THREE ACCIDENTS

Saturday Forenoon Three Residents of Chelsea had Unpleasant Experiences

Three accidents occurred in this vicinity last Saturday forenoon that gave the men who received them rather unpleasant experiences which they do not care to undergo again.

Wm. Young, who is employed in the blacksmith shop of A. G. Faist, has a two inch gash in his scalp that he received from a sledge hammer that flew off the handle and landed on his head. Mr. Faist was assisting at the forge and was using the sledge on a piece of work that required some heavy striking. Will says that he saw all of the stars in the universe and then some, when the hammer landed on his "bean."

Thomas Wheeler, who is employed by Ewing & Son cutting pile timber on the farm of Edwin Staphis, of Dexter township, was painfully injured when he received a blow from a sledge hammer in the mouth. He was at work sawing down a tree and it settled and pinched the saw. A fellow workman picked up an iron wedge and was driving it into the opening made by the saw, and as he attempted to drive the wedge using a heavy sledge hammer, he over-reached the mark and Thomas received the blow, which resulted in four of his front teeth of the lower jaw being knocked loose and a bad in his under lip. Thomas says "never again for him," once is enough experience of this kind.

Elmer Koebbe, a motorcycle and a hog had mix-up that resulted fatally for the swine, a smashed motorcycle and an unconscious man. Mr. Koebbe accompanied by a companion had made a run on their machines into Bridgewater and were on their return trip to Chelsea at the time of the accident. At the home of Mrs. Kulenkamp they encountered a herd of fourteen hogs that were being pastured on the roadside. Thirteen of the animals kept to the roadside, but one weighing about 150 pounds jumped in front of the machine and was instantly killed. Mr. Koebbe was quite badly bruised up and was unable to work for several days of this week. The repair bill on the motorcycle will be from $10 to $15 which the owner of the hogs may be called upon to settle.

Home Burned Sunday Evening.

The residence of Mrs. Fred Sager, sr., of Sylvan, was burned to the ground Sunday evening. The blaze was discovered about 7 o'clock and had gained so much headway when the neighbors arrived on the scene that they unable to save any of the contents of the home, except a chair and a couch. Mrs. Sager occupied the house during the day but spent the nights at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mohrlock and had been away about an hour when the fire was discovered. When Mrs. Sager left the house everything seemed to be in a safe condition and the fire probably started from a defective chimney. The loss will be about $1,300 and is covered with an insurance of about $900.

Readjust the Rates.

A change in state and inter-state passenger tariff on the Michigan Central will go into effect about May 1. The change was made in accordance with a ruling of the interstate commerce commission. This will mean an increase on all inter-state fares paid aboard trains and will also add considerable to the duties of the ticket sellers as under the new ruling fares must be reckoned from all headline points.

Plumbing Shop Closed.

The plumbing establishment of G. H. Foster & Son was closed at noon on Tuesday and will be sold on a chattel mortgage held by Henry Gorton of Waterloo, on Saturday, May 1. The Messrs. Foster have been engaged in business for several years but for the last year or so the work has been falling off and especially since the failure of the Flanders Mfg. Co., and the junior member of the firm came to the conclusion that it was advisable to allow the assets to be sold and wind up the affairs. The mortgage is about $500 and the stock will invoice nearly $1200.

H. E. Foster of the firm has a very flattering position offered him in Detroit which he will probably accept in the near future. Geo. H. Foster and son Eugene will continue the tubular well business.

Commences Damage Suit.

As a sequel to the divorce suit filed against him by his wife, Mrs. Fannie C. Freer, Eugene B. Freer, through his attorney filed Saturday in the circuit court a suit for $10,000 against his son, Nelson E. Freer, of Detroit, whom he charges with the alienation of the affection of his wife.

This is believed to be the first instance on record where a man has sued his own son for the alienation of the affection of his wife and the defendant's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Freer were well known residents of Lima for many years and sold their farm about three years ago and moved to Detroit. The couple returned to this vicinity last year and finally settled in Ann Arbor where Mr. Freer is making his home. Mrs. Freer resides at the home of her son in Detroit.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS

Considerable Street Work is to be Done in Chelsea this Year.

The street committee of the village have laid out plans for an extensive amount of work to be done on the public thoroughfares of Chelsea this year, every street in the corporation is to be given some attention.

A crew of men and teams commenced work on Jackson street Wednesday morning. This street is to be cut down to the crushed stone that was put in the road bed several years ago and have become covered with from ten to twelve inches of dirt. The work on this street will extend from Main street to McKinley street.

Railroad street is to receive a dressing of gravel from McKinley street to the east limits of the village. Four hundred dollars was appropriated by Sylvan electors at the recent election, to be expended in graveling south Main street from the electric line to the territorial road. With the other streets that are to be given attention, Chelsea will have good road on all of the principal streets that lead to the business part of this place.

May Festival.

The twenty-first annual May Festival of the University Musical Society will be held in Hill Auditorium, May 13, 14, 15, and 16, 1914.

The brilliancy of the Festival last year, which was the first event to take place in this beautiful structure, the funds for which were bequeathed to the University of Michigan by the late Honorable Arthur Hill of Saginaw, has spurred on the officers of the University Musical Society to offer to the music loving public of Michigan and the middle west this year, a treat which will not only equal, but if possible, one which will surpass that which was so universally approved a year ago.

No radical changes in the general scheme of the Festival will be made, but an effort has been made to enhance the artistic and educational significance of each individual program, and of the Festival as a whole.

As usual, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra of seventy men, under the leadership of Frederick Stock, will furnish the background for the event while the Choral Union of over 300 voices will take part in two concerts. A supplementary children's chorus will again appear Friday afternoon.

This year, however, a sixth concert will be added, without extra charge to holders of season tickets. This will be in the nature of an organ recital on the famous Frieze Memorial Organ, which, it will be remembered, was on exhibition at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893, and which, at that time, represented the acme of organ construction. At the close of the fair, it was brought to Ann Arbor and presented to the University of Michigan by the University Musical Society, and for more than two decades it was annually heard by thousands in University Hall.

With the building of the new auditorium, special quarters were provided for the installation of this organ, and at an expense of many thousands of dollars it was entirely rebuilt and installed, and once again, after many years, it takes its place as not only one of the best known, but one of the most perfect instruments of its kind.

Two soloists, Miss Inez Barbour, and Miss Margaret Keyes will take part in the program to be given at that time.

Two majestic choral works will be offered by the Choral Union; Handel's immortal Messiah, and the attractive Caractus by Sir Edward Elgar, England's foremost composer, and a list of soloists which for brilliancy and real musicianship could hardly be surpassed, has been engaged as follows:

Miss Inez Barbour, soprano, well known artist, Mme. Alma Gluck, soprano, Metropolitan Opera Star; Miss Florence Hinkle, soprano, a festival favorite; Miss Margaret Keyes, contralto, Chicago Opera Company; Mr. Riccardo Martin, Metropolitan Opera Co. tenor; Mr. Lambert Murphy, tenor, Metropolitan Opera Company; Signor Pasquale Amato, baritone, Metropolitan Opera Company; Reinhold Werrenrath, baritone, a singer of wide recognition; Mr. Henri G. Scott, bass, Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company; Mr. Earl V. Moore, organist, head of the organ department of the University School of Music. Next week the Standard will publish the program for the entire festival.

Vera Cruz is the chief port of Mexico and the duties collected there have been relied upon by Huerta to pay much of his expenses of war and government. American and other foreign warships have been stationed there for many months.

MARINES CAPTURE VERA CRUZ WITH LOSS OF FOUR

Admiral Fletcher Acts Promptly on Order of President Wilson to Prevent Large Shipment of Arms and Ammunition Falling into Hands of Huerta's Forces. Senate Debates Resolution.

Washington, April 22.—After a stirring all-night session, marked by bitter debate, the senate at 3:20 Wednesday morning, by a vote of 72 to 13, passed the resolution from the senate committee on foreign affairs, "Justifying the president in employing the armed forces of the United States to enforce his demands for unequivocal amend for the affronts and indignities committed against the United States in Mexico."

