DROWNED IN CAVANAUGH

Arthur Haab Lost His Life—Two Ladies

Rescued by Chas. Newton-M. Brooks Recovers Body of Deceased Man. Arthur Haab, of Lima, was drowned

at Cavanaugh Lake about five o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Haab was fishing at the north end of the lake, accompanied by his wife and her sister, Mrs. Martha Weinmann. Both women were on one side of the boat and Haab on the other when one of the women caught a fish and Mr. Haab went to her assistance overturning the boat. .

Charles Newton and George Smith were out in the Newtow launch and thought the party were in swimming but noticed that the women seemed to come up under the boat, and Newton thinking this strange reversed the engine and went toward the party. When about twenty-five feet from the wreck he became convinced that the people were in danger and dived in. He succeeded in getting one of the ladies and then found the other entangled around the neck by an anchor rope, which not being able to loosen he finally cut and rescued the drowning woman. Mr. Haab in the meantime had floated away and the women being unconscious Newton and Smith put to shore with them.

After the party reached shore it regired nearly half an hour to revive Mrs. Weinmann, but Mrs. Haab was brought too in a short time. Dr. R. S: Armstrong was one of the rescue party who left the camp grounds and directed the work of reviving the two ladies. Drs. S. G. Bush and G. W. Palmer arrived at the lake shortly after accident and assisted in the work.

body of Mr. Haab about one hour after the accident. The physicians made every effort possible to revive the drowned man but their efforts were without avail.

Mr. and Mrs. Haab reside on the farm of L. Yager, jr., in Lima and on Monday of this week a party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Haab and children, Mrs. Wienmann and children, Jacob Hinderer and son Walter, of Lima, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Laros, cottage of J. W. Schenk. Mr. Haab's body was taken to his home this forenoon. No inquest was held.

Mr. Haab was born in Freedom and would have been 30 years of age October 8, 1913. He was united in marriage with Miss Clara Hinderer about 6 years ago, and is survived by his wife, two sons, his mother, two sisters, Mrs. C. Grau and Mrs. Landwill probably be held from there.

INSPECTED THE ROADS!

County Road Commissioners Laying out Work for Next Year.

For several days of the past week County Road Commissioners Bilbie, Detling and Schultz have been making an inspection of the highways in this vicinity.

During the last session of the legislature plans for numerous trunk lines that will be built with state aid in various parts of Michigan were outlined and the proposed trunk line that will go through Chelsea, as called for by the plans that were submitted to and approved by the legislature, provides for a 25-foot roadway and will follow the territorial road from the west to Wilkinson's corners where it turns on to south Main street and follows it into Chelsea, thence to Dexter village and on east to Ann

The Commissioners, it their suggestions are followed, would make a change in the plans that would materially cut down the cost of construction. Instead of following the territorlal road over the short hills to the Wilkinson corners, they would brachh off just east of Sylvan Center and follow the short cut that is used at present and this route would do away with the expeuse of cutting down the hills. The highway from the point east of Sylvan Center, where the suggested change would take place, into Chelsea is in good condition and would require the least work to be put into

On the other hand, the road as proposed coming straight through over the territorial road to Wilkinson's corners, would cut off some very dangerous railroad crossings, which would more than overcome the added cost of the work on the hills.

The Commissioners propose when products. It is a chemical poison that the work is started, to do an equal no amount of heat will destroy. EXPERT SAYS HIGH BACTERIA IN MILK GENERALLY MEANS NOTHING.

MILITIA IN STRIKE REGION COSTS $12,000 PER DAY.

Attorney General Holds That the Fifty-Four Hour Law For Women Does Not Cover Restaurants and Cafes.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Dr. Ward Giltner, acting professor of bacteriology and hygiene at the M. A. C., declares that a high bacteria count in milk generally means nothing. He says: "A high count may be secured even in better dairies, but a high count is not indicative of danger. On the other hand a low count may not mean safety. Conclusions should not be drawn from a single sample. It takes two days to make a bacterial count and in the meanwhile the milk is consumed. A producer may have filthy milk but he can keep the bacteria count down by keeping his milk ice cold.

