster, but the custom had languished abruptly. When it became known who he was, the other ranch hands had volubly declared that this was a free country, where a man might exercise a wide discretion in the choice of personal adornment; and as for them, they avowed unanimously that the practice of packing a Colts was one which met with their most cordial approbation. In time Willie's six-shooter had become accepted as a part of the local scenery, and, like the scenery, no one thought of remarking upon it, least of all those who best knew his lack of humor. He had come to them out of the Nowhere, some four years previously, and while he never spoke of himself, and discouraged reminiscence in others, it became known through those vague uncharted channels by which news travels on the frontier, that back in the Texas Panhandle there was a limping marshal who felt regrets at mention of his name, and that farther north were other men who had a superstitious dread of undersized cowmen with spectacles.

"This here is a real foot-runner," said Stover.

"Exactly," agreed the other. "Where is he?"

"He'll be here this afternoon. Nigger Mike's bringin' him over from the railroad. He's a guest."

"Oh!"

"Yep! He's intercollegiate champion of Yale."

"Yale?" repeated the near-sighted man. "Don't know's I ever been there. Much of a town?"

"I ain't never traveled east myself, but Miss Jean and the little yaller-haired girl say he's the fastest man in the world. I figured we might rib up something with the Centipede."

Still Bill winked sagely.

"See here, do you reckon he'd run?"

"Sure! He's a friend of the boss. And he'll run on the level too. He can't be nothin' like Humpy."

"If he is, I'll git him," said the cowboy. "Oh, I'll git him sure, guest or no guest. But how about the photograph?"

"The Centipede will put it up quick enough; there ain't no sentiment in that outfit."

"Then it sounds good."

"An' it'll work. Gallagher's anxious to trim us again. Some folks can't stand prosperity."

Willie spat unerringly at a grasshopper. "Lord!" said he, "it's too good! It don't sound possible."

"Well, it is, and our man will be here this evening! Watch out for Nigger Mike, and when he drives up let's give this party a welcome that'll warm his heart on the jump. There's nothin' like a good impression."

"I'll go on the job," assured Willie.

"But I state right here and now, if we do get a race there ain't a gold to be no chance of our losin' for a second time."

And Stover went on his way it spread the tidings.

COMMISSION WILL VISIT FARM SITES

SEVERAL COUNTIES WANT THE NEW HOME FOR EPILEPTICS.

GOVERNOR WILL NOT CALL A SPECIAL SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE

Roll of Members by Lansing Newspapers Showed Majority Do Not Favor the Call and Ferris Agrees

The farm colony epileptic commission have decided to visit the proposed sites for the establishment of a farm colony at Alpena, where Representative Rayburn offers 2,000 acres of uncultivated land at $12.50 per acre; the Hart farm at Wajamega in Tuscola county, and a site offered in Washtenaw county, near Ann Arbor, which is offered for $40,000.

After visiting these places the commission may visit other sites, according to what they find at these three.

One site submitted was from Ogemaw county, three miles from Rose City and nine miles from West Branch. This land can be had for $10 an acre, or $22 an acre if certain pine timber is reserved. Several buildings are on this site.

The legislature made an appropriation of $200,000 for the purchase of a site and the erection of suitable buildings. The commission is not considering any site where the land alone will cost over $75,000. At least 1,000 acres in a single tract is desired.

Masons Lay Corner Stone.

The Knights Templar commanderies of Marshall, Charlotte, Jackson and Kalamazoo, and the Masonic lodges of Marshall, Kalamazoo, Galesburg, Homer, Lansing, Jackson, Athens, Albion, Charlotte, Coldwater, Bellevue, Bedford, Burlington, Tekonsha, Olive, Hickory Corners, Climax, Parma and Pichland, were in Battle Creek to assist the Battle Creek commandery and lodge in laying the corner stone of the new Masonic temple, which will cost $75,000. The ceremonies began with a street parade at 11 a. m., and the corner stone was laid at high noon. Judge Walter H. North was master of ceremonies, and Grand Master Dr. Francis Clarke, of Flint, laid the stone. Past Grand Master Lodge and Carlton gave addresses.

Mine Companies Protect Employees.

An inspection of most of the mines of the Marquette range furnishes evidence that the mining companies are making special efforts and spending much money to protect the lives of their employees.

It is two years since the Cleveland Cliffs company and the Steel corporation took up the work, and their example has been followed by other operators, notably the Breitung interests. Substantial wire netting, securely held in position by guards made of pipe, is the commonest form of appliance to screen moving machinery.

"No Special Session," Says Ferris.

There will be no special session of the legislature next winter, says Gov. Ferris. The governor bases his statement on a canvass made by the Evening Press, of Lansing, which paper wrote a letter to every member of the legislature, asking him for his opinion as to the needs of a special session, and the replies received do not indicate that the members favor a special session. Some of the replies received are very emphatic against the calling of a special session, and a few do not express any opinion, saying it is up to the governor.

To Accommodate Visiting Officers.

Kalamazoo is to have a municipally-owned hotel for the accommodation of transient police and sheriff's officials.

The M. O. hotel will be a part of the new $40,000 police station which has just been completed, and is an original idea of Police Chief Strubbe and Capt. Fred Putnam.

On the second floor of the new station will be fitted up two adjoining rooms for the exclusive use of out-of-town officers on official business. In connection are private lockers and shower and tub baths.

