Lafayette Grange Meeting.

The next meeting of Lafayette Grange will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dancer on Friday, November 27. The program is as follows:

Opening song.
Roll call, responded to by each member naming something for which he is thankful.

Reading, Ebenezer's philosophy.
Question, What lesson has the past season taught on the farm, and in the home keeping, answered by the members.

Reading.
Question box.
Closing song.

Had His Leg Injured.

John Brenner, of Lima, had a lively time with a runaway team Monday evening of this week. Mr. Brenner, who with his brother George works the Wilbur McLaren farm, came to Chelsea on business in the afternoon and tied his team in front of the Standard office. About 6 o'clock he started for home and after taking the blankets off the horses and climbing into the wagon he discovered that the lines had fallen to the ground between the horses. As he stepped on the wagon tongue to gather them up the team sprang into a run and at the corner of Middle and East streets they turned south. One of the horses fell down opposite the Chelsea public school buildings and the driver got them under control.

When the horse fell Mr. Brenner's left leg was caught between the whiffletrees and wagon tongue and it was severely pinched and bruised. Upon his arrival home a physician was summoned to dress the injuries. No bones were broken and Mr. Brenner will be able to resume his usual work in the course of a few days.

Beginning Thirtieth Year as Pastor.

Last Sunday was the beginning of 30th year of Rev. W. P. Considine's pastorate of the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart. When Rev. Father Considine took charge of St. Mary's parish there were 155 families on the church roll and the number today is 300.

During his pastorate the church property has been greatly improved in many ways. Some of the improvements have been the erection of St. Mary's school building and convent and the laying out of Mt. Olivet cemetery.

The services Sunday were a fitting tribute to the pastor of the church and his work. Rt. Rev. Monsignor DeBever, of Dexter, was present and assisted in celebrating the masses.

In the evening Rev. Father Considine was the guest of honor at a banquet which the Ushers' Club gave at the Chelsea House. At the close of the banquet the president of the club, Frank Gieske, introduced Rt. Rev. Monsignor DeBever, who on behalf of the members of the club, presented their pastor with a purse of gold. After which the party adjourned to the rectory where a smoker was held.

Birthday Surprise Party.

The members of North Sylvan Grange gave Chris Kalmbach a happy surprise at his home in Sylvan last Thursday evening in honor of the anniversary of his birth. The regular meeting had been called to meet on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Laird, but the members quietly changed the meeting place and date.

At the business meeting the following officers were elected for the coming year:

Master—P. M. Broesamle.
Overseer—Emerson Lesser.
Lecturer—Nellie Laird.
Steward—Charles Young.
Assistant Steward—Irvin Weiss.
Chaplain—W. H. Laird.
Treasurer—C. E. Foster.
Secretary—Mabel Foster.
Gatekeeper—N. W. Laird.
Ceres—Fern Weiss.
Pomona—Inez Lesser.
Flora—Minnie Broesamle.
Lady Assistant Steward—Fannie Ives.

At the close of the business meeting a fine musical program was carried out. Mr. Kalmbach was presented with a pair of auto gloves as a reminder of the event. Mrs. Kalmbach and her daughter, Mrs. Fern Weiss, served an excellent lunch.

Choral Union Concert.

The next number on the Pre-Festival Choral Union Concert series at Ann Arbor, Michigan, will be given by the Philadelphia Orchestra December 2, 1914. This will mark the second appearance of this organization in Ann Arbor and it is safe to say that the profound impression which they made last year will be repeated this year. Mr. Stokowski, as well as the eighty-five members of his band, proved their excellent musicianship last year. This year the program will offer wider variety in that Mr. Theodore Harrison, baritone, will appear as soloist, offering two Arias.

In order that the general public may have the opportunity of studying the orchestral numbers in advance, the full program is published at this early date.

Overture, "LeNozze di Figaro," Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.
Aria, "Hai gia vinto la causa" from "LeNozze di Figaro" Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Theodore Harrison.

Symphony No. 8, in F, Op. 88, Ludwig van Beethoven. I. Allegro vivace con brio. II. Menuetto e trio. IV. Finale. Allegro vivace. (a) Legend from the "Kalevala" "The Swan of Tuonela" Op. 22. (b) Valse Triste, Jean Sibelius. (c) Tone Poem "Finlandia" Op. 26.

Aria, "Vision Fugitive" from Herodiade, Jules Massenet, Theodore Harrison.

Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 1, Franz Liszt.

The Official Canvass.

As a result of the official canvass some of the unofficial figures of the recent election shows somewhat of change in the results first announced. Samuel W. Barchfield, republican, is elected coroner over Dr. E. A. Clark, democrat, by a plurality of 38. Mr. Barchfield receiving 4,388 and Dr. Clark 4,350 votes.

Floyd E. Daggett, republican, is elected circuit court commissioner by a plurality of 59. Mr. Daggett receiving 4,407 votes and Dewey M. Forshue 4,348 votes.

Clayton E. Deake, republican, is elected drain commissioner by a plurality of 94. He received 4,454 votes, while his democratic opponent, Daniel W. Barry, received 4,360.

Drew Ten Days in Jail.

David Herbert, aged 35 years, who gave his home as Cincinnati, Ohio, was picked up in front of the postoffice about 6 o'clock Monday evening by Marshal Cooper and taken to the village lock-up where he spent the night. An automobile driver discovered the man lying beside the highway this side of Lima Center about 5 o'clock and the driver, who was on his way to Jackson, brought the man here. Herbert was in an intoxicated condition and was thoroughly chilled through when he was discovered and would have undoubtedly been badly frozen but for his timely rescue. He was taken before Justice Witherell Tuesday morning and he was given a sentence of 10 days in the county jail at Ann Arbor on the charge of drunk and disorderly conduct.

Thanksgiving Banquet.

All arrangements have been perfected for the annual grand banquet, given by the church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, for the benefit of St. Mary's school, on Thanksgiving evening, November 26, 1914. The banquet will be served from 6 to 8 p. m. There is a short literary program will be given. The Johnson family from Chicago will make their first appearance in Chelsea, and they are capital entertainers. Dancing will follow under the auspices of the Usher's Club. Fine music from Ann Arbor has been procured. The ladies will meet next Sunday after the second mass for final arrangements. Excellent speakers have been invited and vocal and instrumental music by talented performers will make an interesting program. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come and have a good time.

Corn Contest.

Cavanaugh Lake, Lafayette and North Sylvan Granges will hold a joint meeting in Macabee hall on Saturday, November 28. The children's corn contest will be held in connection with this meeting. Business session in the forenoon promptly at 10 o'clock. Self served lunch at noon. Everybody bring dishes and something to eat.

The afternoon meeting will be called to order at 1 o'clock.
Geo. T. English will give the boys a talk on corn growing.
Song, "Farewell Summer," page 132, Grange Melodies.

Talk on Education, Evan Esery.
Character song, "County Fair," North Sylvan Grange.

Talk, Mrs. Geo. W. Gage.
Recitation, Esther Zell.
Music, Lafayette Grange.
Recitation, Clara Riemenschneider.

Lindenschmitt in the Lead.

