A SUDDEN DEATH

Melvin Scripser of Lyndon Died Tuesday Evening of Heart Trouble.

Melvin Scripser of Lyndon died of valvular heart trouble at the home of Silas Young about six o'clock Tuesday evening.

Mr. Scripser and his brother Lewis spent the afternoon in Chelsea and a short time after they returned home the two brothers called at the home of Silas Young where they engaged in a friendly scuffle. Melvin suddenly fell to the ground and his death was almost instant.

Dr. J. T. Woods was called but the man was beyond human help when the physician reached the Young home. Mr. Scripser and his family have made their home on the Michael Staphish farm for a number of years. His brother and sister reside on the Dr. Riker farm in Dexter township and they have been residents of this vicinity for the past two years.

Coroner Clark of Ann Arbor was notified and after an interview with those who were present and the members of the family of the deceased decided that an inquest was unnecessary. There were no marks on the body to indicate that undue violence had been used. Dr. Clark gave valvular heart trouble as the cause of death.

The deceased was 38 years of age and was born in the state of New York. He was a cousin of George William and Scott Scripser. He is survived by his wife, brother and sister.

The funeral will be held Friday from the North Lake M. E. church. Interment at North Lake cemetery.

Edmund L. Pickell

Edmund L. Pickell, of Detroit, a member of the Board of Commerce and life insurance underwriter, died Sunday afternoon, August 16, 1914, at his home in that city. The funeral services were held at the residence, at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday forenoon, Dr. E. V. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological seminary, of Louisville, Ky., officiating. Interment at Roseland Park cemetery.

For 25 years Mr. Pickell had been associated with his brother, C. W. Pickell, in the life insurance business, and before that was traveling representative of a Detroit newspaper.

He was born in Hopewell, N. Y., May 7, 1862, but removed to Michigan when a child, receiving his education in the public schools at Grass Lake, where he worked on a farm after school hours. In 1883 he was united in marriage with Miss Bertha Schenk, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Schenk, of Sylvan.

He is survived by his wife, two sons, Karl W., of Kansas City, and Wayne S., of Detroit, two daughters, Mrs. John Mead and Miss Elizabeth Pickell, one brother, and two sisters.

Those from here who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Schenk, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Schenk, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Dancer, Miss Adah Schenk, of Sylvan.

Cavanaugh Lake Grange Meeting.

The next regular meeting of Cavanaugh Lake Grange will be held at the home of August Hoppe on Tuesday evening, August 25. After the business of the evening, there will be initiation in the first and second degrees. All candidates are requested to be present.

Closing with the following short program:

Recitation, Florence Killmer. Closing song.

Banner Yield of Wheat.

George Merkel of Sylvan who threshed his grain crop on Thursday of last week has the banner yield of wheat so far as has been reported. From 20 acres he secured 664 bushels of wheat. That wheat can be successfully grown in Michigan is quite evident, as this yield is about what was the average when the farmers made it the principal crop years ago.

A Pleasant Family Reunion.

A pleasant family reunion took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Bauer, of Lyndon, last Sunday. Fifty-eight members of the family were present coming from Detroit, Lansing, Ann Arbor, Albion and Chelsea. One of the pleasant features of the occasion was the presence of the mother, Mrs. Bauer of this place. A family dinner was served and the event was a very enjoyable one.

Democrats Notice.

In voting in the primaries on Tuesday, be sure to place a cross in the circle at the head of the column and a cross before your choice of candidates. A cross before the name of Waldo M. Abbot for Prosecuting Attorney will be appreciated.—Adv.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Happenings in Chelsea Forty Years Ago This Week.

Edward McNamara is erecting a building west of Noyes & Cummings office which he will use for his boot and shoe business.

The Grange picnic held at Dexter last week Wednesday was represented by twenty-seven Granges and 5,000 people were in attendance.

The school board announced the opening of the Chelsea public schools on Monday, August 31. Prof. G. A. Brown was at head of the corps of teachers.

Rev. Father VanJenip delivered his farewell sermon in Dexter last Sunday. Rev. VanJenip has presided over the churches in Chelsea, Dexter and Pinckney for the last 18 years. He has been placed in charge of a church at Alpena.

The store of A. Burkhardt was broken into last Saturday night. A light of glass in the front door was broken and the burglar was in the act of entering the store when he was discovered. He made his escape. Noyes & Cummings office was entered the same night and the papers on the desks strewn about the room.

War Time Prices.

Considerable complaint is being made at the advance in prices on all kinds of goods since the beginning of the war in Europe. The Standard has taken pains to secure prices on some of the staples at retail during the Civil War. The prices quoted are absolutely as made in August, 1864, and in August, 1914. They will undoubtedly prove of interest to our readers and are as follows:

Best prints, then 65c yard, now 7c yard, second quality prints, then 55c yard, now 4c yard; very best apron gingham, then 60c yard, now 10c, second quality apron gingham, then 58c yard, now 6c; overalls or denim, then 75c yard, now 20c yard; Pepperell R. 36 inch unbleached cotton, then 75c yard, now 9c, Hope bleached 36 inch cotton, then 75c yard, now 10c yard, Masonville bleached 36 inch cotton, then 80c yard, now 11c yard; 14 yard wide sheeting, then $1.85 yard, now 30c yard; Coats 200-yard thread, then 22c, now 5c.

Held Annual Meeting.

About thirty of the members who reside in this vicinity attended the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Improved Black Top Merino Sheep Breeders' Association, of Michigan, which which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Marshall, of Leslie, on Wednesday of last week.

O. C. Burkhardt of this place presided at the meeting and an unusually fine program was carried out. At the close of the program the following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—L. L. Harsh, of Union City.

Vice President—Otto D. Luick, of Lima.

Secretary-Treasurer—O. M. Robertson, of Eaton Rapids.

Mr. Harsh has been president of the association for the last twenty years and his re-election this year was entirely against his wishes as he thought that he had served long enough. The meeting next year will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall, of White Oak.

Mrs. Edith Stocking.

Mrs. Edith Stocking of Jackson died Sunday, August 16, 1914, at the hospital of Dr. Grant in Albion. The deceased was the wife of Wm. S. Stocking and for a number of years the couple resided on the Stocking farm in Lima, and were well known to many of the residents of this vicinity. For the last three or four years Mr. and Mrs. Stocking have made their home in Jackson. The remains were taken to Muir where the funeral was held Wednesday.

Ain't It The Truth.

Yes, you are invited to the great Jackson County Fair and Homecoming, September 14 to 19, and see this splendid exposition, which represents the products and progress of our great growing region. Besides there is mirth and music galore. You can't begin to imagine the treat that is in store for you—so come along with your friends—the welcome sign hangs everywhere. Be sure to come.

Every young man and woman should read the advertisement headed "33 in One Minute" on page 5 of this paper. Adv.

A SUCCESSFUL PICNIC

Held by St. Mary's Parish in Wilkinson's Grove Wednesday.

The annual picnic of St. Mary's Parish was held in Wilkinson's grove on Wednesday and was attended by large crowd. The Chelsea Band formed on Main street at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon and marched to the grounds where they furnished music for the day.

Soon after the arrival of the Band the grove began to fill up, and when the ladies announced dinner at 11 o'clock the tables were soon filled and the ladies were kept busy serving meals until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

At the close of the dinner, A. W. Wilkinson, acting as president of the day, in a few appropriate remarks introduced Frank DeVine, of Ann Arbor, who delivered an able address. The next speaker was Rev. Father Hallissey, of Hudson, who in a jovial manner delivered a masterly speech. Louis Burg rendered a vocal solo at close of the address.

The day closed with a number of sporting events. While the weather was extremely hot the day was an ideal one for a picnic and all who attended were well entertained.

School Reopens.

School will open Monday, August 31 at 8:30 a. m. The course of study for the high school is essentially the same as that offered last year. Students wishing to prepare for the university will find courses suited to their needs; those wishing a commercial education can secure an excellent preparation for this line of work, while those desiring to prepare for the teachers' examination will find courses such as they may desire.

The library and equipment of the laboratory are in first-class condition for work along these lines and additional books and apparatus are being purchased to make the work more satisfactory.

A corps of teachers especially prepared in the different departments has been engaged and the board of education look forward to a successful school year. The following is the faculty for 1914-15.

F. Hendry, superintendent.
Leona Belser, principal.
Ruth King, Mildred Daniels, Jean Grover, Ella Hewes, assistants in high school.

Louis A. Merker.

Louis A. Merker was born in Bridge-water, December 9, 1857, and died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary Merker, of Sylvan Center, Thursday afternoon, August 13, 1914, aged 56 years, 8 months and 6 days.

In 1866, his parents settled in Sharon and in 1886, the family moved to Sylvan where he has made his home with his mother. For the past few months he has been in failing health. He was a single man. He is survived by his mother, five brothers, John, of Sylvan, George, of Jackson, Wm. and Charles, of Chelsea, and Mandos, of Williamston, five sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Vogelbacher, of Wayne, Mrs. Catherine Heselschwerdt, of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Etta Heselschwerdt, of Ann Arbor, Miss Amanda Merker, of Sylvan, and Mrs. Minnie Saine, of Cadillac, ten nephews, ten nieces and a host of friends.

Surprise Many In Chelsea.

The QUICK action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-I-ka, the remedy which became famous by curing appendicitis, is surprising Chelsea people. Many have found that this simple remedy drains so much foul matter from the system that A SINGLE DOSE relieves constipation, sour stomach and gas on the stomach almost IMMEDIATELY. Adler-I-ka is the most thorough bowel cleanser ever sold. H. H. Fenn Co. Adv.

While the war clouds hanging over Europe continue to grow darker and the price of food stuffs controlled by the ever greedy trusts are mounting to heights beyond all reason, it is surely gratifying to learn that our local mill announces that they are content to sell their products at prices commensurate to the cost of raw material plus a fair and reasonable profit. The advertisement of Phoenix Flour appears in another column.—Adv.

BROOKLYN—Petty thieves again broke into the creamery and depot Tuesday night. At the creamery they took heed of a "death to enter here" sign on the butter storage room. At the depot they stole some blankets, paint and other things besides entering a car and confiscating three bags of wheat.—Exponent.

ADRIAN—The 47th reunion of the 18th Michigan Volunteer Infantry will be held at the city hall, Adrian, on Wednesday, August 26. A FEW STRAY EPIGRAMS.

