ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Jacob John Koch of Lima Killed by the Cars Monday.

Jacob John Koch, for many years a resident of Lima, was instantly killed at Byron, a suburb of Batavia, New York, by falling from a west bound train No. 13 of the New York Central known as the Wolverine.

Mr. Koch was 68 years of age, and was on his way here from an extended visit in Germany. His boat arrived in New York Sunday. Two of his sons, Chris, who resides on the homestead farm in Lima, and Otto, of Ann Arbor, left Tuesday night for Batavia and reached Ann Arbor this morning with the body.

A dispatch from Batavia says: "In the man's pocket was found a ticket to Chelsea and a memorandum on which was written the name of Jas. S. Gorman, of Chelsea, who was Koch's attorney. The accident happened at Byron, N. Y., a small station outside of Batavia. Koch either leaped or accidentally fell from the platform of the train, death resulting instantaneously, Coroner Snow, of Genesee county, according to the dispatch, was notified, and at first was in doubt as to whether Koch had come to his death accidentally or whether he had planned self-destruction, but finally gave it as his belief that Koch fell from the platform accidentally."

Chief of Police J. T. Kenny, of Ann Arbor, was notified by a telegram from the chief of police of Batavia of the accident and, in turn, notified the family of Mr. Koch. There survive ten children, Christian Koch, Mrs. J. Bareis and Albert Koch, all of Lima, and Clara, Emma, George, Otto, Arthur, Oscar and Reuben, all of whom make their home with their mother in Ann Arbor.

The funeral was held at four o'clock this afternoon in Ann Arbor.

Former Chelsea Resident Dead.

Leander Tichenor was born at Newark, New Jersey, July 11, 1826, and died at his home in Lansing, Monday, June 8, 1914.

Mr. Tichenor became a resident of Michigan in 1841, his parents settling on the farm at present occupied by James Richards in Waterloo township. He remained on the farm with his father until his 24th year when he moved to a farm of his own. In 1868, he engaged in the manufacture of boots and shoes in Chelsea which he conducted for many years. After retiring from the shoe business he engaged in the manufacture of pleasure row boats which made him famous as a builder of his model of boats, and he retired from the boat business about five years ago. He moved to Lansing three years ago last October.

He was united in marriage with Miss Olive Becker of Sylvan, November 28, 1850, and to this union six sons were born, one of whom survives. The couple celebrated their golden wedding in 1900 and they also quietly celebrated the 60th anniversary of their marriage. Mr. Tichenor was a member of Olive Lodge, F. & A. M. of this place. He was an attendant of the Chelsea M. E. church.

The remains were brought here on Wednesday morning and the funeral was held from the home of Mrs. J. G. Hoover at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday forenoon, Rev. J. W. Campbell officiating. He is survived by his wife, one son, S. B. Tichenor, of Lansing, one sister, Mrs. J. G. Hoover, and one brother, Chas. Tichenor, both residents of this place. The interment took place at Maple Grove cemetery Sylvan Center.

FORTY YEARS AGO

happenings in Chelsea Forty Years Ago This Week.

A reception was given at the new home of Mr. Babcock, jr., on Friday evening. There were fifty couples present.

Two way freights collided about one mile this side of Dexter last week Wednesday. Both engines were ditched and thirteen cars wrecked. The damage was about $75,000. No one was seriously injured, though James Cunningham was somewhat bruised.

MADE HIS ESCAPE

Stranger Visits Vehicles and Appropriates Numerous Articles.

Last Saturday evening a stranger visited several vehicles on the streets here and helped himself to numerous articles that had been purchased by the owners of the rigs. About eleven o'clock the numerous thefts were discovered and reported to officers McKune and Cooper.

The man who did the stealing put in his appearance in Chelsea last Friday and claimed that he had been at work on the farm of Frank McMillen in Lima, which upon investigation proved to be a false statement. He claimed that he was going to work for Chris Schneider of Sylvan, but this statement proved to be equally untrue. The man is about 45 years old, was roughly dressed, looked like a farm laborer, but officer Cooper can testify that he is a goodsprinter.

A suit case was stolen from the buggy of Joseph Heim last Friday evening which the thief left on the premises of B. Steinbach with the contents undisturbed and which was later turned over to the officers. A good description of the thief has been given to the sheriff and he is on the outlook for the man.

After being notified of the numerous thefts officers Cooper and McKune started out on a hunt for the man. At the intersection of East and Middle street officer Cooper met the man and informed him that he was wanted, and started up town with him. When in front of the residence of E. B. Hammond, the man dropped two pairs of shoes and a coat that he had stolen, but which he claimed were his and as Mr. Cooper stopped to gather up the goods the man started on a run east on Middle street. Cooper started after his man and as the thief proved the best runner and after a run of a block the officer fired four shots from his revolver at the fleeing man. At Madison street the man turned south and finally took to the farm of Dr. G. W. Palmer where he was last sight of. The officers made a thorough search for the man but failed to find him. A portion of the stolen goods were recovered.

Two pair of shoes were stolen from Julius Kaercher, coat and pail of lard from George Knoll, air pump from the auto of Chas. Riemenschneider, all of the goods but the air pump and pail of lard were recovered.

Pioneer of This County.

William Paul, who for 41 years has been a resident of Lima died at his home in that township Monday, June 8, 1914.

Mr. Paul was born in Scio, April 9, 1832, and was the first son of German parents born in that township and was the first to be confirmed within the borders of the county. He witnessed the arrival of the first locomotive on the Michigan Central, when the road was completed to Dexter. In early boyhood he used to make the trip from the family home to the flour mill at Waterloo, which was made with an ox team and usually consumed four days. Both going to and from the mill he used to camp for the night on Mill creek opposite the residence of John Geddes. There were no buildings on the present site of Chelsea and the road was a mere trail. Whenever he related incidents of pioneer life they proved very interesting.

He was twice married and his second wife was buried five weeks ago today. For the last two years he has been in failing health and has been deaf for more than 20 years.

He leaves six sons, Henry, of Northfield, Michael of Dexter, Christian, of Ann Arbor, Ernest and Charles, of Chelsea, and Robert of Lansing; three daughters, Mrs. Mary Brown, of Saline, Mrs. Catherine Niehaus, of Lima, and Mrs. Martha Bahmiller, of Lima; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Mary Albert of Lodi, and Mrs. Christian Jedele, of Lodi, and one stepson, George Schwartz, of Ann Arbor, besides 39 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the late home at 10 o'clock this morning, Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating. Interment at Bethlehem cemetery, Ann Arbor.

NARROW ESCAPE

Carl Koeltz Had a Runaway Tuesday Afternoon on Middle Street.

Carl Koeltz, who resides on his fathers' farm in Lyndon, had an unpleasant experience in a runaway between 12 and 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The young man was on his way home driving west on Middle street. Walter Koebbe was riding on his motorcycle going in the same direction and at the intersection of Grant and Middle streets the horse sprang into a run. At the corner of Hayes and Middle streets the horse ran on the lawn at the home of Frank Shaver where it freed itself from the buggy. Mr. Koeltz was thrown from the buggy and landed against a tree. His shoulder and hip being quite badly injured. One of the front wheels of the buggy was wrecked and it was otherwise damaged. The horse escaped without any injury. Mr. Koeltz had a narrow escape from a more serious accident and will probably be laid up for several days.

Mr. Koebbe hired Mr. Fox, who resides on North street, to take Mr. Koeltz to his home and had the wrecked buggy taken to the carriage shop to be repaired.

Lived in this County Eighty-five Years.

Henry Speer was born in Tyre, Seneca county, New York, January 12, 1825, and died at his home on Orchard street, Monday evening, June 8, 1914, the cause of his death being the result of an accident which occurred a few weeks ago.

Mr. Speer had been a resident of Washtenaw county for 85 years, his parents settling in this county when he was four years of age. He was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Wheaton, at Saline September 12, 1847, and to this union seven children were born, two of whom died in infancy. Mrs. Speer died in 1877. Mr. and Mrs. Speer made their home on a farm in Lodi for a few years and settled on the farm in Sylvan owned by Samuel Guthrie in 1852, and became residents of Chelsea in 1858.

Mr. Speer was a veteran of the Civil War, having been a member of Co. A, 1st regiment Michigan Volunteer Engineers and Mechanics, and was honorably discharged after a short service owing to broken health. He was a member of R. P. Carpenter Post, G. A. R., and for many years always took an active interest in all of the gatherings of that body. The deceased has been in failing health for several years, but was able to get about the streets until about a year ago and always enjoyed a visit with his friends.

He is survived by three sons, James W., of this place, Dr. Reul M., of Battle Creek, Thomas G., of Chelsea, two daughters, Mrs. Abigail Smith, of Grass Lake, Mrs. Ida M. Webster of this place, eleven grandchildren, six great grandchildren, three great great grandchildren and two brothers.

The funeral was held from the home of his son, Thos. G., with whom he has resided for many years, at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Rev. C. J. Dole, officiating. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery.

Well Known Pioneer Resident.

William H. Glenn, for nearly 70 years a prominent resident of North Lake, died at his home in Stockbridge, Thursday night, June 4, 1914, aged 75 years and 11 months.

Mr. Glenn was a son of John Glenn, who was a pioneer resident of Dexter township, and in 1833 settled on the farm at present owned by Fred C. Glenn, where the deceased was born July 4, 1838.

Mr. Glenn was united in marriage with Miss Matilda J. Watts, of Lyndon, September 30, 1860, and the couple settled on a portion of the old homestead where they resided until about six years ago when they moved to Stockbridge. To this union five children were born. Mr. Glenn was an active member of the North Lake M. E. church and was also connected with the North Lake Grange.

