SHOT BY PLAYMATE

Harold Gilbert was Almost Instantly Killed Saturday Evening.

One boy maimed and another dead and two families plunged into mourning is the toll of the deadly air gun and a loaded revolver in the hands of boys in Chelsea in two days.

A fatal shooting occurred in the salesroom of F. W. Watkins' bakery about 8:30 o'clock last Saturday evening, when Harold, the 13-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gilbert, was almost instantly killed by a bullet from a .38 caliber revolver that was in the hands of Edwin, the 8-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Watkins.

The two boys had been sent to the business part of town on an errand and were in the bakery where they had been sent to get some money with which to make purchases.

The revolver was taken from the bottom drawer of a roll top desk in front of which the two boys were when the shot was fired.

Dr. G. W. Palmer was called but was unable to render any assistance, as the lad died in about ten minutes after the bullet entered his body. The wound was in the stomach and death was from internal hemorrhage.

Justice of the Peace Witherell, acting as coroner, empaneled the following as a jury: Dor Rogers, Hector E. Cooper, J. Nelson Dancer, R. D. Walker, J. E. McKune and Geo. A. Young, who viewed the body of the boy, and an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon when the inquest will be held.

The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of F. Staffan & Son, and later in the evening removed to the home of the afflicted parents on west Middle street.

Harold A. Gilbert was born in Sylvan, November 25, 1900, and was a student in the 5th grade of the Chelsea public schools. The funeral services were held from the M. E. church at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, Rev. J. W. Campbell officiating. A number of the schoolmates of the boy acted as bearers. The remains were taken to Maple Grove cemetery at Sylvan for burial.

The fifth grade of the Chelsea public schools attended the services in a body and sang one of the musical selections. The other number was rendered by Miss Winifred Bacon. An unusually large and handsome floral tribute was sent to the home of the parents by their neighbors and friends.

Friday afternoon Clarence, the 8-year old brother of Harold Gilbert, was shot in one of his eyes, which was defective, with an air gun in the hands of Charles, the 4-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Watkins. The parents of Clarence, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gilbert, took their son to the University hospital at Ann Arbor Saturday and had been at home but a short time when they received word of the fatal shooting of their oldest son. A peculiar feature of both cases is that two brothers were shot by two brothers of another family that were near neighbors and the boys were playmates.

Thursday evening C. W. Saunders superintendent of the Methodist Old Peoples' Home had just left his desk in the office of the home, when a bullet crashed through the window and was embedded in a bookcase opposite of the window. Had he not just left he might have received a fatal wound, as the course of the bullet was over the chair that he had occupied. Who fired the shot is unknown.

It is about time that a stop was put to the careless use of not only firearms, but air guns as well in the hands of young boys about the streets, or else there may be more shooting cases to be placed on record.

Stephen L. Gage.

Stephen L. Gage was born in Northville, Wayne county, Michigan, January 26, 1913, and died at his home in Sylvan, Wednesday morning, September 24, 1913, aged 69 years, 7 months and 28 days.

Mr. Gage has been a prominent farmer of Sylvan since 1883, and during his residence had filled a number of township offices, being a justice of the peace at the time of his death. He was cutting corn on Tuesday and toward evening complained of a headache and after supper the pain had increased to such an extent that a physician was summoned. He passed away about three o'clock in the morning. Mr. Gage suffered a stroke of paralysis about a year ago.

He is survived by one son, two grandchildren, two brothers, one sister, one half brother and one half sister.

The funeral will be held from the late home at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, Rev. Chas. J. Dole officiating. Interment Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

Aroused the Neighbors.

Miss Sophia Schatz was aroused about two o'clock Sunday morning by some one on the front porch of the home of her mother on the corner of Garfield and Summit streets. Her mother was away from home and she was staying alone. As she stepped from her sleeping apartment she saw a man standing on the porch looking through the front window into the sitting room and she let out a scream that aroused the entire neighborhood and it required some time to get the excited lady quieted to her normal state. Miss Schatz says there were two men and that they ran east on Summit street when the alarm was given.

Early Saturday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Redmond on west Middle street was entered, and the dressers in the four rooms on the second floor were rifled but nothing has been discovered missing and it is probable that money was what the visitor wanted. The family were entertaining company during the evening and when they entered their rooms about 9 o'clock they discovered that the rooms had been visited. It is supposed that the parties made their entry and exit by the way of the kitchen.

It is reported that a quantity of clothing was stolen from the line at the home of C. Schanz and that several other homes on west Middle street were visited Saturday evening.

Gilbert Edwin States.

Gilbert Edwin States was born in the town of Stonington, State of Connecticut, April 26, 1828, and died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Augustus Dietz, in White Oak, Livingston County, Michigan, Thursday, September 18, 1913, aged 85 years, 4 months and 22 days.

He was the son of Gilbert Howland and Betsy (Williams) States, one of five children, all of whom have departed this life. On September 22, 1850, he was united in marriage to Mary Ann Kendall. To this union were born three children, Betsy, born August 22, 1854, and Estella and Edwin, twins, born August 28, 1857. The former, Mrs. A. Dietz, being the only survivor. Estella (States) Raymond, died February 18, 1905, and Edwin, February 5, 1913.

He was a kind husband and a loving father, a peaceful and obliging neighbor, respected by all, and leaves to mourn their loss, one daughter, Mrs. Augustus Dietz, of White Oak, and one grandson, Clare Raymond, of White Oak, and a host of friends and relatives. The deceased was a lifelong Mason, and a member of the Dansville Lodge, F. & A. M.

Fellowship Meeting.

The Fellowship meeting of Congregational churches held Tuesday at Grass Lake, was pronounced by those who were present to be one of the most interesting meetings they ever attended. Although it was only intended to be a neighborhood affair, there were guests from as far as fifty miles away. The afternoon and evening programs were inspiring and very helpful.

Four or five more of these meetings are to be held during the fall and winter, the next being at Leslie. The January meeting will probably be held with the Chelsea Congregational church.

In recent years there has been a drawing together of churches, not only of the same denomination, but of different denominations. The oneness of the work and the identity of all interests, making it desirable that there be a wide and intimate acquaintance with as few lines of division as possible.

HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT

County Road Commissioners Survey Three Routes in this Vicinity.

The county road commissioners on Monday of this week had a survey made and stakes set for a mile of road in Sylvan. The proposed work starts at the intersection of the Manchester and territorial roads and runs south to the barn yard on the farm of R. B. Waltrous, known as the Henry Pierce place.

Tuesday a mile was surveyed in Lima and the grade stakes were set. The proposed road improvement starts at the property line of Charles Downer on the Dexter road and extends east to the Bowen road.

A half mile has been laid out in Lyndon. The starting point is at the Chas. Canfield place, owned by Dr. G. W. Palmer, and runs west on the Lyndon Center road.

The two miles and a half of good roads as laid out by the commissioners will probably be started the coming spring as early as possible.

SULZER IS STILL FULL OF FIGHT

FIRST STATEMENT MADE BY ACCUSED OFFICIAL SINCE TRIAL BEGAN.

FRIENDS SAY HE WILL TESTIFY BEFORE COURT.

Says He Has No Idea of Resigning and That He is Perfectly Well in Spite of Contrary Report.

Albany, N. Y.—Gov. Sulzer Saturday broke his long silence, which he has maintained since his impeachment trial began, and declared he had no intention of resigning and would fight the battle to the end.

"Resign?" he ejaculated. "I have no more idea of doing that than I have of committing hara-kari."

And then the governor thumped his interviewer on the chest and gave other evidences of the fact that he is in a fighting mood.

Also the governor is not in such ill health as has been rumored. The fact that he had not seen any one within the last two days led to the report that he was in a weakened condition. He is sleeping late mornings, but he also is working late at night.

"Well," said the governor. "Yes, indeed, I am."

The governor's formal statement that he would not resign was not issued until after he had argued at great length with his counsel. Throughout the case they have been opposed to his saying anything for publication. But he has overruled them a few times, though not since the trial began.

Counsel for Gov. Sulzer refused to discuss whether he would take the witness stand, but it is said by close friends that he has no other thought. He feels, they say, that he has a story to tell that the people should hear and he is going to tell it.

New Camera is Invented.

