ELECTION RESULTS

Results Mixed in the County—Ferris and Beakes Re-elected.

Virtually complete returns of the vote cast Tuesday gave Ferris a plurality of more than 40,000 over Osborn for governor, while the balance of the republican state ticket was elected by pluralities approximating 50,000.

In Washtenaw the entire democratic ticket was elected with the exception of sheriff and drain commissioner. Lindenschmitt for sheriff has defeated Granger by about 24 plurality.

Complete unofficial returns from the second congressional district give Congressman Beakes a majority of 170 over Bacon.

The proposed constitutional amendment restricting fraternal insurance societies from paying other than death benefits was defeated by 200,000.

The election on Tuesday in this precinct fell short of a full vote. The whole number of ballots cast were 619. The heads of the various tickets as marked by the electors was as follows: Progressive party 12; republican 309; democratic 242; socialist party 6; prohibition 4; the remainder failed to mark the heads of any party ticket. The vote for sheriff shows that 615 of the electors voted for the nominees for that office. The result in Sylvan was as follows:

FORTY YEARS AGO

Happenings in Chelsea Forty Years Ago This Week.

The first snow of the season was on Friday, October 30.

Mrs. Jane Judson, mother of Thomas Wilkinson, died Sunday, November 1, 1874, aged 60 years.

Rev. B. Hamp announced that the new United Brethren church at Waterloo would be dedicated on Sunday, November 15.

Mrs. John Beissel, aged 29 years, died Thursday, November 5, 1874. She was the mother of Ed. Beissel of this place.

Severely Burned by Gasoline Flames.

Miss Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Fenn was quite severely burned with the flame from an open dish of gasoline about six o'clock Tuesday evening.

The young lady was at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Steger staying with their children while they were absent from home. She went to the summer kitchen and lighted a match to find a dishpan, and the vapor from an open dish of gasoline caught on fire. She picked the dish up and started for the door to throw it out, and succeeded in getting part of the contents outside but enough of the fluid was spilled on the inside of the room to start a small blaze.

Mr. and Mrs. Fenn and son Claire, who were eating their supper, saw the reflection of the flames and the calls of the frightened children and went to the Steger home and put out the blaze. Some of the woodwork was charred and a basket of clothes burned was the extent of the damage to the home.

Miss Fenn's hair and her eyebrows were singed, both cheeks slightly burned and her left hand and arm badly burned to the elbow. The thumb of her left hand was the most seriously injured as the flame came in direct contact with it as she was carrying the dish across the room, and it is feared that the burn may be of a serious nature.

Birthday Surprise Party.

A very pleasant birthday surprise party took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Weber, jr., of Sylvan, on Monday evening of this week. The occasion was in honor of the 86th anniversary of the birth of his mother, Mrs. Simon Weber, sr.

Mrs. Weber was born in Germany, November 3, 1818, and has been a highly respected resident of this vicinity for many years. There were forty-eight relatives present and she received many valuable gifts as a remembrance of the event. A fine lunch was served and the evening was a very enjoyable one.

Those present from out of town were: Mrs. Joseph Miller, of Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. E. Oesterlin and daughter, Elsa, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kress and son, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Kress and family, Theodore and Miss Mary Weber, of Ann Arbor; Mrs. Jacob Forner, Mrs. Edward Martin, Louis Forner and daughter, Loretta, of Jackson; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seckinger and family of Manchester; John A. Loew, of Braddock, Penn.

Resident of Lima Seventy-one Years.

Miss Mary Wild was born in North Adams, Massachusetts, September 2, 1832, and died at the home of her half-brother, Charles D. Jenks, Tuesday morning, November 3, 1914, aged 82 years, 2 months and 1 day.

When the deceased was about four years of age her parents moved to Michigan and after the death of her father, her mother returned to their former home in Massachusetts where she resided for several years. Miss Wild has been a resident of Lima for the last seventy-one years and was highly respected. She had made her home with Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Jenks for many years.

She is survived by her half-brother, C. D. Jenks, and her half-sister, Mrs. Emil Zincke, and several nephews and nieces.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Jenks, Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating. Interment at the Jerusalem cemetery.

AUTOMOBILE WRECKED

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Munsell and Children Caught Under Overturned Car.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Munsell, of Ann Arbor township, met with an accident at 5:30 o'clock Sunday evening between the homes of Sherman Pierce and Albert G. Koch on the territorial road. Mr. and Mrs. Munsell accompanied by three of their children and William Salisbury were on their way home from a visit with Sylvan friends when they met an automobile, and Mr. Munsell who was driving his machine turned out of the road but the driver of the approaching car apparently did not see the Munsell machine (or else he did not care) and failed to turn out.

Mr. Munsell was almost entirely out of the driveway when the approaching car struck him. The Munsell car was struck back of the front fender, the running board being torn off, the front axle and wind shield were broken and the car was turned completely over and the entire party were caught under the machine. Wm. Salisbury had his back injured, and one of the children was so badly injured that a physician had to be called. The Munsell machine which is a new one is in a badly wrecked condition.

The driver of the car, which carried a manufacturers license tag No. 5307, did not stop to ascertain what had happened to the machine that he had ran into but continued on his way west under high speed.

John E. Walz, who was following the reckless driver, was the first on the scene and was soon joined by L. P. Vogel, L. T. Freeman and Arthur E. Shaw, who soon had the overturned car righted and the occupants of it released. A gentleman who resides at Concord took after the racing car and succeeded in getting the license number but was unable to get the driver. He reported the number and make, Abbot-Detroit, to deputy sheriff McKune.

At the point where the accident happened the roadway is in good condition and if the man who was coming from the east had used a little common sense there would have been no trouble and if he is ever caught he should be dealt with in such a manner that he will use a little caution about driving in the future. All of the Munsell party were more or less injured.

Haarer-Ehns Marriage.

Thursday afternoon, October 29, 1914, Miss Marie Katherine Haarer and Mr. Herman G. Ehns, of Ann Arbor, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Haarer, of Lima. The guests were quite numerous from both sides. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. Eisen at 4 o'clock. The male choir from the "Schwaben Verein" at Ann Arbor, appeared to the great pleasure of the assembled crowd. The songs they rendered, under the direction of Prof. Trose, were highly appreciated by everybody. A splendid supper was served and the young couple were the receivers of many valuable presents and the best wishes for their future life.

WHOLE STATE IS QUARANTINED

GOVERNMENT TAKES DRASTIC ACTION TO CHECK EPIDEMIC.

FOUR STATES ARE INCLUDED

Danger From Foot and Mouth Disease So Great That All Shipments From These States Forbidden.

Washington—Late Monday afternoon Secretary Houston of the department of agriculture, signed an order, quarantining the states of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Pennsylvania against the shipment of any cattle, sheep or hogs over their borders. A restraining order has been issued concerning shipments from Ohio.

The drastic step taken resulted from the discovery of herds infected with foot and mouth disease in the first four states named. Until Monday only four counties in Michigan and two counties in Indiana have been under quarantine, but the discovery of the disease in other states convinced the experts in the bureau of animal industry that the entire states should be placed under quarantine.

The reason that Ohio was not quarantined in the order was that no cases of the foot and mouth disease have been found to exist in that state, but its proximity to infected areas makes precaution necessary.

The quarantine affects not only shipments of live animals, but prohibits interstate shipment of hides, skins, hoofs, hay, straw and fodder unless thoroughly disinfected.

GREAT MEETING IS CLOSED

State Teachers Association Holds Largest Convention in Kalamazoo.

Kalamazoo—The State Teachers' association closed the largest convention it has ever held late Friday night by going on record as favoring equal suffrage and simplified spelling. It also declared opposition to the separation of state and local taxation on the ground that such a plan would endanger the primary school funds. The organization of the public school system into a kindergarten and six elementary grades, and six secondary grades was favored, as was also the continuation of industrial and agricultural instruction in the public schools. The selection of the city for next year's meeting was left to the executive committee, and the following officers were elected:

President, E. B. Cummings, Lansing; first vice-president, Mrs. Helen Hurst, Grand Rapids; second vice-president, A. N. Coby, superintendent of schools, Flint; third vice-president, Cynthia Green, commissioner of schools, Charlotte; secretary, John P. Everett, Kalamazoo; treasurer, Chas. L. Spain, Detroit. Members of the executive committee (three-year term), John E. Doele, Houghton; E. C. Hartwell, Petoskey.

Burglars Visit Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids—Grand Rapids played unwelcome host to a gang of burglars Sunday night. In all places were entered, including one postoffice substation, where $500 in stamps and money was stolen from the safe.

At the Bertch market on Monroe avenue northwest, the safe was torn to bits, but $3,000 in cash was overlooked. Two lumber company offices and a garage besides an office building suffered. In all the loot will approach $1,000. As yet no arrests have been made.

Lenawee County Is Quarantined.

Adrian, Mich.—A herd of cattle owned by B. E. Wolverton, residing near Blissfield, was Wednesday found to be infected with the foot and mouth disease. The herd was ordered slaughtered, following an inspection by federal and state experts, and Lenawee county has been placed under a strict quarantine.

The cattle were shipped here recently from the west and it is believed the disease may be confined to the one farm.

SAY BACKDOWN IS NOT ENOUGH

Triple Entente Insists That German Officers in Sultan's Employ Be Dismissed.

BRITISH SOIL INVADED

Bedouins Reported to Have Entered Egypt—Official Advances Announced Little Change Along Battle Line in Belgium—Reports of the Fighting in East Prussia.

London, Nov. 3.—Although Turkey seems to desire to back down from its position as a belligerent against Russia and the other allies, the powers comprising the triple entente—Great Britain, France and Russia—have not accepted an apology offered by the grand vizier for the attacks made on Russian ships in the Black sea by Turkish warships.

