BROKE HIS WRIST.
Everet Benton, who works for Timothy Orlane, of Lima, was thrown from a horse and his right wrist was broken. The accident happened about one o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Benton was on his way to the home of J. J. Wood to assist in threshing and when he arrived opposite of the pasture lot where the horse was usually turned out the animal made a sudden bolt for the gate and the young man was thrown to the ground. Otto D. Luck brought the young man to Chelsea in his auto and he was taken to the office of Dr. S. G. Bush where the fracture was reduced. The young man was taken to the home of his father, W. H. Benton, from the physician's office.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Happenings in Chelsea Forty Years Ago This Week.

Townsend & Dixon formed a partnership in the boot and shoe business and opened a store next to Winans drug store.

Last Thursday the residence of Wm. BeGole caught fire at the northwest corner of the house. John Greening discovered the fire in time to prevent serious damages.

An old land mark is gone. The old building occupied by Mr. Leach as a boot and shoe store has been removed to make room for the erection of Mr. Brockway's brick block.

The picnic held by the German Workingmen's Association at the Chelsea fair grounds last Thursday was attended by 500 persons. The society realized $50 after paying all expenses.

Death Was a Natural One.

Coroner Clark, of Ann Arbor, held an inquest over the cause of the sudden death of Melvin Scripser, at the Lyndon town hall last Friday evening. The witnesses were examined by Prosecuting Attorney Bourke and about sixty persons were present.

The jury consisted of James Howlett, A. J. Greening, Samuel Boyce, John Youngs, H. Stoffer and Chas. Clark. From the testimony of a number of witnesses, it was gleaned that Lewis Scripser was at the home of Silas Young when his brother, Melvin appeared and began upbraiding him. Lewis refused to do what his brother desired and a heated argument ensued. It was then that the two brothers drew back to fight it out, a slight scuffle ensuing. Almost as soon as Silas Young had stepped between the two brothers, Melvin fell to the ground and gasped. He was dead almost before any one could rise him from the ground.

A number of Chelsea physicians had made preliminary examinations of the body and failed to find any traces of bruises or wounds.

The jury found that Melvin Scripser died as the result of heart disease, basing its verdict practically on the evidence of Dr. J. T. Woods, who had seen the body half an hour following death, and who testified that the dead man was suffering from mitral insufficiency of the heart, by which the medical profession designates the weakness of the valve between the auricle and the left ventricle of the heart.

Notten Family Reunion.

The third annual reunion of the Notten family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schwertfuth, of Sylvan, on Saturday, August 22. The forenoon was given over to a social visit by the members of the family. At noon a bounteous dinner was served to about 180 persons.

After the dinner hour the following program was carried out:

At the election of officers for the coming year Ehler Notten was chosen president, and Mrs. Erle Notten secretary. The reunion will be held next year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Notten.

Members of the family were present from California and many places in this state. The occasion was a very enjoyable one.

Family Reunion.

The members of the Hoppe family held a family reunion at Crooked Lake last Thursday. The guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Block and Miss Florence Hoppe of New York City. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hoppe and family, Mr. and Mrs. Manfred Hoppe and family, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Page and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Riemenschneider and family, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Killmer and family, Miss Josephine Hoppe, August Hoppe, Otto Hoppe, of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. J. Hauer, of Woodland. The event was a very enjoyable one.

BRIDGEWATER—L. Brewer, who with his grandmother, Mrs. P. A. Brewer, left for Maple Rapids last spring, has stood high enough in his examinations so that the state will pay his expenses at the state fair, he being the only boy to be sent thus from Clinton county.

MERCHANTS STUNG

Cashed Fraudulent Checks in Jackson Tuesday of This Week.

Jackson Patriot: "Three Jackson merchants were victimized Tuesday on the boldest and most profitable bad check game worked in Jackson in years. The firms of Leonard Belfel, Starr Hardware company, and Art Furniture company, were swindled. Amounts varying from $20 to $42.75 were secured. The total profits of the three worthless checks was about $97. The police are making an especially thorough effort to apprehend the forger."

"All three stores, the game was worked in the same way. The stranger bought a bill of goods and presented checks for about $75 in payment, receiving change. When an attempt was made to deliver the goods it was found the deal was a fraudulent one."

"The stranger represented himself to be A. C. Martin, 110 East Franklin street. The checks which he presented were drawn on the Kempf Commercial & Savings Bank of Chelsea. They were supposed to be signed by Carl H. Pelton and were drawn in favor of A. C. Martin. The checks bore date of August 24."

"At the stores at which he called, the stranger bought stoves and furniture. When he completed his purchases, after a cool examination of the goods, he presented checks, which seemed to be genuine. He ordered the goods delivered to 110 East Franklin street, and received change at the three stores as follows: L. Belfel, $20 in change; Starr Hardware company $34.50; and Art Furniture company, $42.75."

"It is thought the clerks who waited on the man presumed him to be A. C. Martin, a Michigan Central conductor, who once lived at 110 East Franklin street, but who has resided at 311 South Mechanic street of late. Not until an attempt was made to deliver the goods was it discovered the paper which was recognized, was bad."

"The police have secured a description of the man as follows: Five feet ten inches tall; weight, 185 pounds; smooth shaven; slightly sunken cheeks; medium complexion and dark hair. He wore an ordinary sailor hat, with black bow and dark blue suit with no vest. The man is thought to be about 35 years old. He may be the same man who worked a similar deal on several large firms in Grand Rapids Monday. As in Jackson, the man secured about $100 in his day's work in Grand Rapids."

The officials of the Kempf Commercial & Savings Bank informs the Standard that the men whose names appear on the checks have no account with the bank. A man who answers the police description was seen about the streets of Chelsea early Tuesday morning.

Chief of Police Benjamin E. Chase and W. C. Starr of Jackson were in Chelsea Wednesday with one of the fraudulent checks that had been passed at the Starr hardware. The man who passed the check claimed that he had sold his horse in Chelsea on Monday. As a matter of fact a man answering the exact description of the check passer did arrive in Chelsea Monday night, about 9:30 o'clock and registered at one of the local hotels where he spent the night and took breakfast. He paid his bill and disappeared. The signature on the hotel register is an exact counterpart of the one on the checks that was passed. The man spent nearly half an hour in one of the business places here. It is supposed that the man left here on the 8:10 electric car for Jackson.

The Coe Family Reunion.

The seventh annual reunion of the Coe family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Robards, of Lima, on Saturday, August 15. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Bartholomew, Miss Jennie and Walter Bartholomew, of Geneseo, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and grandson, Leon, of Mt. Morris, N. Y., Harold Coe, of Perry, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Coe and family, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Coe and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Koch and daughter and Henry Pierce, of Lima.

After a very scrumptious dinner the regular business meeting of the society was held. It was decided that the next meeting would be held July 4, 1915, in the state of New York. G. W. Coe, of Lima, was re-elected president of the society for the sixth time, Charles Coe, of Perry, N. Y., vice president, and Mrs. Martin Sayles, of Arkport, N. Y., secretary and treasurer.

The program, which had been arranged by Maude A. Coe, and was in the nature of a living newspaper called the "Coe Family Gazette," edited by members of the society was as follows:

GERMAN WAR BOOK IS AID TO FOES

Take Advantage of Bernhardt's Strategy Treatise.

WATCH OUTFLANKING MOVES

Teutonic Principle is to Attack All the Time With Superior Force and "Overlap"—Stories of Refugees.

London.—There is the best reason for believing that the Anglo-Franco-Belgian armies will take full advantage of the candid exposition of German military strategy contained in the book written by General Bernhardt of Berlin, writes Edward P. Bell to the Chicago News. The German principle, according to this authority is to attack all the time in superior strength and always to "overlap." In other words, the Germans, said General Bernhardt, when the war with France came, would hurl themselves with irresistible force against certain points in the French line of defense and at the same time outflank the enemy on the north and south.

Allies Watch Flank Moves.

The allies are especially vigilant in watching for these outflanking or enveloping movements. They have every confidence that their center of defense is proof against any assault however formidable. The allies expect to stand firm against the invaders, permitting them to break wave on wave against the line of forts, guns, rifles and machine guns until they are seriously shattered and wasted and until the Russians demand attention on the east.

Then the defensive armies expect to issue from their trenches, earthworks, and mountain covers and take the offensive. The object of this offensive will be to seize sufficient territory to compel the Germans, hard pressed as they are expected to be by the Russians, to conclude a peace which will be regarded by the democratic nations as safeguarding Europe from the perils most of us had to rent the cheapest kind of rooms and buy food in the shops, thus living on a few cents a day. The Germans seized Verviers, suppressed the newspapers and subjected the inhabitants to strict control. Every window facing the street had to be closed. The houses were shut and in the evening nobody was allowed on the streets.

Prevented From Leaving the City.

For many days every one was prevented from leaving the city. Horses, automobiles and every other means of conveyance were appropriated by the Germans unless the owners could show credentials from the German army. The Belgian citizens were reduced to a state of terror. Cannonading began at noon, August 4, and was incessant day and night, rain or shine. Houses trembled, windows rattled and at first it was impossible to sleep because of the noise. Afterward we got quite used to the uproar.

"I saw 2,000 or 3,000 Belgian prisoners marched through the streets of Verviers and it was pitiful to watch the crowds of relatives, fathers, mothers, wives and sweethearts running beside the prisoners trying to throw bread and cigars to them. The captives were not given time to catch the gifts, but were ruthlessly hurried on by the German soldiers. We Americans sympathized heartily with the Belgians. Persons who had escaped from Liege told us that the Germans had taken three forts, caused a small fire in the city and captured 3,500 prisoners.