The very denial of a gift doubles our desire to obtain it.

It's a terrible thing not to be able to count on people we love, but it's worse not to be able to count on ourselves.

Verily there are forces in this world which are beyond the over coming of mortal man so long as he is encumbered with his mortality.

Some natures grow shriveled and narrowed if they live in the shadow of a dominant and aggressive person, quite unconsciously the color and individualism is sucked out of their temperament.

Certain personalities have a way of attaching themselves to the memory like barnacles, clinging on through the years, while there are others with whom we were acquainted intimately pass out of remembrance and leave scarce a thought that we had known them, they are dissolved and gone, the former have impressed themselves forever.

The little everyday courtesies practiced in youth makes it far easier when grown up, and one is to mingle in the world's activities, if they have become habitual. No higher encomium can be pronounced on mortal than to have it said "She is a lady and a Christian" or "He is a gentleman and a Christian."

"It is an old adage that if we wish friends we must show ourselves friendly," and it is just as true, if we want anyone to admire and love us we must make them comfortable, nor it's never wise to vent upon our friends the small woes that chance to come into our lives, it is quite tactless and impolite to heap our burdens on the shoulders of others. It is like demanding sympathy which begged for, never comes.

We like to see the quiver of a strong man's bearded lip when his voice lingers on the name of mother.

The Hessian-fly Situation.

The following which is of interest to the wheat growers in this vicinity is being sent out by the head of the Michigan Agricultural college:

The same weather conditions that led up to the recent outbreak of the army worm have favored the development of the hessian fly. For identical reasons, the parasites of the "fly" have failed to keep pace with the pest and the "fly" is increasing in numbers, especially in the southern part of the state.

Now when the wise man sees trouble in the distance, he takes all the precautions possible and then takes what chances are necessary to get his crop. In the long run late sowing of fall wheat escapes with a minimum of injury during "fly" years, because the late sown wheat is more likely to come up after the flies that lay the eggs are through working, than that which is sown earlier. If we could only forecast the weather and could tell beforehand just how long the flies are going to stay this fall we could set the date with certainty. Lacking this information, the best we can do is to decide on an average date which is as late as we dare sow and yet which has been early enough in the past to get a good stand which will come through the winter. September 20 has proven as good a date as any in the past. Of course it is impossible to guarantee a crop under any conditions but late sowing seems advisable this year, especially in the lower third of the state.

Announcements.

A regular meeting of the Macca-bees will be held on Friday evening of this week. At this meeting officers for the coming year will be placed in nomination.

The Orient Circle will hold a thimble party at the home of Mrs. F. K. McElowney on Friday afternoon, August 21. Every member is requested to be present and bring a friend as this is the last meeting of the quarter. Scrub lunch.

INTEREST IN HORSE IS UNABATED DESPITE AUTOS

Evening-Equine Show at State Fair Attracts Much Attention.

That the advent of the automobile in nowise has caused an abating of interest in the saddle and in the harness horse is evident from the attention the evening horse show at the Michigan State Fair attracts each year. A love for beautiful horses seems inherent in Americans, and no matter what new methods of locomotion are discovered or invented the horse still will have its place. An exceptional interest is being taken in the horse show at the Fair, Sept. 7-18 this year, and as a further stimulation the management makes known that additional awards are offered for these classes.

"Although the automobile gets one out in the open air, it does not furnish one with the exercise needed," said George W. Dickinson, general manager of the State Fair. "The center in the park and along the boulevards which sets the blood dancing in one's veins is missed, and it is not long before the man who is cooped up with his business all day leaves his car in the garage and has his saddle brought round to him each morning. He is aware that exercise is needed to keep the human machinery working smoothly, and he knows of no more enjoyable way to get it than astride a mettled horse. This is one assurance that the horse has not lost its place."

Assistant Prosecutor Waldo M. Abbott is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Prosecuting Attorney.—Adv.

RESTING IN THE STATE FAIR GROVE

The benches in the grove on the Michigan State Fair grounds are occupied every moment of the day. In the morning it is to witness the drills by the school children and the band concert which takes place in the Odeon; at noon the seats in the restful shade are splendid places to eat picnic lunches, and in the afternoon, in addition to the band concert, there are talks by noted men, other drills and musical programs. The illustration shows a typical group in the grove.

ENGINEERS READY TO INSTALL MACHINERY THAT WILL MAKE 25 AUTOS DAILY DURING STATE FAIR

Engineers of the Ford Motor company have gone over the Automobile building at the State Fair grounds with General Manager Dickinson and have made preliminary plans for installing the machinery necessary for the company's great exhibit at the Fair, Sept. 7-18. The ends of the building will be torn out and replaced by great doors. Through those at one end the parts will be carried, and from those at the other the finished automobiles will be driven out.

The announcement of this wonderful exhibit has attracted attention all over the country. Never before has anything of this nature been attempted at a State Fair, its very magnitude being astounding. The engineers have gone over the matter carefully and see nothing in the way of putting the cars out in record time.

"We are mighty well pleased at the interest Mr. Ford has taken in this exhibit. It is the biggest thing that ever has been done at our Fair, and that is saying something," stated General Manager Dickinson this week. "A great many people no doubt believe that it is absolutely impossible to build an automobile in ten minutes, but they will have to recast their thoughts after they see this display at the Fair. It will be a long time before anything like this can be duplicated."

The four day milking test for dairy cows of all breeds, which was productive of the keenest competition at the State Fair last year, will be a royal battle ground at the 1914 Fair Sept. 7-18. Double the number of cows entered in the contest last season are booked to show their milk giving abilities this fall. The details of this test are in charge of the dairy department of the agricultural college, and the premium will be awarded for the economic production based upon the cost of feed and the value of the milk and butter fat produced.

The test begins Tuesday morning, Sept. 8, at 6 a. m. and closes Friday, Sept. 11. Entries may be made in this department up to 12 o'clock noon Sept.

PILOT LIGHTING PLANTS
HOME MADE ACETYLENE
FOR LIGHTING AND COOKING

Filtered Gaslight For Rural Homes

Acetylene Gaslight is a natural light. In fact it is plain, everyday, world-old Sunlight. But it is Sunlight captured so that you can use it as "soft" or as brilliant as you choose, by the mere turning of a tap on the chandeliers, or by the use of plain white glass globes.

Moreover, Acetylene is practically filtered light from which all useless or injurious color, soot, or excessive heat factors are eliminated.

On this account an Acetylene flame, one-tenth the size of that from Kerosene, Gasoline or City Gas, gives as much reading light as ten-tenths of these other illuminants. Which means that Acetylene produces only a fraction of the heat, air-consumption and Carbonic Acid Gas poisoning which other lights produce.

About two days' labor will install a PILOT Country Home Acetylene Plant, and forever dispense with the disagreeable lamp cleaning, filling, wick snuffing and chimney wiping needed 365 days in a year with kerosene lamps.

You can use Pilot Acetylene too, as fast as your kitchen range—clean, concentrated gas that will do away entirely with coal and ashes.

Write me today how many rooms and how many barns and outbuildings you've got—then I will tell you how little it need cost you to install a suitable Pilot Lighting Plant—an Automatic Pilot which will be good for many years' steady use and pay for itself in the labor it saves. Address me thus—

FIFTY COUNTIES ARE REPRESENTED

STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION IN MEETING AT LANSING.

CONSIDER VALUES IN STATE

Some Pleased and Some Dismayed at Report of Tax Commission—Values in Copper Region Are Reduced.

Lansing, Mich. — Representatives from about 50 counties are here to attend the sessions of the state board of equalization, which begin Tuesday. Many of these representatives will remain through the entire session, while others will be here only long enough to give their statements relative to their own counties.

When the report of the state tax commission on the estimated true cash value of the state, given as $3,301,038,087, was read before the initial meeting Monday, there were wallings from several sources and smiles from others. For example, representatives from Mecosta county had figures which showed the board of supervisors had equalized the county at a greater figure than the state tax commission, though the same supervisors had assessed the county at a smaller figure. The tax commission figures that the local assessing officers should assess all property at its true cash value, thus getting the state on a basis of taxation that will be just to all interested.

A majority of the supervisors from the copper country who are here attending the state board of equalization are apparently well satisfied with the way their sections of the state has been treated by the state tax commission, as it is said that a reduction of about $13,000,000 has been made from the figures of the state board three years ago.

In the iron country valuations have been increased to some extent, as new properties have been developed since the last meeting of the state board of equalization.

STORM IN SAGINAW VALLEY

Car Service Tied Up and Crops Are Injured By Rain.

Saginaw, Mich.—One of the worst storms in years visited Saginaw and the valley, starting at 10 o'clock Monday night and continuing until 7 o'clock Tuesday morning. For nine hours lightning flashed at short intervals.

The Au Sable power station at Cooke's dam, which furnishes "juice" for street cars and interurbans in Saginaw, Bay City and Flint, and for domestic and factory use in these cities, was struck and put out of commission. Steam auxiliary stations have been started in three cities. For half an hour, while the power was being switched over no cars moved in the Saginaw valley.

Several houses were struck here. The rain amounted to 2.94 inches, breaking available records of the U. S. station here. Many streets were flooded. Farming communities report fields covered with water and great damage done to crops.

To Employ Potato Expert.

East Lansing, Mich.—In accordance with its plan to "put Michigan potatoes on every Yankee table," the state board of agriculture, at its recent meeting at Chatham, in the upper peninsula, authorized the appointment of a tuber specialist to inspect the Michigan crop this season. The inspection will enable Michigan farmers to sell their potatoes throughout the country for seed and "feed" purposes.

Incidentally, the members of the board, who have just returned from their visit north of the straits, spoke of the upper peninsula "as the coming agricultural empire."

THIRST FOR NEWS THE ONE PASSION IN PARIS

One of the particularly striking things of this time of stress and excitement in Paris is the eagerness of every human being for a newspaper. The little midnights who usually read nothing but the serial story, the omnibus conductors, the finely dressed women in their limousines, every one reads every edition of every paper.

Life is full of abrupt changes for a working continental nation where mobilization can call out all types and conditions of men in less than a week. A person's daily acquaintances take on a romantic aspect; for the clerk is in an artillery man, I find, and has a medal for being the best gunlayer in his battery. The most obnoxious waiter at the Cafe de Paris gives orders in the army instead of taking them. And who could have imagined that the nice young man who marries your hair is a quartermaster and will perhaps be charging around with a gleaming breastplate and a heavy saber in place of a curling iron with which he will treat heads.

