Do you know the bank and church should go hand in hand in helping young men to lead good moral, honest. honorable lives. The young men who disgrace their families and the community never have a bank book in their pocket. The young man who weekly deposits a portion of his earnings, seldom, if ever, sows many "wild oat." unders Which Prove Costly to Pro ducers of Estables and Serious to Customers, Sometimes Resulting in Death,

If the proprietor of a restaurant ever has a nightmare, it is to the effect that some poisonous ingredient has cidentally found its way into a dish and that the papers are full of bloodcurdling accounts of the sufferings and death of his clients.

About five years ago nearly a score of people were badly pelsoned after dining in the restaurant of a well they are so large.-Ex. known West Central hotel in London, and although the source of the polso was never accurately traced—all that was discovered being that it was some form of ptomaine poisoning—yet to this day that restaurant has hardly recovered its former popularity.

More recently a blunder was made in a London fried fish shop. Engine oil was, in some extraordinary fashsubstituted for the cottonseed oil which is commonly used for frying fish. This mistake proved absolutely fatal to the business, and after a time the proprietor was forced to close his

Oddly enough, a very similar incident has just come to light in another large town. On the morning of March 7 last a baker made the alarming discovery that the vegetable oil which he had used in making his fancy bread and pastry overnight had been delivered to him in a barrel which had been previously used for storing kero-

The moment he heard of the blunder he rushed off and engaged the services of six doctors and a dozen carts. The carts were sent round the town to retrieve the bad bake, while the doctors gave their services free to any customers who had already partaken of the poisoned food.

Most readers will remember the Freezing to death is preceded by a arsenic-in-beer epidemic of 1902. This was the most extensive poisoning on record in England. It was four months before the uathorities realized what the matter was, and by that time there were over a thousand cases in five counties, and 51 deaths had taken

The source of all the trouble was a minute quantity of arsenic in the beer supplied by a Manchester brewer. It was no fault of the firm, for analysis of the liquor showed that the arsenic originally came from glucose which had been made with impure sulphuric fort on the part of the functions to acid. It was the acid which contained In the year following the great arsenic poisoning came the oyster phoid fever at Winchester and at Portsmouth. The fever was traced to oysters, and the result was that for some time oysters were almost unsalable. PRESIDENT WILSON REFUSES OFFICIAL ENDORSEMENT TO THE REFORM.

LIMITS HIMSELF TO PLEDGE OF PLATFORM.

Delegation of Women Who Call or the Chief Executive Are Told That He Cannot Urge Cause Upon Congress.

Washington.-President Wilson on Monday told a delegation from the National American Women's Suffrage association that he favored a Noted Arctic explorer has become standing woman's suffrage committee in the nouse of representatives, but he denied their request that he send a special message to congress urging the reform.

Marching by twos and fours, with banners affoat, the suffragists braved DETROIT HAS GREAT GROWT chill winds of a raw day to storm the White House offices. They were soon ushered into the president's private office and formed in a circle about Mr. Wilson.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the association, summarized briefly their appeal to the president to assist the movement either by sending a special message to congress by including reference to suffrage in any general message he might deliver, or by using his influence to have a special committee of the house appointed to consider the subject.

"I want you ladies, if possible," said the president to the delegation, "if I can make it clear to you, to realize just what my present situation is. Whenever I walk abroad I realize that I am not a free man. I am under arrest. I am so carefully and admirably guarded that I have not even the privilege of walking the streets. That is, as it were, typical of my present transference, from being an individual with his mind on any and every subject, to being an official of a great government, and incidentally, so it falls out, under our system of government, the spokesman of a party.

DR. DIXON SAYS NEWSPAPERS SHOULD BE BOOSTED. NOT KNOCKED.

ARE WILLING TO HELP CREATE HEALTHY SENTIMENT.

State Bacteriologist M. L. Holm Contributes An Excellent Article On Ptomaine Poisoning and Its Causes.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing-"Too much knocking and not enough boosting is banded the newspapers," said Dr. R. L. Dixon, secretary of the state board of health in discussing the means of enforcing the new legislation for health conservation and educating the people along canitary lines.

"The legislature of 1913 enacted some excellent legislation, passed some laws that may be of great value in health conservation, if public sentiment will respond to the spirit of the enactments," declared Dr. Dixon. "Laws however, are not self-enforcing. When there is a demand for laws and a public sentiment requiring their enforcement the work of the legislation becomes efficacious. But the enactment only of laws to the support of which public sentiment does not rally is of doubtful value. The value to the public than of good laws is predicated upon an efficient, ever active healthy public sentiment.

