KILLED WHILE DUCK HUNTING

Paul Noto Used Gun for Hammer and Was Instantly Killed at Mill Lake Wednesday

Paul Noto, aged 28 years, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun about five o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The young man in company with Ralph Gieske and John Eder, jr., left here in the morning on a hunting trip to Mill Lake. Arriving at the lake Noto and Eder rented a boat of Fred Artz and spent the day on the lake and Gieske hunted on the shore.

Between four and five o'clock Gieske joined those in the boat and took the oars to pull the party across the lake to the Artz landing. The oars did not fit the locks and caused considerable trouble. When about the middle of the lake Mr. Gieske asked Paul, who was facing him in the boat, to hold the lock down with his hand, but instead of doing so he rested the stock of the gun on the lock. The oarsman told Noto that was dangerous and urged him to remove the gun. Paul replied that the gun, which was a hammerless one, was securely locked and that there was no danger.

When the lock became loose the next time Paul drove it in position with the stock of his gun and as he did so it was discharged and the charge of shot entered his body just below his heart killing him instantly. The man fell in the arms of Gieske and the boat was nearly overturned. Gieske pulled the party ashore and went to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Artz and notified the authorities of the accident.

Justice of the Peace Witherell, Deputy Sheriff McKune and Officer Leach left for the lake as soon as possible, and Mr. Witherell acting as coroner empanelled the following as a jury: J. E. McKune, Geo. M. Seitz, Fred Artz, J. E. Weber, Frank Leach and Michael Dealy, who viewed the remains and the inquest was adjourned until four o'clock Friday afternoon.

The young man has been a resident of this place for two years and was a member of Chelsea Fruit Co. He is survived by a brother who resides in Grand Rapids, one brother and two sisters who reside in Italy.

The remains were taken to the undertaking rooms of F. Staffan & Son.

Lafayette Grange Meeting.
The next meeting of Lafayette Grange will be held at the home of F. H. Sweetland Friday, October 23d. The following program has been arranged:

Opening song.
Roll call, answered by Current Events.

Question—What stand should the Grange take on the proposed amendment to Article 10, Section 10, and Article 8 of the Michigan constitution and why? Led by Walter H. Dancer.

Remarks on the County Convention of October 6th, by a delegate.

Question—With the present high price of corn, what substitute can farmers use in producing pork? Experiences by the members.

Question Box—Presided over by Mrs. Olive Winslow.
Closing song.

Violated the Law.

On complaint of J. H. Baldwin, of Ann Arbor, a man named Friedman was arraigned before Justice John D. Thomas Saturday, charged with having sold potatoes, without conforming to the dry measure law.

The warrant was sworn out against John Doe, but Friedman voluntarily came into court Friday morning and admitted that he was the man who had sold the potatoes. He said that he had not said he was selling a bushel, but that he offered the quantity he had for sale, as a sort of job lot. This, however, it is claimed, is in violation of the law which prescribes that all produce must be sold by standard, dry measure.

The maximum fine under the law is $25.

Friedman is well-known in this vicinity, having been a resident of Chelsea and Lyndon for a number of years.

Two Accidents Friday.

Clarence Hauser a pupil in the eighth grade of the Chelsea public school, met with a severe accident at recess time Friday afternoon. At the foot of the stairs in the basement is a steam pipe no which the boys have been in the habit of catching and swinging themselves. As Clarence jumped for the pipe he fell backward striking his head on the cement floor. For a few minutes the boy was unconscious and had hemorrhages from his ears. Drs. Palmer and Schmidt were summoned and the boy was removed to the home of his mother on south Congdon street. The drum of his left ear was ruptured and he was badly bruised about the head. It will undoubtedly be several days before he will be able to resume his school work.

Leon Mohrlock, who is a member of the Chelsea high school football team, was injured in the game which was played at Ahnemiller park last Friday afternoon between the Chelsea and Wayne teams. He received a gash in the eyebrow above the right eye that required one stitch to close it.

Cavanaugh Lake Grange Meeting.

The next regular meeting of Cavanaugh Lake Grange will be held at the home of Clarence Kruse on Tuesday evening, October 20. The following is the program:

Report of Mrs. Mary Sprague's work among Grange patients, by chaplain.

An apple guessing game, by members.

Recitation, Esther Zeeb.

Is an ideal fruit farm a paying proposition, by any member.

Care of an apple orchard, Fred Notten.

Grading and packing apples, H. J. Gieske.

Recitation, Clarence Kruse.

Music, Pearl Ortrbring and assistant.

Closing song.

Mrs. C. R. Page.

Miss Caroline Rickett was born in Lodi, December, 1874, and died at the U. of M. hospital at Ann Arbor on Tuesday forenoon, October 13, 1914.

She was united in marriage with C. R. Page, January 30, 1899. Mr. Page died June 18, 1914. The deceased is survived by four sons, three sisters, Mrs. George Wasser, Mrs. A. R. Page and Mrs. C. Fox, of this place, one brother George Rickett, of Kalamazoo, and a number of nephews and nieces.

The funeral will be held from the home on North street at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, Rev. C. J. Dole officiating. Interment Oak Grove cemetery.

Forty Hours Adoration.

The Forty Hours Adoration will open Sunday, October 18, 1914, at 10 a. m. in the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart. The exercises will be in charge of a Redemptorist priest from Detroit, assisted by the neighboring clergy. Low mass at 5:30 a. m. and high mass at 8 a. m. on Monday and Tuesday. Rosary, sermon and benediction will be given on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. The altars and sanctuary will be beautifully decorated, and the music during the three days will be exceptionally good.

Princess Theatre.

The management of the Princess offers as its feature picture for Saturday night "Broken Vows," a two reel drama. It is a human interest story wherein an innocent girl is the victim of a sad love tragedy. Her greatest fault was loving too well. The man did not appreciate the value of such a love and broke his vows with a light heart, but he paid in full at last. One of the most absorbingly interesting love stories ever played. "When Universal Ike Set," another deliciously funny picture of the adventures of this popular hero and another included in the program.

"Lucille Love" shown every Monday night is growing in interest as the story nears its completion and some of the incidents shown in the latter installments will long be remembered by those who have followed this great serial from week to week.

The Slaybaugh-Marsh Co. have just installed the Diamond Cable Lightning Rods on the fine farm buildings of A. B. Shutes, of Lima, Adam Goetz, of Sylvan, and have also rodded H. S. Holmes' big barn in the city and the house on his farm south of Lima Center.—Adv.

Schwikerath-Long Marriage.

The marriage of Miss Barbara Schwikerath of this place and Harry Long of Detroit, took place in the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, October 14, 1914, the mass being celebrated by Rev. Father Conside. The couple were attended by Miss Elizabeth Schwikerath, sister of the bride, and John Long, brother of the groom.

A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony at the home of the brides' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Schwikerath, to a number of the immediate relatives of the young couple. The groom is a postal clerk in the Detroit postoffice and the couple left for their home in Detroit after the breakfast.

The Halcyon Players.

The Halcyon Players under the management of Thos. H. Sewell are playing to good houses at the Sylvan theatre this week. They have an excellent band with them and each member of the company is good. The company as a whole is the best that has appeared in Chelsea for several years and all who have witnessed their productions are well pleased and speak highly of the entertainment. The company will close Saturday evening and each night they present an entirely new program.

A Handsome Porch.

Younr and Hafley have completed the carpenter work for Geo. W. Scherer, of Francisco, on what is said to be the most handsome cement block porch in that vicinity and possibly within the county. The size of the structure is 36x26x8 feet which is surely one of unique design. The blocks were manufactured by Davidson & Bauer, of Chelsea, were made a chocolate red in color which adds very much to the appearance of the complete work. The blocks were placed in the wall by F. Brooks & Son, of Chelsea. All piers being laid from the foundation up to three blocks above the railing. From the cap on the pier, a possible fifteen inch 8x8 column support the roof, at the same time between every pier or column, the woodwork is carved into a circle or arch which face is overlaid with special cut shingles of a peculiar and very neat design; the ceiling being laid up in a rich log cabin effect.

Possibly what adds to the richness and beauty of the complete job is the painting. The special cut shingles used in covering the arches have been painted in a rich deep maroon to harmonize with the color scheme of the cement blocks in the piers and wall; ceiling has been painted a handsome light sky blue while the columns and inside of the porch work as well as the remainder of the house has been painted a pure white. This valuable addition to the home is one which Mr. Scherer and family should enjoy and well feel proud of.

Change in Ticket.

G. Frank Allmendinger, having refused the nomination for representative of the first district on the Progressive ticket, the county committee of that party held a meeting Saturday evening and named Herbert A. Hodge for the vacancy. As Mr. Hodge had already been nominated for county clerk it was necessary to fill his place on the ticket, and B. F. Savery was chosen.

SEARCHING FOR SPIES IN BELGIUM

Since the discovery of German spies in sacks supposed to contain vegetables, the Belgian soldiers run their bayonets through all packages and bundles on wagons passing along the roads.

ANTWERP TAKEN AFTER SIEGE OF ELEVEN DAYS

King and Army Retreat to Ostend When the Germans Enter the City.

BRITISH AIDED THE DEFENSE

Three English Naval Brigades Helped Belgians—Kaiser's Forces Expected to Advance on Ostend—Airships Drop Bombs on French Capital—Minor News of the War From Various Points.

London, Oct. 13.—The capture of Antwerp by the Germans is to be followed by an attack on Ostend, according to information received here from The Hague.

Messages which arrived in London said a large force of Germans was marching on the seashore resort to which the larger part of the Belgian and British troops retreated after they had been forced to give up the defense of the temporary capital of the nation on Friday.

King Albert of Belgium and practically all of the national officials are in Ostend. The Germans, it is said, hope to make them prisoners. The queen is in England, having taken a steamer from Antwerp when it was seen that the fall of the city was inevitable.

The reports that King Albert had been wounded persist. Persons who saw the king with his troops on Friday state that he had one arm in a sling.