The board of county canvassers began recounting the ballots cast for sheriff Monday. The recount is being made by the request of Ross Granger the democrat candidate, who according to the official canvass was defeated by 3.

The recount up to Wednesday night resulted in the following figures, as compared with those shown by the canvass:
Sylvan, recount, Lindenschmitt, 313; Granger, 270; canvass, Lindenschmitt, 315; Granger, 269. Loss for Lindenschmitt, three.

Lyndon, recount, Lindenschmitt, 52; Granger, 70; canvass, Lindenschmitt, 51; Granger, 74. Gain for Lindenschmitt, five.

Lima, recount, Lindenschmitt, 95; Granger, 89; canvass, Lindenschmitt, 93; Granger, 89. Gain for Granger, two.

Dexter, recount, Lindenschmitt, 47; Granger, 55; canvass, Lindenschmitt, 44; Granger, 58. Gain for Lindenschmitt, six.

Total gain for Lindenschmitt, on Tuesday six.

When the board adjourned Wednesday afternoon Lindenschmitt was in the lead by votes. Mr. Lindenschmitt gained 1 vote in Selo; 1 vote each in Bridge-water, Lodi and Sharon. Ross Granger gained 1 vote in Pittsfield.

The three ballots that were thrown out of Sylvan was not an error on the part of the township board, but in tearing off the number on the ticket the initials of the inspector on the ballot was also torn off with the number. As a matter of fact the tickets were not properly perforated and the fault if any, was due to the poor work in printing the tickets.

TWO FATALITIES ARE REPORTED

NEWS FROM DEER HUNTERS IN NORTH WOODS TELLS OF ACCIDENTS.

ONE IS CRIPPLED FOR LIFE

Man Shot By Brother Lays in Woods
All Night Before Being Found and Nearly Dies From Loss of Blood.

Lansing—Notice has been received of fatal shooting accidents to two deer hunters in the woods.

Clyde Bacon, 25, Pittsford, Hillsdale county, died from a gunshot wound accidentally inflicted by a companion, Neil Horton, near Escanaba. Neut Kanuteson, a Charlevoix farmer, was killed while hunting deer north of Petoskey.

Michael Golowitch was crippled for life while walking on a highway near Marquette. The bullet, from an unknown hunter's gun passed through the knee of one leg and the thigh of the other.

Ricard Stevens, 35, of Groveland, was accidentally shot in the fleshy part of his right leg by his brother, John, while hunting near Iron Mountain.

The brother immediately went for help but when returning became confused and could not locate the place. The wounded man was alone in the woods all night, and nearly bled to death. His condition is critical.

ALBION GIRL WINS CONTEST

Defeats Six Men in Oratory in Interstate Prohibition Event.

Albion—Defeating a field of six experienced platform men, most of them professionals, Miss Ethel Bedient, an Albion college junior, representing the state of Michigan, against the states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and Maine, captured first honors here Friday night in the Eastern Interstate oratorical contest of the intercollegiate prohibition association.

Miss Bedient will repeat her winning oration on "An Open Fight," at the National contest, to be held Dec. 30, at Topeka, Kan. R. C. Parshall of the Garrett Biblical Institute, Illinois, took second honors with an oration entitled "The Enemy of Man."

Banker's Organize Group Five.

Saginaw—Group 5 of the Michigan Bankers' association was organized here Monday night with the following officers: Chairman, Benton Hanchett, Saginaw; secretary-treasurer, S. S. Roby, Saginaw; executive committee, C. H. Sutherland, Clare; E. C. Goodrum, Gladwin; H. A. Chamberlain, Arenac; H. J. Vanrubin, Isabella; J. W. Kinney, Bay City; Bay county; E. A. Lane, Midland; H. C. Moore, Alma, Gratiot county; R. B. Beaver, Hemlock, Saginaw county, and J. M. Ealy, Caro, Tuscola county.

Outbreak of Glanders Found.

Kalamazoo—An outbreak of glanders among horses in the south end of Kalamazoo county, just discovered by health officers, has led to the shooting of 17 horses and a rigid enforcement of health laws. Fears are expressed that the disease which is more destructive among livestock than the hoof and mouth disease, is spread over the entire south end of the county and veterinarians are putting forth every effort to stamp out the disease as quickly as possible.

Town of Powers Burned.

Escanaba—The town of Powers, 20 miles north of here, was practically wiped out by a fire which started in a saloon at 1 a. m. Tuesday.

The telephone exchange, postoffice, bank, two hotels, a church, barber shop and three saloons were destroyed. An engine was sent from Gladstone and the fire was under control at 9 o'clock, although still burning.

MICHIGAN NEWS ITEMS

Two burglars who robbed four stores at Howell Tuesday night were overtaken at South Lyon and arrested with about $150 worth of swag on them.

Frank Kasru and Joseph Dudas, Hungarians of Milan township, Monroe county, pleaded guilty to charges of murder and were sentenced to Marquette prison for life. Kasru shot his divorced wife October 12, while Dudas killed a girl who had spurned him July 31.

John Williams, 87, one of the earliest pioneers of the western part of Barry county, a cavalryman under General Custer, hunter and trapper, is dead at his home in Hastings.

Howard Harris, aged 9, was shot and killed by his brother, Charles, at the home of their parents in Verona township, Huron county. The Harris boys had just returned from school and were in the kitchen of the home when the accidental shooting took place. Charles was handling a 32-caliber revolver, which he did not think was loaded.

MICHIGAN NEWS BRIEFS

Emil Ahrens has sold the Morenci Observer to L. T. Raab, formerly of Flint.

Mrs. Hannah Swift of Quincy, deceased, bequeathed $25,000 to the Nichols Memorial hospital at Battle Creek.

Miss Susan Smith, a nurse, at the Kalamazoo asylum, died Monday from injuries received when she was struck by a street car.

Daniel Corrigan, of St. Clair county, seeks compensation from the state for the loss of one eye while cutting timber on a state contract.

The state tax commission boosted property valuations in Kent county more than $18,000,000, as the result of its recent visit. The total assessed valuation of the county is now $211,000,000.

John Hedlund, aged 21, of Metropolitan, sustained a broken neck in the woods near Metropolitan. A falling tree struck him. He was brought to the Swedish hospital of Iron Mountain where he died in a short time.

The supervisors of Mason county have appointed a special traffic officer to put a stop to the speeding of autos on county roads. Norman Upper, of Scottsville, was appointed, and he has already made several arrests.

Two months ago Daniel Deacon and his 19-year-old son, Leland, left Menominee for Fargo, N. D., to work. Friday both were suffocated by gas while digging a well. The bodies were brought to Menominee for burial.

With the officers of the great hive in attendance, the monument erected at Evergreen cemetery at Muskegon in memory of Mrs. Adolph G. Ward, founder of the order of Lady Macabees, was unveiled Thursday afternoon.

The board of canvassers has found that John R. Vine, republican, won for the legislature by four votes over John Lahey, democrat, who was believed elected in Lenawee county. An error in the count in one precinct was discovered.

Because of the federal quarantine mouth disease, transportation coming over Michigan due to the hoof and panies in the upper peninsula have been notified that all deer carcasses shipped out of the state must first be dressed.