An official statement issued by the French government indicates that the allies are holding aloof from settling is ready for action. It is only left for the war cabinet to decide that Italy cannot longer remain neutral in face of the situation in Albania.

U. S. Told of Turkey's Action. War has been officially declared between Turkey and Russia, according to a private message transmitted to the United States through the British government.

Turkey's raid on Russian ports in the Black sea has forced Great Britain into war with the Ottoman government, the foreign office announced.

CLAIM ONLY SLIGHT CHANGES.

Reports From Berlin and Paris Say Battle Lines Are Holding. London, Nov. 3.—Berlin and Paris tonight admitted that the changes along the long battle line had been slight. It is apparent from these reports that the gains of each side in one locality are offset by losses in another.

The German official statement says further advances have been made by the kaiser's troops near Ypres, and that Messines has been recaptured. It also claims some gains in the Argonne region.

The statement issued in Paris says the French have advanced between Dixmude and the Lys river, and that German assaults near Arras, Libons, and Le Quesnoy-en-Sauterie failed. Progress for the allies in the vicinity

Allies Victors on Aisne. Slight progress was recorded along the Aisne in the direction of Tracy-le-Val, to the north of the forest of L'Aigle, between this forest and Soissons.

All day and night train load, after train load of wounded German soldiers poured into Bruges, says the Soissons correspondent of the Amsterdam Telegraaf. The Germans lost a great quantity of artillery in the districts flooded by the cutting of the dikes. It is ascertained that the Germans are still in Ostend, the reports of their evacuation of this port being premature.

Situation Favorable, Berlin Says. Berlin, by wireless via Sayville, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Analysis of the official and unofficial reports from the front show that the situation of the German troops along the Franco-Belgian battle front is entirely favorable. The news that the French were thrown back across the Aisne near Vally, east of Soissons, and that the Germans have gained a success west of Verdun caused much rejoicing.

FIGHTING IN EAST PRUSSIA.

Official Russian Reports Tell of Progress of Czar's Troops.

Petrograd, Nov. 3.—The following report from the general staff of the Russian commander in chief was made public here tonight.

PARIS RECEIVES CAPTURED GERMAN STANDARDS

Great ceremony attended the occasion of the conveying of seven captured German war standards to the museum of the Invalides in Paris. The photograph shows the flags being carried across the courtyard.

the controversy until Turkey agrees to their stipulation that the German officers in Turkey's employ be discharged. The Turks have agreed to withdraw their fleet from the Black sea, but have failed to acquiesce in the demand for the dismissal of the German officers.

Turkish Warship Sunk.

While negotiations for Turkish extradition from her belligerent situation were proceeding, a combined British and French squadron in the Gulf of Techehne hunted down and sank two Turkish warships. They were the Turkish gunboat Dube Kreiss and the Turkish armed steamship Kinalialla.

It was officially announced that the Turkish ambassador to London had been given his passports. Shortly afterward it was stated by the attaches of the office of Sir Edward Grey, minister of foreign affairs, that the report was premature.

Then came a visit of the Turkish ambassador to the foreign ministry for a lengthy conference, after which it was said that Turkey would sever her German connection and would cease all hostile activity.

A Reuter dispatch from Constantinople says that Turkey has already invaded British soil. Two thousand armed Bedouins are reported to have entered Egypt.

Turkey Annexes Egypt.

Berlin via The Hague, Nov. 2.—It was officially announced that a wireless message received from Constantinople says that the Turkish government has issued a proclamation formally annexing Egypt, which is already under Turkish suzerainty.

Italy is aflame with the war fever and demonstrations in favor of entering the European conflict have become so violent in a number of cities that troops were called to suppress the riotous scenes.

The resignation of the entire cabinet in a body after a stormy session, in which the ministers failed to agree upon a military program because of the strong representation of the peace party, has brought the situation to an acute stage.

The army is now mobilized to a strength of 4,000,000 men, and the fleet of Soissons in claimed and a German attack on the River Aisne failed. The German artillery which bombarded St. Die is said to have been driven back.

The floods, the Belgian army, and the British fleet having barred their way southwestward along the coast the Germans are now striking on a line stretching from Ypres, in Belgium, to La Bassée, farther south, in France, but seemingly with no more success.

Halt German Advance on Calais.

On the Battle Front, via Paris, Nov. 2.—The German drive upon Calais has been halted. During the day came the long awaited falter in the German attack. The war office at Bordeaux officially declared that along the whole front from the Oise to the sea the pronounced attacks directed by the Germans had diminished in violence.

Both to the south of Dixmude and to the south of Chaluwe, between Ypres and Menin, the allied French, British and Belgian troops occupied positions considerably in advance of those previously held. At every other point at which the troops came in contact with the Germans during the day the allies were able to maintain their positions. It is reported.

Paris Puts German Losses at 50,000.

The French war ministry is informed that the German losses in the north in the last few days have been 50,000, a Paris dispatch says. After an engagement at a single point on the Yser the Germans left 2,000 dead on the field. The French casualties in this engagement were reported to be 115 killed and wounded.

Germans Win at Ypres.

The British war office made no announcement to contradict the German claim of advantage in the fighting about Ypres, but admitted that the allies had been forced to evacuate part of the village of Messines in the face of a vigorous German attack.

In Belgium the German attacks were particularly desperate in character in the region between Dixmude and the Lys, but in spite of the vigor of these assaults the allies were able to make a slight advance along the entire front in East Prussia our troops have repulsed German attacks directed against Vladislavoff, driven the enemy from the eastern edge of the Rominten forest, and advanced to the north of Lake Raigord.

Beyond the Vistula our troops continue the offensive without being opposed. Only the region of Opatow the Austrians attempted to resist us with considerable forces. They were repulsed. Beyond the Opatow river the Austrians hold a fortified position.

Germans Plan New Campaign.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—Events in Poland would appear to be shaping themselves for a renewal of the fighting between the main forces of Russia and the Austro-German allies.

The Austrians and the Germans have completed their retirement to new positions previously selected by them. When the vanguards of the Russians who were following them came into touch with this new line there were several encounters in which the Russians were driven off.

The Austrians in southern Galicia have succeeded in crushing back the Russian left flank, which for several days had been making a desperate stand in carefully prepared positions between Turka and Stary-Sambor.

Tax Brussels $9,000,000.

Amsterdam, Nov. 2.—A telegram received here from Berlin announces that after protracted negotiations the war indemnity to the Germans for the city of Brussels has been figured at $9,000,000, payable $500,000 weekly.

North Sea Closed.

London, Nov. 2.—The entire North sea has been declared a military area and merchant vessels entering it will be exposed to the gravest dangers from the mines and from the warships which are searching vigilantly by night and day for suspicious craft. This action has been taken as a reply to the laying of mines by the Germans in the waters north of Ireland.

raising a second contingent. The minister of war is quoted as saying that the Dominion will send a total of 150,000 men if they are needed. Parliament has voted $5,000,000 for war expenses. The island of Jamaica, in the West Indies, has contributed $250,000. South Africa has released all regular British troops on duty there, and has undertaken to perform their work during the war. EARLY RETURNS INDICATE FERRIS IS RE-ELECTED

Democrats Win First Place On Ticket But Lose Balance

REPUBLICANS WILL HAVE ELEVEN CONGRESSMEN

Partial Returns Compiled Early Wednesday Morning Indicate That Governor Gets Twenty-five Per Cent of Republican Vote.

Detroit—Early Wednesday morning when about half of the precincts had been heard from the state democratic headquarters claimed the re-election of Governor Ferris by thirty-five thousand majority. Up to that time the returns indicated that ex-governor Chase S. Osborn had been scratched by about twenty-five per cent of the republican voters. The balance of the republican state ticket seemed to be safely elected. The vote for Pattengill, progressive candidate for governor, was so small as to be very disappointing to the members of that party.

The counties in which Ferris received his largest pluralities, outside of Wayne, were Calhoun, Genesee, Houghton, Ingham, Jackson, Lenawee, Macomb, Oakland, Saginaw and Washtenaw. Most of these counties went democratic two years ago.

Osborn carried his own county of Chippewa by nearly 1,000, and came within a couple of hundred of carrying Ferris' county, Mecosta.

Of the 15 counties in the upper peninsula, Ferris has carried Luce, Mackinac, Menominee, Alger, Houghton, Ontonagon, and Osborn Marquette, Iron, Gogebic, Dickinson, Delta, Chippewa and Baraga.

The republican candidates for congress in ten of the eleven districts outside of Wayne county appear to be elected. In the second district Beakes and Bacon were running close together, but in districts 3 to 12, inclusive, the republican candidates were successful by large majorities. The two present progressive congressmen, Woodruff in the tenth and McDonald in the twelfth, are defeated, by George A. Loud and W. Frank James respectively.

Early Reports From State.

Bay City—Bay City complete gives Pattengill, 1,194; Osborn, 2,126; Ferris 2,731.

EARLY ELECTION BRIEFS

New York—The republican dates swept the state in today's election.

REPUBLICAN GAIN AND PROGRESSIVE LOSS INDICATED

Democratic Majority in Lower House of Congress Is Reduced

WOMAN SUFFRAGE BEATEN WHEREVER SUBMITTED

Features of Early Returns are Gain in Congress by Republicans and Great Slump in Vote of Progressives.

Detroit—Returns from the general election of Tuesday received early Wednesday morning gave assurance of reducing the present democratic majority of 141 in the house of representatives by a big margin. At an early hour the returns from various states showed a net gain of 42 seats for the republicans. Many districts were yet to be heard from.

Democratic control of the senate, however, was assured, the probability being that it would be increased from 10 to 12.