"To make good laws is a great, commendable act; to make possible their enforcement is greater. It is apparent, then, that the enactment and enforcement of law are mutually dependent; that public sentiment steps in where legislation stops. Indeed, if public sentiment were alive to the necessity of sanitary safeguards in relation to communicable diseases, their restriction and origin, the enactment of specific laws in relation thereto would be superfluous. The act of the legislature is initiative, the enforcement of the act remedial. The law is the creature of public sentiment and, likewise, its enforcement.

The legislature enacted them in response to a demand of the people and to the people we must look for their enforce-

"Public sentiment must be developed, educated and directed so as to aid in the enforcement of sanitary legislation. Our commissioners of schools, teachers, women's clubs, granges, homes, schools, churches and newspapers should be active agents in a propaganda for a virile public sentiment in the development of a sanitary law enforcement. Nearly all these agencies have done and are doing excellent work. But this work has been somewhat wanting in a well though out course to follow. Some county commissioners of schools have suggested papers and lectures upon sanitation for teachers' institutes. summer schools and associations. Grange lecturers have suggested that sanitary subjects be placed upon the programs of grange meetings. An excellent suggestion comes to us from There has been a like increase of members of women's clubs that a knowledge but often wealth and health day program be given occasion- knowledge have been horded up-have ally to which the public be invited not been placed in circulation. and asked to take part. These are all excellent suggestions and calculated to create a healthy public sanitary sentiment. The newspapers are always pleased to report the papers and lectures of all meetings held by the associations which have been referred to if they can get them. Publicity is a great means whereby sanitary sentiment may be developed. We do not use the newspapers enough. Too much knocking and not enough boosting is handed them. These public educators of the people publish what their readers want to read. It is up to the public to select what it wants to appear in the newspapers. The editors would prefer to publish sanitary information rather than divorce scandals and prize fights, if the public were as much interested in the former as the latter. Give the newspapers a chance to create a public sanitary sentiment and they will do their part in preparing the public to assist in law enforcement race betterment, home, school and government betterment which must come through of education in schools and the great school out of school. Law enforcement will come through the co-operation of a healthy sanitary sentiment which depends upon a broad socialusually in that the food has been standing on contact with some metal, as copper, tins, zinc, lead or iron. The presence of traces was formerly suggessed by some chemists in explanation of certain causes of poison

"More recently it has been shown that uch metals when found are present only in traces and not in sufficient quanity to produce serious results. The true cause of such food poisoning is found in the byproducts of bacterial growth. Such products are frequently highly poisonous and commonly known as ptomaines.

"Ptomaine poisoning results when a class of food known as protoid, of which meat is the most important type, is consumed after being acted upon by bacteria. In order to produce the greatest amount of poison, it is necessary for such bacteria to be inclosed within the food and not directly exposed to air. Most cases of ptomaine poisoning, therefore, occur with food that has been chopped, congress were sustained by a final rehashed, ground, or otherwise disintegrated, thus carrying bacteria to cial "lobbying" investigation. The the interior.

"Sausages and preparations such as creamed chicken, meat pie, Irish stew. etc., are among the most frequent to cause ptomaine poisoning for that reason. Some of the seafoods as clams, oysters, etc., frequently contain large numbers of bacteria in their interior and may also produce ptomaine poisoning when exposed to tiply rapidly Recently in one instance over 40 persons were made sick from eating creamed chicken that had been served at a public supper two days after it had been prepared. In another instance about 60 people were made seriously ill by eating meat pie under similar condi-

"It appears to be a common practice before church suppers, picnics and similar functions to prepare the meats a couple of days before hand in order to avoid a rush at the last minute. It is largely due to this practice that ptomaine poisoning at such functions is so frequent. There would be nothing wrong in cooking any kind of meat product a day or two before it is served if the cooks would let it alone and leave it covered in the original vessel in which it was boiled until read for use. But in attempting to transfer or handle the product, bacteria are pretty sure to be introduced and lack of refrigeration permits the bacteria to multiply and produce the "The sanitary laws enacted by the poisonous byproducts that will destroy the bacteria themselves but will

"Improvements in municipal governments are slow to establish. This is due to poor leadership, foreign elements unused to liberty and a low civic standard.

"The movement from country to city is not confined to the United States although we are rapidly becoming a nation of cities. The grave problem confronting many nations now is the city where wealth is being amassed and it is there that the highest order of intelligence is needed to confront problems which threaten our national life.

"The increase of wealth within the past half century is simply enormous.

"The development of the United States has been along state and national lines rather than along municipal lines and this is so today. The principles of national and state ernment are well settled and clearly defined but those of municipal government are confused and uncertain. We are as yet in the experimental stage and need the insight and genius of the highest statesmanship to solve the new and complex problems of the "Homes are disappearing in the city at the two social extremes. Among the "money bags" hotel and club life is being substituted for home life. At the other extreme we have the tenements.

The Real Spirit of Christmas.