SAME OLD SPELL

It Came Over the Girl at the Proper Time as It Always Has.

By J. V. SYMONS.

"Lucia, dear, I have some news for you," said little Miss Brett, taking her by both hands in her dressing room in the Imperial theater. "I am going to leave the stage."

"You, my dear! Why—why Prescott told me himself that he means to give you the star part in 'Under Two Flags' next month. You can't mean it, you who have won fame almost in a night."

"But that doesn't mean anything to me now," answered the girl, smiling. "You see," she added in a lower voice, "I am engaged to be married."

Lucia Clay kissed her warmly and chatted for quite five minutes, which was a big slice out of a busy woman's life. Then she watched her go down the draughty corridor and sank back into her chair and wept bitterly.

People would have been astonished if they could have seen Lucia crying. She was one of the big discoveries of the past two years. But she had worked hard for her success. Ten years of barren poverty and unproductive labor lay behind her. Cold as ice, they called her. Even in stage land, that prolific center of gossip, her name had never been associated with that of any man. And yet she had temperance, so that the fires now glowed where formerly they had blazed, and under an exterior that was faultlessly serene.

"There must have been big experiences in Miss Clay's life," said an old critic to his friend once.

There had been, the biggest of all experiences, because the most universal. She had been married and her honeymoon had lasted eleven days.

They had been days of delicious happiness both for herself and for the young painter, Lawrence Murdoch. It had been almost a runaway match, except that neither had anybody to run from. He was a scene painter, and had once been spoken of as a coming man in his profession. Lucia was then just a stage-struck girl. She had played the ingenue's part in one or two productions creditably, and they possessed two hundred dollars between them. On the strength of this they were married.

It was an old, eighteenth century cottage in which they had elected to spend their honeymoon. Lucia would remember every detail of it as long as she lived; the clematis over the door, the patch of everblooming roses, the perky sweet williams along the gravelly walk. And their happiness had been intense for eleven days.

Then Lawrence went away. He left no letter, offered no explanation. But that he took his possessions with him, Lucia would have feared he had met with foul play. She came home from an unsuccessful search for work to find the house empty. After a day and a night of agonized searching she discovered that he was staying at the house of a friend of his. She went there, fearless in her humility of love. The man refused her admittance. Lucia saw Lawrence at the window; their eyes met and he turned away. Then Lucia went home.

It was long afterward that she learned the cause of her husband's abandonment. He had followed her to the theater, with the intention of meeting her and taking her to lunch. He had seen her in another man's arms. The other man was old Colonel Brett, a lifelong friend, of whom she had not told Lawrence during their three weeks' engagement. Colonel Brett had been her father's comrade in the war and her guardian for a while; he had taken her father's place after his death. He had accompanied his daughter to the theater when the stage-struck girl insisted on seeking a part and, meeting Lucia there, too, the old fellow had broken down and cried.

Ten years had passed since then. She had heard little of Lawrence. She would never explain, and if he had learned—but he could not have learned, or pride would never have suffered the continuance of this hideous tragedy.

"The curtain's up, Miss Clay," announced the colored woman who assisted with the wardrobe. Miss Clay put the final touches to her make-up and joined the little group in the wings. It was a repertoire piece, one of those that are put on by the best companies at times, either during the dull season or for some special cause, such as to fill up an unexpected gap in the schedule. There had been only two rehearsals, for the company had played this often before, and the scenery had been completed only that morning, the properties—being lost somewhere in a tie-up in the middle west.

Lucia walked on the stage. She heard the applause of the audience as an accustomed thing, she glanced indifferently into the packed masses and bowed; and then she saw Lawrence's face, and he might have been her sole auditor, for everybody else was but a blur in the darkened auditorium.

She had never seen him since they parted. Now he sat in the third row of the parquet, but somehow the look on his face told her that his soul was hers, and that across the intervening years their spirits would leap together if only pride

China at Close Range

WE WERE standing at the end of the car, our arms laden with coats, umbrellas and cameras, awaiting the slowing down of our train at Tung Chow station, when vulgar impetus roughly impacted us against the door. Warner M. Van Norden writes in the New York Times.

Our friend, an enthusiastic first alder, smelling an accident, extricated himself from the press and hurried forward, only to find a poor bumpkin lying beside the train minus five toes. The engineer explained that this man had stood on the track, grinning at the locomotive, until toppled over by the cowcatcher, notwithstanding the frantic efforts of the fireman, who pulled the whistle rope with one hand and strewn coal on him with the other.

A peculiar thrill attends the "pulling out" from the railroad and the plunge into the interior. Even the old mules start more briskly at the first cracks of the whip. The jabbering of the bystanders and the snarling of the curs have the same exhilarating effect on the mental tension as the Chinese firecracker or the brass band on the German steamers.

Tung Chow claims the name of Port of Pekin, because it is the head of navigation on the small river which connects with the Grand canal. Before the railroad was built all of the

into a whirling column, twenty yards in diameter, standing for a moment with perfect perpendicularity. Then, little by little, it leaned forward, and like a great specter, it swept by us, passing so near that tangential particles struck us with incredible force. When a mile away it unwrapped its shroud and collapsed directly across our road. The donkey boy bent over, scooped up a handful of sand and tossed it to the dying wind. All was still.

