Eugene McIntee was born in Lyndon, August 15, 1840, and died January 28, 1914. He is survived by his wife and six children, Misses Mary and Frances, of Detroit, and the other four, Owen, Rose, Irene and Herbert residing in Lyndon.

His parents were the early pioneers of Lyndon, settling on the farm where he was born seventy-five years ago. He was one of eight children one sister, Mrs. Mary Merriman, of Jackson, surviving.

Although the deceased had been ailing for a number of years his last illness was only of a few hours duration, which he bore with patience and christian fortitude, being consoled with the last rites of the church.

The funeral occurred Saturday, January 31, from the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, his pastor, Rev. W. P. Considine, celebrating the mass and preached a beautiful and consoling sermon. Interment at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

M. C. Updike Sells His Farm.

Milo C. Updike has sold his farm of 120 acres on section 26 in Sylvan, to W. C. Pritchard, an enterprising young farmer, of Forrest, Illinois, who will take possession of the premises January 1, 1915.

Mr. Updike purchased the farm in 1882, from the estate of William A. BeGole and it has been his home since, with the exception of five years, four of which were spent in conducting the Chelsea House.

Mr. BeGole, father of Geo. A. BeGole of this place, took up the land from the government in 1841, and on it built the second house in Sylvan township. The first house was built by Cyrus Beckwith and Mr. BeGole assisted in the erection of the Beckwith home.

This sale is probably the only piece of farm land in Sylvan that has practically been from the time of its location to the present in the possession of only two families. The farm with its commodious buildings is one of the best in this part of Washtenaw county.

Mr. Updike expects to locate in Chelsea when he retires from the farm the first of the coming year.

He is survived by two sons, Austin, of Manchester, Clyde, of Pittsburg, Kansas, one daughter, Mrs. Willetta Richards, of Ypsilanti, and several grandchildren.

The funeral was held at 11 o'clock Thursday morning, from the family home in Manchester, Rev. Schofield officiating. Burial at Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

Miss Marion Prout.

Death came among us on Tuesday afternoon of this week and removed from our midst Miss Marion Prout, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avory D. Prout. The family have made their home in Chelsea since early last summer on account of Marion's failing health, but the change failed to check the disease to which she slowly succumbed. Marion was born January 29, 1897 and died Tuesday, February 3, 1914. She spent the greater part of her life in Detroit, and united with the Martha Holmes Memorial church in that city in her 14th year. She had just finished her first year in the Central high school when she was taken seriously ill. Marion was an unusually bright and talented girl and had innumerable friends, who, with loving relatives are left to mourn her untimely death.

Changes Normal Rules

The state board of education made two important changes in policy for the four normal schools of the state at its last meeting.

It cut off the renewal feature from the limited certificates, to take effect for students entering any normal school after July 1, 1914. Either to the course, which takes a year and a summer school to complete, carried a three years' certificate to teach, with the renewal privilege of three years.

It also provided that penmanship shall be taught in all the normal schools. Prof. Julia A. King, who recently resigned the headship of the department of history, was made professor emeritus of history, to teach in the Normal college, much or little as she may choose.

CHELSEA PROOF

Should Convince Every Chelsea Reader

The frank statement of a neighbor, telling the merits of a remedy, bids you pause and believe. The same endorsement By some stranger far away. Commands no belief at all. Here's a Chelsea case. A Chelsea citizen testifies. Read and be convinced. Charles Hyser, Madison street, Chelsea, Mich., says: "Several years ago while living in Ypsilanti I was a sufferer from kidney trouble. I had backache and pains through my kidneys that made my work hard. If I stooped I couldn't straighten again. Finally a friend who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results told me to try them. I did so and they soon gave me relief. Three boxes cured me." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hyser had. The Wisdom of Economy

This was a favorite hobby with the late Marshall Field. Not the "tight-wad" economy of those who deny themselves every pleasure and comfort, but the sensible planning and the far-sighted management which gives one the comforts and some of the luxuries of life, with always a margin left to tuck away for the rainy day.

We have hundreds of such accounts which are made possible by thrifty foresight. When such an account is once started, keeping it up becomes a pleasure. There is in it the deep joy of accomplishment. A word to the wise is sufficient.

NEWS and GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON

Smart Set Woman Helped Out the Entertainment

WASHINGTON.—A smart set woman was entertaining a box party—musical comedy—Monday night. She was wholesome of figure, with a cleverly conserved throat line and one of those satisfactory heads that can stand simplicity of hair fixing. Her dress was a filmy white something all over sparkles, and there was a corsage rose—giant specimen of the milliner's makings—that wanted to flare a vivid crimson, but thought it more stylish to smolder the latest gull red. Every woman knows.

For company there were other smart set women with more or less conserved throat lines; an exceedingly full dress man, of an age that—Nature had her innings—ought to be doing the home circle act with slippers and cigar; another who suggested a student lamp—midnight oil variety—turned human; and a third—

The third was a youngish and distinguished smart setter who looked as if Mother Nature had said to herself while creating him: "I'll cut this one out of my Burton Holmes pattern."

And it was so done. While rather a small box party, it was awfully stylish, and nothing could have been classier than the concerted amiability with which the men shifted their society so as to divide it impartially between the ladies, which, confidentially, is something of a stunt.

But none was so discriminatingly entertaining as the woman with the satisfactory head—which shows the good material inside. To the student lamp man, who doubtless ran to brains, she was seriously interesting, and her laughably humorous banter was just the right stuff for the fat man, who anybody could see dearly loved his joke, but when the Burton Holmes pattern took his turn in the seat next—lo!

She opened a vanity box, looked in its mirror and dabbed some powder on her nose. The other women who were looking and listening, and the pattern young man who was looking and talking, ignored the powder dabbing with a matter-of-courtesies that implied it to be so common a proceeding as not to be worth noticing. So that was all there was to that.