Vallejo, Cal.—A wireless photographic instrument, which works only at night and is said to reflect everything within a radius of several miles, has been invented. It is declared by a local inventor, formerly an expert in the government employ.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels has invited the inventor to take the machine to Washington for inspections by the navy department. The impressions are made from a screen of wire on top of a tall mast.

Slavery in Islands Again Charged.

Washington—Selling of boys and girls for from $60 to $100 and regarding the practice to sell native women to the highest bidder as a right were told in a report from W. H. Phipps, auditor of the islands, to Secretary Garrison.

"I have no hesitancy in saying that the charges of Secretary Dean Worcester that slavery in its worst forms exists in the Philippines are true," he said.

It is probable that a formal investigation will be ordered.

Heads of Commissioners Appointed.

Washington—Secretary Bryan has appointed Henry St. George Tucker, of Virginia, formerly president of the Jamestown exposition, as the head of a commission on behalf of the Panama-Pacific exposition to visit China and Japan.

The secretary also announced the appointment of former Gov. Alva Adams, of Colorado, as the head of an exposition commission to visit Australia, New Zealand and the East Indies and the Strait Settlements.

Two More Treaties Signed.

Washington—Secretary Bryan signed treaties putting into effect his peace proposals between the United States and Panama and Guantamala. Like treaties now have been negotiated between this country and three other nations, while Honduras has agreed to sign a similar pact, and it is expected that a similar agreement soon will be reached with Costa Rica.

Secretary Bryan's plan has been accepted in principle by 29 nations.

By a vote of 41 to 4 the United Brothers conference in session in Grand Rapids favored merging with the Methodist Protestant denomination. In the event of consolidation Adrian college and Methodist Protestant church in Detroit, Grand Rapids, Lansing, Saginaw and Flint would be affected.

Daniel Torrey, driver on a steamer, and Clyde H. Pritchard, assistant engineer, were hurt when the fire wagon turned turtle during an exhibition run before the delegates to the meeting of the League of Michigan Municipalities at Lansing.

Mrs. E. H. Rouse, of St. Joseph, was seriously injured and her 6-year-old daughter suffered scalp wounds when an automobile delivery wagon, driven by Mr. Rouse, was struck by a Pere Marquette engine.

The Page Fence Co. promises to bring Adrian into the automobile industry, by developing a new department, in which windshields will be manufactured. Contracts for 40,000 shields have been closed with automobile concerns throughout the country. The new branch will give employment to nearly 200 men.

MICHIGAN MAN HONORED

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Washington Gardner, of Albion, Mich., was Friday elected commander-in-chief for the ensuing year.

Col. G. E. Adams, of Nebraska, was the candidate agreed on by a few leaders of the Grand Army at the last encampment, and the election of this year came after one of the hardest fights ever waged in a national encampment. Michigan gained a double victory, procuring not only the commander-in-chief, but the next encampment also, the delegates voting to meet in 1914 at Detroit.

Gen. Gardner's first official act was to appoint Oscar A. James, of Detroit, adjutant general.

Commander-in-chief Gardner was born in Morrow County, Ohio, in February, 1915. At the age of 16 he enlisted in Company D, Sixty-fifth Ohio volunteer infantry. He was on duty continuously from 1861 under Buell in the army of the Ohio, under Rosecrans in the army of the Cumberland and under Thomas and Sherman in the campaign against Atlanta until disabled by a gunshot wound during the battle of Resaca, in May, 1864.

AUTO IS STRUCK BY TRAIN

One Killed and Three Injured in Crossing Tragedy South of Westwood.

Cadillac, Mich.—Robert Eastman, 38, superintendent of the Starns Lumber Co., Kalamazoo, is dead. One woman is near death and two other persons are injured as the result of an automobile being struck by a Grand Rapids & Indiana passenger train, south of Westwood, late Saturday night.

The injured are: Mrs. Matilda Benedict, 50 years old, of Sootville, sister of Eastman. She is injured internally, face cut and left eye torn out; she will probably die. Paul Seiting, chauffeur, of Kalamazoo, deep cuts and body bruises; Mrs. Harry Wilson, Custer, spinal injuries and scalp wounds.

The auto curtains were put up to keep out rain and the occupants of the auto did not see the train. The accident occurred at the second highway south of Westwood and the passengers were thrown 30 feet and the auto smashed to bits.

One Killed in Kansas Wreck.

Manhattan, Kan.—Twenty passengers were injured one was killed, when passenger train No. 20, on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, bound from Denver and Colorado Springs to St. Louis, was derailed on a curve a mile west of here.

Eight coaches left the rails. One of them, the combined steel baggage and smoking car, rolled down a 20-foot embankment, turning over three times and landing upside down.

The smoking compartment was full of passengers, most of whom were injured, but none seriously save J. P. Baldy, of Herrington, Kan., who was crushed by a falling trunk.

A defective rail is said to have caused the accident. The train was running about 20 miles an hour when it left the rails.

Auto Bandits Plead Guilty.

Toledo, O.—Waiving all right to counsel, Robert Duffey, alias Dwyer, 22 years old, of Buffalo; Arthur Giroud, alias Gerow, 20 years old, of New York, and William Justice, 20 years old, of Philadelphia, auto bandits who held up an automobile party near here early Thursday, pleaded guilty to all indictments.

Four indictments of robbery were returned against each. On each count Giroud and Justice were sentenced to from one to 15 years in the Mansfield reformatory.

Duffey, who was also indicted on a charge of shooting Sheriff Wineland with intent to kill, was sentenced to the penitentiary for from one to 15 years on each of the robbery charges, and from one to 20 years on the shooting charge.

If the youths serve the full time, Justice and Giroud will be locked up 60 years each and Duffey 80 years.

LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

STATE GEOLOGICAL ALLEN HAS COMPLETED APPRAISAL OF IRON MINES.

COST OF AVERAGE LIFE LOST IN ACCIDENTS.

Figures of Board Show That to Kill a Michigan Workman Costs in Final Analysis More Than $7,000.00.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing, Mich.—State Geologist R. C. Allen has completed for the state tax commission the appraisal of the iron mines of the state for 1913. The figures for Gogebic, Iron and Dickinson counties have been fixed definitely, but the assessment of the Marquette county iron mines, is, as yet, only tentative. Since the first of the year State Geologist Allen has been engaged in this work for the state tax commission and the appraisal is regarded as the best and most accurate that has ever been made. Two years ago the legislature appropriated $6,000 for the purpose of securing an appraisal of all mining properties in Michigan and Prof. Finley completed the enormous task in ten weeks. However, his figures were questioned by the commission and were little used and the money spent has been regarded as one of the legislature's poor investments.

It is expected that the appraisal made by R. C. Allen will play a prominent part in the next session of the legislature in the event that an attempt is again made to pass a tonnage tax bill. These figures show conclusively that some of the larger and more profitable mines would pay less to the state under a specific tax of ten cents per ton, which was the figure named in the last tonnage tax bill introduced in the legislature, than they are now paying on an ad valorem basis, which some of the smaller and less productive mines would be practically forced out of business.

In 1911 the valuation of the iron mines of Michigan was $85,587,325, while the valuation for 1913 is $82,707,256. In other words there is a decrease in 1913 of 3.36 per cent from the valuation of two years ago. In order to understand why the mines show a decrease in valuation for this year it is necessary to know the methods used in the appraisal of the mines. Each mine has furnished the tax commission a sworn statement of the itemized costs and receipts for each property during a period covering the five years preceding January 1, 1913. From this information there has been figured the profits, or in many cases losses, per ton of ore mined from each property. Royalties are in all cases figured as profits. The value of a ton of ore in the ground in each particular property is thus obtained with great precision. The total tonnage of ore shown up in each property is then figured by State Geologist Allen and there is added to this, in most cases, a certain tonnage designated as prospective or profitable ore. This figure of total reserves is then divided by the average shipment made by the property during the past five years and the quotient is taken as the prospective life of the mine.

In obtaining the actual present value of the mine the total ore reserves are multiplied by the value of a ton of ore in the ground and this figure is then multiplied by the present worth of a dollar to be paid in equal installments during a period of years equal to the productive life of the mine, figuring interest at six per cent. In some cases it has been found necessary to vary the method of appraisal, but on the whole this plan has been followed wherever possible.