Washington—United States marines and bluejackets are now in possession of Vera Cruz, the principal port of Mexico.

The seizure of the city cost the Americans four lives and 20 wounded, while the Mexican losses have been estimated unofficially as between one and two hundred men.

Admiral Fletcher's dispatch announcing the capture of Vera Cruz is as follows:

"Tuesday, in face of approaching norther, landed marines and sailors from Utah, Florida and Prarie and seized customs house. Mexican forces did not oppose landing, but opened fire with artillery and rifles after seizure of customs house. Prairie shelling Mexicans out of their position. Desultory firing from housetops and streets. Hold customs house and section of city in vicinity of wharves and consulate. Casualties four dead and 20 wounded.

"Our men are firing only when fired on. We prepared a flag of truce with Gen. Maas, to cease firing, or our big guns will be used. Now about one thousand marines and sailors ashore. All business here suspended since noon."

While the American marines and bluejackets were fighting, the senate debated the whole Mexican situation before crowded galleries. The joint resolution which had passed the house supporting the president's proposal to use the army and navy to obtain reparation was being debated in the senate at midnight with prospect of an all night session. Many republican senators wanted the resolution broadened to authorize steps to secure reparation for all offenses committed against Americans in Mexico. The administration senators fought this as tantamount to a declaration of war, saying the United States had no quarrel with the Mexican people but with the Huerta government controlling a small portion of it.

The resolution passed by the house read as follows:

"A joint resolution justifying the employment of the armed forces of the United States in enforcing certain demands against Victoriano Huerta. Resolved by the senate and house of representatives, in congress assembled, that the president of the United States is justified in the employment of the armed forces of the United States to enforce his demands for unequivocal amend for the affronts and indignities committed against the United States; be it further

Resolved, that the president is justified in the employment of the armed forces of the United States to enforce his demands for unequivocal amend for the affronts and indignities committed against the United States; be it further

"Resolved, that the United States disclaims any hostility to the Mexican people or any purpose to make war upon them."

The president, while anxious for congress to act, went ahead on the authority of the executive in accord with precedent, because he believed an emergency existed. He gave Rear-Admiral Fletcher authority to seize the customs house at Vera Cruz to prevent the landing there by a German merchant vessel of a big consignment of arms and ammunition for the Huerta government. Secretary Bryan conferred with the German ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, and it is believed the influence of the German government will be interposed to prevent the consignment from landing elsewhere in Mexico and complicating the situation. The ship carries 15,000,000 rounds of ammunition and 200 rapid-fire guns and thousands of rifles.

No orders were issued to the army, but Rear-Admiral Badger was ordered to Tampico where another customs house may be seized. Mr. Wilson intended to act slowly to force Huerta to yield, and hopes to avert war. With the taking of the railroad for a few miles inland from Vera Cruz and the two custom houses, it is believed no other aggressive steps will be taken.

DROWNED IN THUNDER BAY

Man Loses Life and Companion Escapes After Desperate Effort.

Alpena, Mich.—Gustave Trojahn, aged 23, was drowned in Thunder bay, Sunday, and Truman Goddard, aged 35, his companion, escaped after a desperate effort.

The men left for a fishing trip to Lake Huron, just outside the bay. Their boat was leaky and water entered as they rowed out, but they wore high top boots and paid little attention to this. There were eight inches of water in the bottom of the boat when one of the men leaned to one side and the craft capsized. The two men clung to the boat for some time, but no help came and finally Trojahn's fingers let go and he sank. Goddard swam to an island by an almost super-human effort, where he was picked up unconscious.

THREE DIVISIONS IN CAMP

National Guard Will Not All Assemble at Grayling at Same Time.

Lansing.—Instead of one big camp of the Michigan National Guard the state militia will assemble at Grayling in three divisions this year, according to a plan already approved by the state military board. Owing to the fact that it is difficult to secure many regular army officers to act as instructors this year, the military board decided that the men would receive more individual attention by dividing the forces.

From August 3 to August 13 the two troops of cavalry, the field hospital corps, Company A engineers and the second infantry will assemble at Grayling. From August 13 to August 22 the third infantry, ambulance company number two and Company A of the signal corps will receive instructions at the state camp site. The first infantry, first battalion of field artillery and ambulance company number one will be in camp from August 22 to August 31.

TELEGRAPHIC FLASHES

After two weeks' work the Saginaw council has granted 101 of the 149 applications for saloon licenses for the coming year. The others were turned down.

Alvardo Haskins, one of the oldest men in the United States, died Saturday at the Michigan state hospital, at Kalamazoo aged 106 years. He was admitted to the hospital in 1905 from Hillsdale county.

Following a favorable decision by a circuit court jury, the county will begin construction of a highway extending two miles north of Sandusky.

As soon as Judge Tuttle and the receivers of the Pere Marquette railroad issue the necessary orders, probably about May 1, the appraisal of the road will be started. This was decided on at a meeting of members of the railroad commission, Atty-Gen. Fellows, Dean Cooley and Prof. Anderson and Riggs, of Ann Arbor, and General Superintendent Alfred, of the Pere Marquette.

COPPER MINES TO BREAK RECORDS

ENDING OF STRIKE AND PLENTY OF LABOR WILL INCREASE PRODUCTION.

MAY BE GREATEST MONTH

With Plants Going at Full Capacity Northern Michigan Will Set New Mark in Ore Production.

Calumet, Mich.—With the ending of the strike, bringing to a close the industrial struggles which have torn the district for nearly nine months, the copper mines of the Michigan camp are increasing their production to figures not reached in this district in three years. For two years or more prior to the strike there was a shortage of men which seriously interfered with the operation of the mines and made it impossible to run them to capacity.

Now with 2,000 to 3,000 former strikers applying for work, with a thousand or more of them already added to the force underground and with nearly 3,000 new or outside workmen on the forces, the mining companies are given the first opportunity offered in several years to test their full capacity and the capacity of their stamp mills and smelters. The production of copper mineral for the month of April will be the largest for any month, it is believed, in two years, while the May production, by which month the mines should all be running at normal, bids fair to be the biggest in the history of the region. Practically every company is making an effort to bring its production right up to capacity and to make this the biggest year in point of copper production the Lake Superior camp has ever had.

BLAME PLACED ON MOTORMAN

Officials at Saginaw Claim Dead Man Was at Fault.

Saginaw—Blame is placed upon the dead motorman, Claude Brown, by officials of the Saginaw-Bay City Railway Co., for the street car accident Sunday night, in which five persons were killed and 12 were seriously injured.

Brown had been employed by the company for several months, and was given a few days lay off recently for an infraction of the rules which resulted in a collision, but was reinstated ten days ago.

At the inquest conducted by Coroner Dr. A. V. Linton, Monday afternoon, Conductor John Crawford testified he had been on the car with Brown eight and a half hours. He said the car was going between 10 and 15 miles an hour.

A storm was raging at the time of the accident, and it is believed the motorman, who had been talking with Police Sergeant F. H. Genske, mistook the street crossing.

Teachers Serve Without Pay.

Lansing, Mich.—Members of the faculty of the Michigan Agricultural college will be compelled to serve the remainder of the year without pay. Professors and instructors have expressed a willingness to stay until the college closes in June. The extension meant working throughout the state have been called in. This action is caused by the shortage of funds brought on by the cutting off of the college's income by the auditor-general.

Secretary Brown says there is no money to pay the extension men and that this service will be discontinued until after the college's financial affairs are straightened out.

SWAMP IS CONVERTED INTO PRODUCTIVE LAND

Eaton Rapids, Mich.—More than 800 acres of land in Eaton and Ingham counties that a few years ago was considered worthless, will be used this year in growing cabbage for the summer kraut factories here and at Charlotte, and will make many thousands of dollars for its owners. This land was muck and swamp land, with which nothing could be done until the present system of drainage was put in and converted it into the best kind of land for the raising of cabbage and other vegetables.