At least, it would have been all if it hadn't been for the people in the orchestra, and the opposite galleries, and the standing room onlars, banked against the aisle across—and one musician who passed the good work along to his brothers of the brasses and the drums. It had been rather a long wait between curtains, and everybody in the house—always allowing for exceptions—was staring at the boxes to pass the time.

And the smart set woman accommodately helped them out.

This Government Scientist Is Expert on Bats

THERE is an earnest and brilliant scientist in the service of the government who is an expert on bats. These bats are the kind that have the bodies of mice and the wings of pterodactyls and a prevailing weakness for flying into windows at night and butting into everything in the room.

The name of this scientist is Dr. H. K. Fischer, and from him the bat, no matter what his species, is possessed of no secret. It was he who disseminated benighted public opinion of the cherished notion that bats climbed into women's hair. It is he who confidently pointed out that me should be kind to bats because bats or bird bats, or whatever they are, were handy things to have around.

Dr. Wagner is Uncle Sam's sardine expert. It is his duty to find out what becomes of the sardines. The doctor has it down to a fine science. He has studied the sardine with the same scientific yet affectionate thoroughness that Dr. Fischer has shown regarding the bat. He is one of the few men who can trace the sardine schools and high schools and colleges on their long trips twice a year. According to the doctor, the perils of the sardine are many, the chief one being the many fish which regard it as their natural prey. Dr. Wagner has been of splendid assistance to Uncle Sam in suggesting various ways for preserving and continuing the sardine, and his reforms have been heralded everywhere as distinct advances in this field of endeavor. Indeed, the doctor might be described as the man who keeps up that fine old institution, the canned sardine, as an adjunct of midnight lunches and Sunday night suppers.

Secretary Daniels' Sons Are Practical Boy Scouts

JONATHAN DANIELS, aged twelve, and Frank Daniels, aged ten, sons of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, are enthusiastic Boy Scouts and know all of the "first aid to the injured" operation of their guild. They were out bicycling recently with Paul Heiss, aged nine, son of A. E. Hess, a Washington newspaper man, when Nathan Scott, another nine-year-old, appeared in the distance on a new Christmas bicycle which he manipulated with a good deal of unsteadiness.

The newcomer, a grandson of former Senator Scott of West Virginia, managed to keep his course until he got into the midst of the trio, when his machine collided with that of Jonathan, and in the resulting mix-up young Heiss was pulled along for some distance on his face across a particularly rough piece of roadway.

Neighbors rushed to the scene and picked Paul up, bathed his face and turned him over to his mother. A doctor was hastily summoned and Frank Daniels danced around excitedly suggesting various things. When the doctor appeared on the scene his first motion was toward Paul's bloody nose, as though to see if it were broken.

"Oh, doctor, that's all right," exclaimed Jonathan. "His nose is all right. We stood him up against a tree and tried that the first thing."

Seeing It Was Only a Watch He Didn't Care

THOMAS R. SHIPP, the executive secretary of the National Conservation congress, called on President Wilson one bright morning in September to ask the president to deliver an address at the convention of the congress. While they were talking, a bell tinkled somewhere, and the president picked up the telephone receiver. No one wished to talk to him, however.

"I wonder what that was?" remarked President Wilson.

Mr. Shipp, whose face showed signs of embarrassment, pulled out a remarkable looking watch. It had devices of all sorts on it.

"I think it was this," said Mr. Shipp. "It is a watch that Colonel White of the executive committee of the conservation congress brought to me from Switzerland. It has phosphorescent hands, which may be seen in the dark. It has a device to ring the time of day or night at five-minute intervals; it has the sun, moon and stars, rising and setting; a calendar and an almanac. It also has an alarm. You see, I had this engagement with you at 10 o'clock, and set the alarm for that time. But I was wakened in a bit early. The bell went off promptly, you see."

"Seeing that is only a watch, I do not object," said the president, with a smile. "It might have been some Republican sounding the alarm."

SMILES

ABSENT-MINDED. VALUABLE STUFFING.

Two men met during a gentle shower at the northwest corner of Pennsylvania and Washington streets. One had his umbrella up, the other carried his in his hand, evidently oblivious to the fact that he had an umbrella.

"Hello," said the oblivious one, "what are you doing with that umbrella?"

"Your umbrella?"

"Yes, no doubt about it. I know it by the handle. There's not another like it in town."

"Oh, there isn't," said the accused one, smiling extravagantly. "What's that you have in your hand?"

"Eh? Why, that's my umbrella," said the oblivious one. "I—I forgot that I had it."—Indianapolis News.

The Young Husband.

"You're an old married man. What do you do when your wife begins to scold?"

"Encourage her. I talk back—discreetly, of course. I say tantalizing things. I make foolish excuses. I stammer and get husky."

"But doesn't that make her a good deal madder?"

"Of course it does. That's the intention. I want her to get so mad that she won't have any voice left to ask me for money."

"Gee, I wonder if I'll ever get as hardened as that?"

It Might Have Been Worse.

Harry Lauder told an amusing story the other day of two Glasgow women who met in the street and began to discuss the domestic affairs of a newly married couple.

"Aye, Mrs. McTavish," said one, "so Jeanny's got married?"

"She has that, Mrs. McAlpine," replied the other.

"An' how's she gettin' on?" the first woman wanted to know.

"Oh, no sars bad at a," was the reply. "There's only one thing the matter. She thinks she could have got a better man. But then there's aye something."

THE KITCHEN CABINET

ACUSTOM yourself to master and overcome things of difficulty, or if you observe the left hand for want of practice is insignificant and not adapted to general business; yet it holds the bridge better than the right—from constant use.

SAVORY DISHES.