How often have I heard the word: I wish I were rich at Christmastime, for then I could do so much for others," writes Margaret Woodward in an article on the problem of Christmas giving, in Suburban Life. "How strange it is that we never seem to learn the lesson that it'is not the giving of things, but the giving of self, that counts! It is the spirit of Christmas which we must strive

EASY DISHES.

Food that can be prepared at short notice, and simple menus for a quick meal, the recipes for which should be close at hand.

One of the most enjoyable soups may be made in a short time if a can of tomatoes, a little milk and seasonings are to be had. One reason why many women lose their heads in an emergency is the idea that they have no background to begin on. Have a list of dishes for a quick meal, with ingredients printed in two columns, so that a quick glance will tell you if you have all the materials.

This is the time of year when we are making our plum puddings, and fruit cake, our mince meat and little cakes which are improved by age. If one has a simple suet pudding which may be easily steamed in a hurry over the teakettle in a sieve, a sauce is prepared and your dessert is ready. Woe to the housewife who does not keep many cans of tomatoes on hand for all kinds of dishes. These, if put up by oneself, cost half as much as those you buy. A dish of het, well seasoned tomatoes poured over buttered toast and sprinkled with cheese will make a quick and most tast; luncheon or supper dish. Milk toast is another easy to make supper or luncheon dish. Add cheese to the white sauce just before serving, and that makes a change. A little cold ham chopped and added to the white sauce is an acceptable change.

Some cooks who are good planners have the pepper and salt mixed together in a shaker where it is in reach of the hand. This saves at least two movements of the arm. Where powdered sugar and cinnamon are used for coffee cake, a flour dredge may be kept stocked with the mixture. When preparing pastry, mix up enough for several pies; do not wet the flour, but take out the amount needed, and put the rest in a cool place until wanted.

Have bread crumbs ready in a jar, have new spice and powder cans less waste when in the rush of preparing a quick meal.

Fish is one of the quick foods that may be ready to serve in half an hour.

The best things are nearest-beneath your nostrils, light in your eyes, flowers at your feet, duties at your hand, the path of God just before you. Then do not grasp at the stars, but do life's plain, common work as it comes, certain that daily duties and daily bread are the sweetest things of life. -Lord Houghton.

TOOTHSOME DISHES.

If one likes to delight a guest with an unusual salad, and who does not? here is one worth trying: Lay a slice of banana on a crisp nest of lettuce. heap it with banana put through a ricer, and well mixed with lemon juice, sprinkled with chopped pecan meats and serve with a mayonnaise dressing. If one does not care for an oil dressing, there are any number of boiled dressings which are simple to prepare and have the good keeping quality. Equal parts of beaten egg and diluted vinegar cooked in a double boiler, and such seasonings, richness of dream of condiments added when used, is one of the good stand-bys.

Cherry and Date Dessert .- Put a pint of cherry juice in a cup of hot water, the juice of half a lemon and cup of sugar over the fire. When boiling, add two level tablespoonfuls of gelatine which has been softened in water. Cool and stir, setting the pan in ice water when slightly thickened, wet a mold and put the gelatine mixture in alternate layers with a cup of stoned dates. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Date Torte.—Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff, add the beaten yolks and a cup of sugar, a cup of bread crumbs and a teaspoonful of vanilla and a half cup of chopped nuts. Bake twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with whipped its species ever brought to Fleetwood The tunny belongs to the mackerel family, laving somewhat the appearance of a gigantic mackerel, and is a rare visitor to British waters. It is a southern fish, particularly abundant in I thought mebbe Josh would have the Mediterranean, where the fisheries are of great antiquity, and is today much in demand for its edible qualities in the countries bordering on that sea. The Phoenicians established extensive fisheries for tunny, and as an indication of their value the tunny appears on the medals of Cadiz and Carteia. Unfortunately, the specimen here shown is wrinkled in the lower portion of the body, owing to its not being hoisted clear of the ground when being photographed, and the fish is leaning on its tail, consequently wrinkling it. A tunny weighing three and a half hundredweight and about eight feet long. and another specimen of the same species said to be "just under 12 feet in length," and weighing six and a half hundredweight, were caught in the North sea and landed at East Coast fishing ports during the month of September this year. The Mediterranean tunny is allied to the tuna of the Californian coast, and both these fish may be obtained in this country preserved in tins.

Quaker Tea Cakes .- Take two cupfuls of rolled oats, one cupful of sugar, two eggs beaten slightly, one-fourth of a cup of butter, a teaspoonful of baking powder and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Drop on a buttered pan an inch apart. Bake in a moderate oven.

RATTLER OBJECTED TO PLAN

Refused to Furnish Colorado Girl With a Snake Belt and a Tragedy Nearly Results.