"Every city in the state should have an ordinance that required not only a personal inspection of all dairies by its health inspector, but would have a municipal ruling like that of the city of Flint which requires the tuberculin test of every dairy herd that supplies milk to such city. At Flint 1,200 cows were tested for tuberculosis and 50 were found to be affected. An impure milk supply is dangerous to public health and especially a supply secured from a tubercular afficted herd.

"Man must be classified with the list of animals that are notably susceptible to the bovine type of bacilli. We have plenty of evidence to show that market milk contains tubercle bacilli in from five to ten or more per cent of samples examined. While we have a very limited amount of data upon which to base any very general conclusions, we are confident that Michigan has tuberculosis in her cattle in all parts of the state and that milk from these cattle is being sold to creameries and cheese factories and for direct human consumption. Much of this consumption is by infants, the most susceptible to bovine type of bacilli. We have found sections of the state where the conditions are On numerous occasions we have found cows reacting for the tuberculin test and immediately partaken of their milk along with the owner's family.

"In regard to the count, milk may have as high as a billion bacteria to the cubic centimeter and yet be safe as the germs are lactic germs, one of the good and harmless germs. All milk, no matter from how sanitary or clean a dairy, is contaminated to a certain extent. But bacteria count means nothing without an inspection of the source of the milk supply and a tuberculin test. The inspection should be done by a man who understands his business and should not be governed by politics. the state labor department. -The inspector should have a score card system and should compare the score with the count, for the bacteria count is not altogether worthless. A score card indicates every condition at the dairy: health of the cattle and men milking them, comfort of the beasts, isolation of the sick, location of stable and water supply, ventilation, feed, pasture and condition of the barnyard, milking utensils, condition of milker's hands, handling of the milk and protection during transportation.

"Publicity should be given to the dairyman's score card rather than to the bacteria count, for it is the score card that tells the tale of contamination. The count will aid some, but is not to be compared to the importance of the conditions at a dairy. The tuberculin test, however, is a most important thing and should be compulsory by every city's ordinance. Whatever may be the relation of bovine tuterculosis to human health directly, we know that there is a bovine tuberculosis problem in Michigan which must be dealt with at least as an economic problem. I find that the cattle owner can be appealed to from the standpoint of personal and financial interest in this connection and that great care must be exercised when dealing with the milk producer purely from the public health standpoint.

A humber of wholesale bakers and many Michigan housewives are complaining of-"slimey" bread, some samples of which have been sent to the bacteriological department of the M. A. C. for analysis. The so-called "slime" exists in the center of the loaf and is caused by a sporuliferous growth, the germ of which is generally in the yeast and not in the flour as some wholesale bakers have found to their financial loss after throwing away or sending back barrels of flour to various mills. Although not creating a very appetizing appearance, the germs are harmless. They have their uses as they make the cores of the June bride's biscuit quite pliable. The germ is not killed by boiling water as has been demonstrated but station.

will not grow in the low temperature. When "slimey" bread appears the best method, say the scientists of ridding oneself of the condition, is to destroy all yeast and thoroughly sterilize all pans or utensils in which former bakings have been done.

There was a balance of $6,693,-738.32 in the state treasury when the vaults were opened for business August 1, but this amount shrunk, considerably during the next few days as more than $4,000,000 was paid out of the primary school fund.

The general fund contained $2,797, 399.15 which is available for immediate use, but State Treasurer Haarer says that the expense of maintaining the state troops in the copper country is making a big hole in the general fund, and with the constantly increasing expense state officials fear that the strong box will be empty before the first of the year.

During the last session of the legislature a bill was passed which exempts counties from the expense of maintaining the state militia and places the burden on the whole state. This money is not paid from the military fund but comes from the general fund of the state. Therefore, as far as the tax levy is concerned the maintenance of the state troops in the uppeninsuia is costing the people of the copper country no more than the taxpayers of the lower peninsula. The estimated cost of keeping the militia in the copper country is $12,500 per

Secretary of State Martindale is doing a lively business in automobile licenses as they price was reduced from $3 to $1.50 and the cut rates will be in effect for 1913 plates until January 1, when every machine will be taxed according to horsepower.