Take three pounds of soup meat and cook for four hours very gently. Remove the scum as it rises. In a sauce pan boil a pint of split peas. To the meat add after two hours' cooking, two potatoes, an onion, a carrot and a pepper. Take out the meat and add the peas, put through a sieve. Serve round the meat.

Irish Rissoles.—Put sufficient cooked beef through the meat chopper to measure a cupful; add a few chopped chives or a small onion, a cup of bread crumbs and a half a cup of milk. Season well and form in small balls; saute in butter until brown.

Rice Omelet.—This is a most satisfying dish for supper: Beat three eggs well and add a cup of cold cooked rice, two tablespoonsful of cold water and a few dashes of salt. Have the omelet pan hot, and well buttered, pour in the omelet and lift carefully at the sides to allow the center to run out and cook. When it is creamy spread with currant jelly and fold. Serve at once.

Cocanut Souffle.—To two cupfuls of shredded cocanut add six tablespoonsful of flour, one pint of milk, four eggs and a half cup of sugar, a teaspoon of baking powder and half a teaspoon of lemon extract. Beat the eggs until light, add the sugar then the flour sifted with the baking powder, then the lemon, milk, and a cupful of the cocanut. Mix carefully and turn into a buttered baking dish. As soon as it begins to set sprinkle over the top the other cup of cocanut mixed with two tablespoonsful of sugar. Serve from the dish in which it is baked.

Soft Johnny Cakes.—Take a half a cup of Indian meal, two tablespoonsful of sugar, a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonsful of butter and a pint of sweet milk. Put milk in a dish to heat, add the meal and stir until cooked and thick. Do not allow it to become lumpy. Take from the fire, add sugar, salt and butter and one well beaten egg. Turn into a greased pan and bake for 15 to 20 minutes.

Grandmother's Ginger Cookies.—Take a cupful each of brown sugar, molasses, shortening, a teaspoonful of soda, a tablespoonful of ginger, a tablespoonful of cinnamon, a teaspoon of baking powder and flour to roll.

No woman need envy the sphinx her wisdom, if she has learned the uses of silence and never asks a favor of a hungry man.

THE WEEK NIGHT SUPPER.

For children and aged persons who retire early, the heavy meal at noon is much better, and a light, easily digested meal at night, which will not interfere with a good night's rest.

There are still unwary people who think the more they eat the more strength they will have, forgetting that we are only able to take up the necessary amount of nourishment, and the rest is wasted, as it clogs the system and uses up the machinery.

Eggs which are soft cooked in any desired form or combination make an easily digested dish. Omelets are the favorite method of serving eggs. One who is able to turn out a good omelet is no mean artist.

Rice custard, cup custards and any baked variety of custard, if baked carefully, are both wholesome and easily digested dishes for both children and the aged.

Boston brown bread and butter, with a glass of milk or cocoa, is a good meal.

Buttermilk and ginger bread, with a bit of brown bread, is another combination which is sufficiently nourishing.

Neither coffee nor tea are beverages that are harmless, and should never be given to children. When they tire of milk, a cup of chocolate or cocoa or of cocoa ribs may be served occasionally without injury to the digestion.

For those who are able to digest a simple potato salad, here is one worth remembering: Put into a dish a tablespoonful of vinegar and four tablespoonsful of olive oil, a half teaspoonful of salt and a quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper, and stir well until smooth and nicely mixed. Chop four-boiled potatoes while hot, and turn into the dressing, and stir until it is all absorbed. At serving time, if it is needed, add a little more vinegar and sprinkle with the chopped parsley.

So long before that he had forgotten the gentleman's name and what office he was running for the old man had vowed never to be shaved or shorn until So-and-So was elected. When he at last awoke to a realization that nobody cared if he never shaved he concluded to shave just to show 'em that he didn't care whether they cared or not.—Kansas City Star.

No member of said board shall be personally interested, directly or indirectly, in any contract for the purchase of any material or labor to be used in and about such plants, or for the extension of the same. This shall also apply to purchase of coal and oils used in and about such plants.

Section 9. The members of said board may be, at any time, removed by the common council of said village, for official misconduct, or for the unfaithful or insufficient performance of the duties of his office. Provided: That the charges against said member, sought to be removed, and the notice of the same, shall be served on him at least ten days previous to the time so assigned, and an opportunity given him to make his defence. Whenever a member shall be removed, or a vacancy in said board shall occur by reason of the removal of any member from the village, resignation, death or otherwise, the same shall be filled for the unexpired term by the appointment of the president with the consent of the common council.

LUMBER DEALERS AT BATTLE CREEK

MICHIGAN NO LONGER LEADS IN THIS INDUSTRY SAYS
SECRETARY.

FIRST DAY OF CONVENTION IS SOCIAL.

President Pollock of Coldwater, Adv-
vices Fight on Increased Freight Rates and for Uniform Rate.

Battle Creek, Mich.—That the scent of fresh hewn fir, pine and hemlock, and the buzz of the gang saws will be a thing of the past within the next decade, was the prophecy made by Laurence W. Smith, of Iowa, secretary of the Michigan Retail Lumber Dealers' association, in convention here.

"Most of the lumber sold during 1913 by members of the Michigan association came from Oregon, Washington and other western states," said Secretary Smith. "Very little came from Michigan. Carelessness of early lumber kings, who destroyed millions of feet of lumber purely by waste, raised greater havoc with the big trees than the numerous forest fires.
Many Oregon timber tracts now yield 100,000 feet to the acre, while a cut of 40,000 feet to the acre is considered big in this state."

"Michigan is no longer the greatest lumber state in the union, as it once was."

Most of the lumber dealers' first day here was social in character. They visited Postville, had a luncheon there, and wound up with a banquet at the sanitarium and a smoker at the Elks' temple.