NEWS and GOSSIP of WASHINGTON

Croquet Revival Has Set In in the Capital City

WASHINGTON.—Croquet is a game that may "come back." Under the sponsorship of Senator Cummins of Iowa, M. Champ Clark and other men and women of distinction in public life a croquet revival has set in in Washington. Croquet is a game so old that its origin is obscure. Like most of the games that men play, it was probably a derivative or revision of an older game—which was also the derivative of an older game, etc.—and which has itself undergone considerable alteration during its present general form. No doubt in the centuries to come it will undergo such changes of form and name that remote posterity may have to turn to antiquarian research to trace it to the game which is played today. There is a kinship between all games that are played with balls and sticks or balls and clubs, and their blood-lines run together at a time so deep in the depths of the past that no chronicles, intelligible to us, survive. There is a strong relationship between polo, croquet, billiards, bowls, cricket, hockey, tennis and baseball, and between these and other games which remain to us only as mere names if we could but securely and certainly trace that relationship.

Croquet in nearly its present form seems to have been introduced into England from Ireland in 1854, and it seems to have been introduced into Ireland from southern France in 1852. In that year it was played on the lawn of Lord Londsdale, and the story runs that it was played there and then under the auspices of the eldest daughter of Sir Edmund Macanaghten, who had learned it during a residence in France. It came rapidly into favor as a pastime in England, and was strongly reminiscent of a game of balls, mallets, hoops, or wickets, and pegs, called "pall mall," from the French paille-malle, which was a popular game in England during the years of the reign of the Stuarts.

Vice-President Marshall Hobnobs With Squirrels

THE fact that the Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall live in a hotel precludes any possibility of their introducing a dog or a kitten into the even tenor of their family life, although the vice-president takes the keenest personal interest in the dogs of his friends.

"I have to hobnob with the squirrels," he said, "and those over here in the park are highly indignant if I am slow about finding the peanuts or the popcorn which I always take to them."

The vice-president is a familiar figure in Lafayette square, where he is seen going in and out among the trees of the park, coaxing the squirrels to come down for a peanut, or sitting side by side with two or three upon a bench, making them beg for their supper, which they know is in his pockets.

The secretary of state brought his favorite mount from Nebraska, and Rex is a member of the official household in Washington. Secretary Bryan has been in the saddle since he was a boy, and finds no diversion equal to that of a canter through Rock Creek park. When some one asked him if he had other animals that might rival Rex in his affections, he declared that there was no other animal with the same claim upon a man's affections as the horse.

Yet it is not unusual to hear "Bryan's Lions" talked about. The "Bryan Lions" are made of stone and were brought from Japan. They are on either side of the entrance to Calumet place, and one lion has his mouth wide open, while the other's is tightly closed.

Some Pets Admired by Cabinet Members' Families

THE Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. McAdoo have a handsome collie, and little Miss Sallie McAdoo has a small dog named Pifi which is the delight of her life and the avowed nuisance of the family.

The son of the Secretary and Mrs. Lane is the proud possessor of a splendid English bull named Jack, and the younger sons of the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Daniels have had all the animals and various kinds of pets that a family of boys accumulate, the most conspicuous of which were some chickens; most satisfactory was a nice, common snake, which served its day and generation and was finally skinned, and the ones longest remembered were some tadpoles, which were put in the usual fruit jar and neglected.

Mrs. Houston, wife of the secretary of agriculture, is devoted to horses, and expressed her great delight in having them when she came to Washington.

"I have been accustomed to horses all of my life," she said, "and greatly missed them in St. Louis. It is a perfect joy to drive around behind them again."

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Houston were friends and neighbors of the Postmaster General and Mrs. Burleson when they all lived in Austin, Texas, and their devotion to horses is the same.

The Misses Burleson are both accomplished horsewomen.

Owls Visit Senate Chamber and White House

THERE was a visitor in the gallery of the senate not many days ago, who watched the proceedings from the reserved section, and yet who presented no card of admission. No one saw him enter, and no one was more astonished than the vigilant doorkeeper when he discovered his presence. Inasmuch as it would have created a great commotion to get him out, and because he was a perfectly quiet, well-behaved guest and apparently deeply interested in the business before the senate, he was allowed to stay until adjournment.

If an owl ever before visited either of the legislative bodies of the United States, it is not recorded in history, so that the one who sat in the senate gallery the other day, blinking confidentially and wisely at the vice-president, established a precedent which other wise old owls may follow.

"And he didn't hoot at us once!" exclaimed one of the members of that distinguished body in mock surprise. It is quite time for the ornithologist to discover the fine, psychological reason that attracts owls to politics. No sooner had the excitement of the owl's presence in the senate subsided than another owl was detected in the act of breaking into the White House.

He was on the sill of one of the west windows of the private dining room, evidently puzzled to find it impossible to strut through the screen, although he tried it again and again after some one insisted on driving him away.

GOOD WISHES FOR JUDGE.

William Hahn, alias Smith, of the "Old Dutch gang," was sentenced to ten years for burglary, ten years for larceny and sixteen years on an old sentence.

It will keep Hahn in prison until he is seventy-nine. Going out, Hahn was heard to mutter.

"What's that he says?" demanded Judge Rosalsky.

"He says he hopes you will sleep well after that," responded the court attendant.—New York World.

Sense of Immunity.

"Why do you assume to criticize affairs of public importance which everybody knows you don't understand?"

"That's why I feel so free to criticize," replied Mr. Jabbles. "Everybody knows I don't pretend to understand 'em, and therefore nobody ought to take offense."

Process of Elimination.

"What is the trouble with your motor car?"

"Something wrong with the carburetor," replied Mr. Chuggins.

"How do you know?"

"Because the carburetor is the only thing about the machine that I haven't had repaired within the last three weeks."

Looking Ahead.

"My baby is very intelligent."

"How so?"

"She keeps examining her toes."

"How does that denote superior acumen?"

"Why, the intelligent child evidently realizes that one must have perfect toes if one proposes to tango creditably."

"Oh, yes; my wife's."

Appropriate.

"Why did Mamie take the Turkish situation for the subject of her graduation essay?"

"Why, you see, she thought it would be such a good watch for her minaret gown."

No More Victories.

"Up until ten years ago," related Danny, "Ol had bin in one hoondred foights an' wus niver licked."

"An' after that?" queried Pat.

"After that, me bboy," continued Danny, "Ol married."

Old Saying.

"England doesn't take to baseball."

"Pity, too. They could play all kinds of innings."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, I've often heard that the sun never sets on the British empire."

A Puzzle.

"The equal suffrage orator said that woman ought not to allow man to keep on dictating to her."

"But what's she to do if she's his stenographer?"

Sporting Proposition.

"What makes you so confident that you are in agreement with your constituents on this proposition?"

"Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "I have guessed 'em wrong four times in succession. The law of averages ought to begin to work by this time."

Certainly It's Proper.

Bacon—Do you think the expression, "put up or shut up," is a proper one to use?

In the City of Bremen

JUST at sunset it was that our boat sailed into Bremer-Haven. The sky was tinted all the shades of pink and violet with a tiny bit of yellow at the horizon. The water was white and smooth, only here and there reflecting the colors of the sky. Everywhere overhead, in front and back of the boat sea-gulls were flying. They cut great, graceful circles in the sky with their wings tilted sidewise. Some were resting on the water, moving languidly up and down with the slight motion of the wavelets, and still others were crying and fighting for the waste food that was being thrown from the back of the ship. Their snow-white wings reflected the pale sun-set colors, writes a correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Slowly the boat was steered in between long, narrow points of dark green land. Silhouetted against the sky were wind-mills and tall straight trees. Nothing seemed real for we glided so slowly that we seemed to be on a phantom ship in a dream. The bustling stewards and cabin-boys broke our reverie with the exciting news that the customhouse officials were waiting to inspect our baggage that night and if anything can bring a dreamer back to earth it is a practical German customhouse officer with his formal uniform, his great mustache and his guttural withering query, "Cigarren oder Liqueur?"

Bremer-Haven is the home of the North German Lloyd steamer officers. These men love the sea and they live as near to it as possible, even after they have retired from active service. They spend their vacations in the Hartz mountains taking walking trips.

Sea Captain's History.

Last June there was an ex-captain on board and he had a curious history. At first he impressed one as being very old, but when he took his cap off we saw his hair was not the least bit gray. He was dressed as much like a real captain as was possible for a man to be. He always wore dark blue with a cap on his head. He was silent and melancholy except when the Titanic disaster was mentioned, and then he defended Captain Smith

Bismarck Most Popular Hero.

The end of the Rathaus square is occupied by the cathedral, a tall, uninteresting looking building, with two big towers. Standing at the front door is Bismarck on a horse. It is one of the nicest statues of Bismarck yet erected. In time every city in Germany will have its Bismarck statue, for he is today the most popular German hero.

Next to the cathedral is the exchange. This exchange is neither as large nor as important as the one in Hamburg, but nevertheless a vast amount of business is done here without much apparent effort except noise. The men congregate between one and two o'clock, and seem merely to stand around in groups.

Back of the exchange is a large square where stands the statue of Gustavus Adolphus, the Swedish emperor. He is dressed in the costume of the days of Charles I, but in spite of his courtly robes he has the fire of a great fighter in his eye. The statue was originally intended for the city of Gottenburg, in Sweden, but as it was being transported from Germany a great storm arose and the vessel was wrecked. The statue was rescued and brought back to Bremen. The German seamen raised a fund, purchased the statue and stood it in their city.

Bremen is a very attractive city. Running through the center of the town is a long narrow lake, along whose banks all the fine residences of the city are situated. They are very charming villas, ornamented with many flowers and trailing vines. The lake is full of ducks, little ducks, big ducks, white ducks and black ducks. Their homes are little houses anchored in the center of the lake. They are high and dry and filled with straw for the little ducklings, and far away from the bad boys that grow even in well-regulated, military Germany.

One of the most important things in Bremen is the Rolanda, a colossal figure in stone that stands in the Rathaus square, and is the symbol of civic liberty. Rolanda is as primitive as a Cubist art and looks like he might have been a production of that school. He stands very straight and stiff, holding a sword in one hand and a shield in the other. Rolanda is the mascot of the city and if anything should happen to him the people would be very much alarmed about their safety.