He is survived by his wife, one son Emory L., of Stockbridge, three daughters, Mesdames R. W. Webb, of North Dakota, Minnie C. Dutton, of Plainfield and M. R. Griffith, of California, one brother, R. C. Glenn, of Florida, and one sister, Mrs. Lucy Wood, of North Lake.

The funeral was held at the North Lake M. E. church Tuesday afternoon Rev. Mr. Stevens, of Stockbridge, officiating. Interment at North Lake cemetery.

For more than thirty years Mr. Glenn acted as the North Lake correspondent of the Herald and Standard and his weekly contributions were read with unusual interest by the subscribers and many of his items were copied by the newspapers in this vicinity. For years he was in failing health but was always cheerful and his friends were greeted in a cordial manner whenever he met them.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Rare Assortment of Swords in National Museum

WASHINGTON.—The sword collection in the National museum, comprising some 180 pieces, proves perhaps of greater general interest than any other of the many extensive exhibits. It not only covers a long period of history but shows the development of the sword as a weapon and as a badge of rank and office.

One good-sized collection, turned over to the museum by the war department some years ago, is representative of all branches of the war service for the different periods in United States history, and includes also several foreign naval and military types. By comparison, it is seen that the types changed all over the world every ten or twenty years, a feature no doubt resulting from the contact brought about by wars as well as following peace regulations.

In the ethnological division of the new building there is an instructive exhibit of swords and cutlery which forms part of the George Kennan collection, and includes Turkish and Arabian yataghans, two Russian swords, a Scotch dirk, a Crusader's sword, and a sample of two-handed weapon dated 1710. In the Mason family collection, lent to the museum by Mrs. Julian James, there are several American swords, bayonets and cutlasses, besides many implements from Japan, China, Turkey and North Africa.

Two other notable collections are the deposits of the late Dr. Charles W. Hickman of Augusta, Ga., and Capt. J. R. Hannay, U. S. A., which include 70 weapons of exceptional rarity. Other collections pertain to the native weapons of the Philippines, Cuba and Porto Rico.

Among the individual exhibits are numerous swords connected with important epochs in American history. The earliest types are those of the Revolution, particularly those which were presented by the Continental congress to John Hancock and Col. Return Jonathan Meigs; a service sword of Gen. Peter Gansevoort, Jr., and another engraved "The Sword of Rochambeau," a cutlass from the Bonhomme Richard, presented to Lieut. James B. Safford in 1784, and several swords of the period, the ownership of which is not established.

In connection with later wars there are swords which belonged to Decatur, Shubrick, Ripley, Gansevoort, Brown, McGruder, Morgan, Shields, Paul de Peyster, Vincent, Howard, Hancock, Custer, Grant, Sherman, Kilpatrick, Trencard, Mason, Wilkes, Schley, Phillips, Capron and Ord.

Do Senators and Congressmen Like Applause?

SOME wag recently posted up in the halls of congress a card that had evidently been used in a moving picture show. Visitors were astounded to read on going into the galleries a noticed marked "Information: Please applaud any act that you like, as this not only stimulates the performer, but gives the management an idea of the particular kind of vaudeville you most enjoy. Please report any discourtesy on the part of employes to manager and their services will be promptly dispensed with."

There was a good deal of tittering before an attendant spied the card and hastily removed it. A senator who heard of the joke declared that it was a pity to spoil the fun, for the card was only an indication of the frank way Americans have of expressing themselves. A great many believe that the progress of culture means the repression of suggestions that under ordinary circumstances would be frankly made. "The actors on the stage seek applause," continued the senator, "why then not frankly admit that they like it, and ask the audience to stir themselves now and then? There is never a time in debate when a congressman or senator who is speaking is not consciously pleased when the galleries applaud or burst into laughter despite the rap of the gavel and the admonition of the speaker. If the noise does not cease, the galleries will be cleared." Of course, playing to the galleries in congress is expressly prohibited, but who would dare to say that it is not practised assiduously by a large proportion of the men in public life, for, in the last analysis, who are the gallery but the people—and who are the people?

Youth Dips Into Fountain on a Two-Dollar Bet

A MEMBER of the Western High school housed at the Franklin school is endeavoring to collect a wager from his schoolmates, won at noon recess the other day. The youngster, said to be the son of a prominent Washington banker, is not only trying to collect the wager, but is endeavoring to elude the watchful eye of the park policeman. It all happened in this way.

Gathered around the stands in course of erection for the Barry memorial statue ceremony, several boys were eating lunch. "For two bits," said one boy, "I'd dive into the fountain." "You're on," cried half a dozen voices. "Bet you two beans you won't," said a reckless wagerer who was a member of the party. "Nothing to it," returned the youth challenged. Stepping upon the concrete rim of the fountain, the youth stood poised for a second, and with a graceful Annette Kellerman dive performed the "Australian splash" into the water.

Whoops and shouts attracted attention as the youth emerged in the center of the pool and made his way to the edge. In less than a second's time the youngster made his way across the park, soaked, wet, but entirely successful in accomplishing the stunt. Just how he managed to explain his condition or successfully elude detection is not known, but a frightened youngster is today trying to collect his bet and avoid the publicity which usually accompanies such stunts.

Girls in Printing Bureau Must All Be Healthy

HORSE power! That's what they have to have—those girls who work as printers' assistants. And horse power is what we would make a requirement of their appointment. It's no use putting a race-horse to draw a truck. "It's hard work to be a printer's assistant; a severe physical stress is upon the workers. If they are not healthy and strong—well, the work is too much for them."

Director Ralph of the bureau of engraving and printing made this exposition of his point of view in explaining the investigation undertaken by Dr. Benjamin S. Warren of the public health service. A physical examination, rigid enough to determine the fitness of applicants for the labor required of them as printers' assistants, it is expected, will be directed as part of the civil service requirements. It is brains, not brains, that the labor demands.

There are 500 printers' assistants employed in the bureau. Most of them are physically capable, and the investigation is not especially aimed at present conditions, but to insure that future appointments shall be of the right metal in the matter of strength and endurance. The girls are on their feet throughout the hours of the work day, and the strain is severe when there is not bodily fitness.

Examinations of the lungs, to determine the freedom from tubercular tendencies, and of the body generally to prove normal development, is the idea of what should be the test of fitness. A tubercular employe is regarded as a menace to her fellow workers, and one of inferior strength as putting an unfair burden upon her fellow workers to keep up the average production of labor, as well as a detriment to the public service.

BOOSTING VALUES IN ASSESSMENTS

MANY TOWNSHIPS IN NORTHERN COUNTIES ON TRUE BASIS.

BARNES MAKES INSPECTION

Chairman of State Commission Reports on Work Done in Upper Part of Southern Peninsula of State.

Lansing, Mich.—Chairman Barnes, of the state tax commission, who has returned from a trip of inspection through several counties in the northern section of the lower peninsula, reports that many townships are placing their assessed valuations at cash value. In one township in Otsego county, the assessed valuation was on the books at $206,220. Two experts from the tax commission were asked for by the supervisor of the township to assist him, with the result that the assessed valuation was raised to $730,000, a boost of over 250 per cent.

Another township was raised from $478,000 to $704,940, or 80 per cent. Still another township was boosted from $364,000 to $445,000. Chairman Barnes says the latter township was assessed nearer cash value than the others, which goes to show the fact that this particular township was being discriminated against. Two townships in the county will have to be reassessed by the tax commission.

Ten townships in Cheboygan county are assessed nearly at cash value, but seven will have to be reassessed by the commission. The city of Cheboygan is now being reassessed. Six townships in Presque Isle county will have to be reassessed.

LINEN PLANT IS DESTROYED

Big Fire at Port Huron Throws Many Out of Employment.

Port Huron, Mich.—Fire of unknown origin did about $35,000 damage to the plant of the Summers Linen Co., at the foot of Thomas street, Monday.

The fire was discovered in a two-story frame structure where the company's supply of flax was kept and spread so rapidly throughout the structure that the firemen were helpless. The heat from the burning building made it impossible for the fire fighters to get within 100 feet.

A large number of men will be thrown out of employment by the destruction of the plant. The fire is the third disastrous one in this city in eight months.

SAGINAW MAN IS FOUND MURDERED

RAILROAD OFFICIAL'S BODY SHOWS SIGNS OF VIOLENCE.

MISSING FOR THREE DAYS

Albert Sherman, Superintendent of Transportation of Street Car Lines, Probably Killed By Enemies.

Saginaw, Mich.—Albert Sherman, 52 years old, and for three years superintendent of transportation of the city car lines in Saginaw and Bay City was found dead in a clymp of bushes near Zilwaukee, five miles from Saginaw, Tuesday noon. He had been missing from home since Friday, and had asked his employers for a few days' vacation to go to Toledo.

Sherman's face was badly mutilated and distorted. His mouth was cut and there was a long scar on his forehead. One hand and coat sleeve as far as the elbow was matted with blood. Coroner Alden summoned two doctors to make an examination of the body. Dr. M. D. Ryan stated that there was a sharp wound on the scalp evidently made by some sharp instrument. Coroner Alden believes there was foul play.

He had been threatened several times in the last year, and only two weeks ago engaged in a fight with two men he had discharged. Recently he arrested men in Zilwaukee, who stole traction company goods. Ten months ago a discharged conductor followed and slugged him with a beer bottle. Sherman carried a book of transportation and it was missing from his pocket.

Clarence King, a conductor, said Tuesday night that Saturday afternoon four men approached him and inquired for Sherman, saying they were going to kill him.

Sherman worked through all departments of the Toledo street railway, and had been employed in that city 20 years before coming here.