The Wright school house, located two miles east of Amadore, was completely destroyed by fire Friday as the result of a defective chimney. There were 40 students in the building at the time, but all managed to escape in safety.

Dr. Ezra Sprague Holmes, the oldest dentist in Michigan died at Grand Rapids Thursday aged 95. He was a former president of the Michigan State Dental society. The Kent scientific museum at Grand Rapids was founded by him.

Fire starting at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning totally destroyed the Wm. A. Reddicks' wire hardware specialty factory, throwing 50 persons out of employment. The Main street section was threatened. The estimated loss is $125,000, fully insured.

It was announced Monday that the Grand Trunk will locate its big car shops at Port Huron if the people of Port Huron will raise $100,000. This means a great deal to the city, as the shops, when running at capacity, give employment to 1,000 men.

So great has been the increase at the Port Huron immigration office, that one more inspector, William Alexander, of Quebec, was added to the local force this week. For several months the Port Huron station has handled more aliens than the Detroit station.

The boiler house and compressor house of the Superior mine at Houghton burned and compels the closing of the mine for probably a month, throwing 300 men out of work, a hardship, as under war conditions the men have been working on reduced time and wages.

As the result of casting lots Wm. H. Moore will represent the second district of Michigan in the state legislature. Moore is a democrat. Charles Evans, republican, was tied with him when the ballots were officially counted and the drawing of lots was necessary for choice.

Merle Hunkins, of Reese, may be crippled for life as the result of being accidentally shot in the hip while returning from hunting with four companions. He and Kenneth Greenleaf got to scuffling and Greenleaf's gun exploded. The boys carried him half a mile to a farm house.

So many deer hunters are in the woods owned by a big lumber company of Ontonagon county that the woodsmen refuse to work for fear of the bullets whistling around them, several men already having been struck and slightly wounded. As a result the company will engage watchmen to keep hunters out of its woods.

The Michigan State Sunday school convention Friday elected C. H. Mott, of this city, president for the coming year. At the same time the invitation of Battle Creek to meet in that city next year was accepted.

The convention of retail implement dealers at Lansing Wednesday afternoon adjourned after having discussed trade matters entirely. The next convention will be held in Lansing, which has been the permanent meeting place for some time. Kalamazoo attempted to have the meeting changed to that city, but failed, getting but 13 votes.

FAMOUS BRITISH SOLDIER DEAD

Lord Roberts the Victim of Pneumonia While on Visit to Line of Battle.

MINE SINKS A WARSHIP

Audacious, One of the Most Powerful Vessels of the British Fleet, Destroyed—Fighting in Flanders Is Without Material Result.

London, Nov. 17.—Field Marshal Earl Roberts is dead in France from pneumonia.

A telegram from Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British expeditionary forces on the continent, apprised Earl Kitchener, secretary of state for war, of the death of England's great soldier. The telegram read:

"I deeply regret to tell you that Lord Roberts died at eight o'clock in the evening."

The place where Britain's aged hero died is not known definitely. It is supposed to have been somewhere along the Belgian-French frontier, where the British have been fighting for weeks.

British Battleship Sunk.

New York, Nov. 16.—Two men who were aboard the liner Olympic when it rescued the members of the crew of the lost dreadnaught Audacious to-new open formation when attacking. Possibly this reduces casualties, but the attacks are no more successful.

The battle has become less severe because of the blizzards which have swept the trenches and brought great suffering to the wounded as well as to the men in the fields. A large area of West Flanders around Dixmude has been flooded by the heavy rains and is no man's land for fighting.

French Official Statement.

The text of the statement given out in Paris follows:

"Along the Yser canal, from Nieuport to Dixmude, the fighting was limited to artillery exchanges. The inundated territory now stretches to the north of Dixmude to a point three miles north of Bixchoote.

"The forces of the enemy, which endeavored to cross the canal between Dixmude and Bixchoote, were driven back beyond the bridges. A German regiment was completely destroyed at a point to the south of Bixchoote.

"To the southeast of Ypres two other German attacks were repulsed. On our part we have taken the offensive and reconquered certain points of support.

"In the Argonne, the town of St. Hubert again has been attacked by the Germans, but without success. In the region of St. Mihiel a surprise attack by the enemy against Apremont resulted in failure."

Denies Losses in Argonne.

A semi-official explanation of the French position in the forest of Argonne was given out in Paris. It said:

"The fighting line has not changed perceptibly in the last two months. The French and German trenches are separated at some points by a distance not exceeding fifty yards. Infantry fire is constantly going on, while all the expedients of siege operations are being utilized. Daily engagements occurring along the right bank of the Vistula river. In this fighting we made 500 prisoners and captured ten machine guns up to yesterday.

"A decision has been arrived at in the battle which has been going on for the last few days at Wlodawek, in Russian Poland on the Vistula, thirty miles northwest of Plock. Several Russian army corps in opposition to us were driven back beyond Kutno.

"According to the present reports we made 23,000 prisoners and captured over twenty machine guns, as well as some cannon, the number of which has not yet been ascertained."

Austrian official bulletins, given out here today, say that the Austrian garrison at Przemyśl is showing great energy. The Austrians, it is asserted, have made a successful sortie to the north of the fortress.

Russians Nearer Cracow Goal.

Rome, Nov. 16.—A special dispatch from Petrograd to the Giornale d'Italia says that the overwhelming advance of the Russians toward Cracow is overcoming all obstacles, both the difficulty of the passage and the desperate resistance of the Austrians. Cracow is entirely besieged on the northeast.

A sortie from Przemyśl has been repulsed by Russian artillery and cavalry, which inflicted severe losses on the Austrians.

Money and Men for Britain.

London, Nov. 17.—The house of commons today voted unanimously to provide 1,000,000 more soldiers and an additional credit of $1,125,000,000 to carry on the war.

The vote followed an address by Premier Asquith, in which he declared the present crisis is "the greatest emergency which the empire ever has faced."

He said Great Britain already has 1,200,000 men under arms and that

Servia Appeals to Russia for Aid
Claiming That Great Reduction

Critical.

London—David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, in the house of commons Tuesday estimated that the cost of one year of the war for this country would be $2,250,000,000, the largest amount England has ever spent on a war, and more than twice what was spent in the four years' conflict in South Africa.

To pay this enormous bill the government had decided, he said, to raise a loan of $1,750,000,000, which would be issued at 95, bearing interest at the rate of 3 1/2 per cent and be redeemable at par March 1, 1928.

The chancellor proposed and the house unanimously supported him, that the income tax should be doubled, but only collected on one-third of the income this year; that an extra cent per half pint should be levied on beer, and an extra six cents per pound on tea.

It was explained that the expenditure on the British troops would be higher in proportion than that of any other country in the world, as the pay and the cost of the army and navy were greater; there were separate allowances to the men and their families, and pensions were on a larger scale. Already 2,000,000 were serving and another 1,000,000 were in the course of enlistment.

Situation in Servia Critical.

Petrograd—M. Tzemovitch, a special envoy from Servia, has arrived here to urge Russia to assist his country.