SYNOPSIS.

Joseph Hayward, an ensign in the United States Army, on his way to Fort Harmar, meets Simon Girty, a renegade Indian, who is connected with all the atrocities that have been committed in the region. Hayward is also headed for Harmar, with a message from the British general, Hamilton. Hayward is a French Canadian, and his name is Rene D'Auvray, who professes to recognize him. Hayward has no recollection of ever having seen her before. Hayward volunteers to carry a message for Harmar to the northwest Indian tribes, and is ready to start on his journey. He is accompanied by the friendly Wyandots to join the latter in demanding the return of the white chief, a religious teacher, whom they believe to be a prisoner. Hayward's mission is to assure the Wyandots that the man is not held by the soldiers. Rene D'Auvray tells her that she is a quarter-blooded French Canadian, and a missionary among the Indians. She has been in search of her father. She insists that she has seen her father before, but in a British uniform. Hayward refuses her request and starts for the north accompanied by a scout named Brady and a private soldier. They come on the trail of a war party and escape from the Indians take shelter in a hut on an island. Hayward finds a murdered man in the hut. It proves to be the father of a former French officer, Raoul D'Auvray, a former French officer who is called by the Wyandots "white chief." Rene appears and Hayward is puzzled by her insistence that they have met before.

to breathe. Then she sank slowly upon her knees beside the body, her head close to the cold cheek. "Father! Father!" she sobbed, as if in sudden realization of the truth. "It is you!" Her hat had fallen to the floor, and her wealth of dark hair unloosened completely hid her face. She had forgotten my presence; everything but her grief. I drew back silently, stuck the sputtering candle on a box, where it burned bravely, and left the room. As I glanced back from the doorway, odd shadows flickered along the walls, and she still knelt there, a vague, indistinct figure. In the other room I found a chair, and sat down, staring dumbly into the smoldering fire.

CHAPTER VIII.

Mademoiselle's Story.

In the intense silence, the gloom of that room lit only by those smoldering embers, with Schultz sleeping undisturbed against the wall, my thought could not be divorced from the lonely girl sobbing above her dead. Was she of dual nature, womanly and savage by turn, as the instincts of two races dominated her action? Yet this could never account for her distrust of me, her continued insistence upon having previously known me. Ay! and she meant it! There was no attempt at deceit, no acting in all this; her full faith in the charge was written upon her face, found echo upon her lips. She believed me to be another man, a pretended British officer, a traitor to her people, a scoundrelly spy. Yet she applied to him my name. That was the strangest part of it all.

Even as I started toward the open door the girl herself appeared, outlined against the candle flame. She had bound up the loosened strands of hair, and her dark eyes, dry and tearless, looked straight at me. I doubt if she saw Schultz at all as she came forward, stopping only as her hand finally touched the table. As I watched her, my earlier determination died within me; I could only wait in silence for her to speak. "Joseph Hayward," she said slowly, the words rasping a little with her effort at self-control. "You confess to that name, do you not?" "Yes, mademoiselle," I answered, my lips dry, my eyes riveted on her face. "Yet you still claim not to be the same Joseph Hayward whom I have known?" "I am an ensign in the army of the United States, and have never worn a red coat."

She smiled, but the smile was not altogether pleasant. Then she said "How did you know he was Raoul D'Auvray?" "By this medal pinned to his breast," I answered, holding it forth, "a French decoration." She grasped it, bending her head so as to see better, and, for a moment, her slender form shook with an emotion she could not restrain. Involuntarily I rested a hand upon her shoulder, but the touch aroused her, and she stepped back, standing erect. "The medal was his; he always wore it. But was that all? Was nothing else found?"

"There was a red army jacket flung across a box; but while we were eating later in the other room, someone stole in through the back door, and carried that away." She raised her hands to her head, with a gesture of despair. "I believe part of what you have told me," she confessed, her voice trembling. "It is in my heart to believe all, but—but I cannot. You are not telling me the truth—not all the truth. You knew of this house; you—you came here deliberately, and—and brought your men with you."

"I deny that, mademoiselle. We stumbled upon the place by accident." "Oh, you drive me crazy with your denials!" she exclaimed passionately. "I will not listen longer. You are Joseph Hayward; you admit that yourself. Now do not talk to me, or attempt to stop me! I am going to my father!" I stood aside and let her pass, yet followed as she entered the door. The interior was black, except for a slight glow as from a dying fire showing dimly through the inner door. The dead dog lay in the middle of the floor and she stopped, staring at the grim shadow. "I will bring the light," I said gently, "if you can permit me to pass."

As the yellow flame illumined the small room, her gaze deserted me, to rest once more upon the motionless figure lying near the wall, which Brady had mercifully covered with a blanket. She stood still, her hands clasped, her face like marble. Still holding the candle in one hand, I bent down, and drew back gently the edge of the blanket, exposing the dead man's face and white beard. In spite of his violent death the features were composed, in no way distorted; he appeared like one lying there asleep. For a moment the girl never stirred, her attitude strained, her wide-open, tearless eyes on the peaceful returned countenance. It seemed to me she had even ceased she made a forceful gesture indicative of her true thought of me. "You continue to act your part well," she said scornfully, "even when there is no longer a necessity. Bah! I despise this play acting! It is unworthy a soldier. So you would have me tell over what you already know; you would make me stand here and suffer—" "Mademoiselle," I interrupted swiftly, "I ask nothing. All I seek is the opportunity of service. There is no truth I am going to deny. To prove it I will say this—you have remained in my memory since the first hour we met. I desire your trust, your friendship; whatever you may tell me will be held sacred, inviolate. I will serve you though you speak no word, give no explanation. I beg the privilege."

"I thought she would never speak, standing there before me in the dim light, swaying slightly, her bosom rising and falling with quick breathing. A great sympathy welled up in my heart, and all unconsciously, I extended my hands. She must have seen them, but she made no response, but the glitter of unshed tears was in her eyes. "What is the use of our talking like this?" she said impetuously. "It is as though we exchanged compliments in Montreal. Instead we are in the wilderness, with danger all about us. You are what you are, monsieur, and I am a woman of the Wyandots? Let all else pass; I care nothing whether your thoughts of me be good or evil. I am what I am; what birth and conditions have made me. All I appeal to in you is whatever of manhood you may still retain. I tell you my story, because you swear you know it not; then listen, and you shall. No, do not move, but hear me; I would not do this without reason."

She glanced aside at Schultz, and then into the red embers of the fire, her eyes coming slowly back to rest on my face. "I am Rene D'Auvray, and my father lies dead there in the next room. He was all I had in the world, yet I knew little enough of him. He spoke seldom of his past life even to me. Still, I have much reason to believe that in his younger days he was intimate at the French court. I know he was a soldier, an officer of the king's guard, decorated for bravery. He never told me why he was exiled to this land, buried in the far wilderness, made a companion of savages. I never asked, although my heart ached to do so, for he was not a man to be questioned lightly, and I early learned that the very thought brought him pain. But I know this, for I saw a letter once, a yellow, creased letter, which I think he purposely misled hoping I would see. He wanted me to know, yet had not the heart to tell me. It was from a French comrade in arms, and there was a crest on the paper, and a great name signed. I wept as I read, for the writer loved the man to whom he told the story, and the words came warm from his heart. Whatever else you may know of us, Monsieur Joseph Hayward, you have never known this. It was because of a lady my father loved, a relative of the king. For her sake he fought the Prince de Miller, and killed him in the royal garden. It was a fair fight, but the king saw it not so, for it disarranged his plans, and my father had to flee France to save his own life. Then was he proscribed, a price set upon his head."