ONLOOKER

A JOY RIDE FOR KATHLEEN

"I'll take you again, Kathleen, when you're a wild, laughing ride; I've amused the new car, and it shall be fully tried. The breeze shall cheerly fan your cheek, the whirring wheels we will ignore, words I shall speak, I fear you'll make me wish their eyes were here. Oh, I will take you home, Kathleen; I hope that you may feel no pain. The car is all tyred and clean, we'll have it wiped nice up again. I know you love me, Kathleen, dear, because the car I run is new; I'll speed it on the highest gear, and try to give new thrills to you. The things that get in front of me, I'll smash, and care not little how; I hold to your hat and you shall see some mighty pretty scoring now. Oh, I will take you home, Kathleen, and if we give to others pain, we'll blithely hurry from the scene, and never drive that way again.

For Her Father's Sake.

"I want to have an understanding with you," said the outspoken old man when the expert in voice culture had asked him to sit down. "I want you to tell me the truth about my daughter's voice." "My dear sir, don't ask me to do that. It is too painful." "What! Do you dare to look me in the face and insinuate that she is never likely to be able to sing?" "I am very sorry, sir, but if you will compel me to speak the truth, it is as you say." "Then why the devil have you been letting her come here for two years and hand you my good money in return for your lessons?" "Because I have wished to serve you, sir. Whenever I tell young ladies they can't sing they go to a teacher on the floor below, and he charges cents a lesson more than I get. You can figure for yourself what I have saved you on three lessons a week for two years."

WHY THEY QUARRELED.

"I thought I overheard you quarreling your wife quarreling a little while ago. What was the trouble?" "She brought home a new hat, and after putting it on, she turned to me and said, 'I didn't believe it was becoming.' "Well?" "I agreed with her."

Heroism and Righteousness.

The Turk, believing that his soul will go to heaven at once if on the field he dies. While fighting Allah's foes, is but a man. To that poor faith which leaves him in the grave. He that fears sin and from temptations flees. Because he fears the God above him he is, like the foolish Turk, a haunted man. Who goes at last deluded to his grave. They are the heroes who, afraid to die, still follow duty where the bullets fly. And he is righteous who, unchecked by fear, scorning sin's allurements, holds his life dear.

Some Other Reason.

"Do you suppose your father objects to me because of the fact that I am a poet?" "Oh, dear, no. Pa has a judgment and never believes in condemning on hearsay evidence."

Old.

"She claims to be much younger than she really is, I think." "Yes. She admitted the other day that she could easily remember the Travis won his first golf championship."

Why Bother About It?

"Do you think a man who will neglect his business to go to baseball games is of sound mind?" "Oh, come, let's be optimistic. Can't believe everybody's crazy."

Geniuses and Marriage.

Kate Upson Clark says geniuses ought not to marry. "Oh, please, Kate. We know several geniuses whose wives are reporting them in first-rate style."

Innocence.

"Won't you sing something for Miss Serechevitch?" "I am sorry, but I haven't brought my music with me." "Oh, does that make a difference?" "Satisfied. "Have you ever wished you were single again?" "No. My husband, who travels great deal, has always permitted me to live at a fashionable hotel."

The MAID of the FOREST

By RANDALL PARRISH
ILLUSTRATED BY D. J. LAVIN

"A soldier of England; an aide to Hamilton! You lie. When Hamilton knows what I know he will tear you limb from limb. You come here to frighten us with your threats—you! I fight upon you! Sis-te-wah, warriors, hear me; you know who I am; I travel with you on the war-trail; I go with you into battle. Now I speak with the straight tongue. You do not know this man, but I do. See; he dare not do me; watch him shrink back afraid. Well, there is reason."

"I fear you, Jules Lappin!"

"Ay! and with cause. Knew you ever the time I failed to pay my debts? I seek my vengeance! I have you here, and will crush the white-livered heart out of you with these hands. Listen, Shawnees, Miami, Ojibwas, while I tell you who this fellow is. Then give him to me—I ask no more."

He stopped, bent forward, his fingers clinched. The ring of Indians pressed closer, but the old chief waved them back, standing motionless.

"Speak, Englishman," he said with dignity, "we will hear."

Lappin half turned to face them, one hand gripping the knife at his belt. Like a white ghost mademoiselle slipped silently in between the two men. I saw it all over the brown barrel of my rifle, my heart throbbing fiercely.

"He is a renegade, a traitor," and Lappin's hand pointed at the man he accused, "the uniform he wears a lie. How do I know? Because he brought me yonder in the woods on the island; because he was in the cabin with the others. This is the man who was left for dead, who escaped. Do you recognize him now?"

I saw the red faces, and heard the scream of voices.

"Ay! you do; and the woman, the Wyandot squaw, helped him. I said before, now we have the proof. You drove her out, afraid to treat her as an enemy, and she goes to him, thinking his uniform will frighten you into sparing the hunter from torture. She brings him here to threaten you with what England will do. What say you, Shawnees, to the dog!"

The voices burst into a wild yell that seemed to split the night, but the fur trader flung up his hand.

"Back all of ye!" he roared savagely. "I claim this man as mine! Who has better right? I'll throttle the life out of him with my bare hands before ye all. Have your warriors give us space, Sis-te-wah."

The chief of the Shawnees, his eyes blazing under tangled hair, uplifted his arms.

"Tis the white man's right," he roared grimly. "I have spoken."

I drew in my breath deeply, yet what would I do? The rifle trembled in my grasp, but I dare not use it. The unfortunate Englishman stood in my place, was mistaken for me, but if I revealed myself it could serve no end—it would only leave me helpless to aid the girl. I could not think of him at that moment, but only of her.

It was all the work of an instant. Lappin whirled on his victim, slinging his gun to the ground.

"Face me, you cur, you spy!" he shouted. "Come out from behind that squaw. You got me once when my coat slipped. Let's see what you can do now. What! you won't! Well, you will!"

He thrust Rene back, hurling her into the sweep of his arm into the crowded ranks of warriors, one of whom clutched her as she fell. Then he struck the shrinking, startled Englishman a vicious blow in the face.

him, only to be gripped himself and flung headlong. But they were up together, bleeding both, panting for breath, clothes half ripped off their bodies, cursing fiercely, as they rushed at each other once more.

Merciful Mother! What a sight that was! I, a soldier, and border-bred, hid my face in my arms—and yet I looked and saw. The very ferocity of it was a fascinating horror—the black, black night above, around; the forests shutting them in; the howling dogs snapping at their heels; the red glare of fire, and that ring of yelping savages, dancing back and forth to give the combatants room. Rene had disappeared—forced back into the half-crazed mass, as the savages surged forward; of Brady I caught no glimpse. That was no scene to ever forget, to blot out with passing years. The wild savagery of it burned in on the brain; those dark faces, with wild eyes and dancing hair; the waving arms, and leaping bodies, the gleam of weapons tossed aloft, the jangle and din of excited voices in jargon of unknown tongues. How the red flames danced over them all, now in shadow, now in glare of light, making them appear fiends incarnate. And those two battling in the midst, huge men in death-grapple, fighting as tigers fight—resourceless, merciless; tearing each other's flesh, battering each other's faces, gripping, clutching, straining in effort at mastery. Again and again they crunched into the crowd, reeling from blows, or hurled back by sheer strength of muscle; they sobbed forth curses, staggering with weakness. I saw Lappin drive his head into his opponent's stomach as though it were a battering-ram; I saw the soldier sink his teeth into the fur-trader's hand, as if he were a mad dog. "Twas then the brute reached down and fumbled for his knife—found it, and, with one hoarse cry of triumph, sent the bright blade home. Twice he struck, and they went staggering down together, locked in each other's arms, the soldier dead ere he struck the ground.

It was dead then, followed by a breathless hush as Sis-te-wah pressed forward with uplifted arms. Two warriors lifted Lappin to his feet, and, as his gripping hand plucked out the knife from the wound, I saw the gush of blood crimsoning the dead man's side. An instant the victor stood glaring down, reeling in weakness, upheld by others. Then he laughed, waving the dripping blade.

"Ah! good!" he cried. "There is one more recruit for hell. Bring me the girl here. 'Tis time she had her lesson also."

They brought her forward, a red beard grasping either arm. I caught sight of her face, white, drawn, but not with fear, and sighted my rifle across the log at the white ruffian's breast. With clinched lips I lay, finger to trigger. Yet I waited—thank God, I waited. I know not what restrained me, only it was no fear of consequences to myself. It must have been the expression of the woman's uplifted face, the quick glance she cast about, as though in silent warning to me. I took it as a signal, a message of restraint. The fur trader, burly and brutal, still panting for breath, yet able to stand alone now, and conscious of his victory, thrust his reeking knife back into his belt with a coarse laugh.

"How do you like that, you Wyandot squaw?" he asked, leering down into her face.

"When you have these men release my arms I will answer you," she returned quietly.

"Oh, you will, hey! You'll be glad enough to talk before I am through. Let go of her there—yes; that's what I mean. Now look here—there lies your English officer. He's paid the price of being a fool. Look at him—are you ready to speak now?"

"He was nothing to me," she said slowly, "nothing. But he fought a man's fight, and was killed by cowardly treachery."

"What! you squaw, you dare—"

"Of course I dare. Do you suppose I fear you, Jules Lappin, or your gang of outlaws?" he voice scornful. "Why,

I challenge you to my hand on me. You know who I am; you have eaten in the tents of my father. I know who you are, and I despise you. You call me a Wyandot squaw; threaten what you will do; point me to this dead man whom you have murdered. Why? To frighten me—me? Very well, I'll answer you. I am a Wyandot; I am Running Water; but in my veins flows also the best blood of France. Mine is not a race of cowards and murderers, thieves and traders; my ancestors were soldiers and men. And you think I am afraid of you—you cur of the woods; afraid of you! Touch me, Jules Lappin, if you dare; I challenge you. Come, I wait for you to lay hand on me."

He stared at her sullenly, angry enough, yet with the bullying look gone from his mottled face. Something about the girl—her sharp words, her cool defiance—had left him uncertain.