The Servian army has been reduced from 300,000 to 100,000, with the consequent danger of complete conquest of the kingdom by Austria. Great anxiety is felt in Petrograd because of the distress of Servia, for its absorption by Austria would bring the latter into territorial contact with Bulgaria, Rumania and Greece, thus causing the countries to be exposed directly to an Austro-German attack and making them hesitate about joining the Allies.

Moreover, through the possession of Servian territory, Austria would be able to offer Macedonia to Bulgaria, a Wallachian province to Rumania, and other land to Greece for their active support. M. Tzemovitch complains that Macedonian insurgents, led by Bulgarian officers, are attacking the Servian rear.

The situation is critical, because the Russian armies are needed in Poland, Galicia and the Caucasus.

Disarming German Cruiser.

Christiania, Norway—It was officially announced here Tuesday that the disarmament of the German converted cruiser Berlin, formerly a North German Lloyd liner, which has put in at Trondhjem, a seaport of Norway, has been commenced.

The Berlin appeared at Trondhjem, which is on the northwestern coast of Norway and well outside of the North sea, Monday. It was then reported that she was endeavoring to escape from the North sea to act as a commerce raider in the Atlantic, very much as the cruiser Emden did in the Indian ocean.

Her commander was given the choice of putting to sea within 24 hours or of submitting to disarmament. He chose the latter, apparently preferring to have his ship disarmed rather than risk going out to sea. The fact that her commander chose not to come out of Trondhjem may be taken to show that the enemy in considerable force awaited him outside the three-mile limit.

The Berlin is a protected cruiser 341 feet long. She has a speed of 18 knots and a main armament of 19 four-inch guns. She has a crew of 450 men.

Fresh Troops Sent to Front.

Fresh troops now being sent to the front are supplied with short coats of tanned sheep skin. Relief societies in Petrograd and other Russian cities are bending every effort to collect woolen garments, according to advices from Petrograd.

BRIEF NEWS OF WAR

Toronto—Syrians of Ontario have volunteered to raise a regiment to fight the Turks or to join a Canadian contingent.

Rome—The cabinet council has sanctioned the extraordinary expenditure of $50,000,000 for war preparations for the army which was requested by the new minister of war, General Zupelli.

LETTER FROM THE
STATE CAPITOLTION LIKELY TO BE TAKEN
LOOKING TO PROPER DRAFT-ING OF LAWS.

LUMBER MEN PROTEST BOOST

Game Warden Wires That Rumor
of Foot and Mouth Disease
Among Deer is a Canard.

[By GURD M. HAYES.]

It is certain that something will be done at the coming session of the legislature to provide for a proper drafting of bills so that defects will not be found in so many bills by the court.

Action along this line will be asked by Governor Ferris and from senators expressed by many members during the last campaign there is sure to be something done.

Either all laws will be finally typed into shape by the attorney general or the Massachusetts plan will be adopted. In the Bay state all bills involving constitutional questions, and as is practically every one considered by the legislature, is passed upon the supreme court before final passage. If the court holds that it is unconstitutional, or defective, the defect is cured before passage, or if the defect is such that the bill cannot be made legal, it is dropped.

Of course, in the past the attorney general has been asked by individual members for opinions on bills but the legislators have shown a tendency to regard his advice. This was not so in the case of the redistricting of legislative districts. Attorney General Fellows told the house committee that the bill as drafted would stand up in court. The legislature went ahead and passed it anyhow and representative J. Frank Stevens, of Essex, took it into court and it was thrown out.

Under the present system the theory is that the judicial committee of the two houses will whip all bills into shape but the theory hasn't worked out very well and it is certain that some steps will be taken at the next session to do away with the troubles of the past.

Large power interests of the Commonwealth Power company in Michigan are to be merged into one company, according to an application filed Thursday before the railroad commission. The Consumers Power company, of Boston, a holding company, with a capital stock of $80,000,000, evenly divided between common and preferred, has permission to do business in the state of Michigan. As it stands now the Consumers company holds all of the bonds, stocks, etc., of nine of the commonwealth interests in Michigan. The idea is to bring all together and away with individual company plans. This plan was adopted some time ago with the gas interests of the same companies.

A number of lumber dealers of the state held a conference with the state railroad commission Friday in regard to the recent increase in the rates on lumber. The lumber dealers claim they are willing to stand a boost of 5 per cent. Although the commission found the roads were not entitled to any increase in lumber rate, they assert the roads have increased lumber rates much more than 5 per cent. They point out that in certain cases the rates have been boosted as high as 75 per cent.

The Saginaw valley dealers claim they have been hit the hardest. Their representatives assert the average advance in their district has been about 10 per cent. The increase in the lumber rates will cripple every Michigan manufacturer who uses lumber, the dealers say. They claim it will result in an advance in the interstate lumber prices, as the lumber from the state is forced to compete with the Michigan lumber. Any increase in Michigan rates means an advance in the price of all lumber, is their contention.

Major William R. Oates, state game warden, wired his office here from Marquette that after an investigation conducted by himself and every one of his deputies in the upper peninsula, there was absolutely no truth in the reported foot and mouth disease among deer.

"The report is a canard. I say this after fully investigating. Not even a single rumor to that effect here except as coming from the southern part of the state," is the way Major Oates settled the rumors which have been in circulation.

That the report gained credence was evidenced by the fact that several parties ready to start have called the game office here for definite word. The whole state seems to have been poked with the news that the deer and the disease and that shipments were being refused by the railroads. This is absolutely untrue.

Judging from the early official reports received at the secretary of state's office for the state board of canvassers, all four of the constitutional amendments voted on at the election have been beaten.

The only one which seems to have any chance at all on the ratio so far developed is that permitting students and traveling men to vote while away from home. The other three are surely lost unless there is a complete reversal of the returns.

When the office closed Saturday afternoon there had been received reports from county canvassers in 37 counties. The counties were all small ones. In the 37 the votes stood:

Amendment for public highway bonds—Yes, 40,826; No, 67,600.

Amendment allowing students and traveling men to vote—Yes, 48,507; No, 61,403.

Amendment changing fraternal insurance laws—Yes, 21,734; No, 81,293.

A discovery that may materially affect the steel industry of the United States was made at least three weeks ago, when J. N. Thompson, mineralogist, prospecting for Chicago iron interests, found a vein of vanadium near the Lake Superior shore, 35 miles northwest of L'Anse.

The discovery was kept secret until Saturday and in the meantime machinery for the construction of a shaft has been delivered at L'Anse and a crew of men is already at work following up the vein which is 24 inches thick and outcrops for some distance. It is not known how deep the lode runs, but the indications from the rock foundation, are that it lies as deep as the copper-bearing strata further west and continues indefinitely. If the metal holds out in quantity tremendous values will be added to the upper peninsula output.

All the vanadium now used in this country is imported from Sweden and a few other European countries. In the United States it has been found in five western states and in only two states in sufficient quantity to mine. Thompson's discovery is the first intimation that vanadium existed in the middle west.

David Jones, chief deputy state game warden, says that bears are very numerous in the vicinity of Houghton lake, and that probably a great many will be killed this winter. Last winter one hunter that he knows of killed 51 in that neighborhood and they are said to be more plentiful this year than last.