In his address as president, C. A.
Pollock, of Coldwater, advised a fight on increased freight rates and a campaign for a uniform freight rate in Michigan.

Rural School House Burns.

Cadillac, Mich.—Seventy-five children are out of school in Richland township, Missaukee county, as a result of the burning to the ground of the Buckner school, Monday evening.

The fire was discovered by John Buckner, but he could do nothing to save the building, and fanned by a strong gale, it went up in smoke in a few minutes. The school house was large for a rural school. It was valued at $3,000 and was insured for $2,000.

Angry Convict Attacks Keeper.

Jackson, Mich.—Angered because he was reprimanded, John E. Baker, a convict in Jackson prison, seized a hammer and attacked J. H. Maloney, his keeper, inflicting a serious injury to the keeper's head. The assault occurred Thursday, but was kept secret until Saturday afternoon. Baker was employed in the chair shop, where Maloney is a keeper. But for the prompt interference of other inmates Maloney might have been killed by the infuriated convict.

Saginaw Gets Fireman's Meeting.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—Fire Chief Chas.
Russell, who is president of the Michigan Firemen's association, announced Tuesday that the next convention of the association would be held in Saginaw,
June 22-25.

Detroit was originally picked as the convention city, but the executive board decided that it would be more acceptable to the members if the meeting was held this summer in Saginaw and in Detroit later on.

Grand Jury Finishes Work.

Houghton, Mich.—Without asking a further report, the special grand jury which has been investigating cases arising from the strike of the copper miners, was discharged Thursday by Judge O'Brien of the circuit court.

bility for the murder of three British non-union miners at Palmesdale and suggested that further investigation should be made of the affair by the sheriff's office.

Fox Raising in Otago County.

Waters, Mich.—The raising and breeding of foxes, which was started near here but a few years ago, is now one of the most profitable industries in Otago county. W. S. Chalkley is the first to experiment with the fur-bearing animals. His experiments proved successful, and one by one the neighbors ceased farming and began raising foxes. Oftentimes these people have in their possession black breeding foxes valued at $5,000 a pair.

Muskegon has Meanest Thief in Michigan

Muskegon, Mich.—A fund of $1.10, gathered together penny by penny, by pupils in one of the grades at the Horace Mann school, to buy flowers for a pupil in the room who is now a hospital patient, is one of the haunts made by the thieves who robbed nearly all of the schools in the city. The pupil is Leon Smith, who has been seriously ill for a long time past.

To cheer him his fellow students gave their pennies to make up the flower fund. The money was placed in the care of Miss Mary D. Crane, teacher of the grade, and kept in her desk in an envelope labeled in such a way that the thief who took it knew he was robbing a sick boy of one of his few pleasures, flowers from his comrades.

federal injunction applies to only five persons that sought a temporary in-any such attempt will meet with pro-

EMBARGO ON ARMS TO MEXICO LIFTED

PRESIDENT WILSON DECIDES TO LET BOTH SIDES BUY GUNS.

PROHIBITORY ORDER ISSUED BY TAFT IN 1912.

In Proclamation the Administration
Does Not Consider Embargo Shows a Neutral Policy on Part of U. S.

Washington—President Wilson has decided to lift the embargo on exportation of arms to Mexico.

A proclamation under the authority of the congressional resolution of 1912, which will restore the status of the arms question to where both Huerta forces and constitutionalists may export arms from the United States, was issued from the White house Tuesday.

President Taft issued the proclamation which barred the exportation of arms to all sides on March 14, 1912.

President Wilson decided to raise the embargo after being convinced that by restricting shipments of arms to Mexico the United States was not really showing neutrality, which was the purpose of the embargo, but was in fact showing partiality, as the Huerta forces were enabled to get large supplies from abroad, while the constitutionalists, limited almost entirely to shipments from the United States, could get arms and ammunition practically only by smuggling.

HOLTON OF THE NAVY

A STORY OF THE FREEING OF CUBA

By Lawrence Perry
Author of "Don Merriweather," "Prince of Chantilly," etc.

SYNOPSIS.

Lieutenant Holton is detached from his command in the navy at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war and assigned to important secret service duty. While dining at a Washington hotel he detects a waiter in the act of robbing a beautiful young lady. She thanks him for his services and gives her name as Miss La Tossa. A Cuban patriot. Later he meets her at a ball. A secret service man warns Holton that the girl is a spy. Senior La Tossa, who is a spy, is ordered to follow Holton. He is ordered to return to Tampa. La Tossa tells Holton she is a Cuban spy and expresses doubt regarding the sincerity of the United States. Holton is ordered to remain at Tampa to guard the troop transports. He receives orders to land Miss La Tossa, who is considered a dangerous spy, on Cuban soil. At sea he is overtaken by another warship which takes Miss La Tossa aboard and Holton is ordered to return to Tampa. He saves the transports from destruction at the hands of dynamiters and reports to Admiral Sampson for further duty. He is sent to General Garcia's command in the guise of a newspaper correspondent to investigate Cuban plots against the American troops and to learn the plans of the Spaniards. Holton is seized by friends of the spy and later ordered executed as a spy. He escapes and saves the American troops from falling into a Spanish ambush. He learns from Gen. Garcia that the spy is Jose Cesnola, one of the most trusted leaders. Holton takes part in the battle at San Juan.

Presently he came to a street which presented a vista of a long line of street lamps. Evidently it led into the heart of the city. Holton followed it past stores and houses, until at length he stood in the patio before the "palace." Here there were lights in all the windows. Evidently the official machinery was working overtime. The lights gave him a sense of comfort, the doubtful sort of comfort that a man out in the cold feels when he looks in at a company gathered about a genial fire.