Denver. Colo.-Her anxiety to have rattlesnake skin belt almost cost the life of Miss Grace Glasspool when a snake she supposed was dead suddenly showed itself very much alive and struck at her.

Miss Glasspool was out riding when she came across the rattler sunning itself in the highway. The girl alighted from the buggy and attacked the snake with the whip, apparently killing it. She placed it in the vehicle and drove to town. When she pulled the snake from its place it fell to the ground, coiling and striking at her. Her heavy riding skirt caught the fangs, probably saving her life. Bystanders killed the snake with a hatchet and Miss Glasspool still has hopes of eventually owning a snake

Old Game Provides Stop-Gap Between Afternoon Tea and Dinner for Britishers.

London.-Many society hostesses are experiencing difficulty in providing some new form of entertainment, especially in that difficult period to fillbetween afternoon tea and dinner. Consequently there is now a distinct revival of dominoes.

Some of the dominoes are extremely elegant, ivory of the finest quality or of mother of pearl, while the boxes to hold them are equally ornate. How completely dominoes had died out is shown by the fact that some hostesses could not find anyone among their parties who could play the game.

GET KNOWLEDGE

EVERY MAN SHOULD EXERCISE MIND BY THINKING.

earning Comes Through Our Senso Which Are to the Mind and Body What Reporter is to Whatever knowledge we have we ave obtained it in two ways, Thomas Drier writes in the Nautilus. The irst is inheritance. The second is acquisition. With that which we obtained from our ancestors we had nothing to do. We are not concerned with the past. We are vitally inter ested in the present.

All knowledge must be obtained to day by one or more of the five senses Through the avenues of seeing, hearing, touching, smelling and tasting come all our sensations. The quality and number of sensations depend upon the kind of sense organs we have.

The man with weak eyes can never obtain through sight the knowledge obtained by the man with eyes that are strong. The man whose sense of taste has been impaired, say, by indulgence, cannot obtain the sense of satisfaction of the man whose taste is cultivated and trained to report ac. of the Sunday school. curately.

Our senses are to the mind and body what reporters are to a great newspaper. Each has a special department. One covers police, another the drama and entertainment, and so on. Each is a specialist. The more efficient, the better trained, the more educated each reporter is in his special department of reporting, the stronger will be the stories and articles he will turn in to his paper.

The strength and power of the paper is but combined strength and power of the work of the reporters. The truthfulness of the paper is the sum of the truthfulness of reporters.

The new story written by the reporter with weak eyes will lack strength and accuracy just as the eyes of the reporter lacked strength and accuracy. As the matter which is printed in the newspaper is the result of the work of the reporters so is the matter printed on the mind the work of the five senses.

To build the muscles of the body we require wholesome food and proper exercise. No matter how wholesome the food, no matter how much or how little we eat, we cannot have strong, healthy bodies unless we take proper exercise

So with the mind. No matter how rich the mental food the senses may bring to the mind, no good can be accomplished unless the mind is exersed, is used in serving some purpose, is employed in doing some work.

Let us use our newspaper figure to illustrate. If a newspaper employed the greatest staff of reporters in the world, if each was a master in his line, if each one had no superior anywhere, if each wrote stories and articles that had never been equaled, if the stories sent in were such as to command the interest of the entire city-if these reporters did all and were all things and these articles were printed in the paper in the most attractive typographical manner, and the papers were then stored in a vault in the basement, would that newspaper have any influence, would its circulation grow, would advertisers clamor for space in its columns?

Blanche Ring, the foremost of our singing comediennes, is scheduled for Monday evening, December 15th, at the New Whitney Theatre in her latest musical comedy success "When Claudia Smiles" written for her by Anne Caldwell, author of "The Lady of the Slipper" in which Elsie Janis and Montgomery and Stone has scored such a great success. Miss Ring was taken very ill just before her engagement in Ann Arbor last season and was forced to cancel. To in a manner make up for that she has rearranged her route to include Ann Arbor. -

"When Claudia Smiles" is said to be of the best of its class of entertainment. It has fun in plenty, good, clean, wholesome tun, presented by clever people. It has a succession of merry songs, a gorgeous production, a strong company, lots of pretty girls and beautiful gowns of the latest fashions, but best of all, it has Blanche Ring. This cheery star is one of the very few really funny women performers; she has personality, a splendid sense of humor and a magnetism that makes every point

Miss Ring is fortunate in having Harry Conor as chief associate in the delightful foolery of "When Claudia Smiles" and this distinctive comedian is most happily cast in the role of an elderly admirer of Claudia, the show girl, enacted by Miss Ring. Dainty Marion Sunshine, formerly of Tempest and Sunshine, will win all hearts by her singing and graceful dancing. The entire company is much above the average as is also the production. exceptionally strong, in fact quite addition to Harry Conor and Sunshine the principals include Bertha Mann, Florence Edney, Nellie Fillmore, Harry Hilliard, Charles J. Winninger, Mahlon Hamilton, John J. Scannell, R. M. Dolliver and Jack Young. The

CHAPTER II.