"More than that, Jules Lappin," she went on passionately, "you are going to pay for all this," and she pointed down at the dead body, "pay for it, do you understand! That man was what he claimed to be—an aide to Hamilton. England pays her debts, Monsieur Lappin. Ay, and so do the Wyandots; have you forgotten that so soon? Have you forgotten what befell the Frenchman, Philippe Bidaud? Have you blotted from memory already the fate of Michael Cosad? You were in our village when the chiefs of the Wyandots dealt out justice to these renegades. Answer me!"

The cool boldness of her words stunned the fellow. I could see him glance about into the dark woods, and then at the faces of the savages pressing about them. Few among them understood what was said, and their gestures, the fierce expression of their eyes, gave the renegade courage. He had already gone too far for retreat; his only chance now was to proceed—to browbeat this girl, frighten her, and trust to the wilderness for a hiding place.

"Stand aside, all of ye; get back and give us room, ye red scum!" he roared, his rage increasing as he gave it vent in words. "Well, I've heard ye talk, all of it, ye breed, an' that's what I care for your threats," and he snapped his fingers in her face. As she stood silent, motionless, looking straight at him with scorn unutterable in her eyes, the brute clinched his red fist, stepping forward as if he would strike.

"Curse ye! I'm a mind to let ye have some of the same medicine I gave him. You'll laugh at Jules Lappin, will ye? Oh, ho! but I know a better way than that to make ye cry. By all the gods, we'll roast that Yankee friend of yours to a turn, and you'll stand by and watch. That'll fetch the two of ye to yer senses. Here Shawnees, two of ye come here. Pick up this carrion, and throw it out of the way, over there in the edge of the wood. We'll want this place presently. Sis-te-wah!"

"The chief is here," with dignity.

"Twas your vote that the hunter die by torture?"

"It was so spoken."

"Then he shall—to spite this squaw of a Wyandot, if for no better reason. Bid your warriors tie the dog up."

For the moment, in the confusion, the noise and rushing back and forth of figures dimly seen in the red light, I lost sense of what was being done. There was a babel of yells, a wild mingling of half-naked forms dancing about through the shadows. Those whose identity I could comprehend had been swallowed up by the rush of bodies. Occasionally Lappin's voice sounded above the din, as he cursed out some order. Then, forth from the surging, excited mass of savages, two braves came directly toward where I lay concealed, staggering under the weight of Hayward's dead body. I drew back my rifle, sinking lower behind the rotten log. The weight of the dead man caused them to shuffle forward, grunting to each other, glad enough to be rid of the burden. In the first dark shadow they let go, flinging him down against the very log behind which I lay, holding my breath in fear.

Even as I gazed with eyes of horror, my mind a chaos, every nerve throbbing in physical pain, there came to me the one hope, the one chance for me to meet alone the situation.

CHAPTER XX.

The Ghost of the Lieutenant.

With eyes on those figures blotting out the fire, their discordant yelling deadening all other sound, their whole attention centered now on savage vengeance, crept over the log, and crouched low beside the motionless body. Ugh! but I dreaded to touch it, to feel the awfulness of clammy flesh. As the upturned face, with staring dead eyes, revealed indistinctly by the red glimmer, met my gaze, it was like looking into my own. For an instant it seemed as if I stared down at myself, bent above my own insensate body. A shudder ran through me, my hands shaking as with palsy. Yet I rallied, crushing back the numbing horror of that vision, as the hateful voice of Lappin rose above the din.

Recklessly I stripped the red jacket from the body, ripped in the struggle with Lappin, and showing clearly the rent made by the knife, and crawled back over the log, to put it on. Beyond my cover, not a dozen feet away, was a shallow ravine, and the light streaming through tree branches, fell upon a clay bank, gleaming a yellowish white. I reached it on hands and knees, streaking my face with moist clay, until it must have been ghastly, and plastering even more on my hair in horrible representation of the scalped victim.

Still unsatisfied, yet knowing of nothing else I could aid, and warned by the shouts that I must act without

DICTATOR BACKS DOWN ON BLOCKADE

HUERTA REINDS ORDER FOR HIS GUNBOATS TO CLOSE TAMPICO.

MEDIATORS ARE RELIEVED

President Wilson's Determination to Keep Port Open to Commerce Would Have Been Backed By War Ships.

Washington—Huerta has decided, after all, not to blockade Tampico and force the hand of the United States with the possibility of disrupting the mediation proceedings at Niagara. He had previously ordered the port blockaded. Mr. Blano, the Spanish ambassador, notified Secretary Bryan officially to that effect Monday.

Thus, the latest crisis in the Mexican situation, fraught with possibilities and the United States, passed over.

President Wilson was determined that Tampico should be kept open to the commerce of the world and the American ships under Rear-Admiral Mayo were in evident readiness to enforce it.

Whether the Antilla's war cargo would have been considered as commerce had the situation come to the point of a break, all officials here decline to say.

FOURTEEN DROWN IN THAMES

Pleasure Steamer at London Run Down and Sunk by Liner.

London.—Fourteen men were drowned in the Thames Saturday night when the pleasure steamer Oriole was run down and sunk by the Corinthian of the Allan line.

The collision occurred when the Oriole was turning into her berth at the Angerstein wharf after landing her passengers at London Bridge. The only persons on board were 17 members of the crew. Only three of these were saved. The Oriole foundered immediately after the crash and is now lying across the fairway. The Corinthian was not badly damaged.

Committee Favors Government Ownership

Washington.—Government ownership of all street railways in the capital proposed in the Crosser bill which a house committee Saturday favorably reported 9 to 8.

It was opposed by many of the leading street railway and electric power men in the east and by representatives of the American Civic federation. It is one result of the municipal ownership movement in Cleveland. Rep. Crosser was one of the late Tom Johnson's allies and came to congress on a municipal ownership platform.

"Saginaw, Safe and Sure" is to be the new slogan of that city. "City of Opportunity" has been the slogan for many years, but many other cities have copied it and the new slogan is short and to the point. President W. S. Linton, of the board of trade, suggested it.

Victor L. Palmer, former secretary of the defunct Michigan Buggy Co. of Grand Rapids, who was convicted of sending a false statement of the assets and liabilities of the company through the mails, has decided not to appeal his case and will serve his sentence of two years in the federal penitentiary at Ford Leavenworth, Kas.

Perhaps the only locality really assessed up to cash value in that part of the state is North Muskegon, the roll having just been boosted from $107,985, the figures of last year, to $123,000 this year, an increase of 33 per cent. The suggestions of the state tax commission in making the boost were carried out to the letter.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN

By AMELIA CRUIKSHANK.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful!" breathed Mrs. Jibbetts ecstatically.

"Huh?" inquired Jibbetts.

"Why," explained his wife, coming down to earth and laying aside her magazine, "if I had the northeast corner of the back yard divided off, by wire fencing—and there is that piano box in the basement that would be just the thing—and Johnny could help—"

"Are you crazy?" demanded Jibbetts, in genuine alarm.

"Why, I'm talking about chickens," said Mrs. Jibbetts. "If I had six good, healthy hens, we would have all the fresh eggs we wanted all summer and then in the fall we could eat them."

"Why not buy cold storage eggs in the first place?" asked Jibbetts sarcastically. "Why save them up till fall?"

"I mean eat the chickens," said Mrs. Jibbetts, engrossed with her idea. "Wouldn't it be lovely? Could you move up the piano box—"

"Lillian," said Jibbetts, "you might as well forget it! Chickens in the back yard! Perfectly ridiculous! I never heard of such a thing in—in this neighborhood, too!"

"What if you didn't?" demanded Mrs. Jibbetts hotly. "I should think you'd be glad to have me cut the cost of living instead of raising a fuss about it! And about such a small thing as six chickens. Six—"

"Six jumping jehoshaphats!" said Jibbetts. "You must want to work the neighbors up to the point where they'll form a Ku Klux clan in self defense!"

"I think," said Mrs. Jibbetts, her lips drawn in a straight line, "that you'll find I have something to say about this, Harold! You talk as though it was entirely up to you! I guess that if I fix the place and get the eggs, all right! And if the neighbors don't like it they can move! We've been here longer than most of them! Anyhow, they won't be disturbed! I read somewhere that if you treated chickens kindly and fed them the right stuff they'd only cackle contentedly and not cackle. They—"

"I suppose so," said Jibbetts. "I suppose if you held a Leghorn chicken's claw tenderly and fed it gumdrops while you addressed it as 'lickle sweetheart,' the creature would be sweet itself or die on the spot with joy. But you let some one else try the experiments. Somebody always gets blown up, and in this case I think it would be us. Anyhow, you'd be wanting me to upholster the piano box in red plush and put in electric bells, so that if one of the chickens got lonesome after dark and wanted to be read to or have the victrola turned on it could arouse you! There wouldn't be any eggs. And if there were, the boys on the alley would steal them."

"You don't know anything about it!" cried Mrs. Jibbetts. "If you feed them right they'll lay eggs all the time! It would take but a few yards of wire fencing and it would keep Johnny busy after school, and when I think of those fresh eggs—"

"All the fresh eggs this family is going to use will be found at the grocery store!" declared Jibbetts. "I won't have it! If you haven't any common sense I'll have to supply double measure for the family!"

"I will not stay here and be talked to this way!" cried Mrs. Jibbetts, sweeping into her arms her sewing, her magazines and her workbag. "I'll go upstairs and leave you to yourself—and I'll have my chickens!"

"Not much!"

"Why, you're a regular tyrant!" cried Mrs. Jibbetts.

"I'm not going to have you do anything so foolish," stormed Jibbetts, "as keeping chickens! Besides," he ended crushingly, "there isn't room to keep six chickens in that space between the garage and the fence!"

"I know it," said Mrs. Jibbetts. "I thought of that just after I had said I had decided to have them!"