Approaching a Buddhist Temple. Throughout the afternoon we were climbing, and by nightfall we found ourselves at a most charming Buddhist temple. Chinan Ling Miae is 1,200 feet above a wild gorge, on an overhanging rock, backed by a dense grove of cedars. The temple is five hundred years old and looks across to the great wall. What bloody scenes the priests of old must have witnessed from their watch tower as the rapacious invaders slaughtered their flocks below!

Thwing and I were armed with two letters from Pekin, which worked like magic. One was addressed to the general in charge of the forces which guard the Tung Ling, or eastern tombs, where the late empress dowager, Tsu Hsi, is buried; the other to the Tartar general at Jehol. When, therefore, we were within ten li of General Su's camp we sent forward

FLOWERS ADAPTED FOR DAINTY BOUQUETS

A Very Popular Plant Especially for the Use in the Trimming of Bouquets.

(By LAVILLA WRIGHT MACOMBER.) In visiting the sick, and making bouquets for decorative purposes, I was often hampered by the scarcity of flowers adapted to the making of a dainty, loosely arranged collection, until I tried raising some plants of the perennial Baby-Breath (gypsophila paniculata).

I wished to raise the plants from seeds, so procured a package and sowed the seed late in June in moist, sandy soil in the perennial border.

The seed was sown very thinly to avoid much transplanting, and it germinated quickly, the first year growing good stocky plants with fleshy roots. The soil in which they grew was sandy and well enriched with rotted manure, being kept moist throughout the hot months by a fine mulching which not only served to retain the moisture but prevented weeds from choking out the seedlings, as I had little time for weeding. Experience has taught me that such treatment is good for any strong-growing perennial plant.

The second year the Baby-Breath plants assumed a sprawling bush form, and were early white with tiny bits of bloom. Then I had no trouble in making nice bouquets, as the brilliant Gladiolus, Foxglove, Iris and Zinnias appeared more dainty combined with the airy Baby-Breath than when formed in stiff, heavy bouquets by themselves.

The flowers of the Baby-Breath are set irregularly on slender stems, the spreading stems lending just the right degree of looseness necessary to a tastefully arranged bouquet.

During the second summer the plants were not watered, but a heavy loose mulch of dead leaves and lawn clippings was kept around the roots to retain moisture from early rainfalls. In the fall the bed was allowed to drift full of leaves, where they remained until spring, those which had become rotted being left around the roots during the summer.

Perennial plants treated this way will bloom earlier and longer than when allowed to dry up during the hot days. The most important thing to remember in caring for perennials is to mulch heavily, that the dry heat of late summer may not sap the vitality of the plants and cause them to winter kill.

My border of Baby-Breath began blooming late in May and continued through the summer, the cut flowers lasting a long time. They not only furnished unlimited quantities of blossoms for bouquets, but helped with their profusion of white to tone down the more brilliant perennials, and made a pleasingly irregular border for the taller ones behind them.

The plants are extremely hardy, having remained in "unprotected borders for five years, not one having been winter killed. They have grown larger clumps each year, consequently producing more blooms.

PARCEL POST BIG THING FOR THE FARMER

The parcel post has taken the farmers by storm. They are using it in those days of bad roads to send small lots of produce to market, and in many cases where packages are too large for the mail, the rural route carriers are paid to take them. In the picture the carrier has added an extra wagon to meet the demands upon his capacity.

DEPTH OF SOIL TO ADD NITRATES

Roots of Plant Penetrate Far Into the Ground in Search of Necessary Food.

(By H. P. FISHBURN, Assistant Chemist, Idaho Experiment Station.)

When we speak of soil and soil problems we are supposed usually to take into account about the first foot or less. For the most crops it suffices to say that alfalfa adds nitrates to the soil, since most crops feed only on about the first foot.

For the deep-rooted crops this will not hold true. From analysis of several alfalfa tracts it was found that the first foot of soil was much richer in nitrates, but to depth of six feet, much poorer, on an average. In other words, alfalfa land is usually rich in nitrates in the first foot and poor in nitrates below the first foot, while land in other crops may be just the reverse.

The deep roots of the alfalfa plant penetrate far into the soil in search of food, while the nitrogen bacteria accompanying the plant are working in the top soil. In this way the nitrates are more concentrated in the top soil for the use of "succeeding

COVERED YARD SAVES MANURE

In Addition It Affords Exercise and Healthful Environment for Animals.

Professor Roberts, formerly of Cornell, was a strong advocate of covered barn yards for the conservation of manure. This system is advocated by Professor Frazier of the University of Illinois. Covered barn yards are sheds, with good roofs, with or without sides, and large enough to allow the cattle to move about freely. The bottom is puddled clay or cement. The manure removed from the barn is spread about, and sufficient bedding distributed over the surface to insure cleanliness.

The animals tramp the accumulating manure into a compact mass and keep it moist by their liquid excrement. This assures an excellent manure, with but slight losses of plant food. In addition it affords exercise and a healthful environment for the animals in severe weather. The plan has been tried by many dairy men, and is generally considered satisfactory. It is said that the cows keep cleaner than when stabled, and the milking barn is more sanitary.