Siege Lasted Only Eleven Days.

Paris, Oct. 12.—The forts surrounding Antwerp and the city are now in complete possession of the Germans, but the greater part of the Belgian army has escaped.

It took the Germans just 11 days to capture one of the strongest fortresses in the world.

An official admission that the British participated in the defense of Antwerp is contained in the admiralty announcement that three naval brigades with heavy guns had been sent there during the last week of the German attack.

The announcement adds that in the retreat from Antwerp two of the British brigades reached Ostend safely. The other, however, was cut off to the north of Lokeren (a town of East Flanders, 12 miles northeast of Ghent), and 2,000 of the men were interned in Holland.

The retreat of the Belgian army was accomplished successfully.

The losses of the British naval brigades probably will be less than three hundred out of a total of 8,000 men.

The fall of Antwerp is evidence that even the most powerful forts are no match for the colossal howitzers which the invaders have successfully employed against every fortified place that stood in their way. These huge guns open gaps through which the besiegers find an entrance for their field artillery and infantry.

The Germans, after shelling the city itself for many hours, making it untenable, entered the town through the suburb of Berchem, to the east. They had made a breach in the outer line of forts, some of which were destroyed by the big guns and others blown up by the defenders.

The Germans followed similar plans in dealing with the inner belt of forts and at the same time threw shells into the city which set afire many places. The inner forts, like those farther out, soon succumbed to the enormous shells, and on Friday morning several of these forts had fallen, opening the way for the Germans into the city. By midday they were in occupation of the town and at 3:30 in the afternoon the war banner on the cathedral was replaced by a white flag, indicating surrender.

Belgian Army Escaped. A few forts continued to hold out, and it was not until eleven o'clock in the morning that the Germans, according to their own official report, were in complete possession of the city and fortresses. When they arrived they found that the Belgian field army and at least part of the garrison had anticipated them, and, like the king and royal family, had escaped.

The death roll resulting from the attack on and defense of Antwerp has not been compiled, and probably the full details never will be known; but all accounts describe it as terribly heavy. The Germans, although their big guns cleared a path for them, had to sacrifice many lives in crossing the rivers and canals and in driving out the defenders, who held the intrenchments to the last.

Refugees Flock to London. Crowds of refugees arrived in London. Most of them left Antwerp Thursday night, and their accounts of the attack are confused. The Belgians themselves besides destroying the forts, blew up steamers at the docks and set fire to the petrol stores and everything that could be of use to the invaders. They also took away what the transports could carry.

Berchem, where the military and other hospitals, the orphanage and some public buildings are situated, is reported to be entirely destroyed. Even if this is an exaggeration, it must be badly damaged, as it was burning at least two days. The Antwerp railway stations also made marks for the shells from the big guns, but according to some of those who remained in the city the cathedral, although hit by shells, is only slightly damaged.

Germany has imposed a fine of 20,000,000 pounds sterling ($100,000,000) on Antwerp as a war indemnity. A dispatch from The Hague says that according to trustworthy information from Belgium the Germans are advancing swiftly toward Ostend with the object of capturing the Belgian king, queen and government officials. It is said the queen has left for England. A dispatch from Rotterdam, Holland, says King Albert and the main Belgian and British force reached Ostend safely in their retreat from Antwerp.

READY TO TAKE OFFENSIVE

Entire German Front Preparing for Move, the Kaiser Believes Will Be Decisive.

London, Oct. 13.—The whole German front is preparing to take the offensive again along a battle line no less than three hundred miles long. German cavalry has advanced within thirty miles of Ostend; Ghent, according to a dispatch to the London Star from Rotterdam, has been captured by the invaders; Uhlans, screening a heavy Prussian force, have been encountered all through the territory west of Lille.

These are maneuvers covering the establishment of the new Belgium battle line reaching out from and connecting with the German right wing in France.

Attack Renewed on Oise.

Between Arras and the Oise the enemy has renewed his attacks with increasing fury; the plateau north of Soissons continues to be the scene of vigorous offensive movements by the kaiser's forces, and Verdun, for eight weeks under almost incessant fire from the German guns, now is to be made the target of the monster howitzers that reduced Antwerp.

Belfort, too, is to be battered by the monster siege guns.

The fall of Antwerp was essential to the consummation of far greater and more stupendous plan of campaign being initiated by the German staff, if for no other reason than that it signaled the crushing of Belgium, making three-quarters of the kingdom solidly held by the kaiser; it eliminated Antwerp as a thorn in the side of Germany, and lastly and most important, it released 130,000 men and the besieging army's big guns, making them available for active operations against the more formidable opponent in France which the kaiser could not move.

This force under General von Bessler, it is expected, will shortly swing in the southwesterly direction, seeking a junction with the army under General von Boehm, who is supporting von Kluck just over the border.

Signal for General Attack. The attempt of this Antwerp attacking army to effect this junction in its westward movement toward the coast will be the signal, military experts here believe, for a general attack along the whole German battle front.

The French general staff has anticipated this strategy and during the past week is reported to have concentrated sufficient troops at Ostend, including the newly arrived British forces, the Canadian regiments who are reported to have arrived there, and the Belgians, who have come to Antwerp, to be ready to meet the new German front.

The greatest activity in France aside from the cavalry movements west of Lille occurred in the region of Lassigny, Roye, Lens and Arras. The heaviest fighting took place at Lens, where repeated assaults by the Germans were repulsed with great losses, according to the French official communique.

The French war office also reports progress in the engagement being fought on the plateau before Soissons, on the right bank of the Aisne, and to the east and southeast of Verdun. In the Vosges the Germans essayed numerous night attacks in the region of Bau-de-Sapt, north of St. Die, with no success. They were forced to retire.

German Official Statement. London, Oct. 13.—A dispatch to Reuter's from Berlin says the German general staff issued this statement covering operations in the east: "In the eastern theater we repulsed in the north all attacks of the First and Tenth Russian armies on October 9 and 10. The Russian outflanking efforts by way of Schirwindt (East Prussia) equally were repulsed and the Russians lost 1,000 prisoners.

In South Poland the advance guards of our armies have reached the Vistula. Near Grojec, south of Warsaw, we captured 2,000 men of the Second Siberian army corps.

The Russian official communication about a great Russian victory at Augustowo and Suwalki (Russian Poland) are invented. The fact that no official Russian communication has been published about the tremendous defeats at Tannenberg and Interberg (both in East Prussia) vouches a lack of reliable official information."

More Bombs Dropped on Paris. Paris, Oct. 5.—A German aeroplane made another bomb raid on Paris. No one was killed and little damage was caused by the explosives. The daring pilot was chased by French aviators, but escaped.

About mid-afternoon a Taube aeroplane circled over the city dropping six bombs. Two of the explosives fell between two railroad trains that were about to pull out of the Northern railroad station. The missiles did not explode, and later were found imbedded in two feet of earth. The railroad trains were crowded with passengers.

Other bombs fell in the Rue Pouchet, on the Boulevard Bessieres and on the Boulevard Clichy, but did no damage.

A bomb dropped at St. Ouen did not explode. This missile fell within a short distance of a large paint factory, where there is a gasoline tank with a capacity of 80,000 gallons.

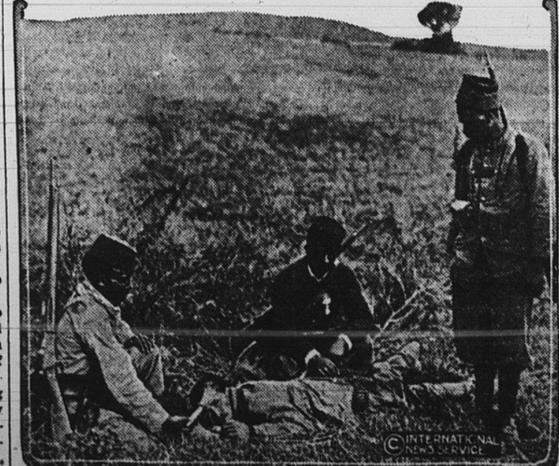

GENERAL NEWS OF THE WAR

Austrian Commanders Removed From the Field—Russian Cruiser Sunk by German Submarines.

Venice, Oct. 13.—A dispatch from Vienna announces the sudden removal of the commanders of five Austrian army corps and the appointment of Gen. Svetozar Borsovic as the new commander of the third army.

The commanders dismissed are Gen. Baron Giesl von Gieslingen of the Eighth army corps; Gen. Kolosovary von Kolosovary von Kolosav, of the Eleventh army corps, and Gen. Meixner von Zwielenstann of the Seventh army corps, and the commanders of the Sixth and Seventeenth corps.

TURCOS NOT ALWAYS PITILESS

That the French Turcos are not always the ferocious savages they have been called is evidenced by this photograph, in which some of them are seen caring for a wounded German soldier.

The newly appointed commanders are General Ars, Sixth corps; General Griselet, Seventh corps; General Scheuchemstel, Eighth corps; General Lublic, Eleventh corps, and Gen. Kritek, Seventeenth corps. It is officially stated that the commanders retired on their own request because of reasons of health. The newspapers of Vienna make no comment on the changes.

Russ Cruiser and 568 Men Lost. Petrograd, Oct. 14.—It is officially announced that a German submarine torpedoed and sank the Russian armored cruiser Pallada in the Baltic sea. Of the Pallada's crew of 580 men 568 were lost.

The Pallada was attacked by the submarine while she was in the act of pursuing a Dutch ship in the Baltic, evidently to board her and ascertain her destination and cargo. The Pallada went to the bottom at the first attack.

The submarine then turned upon two of the Pallada's sister ships, which were cruising near by. The cruisers opened fire on the German boat and it plunged under the surface and disappeared.

Russ Flee From Przemysl. London, Oct. 14.—A dispatch from Amsterdam to Reuter's Telegraph company says: "A telegram from Vienna states it is officially announced that the Austrian rapid advance has relieved Przemysl, Galicia, of the Russians. The Austrians have entered the fortress at all points and where the Russians attempted resistance they were beaten. The Russians fled in the direction of the River San, attempting to cross at Sniplava and Lenayak, where a great number were captured. The Austrians also claim victories over the Russians at Lancut and Dynow, in Galicia.