Nearly all the important buildings in Bremen are gathered around the Rolanda and the Rathaus square. The old Rathaus is one of the most interesting in all Germany.

The upper floor of the Rathaus is occupied by the Great Hall, which is always left open to the public. The ceiling of this old hall is very unique, for it is set with the portraits of all the emperors from Charlemagne to Sigismund. In between the portraits are hung models of famous old ships.

The lower floor or cellar of the Rathaus is occupied by a famous ratskeller, where only two kinds of drinks are served—Rhine and Moselle wine. No food can be had unless the wine is first ordered. The ratskeller is a great favorite with the men of Bremen and many have their favorite table, and here they sit and smoke

Their homes are little houses anchored in the center of the lake. They are high and dry and filled with straw for the little ducklings, and far away from the bad boys that grow even in well-regulated, military Germany.

One of the most important things in Bremen is the Rolanda, a colossal figure in stone that stands in the Rathaus square, and is the symbol of civic liberty. Rolanda is as primitive as a Cubist art and looks like he might have been a production of that school. He stands very straight and stiff, holding a sword in one hand and a shield in the other. Rolanda is the mascot of the city and if anything should happen to him the people would be very much alarmed about their safety.

Nearly all the important buildings in Bremen are gathered around the Rolanda and the Rathaus square. The old Rathaus is one of the most interesting in all Germany.

The upper floor of the Rathaus is occupied by the Great Hall, which is always left open to the public. The ceiling of this old hall is very unique, for it is set with the portraits of all the emperors from Charlemagne to Sigismund. In between the portraits are hung models of famous old ships.

The lower floor or cellar of the Rathaus is occupied by a famous ratskeller, where only two kinds of drinks are served—Rhine and Moselle wine. No food can be had unless the wine is first ordered. The ratskeller is a great favorite with the men of Bremen and many have their favorite table, and here they sit and smoke and talk and let the outside world was as it will.

Bismarck Most Popular Hero.

The end of the Rathaus square is occupied by the cathedral, a tall, uninteresting looking building, with two big towers. Standing at the front door is Bismarck on a horse. It is one of the nicest statues of Bismarck yet erected. In time every city in Germany will have its Bismarck statue, for he is today the most popular German hero.

Next to the cathedral is the exchange. This exchange is neither as large nor as important as the one in Hamburg, but nevertheless a vast amount of business is done here without much apparent effort except noise. The men congregate between one and two o'clock, and seem merely to stand around in groups.

Back of the exchange is a large square where stands the statue of Gustavus Adolphus, the Swedish emperor. He is dressed in the costume of the days of Charles I, but in spite of his courtly robes he has the fire of a great fighter in his eye. The statue was originally intended for the city of Gottenburg, in Sweden, but as it was being transported from Germany a great storm arose and the vessel was wrecked. The statue was rescued and brought back to Bremen. The German seamen raised a fund, purchased the statue and stood it in their city.

Bremen is a very attractive city. Running through the center of the town is a long narrow lake, along whose banks all the fine residences of the city are situated. They are very charming villas, ornamented with many flowers and trailing vines. The lake is full of ducks, little ducks, big ducks, white ducks and black ducks. Their homes are little houses anchored in the center of the lake. They are high and dry and filled with straw for the little ducklings, and far away from the bad boys that grow even in well-regulated, military Germany.

One of the most important things in Bremen is the Rolanda, a colossal figure in stone that stands in the Rathaus square, and is the symbol of civic liberty. Rolanda is as primitive as a Cubist art and looks like he might have been a production of that school. He stands very straight and stiff, holding a sword in one hand and a shield in the other. DAIRY FACTS

TWELVE GOOD SILO REASONS

Farmers' Bulletin Tells Farmer Should Provide Himself With Huge Receptacle for Feed.

T. E. Woodward of the "Dairy Division" in Farmers' Bulletin 556, furnishes 12 good and well-considered reasons for the farmer providing himself with a silo. Every one of them touches some spot of vital importance to the larger profit of dairy farming. Here they are:

1. More feed can be stored in a given space in the form of silage than in the form of fodder or hay.
2. There is a smaller loss of food material when a crop is made into silage than when cured as fodder or hay.
3. Corn silage is more efficient feed than corn fodder.
4. An acre of corn can be placed in the silo at less cost than the same area can be husked and shredded.
5. Crops can be put in the silo during weather that could not be utilized in making hay or curing fodder.
6. More stock can be kept on a given area of land when silage is the basis of the ration.
7. There is less waste in feeding silage than in feeding fodder. Good silage properly fed is all consumed.
8. Silage is very palatable.
9. Silage, like other succulent feeds, has a beneficial effect upon the digestive organs.
10. Silage is the cheapest and best form in which a succulent feed can be provided for winter use.
11. Silage can be used for supplementing pastures more economically than can silage crops, because it requires less labor, and silage is more palatable.
12. Converting the corn crop into silage clears the land and leaves it ready for another crop.

RACK FOR AIRING MILK PANS

Slatted Device Put on Posts as Illustrated Will Prove Quite Efficient—Is Easily Made.

A slatted rack for airing milk pans and other milk utensils may be made easily. A shelf 3 by 4½ feet will hold a good many vessels. The slats are made of one by two-inch strips placed four inches apart. The shelf or rack may be put on posts as illustrated, writes T. L. Bailey, in Missouri Valley Farmer. Vessels may be turned upside down upon it, and they will catch the air from underneath.

FEED DRY GRAIN TO CALVES

Digestive Organ of Young Animal Is Small and Frequent Feedings of Small Amount Is Best.

In feeding skim-milk calves the grain needed to supply the missing fat may be corn, barley, oats or a mixture. Occasionally a feeder has skim-milk or alfalfa or clover hay on hand, and to these he adds linseed meal, cottonseed meal of gluten feed. These are all high in protein, and when any one of them is combined with skim-milk and alfalfa—both high in protein—an unbalanced ration results and scours or other digestive troubles follow. The digestive tract of a calf is small and frequent feedings of small amounts during the first month is best. During the first month, it is better to grind the grains feed. At the end of this period either oats or corn may be fed unground. Hard grains like kaffir and milo give best results when ground. All grain should be fed dry in a trough. Mixing feeds with milk is not recommended, as calves chew their feed better when fed dry.

GOOD RULES FOR DAIRYMAN

Nebraska Station Favors Feeding All the Roughage That the Cow Will Eat Up Clean.

The Nebraska station gives the following brief and simple rules as an aid in determining the amount of feed required by each cow:

"Feed all the roughage, such as alfalfa, corn silage, etc., that the cow will eat up clean."

"Feed approximately one pound of grain for every three pounds of milk produced per day."

"Give the cows as much feed as they will consume without gaining in weight."

"Feed some succulent feed, such as corn silage or roots, to make the ration more palatable."

"Be prepared to supplement the pastures by feeding silage when the dry season sets in."

Princess Theatre.

The Saturday night show at the Princess promises to be a mighty interesting entertainment. The feature picture presents J. Warren Kerrigan in a two part drama "The Man Between." Here is a picture better than a sermon.

Tennyson wrote: "I am part of all that I have met." What do you think about it in your case? Are you a part of all that you have met—are you what you are through environment? Are you straight because you were brought up straight? Or are you what you are through heredity? Time was when the student believed that heredity—or what we inherit from our parents or forefathers—played an important part in the fashioning of a person's life. But this opinion is changing. There is a vast belief now that the man whom you praise, the criminal whom the state imprisons, are made up of that which they have met.

Here is a masterful play that swings right into that very question, and it features Warren Kerrigan, the world famous screen star, in the unusual role of a man whom the hereditary apostles assert will be a no-account, a thief, while the believers in the doctrine of environment says he will be honest and upright.

A western comedy drama and another comedy reel and two late songs by Chelsea's popular singer, Mr. Neff, are also on the program.

Monday night at the Princess will bring forth installment four of the "Lucile Love" picture. This picture is proving mighty popular and is drawing big crowds. A good comedy picture "Those Persistent Old Maids" will also be shown.

"BETTER BABIES!" FAIR'S SLOGAN

Michigan's Great Exhibition
Supplements Nation's Effort.

NOTED WOMAN AT THE HEAD

Instruction Given to Mothers in Care of Children—Child Welfare Exhibit to Be on Display—Babies From All Over Michigan in Health Contest.

If the men and women of the Michigan of tomorrow are to be the happy, healthy, normal persons that make the best of citizens they must be happy, healthy and normal babies, and they must have the best of care and training through the perilous days of childhood. The management of the State Fair believes that while thousands of dollars have been spent—and well, too—in instruction to enable farmers to improve their flocks and herds, far less attention has been given the babies than is their due.

It has been only within the past two years that the United States government has realized the necessity of such instruction and has sought to provide it. The federal children's bureau has been established and is doing splendid work. The fair management has decided to supplement this each year with an effort of its own, and a better babies' department has been added to its activities. This fall, at the fair which will be held Sept. 7-18, instruction will be given to mothers in the care and training of their children, and a child welfare exhibit will be on display. In addition babies will be entered in a health contest, children from one to three years being eligible. Mrs. George C. Caron, president of the Detroit Board of the Michigan Children's Home society and a recognized authority on child welfare, will be superintendent, and Mrs. Mary Thompson Stevens of Detroit, judge.

DR. MARY THOMPSON STEVENS

Mrs. Caron is the wife of a physician and for many years has been a recognized authority on child welfare. She is a mother, and she brings to her work an experience rich in understanding and in knowledge of child life.

All children between one and three years of age are eligible to enter, there being three classes. Babies from rural districts and towns of 1,000 population or less will be in Class A, those from cities and towns between 1,000 and 15,000 population in Class B, and those from cities of over 15,000 population in Class C. In addition, the fair management offers special prizes for triplets

Infection and Insect Bites Dangerous.

Mosquitoes, flies and other insects, which breed quickly in garbage pails, ponds of stagnant water, barns, musty places, etc., are carriers of disease. Every time they bite you, they inject poison into your system from which some dread disease may result. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. It is antiseptic and a few drops will neutralize the infection caused by insect bites or rusty nails. Sloan's Liniment disinfects cuts, sores and bruises. You cannot afford to be without it in your home. Money back if not satisfied. Only 25c at your druggist. L. P. Vogel, H. H. Fenn Co., L. T. Freeman-Co. Adv.