Her husband stared at her feebly.

"Well," he muttered, "if you did think of it, then why on earth have you been raising all this row and getting mad at me and everything?"

"Well," said Mrs. Jibbetts, indignantly, "it was because if I had been where I could have had them you'd have acted just the same, and I wasn't going to stand for it!"

"Oh, gee!" gasped Mrs. Jibbetts as he mopped his brow. "You women are the fight!"—Chicago Daily News.

Princess Theatre. Did you ever see the inside of a model prison? If not you will want to see the inside workings of the most model institution of its kind in the whole civilized world, the Colorado State Penitentiary. It is shown together with its well known warden, Thomas J. Tynan, in a three party picture at the Princess Saturday evening "The Hand of the Law." Warden Tynan has set a praiseworthy example by his humane treatment of convicts and all his methods, including his well known honor system are shown in this wonderful drama.

Be friendly to everybody and courteous to strangers, and never forget that you are a part of the city and that your own department does its share in giving the town its character. Sell and buy all you can at home. Stand by all other enterprising citizens and be ready to do some of the work yourself, and don't grumble or spend your time in prophesying failures.

Jersey Journalist's Jaunts. The first regular newspaper published in New Jersey, the New Jersey Gazette, was issued from Burlington on December 3, 126 years ago. Isaac Collins, a Quaker, was the founder of the publication. It did not long have the field to itself, for within a year the New Jersey Journal was established at Chatham by David Francis. Collins, the father of New Jersey's fourth estate, was a printer, and had a printing office in Burlington for several years before he undertook the publication of a newspaper. Twelve years before the Gazette appeared, a paper called the Constitutional Courant was issued in Burlington "by Andrew Marvel, at the sign of the Bribe Refused, on Constitution Hill, North America." Only one number was issued, and while the Courant was printed in New Jersey it was circulated principally in New York. The real publisher was William Goddard, who later published a paper in Philadelphia. The Courant bitterly attacked the British government, and was promptly suppressed.

On the Road. A Yankee tourist spending a holiday in Dublin happened to be riding a motor bicycle on a road that leads to the town of Bray. Seeing an Irishman riding an ass toward the city and thinking to have a joke with him, he dismounted, and, approaching Pat, exclaimed: "Hello Pat. Is your motor or mine the best?" "I think they're just the same," said Pat. "Do you think this motor of mine is an ass?" "I do," said Pat. "How do you make that out?" "Because it's going to Bray."

WOULD BE NO SECRETS

EXPERIMENTS MADE TO READ DEAD MAN'S BRAIN.

If They Furnish Desired Results World Will Have to Be Placed on Entirely Different Footing Than Heretofore.

If experiments now being made on the brain of the late Dr. Maurice Howard Richardson by his former scientific associates should furnish the desired results, this old world would have to be placed on a different footing from any that it ever held before, whether for better or worse. The end sought after is to read the thoughts which they think leave a permanent impression upon the brain in a series of definite lines. Dr. Richardson was a firm believer in this theory, and it was that it might be studied in his own case that he made disposition of his brain in his will.

By analogy, at least, the idea presents features that rob it of absurdity. The manner in which the steel needle makes its impression on the wax cylinder of the phonograph, and the later reversal of the operation for the purpose of reproducing the message, is one of the best illustrations of a possible process in the phenomena of mental impressions and their translation into speech or action. That the similarity appealed to Mr. Edson himself seems more than probable, as he has in this, as in other views, fully committed himself to a wholly materialistic conception of life.

If the theory, then, has even slight kindred evidences in its favor, the researches now being carried on with much secrecy may disclose unexpected results. If the lines on the brain should be found related to definite thought impressions, their interpretation is not beyond human powers. The same order of mind that wrested the key to the Egyptian hieroglyphics from the mutilated Rosetta Stone may possibly do as much from the brain of a dead professor, bringing to light the thoughts which he kept hidden even from his own heart while in life.

Should this come about, however, it is hardly necessary to speculate upon the portentous changes that would be wrought. No man could hide himself, nor could any nation practice the arts of diplomacy. No one could be led astray that was not willing to go. The Black Hand would betray its own secrets and the white slave convict himself. Congressional investigations would cease, and the reformer disclose at a glance whether he really liked grape juice or preferred something stronger. And John couldn't even think that his wife thinks he is going to the club, for fear that she would find him out, the spy-deceiver. In view of which, together with a thousand and one other complications that would ensue, it will perhaps be best if the Harvard scientists fail of their purpose.—Washington Post.

School Entertainment. The eight annual school entertainment by the pupils of St. Mary's school was given in St. Mary's auditorium on Friday evening of last week and on Tuesday evening of this week and both were attended by large audiences.

On Friday evening the girls of the school gave a dramatic production of four scenes entitled "Olga, or Out of the Shadow Into the Light." The play was unusually well rendered and the pupils who were in the cast were good. An interesting musical program was carried out between the acts.

Tuesday evening the boys of the school gave a play entitled "The Millionaire Janitor" and they proved to be equally as well trained in their parts as the girls were in their cast. The musical numbers both vocal and instrumental were excellent and the audience was highly pleased with both entertainments.

Notice to Real Estate Owners.

Have you an abstract of the title of your property, if so, have you had it examined by a competent examiner, to learn whether your title is free from such defects as are commonly referred to as "a cloud upon the title." A cloud upon the title to real property is created in many different ways, the most common of which are, that the person who located the land from the United States Government failed to obtain and record his LETTERS PATENT, or that one of the respective owners did not record his deed, or that a mortgage, after receiving payment of mortgage debt, failed to discharge the mortgage, or that the conveyancer in drafting deed or mortgage made a mistake in the description of the property or in the names of the parties. All defects of this character can be easily and inexpensively cured during the lives of the interested parties but become difficult and expensive if not taken in time. Owners of thirty per cent of the property in this county have no abstracts of their title and no way of determining its true condition as shown by the official records. It is the title to your HOME or FARM included in this list, if so, would it not be well to procure an abstract at once and have it carefully examined. Many a sale has been defeated because of a defect in the title, the owner having waited until he wanted to sell his property before ordering an abstract. The records of this company, established in 1883, are very complete, and we shall be pleased to serve you. WASHINGTON ABSTRACT COMPANY, Adv. 45 Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Gifts of Charm All Ready For You Any Day Now

It is our opinion that you will agree that our this year's Commencement Preparations surpass anything that we have yet shown. It ought to be that way—for we keep on trying to beat our previous year's efforts. Anyway we have thought and planned, and bought and worked, that we might earn your favorable comments. AN EARLY VISIT IS ADVISED. We wouldn't attempt even a partial description—because we just mention that two or three departments appeal especially to lovers of the beautiful—the DIAMONDS, the CUT GLASS, and the CHINA. These three lines make a greater demand than ever upon your interest, and when beauty is tied to usefulness, you or half a hundred other things, any of which are better for being bought here. Some one you wish to remember, most likely—No place within your reach offers you quite so complete a showing as this store. We request an examination of our stock now on display, and promise to match the highest qualities and the lowest prices that can be found anywhere.

Evidence of what appears to be a well organized campaign to delude farmers throughout the country into buying an alleged cure for hog cholera, under the impression that this has been investigated and approved by the United States Government, has reached the Department of Agriculture. Articles praising this medicine, Benetol by name, are being sent out widespread to newspapers. These articles are so worded that it appears as if the Department of Agriculture had received reports from the state of Minnesota showing that the medicine had proved most beneficial. As a matter of fact the one report received by the Department was an unofficial and unsolicited statement sent presumably from the promoters themselves. The Department attaches no importance whatsoever to this statement. It has no reason to believe in the efficiency of any proprietary cure for hog cholera and does not recommend any. Under certain conditions it urges farmers to protect their stock with anti-hog cholera serum but that is all. In view of the evidence that the attempt to create this false impression is persistent and widespread, all hog owners are warned to communicate with the United States authorities before accepting as true any statement that the Government recommends any treatment other than the serum already mentioned.

The menagerie contains 1,003 wild animals, 41 elephants, 5 giraffes and a "baby zoo." The circus is transported on 89 double length cars. Special arrangements have been made by the railroads to accommodate the crowds that will visit the circus from this city and the surrounding country.

MAIN INGREDIENT IN COOKING

Not the Simplicity or Richness of Food, but the Manner in Which It is Prepared.

The gentle reader who has been observant of these columns, so far at least as the poetry and eating is concerned, could not have failed to notice how much we enforced the idea that the cook was the main ingredient. What she is so is the pie, the pudding, the hash, the buckwheat cakes, the biscuits, and whatever graces the table. It is her divine conceits that make all the delicacy and fragrance of the viand which she constructs. Some have, no doubt, regarded this idea as purely fanciful, but greater men are now endorsing it. Speaking of pumpkin pie in an article in the Independent, E. P. Powell, one of the greatest authorities in matters of this kind, says: "But you must find the right woman to mix and cook it—that is, the pie. It is like ginger cookies, not too much ginger; not too little, and the same with the sugar; and after that if you stir the mixture just once too many times you spoil the cookies. Nobody can tell why, only it is so. But the pumpkin pie must have a bracing charge of ginger, and sugar enough to be really sweet in the raw; and as for the milk! our word for it, don't try condensed milk, and one more thing, don't try making just one pie. We have never known stingsiness to work well with pumpkins."

It is not the pumpkin, or the sugar, or the milk that make the pie—it is the woman, says the Ohio State Journal. And the more poetry she has in her soul the more she puts into the pie. We forget this. We think the artist puts his soul into his landscape, the architect his in the edifice, the musician his into his soaring strains, but when it comes to the cook, she is just nothing but corn, molasses and potatoes. That's her sacrilege. Anybody can tell whether a woman puts a smile or a growl into a pie. And everybody can tell immediately if it is some fellow down in a cellar making a pie for ten cents.