Social Forms and Entertainments

A Magazine Bazar. Money making schemes are always in demand for church fairs, and this one, suggested by Julia Benedict, seems to me to be practical and would have a touch of novelty so requisite in these days when there seems to be scarcely anything new. I would suggest that each of the magazines represented should be written to (advertising manager) and see if a liberal commission would not be allowed on all subscriptions taken, and no doubt they would be glad to furnish posters and placards that could be used in the decorative part of the booths. They will also furnish subscription blanks. I have enlarged upon the idea, and individual committees must arrange to suit their convenience. Have "The Literary Digest" be the supper room, for to be a success a supper should be a part of the plan, and then let "Good Housekeeping" have all sorts of things for the house, like dustless dusters, ironing holders, utility bags, broom bags, wash cloths, kitchen aprons, etc. The dustless dusters are made of either white or black cheese cloth dipped in a preparation made of equal parts of kerosene and paraffin oil. Dip them and hang out doors to dry at least twenty-four hours before they are to be folded and put up in manila envelopes. They should sell for twenty cents.

"Table Talk" or "What to Eat" should have home made jellies, cakes, pies and candies for sale, and any other home made viands that will sell. Take orders for cakes, etc., to be delivered when needed. "The Woman's Home Companion" may have all sorts of sewing necessities—needle books, work baskets, cases of scissors, work bags, etc. For the "Ladies' World" the dainty lingerie, so dear to every woman's heart, handkerchiefs, filmy tea aprons and any other feminine belongings, such as bouffant caps, satin garters, fancy bags and bed pillows of finest white material made up over pink and blue satin slips.

"St. Nicholas" will have articles for Christmas with "Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus" and their assistants to take charge. Have evergreen trees, plentifully sprinkled with cotton and diamond dust, red candles and an abundance of tree ornaments. In fact, if it can be so arranged, it would be a good plan to have some of the articles for sale attached to the tree. "Little Folks" or any preferred magazine devoted to wee children should be the booth devoted to infants' wear, wee hot water bottles, prettily covered with pink and blue outing flannel or elder down will have a ready sale as well as fine wash cloths of cheese cloth feather stitched in silk. Lace and net bags filled with rolls of cotton, each tied with baby ribbon should sell for fifty or seventy-five cents, and they are most attractive. If a can of talcum powder is put on the bags with the cotton "fluffs" they should sell for a dollar. These are new and practical.

Have a tea room for the "Modern Priscilla," with girls in Puritan costumes to serve. Other magazines may be used if occasion demands.

A Hobby Party.

We all have hobbies, whether we ride the "horse" hard or not, there is always just some one thing we like to do or to have better than anything else; so to enliven a church social the entertainment committee asked each guest to wear an article to represent his or her favorite hobby. There was the boy who had the stamp collecting fever at its height, he appeared with a stamp for a scarf pin, another glued on to a huge ring as a setting, four or five glued to his coat lapel in lieu of a bouquet. The silk quilt worker had her frock plentifully patched with silk squares of the patterns she was making or desired to make and the would-be artist had water color and pen and ink sketches on her dress with a peaked hat made of water color paper which had marine scenes upon it.

The airship fiend had a miniature flying machine (found at the toy counter) worn around his neck and the golf suit. The sailor boy was in white duck with a "middy" cap and the young miss who was learning to cook carried a ring and chain from which dangled, spoons, egg beater, flour sifter, etc. It is needless to say that this was the merriest kind of a party, far different from the average church social. There was no lack of animated conversation and to make things more interesting when all sat down to refreshments, which were served at small tables, each one was asked to tell in two minutes the merits of his special hobby.

This meeting turned out to be quite an exchange not only of ideas, but of materials, for every one found out what the other fellow was interested in and some saved stamps and others silk pieces and others gave cherished recipes and all found even those whom they thought dull and stupid were most interesting when led to talk upon what was uppermost to them.

A Bachelor Girl's "Shower." Just because we are not married our lovers too long having tarried is no reason we can see.

Why we should not shower be! After this convincing rhyme came an invitation from "Polly" and her best girl chum who decided to keep house for the summer to come to their "moving in" party on the day and date given.

"Polly" said she didn't see why they should not have some of the fun experienced by engaged girls and brides and they needed just the self same things even though they were doomed (by choice) to single blessedness. It all turned out a very jolly affair. Pictures were put up, dishes unpacked, washed and put on the shelves of the tiny china closet. The guests brought sheaf paper, hammer and tacks, cans of delicacies for the "emergency" closet, broom bags and brooms and all sorts of articles that would go to make up a "miscellaneous shower." GENEROUS AT SMALL COST

Philanthropist's Right to Have His Name on List of Those Who Go About Doing Good.

At a banquet at San Francisco recently William F. McCombs told of a conversation in a club in which several philanthropic personages were mentioned and lauded to the skies. The conversation had gone to some length, Mr. McCombs said, when a man who was sitting in a corner arose with a merry smile fitting over his features and broke into the gabfest. "Your philanthropists are all right," he remarked, "but I think it is only fair that my next-door neighbor should be included in the kindly disposed bunch." "We are willing to add him to the list," responded one of the others, "but is he really so generously inclined?" "Well, I should say that he was," was the emphatic declaration of the first. "Dozens of tramps hammer at his back door and I have never known him to send one away empty-handed." "You don't mean it?" returned the second a trifle incredulously. "That's right," rejoined the first; "he always gives them a letter of introduction to me."

ECZEMA BURNED AND ITCHED

300 Walnut St., Hillsboro, Ill.—"My child had a breaking out on the lower limbs which developed into eczema. The eczema began with pimples which contained yellow corruption and from the child's clothing they were greatly irritated. They seemed to burn, which made the child scream when, resulting in a mass of open places. They made her so cross and fretful that it was impossible to keep her quiet. They caused her to lose much sleep and she was constantly tormented by severe itching and burning. "I tried several well-known remedies, but got no relief until I got a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, which did so much good that I got a large quantity that cured her in ten days after she had been affected for two months." (Signed) Mrs. Edith Schwartz, Feb. 28, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Whom She Preferred.