Citizens Shot at Liege.

"August 14 a party consisting of two other Americans, myself and two Englishmen and a Frenchman obtained from the German commandant passes to return to Herbesthal on the way to Aix la Chapelle. Armed with these, we attempted to get a conveyance to the German frontier, but the cab drivers were so terrified that we tried five different men before we found one with sufficient nerve to take us. Even then I was compelled to conduct the driver to the German commander to get a paper guaranteeing the safety of the cabman, his horse and his vehicle. Our horse was so old that we had to walk up the hills. The age of the beast, the driver said, was the only thing that kept the Germans from taking it.

"While we were in Liege several citizens were shot because of remarks they made to German officers and sol-

GERMAN SPY SIGNS IN FRANCE

German spies placed posters in many French towns, the placards ostensibly advertising a soup preparation, but actually telling, by their color and form, the conditions which an invading army would encounter at each place. French troops are here seen passing a building on which is one of these posters.

Flint.—A cablegram received states that Mr. and Mrs. John J. Carlton and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Whiting of this city, who have been detained in England by the war, have taken passage from Liverpool for New York on the steamship Adriatic.

Jackson.—By buying a carload of sugar before the war scare raised became effective, Michigan state prison officials saved the state $1,350. The sugar will be used for canning purposes.

Lapeer.—Damages amounting to more than twelve thousand nine hundred dollars was done in Lapeer county by a heavy electrical storm which destroyed five barns and two houses.

Grand Rapids.—Moses Taggart, aged seventy-two years, for many years city attorney, died at his summer home on White Lake. Mr. Taggart was elected attorney general in 1884 and served two terms. He had been in poor health for several years.

Ann Arbor.—Carrie Bischoff, seventeen years old and rather pretty, has disappeared from her home, and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Bischoff, is almost distracted. The girl was last seen on Thayer street, talking to two young men, who sat in a large touring car.

Kalamazoo.—A herd of cattle from the asylum farm broke out and invaded the city. For nearly two hours the cattle trampled over lawns and gardens before rounded up and returned to the asylum. "In the south end of the city where the stock ran wild, the streets for a time were almost deserted.

Lansing.—Attorney General Fellows rendered an opinion to the effect that the money accruing to the state from the National Cash Register company's fine went into the general fund of the state. The opinion was made necessary by demands from several of the institutions of the state for the money for their use.

Calumet.—The state health train was wrecked at Laurium when the train ran over an unlocked switch. Part of the train ran on the main track, the balance taking the siding. Two cars were derailed and plowed up the roadbed for a hundred yards. The Pullman in which the state officials were riding remained on the track. The passengers were severely shaken up, but nobody was hurt.

Kalamazoo.—Just as little seven-year-old Gretchen Pearce was about to be carried into the flume of the mill at Augusta, Harold Read jumped into the race and saved the girl from sure death, although in the rescue both nearly lost their lives. As the two struggling in the water reached the flume, Read was able to grab on to an iron rod until a rope was thrown to him.

Port Huron.—An Austrian giving his name as Jacob Otiote, who is in jail at Sarnia, is to be turned over to the military authorities as a spy. The Austrian was found in the yards of the Imperial Oil company at Sarnia. He stated that he had come to Sarnia from the Welland canal, but later changed his story. Two foreigners who called to see him made their escape before they could be detained. Otiote will be examined by the Canadian military authorities.

Ironwood.—The first potato congress ever held in the upper peninsula will be staged at Menominee on October 21-23, according to announcement made here by Col. Charles W. Mott, general manager of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau. Business men of Menominee have pledged more than five hundred dollars, and a like amount will be donated by the county, the total to be distributed as cash prizes. The only restriction that will be placed upon exhibitors will be that the products offered for exhibit be grown in the upper peninsula and grouped in bushels. All exhibits will become the property of the committees in charge at the termination of the congress.

Ann Arbor.—Bishop E. D. Kelly received a letter from Fr. Frank Kennedy of Ypsilanti, who has been abroad for several months. Father Kennedy, with Father Hally of Wyandotte and Father Glemet of River Rouge, was at Madrid, Spain, when the letter was written, August 5, but they expected to sail for Barcelona before the last of August. "That is," explained Bishop Kelly, "they will sail if their money holds out. You see their American express checks are all discounted about twenty-five per cent, and this, added to the increased cost of everything over there since the war started, makes it rather uncertain as to whether they will have money enough to reach the ship when it does sail. They were all well when the letter was written and seemed to be in good spirits, despite the fact of the war."

Alpena.—Alpena authorities have received word from Mrs. Ethel Kellogg of Detroit that her husband, from whom she was divorced some time ago, the father of Pearl Kellogg McMillan, the mystery girl, who was found dead in the McMillan home in March and for whose death Ephraim McMillan, foster father, is serving time in Jackson prison on a charge of manslaughter, had committed suicide in a small town in Saskatchewan. "Worry and brooding over the untimely death of his daughter is responsible for the father taking his own life. Menominee.—Second drowning with

DAIRY

CUTTING FEED FOR THE CALF

Kafir and Corn Thoroughly Mixed by Use of Device and Youngsters Cleaned Up Mixture.

I bought 24 calves last summer which I put in my feed lot on August 15. Some of these calves had been on pasture with their mothers, others had been handfed, and it was quite a problem to get them used to a change of feed. The feed I had for these calves was green corn, kafir and prairie hay. I soon found there was too much waste in hauling this feed into the lot and allowing them to do their own picking, writes J. K. Welch of Eureka, Kan., in Farmers Mail and Breeze. I then went to my work shop and made the feed cutter illustrated. The body is made of a 1 by 12 inch board four feet long, with sides of 1 by 6 inch pieces. One leg was used at the back end and two in front, the latter extending eight inches above the frame.

The knife lever was bolted to the top of the left leg to allow using the right hand for cutting. The knife was made of a short piece of crosscut saw blade 14 inches long. This knife cuts square across the end of the box. With this machine one man could cut up enough feed for the 24 calves in from three to five minutes. The feed was cut up in one-half to one inch lengths and fed in troughs. Kafir and corn were thoroughly mixed in cutting and the calves cleaned up the mixture without waste. They had this green feed until frost killed it, and did well on it.

SUMMERTIME DAIRY RATION

By Supplying Supplemental Feeds Each Pasture Will Satisfy Greater Number of Cows.

(By M. ALBRECHT.) By feeding the cows well during the summer, we have many points to be considered.

Each pasture lot will keep a greater number of cows in prime condition and profitably. The pasture land will not deteriorate in value as it would if overstocked.

We consider that the cows that are kept in excellent shape throughout the summer months by supplying them with both grass and dry rations will not consume such a large quantity of either as they would if fed on a single ration of grass.

When winter feeding sets in the cows will have become more thoroughly accustomed to eating grain and roughage and there will need to be no change in the feeding—just a slight increase in the quantity with no bad effects brought on as is usually the case when the change of feed is made from grass to heavier rations.

Highest Colored Butter.

Green grass is probably richer in carotin than any other dairy feed. Cows fed on it will therefore produce the highest colored butter. Green corn, in which xanthophylls constitute the chief pigment, will also produce a highly colored product. On the other hand, a ration of bleached clover hay and yellow corn is practically devoid of yellow pigments and the milk from cows fed upon it will gradually lose its color. It is, of course, indisputably true that the breed does influence the color of the milk fat; but vary the ration and there will be a corresponding variation in the color of the milk fat in each breed.

Cutting Corn for Silo.

Corn for the silo can be cut either by hand or by machine. Hand cutting is practiced on farms where the amount of corn to be harvested is so small as to make the expense of purchasing a corn harvester too great to justify its use. Hand cutting is slow and few localities now where the purchase of a harvester would not be a profitable investment.

Strict Rules for Feeding.

Ironclad directions for feeding cows cannot be given. In general, however, they should be supplied with all the roughage they will clean up with grain in proportion to butter fat produced.

Chased by Boy and Dog.

The evenings are warm enough to cause the cow's blood to surge toward fever heat while she is being driven up by a thoughtless boy and a worthless dog.

GERMAN SIGNAL CORPS AT WORK

of an aggressive war for at least a century.

Even if the Germans break through the line of the allies or turn it on the north or the south they will not find the roads to Paris unobstructed. The allies are not likely to put all their money on one card, strong though that card may be. The roads to Paris are guarded by growing forces which at present will not take any part in the fighting. The battle line from Holland to Switzerland is merely the first barrier the Germans must clear.

Chicagoan Tells of Trip.

Louis A. Dumond, the Chicago municipal investigator, has reached London after a fortnight of interesting and severe experiences in Germany and Belgium.

"August 3, while I was in Hamburg, the army began to mobilize," said Mr. Dumond. "Troop trains were running in all directions and the regular schedules were reduced hourly. The American consul advised me to leave immediately and escape to London by way of Belgium. I left Hamburg the same afternoon and was due on the Belgian frontier at 12:30 a. m. The train was delayed at every station and at Cologne we were forced to wait two hours. We reached the German frontier town of Herbesthal at ten o'clock the next morning.

"There we found that the Germans had violated the neutrality of Belgium and were marching in the direction of Liege. The Belgians had destroyed the railroad from Herbesthal to Verviers, which place I managed to reach. The trains had stopped running and it was impossible to return to Germany, as Americans had been ordered to leave that country.

Says Roads Were Blocked.