Germanians Rout French Cavalry. London, Oct. 14.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegraph company from Berlin, by way of Amsterdam, gives the following statement issued by the German general staff: "Our cavalry completely routed a French cavalry division west of Lille and near Hazebrouck we inflicted severe losses on another French cavalry division. Until now the engagements on the front in the western theater did not lead to a decision.

"About the booty at Antwerp no reports can be made."

Kaiser Rushes Troops to France. London, Oct. 14.—Three German army corps (129,000 men) have been released from the siege of Antwerp and are being rushed to France, says a dispatch from the Belgian capital.

Belgians Reach Holland. The Hague, Oct. 14.—A dispatch to the Nieuwe Courant from Hulst, Holland, quotes a Belgian officer as saying that the total number of Belgian and British soldiers who have crossed from Belgium into Holland is about 26,000.

German Armies in the Field. Rome, Oct. 12.—From reliable information it is learned that German forces at present engaged consist of 54 army corps, 27 of the line troops and 27 of reserves, totaling 2,200,000 men and distributed as follows:

- France 24 Belgium 6 Thurn-Cracow 11 East Prussia 13 In addition there are 1,600,000 territorial garrisons in Germany. Half a million recruits are expected to be fully trained by November.

More Aid From Australia. London, Oct. 12.—The official press bureau tonight announced that the British war office had accepted the offer made by Australia to send over another light horse brigade with a field ambulance corps.

Russian War Report. Petrograd, Oct. 12.—The following official statement was issued tonight by the chief of the general staff: "On October 11 fighting began on the left bank of the Vistula, in the direction of Ivangorod and Warsaw.

"There is no change at other points on our front."

Prussian War Casualties. London, Oct. 13.—The 44 lists of losses in the Prussian army, which have been published, contain a total of 211,000 killed, wounded and missing. The lists do not include losses among the Bavarians, Saxons and Wurtembergians.

GERMANS SEEM TO HAVE NEW PLAN TO STRIKE ENGLAND

Belgium Capital is Moved into France and Invaders Sweep Across Country

ARMIES MASSING IN EAST FOR GREAT STRUGGLE

London Experts Believe Kaiser Plans to Occupy Whole of Belgium As Base for Operations Against Great Britain.

London—That Germany is holding the allied armies in France at bay, checking the advance of the Russians in the east and sweeping through Belgium with the purpose of seizing the coast and aiming a blow at England is the sum of the war news as interpreted here recently.

The move of the Belgian government from Ostend, its last haven of rest in its own land, to Havre, in France, is regarded as a mere incident which was only to be expected after the fall of Antwerp.

The taking of Lille, France, by the Germans is also a mere incident, say London experts, as are the reported advances of the allies. But at the two extreme points of the war theaters—west Belgium and Russian Poland—the activities of the Germans as revealed Wednesday are considered all important. Their march toward the North sea was practically uninterrupted, while their advance in Russian Poland progressed so favorably that dispatches from Warsaw, the capital, said the fall of that city was imminent.

Other dispatches from the eastern theater indicate that the opposing armies of the Czar and the Teutonic allies are withdrawing from other points of conflict and massing in Russian Poland for a battle of almost as great proportions as that in the west.

To London, of course, the all important situation is that in Belgium and across the French border around Lille. The third move of the Belgian government followed quickly upon the German westward advance which was begun immediately after the fall of Antwerp. Success in talking the chief port of Belgium opened the way for a new plan of campaign which embraces the occupation of the whole of Belgium, including the coast towns and if possible some of the northern French ports.

In accordance with this new plan, the German invaders have begun to sweep across northern Belgium. Monday they occupied Ghent without opposition and are now said to be well advanced toward Bruges on their way to Ostend. They probably will meet with strong opposition before they reach Bruges, as the Belgian army is now being reorganized and has been reinforced.

All dispatches from that region are strictly censored, so that nothing has been learned of the operations since Ghent fell into the hands of the Germans. The people are fleeing before the invaders and the steamers from Ostend.

General Louis Botha, formerly a commander of Boer forces and now premier of the Union of South Africa, will lead the British troops against Colonel S. G. Maritz, who, with the aid of German Southwest Africa, has instituted operations for the establishment of a republic in South Africa, declaring independence for England. Martial law is proclaimed throughout the entire union.

BRAVES TAKE WORLD SERIES

Boston National League Team Takes Four Straight Games From Athletics.

Boston—By winning Tuesday's game by the score of 3 to 1, the Boston Braves became world champions, having taken four straight games from Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. This is the first time a world series has been decided in four games. The scores of the preceding games were as follows: Friday, 7 to 1; Saturday, 1 to 0; Monday, 5 to 4.

BRIEF NOTES OF WAR

London—Dispatches from Rome and Petrograd say reports are in circulation that Przemysl, the Austrian fortress in Galicia which has been besieged by the Russians for some time, has fallen.

Rome—A news dispatch from Vienna says that there are 40 new cases of cholera among Austrian soldiers at Tarnow, Galicia.

London—Henry W. Diederich, American consul general at Antwerp, arrived at Ghent, Belgium, Thursday, according to the Ghent correspondent of the Daily Telegraph.

London—A Reuter dispatch from Petrograd announces the arrival there of an American Red Cross detachment consisting of five surgeons and 25 nurses on their way to the front.

FIVE ARE ELECTED

FIVE BIG BUSINESS MEN OF MICHIGAN ADDED TO BOARD OF LIFE INSURANCE CO.

20 MILLION DOLLAR COMPANY

Michigan Directors to Promote Increase of 7,500 Michigan Policyholders.

Fort Wayne, Indiana, October 14.—A matter of great interest to Michigan life insurance policyholders in Michigan is the fact that the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company of this city, one of the large companies with a great many Michigan policyholders, has taken the progressive step of electing five Michigan men to its board of directors. They are:

Hon. Edwin Denby.

Edwin Denby of the well-known law firm of Chamberlain, May, Denby & Webster of Detroit, and also a director in the Denby Motor Truck company and National Bank of Commerce and the treasurer of the Hupp Motor Car company.

Albert E. Sleeper, formerly treasurer of state and a banker at Bad Axe and other cities in the Thumb District. He is also a director in the Merchants National Bank of Detroit.

Henry E. Morton, president of the Morton Manufacturing company and president of the State Savings bank at Muskegon Heights, Michigan.

Henry C. Loveridge, a prominent attorney at Coldwater.

Burt S. Stratton, a prominent life insurance agent and citizen of Lansing.

There are five Michigan life insurance companies and at the end of last year their combined insurance in force in the state amounted to less than 1 per cent of the life insurance carried by the sixty-seven companies from out of the state which wrote insurance in Michigan.

So far as we know, the Lincoln Life of Fort Wayne is the first outside company to elect Michigan directors to its board and thus lend the assurance to its 7,500 Michigan policyholders that their interests are being looked after on the board of directors by big business men of their own state. This move on the part of the Lincoln Life ought to assure Michigan people that their interests are receiving careful attention and that the company merits the entire confidence of Michigan people.

The Lincoln Life has over twenty-one millions of life insurance in force and about eight millions of it is on the lives of Michigan citizens. It is writing new two million dollars a year and has about 40 per cent of its entire assets invested in Michigan real estate loans and municipal bonds. In other words the life insurance premiums that have been paid on these Michigan policies have been reinvested in the state to help build up the resources of the Michigan people. This is more than any other outside company does and it should result in a greatly increased Michigan business for this splendid company.

The Lincoln Life is seeking to add to its already splendid agency force in Michigan and should like to receive applications from Michigan men or women who seek employment or desire to better their present positions. There is no line of work open to a person of average education and ability, without capital or influence, in which the opportunities for accumulating immediate financial returns, building up a substantial income and attaining to a position of importance and prominence in the business affairs of a community, are equal to the opportunities offered by a life insurance agency. The only capital required is clean character, a clear head, honesty of purpose, tact, enthusiasm and a big surplus of indomitable energy and grit determination to succeed. The grim determination to succeed is endowed with these prerequisites the man or woman who takes up life insurance work need have no fear of failure, and if he or she will carefully study the business, making the best possible use of time and opportunities, there are no chances on profits as success is certain. BOILER EXPLODES IN BATTLE CREEK

TWO SERIOUSLY INJURED AND FREIGHT SHEDS BADLY DAMAGED.

DOZEN ARE SLIGHTLY HURT

Women Victim Receives Further Injuries When Police Motor Car Taking Her Home is Wrecked Against Curb.

Battle Creek—A dozen were injured, two very seriously, and much damage done to property Tuesday noon when a boiler at the Grand Trunk freight sheds on South Jefferson avenue blew up and tore its surroundings to pieces. The seriously injured were: Otto Zanooy, car inspector, and Mrs. Mary Zanooy, a visitor at the office, whose condition is serious.

Mrs. Zanooy was injured the second time when the police motor car was taking to her home was wrecked on Maple street. The chauffeur deliberately hit the curb to avoid running down a careless small boy on a bicycle. The car was badly damaged and Mrs. Zanooy given an additional shock and bruises.

The other injured were office men and roustabouts, a dozen of whom were hurt by flying glass and splinters, but not seriously.

A gaping hole was torn in the main floor, while every window, electric globe, or other glass in the long building, was shattered and the partitions throughout the place were blown out. The fire started, but was extinguished.

TO OPEN GREAT LOCK OCT. 21

Largest in World to Be Put Into Operation Without Ceremony.

Sault Ste. Marie—October 21 has been set as the day for the official opening of lock No. 3 of St. Mary's ship canal here. There will be no formal ceremony. The machinery will be started, the water turned in, and the largest canal lock in the world, 80 by 1,250 feet, will be ready for navigation.

During the last few days, the gate machinery and pumps have been tested to the satisfaction of those in charge of the installation.