The Girl and the Waiter.

At seven o'clock, in immaculate evening attire, Holton set out from his club and sallied forth to the Willard. After studying the menu lovingly, and having devised a dinner suitable to the palate of one who had followed the lure of Epicurus in Vienna, Paris, and London, he turned from the card and lighting a eigarette and sipping a cocktail, he gazed about the room.

At one table he saw the French ambassador and a company of his Gallic friends. Near by young Pembroke, of the British embassy, was dining a girl Holton had met. To his left sat a dark-skinned, sleek-appearing man with close-cropped Vandyke beard. He had been pointed out to Holton in Paris as a man who had plans of German forts at Kiel for sale. The young officer wondered what he was doing

Altogether the atmosphere, Holton decided, was just as it should be, just as the capital of a country should act when the government stands on the brink of international war.

Holton had just dispatched his first oyster when his attention was attracted by a musical little laugh to a table about twenty feet away from him. A girl, slightly above the medium height, with slender resilient figure, was standing with her back to him, talking to her escort, a well-built man of fifty odd, with iron-gray hair and beard, and the dark features of the Latin. She was a beauty. Holton, connoisseur of femininity though he was, admitted that without hesitation. Her hair was not the coal-black hair of her race, but a shining, golden deep brown, which lay upon her head in thick, waving convolutions. Her eyes were blue-gray, set off by long, dark lashes, and fine brows, which ran with delicate arches to the straight, finely modeled nose. Her lips were colored by nature, pure coral, and her teeth flashed as she spoke.

"It's absurd, father, for you to mind. I can wait here as well as anywhere else—although I shan't promise not to occupy myself by dining." The father shrugged.

"Well," he said at length. "it is quite necessary, Ranee, and I shan't be gone long, but if you mind I'll take to the desk." you back to the hotel."

"Rats," commented Holton. "Do you "Not at all, not all," she protested. wish him arrested?" he added, glanc-"It's so bright and interesting here, ing at the girl. The young woman thought a moment and then shook her head. "No, thank you, I think not." she

I think we were introduced. La most to carelessness, she had tossed a gold mesh hand-bag on the table, and now as she glanced over the card It was quite concealed from her view.

Holton returned to his oysters, not, however, neglecting occasional glances at the radiant creature who had been left, as he inwardly phrased it, high and dry by her father.

But you do not remember me, and so "I should think," he murmured, "that you do." he'd be afraid someone would steal "All right," said Holton, "I won't. her. I—I, by George! I'd like to, you But—but you will not think me pre-

Which thought thrilled him out of all proportion to the amount of good all proportion to the amount sense it contained. It was at about this point that Folton's gaze fell usen this point that Folton's gaze fell usen this point that Holton's gaze the waiter attending the young woman. He was one of those interesting percons to be seen occasionally in great restaurants who seem to be above their calling. There was a hidden something, passing phases of facial expression, a certain movement of the shoulders, and above all, a firm-footed but light tread, all of which seemed to Holton to indicate a man misplaced.

He felt certain of this a moment later, when the girl again lifted the menu and the waiter stepped to the corner of the table, upon which the gold bag lay. With a quick snakelike movement his hand shot out and seized the bag. Then, hardly lifting his fingers from the table, he snapped his wrist upward and the bag flew under the lapel of his jacket, which had been held open to receive it by the other hand. Another instant and he was in front of the girl receiving her order with the utmost sang froid.

Holton wasted no time in thought. Quickly springing up he approached ing, and I do not wish you to think the young woman's table, and nodding to her as to an old acquaintance, he placed his hand lightly upon the waiter's@arm.

"Wait a moment," said Holton pleasantly.

The girl in the meantime had been staring at the young officer in wideeyed wonderment. "What-what does this mean?" she asked finally.

"Your bag," said Holton quietly, was on this table, was it not?" The girl leaned forward with a gasp.