"I made numerous attempts to get through Liege ahead of the German army, but was unsuccessful, either because the roads were blocked or I was turned back by German bayonets. The banks were closed and no shops, hotels or business men would cash checks, recognize letters of credit or trust any one. English and American travelers had little Belgian money and diers. Apart from this the Germans appeared to treat the citizens well and paid for their supplies. The larger portion of the population who work in the woolen mills are reduced almost to starvation. The Germans buy most of the meat, bread and other supplies, and no supplies can be brought in from the outside.

"At Herbesthal we were searched and examined by German officers, and were then allowed to take a military train to Aix la Chapelle, from which place we got a cab to the Dutch frontier. At the village of Baaz they told us that we could get a train to Maastrecht. On arriving there we found the Dutch army mobilized, practically all the trains used for soldiers and the main roads and bridges blockaded to resist an army of 150,000 German soldiers just outside.

"We deemed it inadvisable to wait at Maastrecht for a possible train, and the next day we hired an automobile. This broke down at ten o'clock that night. The chauffeur worked frantically two hours to repair the machine, but at midnight announced that it was impossible to run on account of a flat tire. Finally he consented to go on.

"At 4 a. m. we were still twelve miles from Helder, whither we were going. The chauffeur stopped in the village of Durne. He refused to budge and left us stranded in the middle of the road while he roused nearly every one in the village in search of a horse and carriage. He returned in an hour or so and announced that it was impossible to reach Helder, and that we must spend the night in Durne. The next morning we got a train from Durne to Rotterdam. We found that city flooded with Americans from all parts of Europe, most of them possessed of only the clothes they were wearing. The next morning we caught a train to Flushing, and thence came on a crowded boat to England.

"German officers in Liege assured us that they had captured the forts driven the Russians back on the eastern frontier and would be in Paris in two weeks.

White Women Among Cannibals

IF YOU were a woman rich enough to live wherever you wanted to live, to go wherever you wanted to go and to do whatever you wanted to do, would you choose to go alone into Darkest Africa, and to strike up acquaintance with cannibals?

Yet this is what Mrs. Marguerite Roby did, because she loves adventure and was "inoculated" with the longing for traveling in strange places.

Maybe you might fancy some wild experiment if you had with you a white companion, man or woman. Or if you went into the jungle you might, if you were a woman, fancy the comfort of a native woman companion.

But Mrs. Roby chose for her guides and followers simply the black men of the trackless African country, and in departing had so won the affection of the natives that they wanted to have her as queen of the Congo.

Recovering from an attack of blackwater fever, the result of her recent explorations, Mrs. Roby talked entertainingly of her unusual voyages and some of the queer experiences she had in the course of an 8,000-mile tramp through the largely unexplored and mostly cannibal Kasai country in the lower Congo region of Africa, with only the natives for companions. Mrs. Roby was in New York for eight weeks on her way to the seashore.

"I suppose," she said, "it does take courage—mental as well as physical—to sit all night, as I have, back to back with the negro boy, each well armed with rifles, in an endeavor to quell a mutiny; to be days at a time without the sight of a white person; to travel through the districts infested with sleeping sickness—whole villages were practically wiped out with this dreadful scourge—to have your eating and drinking supplies stolen in the depths of the wilderness; to face the incredible loneliness of the jungle trail tribes, and he acted as my interpreter throughout the trip.

"The responsibility of providing food depended largely upon me. Salt and beads, given the natives, would get us food occasionally, but as a rule I had to 'shoot' our supper. Fortunately there is a bountiful supply of game in Africa, which simplified our provisioning.

"My carriers deserted one day at a point between two warring villages, leaving me alone with my interpreter. The village we were making for was inhabited by cannibals, whose chief had a habit of either eating or making slaves of all the other natives who had the temerity to approach his ballwick. As I approached I feigned not to see him, but kept my gaze on the sky, watching some birds winging by. Then picking up my gun, I fired, and the birds began dropping all around us. This had the desired effect of impressing him, as I hoped it would, and he became very friendly, promising me food for my followers and myself—a very special kind of meat. Imagine my horror when a few minutes later I saw two men carrying the leg of a black man they had killed the day previous and were then using for food.

Shoots Big Game.

"The greatest danger," continued Mrs. Roby, "is not from native treachery or even violence, but from the wild beasts, which infest the camps."

Big and little game she shot in profusion, and laughs at the assumption of hunters that any great prestige is attached to anything so simple as shooting big game.

"The attention I received in many of the villages was of a remarkable order. Many of the inhabitants had never seen a white woman before, and on my arrival they gathered around me, examined my dress, stroked my hair and patted my hands. I had to wear my hair in a plait down my back,

School Dress Adorned With Smocking

NOW that mothers are looking about for something novel, or at least for some new touches in school dresses for little girls, the return to fashion of smocking will be welcome. Light dresses of woolen fabrics must be prepared for the cool days of autumn when the little miss begins another year in the schoolroom. Smocking is a form of needlework easily done and especially appropriate to children's clothes. By means of it little garments can be shaped and held in to the figure at the necessary positions. It is not adapted to wash fabrics, but is especially effective on lightweight woollens.

A little dress is pictured here well designed for little girls from eight to thirteen years old. It is fuller in the skirt and sleeves than the majority of dresses designed for such youthful misses. The fullness is provided by smocking and tucks laid in the material. In addition to these there are single box plaits outlining a panel in the back and front, and on the underarm seams. These plaits extend to the band of smocking which heads the short skirt. The panels are finished with a band of smocking at the neck and another across the breast. Midway between these two bands a single row of smocking forms the material into two puffs. These puffs are further decorated with small French knots.

The body of the dress is adjusted to the figure also by parallel tucks on each side of the panels. They extend from the shoulder to the normal waist line. The bottom of the skirt is finished with a group of narrow tucks, six in number, above the hem.

The shoulders are long, dropping over the top of the sleeves. The sleeves are somewhat longer than three-quarter length, with their ample fullness confined at the bottom by a band of smocking and a plain cuff of the same fabric as the dress.

With this dress is worn a round collar of val lace and organdie. Small cuffs to match are placed over the bands on the sleeves.

There is nothing so appropriate for decorating children's clothes as needlework, and the return to favor of old-fashioned smocking, which is easily done, introduces a welcome new feature in fall dresses for little girls.

Two Pretty and Popular Neckpieces

THE liking for the flaring collar has resulted in many modifications of the original design patterned after the medic collar. Combinations of the flaring collar and small vestee made of organdie, lace, or net are endless in variety. Then there are the combinations of the flaring collar and revers to be worn with blouses or coats. In many of these only the back of the collar has been left, the flare at the sides being dispensed with. With the advance of the season this particular development of the medic collar has increased its popularity.

In the picture a neckpiece with the back flare and revers is shown made of organdie, trimmed with Valenciennes edging. It is decorated with two rows of hem-stitching, one of them fastening the lace to the organdie. The collar is supported by four very fine wires at the back, and the revers show a decoration of tiny covered buttons at one side. This is a dainty and easily laundered neckpiece which will give an up-to-date touch to the blouse or little coat with which it is worn.

A vestee of net, finished with plaited ruffles, one of which forms the standing collar, is shown in the second design. It is held in place about the waist with an elastic band, and fastens down the front with clasps concealed under small covered buttons. The short ruffle designed to stand up about the neck is supported by collar stays of wire.

This vestee is to be worn under blouses of silk or other material in one-piece dresses, and is very useful for the summer tourist for freshening her traveling gown and supplying a touch of white at the throat.

COOL AND HANDY GARMENT

Envelope Chemise Has Much to Recommend It Especially During the Hot Weather.

Never was a handier little garment designed than the envelope chemise, and certainly there was never a bit of underwear more comfortable. They are so easily made, too. If you never made a garment before, you can make an envelope chemise. Get a simple paper pattern and you will need no other guide or advice. You may either tuck the yoke of the chemise or embroider it. If the chemise is of white crepe, it is well to embroider it, for the tucks would need ironing, whereas, with the crepe embroidered, it is possible to wear the garment without ironing. If you wish an elaborate undergarment, a strip of hand embroidery can be worked all the way down the front, but for the simpler garment a spray of some small flower is sufficient across the upper part of the front.

In very hot weather the envelope chemise will not act as drawers, petticoat and corset cover, serving as three garments in one. Besides, the combination drawer and petticoat idea is delightfully cool. In cooler weather the envelope chemise can be worn over a knitted union suit.

WASHINGTON CITY SIDELIGHTS

Washington and Boston Connected by a Subway

WASHINGTON.—At last Washington and Boston are connected by a subway. That is rather startling, is it not? A very few knew such a project was under way. It is not a great big tunnel, however, and is not designed for passengers and freight, but is for the telephone lines between these two cities and the hundreds of intermediate points.

The crying necessity for this subway was emphasized at the time of the inauguration of President Taft in 1909 when the national capital was cut off from communication with the outside world for several hours by a severe sleet storm. The interruption in the service caused the telephone companies a heavy loss in revenues as well as in expenses for repairs, and plans were made during those awful hours for just exactly such a subway as is now being completed.

It has been found much cheaper to dig a trench for the wires than to string them over a line of poles, and the economy has been emphasized by the shortage of timber suitable for telephone poles, and then the very great advantage is that service can never be interrupted by storms as the overhead wires are. It is said that along each cable it is possible to conduct 99 telephone conversations at once and to send, at the same time, 296 telegraph messages.

In building the subway a trench was used which crawls along the right of way, leaving a trough large enough for the cables. Wherever streams were crossed the conduits are carried through creosoted ducts suspended from the bridges, or else in pipes which cross on the bridges. Pipes are only used in places where the bridges are liable to be submerged by spring freshets. At ordinary crossings iron is not used, because it rusts away and is liable to cause short circuit and to break down in the course of time.