A lady suspected her two sons of carrying on a mild flirtation with one of the servants, a bonny Scottish lassie. In order to arrive at the truth of the matter she pressed the bell, and when the girl answered it spoke to her.

"Tell me, Jane," she said quietly, "which of my two sons do you prefer—James or Albert?"

"Weel, ma'am," replied the blushing Jane, "they are both nice, though I think of the two I prefer James; but for a real guid spree gie me the master."—London Tit-Bits.

VILLAGE OF PERRY SWEEP BY FLAMES

EIGHT BLOCKS DESTROYED BY FIRE WHICH STARTS IN ELEVATOR.

LANSING AND OWOSO SEND HELP.

Majority of Business Section of Town in Ruins—Loss Exceeds Two Hundred Thousand. Half Covered by Insurance.

The greater portion of the business section of Perry was destroyed by a fire which swept across the village in a path two blocks wide and four blocks long. Three-fourths of the business section was destroyed, including 30 stores and residences. The loss is estimated at more than $200,000, while the insurance will amount to between $50,000 and $100,000.

The fire started in Starks & Co's elevator by a spark from a passing Grand Trunk freight engine. The fire was whipped by a 25-mile wind, and several others nearby buildings were soon in flames. The local fire department was helpless and appeals were sent to Lansing and Owosso.

Lansing sent an engine and eight men by a special M. U. T. car and Owosso dispatched its chief and some chemicals. The Lansing men soon pumped all the cisterns in the village dry. A shift in the wind saved the rest of the town.

Two men were slightly injured. William Clough suffered a fractured arm by falling from a ladder and Martin Rann was slightly injured while moving goods from a store. Scores had a narrow escape when a gasoline tank in one of the stores exploded.

The Methodist and Baptist churches as well as a number of houses caught fire several times, but were extinguished by citizens. Frank Gillman, who was stationed on the roof of the M. E. church, saved the building no less than six times.

The bank was not wholly destroyed, but the interior was badly damaged.

Special Counsel Is Named.

The Western Fuel and Digs-Caminit cases, delay in prosecuting which resulted in the sensational resignation of United States Attorney McNab, will be tried by three special assistants to the attorney-general.

This word was received at San Francisco by Benjamin McKinley, acting United States attorney, from Attorney-General McReynolds. Matthews I. Sullivan, Thomas J. Roche, and Thomas E. Hayden were the special assistants named by the attorney-general.

"Mr. Sullivan," the telegram stated, "is to occupy the position of leading counsel."

Arctic Expedition From Boston.

The Arctic steamer Diana sailed from Boston the first Arctic expedition to set forth from that port in years.

Donald B. McMillan, heads the expedition. The vessel took on 10,000 gallons of oil, which will be used in operating the wireless and also for cooking purposes.

The wireless station of the expedition will be established at Flagler Fjord and it is expected that some wonderful results will be attained because the station will be north of the magnetic point of the pole.

English Statesman Is Dead.

The Rt. Hon. Alfred Lyttleton, member of the house of commons for St. Georges, Hanover square, is dead. He was born in 1857, the eighth son of the fourth Lord Lyttleton and Mary Glynn, daughter of Sir Stephen Glynn.

Alfred Lyttleton was famous as an athlete before he achieved political success. He helped to win many cricket matches in the '80s. His devotion to the game was the indirect cause of his death, for in spite of his 56 years, he played in the charity match of June 25, scoring 90 runs.

Marcia Dougherty, of Saginaw, lost most of her hair and sustained a badly burned arm as the result of catching her hair in the engine of a motor boat.

Steps are being taken for the construction of electric lines connecting Stambaugh, Spring Valley and Iron River with mining settlements north of the latter village.

Kenneth McGovern, a farmer, of Porter township, Midland county, was killed when his team became frightened by an automobile. McGovern was thrown out of his wagon and run over by it.

The heads of the west side schools of Saginaw, have arranged for a course in physical culture by which pupils in several of the grades will spend certain periods each week in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A.

The governors of five states, members of a number of distinguished personages will be at Mackinac Island July 15 to take part in the celebration of the one hundred and thirty-third anniversary of the occupancy of the old Fort Mackinac by the American troops.

NOTED PRISONER IS FREED

"Black Bart" Released After Twenty-Four Years Confinement and Complete Change in Character

"Black Bart" Holzmay, who was sentenced to Marquette prison in 1893 for life for highway robbery, was released after having served 24 years of his sentence. His criminal career was one of the most spectacular of any ever recorded in the United States. His release was made possible by legislation enacted two years ago, which extends the benefit of the parole law to convicts under life sentence.

Holzmay's exploits in the woods of Northern Michigan and Wisconsin rivaled those of Jesse James. He held up stage coaches and waylaid travellers. When received at the prison he was illiterate, ill-kept and gave the prison authorities much trouble. A surgical operation changed his character completely, and since then he has been a model prisoner, studying hard and gaining a good education. He will probably live with relatives in Northern Wisconsin.

Alexandra to Return to Society.