In some classes of property, such as those having ore bodies which have been developed by drilling but which have not been mined, it is not possible to obtain from the records of operating experience the various factors on which the appraisal is based. The factor of tonnage may be obtained with a very reasonable degree of accuracy in most cases, but the remaining factors are assumed by the appraiser. These assumptions are based on the operating experience of the active mines.

From the statistics prepared by State Geologist Allen it is shown that the amount of ore in the ground has increased during the past two years by about 20,000,000 tons, notwithstanding the fact that the state has shipped during that period approximately the same amount. In other words there is more ore found and developed each year than there is shipped. The question arises as to why it is that 183,000,000 tons of ore in the ground are worth less in 1913 than 169,000,000 tons were worth in 1911. The explanation is that the value of a ton of ore in the ground depends on ore prices and the relation of these to the cost of mining and transportation.

During the five year period preceding the 1911 appraisal the mines made profits of about $54,000,000, while during the five year period preceding the appraisal of 1913 the total profits dropped to approximately $47,500,000. This shows a falling off in the earnings of 12.8 per cent. State Geologist

Allen says the decrease in profits is due mainly to the low price of ore in 1912 and the decreased shipments of 1911, but he points out that while the profits of the business of iron mining decreased 12.8 per cent the increase in the appraised valuation is only 3.36 per cent. Allen says that this decrease is not largely due to the rapid development of the mines in iron county during the past two years.

The tonnage of ore in iron county was doubled in the past two years and this is reflected in the increase in the valuation of this county of more than 39 per cent. There have been some important developments in Gogebic county also, but in the other counties the tonnage has not been increased by new developments. Only one new property has been developed at Marquette county and it is doubtful if this property contains sufficient ore to make a mine, according to the state geologist's observations.

In 1910 the iron mines of Michigan and the state $899,308 in taxes, while in 1913 the iron industry turned into the coffers of this state $1,379,551. The total effect has been an increase of about 54 per cent in total taxes paid by the mining properties. Another interesting comparison is afforded by the ratio of taxes to operating profits. During the period of 1906-10, preceding the first valuation of mines by the tax commission, the ratio of taxes to operating profits was 52 per cent. During the period 1909-12 this ratio was 10.98 per cent, and this result is the average of three years of low valuations by local boards and two years of full valuation by the state tax commission.

These figures of valuation do not include the value of ore in stock or buildings in nine locations that are a part of the mine plant. Neither do they include the value of the mineral lands. Ore in stock is assessed as personal property at its cash value. Mineral lands, which is in the neighborhood of an average of $2.50 per ton. This figure per ton is obtained by subtracting from the Lake Erie ore prices merely transportation, commissions and loading charges. All buildings are appraised separately. The value of mineral land, about $4,000 acres, in 1913 will be in the neighborhood of $750,000. This represents face value. The value of the land itself is not included but is assessed separately.

Therefore, State Geologist Allen says that if the valuation of the mineral lands, ore in stock and buildings on mining locations were added the figures of valuation for 1913 would be increased by several million dollars. The additional value added for buildings other than those included in the mining plant may be judged in a way by the fact that the assessment of mining property in the city of Negaunee alone includes the value of 600 separate buildings not assessed as a part of the mine. These buildings have not heretofore been assessed by local authorities, but all such property has been placed on the rolls by the tax commission. The total value of this additional property has not been figured to date, but Allen says it will increase the total valuation of mining properties by several million dollars.

The Michigan compensation act places upon human life a value which is something more than theoretical. Under this act 73 fatalities during the closing quarter of the industrial accident board's first fiscal year cost Michigan industry $168,304. Never before has it been possible to obtain even an estimate of the cost of fatal accidents to Michigan employers. It has generally been understood that it was considerable, but even when reduced to cold figures, there can remain no doubt, according to the members of the commission, that this tax is too great to be borne without making an effort to remedy conditions which are responsible for it.

The average human life which was sacrificed during the months of June, July and August cost $2,305.53. In addition to this direct charge which is registered against the employer primarily and ultimately comes out of the consumer, there is the loss to the community which is estimated at $5,000. It will be seen, therefore, that the cost in the final analysis $7,305.53 to kill a Michigan workman. It must also become evident that fatal accidents are a luxury which no successful Michigan industry can afford to indulge.

The mining industry was the heaviest contributor to the list of killed during the past quarter. Seventeen fatalities in the iron, copper and coal mines of Michigan cost the operators $41,523 which would have paid the average wages of 2,628 mine workers for a period of one week, or which would have been sufficient to continue the wages of those seventeen men had they lived and remained in active production for a period of 150 weeks or practically three years.

Fifteen fatal accidents cost the electric and steam roads of Michigan during the three months covered $29,031 or $2,791.50 per accident. In view of the present interest in the rate of wages paid in the upper peninsula mines, it is interesting to note that the average miner's dependents receive as compensation $2,442.53, while the dependents of the average railroad men receive $2,791.50; dependents of those engaged in the electrical industry $2,540.57; dependents of paper mill workers $1,751.5; dependents of employes in building trades $2,296.42; of employes of lumber industry $2,494.00; and of 19 miscellaneous industries $2,102.67.

BRITISH CONSUL PROTESTS FOR UNITED STATES.

Thought to Be Part of Effort to Compel Inclusion of Southern Albania in the Kingdom of Greece.

Vienna—The American mission school at Koritsa, Albania, was Monday seized by the Greek authorities there. The nearly 100 Albanian girl students were told they would be taught by Greeks. The information reached here in a telegram from Avlona, the principal seaport of Albania, on the Adriatic sea.

A large number of Albanians who recently returned to Koritsa from America and other foreign countries have been arrested and persecuted. They were released from detention only when the Albanians promised to join in the agitation for the incorporation of the district in Greece.

The British consul at Monastir has entered a vigorous protest with the Greek government on behalf of the Americans.

The whole affair forms part of the Greek territorialization of the Albanian population with the object of compelling them to agree to the inclusion of the whole of Southern Albania in the kingdom of Greece.

Cholera Scare in Europe.

Belgrade, Servia.—The cholera epidemic is causing consternation in southeastern Europe, its extension north of the Danube being especially alarming.

The hot weather has had much to do with increasing the number of cases. The disease has spread, not so much through actual contagion as through drinking from tainted streams on the border. Field fruit is another source of infection. Moslems celebrating the feasts of Balam are not over particular when they eat after an all-day fast.

Fresh cases are reported from numerous points in Bosnia, but they are relatively mild.

Explosion Kills Four Men.

Philadelphia—Four workmen killed and one injured by an explosion in the gelatine mixing house of the Dupont powder works at Gibbstown, N. J., near here. The four men killed were simply obliterated. According to workmen the largest part of any of the four found was a hand.

Only four men were employed in the gelatine building. Officials of the company said that no one will ever know what caused the explosion. The shock was felt throughout southern New Jersey, Philadelphia and other places between here and Chester, Pa.

Fatal Wreck Near New York.

Three persons were killed and 20 injured early Monday in a head-on crash of two Long Island railroad electric trains at College Point, L. I. Of the injured one will die.

Most of the injured were mill employes on their way to work. The crash occurred on a curve not far from the station. The trains, running 40 miles an hour, rounded the curve from opposite directions almost simultaneously, and the crash was inevitable. The steel cars buckled but did not telescope. This fact doubtless saved many lives.

Pardoned After Many Years.

Columbus, O.—After spending practically all of his life since he attained to manhood, inside the penitentiary walls, John Taborn, the oldest convict in the Ohio penitentiary, was pardoned by Governor Cox. Taborn had been a prisoner for 43 years. He was convicted of murder in Delaware county in 1870 and sentenced to life imprisonment. He is now 66 years of age.

British R. R. Strike Settled.

London—The strike of the railroad men in the British Isles was practically brought to an end Saturday. Officials of the companies reached an agreement with the representatives of the men's unions on the basis of the reinstatement of all strikers who agree to handle all the traffic which the railroads are bound to carry under the law.

A new home for incorrigible and homeless boys to take the place of the Bulah home at Boyne City, disorganized, is being established on the shores of Mt. Calm lake, two miles west of Albion.