"Why-why, yes," she said. "Whyit's gone." She looked up at Holton with startled eyes. "It's gone," she repeated, her voice beginning to rise. Holton smiled reassuringly and nod-

"Please don't be alarmed," he said. "it is all right." He turned to the waiter. "This man evidently regarded your bag as among the debris to be cleared from the table. Rather stupid, of course, but then, if he were not stupid he wouldn't be a waiter, you know." "What do you mean, sir!" exclaimed

> While Holton was engaged in thought Miss La Tossa's waiter, as though to make up for his misconduct, proved a most excellent servitor. He seemed, in fact, to take especial pride in attending to the service with all the skill at his command, with the result that the girl, who was in large degree

an epicure, rewarded him with a pleas

Her father joined her at coffee, and it was then, while waiting for an or-der, that this strange waiter penciled the following telegram upon a pad which he carried in his pocket:

"Holton at Willard. Scorpion evidently not going to Key West. Failed with girl. But all working well." This went to Key West. The waiter returned to the dining-room, and spent all his spare time standing within earshot of the table at which Miss La. Tossa and her father were seated. The two were guests at the hotel:

Just before they arose the father said something which brought the waiter rigid. He listened for the reply, and then with a broad smile he hurried to the serving-table for fingerbowls, as demanded by a fussy gentleman at a table in front of him.

As for Holton, he was smoking a long cigar and, gazing thoughtfully at the ceiling, trying to determine where he had seen the face of that waiter bebe so nice to be like other girls. But When Holton entered the ballroom father and I are birds of passage, here of the Willard the orchestra from beone day, there the next. I shall be so hind its shelter of palms was sending forth the stirring notes of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes," whose popularity was then at the apex, and the floor was filled with whirling couples. A few minutes late, all other thoughts flashed from his mind as the girl he had met in the restaurant passed in at the door on the arm of her father. She was smiling animatedly, and was at once surrounded by a group of young men, mainly foreigners, all clamoring for one or more dances.

"By George!" ejaculated Holton under his breath. "I'm for that young lady without any doubt at all."

Twice he started to move toward said; "but, no-these things cannot her, only to be anticipated by some equally ardent young gallant, and it was not until the music of a waltz had

Stepping quickly across the floor, he confronted her with a bow, seeing which the partner bowed in turn and disappeared. "Mr. Apple-Mr. Holton!" she exclaimed. "What a surprise!" "Not an unpleasant one, I hope," smiled Holton in reply.

"Of course not," she answered, placing her card in the officer' outstretched hand.

"Thank you." Holton glanced quickly down the list of names. "I see the twelfth, thirteenth, and fourteenth dances are not taken. May I have

Holton was about to reply when a man in diplomatic British uniform approached, bowed stiffly, and bore the girl away. She looked back at Holton over her shoulder. "Adios!" she called.

Houghton and Calumet and Environs Are Aroused at Latest Strike Outbreaks and Decide to Enforce Law.

Calumet, Mich.—Learning that Gov. Ferris is determined to send no more troops into the copper strike zone, citizens of Houghton, Calumet and villages in this vicinity have decided to organize law and order leagues in an endeavor to cope with lawlessness that has resulted in several deaths, burning of houses, and the dynamiting of trains and mine property. Among the younger element there is a movement to take up arms in an effort to oust the strike agitators. Already 100 armed young men are organized at Houghton, ready at a moment's notice to fight law breakers. At a meeting of representatives of the "law and order" committees, held Wednesday, definite plans for action were formulated. A guerilla warfare is predicted. The return of George H. Nicholls, appointed by Gov. Ferris as assistant prosecutor in strike cases, is awaited and the brigade, that, when at its average complement, numbers between 800 and 900, make for their rooms, for these few minutes left them before recitations begin, are the only period for them to put their rooms in order for the daily inspection that begins at 10 a. m. At 8, study and recitation periods commence. They are of one hour each. If a midshipman has a recitation, he, with the other members of the section, somewhere in the neighborhood of 10, assemble at the proper place, and march off in military order to the section room where the instructor awaits them. All stand recitation, the section march back to their quarters, are dismissed, and each midshipman goes to his room. In these marches to and fro the ranking midshipman takes command. This rank may be held by appointment as a cadet officer or may arise from being the leading scholor. If it should happen that only two are in the section. the ranking midshipman assumes command, marches his "company" and himself off and brings him back, halts the squad, brings his one man to attention, and announces "Squad dismissed!" as though there were a hundred in his command. Everything is military here. When a midshipman usher at chapel service, escorts a visitor to his or her pew, he halts at the place selected, turns on his military heel like a pivot, and assumes a martial "attention" until the guest is seated. The brigade comes into church in regular order, the superintendent has his appointed position, and no one leaves the chapel after service until been regularly dismissed.