Queen Alexandra, who has been living quietly at Sandringham and Marlborough ever since the death of King Edward, but who is as bright and youthful looking a sever, has decided to take her rightful place in London society and will be giving a series of entertainments and especially a number of dances for her two grandchildren, Princess Mary and the prince of Wales, who have never attended any such functions under their parental roof.

Can't Borrow Army Engineers.

The interstate commerce commission will have to get along in its great task of making a physical valuation of railroads without the assistance of the army engineers unless congress can be induced to pass special legislation. The commission has asked for 12 army engineers to organize the investigation. The attorney-general has ruled that there is no warrant of law for such diversion of the engineers from their legal duties.

Frank McGuire, of Detroit, a Michigan Central engineer, was crushed about the hips when a freight train sideswiped a gravel train at Klein-schmidt's pit about four and a half miles west of Ann Arbor.

Rev. George H. Conagan has resigned a pastor of the Congregational church at Breckenridge, and will locate in the west.

The year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Bancroft, of St. Johns, was choked to death by a bean which lodged in his windpipe.

The extension of the Grand Trunk railroad from Bad Axe to Cass City has about been completed. Regular trains will probably not be run before August 18.

Fire destroyed the homes of Tom Wynne and Samuel Arnold, farmers living southwest of Alma. The total loss was $2,500. The fire originated from an overheated stove.

A heavy wind storm which struck Traverse City blew down a two-story concrete house, located three miles from town demolishing the structure except a portion of the south wall. The house was located on the farm of R. H. Evans. The loss is $1,500.

Walter Fritz, aged 14, was shot during a boy scout target practice at Gedvæn range near Muskegon. Young Fritz went to the target to examine it when Howard Addison, a companion about the same age, fired the bullet striking Fritz just above the heart. Physicians say he may recover.

LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

INDUSTRIAL BOARD REPORT SHOWS FATAL ACCIDENTS DAILY IN JUNE.

COST TO MANUFACTURERS IS $39,351.90.

Fish and Game Survey Made By State Warden Is Completed and Is Valuable to Sportsmen.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

The report of the industrial board for the month of June shows that there was a fatal accident for every day in the month. But 1153 non-fatal accidents occurred, a falling off from the May report. The report shows that 1,036 men are entitled to compensation out of the number injured. That the foreign born workman is furnishing the larger grist for the death mills in Michigan is indicated by the ten nationalities represented among the number killed.

Relative to the causes of fatalities R. L. Drake, secretary of the industrial accident board, says: "The causes of fatalities among Michigan's industrial army are as diverse as they are unusual as the accidents themselves. Public utility corporations reported four deaths, three of which resulted from contact with live wires. The fourth death was caused by a collision between a freight car and a lineman's car on an electric railway. In one instance a man was killed by attempting to clean bark from a machine, another by a falling limb. The copper mining industry is credited with an unusual number of accidents. In one instance reported an epileptic was found dead. He was lying across a water tank with his head and throat under water."

"Twenty-one fatal accidents between June 1 and 30 will cost Michigan manufacturers $39,351.90 with the interest at five per cent for five years deducted. If the compensation were distributed over a period of 300 weeks the compensation would total $44,793. An average of four dependents are left to divide approximately $2,133 compensation accruing in each case, if payments are distributed over the 300 weeks, of $1,873.90 if the payments are made in a lump sum."

"If the same per centage holds good, and it is safe to use them as a fair approximation, the 327 fatal accidents which have been reported in the ten months during which the Act 10, Public Acts 1912, has been in effect have cost Michigan industries $57,697,491, or nearly three quarters of a million dollars. The obligation in most cases extends over a period of almost six years."

Dealers in school books in various parts of the state are writing to Superintendent of Public Instruction L. L. Wright and expressing their opinion of the King textbook bill passed at the last session of the legislature, in terms easily construed to mean that they are not at all in sympathy with its provisions. In the first place, the bill requires that all school book publishers file sample copies of their books with the superintendent of public instruction, and the retail dealers are prohibited from selling them at a price exceeding 15 per cent of the wholesale cost as listed with the state department.

Section eight of the bill provides: "School districts are hereby authorized to purchase textbooks from the publishers at prices listed with the state superintendent of public instruction as hereinbefore provided and to designate a retail dealer or dealers to act as the agent for the district in selling text books to pupils. The said dealer or dealers shall at stated times make settlement with the district for such books as have been sold up to the stated time. Said dealer or dealers shall not sell textbooks at a price which shall exceed a ten per cent advance on the net wholesale price as listed with the state superintendent of public instruction."

There is no provision in the law relative to the sale of second hand books and many dealers have written to Supt. Wright to learn whether it will be possible for them to make more than 15 per cent profit on textbooks that have been already used.

The store room provided by the board of auditors for the storage of the sample copies of books sent by publishers from all parts of the country, already resembles a good sized library and it is stated that there will probably be 15,000 books on the shelves when all publishing houses selling books in Michigan have complied with the law.

State Game Warden William R. Oates has completed through the assistance of his deputies in the various counties of the state, a fish and game survey which will be hailed with delight by the nimrod and anglers who frequent the woods and streams of Michigan.

It is the first time in the history of the department that such a proposition has been attempted and the work is so complete that Warden Oates is highly elated over the results obtained. Each deputy was assigned a county and asked to make an estimate of the number of deer, giving the sections and townships most frequented by the animals. They were asked to give the evidence of destruction by wolves and other causes and to estimate whether the deer are increasing or decreasing. Almost without exception the reports show that the deer are decreasing.