Insurance Commissioner John Winslow says that it is a clear violation of the insurance laws of the state for any insurance companies to expend any fund for political purposes.

It was reported that certain companies interested in the fate of the proposed constitutional amendment relative to the regulation of fraternal insurance societies spent money in the recent campaign, and if company funds were used in any instance prosecutions will follow according to Winslow who is making a thorough investigation.

The crop report issued by Secretary of State Martindale shows that 14,015,290 bushels of wheat were grown in Michigan this year, while the yield of corn was 60,090,295 bushels.

The total yield of oats was 52,535,717 bushels, barley 2,214,708 bushels, rye 5,633,659 bushels, buckwheat 903,625 bushels, potatoes 41,139,473 bushels, beans 4,669,514 bushels, peas 1,109,758 bushels, clover seed 194,000 bushels, apples 23,643,000 bushels, peaches 1,564,000 bushels, pears 978,000 bushels, plums 378,000 bushels, cherries 1,326,000 bushels, strawberries 531,000 bushels, raspberries and blackberries 605,000 bushels, sugar beets 662,677 tons, hay 2,769,025 tons.

Last season the federal and state authorities succeeded in obtaining 120,000,000 whitefish spawn from the Detroit river. Chief Deputy David Jones is authority for the statement that this year the number will not be in excess of 50,000,000 and there is a possibility of the federal and state authorities having to get permission to fish in the inland lakes of the state where quantities of whitefish are known to be. Deputy Jones says that the dredging of the Detroit river for the Livingston channel is to blame for a great part in the inability to secure the fish spawn this year, the seining grounds used in former years having been almost if not totally destroyed.

The Michigan fish commission, which has the authority to allow the federal authorities to fish in the inland lakes of the state, has been asked by the federal authorities for the right to resume their fishing for spawn in certain lakes after the twentieth of the present month, and it is thought that this will be allowed.

Last season the state game department netted the state several thousand dollars from the sale of whitefish taken from the Detroit river after the spawn had been turned over to the federal authorities for hatching purposes. This year, from present indications, the amount will be far less than last year, owing to the inability to secure the fish.

An order for 5,000 white pine seedlings and 1,000 sugar maple seedlings has been received by the Michigan Agricultural college from Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer. It is said the trees will be planted on Mr. Ford's farm near Dearborn, Mich. Ford is said to have ordered the trees to furnish woodland for the birds Mr. Ford has imported.

DAIRY

UNPROFITABLE DAIRY FACTS

Any Farmer Can Insure Failure of His Business by Following Rules of Arizona Expert.

By following these rules any dairy farmer can insure the failure of his business, says Professor G. W. Barnes, farm advisor on live stock of the University of Arizona agricultural extension service:

1. Use scrub bulls. This will run down any herd in quick time.
2. Let the bull run with the cows. This will make their milk yield fall off and their calves come when least desired.
3. Do not test the cows for milk production or butterfat. In this way the poor cows will lose enough money in a year to buy several good ones.
4. Keep only the heavy eating cows which produce little milk.
5. Raise only the heifers from non-producing cows.
6. Feed sour and rotten feeds.
7. Do not supply pure water, but make the cows drink out of mud holes.
8. Furnish no shade during the summer months.
9. Have no shelter for the cows in cold and inclement weather. This will reduce the milk flow from 35 to 50 per cent.

10. Milk at irregular intervals.
11. Hire rough milkers who do not milk thoroughly.
12. Get in the cows with the assistance of dogs.
13. Feed only enough to keep the cows alive. This will surely stop the milk flow.
14. Never pay any attention to udder troubles. Beautiful cases of garget may thus be developed.
15. Buy cheap dairy cows anywhere. In this way one may succeed in introducing contagious abortion into the herd and community.
16. Keep the dairy buildings and utensils as dirty as possible. A very inferior quality of milk may thus be produced.

USING THE BALANCED RATION

Tests Conducted at Illinois Experiment Station Show Increased Production of Butterfat.

A balanced ration is "one in which each of the different food materials or nutrients is present in just the right proportion and amount to meet the needs of the animals," says bulletin 159 of the Illinois agricultural experiment station. Tests indicated that cows fed balanced rations yielded a pound of butterfat for each 17 pounds of total nutrients consumed, while 21 pounds were consumed to a pound of butterfat when an unbalanced ration was fed. The use of the balanced ration thus save four pounds of digestible nutrients for each pound of butterfat produced, or a pound and a quarter of butterfat was produced by the same number of pounds of digestible nutrients in balanced ration as was required for a pound of butterfat when the unbalanced ration was fed.

Not only was the butterfat more economically produced, but the cows given a balanced ration finished the test with better appetites and in much better flesh and general physical condition than the others.

INDIGESTION IN DAIRY COWS

Possibly Tuberculosis Is Present, and When Suspected Animal Should Be Removed and Examined.

There are several things to look for in a case of chronic indigestion in a cow. Possibly tuberculosis is present, and if it is suspected the cow should be removed from among the other animals and be closely examined by an expert veterinarian. Then there may be some organic disease of the stomach or there may be some foreign substance in the second stomach. When a cow suffers from chronic indigestion it is wise to call a veterinarian in order to ascertain how serious the trouble is.

The "Triple French Twist" Coiffure

AMONG the new ways of doing the hair which were launched with the coming of the present season the style known as the "French twist" made headway faster than some other of the new ideas. As ordinarily done it proved a rather trying coiffure to all but youthful, round-faced wearers. By bringing the long coil of hair to the top of the head and pulling a portion of it forward on to the forehead a more becoming arrangement resulted, especially when the hair was first waved.

At the end of the summer women had become very tired of the sameness in fashionable coiffures and were eager for something—almost anything—which promised change and variety. Hairdressers took advantage of this state of things, and the readiness with which the French twist was accepted, to introduce something of the French twist, in conjunction with neatly waved hair, they have produced some charming coiffures, none of them more artistic and few of them as pleasing as that pictured here.

This coiffure is called the "triple French twist." It is soft-looking and becoming to almost any face, and it is distinctly new. It does not require a great abundance, but takes some time, as all the hair is first waved in large

THOSE who turn their attention to the designing of dress accessories made of ribbon have supplied such a world of novelties during recent seasons that one might think no new thing in ribbons possible. But try to pass the ribbon counter with only a glance and find how quickly some startlingly novel and beautiful bit of finery will seize your attention. Those who work with ribbons are inspired by these beautiful fabrics and watch the passing modes from the viewpoint of the ribbon specialist.

Therefore, if you linger at the ribbon counter you are sure to be charmed by some novelty produced by the adaptation of ribbons to certain whims of fashion.

Besides the things that we have not seen before there are those with which we are familiar, but they are made up in the new patterns in ribbon and with novel finishing touches in ornaments.

The most fascinating pieces in the array of novelties are designed for neckwear. An example from among these is shown in the ribbon neckerchief, of which a picture is given here. It is made of moire ribbon in broad black and white stripes, box plaited to a band of black moire ribbon having a white picot edge. This band fastens at one side with a snap fastener under a knot with hanging loops and ends. A handsome American Beauty rose made of satin ribbon and in the natural rose color is fastened to the band just back of the loops and ends.