. If a midshipman should have no recitation during any of the morning period, he must stay in his room, and it is a serious offense to visit, or receive visitors during study hours, or even to leave the floor to get a drink of water if none happens to be in the cooler on that floor. Yet midshipmen will detection. One day an officer of the department of discipline, that branch of the work of the academy that has in charge, whose business is, said one of the officers, "to know at all times where every midshipman is, and to be able to put your finger on him," made an inspection of one of the rooms. He saw by the manner of the two occupants of the apartment that something was wrong. He could not ask the midshipmen themselves what they were doing that was irregular, so he looked was the matter. The next day the midshipmen in the secret were greatly amused to see on the morning report: ing officer coming, he had only time to run behind the wardrobe door, and, as it was not long enough to cover him, his feet stuck below it. Then he is a slave to it, until the supper formation, after which 9:30 p. m. gun fire relieves the midshipman from his studies and he has a half-hour to glance over the evening newspaper, write a letter, visit a friend tell a yarn, search up a "plebe" for a song or a dance, and then to bed by taps, 10 p. m., when the bugle sounds, and down the corridors echoes the call. "All lights out!" A few moments later the inspection begins, and should a midshipman have been tardy in disrobing, he jumps into bed, boots and all, and covers up to his chin, until the inspecting officer looks in and sees until he is seated. At the end of the all hands accounted for, then the belated one rises and undresses at his leisure.

If he is behind in his studies, an ambitious midshipman will have secured the contraband lamp, and then he will rise, tack a gum blanket over his transom, light his lamp, burn his midnight oil and be ready for the next morning's recitation when it comes Sometimes the authorities allow night study parties to stay up until 11, and then they work and move by written rules in slippered feet so as not to arouse the faithful sleepers who have been more diligent and have justly earned the slumber they are getting.

"We invested all we had, Abner." "So, let us make the best of it," smiled her optimistic husband. "We are started right, we will give clean, meritorious entertainment, and-we are bound to win!"

It was a peculiar position in which the Vances found themselves. Two months previously they had sold out a little general store business that had given them a bare living for twenty years and enabled them to give their only daughter, Helen, an excellent musical education.

A relative in the south had been the cause of a sudden determination on the part of these worthy, credulous people that had altered the whole current of their lives. He was something of a plunger and speculator, of the Marine quarters, a mile north this hint was enough for the keen-eyed with the motto: "Get in first on the new things." He had made a lucky investment in a motion picture show and was fast acquiring a fortune.

"We'll sell out, find a nice, respectable location in some pretty home town and go into the business," decided Mr. Vance. "I'll learn how to operate the films, you can take in the tickets and Helen-why, with her lovely voice and fine piano playing, she'd be half the show."

So, pride and novelty carried the Vances away from their usual sober judgment and here they were now, discussing the results as proprietors of the "Palace" photo playhouse at Malden.

They found a poor, cheap motion picture show in the town when they started in, but it catered to a secondclass clientele. There was a vacant hall in the place that Mr. Vance covjust in time to save themselves from long "hikes" in the country under com- eted, but the rent was too high. The

The Vances had arranged some cozy living rooms at the rear of the playhouse. It was comfortable and homelike and a palace to the old people when Helen, with her happy, cheery ways, was about. Just now she had taken some children home from the An unhatched crocodile, according show and was expected back at any moment.

"What was that?" suddenly exclaimed Mrs. Vance, and her husband sprang to his feet as a scream echoed out in the yard back of them.

"It's Helen!" cried her husband and ran to the door, tore it open and his daughter burst into the room, pale with affright.

"What is it?" gasped her mother in

"I-stumbled over a man-maybe dead, I don't know!" shuddered Helen. "It was so-so unexpected, so startling that I lost my wits."

In a strange, subdued manner, the young man grew into their family and in Western Canada for the following business lives. They fixed up a room for him behind the playhouse stage and when he got so he could move around on crutches placed him in charge of the little ticket booth.

Adrian Noble would set his eyes fixed upon Helen as she practiced the music for the entertainments. He rarely spoke to her, yet when she was away from the family group he would watch the door restlessly for her reappearance.

When he could get around more freely, Noble began to take a rare interest in the business. He suggested improvements in the character of the films, he was the distributor of of these in the matter of practical some unique advertising that brought in the audiences. He invented a "noise piano," as he called it, placed behind the stage. As the projector threw scenes upon the screen, he gave a vivid accompaniment that fairly electrified the audiences.

Thus: a horse trotting, a railroad bell ringing, a storm, the clatter of a wagon, a blacksmith's anvil-by means of wooden, metal and whistle accessories, timed just right, he illustrated the motion pictures in a new

With brighter business prospects. Mr. Vance still longed for the big hall in the center of the town. He talked about it incessantly and it interested Noble. One day the latter came to Helen with a grave, earnest face. "Will you write something for me?"

through with the old folly. I want your hand to inscribe the promise I shall never break."

Two days later Noble disappeared mysteriously from the playhouse. Helen never dreamed she could so miss him. He walked in upon them just after the entertainment Saturday night, a new being in apparel and manner. "There is the lease of the hall for a year, all paid for and made out in your name," he said quietly, handing a folded document to his host. "What does this mean?" stared the astonished Mr. Vance.