She paused, and sank into a chair, bowing her face upon the table. I stood silent, unable to speak, the sound of her voice still in my ears. She looked up again, dashing her hand across her eyes. "I must be far more French than Indian to become so weak," she explained, ashamed of the emotion. "It is the memory of him lying yonder, monsieur, with no word—no last word—for me. So it was he came to America, but they would not let him rest in either Quebec or Montreal. They drove him forth into the woods, into the camps of Indians. He told me once about those days; of how he traversed the black waters of the Ottawa and met hardships on the great lakes, his companions voyageurs and coureurs des bois, his only means of support the furs he could send back to Montreal. But he might not venture there himself, but was doomed forever to a life beyond civilization. His associations would have brutalized him, made him a fit denizen of those wilds, turned him also into a savage, but for one thing—he was a fervent Catholic. It was this which kept him ever gentle, sweet and strong. He possessed the passion to save souls; he became an evangel to the Indians among whom he lived. He was at Mackinac and Green Bay; he told the Pottawatomes of Christ, but they cast him out; he traveled to the villages of the Illinois, and gave him no welcome. At last he found a home with the Wyandots. At first the task was not easy, for they were a savage people. They had tortured Jesuit priests to the stake, and flogged the Recollets who came also. But my father won their confidence; he went forth with them to battle; he went with them against their enemies, and so they finally listened to what he said. He became Wa-pa-tee-tah, the white chief, and taught them of Christ Jesus. They became Christians because they were proud of him. He accomplished what the priests could not do, and kept the tribe at peace with the whites. The English came, and hated him, for he would not enter into their schemes, nor permit his people to. Only once did he lead them to war, against your General Clark at Vincennes. "Exiled and lonely, abandoning all hope of ever returning to France, or even civilization, my father finally, to increase his influence with the tribe, took for a wife a woman of the Wyandots. Although I was born of that union, yet I never saw my mother, who died when I was but a babe. I am told she was of fair complexion, but jet black hair and eyes, the daughter of a French trader and Indian mother, able to read and write. My father loved her, and taught her much that he had learned in early life. When she died he seemed to change, to lose interest in the past, to cease to dream longer of Europe. He became more fully a Wyandot. I was brought up in the camps of the tribe, living in their wigwams, sharing in their prosperity and adversity. I played with Indian children, and was cared for by Indian women. I must have been ten years old, monsieur, before I first realized that I was mainly of white blood, of another race. Yet when this knowledge came it brought with it sudden ambition."

Her eyes were upon the fire now, and her voice had lost its harshness. "I remember when I went to my father—it was in a camp on the shores of the great lake—and made him tell me more of his own life and the life of my mother. What he said opened before me a fairland. I began to dream and hope. He taught me the French tongue, and all the scraps of learning his memory retained. He sent to Quebec for books, and we studied them together. When I was sixteen he sent me to Montreal, to the convent of the Ursulines, and I was there three years. Then—then the Indian blood conquered, and I came back. The woods called me, and my father; besides, she made the sign of the cross, "God called me to the work I had to do."

"An Indian missionary?" "To my own people. No! I was of no order—what was that?" She arose to her feet listening.

CHAPTER IX.

The Return of Brady.

There was utter silence, except for the heavy breathing of the soldier still sound asleep on the bench. I could distinguish no noise without. "It was like a cry, faint from a distance," she said, at last, "but I hear nothing now. Did you catch it, monsieur?" "I heard only your voice." "Then I may have been deceived, although I have the ears of an Indian." Some sound caused me to wheel about, and I faced Brady, who had just stepped within and closed the door. His gray eyes surveyed us in one swift glance, settling inquiringly on the girl, who had arisen to her feet. Schultz awakened, sat up on the bench, blinking sleepily. "Brady?" "Of course; and who have you here, Master Hayward? A woman surely, by dress Indian, and by face white."

"This is Mademoiselle D'Auvray," I replied, not liking his manner of speech, "the daughter of the man we found here dead." "She was not in the house when I left. Oh, I remember! The same perchance who was at Fort Harmar, the one you told me about, and who threatened to follow us with Simon Girty. Truly, she must have kept her word, for that black renegade is here."

"Here! Girty? You saw him?" "Ay! In the Indian camp out yonder. Nor was that all I saw. There is something savage on foot, or I am no woodsman. I thought those devils might have other quarry, and come back here to lie quiet in hiding, but I am not so sure now that we are not the ones sought. This girl belongs with them."

She stepped past me, and stood erect facing him, the dark eyes frankly meeting the gray. "Yet I am not one of them," she said slowly in her careful English. "I am a Wyandot; those you saw are Miami and Ojibwas, thieves and murderers. My people are Christian, and are not at war." "You were with them; with Girty," he insisted, but in somewhat kinder tone. "You came here direct from their camp."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Power of Habit. Mrs. Tucker gave some food to a tramp one morning, and as he was eating it she noticed a peculiarity. "Why," she asked, "do you stick out the middle finger of your left hand so straight while you are eating? Was it ever broken?" "No, ma'am," replied the tramp, "but during my halcyon days I wore a diamond ring on that finger, and old habits are hard to break."

Plain Tailored Suit in Checks

ONE of those plain, well tailored, easy hanging street suits which is already sure of its welcome is made of a strong black and white checked serge. Black and white checks, from those so small that they produce the effect of a gray surface, to those so large that they resemble a checker-board, are much in evidence in the shops, with a preference shown by the public for a check about a half inch square.

In spite of all the ruffles and ripples and draperies which mark our new modes in skirts there are suits, like that pictured here, which stand pat for tailored plainness. When the very small checks are used it is possible to use shapely flounces, short jackets and considerable trimming successfully. One may therefore make a number of concessions to the newest style features and still indulge a liking for checks. But the large checks must be plainly made.

One gratifying thing about checks is the excellent combinations that they make with plain vivid colors used as trimmings and in finishing touches. Bright green, leather brown, scarlet and nasturtium shades are as smart as can be with them.

The suit shown in the illustration is plainer than most of this season's tailored gowns, and of a design that is becoming and practical. The coat is longer than the average, and the lines of the skirt more unbroken. The design is adapted, therefore, to women of full figures. But the very stout woman must abjure checks—they are not for her. Neither do they look well on the unusually thin woman unless she chooses the smaller sizes.

Among the Loveliest Summer Hats

FROM among the loveliest hats these three have been selected to set forth the most novel and beautiful combinations of flowers and ribbons in trimming. They are ambitious efforts in millinery art, requiring the knowledge and expert workmanship of the professional milliner. They are graceful and practical in shape and finished with exquisite care and efficiency.

The hat at the top of the group is made of a fine hemp braid sewed to a light frame in the appearance of a soft blocked hat. It is faced with a fine French crepe, cut to fit the under brim and smoothly sewed to place. The hat is in the natural straw color and the facing of old blue. A collar of wide, soft messaline ribbon is brought about the crown and over the brim edge at the left side, where it terminates in the crown. A spray of very fine roses shaded from light to deep pink and set in rose foliage is mounted against the under brim.

The hat at the right is a blocked shape with a double brim and round crown and is made of a fine hemp with crepe-like surface. It is made in several colors besides the natural straw color. The crown is draped with wide moire ribbon in black, with a full bow and one long, upstanding loop. This is wired to keep it in place. The under brim is trimmed with a wreath of small mixed flowers which extends about the sides and across the back.

An elegant hat in eggplant purple is pictured at the left side. The shape is similar to that of the plateau hats which are worn high at the back and tilted over the face. There is a full bow against the brim at the back, as in nearly all hats of this or similar shapes. When the brim widens and is high at the back, the big spreading bow is placed against it.

The outer brim is made of braid put on in a direction opposite to that in the crown. A fold of velvet outlines the juncture of this portion of the brim with the rest of the hat. There is a wreath of dark purple berries set in handsome, glossy foliage about the crown. All three of the hats shown here may be recommended in every way. They are of fine, durable materials, carefully made and finished in becoming shapes and novel trimmings. They must of necessity bring a good price. Even so, there is usually less profit to the milliner in a hat of fine quality than in a cheaper one. In any case, she is apt to earn less than such good work deserves in the way of remuneration. DECIDES LAW IS NOT GOOD

Circuit Court of Ionia County Holds Chiropractor Act is Unconstitutional.