The same questions were asked relative to beaver, partridge, quail, prairie chickens, squirrels, rabbits, duck and game fish. The deputies were also asked for their opinions as to how the present game laws are working out in the localities they visited.

Almost without exception the deputies favored a shorter season for deer and a law protecting does. The last legislature shortened the deer season so that this year the hunters will have the right to kill deer from November 10 to November 30 inclusive. Last year the season opened ten days earlier. The new law also prohibits the killing of more than one doe. Deer licenses cannot be obtained under the new law until five days before the opening of the season. In former years the department has experienced considerable trouble from hunters who secured their licenses two or three weeks before the opening of the season and then went into the woods and killed deer which they concealed until after the opening of the season.

For the first time in 22 years Michigan has a democratic insurance commission and a democratic commissioner of labor. The two democratic appointees of Gov. Ferris, Labor Commissioner James V. Cunningham, of Detroit, and Insurance Commissioner Jean T. Winslow of Saginaw, have assumed their new duties.

The republicans of Michigan gain a little comfort from the fact that Frank Rogers, who was recently elected for a term of four years, became state highway commissioner. Rogers has been deputy highway commissioner under Townsend Ely for four years and is familiar with the duties of his new office. Ever since the establishment of the state highway department the salary of the commissioner has been $2,500 per year, but the last legislature increased the salary to $3,500 and Rogers will get the benefit of the $1,000 increase.

The desk of Insurance Commissioner Winslow was covered with flowers from admiring friends in various parts of the state and hundreds of letters of congratulation and many telegrams were delivered to Winslow. Samuel Robinson of Charlotte, the new deputy fire marshal was at his desk early.

Michigan's 453 state banks and six trust companies show a gain of $5,361,008.14 in aggregate business since the report of April 4, according to statistics compiled by Banking Commissioner E. H. Doyle.

At the close of business June 4 the loans and discounts in the commercial and savings departments amounted to $155,591,849.90, while the bonds, mortgages and securities totaled $155,161,563.08. Since the April report commercial deposits have increased $2,407,751.95. There has been an increase in savings deposits of $1,776,705.77. Compared with the corresponding report of June 4, 1912, the commercial deposits have increased $5,343,245.95 and the savings deposits $12,063,813.03, making a total increase in deposits during the past twelve months of $17,947,058.98. In the past year the loans and discounts of both the commercial and savings departments, together with the bonds and mortgages, amount to $24,478,934.73.

The total reserve maintained by Michigan state banks and trust companies on June 4, 1913 was $63,483,194.47 or 19.01 per cent. The total cash reserve amounted to $23,805,191.48 or 7.13 per cent. These reserves are divided as follows: Savings legal reserve $35,780,678.41 or 16.63 per cent; savings cash reserve $12,504,653.17 or 5.81 per cent; commercial legal reserve $27,702,516.06 or 23.33 per cent; commercial cash reserve $11,311,537.77 or 9.52 per cent. The total reserve carried by Michigan state banks is therefore, $12,711,319.04 over the requirements of the banking law.

Based on savings deposits of $215,112,181.69, the law requires mortgage and bond investments of at least $107,598,901.96. The above abstract shows that the mortgage and bond investments exceed the savings deposits by $5,349,071.69.

Contracts for New Buildings.

The Central school building to be erected at Ironwood, metropolis of the Gogebic iron range, to replace a structure destroyed by fire last February, will cost $121,500. This figure does not include the furniture and furnishings for the 23 rooms. Contracts for various parts of the work have been awarded to Duluth, Milwaukee, Ironwood and Chicago concerns. The building is to be completed by July 15, 1914.

A contract for the erection of the eighteenth cottage at the state hospital at Newberry has been awarded by the board of trustees. The structure will cost approximately $50,000. It will be 100 by 80 feet and two stories high. The construction will be fire proof throughout. The board of education at Negaunee, Marquette range has awarded a contract for the construction of a manual training building. The school will cost $30,000.

CLOSE TO NATURE'S HEART

One of the Boons Granted to Farmers for Which the City Man Will Grope in Vain.

On evelin's when the southern breeze comes soft an' sweet an' mild, just elligin' an' carressin' like the fingers of a child, it brings a kind of longin' to a feller's heart to be at peace, an' feelin' full of love t'wards all humanity; it thaws out all the hardness an' the spite he's stored away an' charged 'gainst some that's wronged him, to be used some other day; it makes him mild an' yieldin' so he hardly could refuse a favor to most any one even if he knows he'll lose.

The birds an' beasts are matin' an' the trees an' growin' things are spread with all the soft new life an' beauty summer brings. It all acts like a tonic—lightens up a feller's heart; it brightens up old friendships an' helps new ones get a start; it helps a feller see the work of his Creator's hand; he gets a glimpse of mightiness that man can't understand—that is, if he's a farmer with a real farmer's heart—when the mild, sweet southern breezes of the early summer start.—Christian Herald.

Bees Addicted to "Dope."

Just add this one to all the queer things that have happened in the year of grace 1913 and believe it's true, because W. E. Baker, deputy auditor of the state of Ohio, says he can prove it.

The honey bees near Fostoria, which is Baker's home town, have contracted the opium habit. Like the Chinese, they get theirs from the poppy. Baker and many other residents of Fostoria grow oriental poppies.