One thousand lots in the outskirts of Muskegon Heights, owned by the state prior to last June, have been sold to an Indianapolis company, and there now is no more state-owned land within the limits of that city.

Prof. Thomas C. Trueblood, of the department of oratory at the University, has received the subject for the Michigan-Chicago-Northwestern triangular debate this fall. It is "Resolved, that the state should establish a schedule of minimum wage for unskilled labor, constitutionally conceded."

MICHIGAN NEWS TERSELY TOLD

Pontiac.—Mrs. Mary Ann Mason, a patient at the Pontiac State hospital for 26 years, is dead. The body was taken to her old home at Farmington.

Kalamazoo.—Announcement was made that the St. Joseph parish will, in the immediate future, build a new $10,000 church. The church was organized a few years ago by Monsignor F. A. O'Brien and has grown rapidly.

Bay City.—Health Officer Keho found five children—the oldest ten and the youngest five—alone in the home of Robert Young. Young works in Detroit, and his wife went to join him two days ago. The children had been left to shift for themselves.

Cadillac.—Aviator Carlson of Chicago came near ending his flying days at the Northern district fair here. On his second flight he came down at such a sharp angle in his monoplane that the propeller struck the ground. Carlson was thrown violently to the ground.

Kalamazoo.—Sherman Cumings, sixty-four years old, a resident of Kalamazoo county all his life, was killed by a Michigan Central train in front of his home. Cumings was for 25 years supervisor of the poor and served many years on the board of supervisors.

Pontiac.—Oakland's first county Y. M. C. A. group has been formed under the new system of county work. Hikes, fall play festivals and field days are on the list of sports for the young men of the villages in this county where associations are maintained.

SYNOPSIS.

Cowboys of the Flying Heart ranch are heartbroken over the loss of their much-prized photograph by the defeat of their champion in a foot-race with the cook of the Centipede ranch. A house party is given at the Flying Heart. J. W. Waller, the owner, is a leader at Yale, and Colver Covington, inter-collegiate champion runner, are expected. Helen Blake, Speed's sweetheart, becomes interested in the loss of the photograph. She suggests to Jean Chapin, sister of the owner of the ranch, that she induce Covington to give her the photograph. Helen declares that if Covington won't run, Speed will. The cowboys are hilarious over the prospect. Speed and his valet, Larry Glass, trainer at Yale, arrive. Helen Blake asks Speed, who has posed to her as an athlete to race against the Centipede man. The cowboys join in the appeal to Waller, and Covington will arrive in time to take his place. Helen, however, that he shall be entered as an unknown, fearing that Covington will arrive in time to take his place. Fresno, club singer from Stanford university and in love with Helen, tries to dissuade Speed with the ladies and the cowboys. Speed and Glass plan in the time they are supposed to be training playing cards in a secluded spot. The cowboys explain to Speed how much the race means to them. Speed assures them he will do his best. The cowboys tell Glass it is up to him to see that Speed wins the race. Willie, the gunman, declares the trainer will go back east packed in ice. Speed falls. A telegram comes from Covington saying he is in jail at Omaha for ten days. Glass, in a panic, forces Speed to begin training in earnest. Speed declares to Larry that the best way out is for him (Speed) to injure himself. Glass won't stand for it.

"Strange!" said Willie.
"What?"
"My rest was fitful and disturbed and peopled by strange fancies a whole lot. I dreamt he threw the race!"
A chorus of oaths from the bunks.
"What did you do?" inquired Stover.
"I woke up, all of a tremble, with a gun in each hand."
"Well, I'm the last person in the world to be superstitious." Still Bill observed, "but I've had similar visions lately."
"Maybe it's a omen."
"What is a omen?" Carara inquired.
"A omen," explained Willie, "is a kind of a nut. Salted omen-ens is served at small restaurants with the soup."
In the midst of it Joy, the cook, appeared in the doorway, and spoke in his gentle, ingratiating tones.
"Morning, gal'mum. I see 'im again."
"No savvy who; strange man! I go down to spring-house for bucket water, see 'im lide 'way. Velly strange!"
"I bet it's Gallagher."
"Vat you talk he wants?" queried Murphy.
"He's layin' to get a shot at our runner," declared Stover, while Mr. Cloudy, forgetting his Indian reserve, explained in classic English his own theory of the nocturnal visits.
"Do you remember Humpy Joe?" Well, they didn't cripple him, but he lost. I don't think Gallagher would injure Mr. Speed, but he might—bride him!"
"Caramba!" exclaimed the Mexican.
"God 'mighty!" Willie cried, in shocked accents.
"I believe you're right, but"—Stover meditated briefly before announcing with determination—"we'll do a little night-ridin' ourselves. Willie, you watch this young feller daytime, and the rest of us'll take turns at night. An' don't lose sight of the fat man. Neither—he might carry notes. If you don't like the looks of things—you know what cards to draw."
"Sixes," murmured the near-sighted cowman. "Don't worry."
"If you see anything suspicious, burn it up. And we'll take a shot at anything we see movin' after 9:00 p. m."
Then Berkeley Fresno came hurriedly into the bunk-house with a very cheery "Good-morning! I'm glad I found you up and doing," he said blithely. "I thought of something in my sleep." It was evident that the speaker had been in more than ordinary haste to make his discovery known, for underneath his coat he still wore his pajama shirt, and his hair was unbrushed.
"What is it?"
"Your man Speed isn't taking care of himself."
"What did I tell you?" said Willie to his companions.
"It seems to me that in justice to you boys he shouldn't act this way," Fresno ran on. "Now, for instance, the water in his shower-bath is tepid. There was an instant's silence before Stover inquired, with ominous restraint:
"Who's been monkeying with it?"
"It's warm!"
"Oh! It was a sign of relief."
"A man can't get in shape taking warm shower-baths. Warm water weakens a person."
"Maybe you-all will listen to me next time!" again cried Willie, triumphantly. "I said at the start that a bath never helped nobody. When they're hot they saps a man's courage, and when they're cold they—"
"No, no! You don't understand! For an athlete the bath ought to be cold—that holds the better. It's the shock that cures a fellow."

"Has he weakened himself much?"

"Undoubtedly, but—"

"What?"

"If we only had some ice—"

"We got ice; plenty of it. We got a load from the railroad yesterday."

"Then our only chance to save him is to fill the barrel quickly. We must freeze him, and freeze him well, before it is too late! By Jove! I'm glad I thought of it!"

Stover turned to his men. "Four of you-all hustle up a couple hundred pounds of that ice pronto! Crack it, an' fill the bar!" There was a scramble for the door.

"And there's something else, too," went on Berkeley. "He's being fed wrong for his last days of training. The idea of a man eating lamb-chops, fried eggs, oatmeal, and all that debilitating stuff! Those girls overload his stomach. Why, he ought to have something to make him strong—ferce!"

"Name it," said Willie, shortly.

"Something like—like—bear meat."

"We ain't got no bear."

"This ain't their habitat," added Stover apologetically.

"Well, he ought to have meat, and it ought to be wild—raw, if possible."

"Their ain't nothin' wilder 'n a long-horn. We can get him a steer."

"You are sure the meat isn't too tender?"

"It's tougher 'n a night in jail."

"Good! The rarer it is the better. Some raw eggs and a good strong vegetable—"

"Onions?"

"Fine! We'll save him yet!"

"We'll get the grub."

"And he'll eat it!" Willie nodded firmly.

Stover issued another order, this time to Carara.

"You 'n Cloudy butcher the wildest four-year-old you can find. If you can't get close enough to rope him, shoot him, and bring in a hind quarter. It's got to be here in time for breakfast."

"Si, Senor!" The Mexican picked up his lariat; the Indian took a Winchester from an upper bunk and filled it with cartridges.

"Of course, he'll have to eat out here; they spoil him up at the house."

"Sure thing!"

"I'd hate to see him lose; it would be a terrible blow to Miss Blake."

"Fresno shook his head doubtfully—"

"What about us?"

"Oh, you can stand it—but she's a girl. Ah, well," the speaker sighed.

"I hope nothing occurs by running, and Saturday to prevent his running."

"It won't," Stover grimly assured the Californian. "Nothin' whatever is goin' to occur."

"He was speaking yesterday about the possibility of some business engagement—"

The small man in glasses interrupted. "Nothin' but death shall take him from us, Mr. Fresno."