Holton's emotions were those of a pariah. He was an outcast, and more than that an outcast who would speedily feel a hempen rope about his neck if he were not extremely careful. Somehow the thought that he was a spy had slipped his mind for the time being.

For more than an hour he stumbled along, leaving the city, crossing the tracks of the Sabanilla and Maroto railroad, until he came to a gate guarded by a thatched lodge. Upon the walls of the gate were emblazoned the Spanish coat-of-arms. It was thrown back, and a soldier stood in the opening.

"Who comes there?" he asked, bringing his gun across his chest.

"Cardenas," cried Holton, giving the countersign as he had heard it several times that night.

He walked forward.

"I have a message from General Toral for Senor La Tossa. Does he live here?" he asked.

The sentinel threw his gun into the hollow of his arm.

"No," he replied. "You must walk up this road two miles. It is the first estate on your left."

Holton politely thanked the soldier and proceeded on his way. His shoes were caked with mud and his clothing dragged heavily. And he was both tired and sleepy. He moved as though in a dream. He was really not more than half awake.

And yet he was not aware of a passage of a great amount of time when he passed in front of another thatched lodge, with the dark outlines of a large house, lying back on the top of a gentle hill. There was no soldier at the gate here, and as he walked up the winding path he could not discover a single light in the great mansion. At least he could see nothing in the way of illumination until he got quite close, and then through a crevice in the tightly drawn shades of what apparently was one of the larger rooms he made out a tiny gleam. At least the house was not deserted.

He walked close to the window and found that the front veranda passed under it. So he mounted the steps and, stealing to the window, glued his eye to the crevice.

He could see a table, and around it some men in uniform, drinking and smoking. The figures were, of course, indistinct, and although Holton could catch the sound of their voices, he could not make out what was being said.

As he crouched thus under the window, the front door opened, and a figure passed out and walked to one end of the long veranda. Here the man emitted a low whistle, which was not answered. With a muttered exclamation, the stranger, retraced his steps, and, walking directly past Holton in the other direction, leaned over the railing and whistled again.

Holton never afterward knew what possessed him, but he noticed that the man had left the front door slightly ajar. Acting upon quick thought, he suddenly leaned down, unlaced his shoes, and then, with a quick glance at the fellow still leaning over the railing and cursing under his breath, he stole from his position, made for the open door, and slipped hastily and noiselessly into the hall.

A light with a deep red shade was burning here, and the shadows it cast were heavy. The door of the room into which he had been peering was half open, and across the hall, directly opposite, was a corresponding room, the interior of which was not lighted.

Into this apartment, scarcely breathing, Holton stole, standing inside the jamb and listening with strained ears. Before he could adjust himself to the sense of what was being said, the man who had emerged from the door when Holton was on the veranda returned into the hall, closed the door and entered the lighted room. He was attired in the uniform of a captain in the navy, and his entrance seemed to quiet somewhat the ardor of the argument.

"It is agreed, then gentlemen, that the city cannot long endure a siege? The voice was deep and authoritative. Holton, in an ecstasy of eagerness, craned his head forward.

"I for one deny it," was the angry response.

"But aside from you, general," was the rejoinder, "we seem unanimous. Do we not?"

There was a chorus of assent.

Then Holton heard a voice that he recognized; a voice that sent thrills down his spine and caused him to loosen his revolver in his holster.

"Shafter's army alone would not suffice. But I know that General Miles with reinforcements will soon be here, and I know, also, that while General Shafter would prefer to abandon his present position, he will not do so. I can inform you, too, that the lines of our army will not be attacked by long charge on the morrow, and that a long siege will be entered upon. The Americans are in excellent health, and they will starve us to submission."

It was the voice of the waiter of the New Willard.

"But, Senor Cesnola," interposed the first speaker, "you have led us to believe that within a week, at least, your Cuban rebels will turn upon the Americans."

"They will when I give the word."

"Then why not give it?"

"Because the time is not ripe. They would be wiped out of existence. That time must come when the fever has begun its work and the army is beginning to be demoralized. Two—three—five more days in the trenches on the hillsides under this hot sun, will do our work for us."

"Gentlemen," went on the first speaker, "my mind is made up. Tomorrow is the 2nd of July. We shall make no move then. But I warn you, if on the morning of July 3 the situation is still unchanged the fleet will leave Santiago harbor. Orders from Blanco are getting imperative. If we survive the attempt and reach Havana we shall be safe; it cannot be taken, I believe, in a year's siege. Here the successful storming of our lines means the end of our navy and the unsuccessful close of this war."

"So this is your decision?" inquired another voice.

"Those are my orders and they are final."

Holton, trembling like a leaf, his mouth hanging open, drank in the words as a drowning man drinks in his last breath of air. He could hardly credit his senses.

Here, after a night of aimless stumbling through the blackness and through the rain, he had chanced upon the very place of all places where information most valuable to his country's success was to be obtained.

The voices had fallen to a hum and, strain his ears as he would, he could catch no more than fragmentary sentences. Some one went out at the door, and presently the sound of horses' hoofs was heard on the shell driveway. Three men departed, and then Holton heard the scraping of chairs and the rattle of glasses, as though those that remained were preparing to spend some further time in their present quarters.

Holton having put on his shoes, was on the point of stealing into the hall and out by the door when he decided that this, exposing him as it would to detection, was not the wise course. So he turned back into the room, purposing to open a window.

As his hand touched the catch he was startled by a sudden blaze of light and a voice.

"Well, sir, what are you doing here?"

He turned to confront the young woman he loved.

CHAPTER XI.

A Close Call.

Holton's first instinct was to utter the girl's name; but flashing second thought came to his rescue, and he broke into a volley of Spanish ejaculations. As he went on she stood regarding him fixedly, and finally, seeing a peculiar expression settle upon her wonderful face, he paused.

"Mr. Holton!" Her voice was low, almost guttural.