Good commercial service is given over 450 miles in length. A few years ago the cables gave satisfactory service for a distance of a few miles.

Monkeys Enlivened Mrs. N. Longworth's Dinner

THOSE people who are prominent in the official life of Washington do not always have the privilege of selecting their own pets. Many come to them in the shape of "freak" gifts from all over the world, and often prove an embarrassment because they are alive and cannot be stored away in some safe and secure place, to be taken out only on occasion.

Thus it happened that Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, the daughter of former President Roosevelt, and wife of the distinguished Ohio representative, had presented to her among many other gifts, two little monkeys, who lost no mite in sustaining their reputation for mischievous antics, and they kept the Longworth household in a panic as to what was going to happen next. They were too nimble and quick to be punished for the evil of their ways, and so, week in and week out the monkeys had a lovely time of it. When Mr. and Mrs. Longworth entertained, the little creatures were shut up behind lock and key, and usually wore themselves out in their effort to break through, and went to sleep in consequence, from sheer exhaustion.

This had always insured the success of a party, without any disturbing interruptions, until one fateful night when Mrs. Longworth looked up to discover a monkey grinning at her from the top of a picture. It was only a second until the other one climbed up the corner of the cloth, and snatched a few nuts from some of the panic-stricken guests. His partner in crime leaped from the picture and perched himself upon the shoulder of a guest, and the details of what followed are not laid down in the directions given to polite society as to how to entertain.

"But," laughed a guest not long ago, "I shall never forget how utterly funny it was, nor how we all enjoyed it, just as soon as we were assured the monkeys would not eat us."

Story of the Tails Worn by Nigerian Women

THERE dwell in the remotest part of Nigeria, not yet under the complete control of the British, several tribes whose women wear tails and are proud of them. The information came to the National Geographic society the other day in a letter from Maj. A. J. N. Tremearne, who has served there both as a political and police officer. These tails, he said, play an important part in the social life of the people, for they are the sign of matronly dignity. A woman, on becoming a bride, casts away a simple girdle of twisted grass, which up to that time has been her sole adornment, and begins to wear an apron of leaves and a fancy tail.

"These tails are made of palm fiber, platted or bound together with string and usually stained with a red earth, which is also used for the further adornment of the lady's body," Major Tremearne said. "Sometimes a Kaji matron who desires to be a leader in the fashionable world, will wear a tiny iron bell just above the tail, but this is of rare occurrence and the bell is not often seen."

"To add further to their beauty, both the upper and lower lips of these women are pierced in order to admit a flat, round disc of wood called the Tichiki, which is usually about the size of a half-dollar. The object of this singularly discomfiting adornment is to prevent the women from eating dogs, which are considered the greatest delicacy by the men of the tribes. Both sexes decorate their bodies with regular designs. When girls arrive at marriageable age, two sets of parallel lines are cut both on the chest and the back, and as soon as possible after marriage headlines are made. These consist of a number of short cuts across the forehead."

Never was a handier little garment designed than the envelope chemise, and certainly there was never a bit of underwear more comfortable. They are so easily made, too. If you never made a garment before, you can make an envelope chemise. Get a simple paper pattern and you will need no other guide or advice. You may either tuck the yoke of the chemise or embroider it. If the chemise is of white crepe, it is well to embroider it, for the tucks would need ironing, whereas, with the crepe embroidered, it is possible to wear the garment without ironing. If you wish an elaborate undergarment, a strip of hand embroidery can be worked all the way down the front, but for the simpler garment a spray of some small flower is sufficient across the upper part of the front.

Senator Smith Names Hotter Place Than Capital

HEAT has no terrors for Senator Mark Smith of Arizona, though he suggested the other night there was prospect that the members of the senate might get overheated and cut short the session. Senator Smith lives in a hot country that is hot.

Yuma, Ariz., is said to be the hottest place in the United States, remarked Senator Smith. "I don't think I ever saw a thermometer higher than 125 degrees, but, bless you, there's a hotter place in California than Yuma. Down on the shores of the Salton sea, where it is 180 feet below the sea level, I have seen the mercury at 116 degrees at one o'clock in the morning. But neither at Yuma nor in the Salton sea is the weather so oppressive when the thermometer registers its highest as it is in Washington at this time."

"There isn't a drop of humidity in Yuma, and 125 degrees there is not more burdensome than 98 degrees in this city. One can walk through a clover field in that country at sunrise and not get the soles of his shoes even damp."

"I haven't been through the Salton sea section for two years. Then the water was receding at the rate of 15 feet a year. Once the Salton sea was a huge body of water, 100 feet deep."

GENOA, THE SUPERB

City of Palaces Under Cloudless Sky Waits Admiration.

Magnificent Buildings Line Streets and Visitors Find Great Pleasure in Examining Their Interiors, Where Nobility Lived.

Genoa, Italy.—Genoa is nothing if not a city of palaces. Whole streets of them, all splendid; some more strikingly elegant than their fellows are waiting for the visitor to pass and admire; or they invite him to enter and leisurely examine the halls whose medieval nobility dreamed of greatness and war, and the wealth of the picturesque caravels of the blue sea, says the Catholic World. Near the Wayside Shrine Near Genoa.

Palazzo delle Fontane Morose is the Palazzo della Casa, a fifteenth-century structure, originally the Palazzo Spino, where dwelt the oldest Genoese family. From the place extend the Via Garibaldi and the Via Balbi, and on these all the splendor of the palace city may be seen in superb fullness. The first street, despite its modern name, is of the sixteenth century and the older of the two; practically all of the palaces here were designed by Galeazzo Alessi. The Via Balbi dates from the seventeenth century, and with its fine palaces, is a monument to Bartolommeo Bianco.

Today, as you stand near Genoa's long pier, you may see a great ship from that western land of Columbus slowly steam in from the open sea. There will be a cheer from home-coming Genoese; there will be the scurrying of many little boats about the lordly steamer, with the flowers and the fruits of Italy's soil; there will be the gay lighting of mandolins and the songs of sweet-voiced maidens; and the sun will be shining and the water dancing and the sky blue, so blue, with never a cloud large as a baby's hand upon its lovely face. And if a friend walks down the spacious pier you will greet him right gladly, and take him away to the cool of some palace inn high up among the shadows of the olive and the pomegranate, and bid him speak of ships and seas and the loving days at home. But if no one comes you will still stand near the sea and look upon the friendly smiling of strange faces from the westland, and be happy in their joy and glad in the benediction that will fall upon them from the bounty of their fair Italian skies.

VERY ELUSIVE HORSE THIEF

Michigan Fugitive Easy to Catch, but Exceedingly Difficult to Hold.

Ypsilanti, Mich.—Lemuel P. Beetle, a farmer one mile east, was awakened by a disturbance in his barn. He went out and found a man filling a bag with oats. He ordered the man out of the barn and outside he discovered that the robber had hitched his team to a load of produce and was about ready to drive away.

The robber hurriedly left the place, but stopped at the farm of Justice D. V. Harris, where he stole a horse and buggy and started for Wayne. Beetle notified Sheriff Stark at Ann Arbor of the attempted robbery on his farm and the sheriff and a deputy hurried to the Beetle farm in an automobile. They passed the robber with Harris' horse, but by the time they had turned the machine around the robber had abandoned the horse and carriage and escaped through the fields. The horse was recovered.

Later a man supposed to be the fugitive was found in a straw stack at Wayne and held up by a stable boy, who had a small rifle, until an officer came. The man was taken into custody, but got away while the officer was trying to open the village lockup.

He has not been caught. The officer describes him as "well dressed and wearing a diamond ring and stick-pin."

Leaves the Place Via Window. Kansas City.—When Guy Copeland, injured in a baseball game, recovered consciousness in an undertaking shop where he had been taken for emergency treatment, he plunged through a window. Several friends caught him and the wound was treated.

AN AFRICAN JUNGLE

without any white companions, and to have more than once just missed furnishing a meal for savage natives. But to me it was all a wonderful experience, one I would be glad to repeat—in parts.

Traveler Since Childhood.

"I was inoculated young with the desire to travel. As a very young girl I was sent to Australia from England for my health, and that trip developed into a round-the-world trip, which left me determined to see all there was in the world to see."

"As soon as I was old enough I proceeded to extend my horizons, until the unfrequented corners of India, Persia, Australia, China and Japan had little left to offer. Then came Africa, where all alone I explored the less known parts of the Congo land. The reported atrocities of the Congo so horrified me that I just had to go and see if they were true."

"I traveled from one rubber post to another, through country often unexplored, taking complete charge of the expedition myself, my native carriers averaging twenty-five or thirty in number. My path was frequently through villages of cannibal tribes. It was necessary at each post to get a fresh report on account of the different dialects used by the different tribes. I was fortunate, however, in having one who knew the languages of all the

FREE ALUMINUM WARE FREE ALUMINUM WARE

This Ad. is Worth $5 in Coupons to You!

CUT THIS AD. OUT

We have completed arrangements to equip your kitchen with the valued and much prized ALUMINUM COOKING WARE. With every purchase made at our store we present you with a coupon. When your purchases aggregate $40.00, a $3.50 item in pure aluminum is given you FREE. You pay 48¢ in cash to cover packing and shipping expense. Cut this out and present it within three days and $5.00 in coupons will be given you no matter what your purchases amount to.

A few REASONS why every kitchen should be outfitted with Aluminum Ware:

1. The everlasting qualities of the ware do away with repeated renewals of cooking utensils.
2. The high conductivity of the metals reduces fuel cost one-half.
3. This feature also assures an evenness of heat which makes possible the cooking of most delicate food without danger of burning or scorching.