This is one of the most elaborate of neckwear pieces which tempt the passerby to consider ribbons. Plain bands of velvet ribbon, without an attached ruff, fasten with hooks and eyes or snap fasteners at the left side, and set close up about the throat. Two small half-open roses of satin in bright colors are set against the band over the fastening. Sometimes a marine ruff or one of lace is sewed to the band, extending across the back of the neck.

One of the brilliant ribbon vests with which the quiet suit may be so effectively brightened up is pictured here. It is made of a heavy figured moire in deep red and soft green colorings, having vague figures outlined in black. This is a useful accessory for the woman who wants to make one suit answer the purposes of two. For the tourist it is especially handy, converting traveling garb into something better suited to the hotel dinner.

A shopping bag of black and white striped ribbon is made by joining three lengths together, so that ribbons of moderate width can be used for it. The lower edge is gathered into a crocheted ornament, and the upper edge faced with black satin. A casing is run in the facing and the bag opened or closed on narrow satin ribbons run through the casing. Small bows of this narrow ribbon decorate the sides, and sufficient length of it extends beyond the casing to furnish a means of carrying the bag.

GOOD THINGS FROM ITALY.

Spinach is such a good vegetable that it should be served often in various ways. Wash and boil until tender two pounds of spinach, drain, chop fine and place in a saucepan with a quarter of a pound of butter. Let it simmer until well mixed, adding salt to taste. Remove from the heat, add a pinch of nutmeg, a tablespoonful of grated cheese and two beaten eggs. Have ready some seasoned broth of chicken or any stock or milk and water, pour boiling hot into the spinach. Let simmer together for three or four minutes, then remove uncovered to a hot oven. Serve with croûtons.

Creamed Macaroni.—Have a good sized saucepan of boiling water well salted, drop in three fourths of a pound of macaroni, an onion stuck with two cloves and a tablespoonful of butter, cook rapidly for 45 minutes, then drain, remove the onion and replace the saucepan with a quarter of a cupful each of Parmesan and Swiss cheese, grated, a dash of pepper and nutmeg and a half pint of well seasoned broth, and four tablespoonfuls of cream. Cook five minutes, and serve before the cheese getsropy.

Potatoes.—Into three pints of fast boiling water put a tablespoonful of olive oil and a pinch of salt, sprinkle in gradually one pint of corn meal, stir and cook until smooth, then allow to cook two hours or longer. Stir occasionally, and cook in a double boiler; then there is no fear of scorching. Have ready some thickened gravy and a half pint of strained thickened tomato. Fill a baking dish with the cooked mush, gravy, and tomato, alternating them in layers. Sprinkle the top layer with grated cheese, place in the oven and cook until brown.

Real struggling is itself real living, and no snobbing thing of this earth is ever to be had by man on any other terms.—James Lane Allen.

SOME BEST RECIPES.

Beef tongue is an economical and tasty meat to serve for any meal. Buy a fresh one and soak it over night in salt water. As it is so carefully covered with the tough covering, the juice is not lost. Then cook until tender in simmering salt water. The broth may be used for a most appetizing soup by adding rice to it and the tongue if sliced either hot or cold is always a welcome titbit. The scraps which are too broken to be used in slicing may be chopped and seasoned for sandwich filling.

Goulash.—This is a famous dish, inexpensive and most appetizing. Cut two pounds of flank in small cubes and put into a flat bottomed saucepan or kettle. Season well with salt and pepper and cover with a layer of sliced onion and potatoes until enough is used for the family, alternating the meat and vegetables. Cover with sufficient cold water; when it comes to the simmering point cover with a pint of tomatoes, cover and set back and simmer without stirring for two hours.

Potato Salad With Sardines.—Boil potatoes in their jackets and cut in cubes. For a pint of potatoes allow a slice of onion, a half a small green pepper, three sprigs of parsley and three small pickles or olives, finely minced. Toss lightly together, season with salt, red pepper and three tablespoonfuls of olive oil and a half tablespoonful of vinegar. Put into the salad bowl and when ready to serve arrange carefully wiped sardines in a circle over the top with chopped olives in the center for a garnish.

Veal Grenadine.—Cut two slices from a leg of veal, cut again in serving sized pieces, simmer in simmering water ten minutes, then drop in cold water and let stand half an hour. Cut strips of salt pork two inches long and lard the veal, dredge with flour and simmer in the water in which it was previously cooked. Melt and brown a quarter of a cupful of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of finely minced onion, fry five minutes, add a quarter of a cupful of flour, stir until smooth and add two cupfuls of the hot stock. Season with salt, pepper and catsup and serve.

The "G" in "Gnat."
"Spelling's a queer thing," said one boy. "What do they want with a 'g' in 'gnat'?" "It belongs there," replied the other. "It's what you say when one stings you. The only mistake is not putting an exclamation point after it."

Reduction in Living Costs Made Possible by Perfect Product.

The sudden and highly alarming increase in cost of food necessities, such as sugar and flour, demand increased domestic economy. For incomes have not advanced with this war-time soaring of food prices.

Waste of food as well as cost of food must be considered and minimized in these days of exorbitant prices. Fortunately the greatest food waste with which the housewife has to contend—baked-day failures and the waste of costly baking materials—is rendered preventable by the perfect leavening power of Calumet Baking Powder.

Calumet is an absolutely sure baking powder of absolute purity. It never fails to produce fully raised bakings that are tender and temptingly delicious. For its wonderful leavening strength never varies. It's always uniform—and always successful.

To pay more than is asked for Calumet simply means a useless waste of money. To pay less, and obtain an inferior powder, means the useless waste of Baking Materials.

Order a can of Calumet. Save a substantial sum on the price asked for Trust Brands when you buy it. Save the flour, sugar, butter and eggs so often wasted by Big Can Powders when you use it. You are safe in ordering Calumet, in trying it, in testing the truth of these claims, if you are not thoroughly satisfied the purchase price will be refunded by your local dealer.

Buying a can of Calumet send the slip found in the one-pound can to the Calumet Baking Powder Company, 111 Westinghouse Building, Chicago, Ill., and you will receive one of their handsome 72-page Cook Books, illustrations in color, and a book that will be a guide to economy in the kitchen.—Adv.

CAR GOES 28.7 MILES ON GALLON OF GASOLINE

Red Crown Shows Remarkable Test

Judged by C. A. C. Committee.

Surprising results were obtained Tuesday in Chicago, when, in a distance test on the boulevards, a 1914 big six went 28.7 miles on a gallon of Red Crown gasoline. The test was made to demonstrate the fuel economy of high test gasoline, by the technical committee of the Chicago Automobile Club.

Red Crown gasoline, 58 test, was decided upon by the judges and drivers as the best gasoline to be used. All through the trip the clutch was not slipped, except when traffic congestion made it necessary. The dash adjustment on the carburetor was disconnected, and in order that the test be a fair one, the fan was in operation throughout the run.

Next came the acceleration test. With the carburetor adjustment the same as during the economy run, the car was driven from standing start to thirty miles an hour in 12.45 seconds. The flexibility test saw the car run at four miles an hour, then speeded up to forty-four.