Holton sprang toward her.

"Miss La Tossa—Ranee!" His voice, too, was low, quivering with emotion.

She stepped back, and, pointing her finger at him, repeated with blazing eyes her first question.

"What are you doing here?" Then she stopped and looked at him. "Do you realize what you have done?"

She reached up hastily and extinguished the lamp she had lighted.

"Mr. Holton," she continued, as the young officer stood silently regarding her, "have you truly no desire to live?"

"I was captured in the battle," replied Holton. "I escaped and—and—"

"How—why did you come in here?"

"Because a soldier on the road—I mean a farmer—a planter—told me this was your home."

"And you wish me to hide you?"

"No, I wish to leave."

"But you cannot."

"I came in here; I am able to leave."

"No, you are not," she whispered.

"General Toral's and Admiral Cervera's escort are outside now. They peered out of the window. 'I can see them.'"

Holton looked for himself, and saw the front of the house lined with mounted men. He faced her irresolutely.

"But I must get away at once," he remonstrated. "I cannot stay here."

"Then why did you come here? How did you get in?"

"I wanted to see you," replied Holton. "The door was open, and I walked in."

MILLSTONE AROUND A TREE

Seed Sown in the Center in Course of Time Lifted Up a Comfortable Seat.

"Sometimes nature turns to an unexpected use the handiwork of man," says Dr. Charles G. Percival in his new book, "The Trail of the Bulldog."

At Sheldon's Mill, near South Devoro, N. Y., there is a very comfortable seat of stone around a huge tree which puzzles visitors, as the stone is natural without a single break to show how it got around the tree trunk.

The story is that a discarded millstone lay on the ground for many years, and a seed blown by the wind dropped into the core of the stone and grew there, finally growing into a tree, sliding the hole in the center of

She looked at him a moment doubtfully. Then she shook her head. "That was not why you came here. You did not come here to see me."

"But, nevertheless, I wanted to see you."

She went on as though he had not spoken.

"It is quite clear now," she was about to continue, when steps were heard in the hall and a voice called her name.

"Ranee! Ranee, my daughter!"

She pushed Holton into the folds of a heavy tapestry by the door, and then looked out into the hall.

"Yes, father. Here I am."

"Oh, yes! I wish you would ask Maria to prepare a guest-room for Senor Cesnola. He decides to remain the night with us."

"Yes, father," and with a warning "Sh!" Miss La Tossa went out into the hall and disappeared.

The two men stood near the door, chatting.

"My daughter," complained La Tossa, "is still very restive. She escaped from us the day before the battle on horseback, and was gone the entire day."

"It is just as well," was the laughing reply. "She will do no harm now, for, while your daughter counts on the mine exploding after they have vanquished us, I can assure you that the fuse will be lighted a great while before that rather visionary event."

"You told me that young naval officer who was with Garcia had been executed," went on La Tossa. "I am rather sorry for that. He was a likeable young man apparently."

"You need spare your grief," was the rejoinder. "When I so informed you I believed my orders had been carried out. But, as it appears, he escaped."

"Your orders!" ejaculated La Tossa. "And when have you assumed the prerogatives of life and death?"

"Spies must assume such prerogatives occasionally," was the quiet reply. "This young man Holton was in a position to undo my work. He was in my way. As a consequence, I forced Muller's name to a warrant for his execution. That fact may wound your sensibilities; but this is war, not child's play."

Holton's eyes fairly glared through the darkness, and yet, despite his anger, he was pleased to know that the murderous order was the work of a renegade and that it had not the sanction of authority.

"Well, I must say I am glad he was not executed," remarked La Tossa. "My daughter," his voice sank low—"is, I believe, very fond of him."

"And you approve?"

"Oh, it has not gone so far as that! But I do know that in some way her little secret amour has exerted upon her a repressing influence, has caused her to mope and to brood—in other words, to curb activities which formerly caused me much worry."

Miss La Tossa appeared at the moment, and the two men rejoined their comrades in the opposite room.

"Are you here?" she whispered.

"Yes," Holton stepped before her.

"Now listen, Miss La Tossa, I have something I wish to tell you. When I met you before I was unable to reassure your fears as to your country. Now I am. I have spent seven days among the leaders of our army, and I know their intentions. I wish to assure you as a man of honor that as soon as Santiago is taken, as soon as the city and the province are utterly in the hands of the Spaniards, and as soon as order is restored here, our troops are going to withdraw."

"Is this true?" she whispered tensely.

"It is true, and more. I heard Admiral Sampson and several high army officers assure General Garcia that as soon as practicable the Americans would withdraw, leaving him, General Garcia, as governor of the province. Now, there is no doubt of this at all. I have heard it with my own ears."

He paused and held out his hand. "Are we friends?" he asked.

She met his hand impulsively.

"Yes, a thousand times, and God bless you Americans!"

Holton drew her fingers to his lips and kissed them. As he bent thus a figure darkened the doorway and a sneering voice broke the silence.

"A very charming picture, indeed!"

Holton swung around quickly, and before him, his face writhing with a saturnine grin, stood Cesnola. Holton's hand flew to his revolver, but the face and a significant flash of steel on a line with the man's waist gave him pause.

of Scots set sail from Scotland in two vessels, one of which started from Dundee, the other from Calthness. These 300 Scotsmen were mercenary soldiers proceeding to Sweden to help Gustavus Adolphus in his war with the Danes. They were destroyed near Otta, one of the stations on the new railroad, at a spot which can be seen from the train. The peasants, who outnumbered the Scotsmen, had laid their plans with consummate skill and caught them in an ambush. "Naturally, the incident was greatly magnified by the simple dalesmen, and legends, tradition, song and story have embellished the episode to the glorification of the natives, and great care is needed to sift out the truth."