"If I think of anything else," offered Berkeley, kindly, "I'll tell you."

"We wish you would."

Fresno returned to the house, humming cheerily. It was still an hour until his breakfast-time, but he had accomplished much. In the midst of his meditation he came upon Miss Blake emerging upon the rear porch.

"Good-morning!" he cried. She started a trifle guiltily. "What are you doing at this hour?"

"Oh, I just love the morning air."

she answered. "Honesty goes to bed early, and industry rises betimes."

"That's me!"

"Then you have been working?"

Fresno nodded. He was looking at four cowboys who were entering the gymnasium, staggering beneath dripping gunny-sacks. Then he turned his gaze searchingly upon the girl.

"Were you looking for Speed?" he asked accusingly.

"I see 'im lide 'way. Velly strange."

"The idea!" Miss Blake flushed faintly.

"If you are, he has gone for—run. I dearly love to see him get up early and run, he enjoys it so."

"I have been baking a cake," said Helen, displaying the traces of her occupation upon her hands, arms, and apron, while Fresno, at sight of the blue apron tied at her throat and waist, felt that he himself was as dough in her hands. "I had a dreadful time to make it rise."

"If I were a cake I would rise at your lightest word."

"The cook said it wouldn't be fit to eat," declared Helen.

"I should love to eat your cooking."

"Once in a while, perhaps, but not every day."

"Every day—always and always. You know what I mean, Miss Blake—Helen!" The young man bent a lover's gaze upon his companion until he detected her eyes fastened with startled inquiry upon his toilet. Remembering, he buttoned his coat, but ran on. "This is the first chance I've had to see you alone since Speed arrived. There's something I want to ask you."

"I—I know what it is," stammered Helen. "You want me to let you sing again. Please do. I love morning music—and your voice is so tender."

"Life," said Berkeley, "is one sweet—"

"What is going on here?" demanded a voice behind them, and Mrs. Keap came out upon the porch, eying the pair suspiciously. It was evident that she, like Fresno, had dressed hurriedly.

"Mr. Fresno is going to sing to us," explained the younger girl, quickly.

"Really?"

"I am like the bird that greets the morn with song," laughed the tenor, awkwardly.

"What are you going to sing?" demanded the younger girl, quickly.

"Really?"

Sashes Give Distinction to the Gown

If there are girde or sashless dresses designed for the new season, they seem to be keeping out of sight. Everything has a sash which does not define the waist line, but wanders above and below and around or diagonally across and terminates wherever it sees fit, sometimes at the bust, sometimes under the shoulders, again half way to the knees, and reasonably often somewhere near the waist line.

Nearly all the girdles are of the new and beautiful ribbons. Some of them are of silk wrapped about the figure and extending from below the bust to the swell of the hips. To sum up the matter, you may wear a sash or a girde of any sort of ribbon you choose and posed to suit yourself.

Four fashionable designs are shown here. The first is called the "Dresden," and is made of moire ribbon in all colors, with border and stripes in Dresden patterns woven in. It consists of a girde, a short, standing loop and a long falling loop with one end forming the sash. At the heart of this two-looped bow is a buckle made of narrow velvet wound over a foundation of buckram. The velvet is in a dark shade of the same color as appears in the body of the ribbon.

This is one of the most popular of all the many sashes now in vogue. It requires about three yards of ribbon, and is supported by narrow stays when fitted to the waist.

The girde without ends pictured next is called the "Alsatian," taking its name from the bow of two loops, and equal in length, which furnishes it. It is made of soft, mersa line ribbon. The heart of the bow is held in place by two shirings over soft cord. A yard and a quarter will make this girde for a waist of average size, say 24 inches. It is an easy matter to calculate the length required, since it takes a trifle more than a half yard to make the two loops. Adding to this the waist measure with a little allowance for making and fastening above or below the waist line, the length required is ascertained.

Washburn-Schmid Wedding.

The following extract has been taken from the Carrollton paper: Mr. A. C. Schmid, manager of the Richmond Opera House, and Miss Edith Washburn of Prestonville, Ky., were united in marriage by Rev. J. W. Crates, pastor of the M. E. church on Wednesday evening, September 10th, at the home of the bride. The groom is a prosperous business man and is conducting the most moral shows ever shown in this city and although he has been here but a short time, he has made many friends. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Washburn of Prestonville, Ky., and is a faithful member of the M. E. church and well spoken of by all who have ever known her. Mr. Schmid is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Schmid of Dexter and is well known in this vicinity.

The Cheyenne Massacre.

One of the most sensational and interesting pictures that has been shown at the Princess the past year will be shown on next Tuesday evening. It is Kalem's two part masterpiece "The Cheyenne Massacre." In speaking of the picture the Motion Picture World says: "This two reel feature portraying a historic incident of western pioneer days has much to commend it to the friends of Indian pictures. There are many clever touches of realism and the outdoor settings are up to the regular Kalem standard. There is a good deal of fighting in and about forts on the frontier line of white civilization, all of which is done with skill. The story abounds in incidents of the regulation variety which generally characterize Indian film dramas. Special praise may well be given to the splendid acting of Mr. West who plays the part of an Indian chief named Swift Bear. The military movements are all executed with that expertness and precision for which the Kalem company have long been known."

JACKSON—Glen White and Clayton Berry, two Stockbridge young men, have been arrested in Jackson charged with burglary. Both young men come from good families.

HOWELL—Charles Gordon, arrested three weeks ago on a charge of robbing the store of G. B. Blackman, of Fowlerville, picked the lock in the county jail and departed. He took with him a part of the loot held as evidence against him.

JACKSON—The Casino, a $20,000 structure at Wolf lake, a summer resort east of here, was burned to the ground early Saturday. The total loss, including boats and other equipment, is estimated at $30,000. An overheated kitchen range is blamed for the start of the destructive conflagration.

SALINE—Fire, caused by sparks from a passing engine, setting fire to muck and stubble on the Harrison Bassett and Fred April farms, was the cause of considerable uneasiness in that part of town on Monday, and heroic measures were resorted to check its progress toward the barns and other buildings.—Observer.

Backing Up the Purchaser

If we didn't have an eye to the future, and if we didn't care what you or anybody else was going to think of us, we could sell engines and other machines for much less money, but we could not put I H C quality in to them. The kicks would start coming in right away, and soon there would be no market for I H C engines.

I H C engines stand for everything that is opposed to such a policy. The I H C way is to build always for the respect and good will of the American farmer, and to that end it has been successfully working for many years. The dealer who sells you an I H C engine expects on its merits to do business with you again. The purchaser of an buys security and safety with it. He banks on the many years of square dealing and the reputation back of all I H C machines. He knows it is the best engine bargain because it gives him efficient service in all kinds of farm work—pumping, sawing wood, spraying, running repair shop, grindstone, cream separator, etc. He knows that I H C responsibility for it lasts as long as the engine is in service on his farm.

I H C oil and gas engines operate on gas, gasoline, naphtha, kerosene, distillate, and alcohol. Sizes range from 1 to 50-horse power. They are built vertical, horizontal, portable, stationary, skidded, air-cooled and water-cooled. I H C oil tractors range in size from 6-12 to 30-60-horse power, for plowing, threshing, etc.

Look over an I H C engine at the local dealer's. Learn from him what it will do for you, or write for catalogues to

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Plan Public Golf Links at the National Capital

WASHINGTON—President Wilson's new commissioners for the District of Columbia are planning to provide the national capital with public golf links, and golfers already are waging that when the new links are available the chief executive will be found playing on them.

At present he gives the two so-called fashionable golf clubs the go-by and motors over the hills of Virginia, where the common folks maintain the Washington Golf Club.

The membership of the club is made up mainly of government clerks and other persons who have to look sharp to make both ends meet financially. The democracy of the playground seemed to appeal to the president.

All golfers agree that golf is played for either one or two purposes—exercise or pleasure. If you play a good game, you play for pleasure. If your time is bad, you play for exercise—and you get plenty of it.

Now, the President is not so bad as they make them, by quite a long way, but he still is in the exercise class.

He plays golf for the good it does him and because he never expects to make his living teaching golf to beginners.

He goes out to the club with two automobiles. He is in the front one with Dr. Cary Grayson, while the second carries a secret service man or two.