OTTO E. HAAB

FOR SHERIFF
As a candidate for the nomination of Sheriff on the Democratic Ticket, I ask your support at the Primary Election, August 25th, solely on my record as a citizen and public official.

ROSS GRANGER
You will find Mr. Granger's name in third column and about center of ballot.

MATTHEW J. MAX

I will be a candidate, on the Democratic Ticket, for the nomination for the office of Prosecuting Attorney. If, on investigation into my qualifications I am found worthy, I shall appreciate your support at the primary election on August 25, 1914.

OTTO E. HAAB
Assistant Prosecuting Attorney

Waldo Mack Abbot is a great grandson of Pastor Frederick Schmidt, who is well known among the older Washtenaw residents.—Adv.

A. J. WATERS

Candidate for State Senate.

Yes, I am a candidate for State Senator. When Caesar crossed the Rubicon on his campaign into Italy, he left a large part of Gaul behind him. Had he been making a modern primary campaign, it would have been imperative to take it all with him. It requires an unlimited amount of audacity, or to say "cheek," to put your own picture in the paper and to sing your own praises, but "they are all doing it now."

There are 33,100 voters in the district. It is a physical impossibility for me to meet and become acquainted with all of them, therefore, the newspaper is the only alternative, as I shall not trouble anyone with letters.

I have served two terms in the House and believe I could render you good service in the Senate.

I belong to the rank and file, am a lawyer and Granger and know what it is to eat bread in the sweat of ones brow.

I believe that the quality of the State Administration should go up and the expense down.

It is time that all progressive, well-meaning persons should get together, for "united we stand, divided we fall."

On August 25th, next, remember the day, you will do me a favor and yourself a service by placing a cross in the circle at the head of the Republican ticket and a like cross in the square at the left of the name of Yours most sincerely,

ARTHUR J. WATERS.

FRANK B. DEVINE

I am a candidate for the nomination on the Republican ticket to the office of Prosecuting Attorney at the primary to be held on August 25th. I am at present serving my second year as City Attorney of Ann Arbor. I feel that my record in that office justifies me in asking for your support.

Your vote will be appreciated.
Very sincerely yours,
FRANK B. DEVINE.

H. G. LINDENSCHMIDT

Republican Candidate for Sheriff.

It isn't as though I was a stranger to the people of Washtenaw county, when I ask them to support my candidacy for sheriff on the Democratic ticket at the August primaries.

In the eight years I have been connected with the sheriff's office, and in charge of juries, I have come into personal contact with many men from each township in this county.

I am perfectly willing to abide by these men regarding my ability to give the taxpayers of this county efficient service in the office of Sheriff.

Very respectfully,
FREEMAN STARK.

MATTHEW J. MAX

Why I want your support

In asking the voters of Washtenaw County to support me for the nomination of Sheriff on the Democratic Ticket at the August primaries I do so because I feel that my record as a conscientious public servant, my knowledge of the duties of the office and my experience in handling its civil and criminal business together with my assurance that, if elected, I will no more spend a dollar of the taxpayers' money needlessly than I would my own, entitles me to their serious consideration.

If you want an honest, business-like administration of the sheriff's office, vote at the primaries August 25, for

MATTHEW J. MAX.

Wilbur ("Wick") McLaren
Candidate for Sheriff, subject to the Republican Primary.

If, upon looking me up, after a lifetime spent in Washtenaw county, you believe I would give a satisfactory administration of the sheriff's office, I will very greatly appreciate your vote on primary day, Tuesday, August 25.

Respectfully,
WILBUR ("WICK") McLAREN.

CHAS. J. ANDREWS

Republican Candidate for Sheriff
As my duties as chief of the Ann Arbor fire department will keep me from seeing all my friends, your vote at the primary election will be greatly appreciated.

JACOB F. FAHRNER

Jacob F. Fahrner, of Ann Arbor, and formerly of Chelsea, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Prosecuting Attorney. He is a native of the county. He is well qualified to hold the office and to perform its duties. He has had six years experience as a successful practitioner of law in both civil and criminal cases.

He will handle the affairs of the office carefully and judiciously if nominated and elected. He will appreciate your support. Vote for him.

H. G. LINDENSCHMIDT

Republican Candidate for Sheriff.

If you see fit by your vote to place me in the office of sheriff of this county, I will so conduct the affairs of the office that you will not regret the choice you made.

The retaining of your confidence will be my first thought.

WALDO MACK ABBOT

WALDO MACK ABBOT

For Prosecuting Attorney, Democratic Ticket

I am a candidate for the office of Prosecuting Attorney of Washtenaw County upon the Democratic ticket, and ask you earnestly to support my candidacy. If I am nominated and elected, I will faithfully perform the duties of the office and put forth my best efforts in the interests of the people.

If you find my character and competency to be of such a nature as to warrant my holding this office, will you not go to the polls and vote for me on Primary Day.

Memoirs of Napoleon

In Three Volumes

The personal reminiscences of Baron de Méneval, for thirteen years private secretary to Napoleon Bonaparte, bring out, as no history can, many enlightening and interesting side lights on the character of that greatest of leaders. De Méneval's descriptions have the piquancy and interest possible only because he was an actual eyewitness of the scenes and incidents of which he writes. Their reliability and historical interest can be judged by the fact that the very conservative French Academy publicly recommends them.

Chautauqua Lecturer Who Has Studied Labor Problems In the Laboratories of Living Men

REV. GEORGE L. McNUTT.

GEOGE L. McNUTT, the "dinner pail man," who is to lecture at our Chautauqua on "Culture and Democracy," has been upon the platform for years, and few men have had more return dates than he. As Governor Hoch of Kansas says, "He has a big brain, a big heart and a big message." Mr. McNutt was a farmer boy, Hoosier born, from Douglas county, Ill. A student for a year at Princeton university, a graduate of Wabash college, he became a Presbyterian preacher at Urbana, Ill. To the west of the church was the University of Illinois, with its army of students; to the east the shops of the Big Four railroad, with its 500 dinner pail men. Thus from the first the preacher was confronted with the practical relations of culture and democracy. After preaching fifteen years in Urbana, Indianapolis, New York city and the far west Mr. McNutt entered the University of Hard Knocks to study first hand social and economic questions. Beginning as a roustabout in an iron mill, the preacher worked incog. through Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, Boston and through New England up to Maine. For seven years the man from the pulpit, with his wife and boys, lived the life of the unskilled day laborer's family, studying the problems and conditions of the laboring people in the laboratories of living men. Mr. McNutt's lecture here will be one of the features of the Chautauqua.

Signor E. Forcellati Dante to Direct His Band Here During One Day of Our Chautauqua

SIGNOR E. FORCELLATI DANTE.

ONE of the big features of the Chautauqua here will be the appearance of Signor E. Forcellati Dante and his Italian band on one day of the program. Signor Dante was a student in the Conservatory of Naples at the age of seven and graduated from that college at the age of seventeen. Ten years later he became leader of his band. He is also a trombone soloist of unusual ability.

THOUSAND CATTLE IN STATE FAIR'S STOCK EXHIBIT

Michigan's Rank as Dairy
State Will Be Proved.

The cattle and dairy show at the Michigan State Fair this year will be truly representative of the place these allied activities occupy in the state's industrial life. From 700 to 1,000 cattle will be on exhibition, there being fully 800 of the distinctively dairy breeds. This is a greater showing by far than a Michigan Fair has ever seen.

In addition to the premiums which are given for each class and which are 25 per cent greater than last year, the State Fair management offers $100 prizes for each fifty head of cattle shown by Michigan cattle breeders' societies. The Holstein breeders have been especially active in their acceptance of the offer, and the Livingston County, Central Michigan, Western Michigan and Eastern Michigan associations have each announced their intention of exhibiting at least half a hundred head. Similar acceptances have been received from Jersey and Guernsey breeders' associations, while Shorthorn breeders declare they are not to be counted out.

Two other dairy features of importance are announced. The Detroit milk show will be held in conjunction with the Fair, and the September scoring contest of butter and cheese will be conducted by the state dairy and food department at the Fair grounds. J. Fred Smith of Howell, member in charge of the department, and E. C. Krehl, chief milk inspector of Detroit, made the milk show announcement. Three silver cups and a silk banner will be awarded. A cup will be given for the best specimen of market milk, another for the best specimen of market cream and a third for the best specimen of certified milk. The banner will go to the distributor having the highest score in the show.

A representative of the United States department of agriculture will score the exhibits, and competition will be open to milk distributors and dairymen throughout Michigan. The scoring will be upon the basis of bacteria, flavor and odor, visible dirt, butter fat, solids not fat, acidity and appearance of package.

"It may be said that only within the past fifteen years has dairying been recognized in Michigan as a specialized business," says George H. Brownell, superintendent of the dairy department. Michigan Agricultural college created a dairy department, whose duty it was to instruct the farmers of Michigan in the growing of crops for feeding dairy cattle, the handling of dairy herds for profitable production and the breeding of pure bred dairy cattle.

"Instead of teaching farmers to raise crops of wheat, rye, barley and corn to be sold to the elevator man in the neighboring village the dairy department officials at the college urged the farmers to grow such crops as could be fed to dairy cattle. Silage corn and alfalfa are the principal crops of this kind, and the result of feeding them to a herd of dairy cows is one that comes very close to realizing the inventor's dream—a perpetual motion machine. The fertility of the farm is increased instead of diminished, and the products of the dairy in the form of milk, butter fat and surplus stock always command a ready cash market at a profitable price.

"In the fall of 1912 the present dairy building was completed as a home and headquarters for dairymen who attend the Fair. This year it will be made more easily accessible by the construction of a wide cement walk from the rear of the cattle sheds to the door of the demonstration barn. Other improvements of material value also are being considered."

I also suffered from rheumatic pains in my back and was stiff and sore. Mornings I felt tired out, and I was dizzy and nervous. I tried different remedies but was not helped until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They relieved me of the trouble from my back and kidneys. I am glad to confirm the public statement I gave praising them some time ago."

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently spent a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey arrive at Fortuna near where the mine, known as the Eagle Tail, is located. They engage the services of Cruz Mendez, who has been friendly to Kruger, to acquire the title for them, and get a permit to do preliminary work. Aragon protests and accuses them of jumping his claim. Bud discovers that matrimonial entanglements prevent Mendez from perfecting a valid title. Phil, who has been paying attention to Aragon's daughter, Gracia, decides to turn Mexican and get the title in his own name. Bud objects to Phil's attentions to Gracia. Aragon falls in his attempt to drive them off the claim. Rebels are reported in the vicinity.