4. The hygienic value of the ware reduces dangers of stomach ills which the old-fashioned utensils promoted. There can be no flaking of aluminum, therefore diminishing the risk of appendicitis, tumor, etc. There can be no poisonous chemical reactions because aluminum is acid-proof.

When you have secured this other articles will be added. These forementioned merits should recommend aluminum to your use.

ESPECIALLY when we are giving you the utensils as tokens of appreciation for your patronage. Our first gift will be a two-piece Combination Set—an article for general kitchen use. Other articles issued later.

3-piece Cereal Set, 6-qt. Berlin Kettle, 2-piece Steamer Set, 6-qt. Saucepan, Fry Pan, 6-qt. Preserve Kettle, 3-qt. Rice Cooker, 6-qt. Tea Kettle, Casserole, 8-qt. Dairy Pail, 9-cup Percolator, 10-bt. Kettle, and 25 others.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently spent a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey arrive at Fortuna near where the mine known as the Eagle Tail, is located. They engage the services of Crux Mendez, who has been friendly to Kruger, to acquire the title for them, and get a permit to do preliminary work. Aragon protests and accuses them of tampering with the title. Bud discovers that matrimonial entanglements prevent Mendez from perfecting a valid title. Phil, who has been paying attention to Aragon's daughter, Gracia, decides to turn Mexican and get the title in his own name. Bud objects to Phil's attention to Gracia. Aragon falls in his attempt to drive them off the claim. Rebels are reported in the vicinity. Stories of rapine and bloodshed are brought in. Bud and Phil begin work in earnest on their claim.

It was slow work; slower than they had thought, and the gang of Mexicans that they had hired for muckers were marvels of ineptitude. Left to themselves, they accomplished nothing, since each problem they encountered seemed to present to them some element of insuperable difficulty, to solve which they either went into caucus or waited for the boss.

To the Mexicans of Sonora Bernardo Bravo was the personification of all the malevolent qualities—he being a bandit chief who had turned first general and then rebel under Madero—and the fact that he had at last been driven out of Chihuahua and therefore over into Sonora, made his malevolence all the more imminent.

Undoubtedly, somewhere over to the east, where the Sierras towered like a blue wall, Bernardo and his outlaw followers were gathering for a raid, and the raid would bring death to Sonora.

He was a bad man, this Bernardo Bravo, and if half of the current stories were true, he killed men whenever they failed to give him money, and was never too hurried to take a fair daughter of the country up behind him, provided she took his fancy.

Yes, surely he was a bad man—but that did not clear away the rock.

For the first week Phil took charge of the gang, urging, directing and cajoling them, and the work went merrily on, though rather slowly. The Mexicans liked to work for Don Felipe, he was so polite and spoke such good Spanish; but at the end of the week it developed that Bud could get more results out of them.

Every time Phil started to explain anything to one Mexican all the others stopped to listen to him, and that took time. Bud's favorite way of directing a man was by grunts and signs and bending his own back to the task. Also, he refused to understand Spanish, and cut off all long-winded explanations and suggestions by an impatient motion to go to work, which the trabajadores obeyed with shrugs and grins.

So Don Felipe turned powderman and blacksmith, sharpening up the drills at the little forge they had fashioned and loading the holes with dynamite when it became necessary to break a rock, while Bud bossed the unwilling Mexicans.

In an old tunnel behind their tent they set a heavy gate, and behind it they stored their precious powder. Then came the portable forge and the blacksmith shop, just inside the mouth of the cave, and the tent backed up against it for protection. For if there is any one thing, next to horses, that the rebels are wont to steal, it is giant powder to blow up cuervos with, or to lay on the counters of timorous country merchants and frighten them into making contributions.

As for their horses, Bud kept them belled and hobbled, close to the house, and no one ever saw him without his gun. In the morning, when he got up, he took it from under his pillow and hung it on his belt, and there it stayed until bedtime.

He also kept a sharp watch on the trail, above and below, and what few men did pass through were conscious of his eye. Therefore it was all the more surprising when, one day, looking up suddenly from heaving at a great rock, he saw the big Yaqui soldier, Amigo, crouching down at him from the cut bank.

Yes, it was the same man, but with a difference—his rifle and cartridge belts were absent and his clothes were torn by the brush. But the same good-natured, competent smile was there, and after a few words with Bud he leaped simply down the bank and laid hold upon the rock. They pulled together, and the boulder that had balked Bud's gang of Mexicans moved easily for two of them.

Then Amigo seized a crowbar and slipped it into a crack and showed them a few things about moving rocks. For half an hour or more he worked along, seemingly bent on displaying his skill, then he sat down on the bank and watched the Mexicans with tolerant, half-amused eyes.

Bud Was Doing the Blacksmithing.

or he went whenever he could conjure up an errand—he found that, for once, he had not been mislead.

Bud was directing the blacksmithing. Amigo was directing the gang, and a fresh mess of beans was on the fire, the first kettledrum having gone to reinforce the Yaqui's backbone. But they were beans well spent, and Bud did not regret the raid on his grub-pile. If he could get half as much work for what he fed the Mexicans he could well rest content.

"But how did this Indian happen to find you?" demanded Phil, when his partner had explained his acquisition. "Say, he must have deserted from his company when they brought them back from Mochizuma!"

"More likely," assented Bud. "He ain't talking much, but I notice he keeps his eye out—they'd shoot him for a deserter if they could catch him. I'd hate to see him go that way."

"Well, if he's as good as this, let's take care of him!" cried Phil with enthusiasm. "I'll tell you, Bud, there's something big coming off pretty soon and I'd like to stay around town a little more if I could. I want to keep track of things."

"An instance?" suggested Hooker dryly. It had struck him that Phil was spending a good deal of time in town already.

"Well, there's this revolution. Sure as shooting they're going to pull one soon. There's two thousand Mexicans miners working at Fortuna, and they say every one of 'em has got a rifle buried. Now they're beginning to quit and drift out into the hills, and we're likely to hear from them any time."

"All the more reason for staying in camp, then," remarked Bud. "I'll tell you, Phil, I need you here. That dogged ledge is lost, good and plenty, and I need you to say where to dig. We ain't doing much better than old Aragon did—just rooting around in that rock-pile—let's do a little timbering, and sink."

"You can't timber that rock," answered De Lancey decidedly. "And besides, it's cheaper to make a cut twenty feet deep than it is to tunnel or sink a shaft. Wait till we get to that porphyry contact—then we'll know where we're at."

"All right," grumbled Bud; "but seems like we're a long time getting there. What's the news downtown?"

"Well, the fireworks have begun again over in Chihuahua—Orosco and Salazar and that bunch—but it seems there was something to this Mochizuma scare, after all. I was talking to an American mining man from down that way and he told me that the federales marched out to where the rebels were and then sat down and watched them cross the river without firing on them—some kind of an understanding between Bernardo Bravo and these blackleg federales."

"The only fighting there was was when a bunch of twenty Yaquis got away from their officers in the rough country and went after Bernardo Bravo by their lonesome. That threw a big scare into him, too, but he managed to fight them off—and if I was making a guess I'd bet that your Yaqui friend was one of that fighting twenty."

"I reckon," assented Bud; "but don't you say nothing. I need that hombre in my business. Come on, let's go up and look at that cut—I come across an old board today, a piece in the muck, and I bet you it's down there that Kruger hid. Funny we don't come across some of his tools, though, or the hole where the powder went off."

"When we do that," observed Phil, "we'll be where we're going. Nothing to do then but lay off the men and wait till I get my papers. That's why I say don't hurry so hard—we haven't got our title to this claim, partner, and we won't get it, either—not for some time yet. Suppose you'd hit this ledge—"

"Well, if I hit it," remarked Bud, "I'll stay with it—you can trust me for that. Hello, what's the Yaqui found?"

As they came up the cut Amigo quit work and, while the Mexicans followed suit and gathered expectantly behind him, he picked up three rusty drills and an iron drill-spoon and presented them to Bud.

Evidently he had learned the object of their search from the Mexicans, but if he looked for any demonstrations of delight at sight of these much-sought-for tools he was doomed to disappointment, for both Bud and Phil had schooled themselves to keep their faces straight.

"Um-m," said Bud, "old drills, eh? Where you find them?"

The Yaqui led the way to the face of the cut and showed the spot, a hole beneath the pile of riven rock; and a Mexican, not to be outdone, grabbed up a handful of porphyry and indicated where the dynamite had pulverized it.

"Blen," said Phil, pawing solemnly around in the bottom of the hole; and then, filling his handkerchief with fine dirt, he carried it down to the creek. There, in a miner's pan, he washed it out carefully, slopping the waste over the edge and swirling the water around until at last only a little dirt was left in the bottom of the pan.

Then, while all the Mexicans looked on, he tilted this toward the edge, scanning the last remnant for gold—and quit without a color.

"Nada!" he cried, throwing down the pan, and in some way the Mexicans sensed the fact that the mine had turned out a failure. Three times he went back to the cut and scooped up the barren dust, and then he told the men they could quit.

"No more work!" he said, affecting a dejected bitterness; "no hay nada, there is nothing!" And with this sad, but by no means unusual, ending to their labors, the Mexicans went away to their camp, speculating among themselves as to whether they could get their pay. But when the last of them had gone Phil beckoned Bud into the tent and showed him a piece of quartz.

"Just take a look at that!" he said, and a single glance told Hooker that it was full of fine particles of gold. "I picked that up when they weren't looking," whispered De Lancey, his eyes dancing with triumph. "It's the same rock—the same as Kruger's!"