Many automobile owners who purchased their machines during the previous week waited until August 1 in order to get the reduced rates. Already more than 50,000 automobile licenses have been issued in Michigan this year and Secretary Martindale believes that at least 5,000 more will be issued before the first of the year.

Labor Commissioner Cunningham will be unable to prosecute proprietors of restaurants and cafes who make their women employes work more than 54 hours a week, as Attorney General Fellows has rendered an opinion to the effect that these place do not come under the provisions of the 54 hour law for working women.

J. H. Nield, Lansing, is the promoter of an experiment in the training of high school students that is being watched with interest by educators all over the country. Lansing is the only city in the state to provide an industrial co-operative course for the students. The aim is to meet the needs of the boy who wishes to become competent and efficient as a tradesman; and any boy who has an eighth grade education may take up the work on this course. It is of four years duration. The first is all devoted to school work. The second and every year thereafter the boys work in pairs; one being at school and his mate at the shop. These students alternate weekly. No boy is allowed to continue a trade unless he shows his interest in it at all times.

A salary is given to the boys for the time they put in at the shop. The first year they receive 10 cents an hour, and they are raised to 12 1-2 cents in the second year, while in the third year they are given 15 cents an hour. By working steadily boys may make several hundred dollars, placing some on a self-supporting basis.

Attorney-General Fellows held that a child under 12 years of age may be sentenced to the industrial school by the judge of probate without a hearing in the justice court, unless the offense be a felony. In another opinion the attorney-general held that it is not mandatory that officers of rural school boards be elected annual-

Preceded by a man carrying a huge American flag and flanked by young girls in patriotic costumes, she marched up the street between two huge miners. She looked older and feebler in the street than in the sleeper. All along the line the strikers bared their heads as she passed, and there was some occasional cheering. ORDERS OF INTERSTATE COM-MERCE COMMISSION WILL CUT REVENUE.

ESTIMATED COST TO COM-PANIES $26,000,000.

Greatest Reduction Is Made on Small Parcels Going Short Distance-To Become Effective October 15th.

Reductions in express rates which will cost the companies fully $26,000,-000 a year-approximately 16 per cent of their gross revenue, were ordered by the interstate commerce commission to become effective on or before October 15, 1913.

Notable reforms in practices also were ordered.

The most important change prescribed by the order is by way of scale of parcel rates. One hundredpound rates for short distances either have been left unchanged or slightly reduced; for longer distances they have been lowered; for 50 pounds or less all rates have been practically reduced. For packages more than four pounds going more than 200 miles and less than 2,000 the new express rates are generally lower than the parcel post rates; for more than

ECZEMA ON ENTIRE SCALP

R. F. D. No. 2, Sunfield, Mich.—'I was troubled with eczema. It began with a sore on the top of the scalp, broke out as a pimple and grew larger until it was a large red spot with a body, the limbs and back and in the ears. These sores grew larger gradually until some were as large as a quarter of a dollar. They would itch and if scratched they would bleed and smart. The clothing would irritate them at night when it was being removed causing them to itch and smart so I could not sleep. A watery fluid would run from them. My scalp became covered with a scale and when the hair was raised up it would raise this scale; the hair was coming out

You have all heard of the man who was so "rattled" when he found that -his house was on fire that he grabbed a costly mirror and threw it out of an upstairs window and then carried a feather bed down stairs. He wanted to save something. When the fire comes, you are liable to be as "rattled" as this man was. You'll never think of the money in the house, so don't keep it there. Put it in a bank where it is secure. It is the only safe plan.

HOT WEATHER DRINKS.

During the hot weather there is creat demand for cooling drinks, and we prefer those made at home with materials which are unquestionable, ather than many which are served in bottles or at the fountains. In the following, there surely will be found one which will suit the palate of all:

McQuire languidly watched the smoke curl from his cigar, play in weaving circles about his shapely face and head, then float off to the realms of pipe dreams. Presently a dreamy, satisfied smile stole into his blue eyes. He was so sure of her truth, integrity and love for himself. Adorable Lora. He was hastening back to her and their wedding day at steamer speed.