Ionia, Mich.—The case brought in this county to test the constitutionality of the law passed by the last legislature for the regulation of chiropractors in Michigan, resulted in a decision Thursday by Judge Davis, of the circuit court, knocking out the law.

The law required that chiropractors take out county licenses before beginning practice, and was passed after a hard fight at the last session of the legislature. The case here was brought by the prosecuting attorney against J. D. Healey, a chiropractor of Belding, who refused to take out a license. Healey claimed that the title of the law was not broad enough, and Judge Davis upheld his contention. The matter will be taken to the supreme court for final decision.

The Closed Season.

On March first the closed season on almost everything commenced. It is a sort of lent for the sportsman. Even rabbits cannot be hunted under the new state law. The Weeks-McLean law passed by congress has done away with spring duck shooting and no birds can be killed until next fall. In fact the closed season on hunting which began March first applies to practically everything. The closed season on fishing also started March first, from which date no more black bass can be caught in Michigan. The ban stays on until June 15th. Anyone caught with a black bass in his possession is liable to prosecution and a stiff fine. Small fish like blue gills, sunfish and others of this type may be caught and sold. Speckled bass may also be caught, but may not be sold. To be caught carrying a gun in the woods after March first is prima facie evidence that a man is violating the game laws.—Ex.

Great Demand For Tubers.

According to Michigan agricultural experts Michigan is facing the big problem of supplying upward of 10,000,000 more bushels of potatoes this year than were on hand last season. The college authorities are co-operating with the Michigan Potato Growers' association in urging all school crops clubs to raise potatoes this year, and when the national potato show is held in Lansing next December the state will enter into competition with the rest of the country.

30,000 VOICES.

And Many Are The Voices of Chelsea People.

Thirty thousand voices—What a grand chorus! And that's the number of American men and women who are publicly praising Doan's Kidney Pills for relief from backache, kidney and bladder ills. They say it to friends. They tell it in the home papers. Chelsea people are in this chorus.

Here's a Chelsea case:

Mrs. S. J. Trouten, McKinley St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "Several years ago I suffered from kidney trouble. My back was lame and sore and I had headaches and dizzy spells, during which I had to grasp something for support. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and now some years later, I can say that the cure has been lasting. I occasionally take a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills to keep me in good health. Doan's Kidney Pills are fine and I don't hesitate to confirm my former endorsement of them." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Trouten had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Compulsory Education Regulations and Illiteracy

WASHINGTON.—Although six states in the Union are still without compulsory school-attendance laws, and four others have laws that apply only partially, definite progress during the past decade is reported in a bulletin just issued by the United States bureau of education. Since 1905 eight states previously without compulsory laws have adopted them, and it is thought to be a matter of only a few years when compulsory school attendance will be in effect in every state and territory of the United States.

The six states still without compulsory school laws are: South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas. The four local-option states, where the law is in effect in certain counties only, are Maryland, Virginia, Arkansas and Louisiana.

The bureau's investigation of the subject reveals a close connection between lack of compulsory attendance laws and illiteracy. The states rank in percentage of illiteracy very much in accordance with the length of time compulsory schooling has been in effect and the completeness with which it is enforced.

The states vary widely in number of years and amount of attendance required each year. The period of compulsory attendance is from eight to twelve in North Carolina and Virginia. In most states it is eight to fourteen or fifteen. The present tendency is to raise the upper limit of compulsion. In 17 states the compulsory age limit is sixteen years or above; in Idaho it is eighteen. As a general rule, however, children in all these states are allowed to leave school at fourteen years of age if they secure employment or have completed the eighth grade in school. There is a constantly increasing effort to safeguard the child between fourteen and sixteen years of age, the period of special importance for the vocational preparation of most children.

As little as 12 weeks of school attendance during any one year may be required in Virginia, Oklahoma, Delaware and Nebraska, while in Vermont and other states there must be 150 or more days of actual school attendance every year. Many states require attendance "during the full time school is in session," which may mean anything from 41 to 194 days. Some states secure attendance during long terms by conditioning state appropriations upon the number of days of actual school attendance.

Some Visitors Uncle Sam Does Not Want

THE recent seizure by the New York customs authorities of the village of meadow ants which Mrs. C. W. Morse wished to bring with her from Europe is only an episode in the perpetual war waged against undesirable immigrants, human, animal and vegetable. Mrs. Morse's village, like the one which reached Philadelphia about a fortnight before, was probably a by-product of the increased interest in nature study, but the United States government not only discourages such aids to amateur research but absolutely prohibits them. By a law passed in 1905 the importation of living insects into this country is forbidden and there are other laws which regulate so strictly the importation of larger animals that in many cases no discretion is left to the authorities.

The classic instance of misguided enthusiasm is the introduction in 1869 of the destructive gipsy moth by a scientist named Trouvelot. Trouvelot, a Frenchman by birth, an astronomer in Harvard; unfortunately he was also an ardent entomologist who had devoted much of his leisure time to the consideration of the silk worm industry. In an evil hour he conceived the idea of breeding a harder worm which might withstand the diseases which then were ravaging rearing establishments in France, and in pursuit of this purpose imported some gipsy moths, intending to cross them with some of the native species found in the United States. It so chanced, however, that he left the window of his study in Medford, Mass., open one day. When he returned a mass of eggs laid by the gipsy visitors had disappeared—apparently it had blown out of the open window. At this point Trouvelot's experiments stopped. Their results did not.

Everything Was All Right Except the Logic

FORMER Senator Joe Blackburn, now in the city, is bringing to light a lot of forgotten anecdotes of the day when a black slouch hat simply had to be worn by a statesman—otherwise he was no statesman at all. When ever I look at the coterie of statesmen on the hill nowadays who wear brown derbies, I wonder how far along they would have gone in the old black slouch-hat days.

Anyhow, this little story comes from Senator Blackburn.

When Charlie Towne of Minnesota was in the senate, serving his 28-day term by appointment, he made a speech. Sort o' short time to get in. It was a rip-snorting speech, full of wit and blood and thunder, just the sort of speech that you do not hear every day in the senate. It was a criticism of the Republican policy in the Philippines, and to tell the truth a lot of Republicans were secretly tickled over it, but just didn't dare say so. Among those present was Senator Depew of New York, who just thought to himself he would make a crack at that brand-new 28-day senator. When Towne had closed and his friends were crowding around to congratulate him, up marched Senator Depew.

"A magnificent effort," he said, "a wonderful speech. Your diction was elegant, your delivery forceful, but your logic was execrable."

But Towne was not overpowered by this. He smiled as he returned the compliment.

"Thank you, senator, for your appreciation of the things in my speech which you could understand."

Buy Coal for Poor With Climbers' League Fund

HERE is a story that is "right so," as they call it down here, and, being true, of course, will scarcely be believed; but if the people who have thousand-dollar bills where these derelicts had pennies would follow their lead there would be much less suffering when cold weather comes. It is just the story of one John Parks, who used to be a deckhand on a liner. He came to town last fall and joined the Climbers' league down at the Salvation Army hall in Pennsylvania avenue. The idea of the Climbers' league is to see which member can stay longest on the "water wagon." Each member is employed by the army and each drops a nickel into the league treasury each week. In the spring the league gives a "banquet" with the nickels saved in winter. The nickels accumulate rapidly, as forty or fifty men belong to the league. When the treasurer reported at a meeting recently that the members had saved $15 in nickels prospects of a fancy "banquet" were bright. The "banquet," by the way, marks the end of the winter and the departure of the league members for the highways. But John Parks upset the program at the meeting. He got to figuring on that "women and children first" rule, and he made a speech. The burden of his words was that he didn't think a bunch of "bums" ought to buy a "banquet" when women and children needed food and coal. Parks made a motion that the $15 saved by the league be used to buy three tons of coal. The motion passed unanimously, and as a result Mrs. Evans, in charge of the army, bought the coal and distributed it between several poor families. Could there possibly be a more glorious charity than this?