"It is the desire of the Yaquis," he had said, when rebuffed for serving under the hated flag of Mexico, "to kill Mexicans. And," he added grimly, "the federals at this time seem best able to give us guns for that purpose."

But it had been a year now since Bule had passed his word and, though they had battled valiantly, their land had not been given back to them. The wild Yaquis, the irreconcilables who never came down from the hills, had gone on the warpath again, but Bule and his men still served.

Only in two things did they disobey their officers—they would not stack their arms, and they would not retreat while there were still more Mexicans to be killed. Otherwise they were very good soldiers.

But now, after the long campaign in Chihuahua and a winter of idleness at Agua Negra, they were marching south toward their native land and, in spite of the stern glances of their leaders, they burst forth in weird Yaqui songs which, if their words had been known, might easily have caused their Mexican officers some slight uneasiness.

It was, in fact, only a question of days, months, or years until the entire Yaqui contingent would desert, taking their arms and ammunition with them.

"Gee, what a bunch of men!" exclaimed Bud, as he stood off and admired their stark forms.

"There's some genuine fighters for you," he observed to Phil; and a giant Yaqui, standing near, returned his praise with a smile.

"Wy, hello there, Amigo!" hailed Bud, jerking his head in a friendly salute. "That's a feller I was making signs to up in Agua Negra," he explained. "Dogged if I ain't stuck on these Yaquis—they're all men, believe me!"

"Good workers, all right," conceded De Lancey, "but I'd hate to have 'em get after me with those guns. They say they've killed a lot of Americans, one time and another."

"Well, if they did it was for being caught in bad company," said Hooker. "I'd take a chance with 'em any time—but if you go into their country with a Mexican escort they'll kill you on general principles. Say," he cried impulsively, "I'm going over to talk with Amigo!"

With a broad grin on his honest face he advanced toward the giant Yaqui and shook hands ceremoniously.

"Where you go?" he inquired in Spanish, at the same time rolling a cigarette and asking by a sign for a match.

"Motezuma," answered the Indian gravely. Then, as Bud offered him the makings, he, too, rolled a cigarette and they smoked for a minute in silence.

"You live here?" inquired the Yaqui at last.

"Come here," corrected Bud. "I have mine—ten miles—over there."

He pointed with the flat of his hand, Indian fashion, and Amigo nodded understandingly.

He was a fine figure of a man, standing six feet or better in his well-cut sandals and handling his heavy Mauser as a child would swing a stick.

Across his broad chest he wore a full cartridge belt, and around his waist he had two more, filled to the last hole with cartridges and loaded clips. At his feet lay his blanket, bound into a tight roll, and a canteen and coffee cup completed his outfit, which, so far as impedimenta were concerned, was simplicity itself.

But instead of the cheap linen uniform of the federals he was dressed in good American clothes—a striped shirt, overalls, and a sombrero banded with a bright ribbon—and in place of the beaten, hunted look of those poor conscripts he had the steady gaze of a free man.

They stood and smoked for a few moments, talking briefly, and then, as the Yaquis closed up their ranks and marched off to make camp for the night, Bud presented his strange friend with the sack of tobacco and went back to join his partner.

That evening the plaza was filled with the wildest rumors, and another train arrived during the night, but through it all Bud and Phil remained unmoved. In the morning the soldiers went marching off down the trail, leaving a great silence where all had been bugle-calls and excitement, and then the first fugitive came in from down below.

He was an old Mexican, with trembling beard and staring eyes, and he told a tale of outrage that made their blood run cold. The red-flags had come to his house at night; they had killed his wife and son, left him upon the ground for dead, and carried off his daughter, a prisoner.

But later, when the comisario questioned him sharply, it developed that he lived not far away, had no daughter to lose, and was, in fact, only a crazed old man who told for truth that which he feared would happen.

Notwithstanding the denouement, his story stirred the Mexican population to the depths, and when Bud and Phil tried to hire men to push the work on the mine, they realized that their troubles had begun. Not only was it impossible to engage laborers at any price, but on the following day Cruz Mendez, with his wife and children and all his earthly possessions on the camp and told them he could serve them no more.

"It is my woman!" he explained; "my Maria! Ah, if those revoltosos should see Maria they would steal her before my eyes!"

So he was given his pay and the fifty dollars he had earned and, after the customary "Muchas gracias," and with the faithful Maria by his side, he went hurrying off to the store.

And now in crowded vehicles, with armed men riding in front and behind, the refugees began to pour into town, adding by their very haste to the panic of all who saw them.

They were the rich property owners who, having been subjected to forced contribution before, were now fleeing at the first rumor of danger, bringing their families with them to escape any being held for ransom.

In half a day the big hotel presided over by Don Juan de Dios Brachamonte was swarming with staring-eyed country mothers and sternly subdued families of children; and finally, to add eclat to the occasion and compensate for the general confusion, Don Cipriano Aragon y Tres Palacios came driving up to the door with his wife and the smiling Gracia.

If she had been in any fear of capture by bold marauders, Gracia Aragon did not show it now, as she sprang lightly from the carriage and waited upon her lady mother. Perhaps, after a year or more of rumors and alarms, she had come to look upon impending revolutionary conflicts as convenient excuses for a trip to town, a long stop at the hotel, and even a dash to gay Gadsden in case the rebels pressed close.

However that may be, while Don Juan exerted himself to procure them a good room she endured the gaze of the American guests with becoming placidity and, as that took some time, she even ventured to look the Americans over and make some comments to her mother.

And then—so it seemed to Bud—the mother glanced up quickly and fixed her eyes upon him. After that he was in less of a hurry to return to the mine, and Phil said they would stay inside for a week. But as for Don Cipriano, when he came across them in the crowded lobby he glared past them with malignant insolence and abruptly turned his back.

At La Fortuna he was the lord and master, with power to forbid them the place; but now once more the fortunes of war had turned against him, and he was forced to tolerate their presence.

The band playing in the plaza that evening, it being Thursday of the week, and as the cornet led with "La Paloma," and the bass viol and guitars beat the measure, all feet seemed to turn in that direction, and the fear of the raiders was stifled.

Around and around the band stand, and in and out beneath the trees the pleasure-loving maidens from down below walked decorously with their mothers; and the little band of Fortuna Americans, to whom life for some months had been a trifle burdensome, awoke suddenly to the beauty of the evening.

And among the rest of the maidens, but far more ravishing and high-bred, walked Gracia Aragon, at whom Bud in particular stole many secret glances from beneath the broad brim of his hat, hoping that by some luck the surreptitious would come upon the town, and he could defend her—alone. For he felt that he could do it against any hundred Mexicans that ever breathed.

CHAPTER XII.

In its inception the Fortuna hotel had not been intended for the use of Mexicans—in fact, its rates were practically prohibitive for anyone not being paid in gold—but, since most of the Americans had left, and seven dollars a day was no deterrent to the rich refugee land owners, it became of a sudden international, with a fine mixture of purse-proud Spaniards and race-proud American adventurers.

Not a very pleasing combination for the parents of romantic damsels destined for some prearranged marriage of state, but very exciting for the damsels and most provocative to the Americans.

After the promenade in the plaza the mothers by common consent preempted the upstairs reception-room, gathering their precious charges in close; while the Americans, after their custom, foregathered in the lobby, convenient to the bar. Hot arguments about the revolution, and predictions of events to come served to pass the early evening, with many scornful glances at the Mexican dandies who went so insolently up the stairs. And then, as the refugees retired to their apartments and the spirit of adventure rose uppermost, Phil De Lancey made a dash out into the darkness and came back with a Mexican string band.

"A serenade, boys!" he announced, as the musicians filed sheepishly into the hotel. "Our guests, the fair señoritas, you know! We'll make those young Mexican dudes look like two spots before the war is over. Who's game now for a song beneath the windows? You know the old stand-by—'La Paloma' and 'Teresta Mia'—and you want to listen to me sing 'Me Gustan Todas' to Gracia, the fairest of the fair! Come on, fellows, out in the plaza, and then listen to the old folks cuss!"

They adjourned then, after a drink for courage, to the moonlight and the plaza; and there, beneath the shuttered windows and vacant balconies, the guitars and violins took up "La Paloma," while Phil and a few brave spirits sang.

A silence followed their first attempt, as well as their second and third, and the comisario of police, a mild creature owned and paid by the company, came around and made a few ineffectual protests.

But inside the company's concession, where by common consent the militant rurales kept their hands off, the Americans knew they were safe, and they soon jollied the comisario into taking a drink and departing. Then De Lancey took up the burden, and the string band, hired by the hour, strummed on as if for eternity.

One by one the windows opened; fretful fathers stepped out on the balcony and, bound by the custom and convention of the country, thanked them and bade them good night. But the two windows behind which the Señor Aragon and his family reposed did not open and, though the dwindling band stood directly under their balcony, and all knew that his daughter was the fairest of the fair, Don Cipriano did not wish them good night.

Perhaps he recognized the leading tenor—and the big voice of Bud Hooker, trying to still the riot—but, however it was, he would not speak to them, and De Lancey would not quit.

"Try 'em on American music!" he cried, as everyone but Bud went away in disgust, "the latest rag from Broadway, New York. Here, gimme that guitar, hombre, and listen to this now!"

He picked out a clever bit of syncopation and pitched his voice to a heady twang:

"Down in the garden where the red roses grow,
Oh my, I long to go!
Pluck me like a flower, cuddle me an hour,
Love let me learn the Red Rose Rag!"

There was some swaying to that, and it seemed to make an impression, for just as he was well started on the chorus the slats of one of the shutters parted and a patch of white shone through the spaces. It was the ladies, then, who were getting interested! Phil waived on.

"Sweetest honey-bee, be sweet to me!
My heart is true, but here's the key!"

And then, positively, he could see that patch of white beat time. He took heart of grace at that and sang on to the end, and at a suggestion of clapping in dumb-show he gave an encore and ragged it over again.

"Everybody's doin' it, doin' it, doin' it!" he began, as the shadow dance ceased.

"Honey, I declare, it's a bear, it's a bear, it's a bear!" he continued temptingly, and was well on his way to further extravaganzas, when the figure in white swiftly vanished and a door slammed hard inside the house.