The half closed door of his room let in the sound of voices. It was Ed Rainey and Tom Larkin. McQuire had run into them somewhere abroad. They were coming home on the same steamer.

"Gone, gone bad, isn't he?" Rainey was saying. "Believes that Lora is innocence personified. Doesn't know that she's a good five years or more older than himself. Don't guess that she's out to marry a fortune. Don't know that she's, in turn, been sweetheart to all of us, or anything of that affair of hers and Lambert's, does he?"

McQuire's cigar dropped from his parted lips. The red leaped in an ugly flame to his face. They were talking, these friends of his, of the girl he was to marry. His right hand opened to slap little Rainey fair in his calumniating mouth. Larkin's answer came slowly, between puffs at his pipe: "McQuire is young. She isn't good enough for him, that's only too true. But Rainey the girl was only a little reckless, too much of a ant-a rather new country girl-in flirt. Nothing worse. "Lora would not marry any man unless he brought her gold?" Rainey still persisted. "Oh, you need not worry about shutting the door; Mc-Quire is on the deck. I saw him go up an hour ago."

McQuire fidgeted and worried about his cabin for an hour after. Not a doubt of Lora's love edged itself in his girl: mind. No one but himself had ever possessed her heart. Of that he was After awhile the plan he would work to confute these friends came crowding itself into his head. It was neither new or original, but it would do.

His fortune, to the last dollar, was in jeopardy. He had made some foolish investment. Further he would not talk. Simply moped, smoked and read.

"Rainey, the little sneak, will go straight to Boston and tell Lora," Mc- and pecked at them. Quire thought to himself. "Nothing will suit him better. Nothing will suit had paid $500,000 for the canvas me better, either."

From New York McQuire wrote-a brief letter to Lora:

"My Dearest: I'm viewing the hole where it has all gone down. You no doubt have heard of the Parkinson company crash? The private fortunes they swamped with their own stupendous failure? I have trusted Parkinson as I might have my father, had I one at present. Well, I'm not going to can't be helped. I can work for my darling. Rainey was with Lora when she received this epistle. He watched her pretty face turn pale, then flushed. "Of course it's love in a cottage?" said Rainey.

"Of course it isn't," she flared. "Is it a fact that he was fool enough to trust his immense fortune in the keeping of that company he refers to?"

"Guess he did.) He was tolerably frank about the matter. He is playing cheerful to you in this letter. He believes that nothing would separate your love from him." "What!" she nearly shrieked: "marry a pauper? Bah, he hasn't brains enough to get a first client. Me do kitchen work and make my own clothes for love's sake? Well, hardly."

Phil was nearly a month getting over everything that followed that letter. At the end of that time he was as good as new.

Gladys, Phil's cousin, went calling on Lora, her cousin's late betrothal

It wasn't fitting for Lora to notice Gladys was wearing. "A gift from Cousin Phil," the girl quite innocently answered.

"I never knew that you had a cousin so fond of you. Seems to me that I heard your cousin lost all his money." Lora's eyes were wide with surprised inquiry.

"Oh, no," Gladys went on, still more innocently; "Phil never lost his money. Not a cent. He was engaged to some girl. I couldn't get him to tell me He brought her so many preswho. ents from abroad. COCA COLA HABIT, A GHOST.

We have all heard of ghosts, but none of us have ever seen one. It's the same way with coca cola "fiends;" you can hear about them but you might search for them until doom's day and you would never find one. Physicians who have treated hundreds of thousands of drug-habit cases, including opium, morphine, cocaine, alcohol, etc., say that they have never seen a case where the use of Coca-Cola has so fastened itself upon the individual as to constitute a habit in the true sense of the word. Although millions of glasses of Coca-Cola are drunk every year, no Coca-Cola fiends have ever made themselves visible at the doors of the sanitariums for the treatment of drug habits. The Coca-Cola habit is analogous to the beefsteak habit and to the strawberry habit and the ice cream habit. People drink Coca-Cola first because they see it advertised and thereafter because it tastes good and refreshes their minds and bodies.