"Well, put 'er there, partner!" cried Bud, grabbing at De Lancey's hand; "we've struck it!"

And with a broad grin on their delectable faces they danced silently around the tent, after which they paid off the Mexicans and bade them "adios!"

CHAPTER XIV.

It is a great sensation—striking it rich—one of the greatest in the world. Some men punch a burro over the desert at their lives in the hope of achieving it once; Bud and Phil had taken a chance, and the prize now lay within their grasp. Only a little while now—a month, maybe, if the officials were slow—and the title would be theirs.

The Mexican miners, blinded by their ignorance, went their way, well contented to get their money. Nobody knew. There was nothing to do but to wait. But to wait, as some people know, is the hardest work in the world.

For the first few days they lingered about the mine, gloating over it in secret, laughing back and forth, singing gay songs—then, as the ecstasy passed and the weariness of waiting set in, they went two ways. Some fascination, unexplained to Bud, drew De Lancey to the town. He left in the morning and came back at night, but Hooker stayed at the mine.

Day and night, week-days and Sunday, he watched it jealously, lest someone should slip in and surprise their secret—and for company he had his pet horse, Copper Bottom, and the Yaqui Indian, Amigo.

Ignacio was the Indian's real name, for the Yaquis are all good Catholics and named uniformly after the saints; but Bud had started to call him Amigo, or friend, and Ignacio had conferred the same name on him.

Poor Ignacio! His four-dollar-a-day job had gone glimmering in half a day, but when the Mexican laborers departed he lingered around the camp, doing odd jobs, until he won a place for himself.

At night he slept up in the rocks, where no treacher could take him unawares, but at the first peep of dawn it was always Amigo who arose and lit the fire.

Then, if no one got up, he cooked a breakfast after his own ideas, boiling the coffee until it was as strong as lay, broiling meat on sticks, and went to turn out the horses.

With the memory of many envious glances cast at Copper Bottom, Hooker had built a stout corral, where he kept the horses up at night, allowing them to graze close-hobbled in the daytime. A Mexican insurrection on foot—a contradiction of terms, if there are any horses or mules in the country, and several bands of ex-miners from Fortuna had gone through their camp in that condition, with new rifles in their hands. But if they had any designs on the Eagle Tail live stock they speedily gave them up; for, while he would feed them and even listen to their false tales of patriotism, Bud had no respect for numbers when it came to admiring his horse.

Even with the Yaqui, much as he trusted him, he had reservations about Copper Bottom; and once, when he found him petting him and stroking his nose, he shook his head forbiddingly. And from that day on, though he watered Copper Bottom and cared for his wants, Amigo was careful never to caress him.

But in all other matters, even to lending him his gun, Bud trusted the Yaqui absolutely. It was about a week after he came to camp that Amigo sighted a deer, and when Bud loaned him his rifle he killed it with a single shot.

Soon afterward he came loping back from a scouting trip and made signs for the gun again, and this time he brought in a young peccary, which he roasted in a pit, Indian style. After that, when the meat was low, Bud sent him out to hunt, and each time he brought back a wild hog or a deer for every cartridge.

The one cross under which the Yaqui suffered was the apparent failure of the mine, and, after slipping up into the cut a few times, he finally came back radiant.

"Mira!" he said, holding out a piece of rock; and when Hooker gazed at the chunk of quartz he pointed to the specks of gold and grunted, "Oro!"

"Seguro!" answered Bud, and going down into his pocket, he produced another like it. At this the Yaqui cocked his head to one side and regarded him strangely.

"Why you no dig gold?" he asked at last, and then Bud told him the story.

"We have an enemy," he said, "who might steal it from us. So now we wait for papers. When we get them, we dig!"

"Ah!" breathed Amigo, his face suddenly clearing up; "and can I work for you then?"

"Si," answered Bud, "for four dollars a day. But now you help me watch, so nobody comes."

"Stawano!" exclaimed the Indian, well satisfied, and after that he spent hours on the hilltop, his black head thrust out over the crest like a chuckawalla lizard as he conned the land below.

So the days went by until three weeks had passed, and still no papers came. As his anxiety increased Phil fell into the habit of staying in town overnight, and finally he was gone for two days. The third day was drawing to a close, and Bud was getting restless, when suddenly he beheld the Yaqui bounding down the hill in great leaps and making signs down the canyon.

"Two men!" he called, dashing up to the tent; "one of them a rural!"

"Why a rural?" asked Bud, mystified.

"To take me!" cried Amigo, striking himself violently on the breast. "Lend me your rifle!"

"No," answered Bud, after a pause; "you might get into trouble. Run and hide in the rocks—I will signal you when to come back."

"Muy bien," said the Yaqui obediently, and, turning, he went over rocks like a mountain-sheep, bounding from boulder to boulder until he disappeared among the hillsides. Then, as Bud brought in his horse and shut him hastily inside his corral, the two riders came around the point—a rural and Aragon!

Now, in Mexico a rural, as Bud well knew, means trouble—and Aragon meant more trouble, trouble for him. Certainly, so busy a man as Don Cipriano would not come clear to his camp to help capture a Yaqui deserter. Bud sensed it from the start that this was another attempt to get possession of their mine, and he awaited their coming grimly.

"S' tardes," he said in reply to the rural's abrupt salute, and then he stood silent before his tent, looking them over shrewdly. The rural was a hard-looking citizen, as many of them are, but on this occasion he seemed a trifle embarrassed, glancing inquiringly at Aragon. As for Aragon, he was gazing at a long line of jerked meat which Amigo had hung out to dry, and his drooped eye opened up suddenly as he turned his cold regard upon Hooker.

"Senor," he said, speaking with an accusing harshness, "we are looking for the men who are stealing my cattle, and I see we have not far to go. Where did you get that meat?"

"I got it from a deer," returned Bud; "there is his hide on the fence; you can see it if you'll look."

The rural, glad to create a diversion, rode over and examined the hide and came back satisfied, but Aragon was not so easily appeased.

"By what right," he demanded truculently, "do you, an American, kill deer in our country? Have you the special permit which is required?"

"Two Men, One of Them a Rural!"

"No, senor," answered Hooker soberly; "the deer was killed by a Mexican I have working for me!"

"Ha!" sneered Aragon, and then he paused, balked.

"Where is this Mexican?" inquired the rural, his professional instincts aroused, and while Bud was explaining that he was out in the hills somewhere, Aragon spurred his horse up closer and peered curiously into his tent.

"What are you looking for?" demanded Hooker sharply, and then Aragon showed his hand.

"I am looking for the drills and drill-spoon," he said; "the ones you stole when you took my mine!"

"Then get back out of there!" cried Bud, seizing his horse by the bit and throwing him back on his haunches; "and stay out!" he added, as he dropped his hand to his gun. "But if the rural wishes to search," he said, turning to that astounded official, "he is welcome to do so."

"Muchas gracias, no!" returned the rural, shaking a finger in front of his face, and then he strode over to where Aragon was muttering and spoke in a low tone.

"No!" dissented Aragon, shaking his head violently; "no—no! I want this man arrested!" he cried, turning victoriously upon Bud. "He has stolen my tools—my mine—my land! He has no business here—no title! This land is mine, and I tell him to go. Pronto!"

he shouted, menacing Hooker with his riding-whip, but Bud only shifted his feet and stopped listening to his excited Spanish.

"No, senor," he said, when it was all over, "this claim belongs to my partner, De Lancey. You have no—"

"Ha! De Lancey!" jeered Aragon, suddenly indulging himself in a sardonic laugh. "De Lancey! Ha, ha!"

"What's the matter?" cried Hooker, as the rural joined in with a derisive smirk. "Say, speak up, hombre! He threatened, stepping closer as his eyes took on a dangerous gleam. 'And let me tell you now,' he added, 'that if any man touches a hair of his head I'll kill him like a dog!'"

The rural backed his horse away, as if suddenly discovering that the American was dangerous, and then, saluting respectfully as he took his leave, he said:

"The Senor De Lancey is in jail!" They whirled their horses at that and galloped off down the canyon, and as Bud gazed after them he burst into a frenzy of curses. Then, with the one thought of setting Phil free, he ran out to the corral and hurled the saddle on his horse.

ALLIES MASSED ALONG FRONTIER FOR NEW BATTLE

French and English Papers Admit Reverses by Their Armies

FORCES CONCENTRATE ON FRONTIER FOR DEFENSE

German Claim That Advance on Paris Is Probable and Also Say That Army of Gen. Joffre Is Broken Up.

London.—The French, English and Belgian armies are massing along the French frontier for a new battle, which is already in progress and on which "hangs the fate of France," according to an announcement Tuesday night from the war office in Paris.

Councils of war were held both in London and in Paris Tuesday, and the announcement from Paris immediately followed. The line of the battle extends from Maubeuge, in the north, to Donon, in the south, nearly 200 miles, and the allies are concentrating all their available troops on this line to check the Germans, who continue to pour reinforcements forward in the attempt to penetrate the defense and gain a foothold in France.

According to the French official statement, General Joffre, commander-in-chief, being in need of all troops along the river Meuse, has ordered the "progressive abandonment" of all occupied territory. This is taken to mean that positions of minor importance have been abandoned, in order to concentrate all of the allies' strength against the invaders. It has been found necessary to withdraw temporarily from Alsace, and Muelhausen has been abandoned. To continue operations in Alsace would require troops, which are badly needed in the general defense, the Paris war office stated.

Zeppelin Brought Down.