The increased republican vote reflected the results in several state contests. New York, New Hampshire and Colorado, which now have democratic governors, elected republicans, under democratic administration showed that the republican ticket was in the lead, and in Oklahoma the election of the democratic candidate was not assured.

In a few instances, however, the were democratic gains. In Minnesota, Idaho and Tennessee which have republican governors, and Nevada, where a progressive, democratic candidate were in the lead late Tuesday. Ohio was still in doubt, with the democratic incumbent, Governor Cox, in the lead.

In California there was an exception to the progressive slump. Such returns as were at hand from that state indicated a landslide for Governor Hiram Johnson, the progressive executive, who was up for re-election. Woman suffrage apparently failed at the hands of the voters. In North Dakota and Missouri, constitutional amendments appeared to have been beaten decisively.

State-wide prohibition was beaten in Ohio, but in Colorado the vote was in favor of it.

Senators re-elected as the result of hard battle, were Frank B. Brandegee, republican, of Connecticut, who was opposed by Gov. Simon E. Baldwin, Albert B. Cummings, republican, of Iowa, who defeated Rep. Maurice O. Kelly; John Walter Smith, democrat of Maryland; William J. Stone, democrat, of Missouri; Jacob H. Gallinger, republican, of New Hampshire, who was opposed by Rep. E. B. Stevens.

Democratic senators in the house were re-elected without difficulty, senators from southern states chosen being Rep. Oscar W. Underwood, Alabama, and Rep. Thomas W. Blalock, of Georgia. Former Gov. W. Beckham, democrat, of Kentucky, was chosen for the long term.

Francis E. McGovern, republican, was elected, according to the early returns, to succeed Senator Stephen A. Reed, republican, from Wisconsin.

Among the most prominent republican congressmen who were defeated by the election two years ago and are returned to office by the vote Tuesday are Cannon, of Illinois, Longworth, of Ohio, and Payne, New York.

The following appeared on the list of early returns to have been winners in the various gubernatorial contests: Alabama—Charles F. Hunt (D.); Arizona—George P. Hunt (D.); California—Hiram W. Jones (R.); Colorado—George A. Carlson (R.); Connecticut—Marcus H. Hodge (R.); Georgia—Nat E. Harris (D.); Idaho—John M. Haines (R.); Iowa—George W. Clarke (R.); Kansas—George H. Hodges (R.); Massachusetts—David I. Walsh (R.); Michigan—H. N. Ferris (D.); Minnesota—William E. Lee (R.); Nebraska—J. H. Morehead (D.); Nevada—F. L. Odde (R.); New Hampshire—R. H. Spaulding (R.); New York—C. S. Whitman (R.); North Dakota—L. B. Hanna (R.); Ohio—James M. Cox (D.); Oklahoma—James L. Williams (D.); Oregon—James Withycombe (R.); Pennsylvania—Martin G. Brumbaugh (R.); Rhode Island—L. Livingston (R.); South Carolina—Richard E. Manning (R.); South Dakota—F. M. Bayne (R.); Tennessee—George C. Rye (R.); Texas—James E. Ferguson (D.); Vermont—Charles W. Gates (R.); Wisconsin—Emanuel L. Philipp (R.); Wyoming—J. B. Kendrick (R.)

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Europe Being Closed, the Rich Flock to Washington

WASHINGTON.—War in Europe will increase Washington's winter population. Last winter, in what is known in the light words of the "common people" as the "swell section" of the city, there were scores of vacant houses.

In the main these empty residences will be occupied during the coming winter, for already the "to let" signs in most of the staring windows have disappeared.

It is reported that many American families who have been living abroad are to come this year to see the capital of their country, for which some of them seemingly cared little or nothing until they found that the homeland was about the only place in which their sacred necks and still more sacred pocketbooks were safe. There are a good many rich Americans who go to Europe to spend the winter, or at any rate a part of it. Some of these, it is known, are to come to Washington, and their numbers, added to those of the hitherto more or less permanent dwellers in Europe, will come pretty near filling all of Washington's houses in which the visitors could care to live.

There were twice as many vacant houses facing the avenues and streets last winter than there were the winter before. Why? The reason is a curious one, but that it is the right one cannot be doubted. There are rich Republicans in the United States than there are rich Democrats. Any of these rich Republicans have retired from business. Under Republican administrations they came to Washington in large numbers to spend their money.

Banker Ailes Has Chance to Get Rich on Snakes

MILTON A. AILES, vice-president of the Riggs National bank, has had a fresh opportunity for fortune thrust upon him. Heretofore he has pursued the jade with marked success. But it remained for his casual recital of a snake story to bring him an unexpected chance for wealth beyond the realms of avarice.

Mr. Ailes is in receipt of a letter from Forrest W. Brown, an attorney at law in Charleston, W. Va., in which is laid down the tentative plan for the accumulation of vast riches, the establishment of a rattlesnake farm. Mr. Brown writes:

"I tried a case two or three years ago in Morgan county, involving the sale of several thousand acres of land, which the witness described as not being worth anything except to raise rattlesnakes. I succeeded in getting a judgment in favor of my client. Then an old friend of mine inserted in a New York paper a communication in which he said that I had acquired a large tract of land in Morgan county, and had organized a corporation for the purpose of raising rattlesnakes."

This, according to Mr. Brown, was the beginning. Many letters followed on all quarters. Exporting companies in New York and New Jersey wanted to make arrangements to take all the rattlesnake skins that could be furnished. They would tan them, in case Mr. Brown lacked the facilities. The skins were wanted for export trade to Paris and London.

"I had letters from a number of friends," continues Mr. Brown, "stating that they wanted me to reserve large blocks of stock for them. I think that I had taken all these offers I would have had $1,000,000,000 worth of stock at the enterprise by now. But it all failed because I could not find a general manager. Kindly write and tell me whether you will accept, so that the enterprise can be inaugurated and continued with success."

When asked as to his intentions, Mr. Ailes spoke regretfully of the press engagements in other fields of endeavor. He said, however, that it required no fertile imagination to grasp the immense possibilities in the plan. In fact, he was of the opinion that it beat Col. Mulberry Sellers' eyewater theme all hollow. With the eyewater there was a natural limit, dependent on the exact number of ophthalmic Chinamen. In the case of the rattlesnakes, however, it was altogether different. There was the skin, to begin with, following which were various by-products almost too numerous to mention. Rattles for babies was one that occurred offhand.

No More Persons Will Be Interred in This Tomb

QUAINT and curious old family tomb, built according to the custom prevalent in portions of the South early in the last century, is to be removed from the old Patterson estate, in the northeast section of the city, and adjoining the Gallaudet college. It is constructed of solid granite blocks, almost square in shape, and surmounted by an arched roof set off by a heavy projecting cornice, resembling somewhat those used by the ancient Egyptians at Luxor and Karnak. An ivy vine, with thick roots and branches, nearly covers the sides and roof of the tomb, while the immediate surroundings are so heavily grown with deep underbrush and trees that it is almost impossible to see the vault beneath.

It was actually reaching it. Attention was in recent years directed to the tomb by the request of Francis Winslow, a trustee of the Patterson estate, made by the health board of the district, for information relative to the burial laws governing the use of such vaults. Mr. Winslow stated that no interments had been made in the tomb in many years, and that, with one possible exception, none of the descendants of the Patterson family desired to be interred within the place. In view of the possible application for interment within the tomb, Mr. Winslow requested information as to whether the health department would permit it.

As a result of the request, Health Officer Woodward had the records of the office searched, but nothing concerning the old tomb could be found. The question was referred to the city solicitor, who replied, in an opinion, stating that under the new code no person could be buried in any grounds except those known as private or public burial grounds, or such as may be so designated in the future by the district commissioners.

Uncle Sam's Money Factory Is Best in the World

UNCLE SAM'S great money factory is one of the wonderful sights of the world. Housed in a brand new building 580 feet long and with four wings each 285 feet deep, it takes 32,840 panes of glass to admit light to its four stories. The structure of the bureau of engraving and printing is built of Indiana limestone and it presents to the shining Potomac, which it faces, a row of columns on the front as imposing as those on the east side of the treasury.

This probably is the finest manufacturing plant in the world in point of scientific equipment to conserve the health and comfort of its inhabitants. The chiefs of divisions say that the records show 80 per cent less sickness in the new than in the old building. The whole plant is virtually the creation of Director Joseph E. Ralph, who was determined that in the equipment and operation of the bureau of engraving and printing the United States should lead the world in welfare work.

The European war hit the bureau of engraving and printing as hard as any other American establishment. Its normal output of bank notes was 1,000 sheets a day and it is now turning out its normal output of silver certificates at the rate of 1,000 sheets a day. In addition to this currency its normal output of gold notes was 225,000. It is now printing 310,000.

THE soft folds of tulle and chiffon at present introduced on the bodices are wonderfully becoming.

Beaded Apron Tunic in a Party Gown

SUCH a pretty party gown, in which one of those beaded garnitures is featured, is shown here. The bodice and apron-tunic, of beaded net, is a new development of the ready-made bodice and tunic affairs that have so delightfully helped out in the making of evening gowns. The straight-hanging front, with frill of lace falling below the waist line, is the most up-to-date of style touches. Just now fashion does nothing to the waist line and ignores it. She would like to have all her devotees forget it, and a great number of them do.

The dress is of crepe de chine made with straight-hanging skirt with some drapery near the bottom where the left side vanishes under a hemmed bias edge at the right. The bodice is the simplest imaginable, a "baby waist"—that is, a plain gathered front and back with short plain sleeves. It is merely a foundation and background for the beaded bodice of the tunic.

The sleeves are finished with a narrow spangled band like that at the side of the apron-tunic.