Work on the excavation for the fourth lock is progressing and will be nearly completed this winter. While there is sufficient money on hand to nearly complete excavating, another appropriation will be necessary for the concrete construction work.

Man Kills Divorced Wife.

Milan—Mrs. Mary Kosuru was shot to death by her divorced husband, Frank, here Monday. He gave himself up to the authorities and was turned over to the sheriff at Monroe.

Since the couple was divorced, several months ago, Kosuru, has been jealous of the woman, and Monday he went to a house where she had been living, met her without warning and shot her through the heart. He then went down town and surrendered to an officer.

The Kosurus have three children, who were placed in an orphanage following the granting of the divorce decree.

Youth Gets Verdict for Injuries.

Battle Creek—Though Charles Cooper, a youth, was not seriously injured when struck by Mrs. Elen Gifford's automobile, several weeks ago, big scars were left on his face, where a circuit court jury Thursday gave him $750 damages against Mrs. Gifford. Claiming the blemishes would always handicap Cooper, his attorneys sought $5,000 damages. The defense will appeal from the $750 judgment. The boy, 14 years old, was riding a bicycle when he was hurt.

LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

ATTORNEY GENERAL GIVES AN OPINION ON EFFECT OF INSURANCE AMENDMENT.

SOCIETIES TO OPPOSE ACT

Michigan Will Be Suitably Represented at the National Dairy Show to Be Held in Chicago This Month.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing—The proposed amendment to the constitution regarding fraternal insurance societies, according to Attorney-General Fellows, would, if adopted, bring about changes in existing insurance laws in Michigan that would be revolutionary.

Chiefly, he holds that the passage of the amendment would practically bar intervention hereafter in fraternal insurance societies by the state insurance department or any state official. This is the most serious point.

Under the laws now the state insurance commissioner has the authority to intervene in the fraternal business and compel the levying of an assessment, where such would be necessary to meet obligations, either present or immediately possible. The proposed amendment, according to the opinion, would remove this ban and leave the fraternal insurance companies practically immune, both from the commissioner and from any law which the legislature might pass in an attempt to rectify such discrepancy.

Michigan state banks and trust companies show a gain of $3,367,912.28 in aggregate business since the report of June 30, 1914, according to statistics compiled by Banking Commissioner E. H. Doyle. According to the report the loans and discounts of the commercial and savings departments amounted to $187,788,197.06, while the bonds, mortgages and securities amounted to $179,803,086.19.

Compared to the report of June 30, the following increases are shown: Commercial loans and discounts $5,066,387.18; savings loans and discounts $155,664.99; commercial bonds and mortgages $1,359,873.20; savings bonds and mortgages $1,857,398.54. This makes a total increase in loans of $8,398,923.91. Commercial deposits increased $5,744,030.91 while savings deposits decreased $3,008,849.66, making the net increase in deposits $2,735,181.25.

Compared with the report of one year ago commercial loans and discounts increased $8,233,230.20. Savings loans and discounts decreased $2,155,264.99; commercial bonds and mortgages increased $6,456,633.92 and savings bonds and mortgages increased $1,179,015.94. During the past year commercial deposits increased $19,488,370.51 and savings deposits increased $5,733,152.54.

The total reserve maintained by Michigan State Banks and trust companies September 12, 1914, was $71,461,924.17 or 19.68 per cent. The total cash reserve amounted to $27,556,510.09 or 7.59 per cent. The reserves are divided as follows: Savings legal reserve $37,396,953.14 or 16.81 per cent; savings cash reserve $13,978,274.67 or 6.28 per cent; commercial legal reserve $24,064,971.03 or 24.24 per cent; commercial cash reserve $13,758,240 or 9.66 per cent. The total reserve carried by Michigan state banks is $13,391,577.43 over the requirements of the banking law.

Based on savings deposits of $222,479,333.06, the law requires mortgage and bond investments of at least $117,049,427.95. Doyle's report shows that the mortgage and bond investments exceed the requirements of the law by $37,071,268.86. The savings investments, together with the savings reserve, exceed the savings deposits by $8,701,111.70.

The agricultural and dairying interests of Michigan are to be represented in a fitting manner at the National Dairy Show to be held in Chicago, October 22 to 31. An exhibit-space 12x30 feet in size has been secured and will be decorated with the products of our fields and orchards. Many hundreds of photographs of Michigan purebred dairy cattle will be exhibited by way of showing visitors at the Show that this state is a candidate for first honors in the production of purebred dairy animals.

Officials of the Michigan Dairymen's Association who will have active charge of the exhibit are Secretary George H. Brownell and M. W. Wentworth, member of the board of directors. They will be assisted in welcoming visitors to the exhibit by Hon. A. C. Carton, secretary of the Public Domain Commission and Commissioner of Immigration; Prof. A. C. Anderson, head of Dairy Husbandry Department, Michigan Agricultural College, D. D. Aitkin, president of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America; James W. Helme, Dairy and Food Commissioner, and by officials connected with various live stock organizations and the three development bureaus of the state.

Monday, October 26, has been named as "Michigan Day" and has also been named by the breeders of Holstein-Friesian cattle as "Holstein Day." There is a strong probability that an informal meeting of Michigan folks will be held on Monday evening, at which addresses will be made by leading Michigan men and by others prominent in national dairying affairs.

In addition to serving as an exhibit space for Michigan agricultural products, the space set aside for this state will be fitted up to serve as a resting-place where one may leave wraps and parcels and feel thoroughly at home.

DAIRY

CARING FOR BREEDING COWS

No Question That Growing and Selling Calves Under Proper Conditions is Profitable Business.

In part, no doubt, the difficulty of getting a high percentage of calves arises from sending dry cows to the shambles. The cow that has suckled down often falls to get in calf next year. She is in calf and fat and away she goes. Another cow that has raised a calf takes a rest next year, and so on.

One advantage of selling the calf crop to the feeder rather than yearlings or older cattle is that so much more attention and feed can be given to the breeding cows and their higher condition and vitality will enable them to produce more calves.

If there is a shortage of feed it will usually be noticed that heifers that breed young and older cows that have been breeding take a lay off, and this is undesirable, with calves at present prices.

A good calf is worth $25 to $30, and selling even a few of these will furnish hay to winter several mother cows that lay the golden egg. There is no question that growing and selling calves under proper conditions is a paying business, both for the grower and the feeder who buys them, as they go to the feed lot in splendid condition, but it will not pay unless the cows receive enough attention and are kept breeding, except as a more or less speculative proposition, depending on the prices at which cows are bought and sold.

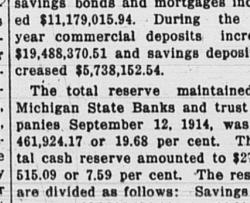

Where the production of really high-class feeder calves is the end in view, these can be constantly increased in value by more feed and better cows.

WINDOW FOR A DAIRY BARN

Opening That Will Admit Fresh Air and Prevent Draft on Stock—Held Open by Cloth.

A practical dairy barn window is made by placing the hinges at the lower edge of the sash, as shown, and attaching canvas at the ends so that the cloth will hold the sash partly open, writes Ralph V. Crane of Ypsilanti, Mich., in Popular Mechanics. This will deflect the air currents upward toward the ceiling and prevent draft on the stock.

Practical Barn Window.

DOG SHOULD BE DISCARDED

No Excuse for Sending Snapping Cur After Cows With Full Udders—Better to Take Horse.

When cows are in the pastures do not send a vicious dog to drive them in. The cow that is run to the house by a dog that is continually snapping at her heels must suffer a great deal of pain as her udder is thrown from side to side by the movement of her feet limbs. If a man is too lazy to walk after his cows he had better get on his horse and ride. A well trained dog may be allowed to bring them in, for he quietly walks behind them and does not bring them down the lane at a two-forty gait.

DAIRY NOTES

Safety first is the best policy in handling the dairy bull.

When you build a barn see that it is comfortable and sanitary.

Every cow in the herd should be halter-broken. Begin while they are calves.

If you haven't one, there is still time to put up a silo for this winter's feeding.

The calf should be given fine locks of hay when young to encourage its appetite.

To have a calf that will mature into a valuable individual give it proper care from the start.

In any but a round silo the silage does not settle well, and even settling is what makes quality in silage.

Scours is far too common a malady with young calves and if not checked the outcome may be disastrous.

The cow that has to spend two thirds of her time fighting flies can not count for much at the milk pail.

WHAT HE REALLY DID SAY

Remark Might Almost Be Construed as a Slur on a Most Noble Profession.

One morning Gifford met his old friend, Hall. After they had greeted they did under pretense of studying each other, Gifford said:

"Say, Will, I heard today that your son, Thomas, was an undertaker. I thought you told me he was a physician."

"Oh, no," replied Hall, positively, "I never told you that."

"I don't like to contradict you, old friend," insisted Gifford, "but, really, I'm positive you did say so."

"No, you probably misunderstood me," explained Hall. "I told you he followed the medical profession."—Ex-Nat.

"What caused that awkward break in the conversation?"

"Some one dropped the subject."

Some men are so constituted that they would do anything for money, except work for it.

What a Cold Can Do

Many a fatal case of kidney disease starts from a simple cold or chill. Congestion closes and weakens the kidneys. Uric poisons collect, damage the kidneys and cause backache, rheumatic pain, headaches and urinary disorder.

When doctoring a cold, think of the kidneys. Drink water freely to help flush out the poisons. Take Doan's Kidney Pills to relieve congestion of the kidneys, give up a heavy meal and take plenty of rest. History will testify to the cure. Doan's Kidney Pills are used with success and are publicly recommended all over the civilized world.

A Michigan Case

Joseph Hoover, 308 S. Catherine St., Bay City, Mich., says: "I first noticed a sediment in the kidney secretions, then my back began to ache and I couldn't bend over. I often got so dizzy I had to sit down. Doctors' medicine had no effect and I became thin and weak. Doan's Kidney Pills went to the root of the trouble and three boxes completely cured me. Since then my kidneys and back have given me no trouble whatever."

is the canal of life but it becomes a sewer if clogged up. All life consists of building up and tearing down and just in the same manner that the blood carries to the various parts of the body the food that the cells need for building up, so it is compelled to carry away the waste material that's torn down. These waste materials are poisonous and destroy us unless the liver and kidneys are stimulated into refreshed and vigorous life.