The test proves that the six is not an excessive fuel consumer, where the best gasoline is used.

The Cockney "H" Again.

The American tourist was taking the rest cure for a day in a London boarding house.

"I shall want no more meals," she said, when the maid brought up tea. "I shall be up for dinner. There's nothing more I want."

Then in the next breath she added: "Oh, yes, there is! I want that hot-water bottle; but that's not to eat."

The cockney maid stood silent for a moment, then said gleefully, "Oh, yes, it is to eat! You want me to eat it for you!"—Youth's Companion.

No Excuse for Plainness.

A young lady, by no means beautiful, was introduced to a gentleman who was endowed with good looks but not manners. During the course of their conversation the gentleman asked:

"Are there many more ladies like you in the Potteries?"

The young lady replied: "Oh, yes. We are all good-looking there. You see, we make our own mugs."

DOCTOR KNEW

Had Tried It Himself.

The doctor who has tried Postum knows that it is an easy, certain, and pleasant way out of the coffee habit and all of the ails following and he prescribes it for his patients as did a physician of Prosperstown, N. J.

One of his patients says: "During the summer just past I suffered terribly with a heavy feeling at the pit of my stomach and dizziness in my head and then a blindness would come over my eyes so I would have to sit down. I would get so nervous I could hardly control my feelings."

"Finally I spoke to our family physician about it and he asked if I drank much coffee and mother told him that I did. He told me to immediately stop drinking coffee and drink Postum in its place, as he and his family had used Postum and found it a powerful restorer and delicious food-drink."

"I hesitated for a time, disliking the idea of having to give up my coffee, but finally I got a package and found it to be all the doctor said."

"Since drinking Postum in place of coffee my dizziness, blindness and nervousness are all gone, my bowels are regular and I am well and strong. That is a short statement of what Postum has done for me."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

A FEW STRAY EPIGRAMS.

Put a solid thatch over the dwelling where those you love can rest securely.

Discontented people, that I know are trying sedulously to be something they are not and to do something they cannot do.

We don't know half as much about human nature as we claim. If we did I think we'd be more careful in our judgments and the mantle of charity would be many times of larger pattern.

People of character have their own way of doing things. Those who have no individuality follow other people's customs make the same blunders, with the same results and are accounted wise. Such as have a mode of their own have at least the satisfaction of their own approval.

How dull we are! We need the artist's brush to mould heroes out of the common human clay about us. All heroes have not died on the battle field. It takes a sort of greatness to recognize greatness and an enlarged vision would bring to light much of it, and what now, at a casual glance, seems only ordinary common material.

Ten months of my life was spent in a beautiful town in Michigan where I listened every Sabbath to a young and rising divine, pastor of a church in that village. He had the voice of a finished orator, the language and rhetoric of an Everett. His themes were of a lofty nature, he dwelt at length on the greatness, the grandeur of the sea and all created things, until I wondered that one small head could contain it all. Yet I felt all the time, suspended between the heavens and the earth, no rock for my feet. I held my peace, for it was against my creed to criticize, but one day I did venture to ask my dearest friend what he thought of the sermon. The reply was: "Oh, wife, I don't like pie all the time!" That was just it, there was no kernel, no meat.

Not by the symmetry with which the table is spread nor the flowers, altogether, that garnish it, but the food that is upon it, that the meat must be judged. So it is with the sermons that are delivered and to which we listen from time to time from the sacred desk. We may recognize the genius the eloquence but we want to feel that underneath the wants of the heart are fed. The richest sermons, the richest of all sermons, as all will agree, who have been attendants on the ministry are not those which deal with the problems of the intellect, but those of the heart. This must be the power of any pulpit. This was the power of a Spurgeon, a Simpson or a Beecher. It was said of them that "no one went empty away." They appealed to every faculty, addressed in turn the reason, the imagination, the fancy and the affections, and always, though by different routes, the heart was reached.

Several Grand Officers are expected to be present and a good time is anticipated.

Suspension of Pupils.

The Department of Public Instruction is often asked questions as to the suspension of pupils. The school law gives to the district board the right to authorize or order the suspension or expulsion from the school of any pupil guilty of gross misdemeanor or persistent disobedience. Such cases the teacher has the authority to suspend a pupil temporarily until the board can take action on the matter. The Supreme Court has held that it is not necessary that a pupil be guilty of a criminal act before he can be suspended or expelled from school. He must be guilty of some malicious or wilful act of detriment to the school and the misconduct must be gross, something more than a petty or trivial offense against the rules, or he must be persistent in his disobedience of the proper and reasonable rules and regulations of the school. A pupil cannot be expelled for careless act, no matter how negligent, if it is not wilful or malicious.

Thrift Teaching.

The American Society for Thrift, organized in October, 1913, has for its purpose the promotion of thrift by inquiry, education and discussion. The advisory council is made up of some of the executives and many leading educators of the various states. One phase of the work is its introduction into the public schools. The time is auspicious for such teaching. State Superintendent Keeler considers this work most important and is urging that it be made general throughout the schools. Individual thrift is the basis of good citizenship and community prosperity. This work will co-ordinate with such problems as the high cost of living. The training is not given by talks alone, but by interesting pupils in school and home gardens, school savings accounts and any local industry or interest of home that may be used to advantage. Vocational training and domestic science are aids. The idea includes more than the earning of money—the saving of money, of material and of time. Many Michigan high schools have already done much along the line of simplicity of school commencing. The Thrift Movement is general and schools must fall in line in teaching the practice of thrift.

It Really Does Relieve Rheumatism.

Everybody who is afflicted with rheumatism in any form should by all means keep a bottle of Sloan's Liniment on hand. The minute you feel pain or soreness in a joint or muscle, bathe it with Sloan's Liniment. Do not rub it. Sloan's penetrates almost immediately right to the seat of pain, relieving the hot, tender, swollen feeling and making the part easy and comfortable. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents of any druggist and have it in the house—against colds, sore and swollen joints, rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief. Adv.

Light Your House and Barns—Cook Your Meals With Home-Made Acetylene

And Make Your Acetylene With a Pilot Lighting Plant

Pilot plants make Acetylene automatically a little at a time as you use it in your gas cooking stove and in your lights distributed throughout your house, your barns and out-buildings. You simply fill the generator with the gas-producing stone "Union Carbide" and water about once a month.

Pilot plants are approved by The National Board of Fire Insurance Underwriters.

All told, over 250,000 country homes are using Acetylene made the Pilot way.

A complete Pilot plant, consisting of generator, pipes—hand-some light fixtures and gas cook stove, can be installed in any country home in a couple of days' time.

Such a plant is a permanent improvement and will furnish you with the cheapest, safest and most practical light and fuel now available for country home requirements.

Write for our illustrated catalogs and descriptive booklets giving all the facts.

Are You Working For Nothing?

During the past month you have earned $50, $75 or perhaps $100. You have paid your butcher, grocer, landlord and coal man. How much did you pay yourself? Are you not entitled to some pay for management of your affairs—just as well as the manager of any factory, store, or other business? Usually the manager's pay depends upon his ability to manage. So does yours. Better management—bigger salary. Manage well and have surplus money for yourself in the bank.