The bodice of the tunic covers the underbodice back and front. A narrow fringe of beads finishes the short sleeves. At the back the bodice may be finished with a girdle or the frill of lace, somewhat scantier in fullness, may be extended around the figure. A flat tassel of beads finishes each side of the tunic at the bottom.

These beaded garments are shown in all the light colors and in black. Black and silver and black and gold on black net are among the showiest. Gold net with gold spangles and beads is in high favor. The tunic and dress match in color, as a rule.

The small corsage bouquet of satin roses worn at one side of the lace frill is a detail that should not be overlooked. It is much more than a detail in the costume.

Dainty Footwear for Evening

THE day has come when displays of elegant footwear may be said to rival displays of jewelry in brilliance. Judging from the dressy shoes and slippers which fill the show cases of the shoe shops, and the shoes of department stores, the adjectives which have been used in describing gowns and hats will find themselves associated in the future with clothing for the feet. It will require time to convey any idea of the daintiness and brilliance that characterize the newest footwear for evening.

Black patent leather combinations with white kid make up a great number of the handsomest slippers. But, besides these, there are combinations of bronze, gold and silver with fabrics and slippers of these fancy leathers alone, as well as slippers made of fabrics alone. The array is dazzling and in point of variety bewildering.

Just now there is a liking for white satin on which gold or silver figures are thrown up in embroidered designs. These are finished with small but most brilliant buckles of rhinestones. Certainly such slippers deserve to be called confections in footwear. But to get any idea of the variety which confronts the purchaser, just the display in a single show case may be described to give a clear idea of the leading style-feature for this season.

First there is a satin novelty called the Poinciana slipper. It is a plain, beautifully shaped model with short vamp, somewhat pointed toe and French heel. At the back the satin extends upward to the ankle, where it is fastened to a velvet band. This band encircles the ankle, fastening with two small pearl buttons at the side. One may choose this slipper in white satin with black velvet collar, black satin with white velvet collar, silver cloth with black velvet, or in all black.

Next to it stand the Empress, quite deserving of its royal name with black satin vamp and white satin quarters. Very plain, very beautifully finished and very elegant, the Empress is shown in this single combination.

A third strikingly beautiful black-and-white slipper has a black satin vamp and heel, with quarter of white satin extended over the instep in a strap. The edges of the slipper and strap are bound with black satin and this new creation is fastened with a double buckle of brilliant rhinestones at the side. One may have it in all black or all white, either of them handsome enough but having not quite the snap of black and white and rhinestone in conjunction.

Next comes a quiet model in bronze kid having a tongue embroidered with bronze beads, and then a tangle in bronze laced across the instep with ribbon which ties about the ankle. These are to be had in other materials and colors.

Less showy, a slipper in dull kid is exquisitely shaped and supplied with four straps across the instep. The toe and straps are beaded. This is made in white or in bronze, with beads to match. Then comes a marvel in white satin and gold brocade and after it an array of plain satin opera slippers in all the evening colors.

Truly she who is looking for something new and beautiful in slippers will have no trouble in finding all that she is looking for, and more, too. For there are other showcases filled with other slippers.

THEIR AUNT JENNY

By FRANK FILON.

Neither Claude nor Agnes nor Polly nor I liked Aunt Jenny. Lella hated her, and Peter, the baby, used to make faces to himself and cry whenever she came into the room. She was a crabbed old thing. I suppose it was because she had never been able to get married.

"But she has her use in the world, my dear," said father to mother. "Heaven knows she has been kind enough to me."

"Just because she lets us occupy this house rent-free, Arthur!" exclaimed mother. "With her million or so, she ought to do a great deal more for you than that."

However, to resume, Lella is eighteen, and Lester Blythe has been crazy over her ever since they were at school together. Lester is twenty-two and clerks for Mr. Grimes. Some day he thinks Mr. Grimes will take him into partnership. I asked Mr. Grimes about it, and he said Lester had nerve enough to expect anything.

However, to resume again, Aunt Jenny, who is sixty-nine, let fall a bombshell in our humble home the other night. It came about in this wise: We had just finished dinner when she popped in. Aunt Jenny lives down the street in the big white house. A man left her a million—I think they were engaged once; anyway, he died and left her a fortune and she couldn't get another man even with that, she is so crabbed.

But to resume. In pops Aunt Jenny and in her abrupt way, which mother says comes from the Truettis, not from her side of the family, she says: "Arthur, you have too many children for a poor man. How many have you?"

Father counts us. "Six," he answers.

"Then I'm going to take one of them and bring her up to inherit my money," she says. She looked round the room, and of course, her eye fell on Lella, who was trying to make herself invisible against the wallpaper.

"I'll take this one," she said. "Come along!"

Peter, the baby, burst into tears, and Lella was so scared that she followed Aunt Jenny without a word. And none of us recovered our wits to say anything until they were halfway down the street.

Then father and mother went after them, and they did not get back till late. Mother had been crying, and father looked very serious.

"It has to be my dear," said father. "After all, Jenny can do more for Lella than we can. It will be a splendid chance for the child to be taken to Europe and put in a finishing school."

"And how about Lester?" asked mother, sighing.

"Pooh!" answered father. And that ended that conversation.

You bet Lester Blythe was raging mad. He wasn't allowed to go to Aunt Jenny's house, because she hates young men, but he did manage to see Lella on the rare occasions she was let come home.

Now, to resume. Aunt Jenny and Lella were to sail on the Saturday, and the passages were booked, and our house was mighty gloom, I can tell you. Lella had come to spend the afternoon, and Lester, of course, came hard upon her heels.

"Girls," says Claude, "it's their last meeting. Let's leave the poor chumps alone till father comes in."

We hated to do it, but we are all sports, even including Peter. So we left them. But somehow I couldn't help overhearing what they were saying as I sat reading quietly on the hall chair, just outside the room.

"Oh, I don't, Lester," I heard Lella say, half crying.

"Why not, dear?" he was asking. "Once we are married we can swap our fingers at the old cat. It's easy to get the license, and I know a milliner who'll do the trick. I saved up five dollars last week on purpose. Say you will, dearest?"

Whether Lella would have said she would or not will never be known, for at that moment in came father and mother, and Aunt Jenny, too. We all followed them into the parlor. Lester and Lella were sitting at opposite ends of the lounge, looking at opposite ends of the room, and it looked sort of suspicious, but nobody minded them.

"I am absolutely ruined," says Aunt Jenny. "Every penny I have, except my little hoard of five thousand and the house, wiped out in that oil venture."

"Lella do you hear that? I am ruined," says Aunt Jenny. "So you will have to go back to your family, and there will be no Europe for you, and no finishing school, either."

I was amazed to see Lella go to Aunt Jenny's side. "Never mind, Aunt Jenny," she said. "We can stay and keep house together till—"

"Next—" began Lester; but Lella cut him short.

"As soon as Mr. Grimes raises Lester's salary, Aunt Jenny," she answered.

Father said afterward that that was the most sensible thing Lella had ever said.

To Increase Supply of Salmon.

Important experiments have recently been made by the fisheries expert for British Columbia in connection with the hatchery operations. Last year at Seaton lake, instead of placing all the sockeye salmon eggs in trays, as has been the custom heretofore, a plan was adopted more in keeping with the natural methods followed by the fish. The eggs, after having been inoculated with the lymph, were buried under five to seven inches of sand and gravel. Over 200,000 ova were thus treated in tanks especially made therefor, and as a result 188,000 healthy fry have been taken out with the possibility of more to follow. This is a splendid record, as compared with the old plan system, and it is believed by the experts that the new method will revolutionize the business of the hatcheries.

ITCHING BURNING ECZEMA

R. F. D. No. 2, Caldwell, Ohio.

"When our baby was about two months old she broke out over her body, face and head with eczema. It was bad, about as thick as it could be. It broke out in a kind of pimples. They were red and sore. She was very cross and restless. The eczema would itch and burn till she couldn't sleep. It looked very badly and would peel off where the places were. Her clothes would irritate the eruption.

"We gave her medicine, but it didn't do any good. We had heard about Cuticura Soap and Ointment so we sent for a sample and it was not very long till she was better. I bought some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment which cured her completely." (Signed) H. E. Smith, Mar. 21, 1914. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Stork's Good Memory.

While visiting the Berlin zoological gardens, says Lustige Blatter, little Gretchen saw a great white bird standing on one leg in a cage. She threw in a piece of candy; the bird gobbled it up eagerly; and thrust its head through the wire for more. Presently Gretchen's mother came along. "O mother, see here! What kind of a bird is this?"

The mother pointed to the sign on the cage, which read, "The Stork."

"The stork!" cried the little girl enthusiastically. "O mamma, do you know, he actually recognized me!"

Greek Meets Greek.

The two oldest inhabitants were very ignorant, neither of them being able even to tell the time of day. A friend of Uncle Ben's gave him a watch, of which he was very proud. One day, before the crowd at the corner store, old Pete, being slightly jealous of such wealth and wishing to embarrass his rival, said: "Say, Ben, what time have you got?"

The other old fellow drew out his watch and turned its face toward his neighbor. "There she be!" he exclaimed.

Pete was almost at a loss, but he made a magnificent effort and retorted: "Blame it she ain't!"—Everybody's Magazine.

Mrs. E. S. Spaulding.

Emma Everett Spaulding was born June 9, 1862; died, October 28, 1914. She was married September 21, 1887 to Edward S. Spaulding who with their two sons still survive her.