A Zeppelin airship, which dropped bombs into the city of Antwerp, wrecking several houses and killing six persons, was brought down by British fire at Hemiksem, six miles outside of Antwerp. The 16 Germans in its crew were taken prisoners. One of the houses wrecked by a bomb was only 300 yards from the palace of King Albert.

One bomb from the airship partly wrecked the hospital of St. Elizabeth, which was flying the Red Cross flag. A German report, through a Cologne newspaper, says a Russian division suffered defeat Tuesday 16 miles east of Gumbinnen, where the Russians won a victory last Saturday. Other reports said the Russians were continuing their general advance along a front of 50 miles and that a great battle was imminent.

A Berlin report, coming by way of a wireless dispatch through the German embassy in Washington, says a concentric advance of the Germans on Paris is probable; that the army of General Joffre has been broken up; that 10,000 prisoners have been captured, and that the Semole river, Longwy and the greater part of the Franco-Belgian frontier are now in the hands of the Germans.

Reverse Generally Admitted.

A reverse to the forces of the allies is generally admitted by the English and French newspapers, which say Tuesday's news is "entirely bad." While plainly expressing disappointment at the failure of their forces, they declare the retrograde movement toward the line of strong defensive works near the frontier has been carried out in good order.

It is assumed that the allies are falling back on their first line of defensive works running from Maubeuge, in a southeasterly direction by way of Hirszen Mezieres, Montmedy, Verdun, St. Mihiel, Toul and Epinal, all of which are strong fortresses, and are interspersed with smaller works such as Ayville, Gelcourt, Tryon, Les Paroches, Llanville, Gironville and Jouy-Sous-les-Cotes.

Behind these lies another strong line of fortifications from St. Quentin, in the north, through Laon and Reims, to the great entrenched camp at Chalons.

Germans Take Namur.

London.—Namur has fallen. The fortress on which the allies placed their main dependence to hold in check the advancing hordes of the German main strength after they had swept past Liege, has given way before the advance of the enemy.

Rome.—The Italian government announced that the Duke d'Abruzzi has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Italian navy. This is an important step in this country's preparations for war.

Nish, Serbia.—The Serbian army is pursuing the Austrian army which was defeated Sunday and inflicting severe losses on the invaders, according to semi-official advices here. The Serbians captured six guns in an assault on the retreating left wing of the Austrian army.

WOMEN OF SERVIAN LEAGUE OF DEATH

Women members of the League of Death holding the flag unfurled in defiance of Austria. Between them is shown the skull and crossbones badge of the league.

Namur is at the junction of the Meuse and Sambre rivers. Its fall without a word of warning or the long siege that was deemed necessary to reduce it to submission before the German advance, indicates that the attack must have been sudden, sharp and terrific and that the main strength of the German field forces must have been centered for the time being on this one objective.

Russia Claims Victorious Advance.

St. Petersburg.—It is claimed that Russia is moving fast in Austria and eastern Prussia. An army of invasion, numbering hundreds of thousands and comprising the picked forces of the Russian military forces, is penetrating the frontiers at a number of points, the exact location of which is withheld.

The war office declare that the enemy is being slowly but surely pressed back. The Austrian opposition is admittedly not so serious as is the German. The official description of the fighting is "desperate."

Among the killed and wounded are reported some of the best known nobles of the empire. The crack regiments from St. Petersburg and Moscow, officered by members of the royal family and scions of nobles houses, have been in action in Prussia. These regiments are reported to have covered themselves with glory, riding through the Prussian forces and carrying fortified positions, at a fearful cost to themselves. Only members of the families know of their loss, however, as the government refuses to post any lists of dead at this time.

The Russian advance into Prussia is following the line of the railway from Eydtkuhn toward Konigsburg. It is already in the outskirts of Insterburg. Opposed is an entire division of German infantry, heavily supported by artillery. The Russian are forced to charge and take each advanced line of trenches at the point of the bayonet.

The Russian aerial corps, heretofore considered a negligible quantity, has covered itself with glory. It is announced that military aviators, carrying staff officers, have flown far into the interior of both Germany and Austria. High explosives have been dropped on military storehouses and the general topography of the country, and the secret fortifications, have been accurately mapped.

The main invasion of Austria is through the Sty river valley. Sweeping successes are reported in this section. The army has penetrated 35 miles inland, in the general direction of Lemberg, capital of Galicia. Practically continuous fighting has occurred, with the war office claiming a sweeping victory at Krasne, only 35 miles from Lemberg.

In this fighting it is declared that an Austrian division was completely routed, and that 17 guns and more than 1,500 prisoners were taken. The Russians are reported as following up their advance and to be pushing on toward Lemberg.

Japan Declared War.

Tokio.—Japan declared war, begun war on Germany Sunday with an order to the Japanese army and navy to capture Kiauchau, Germany's Chinese holding, immediately.

Official news of the situation of the Japanese fleet and transports is lacking.

London.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. sent from Vienna under Thursday's date, says that the Austrian government has issued a final call to arms for all able-bodied men from the ages of 20 to 42 years.

London, Ont.—According to word received here Friday from headquarters, the volunteers going from London, Sarnia and other points in the district will fight side by side with veterans of the British army. They are to be brigaded with British regiments and rushed to the front.

ing, but because of the preparations which have been in progress since Japan sent her ultimatum to the Kaiser's government last Sunday, it is believed that everything was ready for the attack on Kiauchau when the time limit of the ultimatum expired Saturday night and that the attack already has been begun.

The Japanese expeditionary forces sent to Kiauchau are under the command of Vice-Admiral Kamimura. In official circles it is estimated that it will take three months to reduce Tsingtau, which is well garrisoned and provisioned for a siege.

The area of hostilities extends over China eastward of the Yellow river. The Japanese will proceed to place all Germans under surveillance. Already they are ejecting Germans from Mukden, Chang-Chun and Dainy. Doubtless similar action will be taken at Tien-Tsin.

The proclamation of the emperor sent a thrill through the country. Japan's entrance on the fulfillment of her obligations to her ally, Great Britain, responds to the popular will from one end of the land to the other. Cheering crowds assembled before the buildings occupied by the department of foreign affairs and the administration of the navy. Sunday evening there were lantern processions through the streets. The popular manifestations, however, do not approach the enthusiasm which preceded the war with Russia.

Count von Rex, the German ambassador, has been handed his passports. No action has been taken relative to Austria, and the foreign office has explained that Japan will remain friendly unless Austria should adopt an attitude which it would regard as offensive.

Whitlock Wins Approval.

Washington.—Brand Whitlock, the American minister to Belgium, has succeeded in communicating with Washington Tuesday from Brussels for the first time in several days. In his cable, he makes no mention of informing the German invaders that he was instructed by the American government to take the city of Brussels under American protection. This declaration was credited to him by press dispatches at the time of the occupation of the city.

Mr. Whitlock says that he remained in the capital despite the fact that the seat of government was removed to Antwerp, as did the Spanish minister. Together the two ministers, he says, succeeded in persuading the burgomaster not to resist the German occupation.

As the diplomats from the belligerent countries fled to Antwerp, Mr. Whitlock took over the British legation, and according to his message, succeeded in rendering services, without violating the neutrality of the United States, which secured the thanks of the English colony in Brussels, the German commander and the Belgian government.

BRIEF NOTES OF WAR

Washington.—Consul Thompson at Valls, Belgium, cabled the state department Saturday assurances of the safety of Americans in Belgium.

Washington.—The emergency shipping bill, authorizing the admission of foreign built ships to American registry, was signed Saturday by President Wilson.

Paris.—The ministry of war has definitely accepted the services of Anglo-American rough riders corps formed in Paris. They will act as scouts and interpreters, for which latter service they are particularly skilled, as most of them speak four and five, even seven languages. It is announced. All have been actual service and are expert horsemen.

EARTH'S MOST LONELY SPOTS

Islands Where Communication With the Great World Is at Rare Intervals—Tristan da Cunha.

Though scientific progress has made it possible to do a double journey between England and America in a fortnight, there remain many islands with which it takes years to communicate.

Of the scottish coast are the groups of islands known as the Hebrides, Orkneys and Shetlands. Of those the most isolated island is St. Kilda, some three miles long and two miles broad. The inhabitants lead lives of great loneliness, for it takes a month to get to the next island, and the sea often makes any communication with St. Kilda impossible for months.

The group of eight Phoenix islands in the Pacific has a total population of only 158, while another little bit of the British empire is Fanning Island. This is a landing place for the Pacific submarine cable, and usually there are about one hundred people in the place.

The loneliest of all parts of British territory is the island of Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic, which is also the smallest inhabited island in the empire. It is 1,800 miles from land, has a population of 74 Scottish Americans, and the inhabitants get news of the outer world usually once every two years.

FACE FULL OF PIMPLES

4240 So. California Ave., Chicago, Ill.—"About a year ago my face was full of pimples and red spots. To sleep one night without itching was almost impossible. Some of the pimples would get big and red and if I touched them they would pain, while others would get white heads on them and when they broke open some matter came out. They would burn and itch and I scratched them so that sometimes they would break and bleed. That always caused them to be worse.

"I bought all kinds of salves and creams and I found out that they did me no good. I noticed the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and I sent for a free sample. I went to the drug store and bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment and I found the pimples were drying out. In two months I was well." (Signed) Chas. J. Peck, May 7, 1914.

A Good Shot.

A San Franciscan, who had been hunting in the vicinity of Lake Tahoe without bagging any game, came upon a mountaineer who was feeding a caged wildcat he had caught the day before.

"How much (will you take for that beast?" he asked.

The captor said $5, and the money was paid over.