NAVAL STRENGTH IN MEXICAN WATERS

Washington.—Never before in the history of the nation has the strength of the navy been shown as it is in Mexican waters today. A greater percentage of fighting machines were assembled about Cuba in the war with Spain, but the navy of 1898 had not the fighting strength of the navy of today either in number of vessels, in tonnage or in gun caliber.

The war strength which the United States now has or will have in Mexican waters within a few days with which to compel compliance with the demands of this government may be summarized as follows:

On East Coast.
Battleships	15
Cruisers	4
Gunboats	2
Destroyers	15
Tender	1
On West Coast.
Armored cr'sers	3
Cruisers	2
Destroyers	5
Gunboat	1
Men Available for Landing Purposes.
On East Coast.
Sailors	5,000
Marines	2,500
On West Coast.
Sailors	750
Marines	500

Additional marines have received orders to prepare for departure to Mexico. The number available are: On the east coast, 3,000; on the west coast, 1,000.

This strength, if used for landing purposes, can be reinforced by troops, 15,000 of whom are along the border.

Gold exists in Korea in quantities to render its mining profitable, but it has as yet given no promise of ever sensibly affecting the world's supply. Under their own laws the people were forbidden to engage in mining operations, and the only concession that was made was

WILSON GIVES HIS VIEWS

Following is the official statement issued as representing the views of President Wilson and the administration on Mexico:

"In discussions in official circles in Washington of the present Mexican situation the following points have been very much dwelt upon:

"It has been pointed out that, in considering the present somewhat delicate situation in Mexico, the unpleasant incident at Tampico must not be thought of alone. For some time past the de facto government of Mexico has seemed to think mere apologies sufficient when the rights of American citizens or the dignity of the government of the United States were involved and has apparently made no attempt at either reparation or the effective correction of the serious derelictions of its civil and military officers.

"Orderly Placed in Jail.

"Immediately after the incident at Tampico an orderly from one of the ships of the United States in the harbor of Vera Cruz, who had been sent ashore to the post office for the ship's mail, and who was in uniform and who had the official mail bag on his back, was arrested and put into jail by the local authorities. He was subsequently released and a nominal punishment was inflicted upon the officer who arrested him, but it was significant that an orderly from the fleet of the United States was picked out from the many persons constantly going shore on various errands, from the various ships in the harbor, representing several nations.

"Official Dispatch Withheld.

"Most serious of all, the officials in charge of the telegraph office at Mexico City presumed to withhold an official dispatch of the government of the United States to its embassy at Mexico City, until it should have been sent to the censor and his permission received to deliver it, and gave the dispatch into the hands of the charge d'affaires of the United States only upon his personal and emphatic demand, he having in the meantime learned through other channels that a dispatch had been sent him which he had not received.

"United States Singled Out.

"It cannot but strike anyone who has watched the course of events in Mexico as significant that untoward incidents such as these have not occurred in any case where representatives of other governments were concerned, but only in dealings with representatives of the United States, and that there has been no occasion for other governments to call attention to such matters or to ask for apologies.

"These repeated offenses against the rights and dignity of the United States, offenses not duplicated with regard to the representatives of other governments, have necessarily made the impression that the government of the United States was singled out for manifestations of ill will and contempt."

THE INSULT AT TAMPICO

Friday morning, April 10, a boat's crew of United States marines, in command of Assistant Paymaster Charles C. Copp, left the gunboat Dolphin for Tampico to get a fresh supply of gasoline.

The United States flag, was flying from the stern of the whaleboat when it approached the landing in Tampico. For no assigned cause Assistant Paymaster Copp and his men were placed under arrest as they stepped ashore.

After the Americans had been detained several hours, word of their arrest was carried to Rear Admiral Mayo, who demanded their immediate release.

The demand was complied with, but the only reparation made was a brief expression of regret for the alleged mistake.

that which permitted placer mining being carried on in small areas by very limited associations, in the most primitive manner. For this heavy fees had to be paid to the government; and as the fees were certain, while the product was very much the reverse, the industry was not one which attracted either capitalists or prospectors of good repute.

A young man never judges his sweet heart by his knowledge of his own sister.

RAISING STRAWBERRIES AND SMALL FRUITS

Strawberries, Luscious and Delicious, One of the First Fruits of Summer, and Easy to Raise.

Every farmer and all others who have the room should raise some small fruits for the family. There is nothing more healthful. Very little care is needed after the plants are once started. Gooseberries and currants are also excellent for the table, and do not require as much attention as strawberries.

If a new strawberry bed is to be set out this spring, select ground that has been one year in corn, and one year in potatoes, which has been heavily dressed with barn-yard manure and is deep and well pulverized—such land is free of weeds and is infested with the white grub, or with wire and cut worms.

Land that has been dressed with manure last year will not need manuring this spring. Have ground plowed when dry enough to work and thoroughly harrowed. Mark off the rows four feet apart, spread one large handful of some good bone phosphite in it. Plant the varieties that succeed best in your neighborhood.

Currants and gooseberries become wormy by the maggot of a small fly. The fly pierces through the skin of the young fruit and deposits an egg. When the currants are fully ripe the maggots drop out and enter the ground, where they pass the winter. From the nature of the attack it is impossible to cope with this pest by any spray. The only vulnerable period in the life history of the currant maggot is when the insect has entered the ground. A light cultivation of the soil during the late fall will tend to smash some of the worms in the ground and will help in protecting next year's crop. However, since these plants have very shallow roots, care must be taken not to injure the root system of the bushes.

Chickens do considerable good if allowed to scratch out the maggots at the base of the plants. It might be well to pick the entire crop early before any of the maggots escape. The fruit could be used for jellies and the presence of the worms does not impair the quality of the preserves.

As it is, a good many worms in currants are unconsciously used by every housewife.

every three feet of row—this will be at the rate of 400 pounds of fertilizer to the acre. Set the plants 15 inches apart in the row, being careful to keep the heart of plant above ground. The best method of planting is to run a shallow furrow with the one-horse plow for the large garden or with the hand plow for the small garden, then dip the roots of the plant in a mixture of cow manure and fine soil, spread out the roots and cover with the fine soil. By having the roots spread out the plants will take root quickly, making a strong, healthy growth. When plants are put in with the dibble, the roots are crowded into a narrow space and they never make as large, stocky plants as those planted as described above. It takes a little longer to set plants by this plow, but it pays to do

In order to successfully transplant, a great deal of care is necessary in observing a few important, though simple rules.

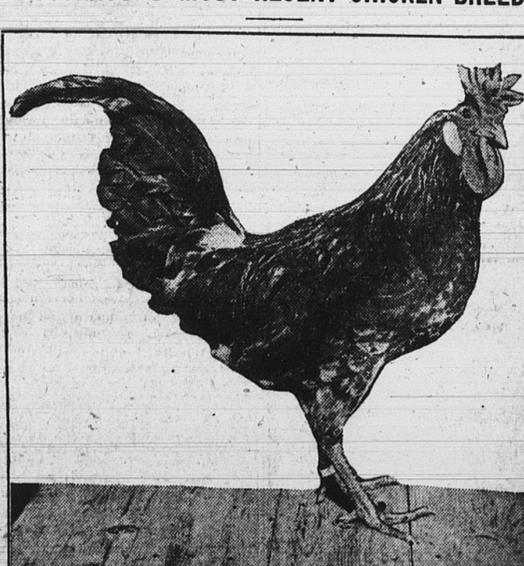

If possible, choose a cloudy day for this work, or do it in the evening. Water the plants so that the soil is thoroughly saturated; then lift the seedlings carefully with plenty of soil, and gently separate the plants.

With a sharp knife, remove about two-thirds of the leaves and stems, and then puddle the roots. On no account should the wind or sun reach the roots, even for a moment.

The holes should be ready to receive the plants. Fill them with water, and set the plants firmly into the soil, pressing the soil carefully about the plants, drawing dry soil on top of the wet soil.