Their early married life was spent on what was known as the Wines place; later they removed to the Everett homestead in Sharon, from whence they came to their present home. In her girlhood days she united with the Baptist church of Chelsea, to which faith she ever clung through all the varying vicissitudes of life—recognizing that the Source of Infinite Good is not confined to one channel, but has many through which help may be imparted to his suffering children. In her daily life she exemplified the teachings of the Master whom she was pleased to serve. Her devotion to her family was well known to her entire circle of acquaintances. No sacrifice on her part was too great that would tend to the betterment or happiness of her family. A precious heritage, to the two sons, Harold and Walter; is the memory of such a mother.

But to those who knew her intimately, it would seem that the most distinguishing trait, in a character in so many ways exemplary, was the spirit of service manifested toward all who came within reach of her kindly ministrations. Truly, of her it may be said, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; they do rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

The funeral services of Mrs. E. S. Spaulding were held at the family residence Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. They were conducted by Rev. Charles J. Dole, assisted by the Rev. A. W. Fuller. The services were impressive and attended by a very large circle of relatives and friends. Interment took place in the Vermont cemetery.

Obituary.

Francis Beeman died Sunday, October 25, 1914, at about eleven o'clock at the home of his son, George W. Beeman, of Lyndon, at the age of 70 years, 5 months and 19 days.

The deceased was born on the Beeman homestead in Lyndon township, April 6, 1844, and there he grew to manhood. He was married to Miss Mary T. Jackson in Waterloo on December 17, 1865, and to this union five children were born, one of whom, Mrs. Sarah Watts, died October 11, 1907. On October 31, 1910, Mr. Beeman was again married and the widow, Mrs. Helen Beeman, is now left to mourn her loss.

Mr. Beeman settled on the farm where his son George now lives, in 1886, when it was practically all timber land, and with much toil and hard labor succeeded in subduing the land and building up a fine farm. He continued to reside on the farm until about 15 years ago when he removed to Chelsea, remaining here for about nine years and then going to Jackson for about two years and still later to Lansing where he has resided for the past three years. Early last spring his health began to fail and upon the advice of his children he came to the home of his son, George, where he remained until his death on Sunday.

He leaves to mourn their loss his widow; one brother, Orson Beeman; three sisters, Mrs. Elvira Dale, of Ithaca, Mrs. Celia Dean and Mrs. Minnie Ellsworth, of Stockbridge; two daughters, Mrs. Anna Jones and Mrs. Belle Zick, of Jackson; two sons, George, of Lyndon, and Edmund, of Jackson; three step-children, two step-grandchildren and many other relatives and friends.

The funeral was held from the home of his son George Wednesday at one o'clock, Rev. Nodurdt officiating. Interment in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Choral Union Concert.

Word was received, a few days ago, from the New York managers of Ferruccio Busoni, the distinguished pianist, who is to appear on this year's Choral Union series at Ann Arbor, that he was unable to sail from Naples on October 20, in accordance with the schedule, and that he will be delayed temporarily in reaching America, so that it was necessary for several of his dates scheduled for the first part of November to be postponed.

He will appear in Ann Arbor, Thursday evening, January 14, 1915, instead of as originally announced. Accordingly, the next number on the Choral Union series will be that of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra on the evening of December 2.

Rescued Mr. Lieberman From Serious Illness. Giniper Pills Restored Him To Health More Convincing Proof

Maybe, Mich., Jan. 9, 1914—Gentlemen: Having suffered from severe backache and rheumatism I was advised by a friend to try M. & W. GINIPER PILLS. When I first started to take them I was in very bad condition; unable to work; in fact I could scarcely sit up but I kept on with them and took only two boxes. I experienced relief from the very start and am today as well as at any time in my life. I highly endorse GINIPER PILLS and feel very grateful for having my attention called to them. Signed—Reinhardt Lieberman.

If you are a sufferer from kidney ailments you cannot ignore Mr. Lieberman's testimony. What GINIPER PILLS did for Mr. Lieberman they will do for YOU. If you are unconvinced let us send you a generous trial treatment of GINIPER PILLS absolutely free in order to prove our claims.

GINIPER PILLS—for the kidneys—are endorsed throughout the UNITED STATES. Sold and recommended by 30,000 retail druggists. 50c everywhere. At your druggist or address.

The football game Saturday afternoon at Ahnemiller park between the Chelsea and Stockbridge Boy Scout teams resulted in a victory for the Chelsea team by 47 to 6.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Gurney Dancer, of Stockbridge, October 27, 1914, a son. Mrs. Dancer will be remembered as Miss Winalee Comstock a former resident of Chelsea.

H. F. Brooks, Roy Evans and H. E. Cooper were guests of the Ann Arbor fire department Sunday afternoon. They witnessed the public demonstration of the new motor equipped fire engine.

Preparations are being made for the grand banquet to be given by the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 26, in St. Mary's hall. Full details later.

The parcel post is proving a great thing for the people in the villages and cities as well as those living on rural routes. Among the articles brought in by one of the Chelsea carriers Tuesday was a hot chicken pie.

The football game Friday afternoon at Ahnemiller park between the Chelsea and Jackson high school teams resulted in a victory for the Chelsea high by 21 to 12. One of the Jackson team had a rib fractured and one of the Chelsea boys was slightly injured.

Many fields of wheat in this vicinity during the early part of September were badly damaged by the insects and in some instances the fields will probably have to be plowed up in the spring. The late sown fields have escaped the ravages of the insects.

The Ann Arbor Times News in its writeup of the U. of M. Freshmen-U. of D. football game last Saturday, says: "The backfield of the Fresh team showed varsity class, the boys who will be sophomores next year should make the other varsity candidates hustle for their jobs. First and foremost is the great little field general, Jack Dunn, who should make a worthy successor to Tommy Hughtitt."

The second number of the Brotherhood entertainment course was given in the Sylvan theatre Wednesday evening and Dr. Andrew Johnson delivered a very able lecture. He is a capital story teller and his wit and humor held the audience in convulsions of laughter. On the whole his address was one of the best ever delivered here. The next number will be on December 14 by Roland A. Nichols.

The Chelsea friends of Mrs. Rebecca J. Butterfield have received the announcement of her death on Friday, October 30, 1914, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Yerkes, of Detroit. The funeral was held from the home at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The remains were taken to Goshen, Indiana, for interment. Mrs. Butterfield was a resident of Chelsea for many years and moved from here to Detroit.

The fire alarm this morning was caused by a blaze at the Wilkinson barn, in the rear of the Palmer garage. It was caused from throwing hot ashes on some oily waste. Leigh Palmer subdued the blaze with one of the fire extinguishers with which his garage is equipped. This barn was the first building built and occupied for a dwelling in Chelsea, having been built in 1850 by John C. Winans who lived in it while building his house, the first dwelling house in Chelsea village, although at that time Elisha Congdon's farm house and buildings were here.

INFORMATION PICKED UP IN THE ORCHARD

UNSPRAYED

SPRAYED

The Effect of Spraying.

Plant apple trees five or six inches deeper than other fruit trees.

It is a mistake to assume that always a big tree will come into bearing sooner than a small one.

If too big the storms may cause them to be seriously injured before the roots become firmly fixed.

A new orchard should be cultivated from the start.

A tree which is infested with insects will not thrive any better than a pig covered with lice.

The farmer who starts an orchard and has not studied the effects of spraying might as well save his time and expense. He will fail without spraying.

The Ben Davis makes a brave showing on the city fruitstands, but doesn't cause a prejudice among the ignorant against all apples.

An old broom from which most of the brush has been worn off will remove loose bark from the trunks of trees, and at the same time destroy many hiding places of insects.

A tree which is properly sprayed and cared for, however, seldom has any rough bark to remove.

Do not let the pears remain on the trees until thoroughly ripe, or they will become soft and "mealy."

Pears should be picked when the fruit is fully matured and placed between blankets in a dry, moderately warm room to ripen.

If your peach trees were loaded with very small fruit this year try picking off every other one when the fruit is just formed next year, and you will probably have much larger pears, and a much better quality.

In yellow apples the only test of ripeness is the seeds. When they have turned a light brown it is time to pick.

It is safe to leave red apples several days after the seeds indicate ripeness, because the warm, mellow days of autumn add to their ripeness and beauty.

Pears are likely to be spotted or injured in other ways if Bordeaux mixture isn't sprinkled on the orchard.

It is not generally known that all varieties of Japanese plums are sterile and will not bear fruit unless crossed by other varieties.

It is generally true that self-pollinated fruit is not as large or vigorous as fruit from crossed-sterilized blossoms on the same tree.

To produce apples which best conform to the ideals of mankind requires the best of effort and craftiness to outwit insects and disease.

In describing the fruit the word "base" means the part of the apple at the stem end; "apex," the portion at the blossom end; "cavity," is the depression around the flower end; "calyx," the so-called flower in the apex of the apple. The general form is referred to as being "round," "oblate," "conical" and "oblong." As regards size, apples are said to be "small" when two and one-half inches in diameter or under; from two and one-half to three and one-half inches they are termed "medium," and above this, "large."

KEEPING CEMENT BUILDING WHITE

Decidedly Important to Work on Wet Wall as Cement Will Not Adhere to Dry Surface.

Cement frequently has several shades of color after it is dried. The practical way is to wash the entire surface with cement made by mixing two parts of Portland cement and one part of marble dust, with sufficient water to reduce it to the consistency of white-wash, applying with a common white-wash brush.

The wall has to be thoroughly dried for several hours previous to applying the wash and must be kept constantly wet during the work and the day after.

It is decidedly important to do the work on the wet wall, as it will not adhere on a dry one.

Planting Strawberries.

Strawberry plants fail to grow more frequently from being set too deeply, than from any other cause. The crown should always be above the surface of the ground. A dibble is better than a trowel for planting. When the hole is made the long, fine roots should be placed in the hole, and the earth pressed very tightly about them. If there is danger of a dry time—water may be put in the dibble hole, and allowed to soak away before the plant is set in.