The president usually reaches the club about 3:30.

He plays the first nine holes very leisurely, without the least sign of having to hurry back to the White House. Then he usually cuts off to the seventeenth, playing that hole and the eighteenth. Then, without going into the club house, he gets into the automobile and rides back to the White House.

With the president, golfing serves as no silk-stocking amusement. He never plays golf with the nabobs of the town. His almost exclusive golfing companion is Dr. Grayson.

Indeed, President Wilson has not devoted himself in the least to making friends in the wealthy.

Indeed, if the president were in pursuit of society, he would not play golf at the Washington Golf Club. Society is not found there—not the kind that is spelled with capitals. SOCIETY abides at the Chevy Chase club

Wanted Senator to Look Up a Prospective Wife

THE other day Senator Knute Nelson was startled by the receipt of a letter which contained the following clipping from a publication called Cupid's Column. His surprise grew as he read the clipping, which was as follows:

"2783 Washington, D. C.—I am a young widow, twenty-five years of age. No children; 5-6, 130 pounds, blonde hair, gray eyes, very good form, good disposition, French Methodist; have a small income; like both city and country life. Would like to correspond with some young man matrimonially inclined. See my photo."

To the right of this touching missive was a picture, also clipped from a newspaper, of a remarkably pretty girl, wearing a low collar and an elaborate picture hat.

The senator, who is over seventy years of age and married, at once began to suspect that some widow had her eyes on him. But taking another look into the envelope he found the following letter and a photograph of a young man. The letter read:

"I am mailing your picture and your description," said the note, "to the city of Washington, D. C. I hope you will get it and write to me at once, for I am a young bachelor, and my father owns a farm in Minnesota, with a ditch running through it, and I am sure that we will be happy here. I am 5 feet 8 inches— and much more to that effect. On the back of this was written:

"Dear Senator: This young woman lives in your city. Please look her up for me, as I want to marry her. I put her photograph outside the envelope, but the postoffice authorities returned it to me. If you will look her up and tell her to write me I will be much obliged to you and will remember your kind favor."

All the senator said when he dropped the envelope and its contents into the wastebasket was:

"He wants me to open a matrimonial agency for his special benefit. Now, I'll do any number of things for the people, but I'll be blamed if I will do that."

They Tell McAdoo How to Run U. S. Treasury

Mr. Wickersham, and my Savings Department says it is Wilson & Mr. McAdoo. Respectfully Yours,

Another letter which Secretary McAdoo received is even funnier than the foregoing.

"U. S. Gov—t" writes from Fresno, Cal. The letter is dated June 2 and is as follows:

"Mr. McAdoo: In regard to all government money loan none out unless you can get 8 per cent. Have all Departments Deposit every week in National Treasury money collect that week. Keep everything in first-class shape equipped Treasury Department with a Burglar alarm system if necessary and have for protection four Army Guards at night. Swear them in to be loyal to the Government, which is 48 States and Island Possessions. Yours truly, beyond it. The place has a tenant—Hap was assured of this as he noticed a great washing out on the line in the yard.

It required skill, bravery, and the stoicism and endurance of a North American Indian to get over that barbed wire fence, but at length Hap negotiated the adventure successfully. He started a leap with an "Ouch!" and he ended it with a "Geewhikkens!" but he was now on its field side and made tracks for the shelter of the barn.

Slipping through the open doorway, barricaded himself behind a heap of hay, Hap proceeded to carry out his plan to secure attention and succor. "Oo-hoo! Olee-o!"—all the halls Hap had ever heard he now proceeded to deliver, first in a feeble venture-some voice, and then more audibly, and with some irritation.

"There's nobody at home in that house, that's sure," he decided at last. "I'll investigate. Maybe I can find some door or window open. Just let me get some clothes—I don't mind those; I don't care what they are—jumpers, overalls, tennis or bathing suit, I'll grab them quick. This is a horrible predicament, and I am a desperate man!"

Hap and his umbrella made the tour of the vicinity. No one was in the house, as he had surmised, nor was there any avenue of inlet easy of access.

"I'll do it, I've got to do it!" decided Hap grimly, as he stood looking over the line of family washing hanging up to dry. "There's a white one—no, that would be too prominent. The blue one is bigger and becomes me better. Yes, the problem is solved, and I am saved. Ha! ha!"

Hap became tragically jolly and the oddity of the occasion helped to make him so. He almost chuckled with relief as he took a blue dress and a sun-bonnet from the line, and he smiled as he thought of how he would recite his unique adventure at his club in the city.

Then Hap repaired to "the barn. When he came out he carried the umbrella closed. The dress was roomy and long, the sun bonnet was comfortable and sheltering

MISHAPS OF MR. HAP

By AUGUSTUS G. SHERMAN.

By the banks of a Sylvan stream, gazing vacantly into the far distance, stood Hapgood Dorsey. His friends called him Hap for short, and he needed those friends sorely just now, for all that Hapgood Dorsey wore on the present occasion was an umbrella.

"I'm done for," he stated lugubriously, using the umbrella as a shield. "What in the world am I to do?"

It was a serious question. Hapgood Dorsey, a young bachelor on his annual vacation outing, two miles from his country hotel, night coming on, no habitation in sight, had come out of the water after a vigorous swim to find his clothes missing.

"It was that tramp I saw lurking around in the distance," Hap now told himself. "I don't care for the clothes—it was an old suit, and nothing of value in the pockets, but—how am I going to get to shelter?"

Hapgood Dorsey did not rage or swear. He was a sensible, reputable young man, rather shy and reserved, especially with the ladies, but manager of a large manufacturing establishment and on the way to further business promotion.

"It's a mean trick, was the hardest thing he could find to say. "I can't go back into the water and stay all night, I can't walk into town in this plight. I'm up a tree, or, rather, I wish I was!"

It was some time before Hapgood Dorsey could make up his mind what to do. He had a dim idea that in his stroll from town to the present spot he had passed a farmhouse. He finally started in the direction of the hotel, dodging past the open spots between trees and bushes and the umbrella in constant play.

Never was a man more thankful than he that it was growing dusk. Somewhere, he vaguely remembered, he had read a poem on "The Dying Day." He wished this one would stay dead, with no afterglow. Alas, there was a line or two about "the sable garments of the night." Hap wished they might become tangible.

"What luck!" "What luck!" he chirped, as he struck a barb wire fence and made out a barn and a house

"I'm a Thankful Man."

Since 1801 the peasants of Vorderthiersee, a remote village in Tyrol, have had a passion play of their own. Its text dates, however, from the middle of the sixteenth century. The last performance was given in 1905; the next one will take place in 1915. In preparation for this coming production, these peasant players reached the conclusion early this year that they needed new scenery, a new stage and also a new road that would bring visitors in greater numbers to their mountain festival. To raise the amount required they gave during the months of July and August a series of performances of the drama, "Jude Ben Hur," drawn from General Lew Wallace's famous novel by one of their members, a peasant who appears to have produced an altogether satisfactory dramatization.

Sulgrave Once Robbers' Nest.

Sulgrave, whose manor house, the ancestral home of the Washington family, the Peace Centenary committee desire to purchase as a place of pilgrimage, has associations not entirely of a peaceful character. For the smiling Northamptonshire village toward the end of the eighteenth century was the headquarters of a gang of highwaymen, known as the Cut-worth gang. Chief of the band was the parish clerk of Sulgrave, who all ways went to church fully armed, lest justice should catch him unawares. The booty was stored in the church, so that the bold, bad clerk might be at hand to protect it. But treachery stepped in, and four of the gang were hanged in 1787 at Northampton.—London Chronicle and started down a traversed country road carrying the spot of his ruthless pillage well in his mind.

"This outfit looks as if it belonged to some old farm dame," he ruminated. "All right. She shall have the finest silk gown and Sunday bonnet in town tomorrow for this timely accommodation. Hello!"

Hap dodged behind a tree. The moon had come up and just then with a vivid scream a young girl turned a curve in the highway. In hot pursuit was a browny, bold looking individual, whom Hap at once recognized as his despoiler at the brookside.

"Give up that watch!" he was shouting. "I'm going to have it."

The terrified girl must have made out Hap. She ran frantically up to him.