Still In Doubt as to His Mission.

"I am a trifle uncertain as to what I really came to Kansas City for," confessed Tobe Sagg of Goshkonong, who had consented to be interviewed. "I left home with the intention of having a quiet, orderly and entirely orthodox visit, watching the people do their Christmas shopping early, listening to the walls of the overcrowded passengers in the street cars observing the deftness with which the drivers of motor vehicles disregard the traffic ordinances, and so forth, interspersed by resting now and then at my nephew's comfortable residence. However, my neighbors at home, many of whom asked me in a circumlocutory way what might be my business in the city and received more or less diplomatic replies that whatever else my business might be it probably wouldn't be any of their business, seemed to be so thoroughly under the impression that I was coming here to match dollars with total strangers and perhaps become drugged and wander around with my mind a total blank, and appear to hope so earnestly that it would be so, that, frankly, I am unable to determine exactly what I came for until it is all over and I find what I got."—Kansas City Star.

Which Kills Most—Worry or Drink? That the optimism which pervades Kate Langley Bosher's new book, "The House of Happiness," has the juicy quality of the philosophy of those who live near the soil, would seem to be proved by the following remarks of one of its characters: "And if anybody will tell me what good worryin' does they can have every egg my hen is again to lay this spring! More folks wear out from worryin' than dies from drink, and drink is the king-bee killer, Mr. Deyo says, and he ought to know, bein' a preacher."

"He thinks all the world of her, waits on her like she was a baby. I used to think she was a fool critter, but it's me who's been the fool. A man don't think much of a woman he don't have to wait on."

"I ain't never heard tell that the Lord pays taxes, or cuts the firewood, or mends the roof when it leaks, or gets shoes for the children, and all them things has got to be done. Solomon Hatch leaves things he don't like to do to the Lord. He gets me and the Lord mixed up."

Varnish Soles of Shoes. Patented liquids to spread upon the soles of shoes in order to make them wear longer have recently been analyzed in the laboratories of La Nature, in Paris. The chemists report that these are little else but copal varnish, very strong in copal. They suggest that, as this is far less expensive than any of the patented substances, it be used instead of them. Their advice is to wear new shoes for several days to make the surface of the soles more absorbent, then to varnish them with the copal until the leather refuses to take up any more. Set the shoes aside until the varnish is perfectly dry. They close their report with the comment: "We do not know if this really makes the leather more resisting. But one can always try and we hope that some of our readers will do it and let us know the results."

More Trouble in Texas. Bacon—It seems to be a fact that some troubles never come singly. Egbert—What now? "Why, I see by this paper that in April 37 sets of twins and three sets of triplets were born in Texas."

BREVITIES

YPSILANTI—The next meeting of the Washtenaw County Federation of Cleaners will be held in Ypsilanti June 16.

STOCKBRIDGE—W. H. Collins has four acres of watermelons ready to work. He says they look the most promising of any he has ever had.

DEXTER—The annual commencement exercises of the Dexter high school will be held in the opera house on Friday evening of next week, June 12th. Alumni banquet June 24th.

YPSILANTI—At a special meeting of the common council Saturday evening a resolution was unanimously adopted to purchase the plant of the Ypsilanti Gas Co. for the sum of $110,000.

MANCHESTER—The meeting called for Road Bee Day was not attended by enough to warrant Commissioner Leeson in going ahead with the project, though something may be done later along that line.

MILAN—One of our public spirited citizens, Dr. E. F. Pyle, has offered the civic improvement committee of the Milan Woman's Club, fifty dollars, to be used for some permanent civic improvement, providing they raise an equal amount.

CLINTON—Mrs. Sarah V. Wastell celebrated the 100th anniversary of her birth in the M. E. church of that place last Saturday. The affair was in charge of the ladies of the church.

DEXTER—Work was begun last Thursday by Township Road Commissioner John Schultz, of Webster, on the new strip of new gravel road which lies between what is known as "boot jack corner" and C. A. Valentine's corner.

TECUMSEH—Tecumseh promises to be the best lighted town in this part of Lenawee county when the force of men that have been busy the past ten days shall have completed their work of taking down the old arc lights and have the new 200 candle power Mazdas installed.

BRIGHTON—Members of the state tax commission have been in this vicinity for about a week raising the chickens; no, I mean valuations of farm properties. In some instances, we are told they have placed the valuation fifty per cent above what the farmer paid two years ago, and several hundred dollars in excess of what the owner is willing to take for it at the present time.

BLISSFIELD—Ogden is the first township in the county to start in on systematic road building on a large scale. By a vote of 172 for and 148 against the proposition the voters at a special election Monday decided to bond the township for $90,000, that amount to be used in constructing improved roadways.

MUNITH—John Bartig, sr., an aged citizen of Munith, was found dead on the floor beside his bed by his son when the latter arose Monday morning. The deceased had strangled himself to death by tying a string around the top of the bedpost, placing a slip noose on it over his head and then rolling out of bed. He must have worked it cautiously, as his son sleeping in an adjoining room did not hear a sound during the night.

PILGRIMAGE OF LOVE

By HAROLD CARTER. Langwith had lost Adela. He had been in love with her for three years, and during that time he had never dared to ask her the question which would put an end to his doubts.

He had gone away hopeless. She did not love another man, but she did not love him. She could not love, she said. Adela, rich, discontented, but infinitely dear to him, did not know her own heart.

She was standing before the door, a silent figure in a cloak. She might have been a wraith, so ethereal did she look in the twilight.

"Adela!" he whispered, still half incredulous. "When did you come?" "I have only just come," she whispered back.

"I came to be where you had been," he answered. "But my letter?" "I got it this morning, Adela."

"This morning?" she exclaimed. "Why, I posted that letter three years ago. It was that dreadful summer when I realized that I had broken both our lives by my folly."

Langwith began to laugh hysterically. For three long years the letter had lain in the private box which Adela had mistaken for a public one.

Foy fixed his gaze on the fat man's glittering hands, and a change came over his face. His eyes seemed dull and staring. His jaw hung slack and loose.

"Me want ring!" he shouted suddenly, and he pointed at the fat man's hands and at the same time jumped up and down in his seat and wagged his elbows up and down in the air.

"Hide your hands," he said quickly to the fat man. "Your rings bother him."

The fat man frowned uneasily, but he would not hide his hands. "Ring! Ring! Me want ring!" repeated Foy, and Cohan, as he strove to hold his friend still, said: "Don't give him a ring!"

EASY TO UNDERSTAND WOMAN SOLVES PUZZLE THAT HAD CAUSED ARGUMENT

Final Conclusion Was That Men Did Not Meet to Attend Women's Meetings, Since Wives Would Tell Them All About It.

It was 11:45 p. m. The man and his wife had just come home. They did not come home together. They had not been to the same place. She had been to a meeting for women only, he to one for men.

"There was a man at our meeting tonight," said the woman. "There were about a hundred women tried to push their way into ours."

"That one man," said she, "looked awfully scared." "Those hundred women," said he, "didn't look a bit scared."

"I think," said she, "the man got into our hall by mistake. Anyhow, he got away as soon as he could."

There was a short silence. Said the man presently: "It is this difference in the attitude of the sexes toward the meetings for women only and for men only that makes me feel morally superior."

There was another silence. Said the woman after a little: "What happened at our meeting tonight?" "Oh, nothing much," said the man.

"Everything," said the woman. Then she proceeded to tell him what 'everything' comprised. It took more than half an hour to tell it.

Dr. G. Cooke Adams, who has been a civil engineer, surgeon, naval officer and research worker in Australia, was telling some of his blood-curdling experiences the other day.

"My narrowest escape from death," he said, "was not at the hands of aborigines or bushmen. I was engaged as an engineer in preparing plans for a new system of sewers for the city of Sydney, Australia."

The fat man frowned uneasily, but he would not hide his hands. "Ring! Ring! Me want ring!" repeated Foy, and Cohan, as he strove to hold his friend still, said: "Don't give him a ring!"

DRIVE FAT MAN OFF CAR

Successful Practical Joke Eddie Foy is Said to Have "Pulled Off" in New York.

They are telling in Broadway a story about Eddie Foy and George Cohan.

Foy and Cohan one autumn afternoon sat side by side in a Fifth avenue bus when a fat, gaudily dressed man entered, his manured and scented hands covered with huge rings.

"George," said Foy, "I don't like that fellow's looks, and I'm going to make him get out before we reach Madison Square."

"All right, Eddie," said Cohan calmly. "Foy fixed his gaze on the fat man's glittering hands, and a change came over his face. His eyes seemed dull and staring. His jaw hung slack and loose."

"Me want ring!" he shouted suddenly, and he pointed at the fat man's hands and at the same time jumped up and down in his seat and wagged his elbows up and down in the air.

Porto Rico the Island Beautiful

GOVERNOR'S PALACE, SAN JUAN

WHEN Columbus brought his second Old World fleet to the New he was no longer scorned as an adventurer, but crowned ruler of the little company of cutthroats from Cadiz—the scum of Spain—he had for his first venture, he had the pick of the blue bloods of Europe.

It was on the second trip he sighted a new island—an island called by Ponce de Leon "Puerto Rico" ("the Rich Port"); an island "so beautiful" that he compelled his entire fleet of 17 vessels to sail completely around it and anchor in its northwest corner. The 1,500 good men and true who sailed into the Bay of Aquilla were the sons of kings and princes of the blood royal. The present race of Porto Rican Castilians trace their lineage back to the bearers of the proudest names in history.