Taking Care of Your Sheep.

There is an old adage which if kept in mind and acted on by every feeder not only with his sheep, but with all his live stock, he would do much better than the average feeder; and that adage is simply this: "An animal well summered is half wintered, and an animal well wintered is half summered," which means that the year through you should keep your animals in nice smooth plump condition.

PLAN FOR RIPENING THE LATE TOMATOES

One Good Way Is to Use Shelves of Kitchen Cupboard, as Fruit Needs Darkness.

(By J. FIELD.)

Dig up the plants with plenty of roots and spread on spaded ground in a well-sheltered corner along a fence. Cover with straw, leaves, burlap, or old carpets or quilts.

Another way is to dig up and shake the soil from the roots and hang roots up in the barn or shed.

A neighbor spreads leaves in an old cold frame several inches thick, and on this puts a lot of green tomatoes. At night, or when it rains, he lowers the shutters.

Another neighbor uses the shelves of a kitchen cupboard for ripening green tomatoes, stating they want heat and darkness.

Selecting Seed.

No matter what you select as the kind of seed you grow after you have studied the soil, location, climate and market, there is another thing which you must bear in mind: "Gardens are not made by saying: 'How beautiful! and sitting in the shade.' There is a great deal of hard work connected with the garden if it is to be beautiful and profitable.

Boosting Dairy Business.

The dairyman should grow as many acres of alfalfa as he raises acres of corn for his silo, and boost this dairy business above drudgery by having a system that will bring things around on time.

Well Under-Drained Soil.

Do you know that soil well under-drained can be worked deeper and will stand drought and wet spells much better?

THE OPTIMIST.

Rev. Bouck White, whose six months' jail sentence for interrupting the services in John D. Rockefeller's church has been sustained on appeal, is noted for his happy fund of anecdote.

"I detest the shallow optimist," Mr. White said at a recent vegetarian banquet in New York. "I detest the shallow optimist who, shutting his eyes to the numberless evils that surround us, insists that the world is getting better."

"This man, in fact, reminds me of the nurse whose mistress said:

"Was Johnny good at the party, nurse?"

"Oh, yes, ma'am," she replied. "He only broke two vases and kicked four little girls."—Minneapolis Journal.

Where Procedure Is Slow.

"What's your excuse for speeding?" asked the judge.

"Oh, we live in rapid times, your honor," answered the motorist flippantly. "Everything has to speed up a bit these days."

"Not at all," said the judge. "And you will observe the contrary if you will sit down and spend the day in this courtroom. Ten dollars."

Accurate Calculation.

"You told me the citizens of your community would stand by you as one man," said the campaign manager.

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum.

"And all the letters we have received bring forward only a solitary voter who is going to support you."

"That's the one man I had reference to."

SHE KNEW.

He—Man never gets too old to learn.

She—No; but he has to be old enough to die before he will admit that he doesn't know it all.

Answered.

"Twinkle, twinkle, little star! How I wonder what you are!" "Well, I'll tell you—don't forget—I'm the favorite soufflé."

Drawing the Line.

"I want you to read my speeches," said the candidate.

"Couldn't think of it," replied Mr. Dustin Stax.

"Why I thought you would be interested. You have always subscribed to my campaign fund."

"Yes, I'm glad to be an old subscriber. But I'm hanged if I'll be a constant reader."

Too Easy.

"Have you been able to meet all the demands of your creditors?" "Meet them? I haven't been able to avoid them."—Buffalo Express.

Just Between Friends.

"Julian has saved my life nine times this year."

"So that is what he meant when he called you a cat!"—Punch.

A Revised Precept.

"What do you mean by jumping on that man and pounding his face?" "I believe a pound of prevention is worth an ounce of cure when anybody threatens to thrash you."

Where You Didn't.

"Where is the best place to spend one's vacation?"

"The place you don't hear of until your vacation is over."

Startling.

"Miss Oldgirl, ain't you afraid the police will run you in?"

"What on earth do you mean, child?"

"My pa says you're a false alarm."

Partly Right.

Mrs. Bacon—This paper says Kansas this year will reap four crops of alfalfa. What is alfalfa?

Mr. Bacon—Why, alfalfa is—why, it's a—well, it's a sort of breakfast food for cows.

On the Veranda.

"I love the bunny hug."

"I don't know it," said the young man, regretfully; "but I'm a bear at the plain, old-fashioned variety."

And then the moon considerably withdrew behind a cloud.

THE SAME.

Wisely—What? Moved out to Jaytown? Why, I just sold my house out there through an agent to some old fool who paid $3,000 more than it was worth. You may live near it—300 Damp avenue.

Stuk—I do. That's the house I bought.

His Chief Delight.

The auto band is a chap Who's very hard to stop; There's nothing that he more enjoys Than "shooting up" a cop.

Returned Tourists.

"Are you going to the Wallerby reception tonight?"

"No. The Twobles will be there, so I declined my invitation."

"Why do you object to the presence of the Twobles?"

"I don't object to their presence particularly, but I have already heard them tell the story of their escape from Berlin ten or twelve times and I don't feel equal to another recital."

No Use for It.

Mr. Debonair, entering the dining room of the Palace hotel, hands his hat to waiter, who offers him a check.

Mr. Debonair—Thanks; I've no use for it.

Waiter—No use for it, sir? It's a check for your hat.

Mr. Debonair—I understand, but I've no use for it. I always take the best hat I can find after dinner.—Judge.

Nowadays Advertising.

Editor—I have called you to talk over this latest story you submitted.

Writer—Yes; isn't it up to standard?

Editor—Way, way above. What I wanted to say was that it is entirely too good to go into our mere reading. It is good enough to be used as an advertisement for something.

Where He Suffered.

"Are you married, young man?" a lady asked a sailor.

"Yes, indeed, mum—married and 14 children."

"Poor fellow, traveling about like this! And don't you get homesick?" "Only when I'm home, mum."—London Opinion.

Narrow.

His sins had found him out. But when his faithful wife offered her sympathy he met her with reproaches.

"If your skirts weren't so infernally stylish I might still hide behind them!" he snarled, savagely.—Puck.

Possible Reason.

"Why does that fellow look so glum and grouchy all the time?"

"I fancy it is because he knows so many mean things about himself."

A CALLOWDOWN.

Professor Bore—Don't you know I'm just beginning to find my place in the world?

Miss Cutting Hints—How humiliated!

Too Bad.

"I washed my hair this morning and—"

"And you can't do a thing with it. I have heard that before."

"Worse than that. My hairdresser telephones that she can't do a thing with it."

Maw Knows a Few Things.

Willie—Paw, why do women cry at a wedding?

Maw—They have been married themselves, my son.

Paw—You beat it to bed, Willie.

HER GLOWING EYES

By GRACE E. WHARTON.

(Copyright, 1914, by W. G. Chapman.)

Verne Tyson roused up with a start. He rubbed his eyes, he shook himself. Then he stared across the table where his club acquaintance, Colonel Reeves so-called, should have been. No colonel. Then beyond that at the spot where last he had seen the volatile, never-to-be-forgotten Madame Hortense Vassour. Gone. A discreet waiter, napkin on arm, approached. His well trained face expressed a mild inquiry, a strong suggestiveness of being of service.

"How long have I been here?" asked Verne abruptly.

"Three hours, sir."

"Alone?"

"Yes, sir."

"And the others?" demanded Verne, with a sweep of his hand.

"They joked about your sister and seemed to think it sport to give you the surprise of waking up alone."

"So," muttered Verne, and his face showed that he did not like the situation. He arose. The waiter helped him to his hat and gloves, bowed his thanks for a careless liberal fee, and Verne walked from the cafe garden into the street.

"It wasn't the wine—I didn't touch it," he ruminated. "It was not ennui, for the colonel and his lady friend were positively brilliant this evening. It was that woman's eyes!"

Verne knew little of the colonel, less of the woman. The former lived a mysterious existence at the club. The lady was his cousin, he had said. From the first her eyes had repelled Verne, because every time they sparked they gave him an unaccountably uneasy feeling. She was pretty, witty, winning in her ways. She was intelligent, too. The conversation had drifted towards the occult, hypnotism and all that during the little refection.

Then—

"I want to sleep," reflected Verne, "and I remember my lady's glowing eyes the last thing. Br-r-r! It is uncanny. Perhaps she tried the art mer-magic on me. I'll go and see Lella and forget all about it."

To Lella he was affianced. Society saw an ideal love match in their prospective union. The Boyds were wealthy and Verne was the heir of his uncle, the richest man in the district. The wedding had been set for two weeks ahead.

It was fortunate that Lella had some other callers that evening, for Verne felt dull and uncompanionable. He could not shake off a certain apathetic, lethargic feeling that oppressed him. Lella noticed it, and when he left she whispered softly:

"We shall be alone tomorrow evening—come early."

But something prevented. The following morning Mr. Trisham, Verne's uncle, sent his nephew away on a business mission to a city a day's journey distant. It covered a stay of some weeks, where attention to a lagging lawsuit would require constant vigilance.

Verne wrote a hurried note to Lella explaining the situation. Mrs. Vassour passed out of his mind, but she was revived temporarily two days later, when to his surprise Verne met Colonel Reeves on the street in Truxton.

"Heard you was here on business," spoke Reeves familiarly. "Some business of importance likely to keep me here for a week or two. If you are going to make any kind of a prolonged stay, we can find pleasant mutual quarters down at the Ramblers club."

Verne thought not any too much of Reeves, but time was likely to hang heavy on his hands, the colonel was good company and some very pleasant days passed.