"I went to my father with that pledge and a truthful, manly story,' replied Noble. "He bade me return to the true hearts of gold who had wrought the miracle of my reformais always with us. How are you going to vote?" This election eve inquiry was found attached to a large gray homing pigeon which fell exhausted in Central park near the menagerie and was picked up by Daniel Burns, who has charge of the aviary. A small brass ring encircled the pigeon's neck, to which was fastened an aluminum tag with the initials "J. M." and below them the letters "L. I." The election query was written on a small piece of paper which was attached to the tag.

Burns gave the bird some food and water and after three-quarters of an hour's rest it was liberated. The pigeon rose straight up in the air to a high altitude and then headed south. It was thought that the pigeon's home was in Philadelphia, and the strawberry reference was to a famous remark of James McNichol, the Republican organization boss there, who, at the height of his power, once said: "As a boy I was glad to get pork and beans. New I have strawberries and oream."-New York Times.

COLLEGES.

Scientific farming can be pursued with more profit and advantage in Western Canada, probably than in any other portion of the continent. What may be achieved by it may be ascertained when it is known what has been accomplished by the thousands who have been following the occupation for some time and made a success of it with not even a theore he met the beautiful eyes of Helen | tical knowledge. They "have tickled the land with a hoe" and become rich. But the question is how long could "The penniless part of it needn't that continue. The soil and the cliworry you, if you are resolute to work | mate and every other condition favor great results by a pursuit of such methods as a technical and practical knowledge will bring. There is in the writer's opinion no possibility of failure. Fully aware of this and also of the great potentialities that exist of the profession of farming, as it could be developed and carried on in Western Canada, the various governments have established the machinery, that there may be developed a class of farmers, who in the possession of the rich soil of that country, with its abundant humus and its phosphates and other eproperties with which it is so largely endowed, will make of the country, the greatest farming portion of the known world. The Dominion government showed its paternalism years ago when it established experimental farms in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The benefits education have been widespread, but the greatest benefit is to be observed in the immediate vicinity of these farms, where the occupants have brought their holdings into a high state of cultivation, and year after year sees an added value.

The Province of Manitoba is supplementing this work by its excellent agricultural college, manned by professors of the highest standing in their various branches. That this work is appreciated is shown by the large attendance, not only of the farmer's sons, but by the farmer himself and also by the sons of business men and professors who intend following farming as a profession, and that is what it is fast becoming.

The Province of Saskatchewan alive to the necessity of a higher and a better system of farming, has in connection with its university an agricultural college and what it is do ing today in the matter of education will be felt for all time to come, and easy matter to pick out the farms manned by graduates of this college, or the farms owned by those who have gained from the experience taught by their neighbor.

The same may be said of Alberta. The university at Edmonton has a complete agricultural college. Full advantage of this is taken by hundreds of students anxious to better their agricultural knowledge, and fit them to take hold successfully of the lands that they expect to occupy. This province has also added demonstration farms in various parts, which are very successful, inasmuch as farmers visit them from all parts, and take advantage of educating themselves for short periods during each winter.

Dean Curtiss of Ames Agricultural College, Iowa, says:

"We of the United States think that we know how to get behind agriculture and push, but the Canadians some respects. They have wonderful faith in the future; they hesitate at no undertaking that offers prospects of results. More significant still is the wide co-operation for agricultural promotion, including the government, private individuals and corporations and the railroads."

"Canadians are putting great faith in education for the development of their resources-not the old education, but vocational and technical. Provinces that have less than half the population of Iowa and much less wealth are appropriating more liberally for colleges and schools. Manitoba, for instance, has in the last two years provided about as much money for the building of an agricultural plant as Iowa has appropriated in half a century. It has given in two years $2,-500,000 for buildings and grounds for its agricultural institutions.

"Saskatchewan is building a plant for its university and agricultural college on a broader and more substantial plan than has been applied to any similar institution in this country. Yet neither province has more than half a million population.

"For public schools equally generous provision is made. They are being built up to give vocational and technical training as well as cultural. They fit the needs of the country excellently and should turn out fine types of boys and girls. They do this with a remarkable faith in the value of right education.

"Dean Curtiss was much interested in the many other ways the Canadian government aids agriculture, aside from appropriations for educational purposes. They are aiding in solving marketing problems; they are encour aging better breeding of livestock by buying sires and reselling them at cost, and they are doing many other things of like character.

"I found that the government is advancing from 50 to 85 per cent. of the money necessary to build co-opera-tive creameries and elevators," said Dean Curtiss, "and it is doing it at a low rate of interest and on long time payments. Where cattle need breeding up, the government buys bulls of dairy. Shorthorn, or special dairy breeds and sends them in at cost price and on long time payments."

The yield of grain in Western Canada in 1913 was excellent but not ab-normal, wheat going from 30 to 45 bushels per acre, and other small grain with equally good averages.-Adver