The bees have found this out, and of late they are leaving acres of clover blossoms to hunt out the poppy beds. They work very vigorously for an hour or so and then fall to the ground apparently as stupefied as are opium smokers after "hitting the pipe."—Fostoria (Ohio) dispatch to New York Sun.

Charles Hyzer, Madison St., Chel-

while living in Ypsilanti I was a sufferer from kidney trouble. I had backache and pains through my kidneys that made my work hard. If I stooped I couldn't straighten again.
Finally a friend who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results told me to try them. I did so and they soon gave me relief. Three boxes cured me."

The historical retreat of Napoleon's army from Moscow in 1812, reconstructed with the aid of ten thousand soldiers of the Imperial Russian Army. Every phase of the epoch-making incident is shown with an accuracy which makes this production
one of the most remarkable motion pictures ever released. The burning of Moscow after Napoleon's arrival, and the pathetic plight of the retrograding army are re-enacted in all the grim tragedy of war.The scenes were photographed on the actual sites of their original settings, and the ensembles were modeled after the famous paintings by Verestchaguine.This thrilling war photo-play in two reels will be shown at the Princess on Saturday evening. One other reel, a comedy, will also be shown.The New Farm Laws.Among the many enactments of the state legislature just closed were the following that relate to the agriculture interests of Michigan.Providing that buyers of cream and butter, who own a string of stations, must not pay more at one point for these products than at another with the idea of crushing competition.To regulate the packing and crating of fruit and vegetables with the idea of preventing deception on customers.Requiring all farm and orchard produce commission merchants to secure a license from the state dairy and food department to do business.
Giving the commissioner authority to cancel a license and put any such merchant out of business who isn't doing business on the square.Requiring all applicants for certificate to teach in district school must undergo an examination in agriculture as well as other subjects before the county school commissioners.To allow the formation of country agricultural department and employ county agricultural experts to work among farmers. A majority of the electors must first sanction the creation of such a department.Making mandatory, instead of optional, on board of supervisors to submit, when a specified percentage of the taxpayers sign the request, to a proposition to build and maintain a county agricultural college.Bite of a Centipede.
Jeff Fitch has had about the closest
call of his life the last few days.
About one week ago, while sleeping in his bachelor quarters, he felt something bite him and after applying some turpentine he thought no more of it.A day or two later the wound began to swell and in a short time Fitch was a very sick man. He was removed to the home of Chris Powell, where for a time it was feared he would not recover. A search of the room where Fitch had been sleeping revealed a dead centipede upon the floor back of the bed, where it had fallen when the half-awakened man had crushed his tormentor. Fitch is now said to be out of danger, although far from recovered.—Arizona Republican.T. R. Says Emma Must Marry.
At a recent dinner given to the writers who donated their services to the Bull Moose campaign were three women: Edna Ferber, Elsie Haines Gilmore and Jessie C. Smith. All of them had to speak. It is reported that earlier in the year Miss Ferber had a conversation with the chief Bull Moose, who addressed her somewhat
as follows: "Miss Ferber, Emma Mc-Cheaney MUST marry; she is a young woman still, not more than thirty-six or so, is she? Marry her off; she ought to have two children; that young son of hers don't amount to much, but I think he is going to come out all right. Glad he is going to college; do him good. I like the way
Mrs. McCheaney solves her sociological problems." —Exchange.Notice to Taxpayers.The tax roll of the Village of Chel-

ed children into healthy, happy youngsters, by ridding them of worms. Tossing, rolling, grinding of teeth, crying out while asleep, accompanied with intense thirst, pains in the stomach and bowels, feverishness and bad breath, are symptoms that indicate worms. Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, expels the worms, regulates the bowels, restores your children to health and happiness. Mrs. J. A.
Brislin, of Elgin, Ill., says: "I have used Kickapoo Worm Killer for worms. I would not be without it."

S. ANNA O'NEILL, Register.Notice of Mortgage Sale.Whereas Anna Gabel and Katharina Gabel, his wife, of the township of Augusta, Washtenaw county, and state of Michigan, made and executed a certain mortgage, bearing date the 27 day of October, A. D. 1888, to Leonard H. H. H.
trustee, of the said county, which was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Washtenaw on the 31st day of October, A. D.
1888, at 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon in Liber
72 of mortgages on Page 321.
And whereas the said mortgage has been duly assigned by the said Leonard H. H. H. trustee to Frederick Schneider, by assignment bearing date the 29th day of November, A. D. 1888, and recorded November 21st, 1888, at 4:45 o'clock in the forenoon in Liber 10 of mortgages on page 81.
And whereas the said mortgage was further assigned by the said Frederick Schneider to the Thompson Home for Old Ladies, a Michigan
Corporation, of Detroit, Mich., by assignment bearing date the 15th day of November, A. D.
1912, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in Liber 16 of mortgages, on page 66,
December 21st, 1912, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon,
whereby the said mortgage is now owned by the said Thompson Home for Old Ladies.
And whereas the amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage is the sum of $250.00, and no suit or proceedings has been instituted at law
by or on behalf thereof, and whereas default
has been made in the payment of the money secured by said mortgage, whereby the power of sale contained therein has become operative.
Now therefore, notice is hereby given that, by virtue of said power of sale, and in pursuance thereof, and of the interest of such estate as may be claimed, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, at the south front door of the court house, at the city of Ann Arbor, in said county, that being the place of holding the circuit court within said county, on