DR. PIERCE'S Golden Medical Discovery is the balancing power—a vitalizing power. It acts on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition—on the purifying filters which clean the blood. Thus fresh vitalized blood feeds the nerves, heart—and brain. This well known alternative relieves catarrh of the stomach and headaches accompanying same, and has been successful for more than a generation as a tonic and body-builder. It builds up the rundown system. You need it—if you are always "catching cold"—or have catarrh of the nose and throat. The active medicinal principles of American-Indian-roots are extracted without alcohol and you can obtain this tonic in liquid or tablet form at any drug store or send 50 cents in 1-cent stamps for trial box of tablets.

"A SHINE IN EVERY DROP"

Black Silk Stove Polish is different. It does not dry out; can be used to the last drop; liquid and paste are one; no dust or dirt. You get your money's worth.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Is not only most economical, but it gives a brilliant, silvery lustre that cannot be obtained with any other polish. Black Silk Stove Polish does not rub off—it lasts four times as long as ordinary polish—so it saves you time, work and money.

Don't forget—when you want stove polish, be sure to ask for Black Silk. If it isn't the best stove polish, you ever used—your dealer will refund your money.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works, Sterling, Illinois.

Use Black Silk Air Drying Iron Enamel on grates, registers, stove-pipes, and automobile tire rims. Prevents rusting. Try it.

Use Black Silk Metal Polish on silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

EDWIN H. SMITH
Republican Candidate for COUNTY TREASURER
Your support will be appreciated at the Election November 3.

To the Voters of Washtenaw County:
Having during the past two years given to the people of Washtenaw county what I modestly believe to have been a satisfactory administration of the County Clerk's office, I take the liberty of asking the voters, to support my candidacy on the Democratic ticket at the coming election for a second term.

In addition to my experience in the affairs of the County Clerk's office, I bring to the discharge of its duties my well known willingness to spare no efforts to serve every resident of the county to the best of my ability.

I hope you will find it consistent with your appreciation of my public record, to vote for me, by marking a cross opposite my name on the election ballot.

GEORGE W. BECKWITH.

VOTE FOR
MARK R. BACON
For Representative in Congress

REPUBLICAN NOMINEE

I believe this government should be run as a business man would run his business—on business principles, and economically. I do not believe in a FREE TRADE that has proven detrimental to the farming, laboring and business interests of this country.

I do not believe in a WAR TAX of ONE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS in time of peace—when it is merely a cloak to cover the political extravagance of the party in power.

I do not believe in killing the BEEF SUGAR and SHEEP interests or in making our country a DEBTOR NATION.

I do not believe in sitting on the Congressional stew kettle when the people are tired of political legislation detrimental to their interests, and are asking that Congress adjourn and give the country a rest.

Do you remember that BIG promise made by the Democrats in 1912 that they would lower the High Cost of Living? Now honestly, HAS the High Cost of Living been lowered?

Up along the hillside and after the fugitives they ran with veiled eagerness, racing each other for the higher ground and the first shot at the rebels. First Alvarez on his white horse would be ahead, and then, as they encountered rocks, the Yaquis would surge to the front. It was a race and at the same time it was a rout, for, at the first glimpse of that oncoming body of warriors, the cowardly followers of Bernardo Bravo took to their heels and fled.

But over the rocks no Chihuahuan, no matter how scared, can hop to outdistance a Yaqui, and the pop, pop of rifles told the fate of the first luckless stragglers. For the Yaquis, after a hundred and sixty years of guerrilla warfare, never waste a shot; and as savage yells and the crash of a sudden volley drifted down from the rocky heights the men who had been besieged in Fortuna knew that death was abroad in the hills.

Fainter and fainter came the shots as the pursuit led on to the north and, as Hooker strained his eyes to follow a huge form that intuition told him was Amigo, he was wakened suddenly from his preoccupation by the touch of some unseen hand. He was in the open with people all about him—Spanish refugees, Americans, triumphant miners and their wives—but that touch made him forget the battle above him and instantly think of Gracia.

He turned and hurried back to the corral where Copper Bottom was kept, and there he found her waiting, with her roan all saddled, and she challenged him with her eyes. The sun gleamed from a pistol that she held in her hand, and again from her golden hair, but he saw only her eyes, so brave and daring, and the challenge to mount and ride.

Only for a moment did he stand before her gaze, and then he caught up his saddle and spoke soothingly to his horse. They rode out of the corral together, closing the gates behind them and passing down a gulch to the rear. All the town lay silent below them as they turned toward the western pass.

The time had come. Well he knew the dangers that lay between them and the American line. Dangers not for him but for her. In the hills and passes and on the cactus-covered plain were thousands of men with whom she would not be safe for an instant, and against whom he must guard her that she might be delivered safely to Phil. And he loved her then as he had not believed it possible to love a woman. He loved this woman that he was attempting to save for another man, a "pardner" who had at the best been reckless of every trust, who had been unfaithful to every promise. And across the border this man was waiting for the woman Bud Hooker loved. That he take her to him was a more severe test of his manhood than any to which he had before been subjected. That he be untrue to the trust she reposed in him never entered his mind for a moment. With a strong man's love for her he thought only of how he was to conduct her safely out of the dangers which surrounded her.

Soldiers, miners, and refugees, men, women, and children, every soul in Fortuna was on the hill to see the last of the battle. It had been a crude affair, but bravely ended, and something in the dramatic suddenness of this victory had held all eyes to the close. Bud and Gracia passed out of town unnoticed, and as soon as they had rounded the point they spurred on till they gained the pass.

"I knew you would come!" said Gracia, smiling radiantly as they paused at the fork.

"Sure!" answered Hooker with his good-humored smile. "Count me in on anything—which way does this trail go, you know?"

"It goes west twelve miles toward Arispe," replied Gracia confidently, "and then it comes into the main road that leads north to Nogales and Gadsden."

"That sounds about right for us," replied Bud. "Gadsden's the place we want to head for, and we want to get there mighty quick, too, if them rebels will let us, an' I guess that's what they'll have to do whether they want to or not."

They rode on together for some distance, the girl seemingly oblivious of the dangers which surrounded her, and Hooker watching carefully for every sign of difficulty.

"What is there up here?" inquired Bud, pointing at a fainter trail that led off toward the north. "This country is new to me. Don't know, eh? Well, if I followed that trail we'd run into them rebels, anyway, so you might as well go to the west. Is your saddle all right? We'll hit it up then—I'd like to strike a road before dark."

They hurried on, following a well-marked trail that alternately climbed ridges and descended into arroyos, until finally it dropped down into a position where a swollen stream rushed and bubbled and, while they still watched expectantly for the road, the evening quickly passed. They had no opportunity for conversation, for the trail was too narrow to permit of their riding side by side. Bud was thinking not only of the dangers that surrounded them, but of this errand on which he was engaged, and what the end of it meant to him.

First the slanting rays of the sun struck fire from the high yellow crags, then the fire faded and the sky glowed an opal-blue; then, through dark blues and purples the heavens turned to black above them and all the stars came out. Thousands of frogs made the canyon resound with their throaty songs and strange animals crashed through the brush at their approach, but still Hooker stayed in the saddle and Gracia followed on behind.

If she had thought in her dreams of an easier journey she made no comment now and, outside of stopping to cinch up her saddle, Bud seemed hardly to know she was there. The trail was not going to suit him—it edged off too far to the south—and yet, in the tropical darkness, he could not search out new ways to go.

At each fork he paused to light a match, and whichever way the mule-tracks went he went also, for pack-mules would take the main trail. For two hours and more they followed on down the stream and then Hooker stopped his horse.

"You might as well get down and rest a while," he said quietly. "This trail is no good—it's taking us south. We'll let our horses feed until the moon comes up and I'll try to work north by landmarks."

"Oh—are we lost?" gasped Gracia, dropping stiffly to the ground. "But of course we are," she added. "I've been thinking so for some time."

"Oh, that's all right," observed Hooker philosophically; "I don't mind being lost as long as I know where I'm at. We'll ride back until we get out of this dark canyon and then I'll lay a line due north."

They sat for a time in the darkness while their horses champed at the rich grass and then, unable to keep down her nerves, Gracia declared for a start. A vision of angry pursuers rose up in her mind—of Manuel del Rey and his keen-eyed rurales, hot upon their trail—and it would not let her rest.

Nor was the vision entirely the result of nervous imagination, for they had lost half the advantage of their start, as Hooker well knew, and if he made one more false move he would find himself called on to fight. As they rode back through the black canyon he asked himself for the hundredth time how it had all happened—why, at a single glance from her, he had gone against his better judgment and plunged himself into this tangle. And then, finally, what was he going to do about it?

But he knew what he was going to do about it. He knew he was going to take this girl through to Gadsden and to Phil, and his loyalty was such that he would not admit, even to himself, that Phil did not deserve her.

Alone, he would have taken to the mountains with a fine disregard for trails, turning into whichever served his purpose best and following the lay of the land. Even with her in his care it would be best to do that yet, for there would be trailers on their track at sunup, and it was either ride or fight.

Free at last from the pent-in canyon, they halted at the forks, while Bud looked out the land by moonlight. Dim and ghostly, the square-topped peaks and buttes rose all about him, huge and impassable except for the winding trails. He turned up a valley between two ridges, spurring his horse into a fast walk.

From one cow trail to another he picked out a way to the north, but the lay of the ground threw him to the east and there were no passes between the hills. The country was rocky, with long parallel ridges extending to the northeast, and when he saw where the way was taking him Bud called a halt till dawn.