"Oh, lady, save me!" she pleaded, clinging frantically to Hap.

"Huh! an old woman!" roared the tramp. "I'll demolish both of you if you don't give up that watch!"

"Let go, please," pleaded Hap in an embarrassed way, and in his masculine tones his charge uttered a new shriek.

"A man!" she quavered.

"Luckily for you, and something of an athlete," vaunted Hap, rather proudly—bliff!

Down went Mr. Tramp, scientifically bowled out, and gasping for breath, prostrate on the ground.

"Run for some help," Hap directed the bewildered miss, and we'll put this bold highwayman where he belongs."

He stood valiant guard over the discomfited thief with a club until the young lady, running back to a neighbor, returned with two men armed with pitchforks. In the meantime Hap learned from the thief where his clothes had been hidden.

"Why, say, Miss Rose," exclaimed one of the men, pointing to her rescuer, "this one can't be right, either—a man dressed up in a woman's dress!"

"Yes," fluttered Miss Rose Barton, "and it looks like mamma's dress, too!"

"I will explain," observed Hap, and he did.

And then, clothed in his right mind and in his own attire, Hapgood Dorsey felt it a duty to pay a visit to the Barton homestead the next day.

"I've come to return what I borrowed," he reported, handing a neat package to Rose's mother after an introduction from his blushing hostess. "You will find a silk pattern, also, Mrs. Barton—a slight acknowledgment of your kindness in unconsciously assisting my escape."

"Young man, you did bravely last evening," observed the practical housewife, "and I want to thank you."

Only one thing could come of a bright, sensible young man like Hap meeting a lovely, affectionate country maid like Rose.

It was an engagement, and the silk pattern came in finely for a gown for Mrs. Barton at the wedding.

Rebuke to Which It is Hard to See How the Curate Could Make an Answer.

Bishop Oliphant of Llandaff had a well-to-do young man as curate who had rather sporting instincts. He kept his own horses and always drove tandem. The bishop disapproved, and decided to administer a rebuke on a favorable opportunity. Both the bishop and the curate, each driving in his own way, met near the historic Cow and Snauffers. The bishop, of course, was driving two abreast, and the curate tandem, as usual.

"I really must protest," said the bishop, "at your driving about in such a manner."

"Well, my lord," said the curate, "you are driving two horses, and no am I. What is the difference?"

After a few moments' reflection Bishop Oliphant replied:

"If, when you are at prayers at the cathedral, the congregation placed their hands in the same position as you have placed your horses what would become of the dignity and solemnity of the service?"—London Mail.

Quiet English Parish.

The tiny parish of Clannaborough, North Devon, England, a little village, has a population of only 42, so that baptisms, marriages and burials are not very frequent. The other week the first marriage ceremony for 15 years took place, but even then the couple were not parishioners, the bride coming from St. Austell, the bridegroom, whose home is at Exmouth, being the rector's brother-in-law.

This Job Hunter Certainly Was a Good Guesser

A STORY which is going around the lobbies and cloakrooms at the capitol in these days of scant patronage had its origin at the national capital with Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce.

"It happened at a time when there was keen rivalry for government positions," said Secretary Redfield, "that a young man named Allen desired a place in the postoffice department and applied to his congressman. He was told he could get no place until a vacancy arose. He waited for several weeks and one day, when his money was nearly exhausted, he went down to a beach nearby. There were many people bathing there and among them was a man whom Allen recognized as a clerk in the division which he sought for a place.

"This clerk ventured beyond his depth and was drowned. When the body was brought ashore Allen hurried up to his congressman and exclaimed:

"I can have that job now! There is a vacancy!"

"Where?" said the congressman.

"Why, a clerk in that division was drowned this afternoon."

"The congressman looked at him sadly. 'I regret to inform you,' he said, 'that you are too late; the place has been filled.'

"How can that be?" shouted Allen. "The man has just been drowned!"

"Yes, I know," answered the congressman, "but the place was obtained by a Massachusetts man who saw the clerk go in swimming. He made a correct guess that the clerk could not swim and made his application by telephone ten minutes before the clerk's body was brought to shore."

The Food Route To Steady Health

Many people are kept ill because they do not know how to select food that their own particular bodies will take up and build upon.

What will answer for one will not do for another.

If one is ailing it is safe to change food entirely and go on a plain, simple diet, say:

Some fruit
Dish of Grape-Nuts and Cream
Soft-boiled eggs
Crisp Toast
A Cup of Postum
no more.

Man! But a diet like that makes one feel good after a few days' use.

The most perfectly made food for human use is

Grape-Nuts

Food That Saved When Everything Else Failed.

The food route is a safe and very new road back to health.

"For six years I was a serious sufferer from indigestion and general stomach troubles, from the improperly cooked food in boarding houses and restaurants of which I was a victim.

"During three of the six years I was so bad off nervous prostration set in and I sought relief of a specialist without success. I had gotten so that I could eat almost nothing and was steadily losing flesh.

"Many different foods and preparations were recommended for a trial, without success, and I had become indifferent to all food.

"Some months after seeing your ad in the daily papers about the scientifically prepared food, Grape-Nuts, and its good qualities, and being driven almost to despair by my plight, I skeptically resolved to give Grape-Nuts a trial as a last resort. And I thank God that I did.

"From my first meal of Grape-Nuts I felt a great change for the better; the knot that arose in the chest after meals disappeared; stomach ceased its uneasiness and gradually the nervousness disappeared.

"For about a year I ate Grape-Nuts and cream three times a day and have gained 54 pounds of lost weight and weigh 160 pounds more than I ever did and now do not find any trouble in using my old-time reliables with my Grape-Nuts.

"I expect to be married soon and I do not expect Grape-Nuts to be eliminated from my bill of fare as long as I live. If my testimony will help some poor mortal, please my letter conscientiously where it can be read." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Excavation of Minoan Settlement

LOW the Cretan kings, who held state in the great palaces of Knossos and Phaestos four thousand years ago, there ranked, as we know, vassal and noble families, each of lived on and by a smaller town-district, contributing, doubtless, kind or in service to the treasures, writes D. G. Hogarth in Illustrated News. Such miniatures, dominated by miniature, were laid bare in eastern Crete at Gourni and Palaikastro, by Lord Hawes and the British at Athens; and perhaps the so-called "Royal Villa" at Hagia Triada, by the Italian mission, must be regarded, not as a king's seat, but a very splendid example of a noble's residence, overlooking the sea at the head of the Bay of Suda.

Recently, by the enterprise of the Cretan Department of Antiquities, directed by Dr. J. Hatzidimitriou, another of these settlements has been discovered at the village of Tyllissos, Crete. The place lies some miles west of Knossos in a fertile country which extends to the foot of Mount Ida; and no doubt it was the center of a territorial fief under the Minoan kings by some house.

Large Bronze Vessels. A few years ago it came to the notice of the Ephorate that pieces of Tyllissos were in the habit of buying for building stone to a locality hard by the village, and that the stone procured there was of a peculiarly hard nature. In the process of quarrying they had thrown out quantities of potsherds, and one peasant, fortunate than the rest, had discovered some large bronze vessels, battered and crushed, but complete. These were impounded for the Ephorate, but for a long time supposed to be of Hellenic date. Since, however, systematic excavation has been prosecuted, the whole site has been found to be Minoan, and those vessels must be accounted rare and valuable survivals of the metallurgy of the later Palace Period at Knossos.

It has been laid bare at Tyllissos a group of large residential buildings, which, properly so called, they resemble in type certain vases in great variety have been found, among which are very good examples of that use of natural vegetable forms for stylistic ornament which is characteristic of the early Late Minoan period; and some vessels in stone also have been unearthed of which one, a slender vase in black obsidian, of exquisite form and admirable symmetry, once more fills us with astonished envy of the capacities of Cretan craftsmanship. That such a material as this volcanic glass could be turned with truth by workmen who had no tools but of stone or soft bronze would never be believed, had we not this vase and some other vessels in Egypt to prove the fact. The process must have been almost as slow as a process of nature!