Several minutes later the form of Don Juan appeared at the lower door, and in no uncertain tones he requested them to cease.

"The Señor Aragon informs me," he said, "that your music annoys him."

"Well, let him come to the balcony and say his 'buenas noches,'" answered Phil resentfully.

"The gentleman refuses to do that!" responded Don Juan briefly.

"Then, let him go to bed!" replied De Lancey, strumming a few syncopated chords; "I'm singing to his daughters!"

At that Don Juan came down off the porch in his slippers and they engaged in a protracted argument.

"What, don't I get a word?" demanded Phil grievously, "not a pleasant look from anybody? Sweetest honey-bee, be sweet to me!" he pleaded, turning pathetically to the lady's balcony; and then, with a sudden flourish, a white handkerchief appeared through the crack of the shutters and Gracia waved him good night.

"Enough, Don Juan!" he cried, laying down the guitar with a thump; "this ends our evening's entertainment!"

After paying and thanking the stolid musicians Phil joined Bud and the pair adjourned to their room, where, in the intervals of undressing, Phil

Gracia Waved Him Good-Night.

favoured the occupants of the adjoining apartments with an aria from "Beautiful Doll."

But for all such nights of romance and music there is always a morning afterward; and a fine tenor voice set to ragtime never helped much in the development of a mine. Though Bud had remained loyally by his friend in his evening serenade he, for one, never forgot for a moment that they were in Fortuna to work the Eagle Tail and not to win the hearts of Spanish-Mexican señoritas, no matter how attractive they might be.

Bud was a practical man who, if he ever made love, would doubtless do it in a perfectly businesslike way, without hiring any string bands. But at the same time he was willing to make some concessions.

"Well, go ahead and get your sleep, then," he growled, after trying three times in the morning to get his partner up; "I'm going out to the mine!"

Then, with a saddle-gun under his knee and his six-shooter hung at his hip, he rode rapidly down the road, turning out from time to time to let long cavalcades of mules string by. The dead-eyed arrieros, each with his combined mule-blind and whiplash swinging free, seemed to have very little on their minds but their pack-lashings, and yet they must be three days out from Motezuma.

Their mules, too, were well loaded with the products of the hot country—fanegas of corn in red leather sacks, oranges and fruits in hand-made crates, panoches of sugar in balanced frames, long joints of sugar-cane for the dulce pedlers, and nothing to indicate either haste or flight.

Three times he let long pack-trains go by without a word, and then at last, overcome by curiosity, he inquired about the revoltosos.

"What revoltosos?" queried the old man to whom he spoke.

"Why, the men of Bernardo Bravo," answered Bud; "the men who are marching to take Motezuma."

"When I left Motezuma," returned the old man politely, "all was quiet—there were no revoltosos. Since then, I cannot say."

"But the soldiers!" cried Bud. "Surely you saw them! They were marching to fight the rebels."

"Perhaps so," shrugged the arriero, laying the lash of his topojo across the rump of a mule; "but I know nothing about it."

"No," muttered Bud, as he continued on his way; "and I'll bet nobody else does."

Inquiry showed that in this, too, he was correct. From those who traveled fast and from those who traveled slow he received the same wondering answer—the country might be filled with revoltosos; but, as for them, they knew nothing about it.

Not until he got back to Fortuna and the busy federal telegraph wire did he hear any more news of rapine and bloodshed, and the light which dawned upon him then was gradually dawning upon the whole town.

It was a false alarm, given out for purposes of state and the "higher politics" with which Mexico is cursed, and the most that was ever seen of Bernardo Bravo and his lawless men was twenty miserable creatures, half-starved, but with guns in their hands, who had come down out of the mountains east of Motezuma and killed a few cows for beef.

Thoroughly disgusted, and yet vaguely alarmed at this bit of operative warfare, Bud set himself resolutely to work to hunt up men for their mine, and, as many poor people were out of employment because of the general stagnation of business, he soon had ten Mexicans at his call.

Then, as Phil had dropped out of sight, he ordered supplies at the store and engaged Cruz Mendez—who had spent his fortune in three days—to pack the goods out on his mules.

They were ready to start the next morning if De Lancey could be found to order the powder and tools, and as the afternoon wore on and no Phil appeared, Bud went on a long hunt which finally discovered him in the balcony of their window, making signs in the language of the "bear," as a man who flirts with a woman in Mexico is called.

"Say, Phil," he hailed, disregarding his partner's obvious preoccupation; "break away for a minute and tell me what kind of powder to get to break that schist—the store closes at five o'clock, and—"

He thrust his head out the door as he spoke and paused, abashed. Through the half-closed portal of the next balcony but one he beheld the golden hair of Gracia Aragon, and she fixed her brown eyes upon him with a dazzling, mischievous smile.

"O-ho!" murmured Bud, laying a compelling hand on De Lancey and backing swiftly out of range; "so this is what you're up to—talking signs! But say, Phil," he continued, beckoning him imperiously with a jerk of his head, "I got ten men hired and a lot of grub bought, and if you don't pick out that mining stuff we're going to lose a day. So get the lady to excuse you and come on now."

"In a minute," pleaded Phil, and he went at the end of his allotted time, and perhaps it was the imp of jealousy that put strength into Hooker's arm.

"Well, that's all right," said Bud, as Phil began his laughing excuses; "but you want to remember the Maine, partner—we didn't come down here to play the bear. When they're any love-making to be done I want to be in on it. And you want to remember that you promised me—you said you wouldn't have a thing to do with the Aragon outfit unless I was with you!"

"Why, you aren't—you aren't jealous, are you, Bud?"

"Yes, I'm jealous!" answered Hooker harshly; "jealous as the devil! And I want you to keep that promise, see?"

"Aw, Bud—," began De Lancey incredulously; but Hooker silenced him with a look. Perhaps he was really jealous, or perhaps he only said so to have his way, but Phil saw that he was in earnest, and he went quietly by his side.

But love had set his brain in a whirl, and he thought no more of his promise—only of some subtler way of meeting his inamorata, some way which Bud would fail to see.

CHAPTER XIII.

For sixty days and more, while the weather had been turning from cold to warm and they had been laboring feebly to clear away the great slide of loose rock that covered up the ledge, the Eagle Tail mine had remained a mystery.

Whether, like the old Eagle Tail of frontier fame, it was so rich that only the eagle's head was needed to turn the chunks into twenty-dollar gold pieces; or whether, like many other frontier mines, it was nothing but a hole in the ground, was a matter still to be settled. And Bud, for one, was determined to settle it quickly.

"Come on," he said, as Phil hesitated to open up the way to the lead; "we got a month, maybe less, to get to the bottom of this; and then the hills will be lousy with rebels. If they're nothing here, we want to find out about it quick and skip—and if we strike it, by grab, they ain't enough red-flags in Sonora to pry me loose from it. So show these hombres where to work and we'll be up against rock by the end of the week."

The original Eagle Tail tunnel had been driven into the side of a steep hill; so steep, in fact, that the loose shale stretched in long shoots from the base of the frowning porphyry dikes that crowned the tops of the hills to the bottom of the canyon. On either side of the discovery gulch sharp ridges, perforated by the gopher-holes of the Mexicans and the ancient workings of the Spaniards, ran directly up the hill to meet the contact. But it was against the face of the big ridge itself that Kruger had driven his drift and exploded his giant blast of dynamite, and the whole slope had been altered and covered with a slide of rock.

Against this slide, in the days when they were marking time, Bud and his partner had directed their energies, throwing the loose stones aside, building up walls against the slip, and clearing the way to the solid schist. There, somewhere beneath the jumble of powder-riven rock, lay the ledge which, if they found it, would make them rich; and now with single-jack and drill, they attacked the last huge fragments, blasting them into pieces and groveling deeper until they could strike the contact, where the schist and porphyry met and the gold spray had spewed up between.

Nature as Sculptor.

A really remarkable natural curiosity is the tree known as the "Black Boy," near Tallangatta, Victoria. It gained its name from the curious formation assumed by a portion of the trunk in its process of decay, the likeness to a boy about to make a leap being extraordinary. Owing to its elevated position, this "statue" stands out in quite a startling manner.

Hard Necessity.

Backache Is a Warning Nature always gives fair warning whenever anything is going wrong inside the body. When traces of kidney weakness by an aching back or disordered urination, give the kidneys prompt help and avoid any serious troubles.
Kidney trouble is a dangerous thing, because the kidneys are the blood filter, and weak kidneys soon upset the healthiest system, causing rheumatic attacks, gravel, dropsy and Bright's disease.
Doan's Kidney Pills is a most reliable kidney remedy. Doan's are used successfully all over the civilized world and publicly recommended by thousands of grateful people.

WELL, HE MADE THEM LAUGH
Speaker at Banquet Intended to Be Humorous, and Quite Unconsciously He Was.
Henry returned from the dinner and faced his expectant wife with a proud and smiling face.
"Yes, thank you, my dear," he said,
in answer to her anxious inquiry.
"The dinner was most pleasant, and my speech was the success of the evening."
"What did you say, darling?"
"Oh, well, I can't remember exactly, you know. But until I spoke all the speeches had fallen rather flat, so I thought I would give them a little humor. And I succeeded, too! I had hardly said more than six words when there was a pleased giggle round the huge table. In a few minutes I had them all rolling about with laughter, and when at last I sat down the applause was tremendous—tremendous!"
At this point Henry removed his overcoat.
"I am glad your speech was such a success, dear," answered his wife, dutifully. "But next time you have to speak in public would it not be better to put a waistcoat under your dress-coat, especially when you wear a dickie?"

The Guarantee.
William J. Burns, the famous detective, was talking in New York about the recent dropping of his name
from the honorary list of police chiefs.
"It is easy," Mr. Burns said, "to read the significance of that action.
Its significance is evil. It relates to certain graft exposures on my part.
Yes, its significance is as evil as the clothes' guarantee."
"A young fellow went to a clothier to buy a pair of flannel pants."
"The last pair I got here shrunk," he said. "I was caught in the rain in them and they shrunk something terrible. Do you guarantee that these won't shrink?"
"Young fellow," said the dealer, "I guarantee them up to the hilt. Why, every fire hose in New York but three has shrunk on them pants."