By the very formation he was being gradually edged back toward Fortuna, and it would call for fresh horses and a rested Gracia to outstrip their pursuers by day. If the rurales traveled by landmarks, heading for the northern passes in an effort to out-ride and intercept him, they might easily cut him off at the start; but if they trailed him—and he devoutly hoped they would—then they would have a tangled skein to follow and he could lose them in the broken country to the north.

So thinking, he cut grass among the rocks, spread down their saddle-blankets and watched over the browsing horses while Gracia stretched out on the bed. After a day of excitement and a night of hard riding there is no call for a couch of down, and as the morning star appeared in the east she slept while Bud sat patiently by.

It was no new task for him, this watching and waiting for the dawn. For weeks at a time, after a hard day's work at the branding, he had stood guard half the night. Sleep was a luxury to him, like water to a mountain-sheep—and so were all the other useless things that town-bred people required.

People like Gracia, people like Phil—they were different in all their ways. To ride, to fight, to find the way—there he was a better man than Phil; to speak to a woman, to know her ways, and to enter into her life—there he was no man at all.

She trusted to his courage to protect her, and that he could do, but it was to a man such as Phil she would give her love. Phil could not love her more than he did, but Phil's ways could be more attractive to her. His adventurous life with his father had not been such as to cultivate the little niceties that appealed to women. It was only his privilege to serve, but he gloried in that privilege now as he watched beside her as she slept, and his vigil but strengthened his resolution to see her safely through to Phil.

He sighed now as he saw the first flush of dawn and turned to where she slept, calm and beautiful, in the solemn light. How to waken her, even that was a question, but the time had come to start.

Already, from Fortuna, Del Rey and his man-killing rurales would be on the trail. He would come like the wind, that dashing little captain, and nothing but a bullet would stop him; for his honor was at stake. Nay, he had told Bud in so many words:

"She is mine, and no man shall come between us!"

It would be hard now if the rurales should prove too many for him—if a bullet should check him in their flight and she be left alone. But how to waken her? He tramped near as he led up the unwilling mounts; then, as time pressed, he spoke to her, and at last he knelt at her side.

"Say!" he called, and when that did not serve he laid his hand on her shoulder.

"Wake up!" he said, shaking her gently. "Wake up, it's almost day!"

Even as he spoke he went back to the phrase of the cow-camp—where men rise before it is light. But Gracia woke up wondering and stared about her strangely, unable to understand.

"Why—what is it?" she cried. Then, as he spoke again and backed away, she remembered him with a smile.

"Oh," she said, "is it time to get up? Where are we, anyway?"

"About ten miles from Fortuna," answered Hooker soberly. "Too close—we ought to be over that divide."

He pointed ahead to where the valley narrowed and passed between two hills, and Gracia sat up, binding back her hair that had fallen from its place.

"Yes, yes!" she said resolutely. "We must go on—why do you look at me so strangely?"

"Don't know," mumbled Bud. "Didn't know I was. Say, let me get them saddle-blankets, will you?"

He went about his work with embarrassed swiftness, clapping on saddles and bridles, coiling up ropes, and offering her his hand to mount. When he looked at her again it was not strangely.

"Hope you can ride," he said. "We got to get over that pass before anybody else makes it—after that we can take a rest."

"As fast as you please," she answered steadily. "Don't think about me. But what will happen if—they get there first?"

She was looking at him now as he searched out the trail ahead, but he pretended not to hear. One man in that pass was as good as a hundred, and there were only two things he could do—shoot his way through, or turn back. He believed she would not want to turn back.

To the west and north rose the high and impassable mountain which had barred their way in the night; across the valley the flat-topped Fortunas threw their bulwark against the dawn; and all behind was broken hills and gulches, any one of which might give up armed men. Far ahead, like a knife-gash between the ridges, lay the pass to the northern plains, and as their trail swung out into the open they put spurs to their horses and galloped.

Once through that gap, the upper country would lie before them and they could pick and choose. Now they must depend upon speed and the chance that their way was not blocked.

Somewhere in those hills to the east Bernardo Bravo and his men were hidden. Or perhaps they were scattered, turned by their one defeat into roving bandits or vengeful partisans, laying waste the Sonoran ranches as they fought their way back to Chihuahua. There were a hundred evil chances that might befall the fugitives, and while Bud scanned the country ahead Gracia cast anxious glances behind.

"They are coming!" she cried at last, as a moving spot appeared in the rear. "Oh, there they are!"

"Good!" breathed Hooker, as he rose in his stirrups and looked.

"Why, good?" she demanded, curiously.

"They's only three of 'em," answered Bud. "I was afraid they might be in front," he explained, as she gazed at him with a puzzled smile.

"Yes," she said; "but what will you do if they catch us?"

"They won't catch us," replied Hooker confidently. "Not while I've got my rifle. Aha!" he exclaimed, still looking back, "now we know all about it—that sorrel is Manuel del Rey's!"

"And will you kill him?" challenged Gracia, rousing suddenly at the name. Hooker pretended not to hear. Instead, he cocked his eye up at the eastern mountain, whence from time to time came muffled rifle-shots, and turned his horse to go. There was trouble over there to the east somewhere—Alvarez and his Yaquis, still harrying the retreating rebels—and some of it might come their way.

With Del Rey behind them, even though in sight, he was the least of their troubles, and could be easily cared for with a rifle shot if they could not distance him. Hooker knew of evil, and they thought only to gain the far pass.

Beyond that lay comparative safety, but no man knew what dangers lurked between them and that cleft in the mountains. Del Rey and his rurales or Bravo and his rebels might be there. In fact, one or the other probably was there, and if so there would be a fight, a fight against heavy odds if he were alone, and odds that would be greatly increased because he must protect Gracia.

That the two rurales with him would not continue the pursuit if their leader was out of the way, so that it would not be necessary to injure more than one man.

"Ah, how I hate that man!" raged Gracia, spurring her horse as she scowled back at the galloping Del Rey and his men who were riding onward rapidly.

"All right," observed Bud with a quizzical smile, "I'll have to kill him for you then!"

She gazed at him a moment with eyes that were big with questioning, but the expression on his rugged face baffled her.

"I would not forget it," she cried impulsively. "No, after all I have suffered, I think I could love the man who would meet him face to face! But why do you—ah!" she cried, with a sudden tragic bitterness. "You smile! You have no thought for me—you care nothing that I am afraid of him! Ah, Dios, for a man who is brave—to ride me of this devil!"

"Never mind!" returned Bud, his voice thick with rising anger. "If I kill him it won't be for you!"

He jumped Copper Bottom ahead to avoid her, for in that moment she had touched his pride. Yes, she had done more than that—she had destroyed a dream he had, a dream of a beautiful woman, always gentle, always noble, whom he had sworn to protect with his life. Did she think he was a pelado Mexican, a hot-country lover, to be inflamed by a glance and a smile? Then Phil could have her, and welcome. Her trade had lessened his burden. Now his fight was but a duty to his partner in the performance of which he would be no less careful, but to turn her over to Phil would not now be painful.

"Ah, Bud!" she appealed, spurring up beside him. "You did not understand! I know you are brave—and if he comes"—she struck her pistol fiercely—"I will kill him myself!"

"Never mind," answered Bud in a kinder voice. "I'll take care of you. Just keep your horse in the trail," he added, as she rode on through the brush, "and I'll take care of Del Rey."

He beckoned her back with a jerk of the head and resumed his place in the lead. Here was no place to talk about men and motives. The mountain above was swarming with rebels, there were rurales spurring behind—yes, even now, far up on the eastern hillsides, he could see armed men—and now one was running to intercept them!

Bud reached for his rifle, jerked up a cartridge, and sat crosswise in his saddle. He rode warily, watching the distant runner, until suddenly he pulled in his horse and threw up a welcoming hand. The man was Amigo—no other could come down a hillside so swiftly—and he was signaling him to wait.

GRANDPA'S LOVE AFFAIR

By GEORGE MUNSON.

Grandfather Paulet lived down the street in the big white house and we Paulets and Reynolds and Simpsons dwelled round about. We were all sprung from the Paulets, and grandfather was rolling in money, and in-firm. He was seventy-six.

While grandma lived the families stuck pretty closely together, but after her death it was a case of catch who can. All of us wanted Grandfather Paulet's money. I am not ashamed to say I did, with my husband trying to make both ends meet on fifteen hundred. However, I liked the old man, whereas that cat of a Sarah Reynolds, and that dumbhead Jim Simpson, were simply after his money. But he saw through them.

Grandpa's infirmity came from gout, not old age. He got so bad at last that his temper was quite altered, and instead of stopping to chat with us he used to swear and look the other way. It was that tabby Sarah's fault; he knew she was after his money, and, as I said to Fred, he would make things right when he came to die.

And then a terrible thing happened. Grandpa was ordered to Atlantic City, to get his gout cured by the sea air. He was so pleased at the thought of revisiting the scenes of his youth that he got quite jolly again and invited us all to dinner.

"It's many years since I was at Atlantic City," he said. "I stayed at the Wimbledon. Ah, the daughter of Mrs. Higgins, our landlady, was a beauty, and no mistake. If it hadn't been for your grandmother, children—"

I didn't think he ought to talk that way, with one leg in bandages and the other in the grave. "The old wretch!" Sarah whispered to her husband afterward.

Well, off went grandpa, with his man, duly escorted to the station by all of us, though only I wanted to see him made comfortable. The rest were just after his money.

And the next thing we heard, grandpa was married.

The blow staggered us all. It appeared that he had found his old flame, the landlady's daughter, with whom he must have carried on something awful while poor, long-suffering grandma was alive, and married her after a week's courtship. We were so shocked by the news that we held a little meeting at Jim Simpson's house.

"Now, friends and relations, and relations that aren't friends," says Jim—and I thought that smart of him—"we've got to keep the money in the family. He'll leave a cool two hundred thousand to that designing mix, who has simply been playing on the feelings of the old dotard—"

"Grandpa isn't a dotard," I interrupted hotly.

"Jane, are you one of us, or ain't you?" he asked sarcastically.