"My cousin, Mrs. Vassour, is still at Midvale," announced the colonel one day. "By the way, she wrote me that she met your uncle at a reception. Fine old gentleman. He was very attentive and courteous toward her."

If Verne had not known that his rich relative was a confirmed bachelor, he would have felt uneasy. As it was, when he wrote to his uncle he jocularly expressed the sentiment "beware of the widder!" and gave his uncle a hint that Mrs. Vassour was scarcely on equal with upper crust society.

At the end of two weeks there came some vast surprises for Verne. For several days he had not received any word from Lella. His uncle, too, was strangely silent. Then there appeared at Truxton a young lawyer who sometimes did business for Mr. Trisham. "You are to return home at once," said this visitor.

"But the lawsuit here?" remonstrated Verne. "I have got it in just the right shape, I am familiar with its details and can certainly be of use regarding it."

But the lawyer very gravely and seriously reiterated the unqualified direction from Mr. Trisham, so Verne returned to Midvale.

It was an inexplicable and chilling reception that awaited him. He had never seen his uncle so distant.

"Yes, I sent for you," he said sternly. "I suppose I need not tell you why," and he passed across the table between them three checks for ten thousand dollars each. They bore dates a few days apart and the cancelled stamp of the bank. They had been made out payable to self or bearer, and they had been cashed through a bank at Truxton.

"Well?" questioned Verne, looking up in a puzzled way, "what has this got to do with me?"

"Have you the audacity to ask," challenged his uncle stormily. "Listen—I know all. You forged my name to those checks. You alone can imitate my handwriting so cleverly, for on occasions I have warranted your using my signature. You alone had access to the check book in my safe, and those three checks were torn out from the back of my check book."

Of course Verne indignantly protested. It was of no avail. His uncle swore that unless he went away to a distant solitude he would disown him. Verne found the Boyd home shut against him. Lella had been sent away to a relative convinced of his guilt, his uncle claimed.

A broken man, confronted by a mystery he could not fathom, Verne remained in seclusion for a week. One evening a visitor was announced. It was Mrs. Vassour.

She was pale, wretched looking. She inquired of Verne where he had last seen Reeves. He told her at Truxton. She said he had disappeared from there. She broke out into bitter vituperation of the wretch who had borrowed all her money and left her penniless.

Verne felt sorry for the adventures. He inquired gently as to her necessities and tendered her some money. She took it, started to leave the room, and then, some wild impulse stirring her, returned to his side.

"You are a gentleman and a friend," she said, her voice quivering. "I confess all."

In amazement Verne listened to her story. A past mistress in the art hypnotic, she had placed him under the influence of her power that evening at the cafe garden. She had forced him to reveal all about his uncle and the details of his business.

While he was at Truxton she had visited Mr. Trisham. Upon him she had worked her spell also. Unconsciously he had produced the check book and followed her directions. Reeves had cashed the checks at Truxton and had disappeared with the money.

"I do not know where he is," said Mrs. Vassour, "but I know his old associations, and if you promise not to prosecute me I will assist in running him down."

Which was done, and nearly the whole of the money recovered. Then, amid the amazing manifestation that the signature to the checks was his own, Mr. Trisham was more than contrite. He gave the entire amount recovered to his nephew, and Lella became a happy bride.

Invisible, But Supporting.

The most wonderful part of a plant is usually that which is not visible. The roots act not only as anchors to hold the plant firm in the ground, but as wandering mouths, picking up food and drink for their parent.

Roots travel amazing distances in search of their requirements. A timber merchant, excavating for a sewer in Gloucester, found an elm root one and a quarter inches in diameter and 63 feet long running through a bed of sawdust from the tree to the nearest water, the Gloucester and Berkeley canal.

The aggregate length of root thrown out by some plants is almost incredible. A cucumber will, within its short life of about half a year, throw out from ten to fifteen miles of roots.

Clover roots will go straight down to a depth of six to nine feet in search of moisture, and coltsfoot, one of the most powerful and persistent of weeds, sends its suckers down to an even greater depth.

"Toeing the Mark."

The phrase "toeing the mark" is of fairly old and somewhat obscure origin. Several different opinions are held as to how it originated, but the derivation most generally accepted is that it comes from an old fashion among military men in drilling to draw a line upon the ground and make the company "dress" by toeing this mark.

The phrase thus acquired the meaning of "standing up" to something, and so became used in quarrels, when one of the parties would challenge the other to stand up to him. Even nowadays in some of the country districts in Great Britain it is customary for lads when quarrelling to provoke their opponents finally to the encounter by drawing a line upon the ground and telling them to "toe the mark."

The meaning of the phrase as now generally used is to come right forward and "stand up" to anything.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism untrained for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

English Farmer Had Made Old Mistake of Counting Chickens Before They Were Hatched.

An old farmer in the Midlands was anxious to marry, but could not make up his mind between the charms of a certain comely widow in the neighborhood and her equally charming daughter.

At last he resolved to let chance solve the problem.

"I'll ax th' one I fust sees agoin' in," he muttered, and off he started on his amatory errand. But when he arrived both mother and daughter were sitting in the doorway.

"Dang it!" he cried. "Here was I comin' to ax one o' 'ee to marry me, an' I swore the fust 'un should be the chance. But there ye both be together. I'll shet my eyes now, an' the one as don't want me mun go indoors. Th' one as stays is my wife to be."

Shutting his eyes the old farmer counted ten solemnly; there was a subdued chuckle, but when he opened them both women had gone.—London Tit-Bits.

HOW FRANCE'S BLACK MEN FROM AFRICA FIGHT THEIR BATTLES

By PAUL SCOTT MOWRER.

(Correspondent Chicago Daily News.)
Epernay, France.—There are two principal categories of foreign troops fighting side by side with the French to defend this lovely land—the British from across the channel and the Algerians, Moore and Senegalese from across the Mediterranean in Africa. Dozens of correspondents have followed the British expeditionary force to chant the heroism of Tommy Atkins. But though the exact figures are not available, I believe the French African troops now facing the Germans are about as numerous as the British—namely, in the neighborhood of 200,000. Somebody ought to chronicle their glories, too—some strolling poet of the Atlas, some black Voodoo with an epic turn of mind. In the meantime I may be permitted to tell the little I have learned about them, as I have seen them in these old French towns and marching among the vineyards of Champagne.

You may read in the Old Testament how David, after stunning Goliath of Gath with a stone, cut off the giant's head and carried it back to exhibit in camp; or, how Joshua and his Israelites, on taking Jericho, "utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, ox and sheep and ass with the edge of the sword." This was the ancient idea of warfare—not merely to defeat the enemy, but to exterminate him and carry off the heads of his champions as trophies. It is the idea of the Turcos and Senegalese riflemen to this day.

Can't Change Nature Habits.

These Africans have by no means been able to shuffle off their native habits just because they have been brought to fight in the white man's battles. All of their officers are French. One of these officers confided to me that he often had "the greatest difficulty" in persuading the men to behave in a civilized manner toward prisoners and the enemy's wounded. Indeed, I should say that "the greatest difficulty" is a euphemism. Somewhere up near the Belgian frontier the advancing Germans found a barn with 82 wounded Turcos in it. They burned and dynamited the building just as it stood.

Two Kinds of African Troops.

Roughly speaking, there are two sorts of French African troops—Turcos and Senegalese. Turco is a general name, covering Moors, Berber cavalry and Algerians, but properly applying only to the last, so called in the Crimean war by the Russians, who mistook them for Turks. The Turcos wear white or light blue baggy trousers, light blue jackets and red hats. They are recruited promiscuously among the various peoples inhabiting the North African coast, but all are Mohammedans, and in most of them Arab blood predominates. They wage war with the same fanatic fury which, in their forefathers, the Saracens, aroused the wonder of the Crusaders, and their specialty is the bayonet charge.

But the day of cold steel and the hand to hand fight, though by no means past, is gradually passing, as the Turcos have found to their cost. A division of them was in the rear guard which covered the French retreat from Belgium. At Signy-l'Abbaye they made a stand. The pursuing Germans halted in the fringe of a wood and presently the Turcos, whom their officers were unable longer to restrain, charged with the bayonet. Over the stubble fields where the wheat still stood in the shock swept the long, brightly colored line—blue, red, white, brown—and the silver of sunlight on polished metal. As they drew nearer to the foe they redoubled their shrill yells and began discharging their guns. Four hundred yards, 300 yards, 200 yards! Where were the Germans? Had the visible fury of the onslaught already frozen their hearts? At 100 yards a terrific fusillade of rifles and quickfiring opened from the woods. The panting Turcos, undaunted, increased their speed, sure now of victory, when suddenly—barbed wire! The German had meshed the field with barbed wire. The Turcos were caught like flies in the cruel web. Half of them returned. That, as far as I know, was the first and thus far the only great bayonet charge of the present war, though minor engagements of this nature have been frequent, and effective.

"It Was Written He Should Die."

It is curious how the oriental fatalism of the men soon spreads to their occidental leaders. Last night in a quiet cafe of this town I was conversing with a sergeant of the Moroccan fusiliers. He was a Frenchman of Lyons who had served four years in Algeria and two in Morocco—a fine, brown-eyed, handsome fellow, in his baggy, light blue trousers, his jacket of the same color decked with yellow braid, his bright red sash and his cap like a fez without a tassel. His Moroccan campaigns, he said, were more practical jokes to the present butchery, and he told me this story of the trenches, from which he had just returned:

"We have a hard time making the men stay down under cover. They want to see what is going on. They want to jump out and wave their guns and shout insults at the enemy occasionally as they used to in Morocco. Our captain, who was, of course, a Frenchman, was as bad as any. Except to sleep, he absolutely refused to descend into the trenches. He would kneel for hours on the ground a little to the rear watching the enemy through his glasses and directing our fire. When we remonstrated with him he merely said, like any Mohammedan that a bullet would find him when his time came—neither sooner nor later. But so many of our men paid for their temerity with their lives that he, too, finally consented to come down out of the hall of bullets which had never ceased about him. Yesterday was his first day in the trenches. About three o'clock in the afternoon a shell burst overhead. A piece of it hit him on the crown and killed him instantly."