If the sun shines, shade the plants for a few days.

BUTTERCUPS—MOST RECENT CHICKEN BREED

Buttercup at the Poultry Show.

(By E. VAN BENTHUYSEN.)

The display of Buttercups at the recent Grand Central Palace show in New York, more fowls were shown of that breed than had ever been cooped in any other show. They are among the most recent breeds to be taken up by the American breeders, and though they are of an old Sicilian breed, have been prominent in this country for a comparatively short time.

The breed is becoming more and more popular in other countries. They are egg machines as are most of the other Mediterranean breeds. They lay well, shelling out large white eggs, and are light feeders. The comb differs from that of any other breed. It starts back from the beak single, runs back a little way and then divides, each side forming one side of a circle or cup, that should be round, not oval, and is surrounded by many sharp spikes.

The color of the male is bright red, with black tail; the female is of a golden buff color, with body feathers barred across, showing a sharp contrast in colors of black and buff; neck and breast a clear buff; both sexes with green legs.

The American Buttercup club was formed in 1912. The third annual meeting was held in connection with the recent Grand Central Palace show. Club members number 600. The English Buttercup club was formed in 1913, and at the recent Crystal Palace show, 81 specimens of the breed were exhibited. The best showing ever made of a new breed on its first appearance. Enthusiasts of the breed claim for it the distinction of being the future hope for the reduction "of the high cost of living."

DAIRY FACTS

DEVELOPING THE DAIRY COW

Keep the Heifer Growing, Feed Liberally, But Do Not Fatten Her—What Feed to Give.

(By E. K. PARKINSON, Copyright.)

The development of a dairy cow should begin in the sire and dam and several generations. To illustrate, there is land enough to keep a cow and money being distinctly an object it is decided to buy a heifer calf to raise it. With this end in view the milkman or butcher is interviewed, and, being an obliging chap, he finds pretty little bossy, drops $10 into a pocket and the prospective milkmaid installed. For two years the best feed, patted and watched over, and last the eventful day arrives when with new milk pail in hand, the family gather in the barn to watch the milking—the result, about eight quarts daily. At first that sounds very well but wait a moment. The Massachusetts Agricultural college has found that a cow (feed, insurance, tax, depreciation, etc.) costs $146.04 per year, so let us do some figuring: Eight quarts for 300 days (the cow being dry two months yearly) gives 2,400 quarts, which if sold at six cents per quart would return $144, a loss of $2.04—not quite what we had reckoned on is it?

Therefore a future dairy cow should come from a line of good milkers—least, on the sire's side—and will cost as a calf about $25, but the money well expended, and, the calf purchased, the importance of spending thought as well as feed in its development should not be forgotten, especially during the first six months. Feed new milk the first two or three weeks, four to six quarts daily, divided into three feeds, then gradually substitute skim milk and continue to feed until six months old. Skim milk and well cured hay, alfalfa, clover, fed three times daily, should make the bulky part of the ration. Silage may take the place of one of the hay when three months old, but may be fed twice daily after six months. In addition to bulky feed the calf requires grain to furnish trimment and stimulate growth. Little at first, about a half a pound daily in a clean wooden box, and gradually increase until two pounds are given. A good mixture consists of cornmeal, ground oats and wheat in equal parts and a half part of seed meal. Feed the spring calf the barn the first summer, and with a year old turn her into a good pasture, when no other food will be required. Fall calves should not be obliged to depend entirely on pasture until eighteen months old. Keep her heifer growing, feed her well, but not fatten her.

TO PREVENT EVIL PRACTICES

Device Arranged to Effectively Cows From Milking Themselves—Improvement Suggested.

F. W. Feldman, in the Nebraska Farmer, suggests the following device to keep cows from sucking themselves:

Mr. Feldman says he has used this method on a cow, and it always given satisfaction. The reason he gives for the chain at the end of the wood is to give the cow a better chance to eat. The length of the pole and must be made to suit the size of the cow.

It is suggested that a strap

Device for Self-Sucking Cows. The spine connecting the strap to the neck with the one over the might improve the device.

Temperature for Churning.

Cream should be churned at a temperature as possible, the colder the cream when churned, the more exhaustive churning and the better the grain and flavor of the butter. Other conditions favorable, from 58 to 60 degrees usually be sufficiently low.

Churn is Final Decision.

The solids in milk gauge its price—not its bulk—for it is the cream with cream. Equal measurements of different results as milk, one some cream diluted, and churn must be the final decision in the matter.

Are You Suffering From Auto-Intoxication? The dictionary says that Auto-Intoxication is the state of being poisoned from toxic substances produced within the body. This is a condition due to the stomach, bowels, kidneys, liver, or any of the organs of the body failing to throw off the poisons. More than 50% of adults are suffering from this trouble. This is probably why you are suffering from nervousness, headaches, loss of appetite, lack of ambition, and many other symptoms produced by Auto-Intoxication. Your whole system needs stirring up.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY (in Tablet or Liquid Form) will remedy the trouble. It first aids the system to expel accumulated poisons. It acts as a tonic and finally enables the body to eliminate its own poisons without any outside aid. Obey Nature's warnings. Your dealer in medicines will supply you, or you may send 50c for a sample package of Tablets by mail. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY. The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wigan, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the loins that it was difficult to move.

Rev. E. Heslop. After using 5 boxes of Dodds Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dodds Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: I have now changed my faith in your remedy for the above statement was authorized. Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy.

Cynicism. Richard Croker, nearly everybody knows, has a cynical wit. Mr. Croker fired this wit in a recent letter to a member of Tammany hall apropos of a millionaire's charities. "To be canonized in American public opinion," he wrote, "give publicly and steal privately."

Uncomfortable. "Is Boozer still on the water wagon?" "No, very restless."—Boston Transcript.

Women's Confidence in BEECHAM'S PILLS. The efficacy of this thoroughly tried remedy is never misplaced. In every way—in health, strength, spirit and in looks—women find themselves better after timely use of BEECHAM'S PILLS.

400,000 Settlers a Year. Immigration figures show that the population of Canada increased during 1913, by the addition of 400,000 new settlers from the United States and Europe. Most of these have gone to farms in provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

FREE TO ALL SUFFERERS. The possibilities and opportunities offered by the Canadian West are so infinitely greater than those which exist in England, it seems absurd to think that people should be impeded from coming to the country where they can most easily and profitably improve their position.

ASKS CONGRESS TO APPROVE USE OF ARMED U. S. FORCES

President Wilson Reads Message on Mexico to Joint Session

FIGHT AGAINST HUERTA Would Use Force Only So Far as Necessary to Bring Dictator to Terms.

HOPES WAR IS NOT NEAR Chief Executive Declares This Country Does Not Desire to Control Mexico and That If War Does Come We Will Only Be Fighting Huerta and His Adherents and Not Mexico.

Washington, April 21.—Immediately after the president finished his message the joint session was dissolved and a joint resolution introduced in both houses empowering the president to use the army and navy in enforcing his demands on General Huerta.

Washington, April 21.—Asking approval to use the armed forces of the United States in such ways and to such an extent that may be necessary to obtain from General Huerta and his adherents the fullest recognition of the rights and dignity of the United States, President Wilson personally appealed to a joint session of congress for permission to compel proper recognition of the supremacy of the stars and stripes.

War Waged Against Huerta. "If armed conflict should unhappily come as a result of his attitude of personal resentment towards this government, we should be fighting only General Huerta and those who adhere to him, and give him support, and our object would be only to restore to the people of the distressed republic the opportunity to set up their own laws."

ferred, but demanded that the flag of the United States be saluted with special ceremony by the military commander of the port. "The incident cannot be regarded as a trivial one, especially as two men of the men arrested were taken from the boat itself—that is to say, from the territory of the United States; but had it stood by itself it might have been attributed to the ignorance or arrogance of a single officer.