"I suppose I've got to be," I groaned. And then he outlined his plan. We were to have the marriage declared invalid on account of grandpa being in a state of senile decay, and the estate put into court and equally distributed. Jim had a lawyer friend who would arrange the details, and as soon as grandpa came home a doctor whom Jim knew was to dog his footsteps and try to trap him into an exhibition of lunacy, so that we could make out a case.

It sounded good to me. I was sorry for grandpa, because I liked the old gentleman, but it wasn't right that we should lose our inheritance just because a designing mix had taken advantage of his weakness. And so I took it hard when Fred said to me, on the way home:

"Jane, you're as bad as the worst of them."

We had quite a quarrel, but I brought Fred round to reason by asking how Johnny was to go to college. He hadn't thought of that—you know what men are.

Well, we all assembled at the station to meet grandpa. We felt it was our duty to do that; besides, we wanted to see the mix.

"The creature is sure to have red hair," says Sarah to me; she had got to be quite friendly since our scheme for grandpa's benefit.

The train puffed into the station, and you can imagine we were all affutter with expectation. And there wasn't any red-haired mix on the train. In fact, we couldn't see grandpa either for a long time, until a silver-haired lady of about seventy years assisted him out of his carriage. And then grandpa saw us and set up a whoop.

"These are my dear nephews and nieces, Minna," he said, "whom I have been telling you about. Whoop it up, girls and boys, I'm as fit as a two-year-old, except for this plaguey foot of mine. All come to dinner."

And, would you believe it, this was the landlady's daughter. You see, we had somehow not thought that grandpa's adventures at Atlantic City had occurred nearly fifty years before. And her hair was reddish under the silver after all.

It appeared that she had inherited the hotel and had made a fortune out of it.

"And as my wife is richer than I, I shall not alter my will, which divides my property equally among my dear relations," said grandpa. "And if they make up to her, perhaps grandma will take them as her relations, too."

And he looked at us with such a bitter sneer. But of course he meant that for Sarah.

BURIAL PLACE OF KING JOHN BUT NOT ON THAT MACHINE

Writer Declares Interment of Famous English Monarch Took Place at Worcester.

In the American Law Review there appeared an article in which the writer made an allusion to King John of England, and said he went "to his unlamented rest at St. Wolstan's." Now, is this correct? King John was buried at Worcester and in the cathedral there, and his body has slept in that spot until now, unless, like a streak of morning cloud, it has melted into the infinite azure of the past. In 1797, for the purpose of identifying the resting place of the king and his remains, a committee of citizens was appointed to investigate all that remained of it placed in a new mausoleum, where it stands today as one of the objects of interest in Worcester cathedral. Shakespeare, in his "King John," puts in the mouth of Prince Henry the following words: "At Worcester must his body be interred, for so he willed it." Thus we see King John was buried in Worcester cathedral, and it is therefore inaccurate to say he was buried at St. Wolstan's. The memory of King John is not cherished with the feeling that has followed the lives and deaths of some of England's sovereigns, and he will be remembered only as the monarch from whom was extorted the great charter of English liberty, from which this country has received a large part of its valued inheritance.—Letter to St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world? We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.
PROVIDENCE, R. I.—“For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine.”—Mrs. S. T. RICHMOND, 109 Waldo Street, Providence, R. I.

A Minister's Wife Writes:
CLOQUET, MINN.—“I have suffered very much with irregularities, pain and inflammation, but your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has made me well and I can recommend the same to all that are troubled with these complaints.”—Mrs. JENNE AKERMAN, c/o Rev. K. AKERMAN, Cloquet, Minnesota.

From Mrs. J. D. Murdoch, Quincy, Mass.
SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—“The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living.”—Mrs. JANE D. MURDOCH, 25 Gordon St., South Quincy, Mass.

BATTLE OF SOISSONS AS SEEN BY WRITER ON FIRING LINE

By JOHN ASHTON, Special Correspondent of the Chicago Tribune.

Paris.—I have just returned to Paris to rest up a day or two and get a few necessities after a week at the front of the left wing of the allied armies who are facing General von Kluck's army.

Farther to the east in a line extending from Reims to near Verdun the French are holding their ground against a fierce onslaught of the Germans under the prince of Wurtemberg.

I will recount what I have witnessed during the last few days:

Leaving Meaux, we made our way through Varennes and Lizy, the scene of fierce fighting during the battle of the Marne, some details of which I gave in my first letter. All the dead have now been interred and the wounded removed from the several deserted villages through which we passed.

Find Wrecked German Plane.

Before arriving at Leerte Milon we came across a German aeroplane which had been brought down by the British. The English flying squad have been doing grand work in the air not only as scouts but in attacking hostile air craft. It is reported that no less than seventeen German aviators have fallen victims to the English flying men.

On approaching Villers-Cotterets, in the middle of the forest of that name, we came across several military automobiles, lying by the side of the route, which the Germans had abandoned in their hurried flight to the north. Two of these were marked “Feld Post” (field or military post). A little farther on we encountered six large German motor trucks which had evidently been destroyed by the Germans; everything was burnt up except the iron work. These wagons had been left in the road to delay pursuit, but the French had overturned them into the ditch on each side of the road.

Meet German Prisoners.

It was dark when we arrived at Villers-Cotterets. Before we had time to get out of our auto I heard a cry: “Volle les Allemands!” (here come the Germans!) and, indeed, a moving gray mass soon came into sight, surrounded by a cavalry escort. There were about 100 of them, prisoners, marching in the cold rain. Many of them wore Red Cross arm bands, and I noticed a few officers among the bunch. Their expression was sour and sullen, but considering their privations, they looked fit enough physically.

These were men that had got lost in the forest and failed to catch up with their columns. Many prisoners are taken in a similar way on both sides. Sometimes they come straggling in half starved to death.

Pass Night in a Chateau.

We passed the night in an old chateau. The town was full of troops, and the hotels packed with officers, so we were very lucky to get under cover at all. A few days previously the Germans had occupied the town, the staff having made their headquarters at this same chateau. The chamber maid left in charge of the house (the owner and his wife having fled) told us that the Germans had taken away some valuable Gobelin tapestries; the smaller tapestries had been left. They had also taken away some silver plate, but had left behind many pieces of considerable value.

We slept on the floor in the library, in a separate building, one of the finest private libraries I have ever seen, containing several thousand volumes. A very elegant secretaire in the library had been forced open, the contents ransacked, and the top wrenched off and thrown on the floor. I had nothing to cover me with, and as it was cold I slept very little.

We could hear the guns booming the greater part of the night.

Approach the Firing Line.

Starting out early in the direction of Soissons, we came upon the Thirtieth regiment of French artillery, at but five miles from the latter town. We could hardly believe we were so close to the firing line, but there they were, twelve guns (known as the Seventy-five), pounding away across the valley to where the Germans were entrenched.

We stopped our auto at a respectable distance and approached the batteries on foot. The ammunition wagons and extra horses and men were all drawn up silent and motionless behind a hedge a short distance from the guns. There was no danger then, as the Germans were replying only to other French batteries lower down the valley.

Very soon the men not busy at the guns began to surround us, begging tobacco and cigarettes. It is an awful thing for these poor soldiers to be deprived of the comforting weed. I saw a great deal of this later, on the field and at hospitals.

We had intended to go directly into Soissons by the main road, but the French officers dissuaded us, saying that the Germans would certainly shell our autos. So we went by another route, to go by Vauxubin, a village lying in the bottom of the valley, two and one-half miles from Soissons.

Under German Shell Fire.

We stopped at an ancient, picturesque chateau, turned into a hospital, to inquire about the wounded. Hardly had we arrived in front of the gates when German shells began screaming over our heads. We scarcely knew where to go for safety. A fearful crash on our right just behind the hospital showed that the German range was getting nearer. Some of our party naturally became alarmed. Then we all crouched down behind our autos as another shell whistled close to us and dropped in a garden. Two of the spent pieces actually fell at our feet and a few seconds afterwards another spent piece of shell, still hot, struck one of our party on the leg.

It was evident that we were in great danger. Some one said, “stand by the cars.”

It was a good job we did not take this advice; but we might have done it if at that moment a woman at the door of the village wine shop across the street had not shouted: “Come inside, for God's sake!”

Flee into a Cellar.

We did not need twice asking. Hardly had we got across the threshold when a tremendous noise like a million rawhide whips cracking at the same moment, followed by the noise of falling masonry, showed that we were in for a regular bombardment. Everybody rushed for the cellar.

As soon as the dust and smoke had cleared away someone crept up the steps to look out and returned saying one of the turrets on each side of the entrance gates to the castle had been completely demolished by the last shell. And still they came, and there we huddled looking into each other's eyes, as well as the dim light would admit, in that little wine cellar with its solid vaulted roof that we prayed might not give way should the house be struck. I shall never forget the time spent in that cellar.

There were twenty-three of us, including about seven women of the village and a little boy. We were there from 10:30 a. m. until a little after noon, with shells dropping all around us. One dropped five yards from the door, the shock breaking every pane of glass in the house and making an enormous hole in the road. Another shell struck the ground about twelve feet in front of our cars, just grazing and mashing a portion of the village cross.

Everything has an end, and we could hear the shells bursting farther and farther away. Still it was deemed prudent to lie low for a bit.

Eat as Shells Scream.

After a time one of the villagers went out at a rear door and brought back a big dish of fried chipped potatoes and bread, so that with the wine in the cellar we made a hearty lunch under the circumstances. We were very hungry, as we had eaten nothing since the previous evening.

When it was safe to get out we found that the shell that dropped near the cars had burst two tires on the car I rode in, had smashed all three of the wind shields, and filled the car bodies and covers full of holes. The cars looked as if they had been peppered with machine guns. Luckily the engines were not damaged in the least.

The Germans, being deeply entrenched in old chalk quarries, a sort of natural fortress in the hillsides overlooking Soissons, continued to reply to the numerous French guns with impunity and occasionally to bombard Soissons and Vauxubin. Up to the time of my leaving this same thing had been going on for over a week.