"So you think it was because his time had come?"

"What else can one think? He had found safety in the midst of death, but death had found him in what should have been the midst of safety. The captain was right. It is written."

Think "All's Fair in War."

I do not know the origin of the proverb, "All's fair in love and war," but it has an ancient oriental savor and I suspect the Turcos thoroughly subscribe to it. These African fighters are the only ones among the allies whom I have heard speak openly in praise of German ruses. "They're sly ones!" say the Turcos, and wag their brown heads and grin appreciation. They think it a very good scheme of the Germans not to make any effort to bury their dead before retreating from one position to another, for thus the pursuing enemy must either bother to do the job himself or else run the risk of discomfort and even disease. They especially admire the German trick of standing up their dead, helmet on and gun in hand, along a deserted trench, so that the French will think the trench is still defended, and the wonder to them is, not that the Germans have burned and shot towns, but that they have not done so more frequently.

Senegalese Worship Fetiches.

The Senegalese tirailleurs, although resembling the Turcos in certain of their military ideas, are beings of an altogether different order. "There is but one Allah and Mohammed is his prophet," means nothing to them. They worship fetiches. They are black men of Imbuetoo and the Ivory coast, where the fiery harmattan blows southward off the Sahara toward these.

Knowing that the forefathers of many of our good American negroes had been captured by English and Portuguese slavers in precisely these regions, expected to find something familiar in the aspect of the Senegalese riflemen. I was destined to disillusion. Three days ago on the road to Reims I overtook an entire regiment. They stood or squatted or sprawled for several hundred yards along the ground at the edge of the winding road leading under the poplars, their rifles stacked, their white officers with white tunics, always at some distance from the men. Save for a flash under their tunics, they were uniformed entirely in dark blue, and to their cloth caps and their rifles. I walked past them slowly fascinated. Most wore shoes, some barefooted in sandals, but I did not look very closely at the darkest to distinguish this difference. They seemed very tired under the weight of their haversacks. Their eyelids drooped like those of an exhausted animal or of a man who has been drugged.

Their Eyes Cause Shudder.

It may have been this, or it may have been the bloodshot whites of their eyes which caused me to shudder slightly when one looked at me. They scarce spoke. Some sat staring into space, bent forward over their long legs, which extended like poles from their front. A number were armed—that is to say, they had lost their upper lips and under the chin a circle of black hair, the top of which was a pair of thick lips. When one of them took off his cap to mop his brow I was amazed to see a headpiece like the engravings in the anthropological textbooks—saved head with a tuft on top from which descended on all sides lanky strings. Some, too, had earring.

he became quite a local celebrity. Before that he went away for his usual yearly holiday, but failed to return. When the Germans occupied the town he was a colonel in command and used his local knowledge to considerable advantage in command of all worth having about the place. He never met any of his former comrades of the town council he had been elected to.

"You would not have me as mayor," you may yet have to put up with a burgomaster."

GERMAN COLONEL HAS LAUGH ON THE FRENCH

London.—The Standard publishes the following from Paris:

In a little town northeast of Paris, where the Germans were driven out by the English, General French was lodged in a house belonging to a rich member of the town council, who only failed to be elected mayor by three votes. This gentleman had come to the district from Alsace, and

A Home-Made Poison

Life and death in the days of a simple, natural, out-of-door life is a modern poison created inside the human body by a combination of meat-eating, overwork, worry and lack of rest. Backache or irregular urination is the first protest of weak kidneys. When the kidneys fail to filter in filtering out the excess uric acid, there is danger of gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills strengthen weak kidneys, but if the diet is reduced, excesses stopped, and fresh air, exercise and sleep increased, the uric acid more quickly. Doan's Kidney Pills have a world-wide reputation as a reliable kidney tonic.

A Michigan Case

D. B. Harrington, 215 W. Main St., Durand, Mich., says: "I contracted kidney trouble while in the army during the Civil War. The kidney secretions passed so frequently that I had to get up often at night and they were unnatural. My feet were so swollen I could hardly wear my shoes. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me as soon as I took them and before long my kidneys were normal. I am glad to confirm the endorsement I have previously given Doan's Kidney Pills."

BREVITIES

BRIDGEWATER—One day last week, Mrs. Elizabeth Finkbeiner dug up a potato that weighed two pounds, ten ounces. It was smooth and without prongs. Her daughter, Bertha was about as lucky, for she dug up a large copper piece that was over 150 years old.

DEXTER—George Hewitt, 30 years old, of Dexter, was taken to the county jail by Deputy Sheriff Fred Wyman Monday. Hewitt had stolen a ride on a Michigan Central freight train and was sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail by Justice Marcus S. Cook.

MUNITH—Wm. Lee was in Ann Arbor Thursday and Friday to visit his wife at the U. of M. hospital. After an X-ray examination the doctors have decided that Mrs. Lee is suffering from an ulcer of the stomach and will have to remain at the hospital for at least six weeks.

ANN ARBOR—At the state teachers' meeting, which was held in Kalamazoo Thursday and Friday of last week, School Commissioner Evan Esery of Ann Arbor, was elected chairman, of county school commissioners' section, of the Michigan State Teachers' association for the coming year.

ANN ARBOR—Mrs. Minnie Carpenter, of Dexter, in the circuit court, Saturday filed a cross bill in the divorce action, instituted by her husband, Ephraim H. Carpenter who alleged that, though he was suffering from an incurable ailment, his wife had treated him with extreme cruelty.

MANCHESTER—An agent of a commission house was in town a few days ago looking after potatoes, but on account of prices the tubers are held at here, he left for the western part of the state. He said that he had bought a car load at 29 cents a bushel and claimed that they would not be worth over 20 cents.—Enterprise.

HOWELL—Sheriff Wimbles returned from Toledo last Monday evening, with a couple of girls, daughters of respectable parents, who had started on the downward path. The girls are 16 and 18 years of age and one was before Justice Roche on Friday, while the younger one will be looked after by Probate Judge E. A. Stowe.—Tidings.

ADDISON—Three Pittsford lads, Cecil Andrews, Truman Wadsworth and Clarence Harris have been working with wireless telegraphy, each having a station at home. The boys can send messages about seven miles, if they are able to get a stronger electric current the distance would be greater. They can receive messages from points of 100 miles away.—Courier.

It Really Does Relieve Rheumatism.

Everybody who is afflicted with rheumatism in any form should by all means keep a bottle of Sloan's Liniment on hand. The minute you feel pain or soreness in a joint or muscle, bathe it with Sloan's Liniment. Do not rub it. Sloan's penetrates almost immediately right to the seat of pain, relieving the hot, tender, swollen feeling and making the part easy and comfortable. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents of any druggist and have it in the house—against colds, sore and swollen joints, rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief. Adv.

Princess Theatre.

Florence Lawrence, the most popular motion picture actress in the business in "The Disenchantment" in two reels is the headliner at the Princess tonight.

"The Fox" is the Saturday feature at the Princess. A Rex two-reel drama, with Robert Leonard and Hazel Buckham. Laid in the great woods of Canada. Another drama "The Siren" and a comedy are on the program.

"The Trey O' Hearts" by Louis Joseph Vance, author of The Destroying Angel, The Black Bag, The Lone Wolf, etc., will begin at the Princess Monday, November 16, following the last installment of Lucille Love. The story will start in this paper Thursday, November 12. Read the story and see the pictures. You like "Lucille Love" you will like "The Trey O' Hearts" much better. If you like to read—if you enjoy seeing something really worth while, don't dare miss "The Trey O' Hearts."

Notice. Each person attending the last installment of "Lucille Love" next Monday night will receive a card. This card and 10 cents will admit two adults to the first installment of "The Trey O' Hearts" the following Monday.

The Past Season One of Success.

Ann Arbor Times News: William Clark, of Dexter township, trainer and manager for the Ann Arbor Driving Club, is much pleased with the past season at the track, having driven J. C. Patchen a mile in 2:14, and the last half in 1:02; the first of June; Argot B. a mile in 2:24 with but four weeks training; Marvill Queen a mile in 2:23, last half in 1:10 and last quarter in 33; after but six weeks training, and a two-year old Barongale colt at better than 2:20 clip with very little training, could have driven the full mile in 2:20. This colt is considered by many prominent horsemen to be Michigan's greatest two-year old.

PREPARED

Bill—"Bout ready for th' deer season to begin, Pete?"
Pete—"Well, I should say so. I got five bucks hung up in the woods now and a party of ten city sports coming day after tomorrow."

Light Your House and Barns—Cook Your Meals With Home-Made Acetylene

And Make Your Acetylene With a Pilot Lighting Plant

Pilot plants make Acetylene automatically a little at a time as you use it in your gas cooking stove and in your lights distributed throughout your house, your barns and out-buildings. You simply fill the generator with the gas-producing stone "Union Carbide" and water about once a month.

Pilot plants are approved by The National Board of Fire Insurance Underwriters.

All told, over 250,000 country homes are using Acetylene made the Pilot way.

A complete Pilot plant, consisting of generator, pipes—hand-some light fixtures and gas cook stove, can be installed in any country home in a couple of days' time.

Such a plant is a permanent improvement and will furnish you with the cheapest, safest and most practical light and fuel now available for country home requirements.

Write for our illustrated catalogs and descriptive booklets giving all the facts. 11-1