It was, of course, to be expected that the action of the peasants would be commemorated in some lasting form, and a succession of monuments has marked the spot. A handsome stone memorial has stood on the high road for well nigh a century, bearing the inscription, "In memory of the peasants' bravery, 1612." But the stone had suffered from exposure and vandalism and a new one had become necessary. The present time seems specially appropriate, when history has been dissociated from legend, for the erection of a new monument, which bears the inscription, "In memory of the fight at Kringelen, 26th August, 1612." Some of the traditions have doubtless a basis in fact, and along the route names of places containing the word skot are so numerous that not a few must have had a definite connection with the Scottish expedition.

Many tourists pass by without paying any notice to the monument that has stood so long. Their guide book has told them little of nothing. One English traveler had kept his eyes open. Meeting a fellow countryman, he said: "Terribly hilly road this. One must be careful. There is a horrible place called Kringelen down the road. I advise you to alight. I did. I see by a post that a man Sinclair had a bad fall there." The Sinclair monument is a huge flagstone, about eight feet long, seven feet high and six inches thick. It contains the inscription: "The leader of the Scots, George Sinclair, was buried here after he had fallen at Kringelen on the 26th August, 1612."

In itself the incident was comparatively unimportant, but it meant much for Norway. Until that time the Norse had no militia or territorial defense.

lads and legends tell the Norse version of the disaster to the Scots. Guns, pistols, swords, etc., that were picked up by the peasants were called Sinclair's. One man, Jorgen Fjerdigen of Hedalen, obtained possession of a metal money holster with Sinclair's initials on it. At the farm of Breden, on his way home, he was invited to have dinner with the family, and during the meal the holster was spirited away. To this day, if anything is left unintended, especially during a meal, and it disappears, the owner is said to "have been dining like Jorgen." The holster was eventually recovered and now occupies a place in the Vilik collection of Scottish relics of the expedition.

ANOTHER COFFEE WRECK What's the Use When There's an Easy Way Out? Along with the coffee habit has grown the prevalent "American Disease"—nervous prostration. The following letter shows the way out of the trouble:

"Five years ago I was a great coffee drinker and from its use I became so nervous I could scarcely sleep at all nights. My condition grew worse and worse until finally the physician I consulted declared my troubles were due to coffee.

"But being so wedded to the beverage I did not see how I could do without it, especially at breakfast, as that meal seemed incomplete without coffee.

"On a visit, my friends deprived me of coffee to prove that it was harmful. At the end of about eight days I was less nervous, but the craving for coffee was intense, so I went back to the old habit as soon as I got home and the old sleepless nights came near making a wreck of me.

"I heard of Postum and decided to try it. I did not like it at first, because, as I afterwards discovered, it was not made properly. I found, however, that when made after directions on the package, it was delicious.

"It had a soothing effect on my nerves, and none of the bad effects that coffee had, so I bade farewell to coffee and have used only Postum since. The most wonderful account of the benefit to be derived from Postum could not exceed my own experience."

Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. Grocers sell both kinds. "There's a Reason" for Postum.

NORWAY IS OPENING UP.

THIS week sees a new and specially interesting part of Norway opened up, says a recent issue of the Dundee Courier. Hitherto there have been two ways of seeing Norway, viz., sailing along the fjords and carrying across the country. Both had their charm, but there were often long distances between the scenes of special interest.

But in recent years the country has been waking up, and railways have been laid wherever their was business to be fostered or tourists to be expedited. A few years ago the magnificent cross-country mountain railway between Bergen and Christiania was opened for traffic, and wherever one thinks of the luxurious carriages or the entrancing scenery the memory of a journey by that railway will be a constant delight.

The new railway, the Dovre railway, is to connect Christiania with the Molde Fjord, and also with Throndhjem. There is already a narrow gauge, single-track line to Throndhjem but it is utterly unfit to cope with the increasing traffic, and it runs parallel to the Swedish boundary, and is strategically a source of danger.

Where Scotch Mercenaries Fell. The new line runs west of Dovre, and then due north to Throndhjem, broad gauge, double track, and safe from hostile operations. The line will continue from Dovre westward to the Molde Fjords, thus opening up the beauties of the Gudbrandsdal and the magnificence of the Romsdal. Now, that region is the Scotland of Norway.

All along the route Scot names abound, names recalling incidents and providing traditions and legends in which Scots played a romantic and tragic part, and one part of the valley is called Skoterveien, the Scots road.

On the 2d of August, 1612, a band of Scots set sail from Scotland in two vessels, one of which started from Dundee, the other from Calthness. These 300 Scotsmen were mercenary soldiers proceeding to Sweden to help Gustavus Adolphus in his war with the Danes. Common Form of Insanity. A party of Clevelanders entertained some holiday visitors and having showed them everything interesting in Cleveland proper they had to take them to Newburg for a view of the asylum. The superintendent was in a genial frame of mind and he conducted the bunch personally.

"Here is a queer case, ladies," he said, pausing at a particular cell. "This man has the delusion that he possesses the motive power that runs the universe. He is perfectly harmless, but he actually believes that without him the world would not move. Strange notion, isn't it?"

"Why, not at all!" exclaimed one of the women. "My husband has the same idea and he always has had it. Is he crazy, too?"

ANOTHER COFFEE WRECK What's the Use When There's an Easy Way Out? Along with the coffee habit has grown the prevalent "American Disease"—nervous prostration. The following letter shows the way out of the trouble:

"Five years ago I was a great coffee drinker and from its use I became so nervous I could scarcely sleep at all nights. My condition grew worse and worse until finally the physician I consulted declared my troubles were due to coffee.

"But being so wedded to the beverage I did not see how I could do without it, especially at

Minutes of previous meetings read and approved.