With the history of the West Indies begins the history of the New World. From the beginning these islands were valuable for their position in approach to the mainland. And today, with the world ferrying across both the Atlantic and the Pacific in her eagerness to pass through this needle's eye of commerce—the Panama canal—the West Indies again hold the position of vantage. Porto Rico, fairest of all the Antilles, richest in soil, most perfect in climate, inhabited by a people who each year are returning into Uncle Sam's coffers more by many millions than they are taking out, belongs to the United States.

Island Belongs to United States.

The word "belongs" is used in its truest sense. When the invading American army landed at Guanica it was greeted with songs of thanksgiving; instead of an opposing force the warriors found a road strewn with flowers; in the place of an approaching horde of uncivilized natives they were met by a delegation of Castilians who offered them carriages drawn by members of that body politic destined to be known as "The People of Porto Rico." At the time of the American occupation of Porto Rico the islanders were living under a government of home rule—a government as liberal as that of Australia or Canada and even more advantageous, as it allowed the Porto Ricans their old representation in the Spanish cortes.

Color and courtesy are the characteristics of Porto Rico and the Porto Ricans. The color scheme begins as soon as you are fairly in San Juan bay. Rising out of an exquisite ultramarine blue sea, the ground is touched with daring impressionistic tints—rich browns, reds, yellows and greens that come down to greet the water, and above stand houses and office buildings, churches and palaces, stained with vivid blues and magentas, pinks and purples—all merged into a glorious riot of color—a veritable Veronese effect—upon which the sun shines with a glory and a joy unknown to lands that have not the equator for a near neighbor.

San Juan, the chief port of entry, is a city set upon a hill which he who sails may see. Similar to Manhattan in shape and position and with its fortifications in lieu of skyscrapers, it is not unlike the larger port in the matter of constructive prominence.

Time was when San Juan was the second best fortified city in the Western hemisphere. Morro is practically impregnable and San Cristobal has more than once saved the city.

San Juan has none of the bustling, hustling scramble that seems a necessary accompaniment of an American life. In its place there is a gentle graciousness that marks every transaction of the islander. It is waiting for you at the dock, and as you come nearer you hear it in the low voices and see it in the quick smiles that greet you. Once on land there is no hurrying, no crowding, no striving to get ahead, but an ever-present desire to allow you to precede.

Your Castilian host is always a man of distinction, as well versed in matters of importance in Washington or Rome or Budapest as the best drilled diplomat; and your hostess, his daughter, will converse with you in English or French or Spanish; she may be a bachelor of arts from Columbia or a mistress of arts from Radcliffe; she knows her Puccini as well as her Mozart or Beethoven; she will quote Bernard Shaw as glibly as Cervantes or Calderon; and she has the smallest foot and the prettiest shoulders in the world. It might be wise, therefore, for those who have been to Porto Rico and know it only from the American veneer of an occasional visit to Government house and a ride over the military road to go again and learn the real Porto Rico from the real Porto Ricans.

Uncle Sam Busy.

There is another side to the picture. Uncle Sam has not been idle during his decade and a half of occupancy, and Uncle Sam is pre-eminently a practical person. On every hand is found a contrast between the bizarre and the commonplace—the courtliness of the Old World rubbing elbows with the industry of the New.

The little narrow gauge railroad brought into the island some twenty-two years ago is paying a trifle over a million a year; in place of one schoolhouse built in 1889 there are 1,601; 500 miles of new macadam roads have been completed and a thousand automobiles imported—two for every mile. The money invested in the grapefruit industry—taken care of, in large measure, by young men just out of college—has increased from $10,000 to over two million dollars.

The harbor is being dredged and the wharves of San Juan rebuilt to accommodate the enlarged business of the island. Commerce has increased from fifteen millions to fifty-five. In place of the rude carts which carried both parcels and persons, the island boasts one of the most complete equipments for parcel post in the world. The soil has been enriched and is bearing the biggest crop of the best fruit in the island's history. The hills are dotted with the red roofs of the well-to-do.

An Item in Demand.

He was cutting an item from a newspaper.

"It tells how a house was robbed and I want to show it to my wife," he explained.

"What good will that do?" a friend inquired.

"A whole lot," was the reply. "You see, this house was robbed while the man was at church with his wife."

"Say," exclaimed the friend excitedly, "you haven't got a duplicate copy of that paper, have you?"—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

NEW ERA ASSOCIATION FILES PETITIONS FOR AMENDMENT.

MOVIES FOR STATE MILITIA

Gov. Ferris Considering a Recommendation to Next Legislature for General Purchasing Agent for Institutions.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing—A proposed amendment to the state constitution aimed at the Mobile bill passed by the last legislature was filed with over 100,000 petitioners' names attached by Charles D. Sharrow, general manager of the New Era association, at the secretary of state's office.

The passage of the amendment at the next election will give fraternal beneficiary societies the right to operate with a legal reserve fund or collect assessments upon a basis of rates which will in operation collect an amount annually in excess of the average mortality cost per thousand dollars of insurance in force of successful legal reserve companies of fifty years' experience, in addition to the necessary expenses of such societies. Under the Mobile law, the societies are compelled to charge an additional 100 per cent.

It will also give to the societies the initiative, referendum and recall in their governments. The provision of office for each is patterned after the state constitution's provision.

The number of signers is twice the number needed under the 10 per cent initiative clause of the state constitution. They were gathered in 60 days.

Adjt.-Gen. Vandercook is authority for the statement that the M. N. G. boys will have a source of evening entertainment at the Grayling campsite this summer, when the annual state encampment is held. Moving pictures will be shown each night and Major M. J. Phillips, of Owosso, an expert in that line, will pick out views that he deems will suit the taste of the militia boys.

Arrangements have also been made for target practice at the campsite, the first time in two years that the artillery has had a chance to show its skill at shooting, and this event will mark the first time in a state camp for target practice. In former years the artillery has gone to Sparta, Wis., for such practice.

It is altogether likely that Gov. Ferris will recommend to the next legislature a general purchasing agent for the various state institutions. Superintendent Pierce, of the capitol, has demonstrated during the past year that he can buy coal much less for the state house than other state institutions are paying for it, and the governor has become much interested in the manner Pierce goes about his buying.

Statistics compiled by the Publicity club at the state agricultural college, show that that institution has had an increase of more than 218 per cent in its enrollment during the last ten years. The enrollment now is 2,006, only four less than the total number graduated since the college was founded in 1857. The average cost for the regular four-year course is $1,323 and the average amount earned in that time is $524 per student, or 44 per cent of the cost. Fifty-six per cent of the agricultural students have had farm experience, 34 per cent own, or will inherit, farms and 45 per cent will go upon farms after graduation.

Secretary of State Frederick C. Martindale has appointed Gottlieb C. Liebbrand, of Gladwin, former prosecuting attorney of Gladwin county, as corporation clerk in the state department to succeed Leslie B. Clark, who was killed in an automobile accident a week ago.

Liebbrand comes to the state department highly recommended and he will fill one of the most responsible positions in the state department. The corporation clerk is pitted against the best corporation lawyers in Michigan and other states and it is up to him to see that all new companies comply strictly with the corporation laws when new companies are being admitted to business.

DAIRY

CULLING OUT BOARDER COWS

Farmers Need Not Maintain Charitable Institutions for Poor Animals—Keep Records.

If a farmer feeds a cow $1 worth of feed and she gives back 65 cents worth of milk—no, this is not fiction, and the man was not a fool who fed the cow. He thought she was his faithful friend, and all the time she was ruthlessly short-changing him. She is not the only one. It just happens that she got found out. Maybe you have a cow in your herd that skims the milk before she gives it to you.

Twenty-six Dickinson county farmers organized a cow-testing association last year, with the help of the Kansas Agricultural college. They hired a man to do the testing. He worked at the home of each man one day every month. The cost to the farmers was about $1.50 for each cow for the year. There were 379 cows entered.

Before the plan had been in operation very long some of the farmers began to sell cows. They would have been deliberately robbing themselves if they had not sold after they found out how poor certain of the animals were.

At the end of the year the association had complete records for 134 of the cows. These 134 cows averaged a return of $2.75 for each $1 worth of feed consumed. The best one gave $3.59 and the poorest gave 65 cents for each $1 in feed. The five poorest averaged a profit of $7.30 each, and the five best cows averaged a profit of $101.28 each, for the year. While the man with the poorest animal lost $11.65, the man with the best gained $146.21. The average profit on the whole bunch was $62.31 a head.

PROPER ATTENTION TO COWS

Kindness Is Good Thing to Observe Around Dairy From Standpoint of Dollars and Cents.

Some cows ought to be milked three times a day. Their bags get so pressed with milk that they cause a great deal of pain. And then the milk will be better if drawn before it has stayed so long in the overheated udder.

Some men think that they must keep the cows always in fear of them or there will be trouble. That is a poor way to do. The cow that is always afraid that somebody will yell at her or hit her a whack with the milking stool is not in a position to do her best. She will not give as much milk and it will not be as good milk, either. Kindness is a good thing from the standpoint of dollars and cents.

The earth is dry enough now to permit of letting the calves out every day. Put them under cover nights. You ought to have a place where the calves can always get out of the sun and the dew and rain if they want to.

ATTENTION GIVEN TO COWS

Astonishing How Many Dairyemen Are Keeping Bovines Instead of Animals Keeping Them.

The man who is making money in dairying is the man who thinks. It is astonishing how many men are keeping cows instead of cows keeping them, because the men do not think. A thinking man will not keep cows that do not pay a profit on the feed they consume. There is no way to determine the value of the individual cows except by keeping an account of the cost of feed and the value of the products of each cow.

This method often leads to increasing the profits by more judicious feeding and more efficient milking, or in other words it requires giving each cow individual attention.

Some dairyemen may think that this work requires too much time, but after trying it, out they are usually surprised to find how little time it really takes to keep an accurate record of the business. Every dairyman should be a business man.