ERUPTION OVER CHILD'S BODY
Route No. 3, Box 67, Little Falls, Minn.—"Our little boy was taken sick with a fever and after the fever he broke out with a sore eruption all over his body. We could get nothing to help him. The sores were large and red and bleeding. They started with blister as if he were burned and when they broke they would bleed and they itched so that he could not sleep for some time. We had him all tied up with bandages and then we had to soak them off every day.
"We bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment which soon gave him relief. Now he is as well as can be for in three weeks
he was all healed by the Cuticura
Soap and Ointment." (Signed) George Wolters, Jan. 29, 1914.
Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold

A Louisville man tells of an incident during the sessions held in his city of a Sunday school convention with delegates from all the states. In answer to the roll-call of the states reports were verbally given by the various state chairmen. When Texas was called a big man stepped into the aisle
and in stentorian tones exclaimed:
"We represent the imperial state of Texas. The first white woman born in Texas is still living—she has now
a population of over three million."
Whereupon a voice from the gallery cried out in clarion tones: "Send that woman to Idaho—we need her."

here Wednesday morning concedes that the Germans have taken the forts of Liege. It was rumored that the Belgians dynamited them after a heroic and long resistance against six German army corps the Belgians gave up only when their forts had been pounded into ruins by the artillery of the enemy.
The German advance is reported slowly driving the Belgian outposts back on the main allied army at several points along the main line of battle. There has been almost continuous fighting, although a strict censorship has kept all information of the results from the public. The war office has made only one announcement.
That was a statement that the German troops fronting the northern Belgian line have taken up strongly intrenched positions and that German cavalry patrols have been sighted from the Antwerp fortifications north of that city.
Thousands of persons fled Tuesday to Antwerp and other coast cities in fear of an attack by the Germans.
The machinery of the government has been transferred to Antwerp.
Queen Elizabeth and her two children have already gone to Antwerp, and if the German advance against that city becomes too menacing she will probably take refuge in England.
According to an announcement from a Belgian source a German force is said to have been caught between the French cavalry and a Belgian column, which was engaged in a northward movement from Namur. The German losses were said to be heavy, due to the stubborn fighting qualities of the Uhlans, who charged repeatedly against superior forces.
The flying squadron of the Germans,
which is moving toward Brussels, consists of Uhlans and rapid-fire guns mounted on motor trucks.
The Germans have established protecting lines to prevent their advancing army from being cut off from its base at Liege.
Fighting is also reported from the vicinity of Melvert where, Sunday, a Belgian regiment fought for four hours against the Eighteenth German Hussars, who are said to have lost a large number of men.
Claim Success in Alsace.
Paris—Pressing rapidly forward through Alsace-Lorraine in the general direction of Strassburg, the French advance was reported Tuesday as overcoming a determined general German resistance. French cavalry, supported strongly by artillery and motorcycle detachments, are sweeping the Germans back to the north and east toward the Rhine valley. The official bulletin, issued from the war office
early Tuesday, said:
"The French advance continues steadily driving the enemy before it in the general direction of Strassburg.
The Germans are retreating in great disorder, the steady advance of the French being so methodical and rapid that no opportunity is afforded the enemy of reform. The Germans are abandoning huge quantities of war materials, including artillery, ammunition and commissary supplies, which are being taken possession of by the French forces. Many prisoners are being taken, including deserters."

German Position Strong.
As the French advance they are throwing up fortifications of fallen trees and earthworks on which they can fall back.
The tremendous strength of the German position at Strassburg is not underestimated by the French general staff. The Germans believe that the defensive works at Strassburg are impregnable. The city is surrounded by a circle of 14 of the strongest fortresses in the German empire, having inner ramparts. All of the approaches to the city can be flooded.
Strassburg lies two miles west of the Rhine, on the River Ill, and a heavy German force of infantry and cavalry, supported by reserve artillery is massed there. A flying squadron

BRIEF NOTES OF WAR
Paris—The allied governments opposed to Germany and Austria-Hungary have agreed to bring Turkey to a realization of its obligations as a neutral power in connection with her purchase from Germany of the cruisers Goeben and Breslau.

of cavalry has approached within 10 miles of Strassburg, according to the claims of the French military authorities, feeling the way for the advance of the army of invasion. The main advance of the French is along the valley of the Bruche.
Troops to Aid Montenegro.
The French troops which formed part of the international forces in the new kingdom of Albania, were ordered to proceed from Scutari to Cettinje to assist in the protection of Montenegro territory. Their presence at Cettinje will permit the departure of the Montenegrin troops to assist the Servians in their invasion of Austria.
The black and golden eagle of the One Hundred and Thirty-second lower Alsatian infantry regiment of the German army, which was captured by the French at Saint Blaise, Alsace, was hung before the statue of Napoleon in the court of honor of the Invalides. It was placed there with much ceremony after being brought from the court yard of the presidential palace.
A company of the republican guards escorted the silk standard, which was carried through the Avenue Marguy, the Avenue Nicholas II, and across the bridge of Alexander III. A band played the "Marseillaise," and many spectators as the flag appeared, removed their hats as a salute to the vanquished.
Russians Claim Victories.
St. Petersburg—The Russian cavalry is in action along miles of the Prussian and Austrian frontiers. The entire cavalry forces of the nation have been pushed to the front to prevent raids by either the Germans or the Austrians while the infantry was being mobilized. As a result, it is stated that there have been numerous skirmishes and heavy losses were sustained by the enemy, but that none of them has assumed the importance of a general engagement.
An official statement issued by the war office Tuesday declared: "The German frontier has been crossed by forces of the czar in at least six different places. Small German forces were driven back and several hundred prisoners taken."
Meanwhile the mobilization for all practical purposes is completed. En route to Moscow, the czar, who left the capital August 12, was greeted everywhere with outbursts of patriotic enthusiasm. It is stated here that he plans to go to the front as soon as it shall be determined where he can best serve the nation.
Japan Sends Ultimatum.
Tokio—The Japanese government sent an ultimatum to Germany Sunday night demanding that German warships in the far east be withdrawn or dismantled, and that the Germanleased colony of Kiau-Chau be surrendered.
The ultimatum expires next Sunday, giving Germany just one week in which to send her reply to the Tokio government. If Germany within this week of grace does not accede to the Japanese demands, the Japanese government will take such steps as it sees fit.
Paris—Ambassador Herrick has personally guaranteed the expenses of the full accommodations of the French line steamships Rochambeau and Espagne, for the carrying home of stranded Americans.
London—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily News reports that dispatches from Antwerp say that an anti-German mob set fire to a German ship in the harbor at Antwerp. After it was destroyed the mob pillaged another German vessel.
Trieste, Austria—It is officially announced that the Lloyd-Austrian merchant liner Baron Gautsch struck a floating mine off Lussin, Dalmatia, and was destroyed. Twenty of the crew were killed and the remainder, 130, were saved.

WILSON TO AMERICANS
President Issues Statement
Concerning War
Asks That Citizens Maintain Attitude of Fairness and Friendliness.
Washington—"Addressing my countrymen," President Wilson Tuesday issued a long statement calling upon citizens of the United States to confine their speech to the spirit of strict neutrality—which he defined as the spirit of impartiality and fairness—in the European war situation.
The president's statement follows:
"My fellow countrymen:
"I suppose that every thoughtful man in America has asked himself during these last troubled weeks what influence the European war may exert upon the United States, and I take the liberty of addressing a few words to you in order to point out that it is entirely within our choice what its effects upon us will be, and to urge very earnestly upon you the sort of speech and conduct which will best safeguard the nation against depression and disaster.
"The effect of the war upon the United States will depend upon what American citizens say and do. Every man who really loves America will act and speak in the true spirit of neutrality, which is the spirit of impartiality and fairness and friendliness to all concerned. The spirit of the nation in this critical matter will be determined largely by what individuals and society and those gathered in public meetings do and say, upon what newspapers and magazines contain, upon what ministers utter in their pulpits, and men proclaim as their opinions on the street.
"The people of the United States are drawn from many nations and chiefly from the nations now at war.
It is natural and inevitable that there should be the utmost variety of sympathy and desire among them with regard to the issues and circumstances of the conflict. Some will wish one nation, others another, to succeed in the momentous struggle.
It will be easy to excite passion and difficult to allay it. Those responsible for exciting it will assume a heavy responsibility, responsibility for no less a thing than that the people of the United States, whose love for their country and whose loyalty to its government should unite them as Americans. All, bound in honor and effection to think first of her and her interests, may be divided in camps of hostile opinion, hot against each other,
involved in the war itself, in impulse and opinion if not in action.
Such divisions amongst us would be fatal to our peace of mind and might seriously stand in the way of the proper performance of our duty as the one great nation at peace, the one people holding itself ready to play a part of impartial mediation and speak the counsels of peace and accommodation, not as a partisan, but as a friend.
"I venture, therefore, my fellow countrymen, to speak a solemn word of warning to you against that deepest, most subtle, most essential breach of neutrality which may spring out of partisanship and of passionately taking sides.
"The United States must be neutral
in that fact as well as in name during these days that are to try men's souls. We must be impartial in thought as well as in action, must put a curb upon our sentiments as well as upon every transaction that might be construed as a preference of one party to the struggle before another.
"My thought is of America. I am speaking, I feel sure, the earnest wish and purpose of every thoughtful American that this great country of ours, which is, of course, the first in our thoughts, and in our hearts, should show herself in this time of peculiar trial a nation fit beyond others to exhibit the fine poise of undisturbed judgment, the dignity of self-control, the efficiency of dispassionate action; a nation that neither sits in judgment upon others nor is disturbed in her own counsels and which keeps herself fit and free to do what is honest, and disinterested and truly serviceable for the peace of the world.
"Shall we not resolve to put upon ourselves the restraints which will bring to our people the happiness and the great and lasting influence for peace we covet for them?"

Washington—The United States government announced itself Saturday as opposed to the floating of loans in this country for the benefit of any of the belligerent powers of Europe.
Switzerland, a neutral country, inquired through her charge d'affaires if she might float a loan in the United States and was informed that the restriction would not apply to neutral countries.
Paris—The war has stopped the sale of absinthe in Paris. The prohibition societies for years have fought the sale of absinthe in vain.
Paris—The Dutch government Friday officially gave the French government renewed assurance of its neutrality in the present conflict and of its firm intention to make it respected.
The Dutch army, it was pointed out,
is well trained and well officered and would strongly resist any attempt to enter its territory.