"Now," said the Nimrod, "tie one end of a strong cord to that tree and another to the cat's neck, and then open the door of the cage."

This was finally accomplished and the fierce animal stood straining at its tether.

The sportsman, who was watching the exercises from the interior of the cabin, leveled his rifle across the window sill, took careful aim and blazed away. The wildcat gave a joyful yell and disappeared in the forest. The bullet had cut the rope.

WITH TRAGEDY IN HIS MIND

Husband Dashed Home in Response to Telephone Call to Find His Worst Fears Were Groundless.

Smithson said a thunderstorm always reminded him of this absurd incident in his early married life. He said it happened when their first baby was only two months old, so he might be pardoned if his solicitude exceeded his sober judgment. He was at his office one afternoon when a terrific thunderstorm broke which crashed enough to frighten anyone, so when the "phone rang and his wife's voice tremulously asked: "George, dear, can you come home right away?" he said, "yes" quickly, nor paused to question, but frantic with misgivings, grabbed his hat and almost ran through town to his home.

Arriving all breathless, he found his wife awaiting him on the porch, her face the very picture of distress.

Rushing up to her he said anxiously: "Why, darling, what's the matter?"

Much to his surprise came this reply: "Oh, George, dear, we have moths!"—Kansas City Star.

One Too Many.

The bus was rolling up Fifth avenue in a heavy groundswell, on a murky night. Perhaps it was only that the chauffeur and conductor were both sleepy, or maybe it was only the mugginess that deceived them.

On the corner at Thirty-fifth street stood, waiting to cross, a belated delivery boy, holding erect by the waist a dressmaker's dress form. The chauffeur thought he detected a fare, and slowed his craft in to the curb. The conductor looked out through the fog, shook his head, and rang the bell to go ahead.

"Room for one only," he said, and the bus rolled on.—New York Evening Post.

READ HOW
Most business colleges employ solicitors to visit homes and enroll students. These solicitors get one-third or more of the tuition of each student they enroll.

To meet such competition we shall give the student himself the benefit of what other schools pay solicitors. Read on.

1. Our complete course includes a thorough training in Shorthand, Bookkeeping, Typewriting and Penmanship.

2. Our cash rate for these courses is only $70.00. Many schools charge $100.00.

3. We will give these courses for $46.67 to all who enter between August 15 and September 15. You can decide this matter in and thus make $23.33. That's easy.
ONE MINUTE

BREVITIES

JACKSON—Delbert Booker, 54, a life inmate of Jackson prison, died Friday of a complication of diseases.
Booker came here from Lansing in 1907.

DEXTER—Arrangements are being made for the annual Labor Day picnic, given under the auspices of St.
Joseph's church, at Birkett's grove,
Monday, September 7th.—Leader.

ANN ARBOR—Rev. Fr. Frank
Kennedy of Ypsilanti, has written to Bishop Kelly from Madrid, Spain, that he, Father Hally, of Wyandotte,
and Father Glemet, of River Rouge, are well and expect to sail the latter part of August.

GRASS LAKE—Harold Goodband
narrowly escaped death Saturday evening when his shoulder struck a live wire which was hanging down over the D. U. R. track on East Main street. The collar and front of his shirt was completely burned but he suffered no serious injuries.—News.

NORTHFIELD—The barn of James McCourt of Northfield township burned to the ground Sunday night, together with six fine horses, 25 tons of hay and 100 bushels of oats. Two stacks of wheat were also burned.
The cause of the fire is unknown.
The loss is partly covered by insurance.

ANN ARBOR—Saturday a large rattlesnake was found on Fountain street before the home of Gustave Vogel. Several small children were playing near and one of them saw the snake and realized the danger.
Godfrey Neff, who happened to be near on an ice wagon, killed the reptile. The snake was about three feet long and had five rattles.

DEXTER—It has been the custom for many years for Mrs. Edna Stebbins to spend August 17, the anniversary of her marriage, at the home of James Lucas from whose house she went forth as a bride 54 years ago.
Since the death of Mrs. Lucas five years ago, she still adheres to the custom and this year as usual found her enjoying the hospitality of the family of her old friends.

SALINE—The few cents that can be saved by buying goods away from home is injuring our community to the extent of many dollars by retarding progress and the increased valuation of all kinds of property, including your own. Stand together, and together all will prosper. Divide and prosperity will flee. You know what the Bible says that "a house divided against itself cannot stand."
Observer.

ONSTAD—C. M. Nichols who has 150 colonies of honey bees scattered about the country, says that he has only about 5,000 pounds of honey at the present time which is near one-third of a good crop. The late rains are bringing the fall flowers into blossom and there may yet be a late yield. Last year being exceedingly dry killed much of the white clover and a cool spring retarded blossoms which the bees work on largely.—

Constipation Causes Sickness.

constipated, as your system immediately begins to absorb poison from the backed-up waste matter. Use Dr.

Jackson County Fair.

For years there has been a clamor for a fair in Jackson county. It will be realized this year, and promises to be the biggest and best ever held in southern Michigan. Calls for entry blanks are enormous and Secretary W. B. Burris and his entire office force are kept busy classifying and enrolling the entries. There are 15 department heads—each especially adapted for his work. Dr. C. G.
Parnall will look after the cattle; Dr.
A. J. Scott, horses; D. E. Turner,
sheep; Z. T. Williams, swine; James Tucker, poultry; Benjamin Spencer, machinery; Wesley Davis, agriculture; E. St. John, fruit; Thos. M.
Sattler, school athletics; Henry Burt flowers; J. H. Lourim, speed; C. E.
Pierce, forage; A. A. Mitchell, grand stand; and Chief of Police Benjamin Chase, police. All committee are working zealously for the success of the fair, and every man, woman and child in southern Michigan will be there. "Meet me at the Jackson Fair," September 14 to 19, is the slogan.

Infection and Insect Bites Dangerous.

Mosquitoes, flies and other insects,
which breed quickly in garbage pails,
pools of stagnant water, barns, muddy places, etc., are carriers of disease. Every time they bite you, they inject poison into your system from which some dread disease may result. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. It is antiseptic and a few drops will neutralize the infection caused by insect bites or rusty nails.
Sloan's Liniment disinfects cuts, sores and bruises. You cannot afford to be without it in your home. Money back if not satisfied. Only 25c at your druggist. L. P. Vogel, H. H. Penn
Co., L. T. Freeman Co. Adv.

Safe in England.
A cablegram received in Ann Arbor from Prof. J. P. Bird Sunday states that members of his party, who are at York, England, are all well, but that it is still uncertain whether they will be able to sail Saturday next, the date for which their passage had been booked.

Miss Dora Dancer, eldest daughter of W. J. Dancer, of Stockbridge, is a member of Prof. Bird's party, and her Chelsea relatives and friends will be pleased to learn of her safe arrival in England.

Unadilla and Plainfield Churches.

These churches held a congregational meeting last Sunday and voted to build a Presbyterian church in Unadilla to replace the one destroyed by the cyclone. They also elected a building committee in Unadilla, the committee held their first meeting at the home of the treasurer of the Presbyterian church Carmi Webb on Wednesday evening. They expect to build a church the same size as the old one 30x40 feet, 18 foot ceiling, belfry 10x12. They have not determined whether they will build frame, cement block or brick, but expect to commence operations as quickly as they can make a satisfactory contract. They have about $1,400 subscribed. Chelsea and Stockbridge contributed liberally, and as soon as some other contributions that have been promised come in the names of the donors will be published. Rev.
W. T. Jaquess was with us and gave much valuable counsel and assistance.
Dr. Jaquess' home is in Detroit. He has had a wide experience in church erection and is at present chairman of the committee of home missions, and Sabbath school work of the Synod of Michigan. He preached an excellent sermon at both churches. His Plainfield sermon was an excellent diagnosis of the present war condition, and how that it was brought about by sin. It certainly would be quite a treat for any one of the churches to hear Dr. Jaquess on this subject. xx

Announcements.

The Macabees will hold a meeting on Friday evening of this week. At this meeting arrangements will be made for decoration services next Sunday, August 30.

The Cradle Roll and beginners class of St. Paul's Sunday school will hold their annual picnic on the church lawn at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon of this week.

Princess Theatre.

Saturday night at the Princess the big noise will be a two part drama
"The Flaming Diagram," featuring that well-known actor King Baggott.
"The Flaming Diagram." Does it not suggest something to you? The spies managed to secure the diagram supposed to lead to the hiding place of the formula, but they are unable to read it; it appears to be the foolish effusions of an unbalanced brain.
Then the diagram comes back into the hands of the inventor's son, after a stirring series of the scenes, and he, too, is unable to figure out the meaning of it. Interestingly he allows his lighted cigarette to set fire to the diagram; and then—well, then comes the clearing up of the baffling mystery. The cast of characters is as follows: Erickson, Frank Smith; Erickson, Jr., King Baggott; Lillian,
his sister, Leah Baird; Brack, David Lythgoe; Diagram, Howard Crampton.

Two mighty good comedy pictures are also on the bill. "Pretzel Captures the Smugglers" and "The Sharps Want a Flat." Adv.

Chelsea Citizens Gladly Testify and Confidently Recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Chelsea citizen.

Charles Hyzer, Madison St., Che-sea, Mich., says: "Several years ago while lying in Ypsilanti, I was a sufferer from kidney trouble. I had backache and pains through my kidneys that made my work hard. If I stooped, I couldn't straighten again.
Finally a friend who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results told me to try them. I did and they soon gave me relief. Three boxes cured me."

Mr. Hyzer is only one of many Chelsea people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Hyzer had the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Mil-