One remarkable statuette in bronze has rewarded the Ephors' labors. It shows a male figure, clad in belted lion-cloth with frontal flap, and standing in an attitude of salutation. He is probably an adorant of the Crean goddess. Many similar figures in similar attitudes have been found elsewhere in the island, notably in the Psychro cave; but none so carefully and scientifically modelled as this. They all seem to have been deposited in shrines and holy places by men desirous to put a vicarious representation of themselves in constant relation with the deity.

If the excavators had found nothing but this statuette, it would have repaid their enterprises. But, in fact, they have found much else, as we have seen, and before they leave Tyllissos, should find yet more.

PRETTY NAMES FOR BOOKS

Real Old-Time Titles Sound Decidedly Strange to the Eye of the Reader Today.

The following are some of the curious titles of old English books:

"Biscuit Baked in the Oven of Charity. Carefully Conserved for the Chickens of the Church, the Sparrows of the Spirit, and the Sweet Swallows of Salvation."

"A Sigh of Sorrow for the Sinners of Zion Breathed Out of a Hole in the Wall of an Earthly Vessel Known Among Men by the Name of Samuel Fish" (a Quaker who had been imprisoned).

"Eggs of Charity Layed for the Chickens of the Covenant and Botted With the Water of Divine Love. Take Ye Out and Eat."

"The Spiritual Mustard Pot to Make the Soul Sneeze With Devotion."

Most of these were published in the time of Cromwell—London Strand.

After a Pleasant Evening. Mr. Sydney Buxton told an amusing story for the purpose of illustrating a point at a recent dinner. A certain convivial soul, who had been invited to dine with a friend, whose house was at the end of a dark and muddy lane, was advised to bring a big lantern. After a very jovial evening the convivial one left and struggled home through the mud, firmly gripping his heavy burden by the handle. Next morning he received this message from his host: "Here with your lantern; please return parrot and cage."

Scorned. "It's true, Miss Plummer, that I should not have tried to kiss you on such a slight acquaintance and I am heartily sorry. What can I do in palliation of my offense?"

"If you are sincere, Mr. Pinhead, in what you say, you might betake yourself to some other part of the lawn and leave the coast clear for a man I see approaching who has the reputation of getting what he goes after."

After the Premiere. "You're a gay kind of a friend!" said Whimperl to Wigglesworth "Laughing like a hyena all through the first act of my tragedy!"

"Tragedy? Tragedy?" echoed Wigglesworth. "Why, Whimperl, old man, I really was trying to help you! I thought all along the darned thing was a very amusing farce!"—Judge.

Rejected. He—Be mine and you will make me the happiest man in the world. She—I'm very sorry; but unfortunately I want to be happy myself.

Bulky. "That fat man over there used to be a page in the Senate."

"A page, eh? Well, he's grown into a volume now."

Knocking, as a profession, is badly overcrowded.

He who has no mind to trade with the devil should be so wise as to keep away from his shop.

Some people carry economy across to excess. A dispatch records attempt of a man to fit new bristles to an old toothbrush.

Can't Buy These. "I suppose your neighbors, the New-riches, have the best of everything." "Yes, except manners."

Conditional. "Figures can't lie." "Well, that depends on whether they are on paper or in a bathing suit."—Exchange.

Tommy's Hands. Ma—Tommy, did you wash your hands this morning? Tommy—I washed one of them, mother. The other didn't need it.

A Steady One. "There is one enterprise into which everybody manages to get." "What is that?" "The directory."

Nothing To It. "I believe in calling a spade a spade." "Guess you might as well, I've never been able to pass one off for a diamond or a heart."

His Idea. Coed—I don't think clothes makes the man! College Man—Nor I. I think it all depends on the cigarettes he smokes.

GROUP OF BUILDINGS EXCAVATED

Found in 1900 in the town of Tyllissos at some distance from the palace, but are larger and richer decorated. The different pieces, having had some architectural connection with one another, have formed a sort of block, as houses of the same age at Melos, were found to be one to the next, and probably represent a family settlement.

and them, but separated, are remnants of a few poorer dwellings, forming a village or hamlet, independent of the palace, and by the villa or retainers, as the case at Hagia Triada. What are now visible are of the Middle and First Late Minoan—that is, the sixteenth century or thereabouts; but there were neoclassical residences and also dwellings in a previous age, the age existed before any noble was built. This point, it is will be cleared up when the excavations in the area surrounding the site have been carried deeper under next season.

Building Features Repeated. Two chief houses of the later period repeat several features of the Minoan and Phaeacian palaces, notably pillared halls and store-rooms. The larger living-rooms seem to have had finely frescoed walls. Fragments of their decorations have been recovered and are now being put together to show groups of the bearing slaves.

The furniture, besides the bronze already alluded to, painted boy racing after the band, the moment the tones of the piano reached his quick ear, he started on a run, and the quick pat-patting of his tiny feet announced his approach. He would circle about the piano and, with a fluff-fluff of his short wings, mount to the keyboard. The little square corner at its end was his opera chair, where he cuddled down contentedly as long as the music continued, at times expressing his appreciation by a contented, soft, purring sound.—Suburban Life.

Changed His Mind. When the old farmer entered the "bucket shop" he was angry all over. "I don't think I'll invest a cent with you," he ejaculated. "I just heard by you, that you handle watered stocks." The fake broker was nonplussed for the moment. Quickly recovering his composure, however, he slapped the old farmer on the back and said in his most lubricated tones: "My dear sir, of course our stocks are watered. We water them through precaution."

"Precaution?"

"Yes; in these days of fierce germs and ferocious microbes we can't be too particular. That is why we put too of our stock through a hot-water process before putting it on the market."

And the old farmer was so tickled he put up another thousand dollars.

Defining It. "Why do they call the prison where they have been having so much trouble Sing Sing?"

"On account of its many jailbirds."

IT'S THE BEST POLISH I EVER USED. Image of a woman in a dress. Text: That's What Every One Says Who Tries Black Silk Stove Polish.

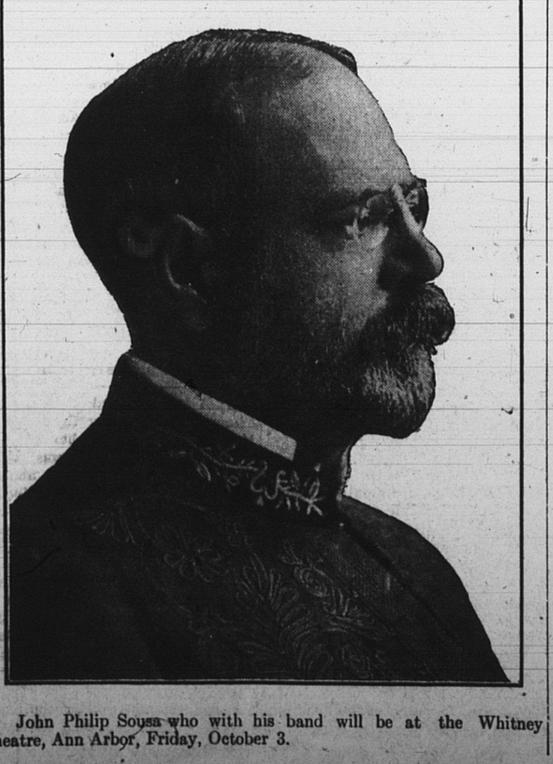

Black Silk Stove Polish. DON'T imagine for a moment that all brands of stove polish are the same. Don't get the idea that to keep a nice glossy shine on your stove you must black it every few days. It's not a question of oft-repeated application. Black Silk Stove Polish is so much better than other stove polishes that there is absolutely no comparison-it's in a class all by itself. It makes a brilliant glossy shine that does not rub or dust off. It anneals to the iron-becomes a part of the stove. It makes old stoves look like new and lasts four times as long as any other shine. It costs you no more than the ordinary kind, so why not have the best. Made in liquid or paste-one quality. Ask Your Dealer for Black Silk Stove Polish and refuse a counterfeit brand. Not have the best. Made in liquid or paste-one quality. Black Silk Stove Polish Works, Sterling, Ill. Use Black Silk Air-Drying Enamel for grates, fenders, registers, stove pipes, etc. Prevents rusting. Not affected by heat or cold. Produces a permanent glossy black surface. Can, with brush for applying enamel, only 25 cents. Ask your dealer. Use Black Silk Metal Polish for nickel, brass, silverware or tinware. It has no equal for use on automobiles.