U. S. Singled Out for Insult. "Subsequent explanations and formal apologies did not and could not alter the popular impression, which, it is possible, it had been the object of the Huertista authorities to create, that the government of the United States was being singled out, and might be singled out with impunity, for slights and affronts in retaliation for its refusal to recognize the pretensions of General Huerta to be regarded as the constitutional provisional president of the republic of Mexico.

His distinction between an optimist and a pessimist is apparent in the following definition which he sometimes gives: "A pessimist," says Representative Fess, "asks 'Is there any milk in that pitcher?' But an optimist says, 'Pass the cream.'"

RED, ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE. For red, rough, chapped and bleeding hands, dry, fissured, itching, burning palms, and painful finger-ends, with shapeless nails, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Directions: Soak the hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear soft bandages or old, loose gloves during the night. These pure, sweet and gentle emollients preserve the hands, prevent redness, roughness and chapping, and impart in a single night that velvety softness and whiteness so much desired by women. For those whose occupations tend to injure the hands, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are wonderful. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

TORTURING TWINGES. Much so-called rheumatism is caused by weakened kidneys. When the kidneys fail to clear the blood of uric acid, the acid forms into crystals like bits of broken glass in the muscles, joints and on the nerve casings. Torturing pains dart through the affected part whenever it is moved. By curing the kidneys, Doan's Kidney Pills have eased thousands of rheumatic cases, lumbago, sciatica, gravel, neuralgia and urinary disorders.

AN INDIANA CASE. M. C. Walker, 922 Grand Ave., Connersville, Ind., says: "For ten years I had muscular rheumatism. I was laid up in bed and couldn't move a limb. Physicians and hot applications failed. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills helped me and two more boxes permanently cured me."

Sick Women Attention. Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I. PROVIDENCE, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. RICHMOND, 199 Waldo Street, Providence, R. I.

A Minister's Wife Writes: CLOQUET, MINN.—"I have suffered very much with irregularities, pain and inflammation, but your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. From Mrs. J. D. Murdoch, Quincy, Mass. SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. BREVITIES

MANCHESTER—Nathaniel Schmidt has been appointed postmaster here.

GREGORY—Carpenters have commenced the work of enlarging Mrs. Howlett's house.

ANN ARBOR—Twenty-nine saloon keepers of this city have made applications to the Common Council for licenses.

ANN ARBOR—A student in the engineering department of the U. of M. has been taken to the University hospital suffering with scarlet fever.

ADDITION—Chas. Lane has a cat that was born in 1897, being now in eighteenth year. A ripe old age for a puss. Salmon is about all that appeals to the old feline's appetite, but despite this rather high priced menu Mr. Lane provides it for the animal.

BLISSFIELD—It is expected that nearly the usual amount of sugar beets will be raised in this locality this season, although it will not be known just how many acres will be put to this crop until it comes time for distributing seed, which is near at hand.—Advance.

ANN ARBOR—Judge E. D. Kinne signed a decree of divorce Tuesday in favor of John J. Speed, of Ypsilanti who sued his wife, Mildred Speed, naming cruelty as the ground for his action. There are no children.

Under the decree Mr. Speed is to pay his wife $200 at once and $300 at a future time, also the sum of $5 a week during her natural life.

YPSILANTI—Fire which broke out at 1 o'clock Monday morning in the home of Henry D. Lawrence, came very near costing a human life. Mrs. Lawrence was overcome by the smoke and rendered unconscious, and had to be carried out by her husband who saved his own life and that of his two children by a narrow margin. The loss is $400, covered by insurance.

BRIGHTON—Most of you tax payers have probably heard the rumor that the State Tax Commission intend to re-assess Livingston county this year and place all assessable property at cash value on the rolls the same as they have already done in eighteen counties of this state and intend to do in the remaining counties before this year is over with.—Argus.

ANN ARBOR—During the meeting of the state board of the Equal Suffrage association here next Friday and Saturday, an effort will be made to interest university women in the movement. Several public meetings will be held and Mrs. Orton Clark, president of the association, will on Friday afternoon, make a personal appeal to women students at a meeting to be held at the Sorosis society.

ANN ARBOR—Nine Michigan university students have signified their intentions of entering upon foreign missionary work at the close of the present semester. They are: Annette Wood, Ann Arbor; Laure Teige, Ann Arbor; Helen Moore, Carthage, Ill.; Miss Duell, Ypsilanti; Dwight Jennings, Ann Arbor; Aaron Chute, Toledo, O.; Melvin Case, Fenton; Elbridge Waite, Portland, Me.; and Philip Lovejoy, Ann Arbor.

HAMBURG—Two barns, a tool shed and a silo on the farm belonging to George Roberts near here burned Sunday night, causing a loss of about $3,000, part of which was covered by insurance. The barns were located on what is known as the "Jim Watkins" place, now the property of George Roberts of South Lyons, whose son, William, lives on the place. The fire started from a lighted lantern which had been left in one of the barns. All of the live stock was saved and efforts of neighbors prevented the fire from spreading to the house.

PLYMOUTH—The free delivery of mail in this village is now practically assured to take effect July 1st, if certain requirements exacted by the postal department are complied with, and there is every reason to believe that they will be. The government has recently made a large appropriation for the free mail delivery in villages for experimental purposes, and through the efforts of Congressman Samuel Beakes, Plymouth has been selected as one of the villages in Michigan where the experiment is to be tried out. Postoffice Inspector Howe was in the village last Friday and went over the town thoroughly.—Mail.

Notice to Real Estate Owners.

Have you an abstract of the title of your property, if so, have you had it examined by a competent examiner, to learn whether your title is free from such defects as are commonly referred to as "a cloud upon the title."

A cloud upon the title to real property is created in many different ways, the most common of which are, that the person who located the land from the United States Government failed to obtain and record his LETTERS PATENT, or that one of the respective owners did not record his deed, or that a mortgage, after receiving payment of mortgage debt, failed to discharge the mortgage, or that the conveyancer in drafting deed or mortgage made a mistake in the description of the property or in the names of the parties. All defects of this character can be easily and inexpensively cured during the lives of the interested parties, but become difficult and expensive if not taken in time.

Owners of thirty per cent of the property in this county have no abstracts of their title and no way of determining its true condition as shown by the official records. Is the title to your HOME or FARM included in this list, if so, would it not be well to procure an abstract at once and have it carefully examined. Many a sale has been defeated because of a defect in the title, the owner having waited until he wanted to sell his property before ordering an abstract.

The records of this company, established in 1863, are very complete, and we shall be pleased to serve you. WASHTEAW ABSTRACT COMPANY, Adv. 45 Ann Arbor, Michigan.

For his Saturday evening show Manager McLaren of the Princess has booked a very fine picture featuring Miss Gene Gauntier. It is a three part story of the civil war "On the Fighting Line." The story which is a real thriller is as follows:

Joe Britt, a poor Georgia farmer, is caught in the draft net, and reports for service under General Lee. His motherless daughter, Jane, does a man's work in the fields and lives a life of drudgery under the strong arm of her foster mother who is a Yankee and is not in sympathy with the Confederate spirit of patriotism.

Unable to endure this life, Jane disguises herself as a boy and sets out for the front to find her father's regiment. On the way, she encounters a Northern spy who shares his food with her. Arriving at the front, Jane enlists and is detailed for night picket duty. She is caught sleeping at her post and is sentenced to be shot, but escapes and again meets the Northern spy who entrusts her with an important message to the Northern general. She is captured by the Northerners, and later escapes, making her way to the Confederate camp. With the information which she brings, the Confederates turn the tables on the Yankees and win a decisive victory.

Jane discards her male attire and remains in the Confederate camp as a field nurse. Gregg, the Yankee spy, is seriously wounded and made a prisoner of war. Jane nurses him back to health and promises to wed him after the war is over.

This is a tremendous feature, full of exciting action from beginning to end. The remarkably clever work of Miss Gauntier and Jack J. Clark will make you more enthusiastic than ever over the great Warner Features.