Soissons is in a pitiable state. The Germans have not spared its old cathedral with its two Gothic spires.

From the rear of the hospital at Vauxubin we had a fine view of this grand old landmark. One of the steeples is broken off about half way, and the other has a big hole in the side, plainly seen three miles off.

I passed about four days here. The artillery firing was terrific from morning to night. The battle rages over an enormously extended front.

I saw some shockingly wounded men while at Vauxubin. The night before I left five men were brought in with fearful injuries in different parts of the body. A German shell had dropped among eight artillerymen serving one of the French guns. The other three men were killed on the spot. This is just an incident among hundreds that are happening every day.

At one village I passed through, where the Germans had left 160 wounded, most of whom were brought in under cover two days after the battle by the French, the doctors asked me, implored me, to try and get some milk for the wounded. Nearly all the cattle have been driven out of the country to safer places or have been requisitioned either by the German or the French forces. Many lives are lost on both sides through exposure and lack of attention after being wounded. Cases of gangrene and tetanus are not infrequent. The doctors and nurses are doing heroic work, but it often happens that they are very much overcrowded before they have a chance to remove those wounded who are able to be sent to other hospitals. At Vauxubin the hospital was crowded. There were 400 people there, and the house had only accommodations for 100.

The fact that the Company enjoys an enviable record of persistency of business is convincing proof that its policies are right, and are sold right, and that the Policyholders are well satisfied.

Satisfied Agents

To quite an extent the splendid success of the Lincoln Life is due to the fact that the officers of the Company do not assume the attitude of being the bosses of the agents. We consider the Agent our fellow man, and seek to serve him in a great and wonderful business in which we have a common cause. We help the agent solve his problems by understanding and sympathizing with him. There is no gift equal to sympathy and no co-operation like the co-operation of the understanding heart. We send out trained supervisors to work with and train agents. If you want to learn to be a salesman, or if you are already one who is looking for better paid work, write us today.

American Girl Surely Had Reason for Complaint Against Impertinence of Acoster.

You remember how in the piping days of peace, when something simply had to be done to make talk, there was a hue and cry about American girls in Berlin and the dreadful things they did under pretense of studying music. Here is a story of one of them which the New York Evening Post Saturday Magazine's special war correspondent has sent over with the explanation that it was all he could get past the censor at this time. A Berlin paper reports that a quiet street in Charlottenburg was suddenly alarmed by shrill cries of “Police! Police!” A great crowd promptly collected about the person responsible for the disturbance, an excited young woman, obviously American.

“Arrest this man, officer,” she said as soon as a policeman appeared. “I am Miss Ellington from Cincinnati, U. S. A., and he had the impertinence to speak to me.”

The policeman, guided by the young woman's accusing finger, picked out the culprit.

“The man is a stranger to you?” he asked.

“An entire stranger,” replied Miss Ellington. “I have only been taking violin lessons from him for six months.”

DISFIGURED WITH ERUPTION

“For one year my right wrist and left arm from elbow to shoulder were disfigured with sore eruption. The eczema broke out with a rash and looked like raw beef steak. It itched and burned continually and I had to keep my arms covered with soft linen cloths. I could not sleep at night.”

“I was told it was chronic case of eczema and got medicine but it had no effect. Then I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and the first application seemed to help me. I purchased two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in six weeks my arms and wrists were thoroughly healed.” (Signed) Mrs. John Clark, Jan. 26, '14.

Watermen and Uniforms.

Watermen—who were also firemen—enjoy the distinction of being the first public servants who ever wore a uniform. “Long before our army and navy adopted any distinguishing garb,” writes Mr. Guy Nickalls, “Thames watermen were known by their uniform and badge, a plaited coat, knee breeches and stockings and hat, according to fashion, but always a plate on the arm, either of the Waterman's hall to denote that they had the freedom of the river and were licensed, or the badge of their employer. Any person rowing or working any boat, wherry or other vessel, who had not served seven years as apprentice, incurred a penalty of £10.”—London Chronicle.

Adam had his faults, but he was never sued for breach of promise.

Impossible.

“Women may learn to smoke and drink.”
“Well?”
“But they will never adopt the habit of getting behind a newspaper at breakfast and contributing only grunts to the conversation.”

An Exacting Leadership.

“I don't see why you should regard me as an enemy,” said Senator Borgum. “I have frequently shouted ‘Votes for women.’”
“Yes,” replied the resolute propagandist; “but you don't shout loud enough.”

Libby's Hawaiian Pineapple

Tropical Hawaii, the home of the finest Pineapple, is too distant to supply you with the fresh fruit that has ripened on the plant. If you want the delicious Hawaiian Pineapple in all its perfection after fully ripening in the field, buy Libby's. Yellow and mellow when harvested and placed right into the tin the day it is picked. You can buy it sliced or crushed.

Did You Ever Try a Sack of Phoenix Flour?

Now that means considerable when you think it over, as you are assisting in building up a local industry that is one of the greatest advantages to any community.

Did you ever realize that Phoenix Flour is as Good as the Best?

Some of you have, no doubt, tried a new flour and failed to have the success that you did with the old family flour. WHY? 1—Because you used as much spring wheat flour to make bread as you would of winter wheat flour. 2—Because you did not realize that your yeast was as much at fault as the flour. 3—Because you thought, "Well, the kind I am used to was good enough." Now, taking everything into consideration, we have hundreds of satisfied customers, and if they can make good bread with PHOENIX FLOUR why can't you? Don't let your neighbor get the start of you—order a sack today of your grocer, or exchange your wheat for flour.

Murder at Milan.

A Hungarian woman was murdered at her home in Milan Monday of this week. Falling in his endeavors to persuade his wife, who had secured a divorce from him, to live with him again, Frank Kosuru fired two shots at the unfortunate woman from a revolver, causing her to drop dead, while she was seeking to escape the man. The couple have three children, all of whom were placed in an orphanage after their mother had secured her divorce in the Washtenaw circuit court. The dead woman was 36 years of age. Her former husband is in the county jail at Monroe.

Started a Divorce Suit.

Suit was filed Thursday in the circuit court by Matthew Aber, of Chelsea, who, through his attorney, John Kalmbach, seeks a divorce from his wife, Kathrine Aber, to whom he was married at Longthal, Germany, on November 28, 1910, a notary public performing the ceremony in keeping with the German law. Aber alleges that his wife deserted him two months following their marriage and he now seeks to be legally freed from her. The complainant is employed at the plant of the Michigan Portland Cement Co.

Suspect Got Away.
Jackson Patriot: With his hands manacled, his gun taken from him and under guard of an impromptu deputy sheriff, a man arrested for a wholesale robbery of a Michigan Central freight train, escaped from the Dexter depot late Saturday night. The box car robbery was one of the most costly the Michigan Central has suffered in months. It is quite possible the car was entered in the Jackson yards, although this is a supposition and not an established fact. The escaped man is still at large.

The arrested man was "caught with the goods on" according to Detective Henry C. Decker, in charge of the Jackson office of the Michigan Central's special officers force. Two men were seen to leave a freight train, late Saturday night, near Dexter.

Registration Notice.

Notice is hereby given to the qualified electors of the Township of Sylvan, County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan, that a meeting of the Board of Registration will be held at the Clerk's Office, Town Hall, Chelsea, within said township, on Saturday, October 24, A. D. 1914, for the purpose of registering the names of all such persons who shall be possessed of the necessary qualifications of electors, who may apply for the purpose.

IMPORTANT—REGISTRATION BY AFFIDAVIT.
Any qualified elector may register and be eligible to vote if he shall appear in person before the Township Clerk and take the oath required as to qualification, and request that his name be registered. Blanks for this form of registration can be had at the Township Clerk's office.

WOMEN ELECTORS.
In accordance with Section 4 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Michigan and Act 236 of the Public Acts of 1909, the Board of Registration of said township will register the names of all women possessing the qualifications of male electors who make personal application for such registration. Provided, that all such applicants must own property assessed for taxes some-where within the County above named, except property within said County jointly with her husband or other person, or who owns property taxes thereon, shall be entitled to registration.

Following are the qualifications of male electors in the State of Michigan:
Every male inhabitant of this state, being a citizen of the United States; every male inhabitant residing in this state on the twenty-fourth day of June, eighteen hundred thirty-five; every male inhabitant residing in this state on the first day of January, eighteen hundred fifty; every male inhabitant of foreign birth who, having resided in this state two years and six months last named day; and every civilized male inhabitant of Indian descent, a native of the United States and not a member of any tribe, shall be an elector and entitled to vote, but no one shall be an elector and entitled to vote at any election unless he shall be above the age of twenty-one years and has resided in this state six months prior to the day of the election, and in the township or ward in which he offers to vote twenty days next preceding such election, from 9 o'clock a. m. until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day for the purpose aforesaid.

Dated, October 13, 1914.
WARREN C. BOYD, Township Clerk.

M. & W. GINIPER PILLS

Exclusively a Kidney Remedy. A safe, sure and positive remedy for kidney and rheumatic ailments. Indorsed throughout the United States. Sold by 25,000 retail druggists.

Read What Mr. Peabody Has to Say About Giniper Pills:
Canaan, Vermont, Dec. 6th, 1913.—I am 78 years of age and have suffered very much from Rheumatism, and for the last six years from kidney trouble so bad that I could not turn over in bed without pain across my back, over my left kidney and down my groin, and at times I could scarcely walk. I sent for six boxes of GINIPER PILLS and took them according to directions and my urine now runs free and my groin so I could walk as well as ever, and the pain over my kidneys and in my side left me entirely. I have paid out many dollars for kidney troubles but nothing helped me much until I was finally cured by M. & W. GINIPER PILLS. I advise everyone troubled with Rheumatism and kidney disease to try M. & W. GINIPER PILLS for a quick relief. Signed, A. PEABODY.

Generous free trial treatment of GINIPER PILLS sent postpaid to any address. For sale at your druggist. Price 50 Cents.