Regularity is important. Regularity in milking and feeding is an important thing in connection with successful dairying. The cow looks for her feed at a certain time and if she is accustomed to being milked at a certain time, she will do better if that plan is followed systematically.

Benefit of Silo. The silo has proven itself a great benefit each year and it will do just as well in years to come. This season has been an object lesson in favor of silos on every farm where stock is kept.

SUGGESTIONS FOR ICE TRUST

Just a Few Reasons Why There Should Be an Advance in Price of Summer Necessity.

The ice trust having offered a silver loving-cup for the best excuse which might be invented for raising the price of ice after the cold winter, we hopefully submit the following:

1. The ice being so thick and heavy, it costs more to handle it.
2. The blocks are so large that there is great waste in cutting them up for the retail trade.
3. The ice is so cold it freezes solid in the storage houses and is very difficult to get out.
4. As the winter has been so cold, the summer will necessarily be very hot, and the demand for ice very great, so that it is doubtful if there will be enough to go around.
5. The ice being extra thick, extra cold, and extra quality all through, it is only proper that an extra price should be demanded.
6. The price of ice never had any relation to the cost of production, anyhow.—Life.

SCALY PSORIASIS ON LIMBS

Troop H, 6th U. S. Cavalry, Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis.—"I was troubled with psoriasis for nearly two years. Portions of my arms and limbs were affected mostly with it. It appeared in scaly form, breaking out in very small dots and gradually grew larger and white scales formed when about the size of an ordinary match-head. The looks of it was horrible, which made it very unpleasant for me. It itched a little at times.

"I tried several treatments which cured me for a month, but it always broke out again. One day a friend saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper and I sent for a sample. They helped me, so I purchased two more boxes of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap and they completely cured me. It took three months for Cuticura Soap and Ointment to complete my cure." HAD NO RATIONS TO SPARE

Good Reason Why Confederate Commander Was Willing to See His Prisoners Escape.

When, at Gaines Mill in 1862, the Fifth Texas captured two whole regiments of Union soldiers, the Texans were all very proud of their achievement. One of them has described an amusing scene in connection with the surrender.

"When the Union officers gave up their swords to Colonel Upton they were so prompt in the duty that he was compelled to lay down the trying pan which he carried in place of a sword and hold the weapons presented in his arms.

Just then he noticed a commotion at the far end of the captured regiments. That was near the timber, and a squad of the prisoners were making an effort to pass by "Big John" Ferris of Company B, who stood there unaided, endeavoring to intercept them.

Springing upon a log, the armful of swords dangling about in every direction, Upton shouted:

"John Ferris, what are you trying to do now?"

"I am trying to keep these fellows from escaping," yelled Big John.

"Let them go, you fool!" shouted back Upton. "We'd rather fight than feed them!"

The Fingerless Kind. Lillian Russell, during a recent visit to Atlantic City, was amazed to see the number of slashed skirts that still prevailed on the Boardwalk.

"They must be last spring's leftovers," she said.

Just then a young girl in a skirt outrageously slashed at back and front, asked her companion, in passing:

"How do you like my new dress? Fits like a glove, doesn't it?"

"Fits like a mitt, she'd better say," murmured Miss Russell, with a smile.

AGAINST WOMEN'S POCKETS

New York Newspaper Gives Eight Reasons for its Opposition to Proposed Move.

- 1. Because pockets are not a natural right. 2. Because the great majority of women do not want pockets. 3. Because whenever women have had pockets they have not used them. 4. Because women are expected to carry enough things as it is without the additional burden of pockets. 5. Because it would make dissension between husband and wife as to whose pockets were to be filled. 6. Because it would destroy man's chivalry toward woman if he did not have to carry all her things in his pockets. 7. Because men are men and women the women. We must not fly in the face of nature. 8. Because pockets have been used by men to carry tobacco, pipes, whisky flasks, chewing gum and compromising letters. We see no reason to suppose that women would use them more wisely.—New York Tribune.

PATENTS

Anticipation. "One summer I chanced to be back in the ridges of Tennessee," said United States Senator Blair Lee of Maryland, as he leaned back in his chair, "and a couple of mountaineers got into an argument. High words led to blows, and one of the men was killed. One of the party volunteered to ride on ahead to the dead man's cabin and break the news to the widow. "She was seated at a table eating apple-dumplings when the man rode up. He broke the news as gently as possible. The woman listened quietly with a dumpling poised in the air half way to her mouth. When the man had finished, she stuffed the dumpling into her mouth and said: "You-all jest wait till I finish this hyer dumplin' an' then You-all'll hear some hollerin'!"

TO THE blind there is no color, and for the deaf music does not exist. We may, therefore, assume that when a great designer like Premet turns out a model which strikes us as clumsy, that the fault lies in our inability to "see" it. Or we may conclude that in the effort to be sensationally original the designer has forgotten that it is not worth while to be original at the expense of grace. At all events, here is a Premet model in taffeta silk with under petticoat of plaid silk, a short, ungraceful coat with revers of plaid and a bunchy skirt caught up at the side with small loops. If this model was created for the purpose of attracting attention it has fulfilled its mission. One will look a long time before finding a copy of it. Certain features in it, however, have been utilized by American dress-makers with fine effect, namely, the plaid silk petticoat under plain silk skirts, plaid revers and cuffs on silk coats. Roman stripes also are used in the same way and with good results. The overdress was long ago an assured success, but not the meaning-

Followed Her Vanished Nest. This story of a thrush that missed, and caught its train comes from Limerick, in Ulster, Ireland. The bird had built its nest under a first-class carriage immediately over the steam heating pipe, and notwithstanding that the carriage traveled between Limerick and Londonderry, the nest contained four eggs. The institution of the summer service of trains caused trouble. The carriage left Londonderry in the evening at 4:40 instead of 4:50, and when the mother thrush, who had presumably been on a foraging expedition, returned, she found carriage, nest and eggs had disappeared. She was not at Londonderry in apparent distress, and the station master apprised Limerick of the circumstances and asked the railway people there to look out for the bird, suggesting that she would probably arrive by the next train. The bird duly arrived at Limerick either by train or air and resumed her task of hatching the eggs. The sympathetic railway officials have decided to withdraw the carriage from service pending the hatching of the eggs. Unpromising. "The Frosts expect their boy will be a priest first and then a bishop." "Do you think he will?" "Nope. That boy will never conform anything but the neighbors' worst fears."—Life. Forget-Me-Not. "Ah, yes, there are still true and loyal souls in this sad world," murmured the solemn individual in the tortoise-shell glasses. "I used to know a dear girl—it was ten long years ago—and not a year has passed since that she hasn't written me a birthday letter. Always what she writes is about the same: 'Dear Alfred, I can't ever forget, not if I live to be a hundred, this day of all the days in the year. Let me once again wish you long life and happiness with all my heart, etc.'" "Very sweet of the girl," said the stout young man with the amazing waistcoat, "very sweet of her, indeed." "Very," replied the solemn individual; "only, you see, she writes that dashed letter to me on a different day every year."

Not Complimentary. An English showman, while traveling in the north of Ireland, met an old farmer who happened to be a little deaf. "I say," said the showman, "did you see a cart and monkeys passing this way?" Farmer—"A what did ye say? Showman—Did you see a cart and monkeys passing this way? Farmer—Did ye fall out? Footwear Developed for the Dance

THE dancing madness which has swept over lands and seas has brought out much ingenuity on the part of those who provide apparel for all the needs of city dwellers. This dancing, in fact, is a mere frolic which the hedged-in city folk manage in their crowded quarters, for lack of more space and better sport in roomier quarters. And everybody is dancing. Slim youths and rotund grandfathers, children and youthful maids and matrons, even frolicsome grandmothers on the shady side of fifty. It is a family sport, like sea bathing, and only professionals indulge in acrobatic feats and mad whirlings. The liking for the new dances is going to survive for some time. At least, that is the faith of those who provide amusement at summer hotels and summer gardens. Danced according to the rules laid down by the foremost authorities, the new dances are far more interesting and pleasing than the plain waltz, equally graceful and not as strenuous as the two-step. Each dancer invents steps and figures for himself, and each dancer sees to it that his or her feet are carefully clad. The satin dancing slipper shown here is about the most satisfactory and the most popular for those who are all ready for the impromptu dance, which needs only a little music to start up anywhere. It is to be worn amply long, dancers often selecting a half-size in length greater than needed in a walking shoe. A careful selection of just the right last and as narrow a shoe as can be worn comfortably, make up the requisite of the good-looking and properly fitting footwear for dancing. Heels are only moderately high, soles flexible, and fabric in the body of the shoe soft but strong. Eyelets worked in the sides are threaded with silk laces. They are laced in the manner shown in the picture, brought three times about the ankle and tied in front, with little silk tassels finishing the bow. Silk stockings are worn with dancing shoes, or stockings that look like silk but are in reality not made of silk but of a fiber that is very strong and has a high luster. This hosiery is called silk, wears as well and costs less. It must be carefully handled in the laundry, as it is inclined to fade. People are becoming very fastidious in the matter of footwear, and require much at the hands of the shoe man. It is a good thing all round, as neatness always is. JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Coat Hanger Worth While. A coat hanger may be padded and covered with trefone or chintz instead of silk or ribbon. It makes a strong, substantial cover, and if the chintz is of a good design the hanger will be very quaint and pretty. This would be an excellent way to utilize small pieces of material. Wrap the hook with narrow ribbon, matching some shade in the chintz. A little different arrangement can be obtained by twisting in the usual way and winding the ribbon around the hanger at the base of the hook, then fastening it securely with needle and thread. A rosette of ribbon can be added to the side of the hook if desired. Scent the padding before covering, or make sachet bags and attach to the base of the hook with long, narrow ribbons so that they will hang inside the garment or coat. The latter plan of using the sachet is best as the scent can easily be renewed from time to time.