A. Elizabeth V. Bodmer, the Probation Officer, made a verbal report in her work, which on motion of Supervisor Holmes, was accepted.

The report of Supervisor Hiscok, Chairman of the committee on tramps was read, which is as follows:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO WORK PRISONERS.

January 6, 1913.

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors:

Your committee, appointed to look after the prisoners of the county jail, submit the following report:

October 23—Supervisors Pardon and Hiscok inspected road from Mill Ave. to Foster station, with view of starting prisoners to work cutting brush from side of road.

October 23—Supervisors Finnell, Pardon, Krapp and Hiscok met with Sheriff Stark, and tools bought.

October 30—Deputy Walsh and five prisoners started work cutting brush from road. Photo taken in afternoon, of which each supervisor was mailed one. Prisoners were well. Continued at this work every day. Building Committee and I hired Joe Gross for $8.00 per day.

Also auto for $1.00 per trip.

November 15—A Supervisor from Jackson county was down to look to the work of the prisoners. Took with him an auto. Was well pleased with the work and thought Washtenaw county supervisors had right idea about short jail term men. He told me he intended to recommend to Jackson county.

Next week the prisoners will work on the Fair Grounds and the horsemen putting up the fences for them, and now they claim they will have the best one-half mile worked one day for city moving men.

All the time trying to get bee to lay gravel on county roads. Farm being busy with their fall work, not being got them started. Finally had a bee myself. Canvassed the only day with auto, saw about men, had a horse of 25 teams, took up a collection with auto men.

December 4—With 7 teams from

Ann Arbor donated, and 15 business men to shovel, and 14 teams from the county, we drew 78 loads of gravel and pulled out 29 logs. Every one wanted to see the work, and promised more teams. Stormy and didn't go for a week. Gave them a roast pig dinner.

December 11—12 teams out and 61 loads of gravel put on road and everybody willing to work.

December 15—Bee on South State street road, graveling about one-half mile through swamp. Bee promised in Lima township but failed, could not get the teams out.

December 27—Drawing gravel from County house to Packard at and from there south. Did not have many teams.

To sum up, we have cut the brush on both sides of the Foster road about 2 miles one-half mile of heavy brush on the Chubb road as well as on the Bird road. All in Ann Arbor Town. Two days in Northfield drawing gravel; six days in Pittsfield, and another bee in Scio on account of bad weather. Could have done a lot more work, only the getting dinner for the workers.

Get ready one day and storm the next, and had the work to do over again.

I think the plan O. K. Would advise giving the Sheriff some thing extra and have him furnish the dinner at the county's expense.

Buy an auto, and by all means have top and heavy wire on sides with top and lock on top. In, then the deputy can handle the machine. Took up the stone yard proposition with the city, and after eight or nine weeks in committee's hands, granted use of two squares in city yard if we want it. Would advise the buying of the vacant property south of the jail, as the county will surely need it in time.

E. D. HISCOK,

The committee on use of city yards by county authorities has been pleased to recommend that two sections designated by the Street Commissioner be turned over to them for said purpose.

Adopted as follows: Yeas, Messrs. McIntyre, Hubbard, James, Scott, Pres. Corbitt—Nays, none.

City Clerk, City of Ann Arbor: I, Ross Granger, City Clerk of said city, do hereby certify that the annexed is a true and correct copy of action of the Board of Public Works, December 18th, 1912, on the use of City Yards by county authorities for stone piles, now on record in this office; that I have compared the same with the original record, and the same is a true transcript therefrom, and the whole of such original record.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said City of Ann Arbor, this 19th day of December, A. D. 1912. Ross Granger, City Clerk (Signed).

On motion of Supervisor Holmes, the report was received and placed on file.

Supervisor Hunter moved that the communication from the Superintendent of the Detroit House of Correction, as read by the City Clerk, be referred to a committee of three. Carried.

The following named drains have been applied for, but not established during the year, for reasons given in each instance, to-wit: Cleanse out of Falk drain established in the township of London, Monroe County, and Augusta, Washtenaw County. There was an injunction granted to stop proceedings on the drain when it was ready to let and still hanging on. I haven't paid attention to it as the drain would not benefit any land in Washtenaw County. I have no petition to clean out the Murray drain in August township. I have a copy of petition and other papers to the Township Clerk of Augusta for the Township Board to act upon but haven't heard from it as yet.
I also have a petition for a drain in Northfield township, but it seems that Township Board did not approve of the drain being constructed. I also have a petition for a drain in the township of Sharon. The Township Board has taken any action on this drain as yet. Also a petition for cleaning out and extending the Willow Marsh drain in the township of Northfield.
All I do hereby certify, that the above accounts a full and true report of all the drains constructed, finished or begun under my supervision, or applied for during the year now ending, and that the financial statement of each drain submitted herewith is true and correct.
All of which is respectfully submitted,
D. W. BARRY,
County Drain Commissioner of the County of Washtenaw.
Dated this 11th day of October, A. D. 1913.

The Board of Supervisors in Com-

Infirmiry on October 15th, 1913, to inspect the same and report the conditions and made as thorough an examination as time would permit.
The house was carefully inspected and it appeared that the committee pleasure to say it was clean and was as well kept as any building of its kind can possibly be. There are 54 inmates, and they all look well cared for, a good table is set for them, meat twice a day, vegetables all raised on the farm three times a day, coffee once a day, tea twice, plenty of milk, and the butter is made on the farm.
The repairs that was recommended by the committee have been made and all buildings, except horse stable, which needs a new floor, are in good repair.
We found the stock in good condition, many hogs as a year ago but in better condition. I would again recommend the pure breed of cattle, hogs and chickens be brought in.
The committee desire to say that Mr.
and Mrs. McCormick deserve the thanks of the committee for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed upon them. The gentlemen who so kindly furnished their automobiles to