George Millen and George Huntington of Ann Arbor are lost in the woods near Seney, Schoolcraft county, according to a telegram from ex-Senator Newton, sent on Wednesday to his home in Ypsilanti. The men left the Newton camp Monday for a day's hunt and have not been heard of since. The camp is near Seney and thirty miles from Lake Superior. A searching party of upward of 500 are scouring the woods for miles about the camp. A heavy snow has been falling in the upper peninsula since Monday and fears are entertained for the safety of the missing men.

Suggestion for Farmers.

Every year the State Fire Marshal's Bureau has reported to it a large number of fires which destroy farm buildings because apparently the flames had gained a big start before discovered and the means to combat them at hand was so limited that the fight was a hopeless one. Commenting on this condition, John T. Winship, State Fire Marshal, recently said: "Why don't the farmers living in a certain radius install a fire fighting apparatus at some central point which would give them something of fire protection? All of the big engine houses now manufacture motor drawn combination pumping and chemical engines, which are powerful machines, and which would be of great service in case of farm fires."

This is an advanced idea along the line of fire prevention and no doubt a motor driven truck, equipped with a 200-gallon chemical tank, located in the center of a township, would enable the farmers of that community to extinguish many fires which otherwise would soon be beyond control.

SYNOPSIS.

The 3 of Hearts is the "death sign" used by Seneca Trine in the private war of vengeance, which, through his daughter, Judith, a woman of violent and criminal temper and questionable sanity, he wages against Alan Law, whose father (now dead) Trine held responsible for the accident which made him a helpless cripple. Law loves Rose, but under dramatic circumstances saves the life of Judith, her twin sister, and unwillingly gains her love, also.

CHAPTER V.

The Hunted Man.

That day was hot and windless with an unclouded sky—a day of brass and burning.

Long before any sound audible to human ears disturbed the noonday hush, a bobcat sunning on a log in a glade to which no trail led, pricked ears, rose, glanced over shoulder with a snarl and—of a sudden was no more there.

Perhaps two minutes later a succession of remote crashings began to be heard, a cumulative volume of sounds made by some heavy body forcing by main strength through the underbrush, and ceased only when a man broke into the clearing, pulled up, stood for an instant swaying, then reeled to a seat on the log, pillowing his head on arms folded across his knees and shuddering uncontrollably in all his limbs.

It Was a Rose.

But even as he strove to calm himself and rest, the feeling that something was peering at him from behind a mask of undergrowth grew intolerably acute.

At length he jumped up, glared wildly at the spot where that something no longer was, flung himself frantically through the brush in pursuit of it, and—found nothing.

With a great effort he pulled himself together, clamped his teeth upon the promise not again to give way to hallucinations, and turned back to the clearing.

There, upon the log on which he had rested, he found—but refused to believe he saw—a playing card, a tray of hearts, face up in the sun-glare.

With a gesture of horror, Alan Law fled the place.

While the sounds of his flight were still loud, a grinning half-breed guide stole like a shadow to the log, laughed derisively after the fugitive, picked up and pocketed the card, and set out in tireless, cat-footed pursuit.

An hour later, topping a ridge of rising ground, Alan caught from the hollow on its farther side the music of clashing waters. Tortured by thirst, he began at once to descend in reckless haste.

The shelving moss-beds afforded treacherous footing; Alan was glad now and then of the support of a cedar, but these grew ever smaller, and more widely spaced and were not always convenient to his hand. He came abruptly and at headlong pace within sight of the eaves of a cliff—and precisely then the hillside seemed to slip from under him.

His heels flourished in the air, his back thumped a bed of pebbles thinly overgrown with moss. The stones gave, the moss-skin broke, he began to slide—grasped at random a youngish cedar which stayed him imperceptibly, coming away with all its puny roots—caught at another, no more substantial—and amid a shower of loose stones shot out over the edge and down a drop of more than thirty feet.

He was instantaneously aware of the sun, a molten ball wheeling madly in the cup of the turquoise sky. Then dark waters closed over him. He came up struggling and gasping, and struck out for something dark that rode the waters near at hand—something vaguely resembling a canoe.

But his strength was largely spent, his breath had been driven out of him by the force of the fall, and he had swallowed much water—while the field of his consciousness was stricken with confusion.

With a stroke of an outstretched paddle, he flung up a hand and wailed down again.

Instantly one occupant of the canoe, a young and very beautiful woman in a man's hunting clothes, spoke a sharp word of command and, as her guide steadied the vessel with his paddle, rose in her place so surely that she scarcely disturbed the nice balance of the little craft, and curved her lithe body over the bow, head-foremost into the pool.

Mr. Law had, in point of fact, endured more than he knew; more than even a weathered woodsman could have borne without suffering. Forty-eight hours of such heavy woods-walking as he had put in to escape the forest fire, would have served to prostrate almost any man; add to this (ignoring a dozen other mental, nervous and physical strains) merely the fact that he had been half-drowned.

He experienced a little fever, a little delirium, then blank slumbers of exhaustion.

He awoke in dark of night, wholly unaware that thirty-six hours had passed since his fall. This last, however, and events that had gone before, he recalled with tolerable clearness—allowing for the sluggishness of a drowsy mind. Other memories, more vague, of gentle ministering hands, of a face by turns an angel's, a flower's, a fiend's, and a dear woman's, troubled him even less materially. He was already sane enough to allow he had probably been a bit out of his head, and since it seemed he had been saved and cared for, he found no reason to quarrel with present circumstances.

Still, he would have been grateful for some explanation of certain phenomena which still haunted him—such as a faint, elusive scent of roses with a vague but importunate sense of a woman's presence in that darkened room—things manifestly absurd. . . .

With some difficulty, from a dry throat, he spoke, or rather whispered: "Water!"

In response he heard someone move over a creaking floor. A sulphur match spluttered infamously. A candle caught fire, silhouetting—illusion, of course!—the figure of a woman in hunting shirt and skirt. Water splashed noisily. Alan became aware of someone who stood at his side, one hand offering a glass to his lips, the other gently raising his head that he might drink with ease.

Draining the glass, he breathed his thanks and sank back, retaining his grasp on the wrist of that unreal hand. It suffered him without resistance. The hallucination even went so far as to say, in a woman's soft accents:

"You are better, Alan?"

He sighed incredulously: "Rose!"

The voice responded "Yes!" Then the perfume of roses grew still more strong, seeming to fan his cheek like a woman's warm breath. And a miracle came to pass; for Mr. Law, who realized poignantly that all this was sheer, downright nonsense, distinctly felt lips like velvet caress his forehead.

He closed his eyes, tightened his grasp on that hand of phantasy, and muttered rather inarticulately:

The voice asked: "What is it, dear?"

He responded: "Delirium. . . . But I like it. . . . Let me rave!"

Then again he slept.

CHAPTER VI.

Disclosures.

In a little corner office, soberly furnished, on the topmost floor of one of lower Manhattan's loftiest office-towers, a little mouse-brown man sat over a big mahogany desk; a little man of big affairs, sole steward of one of America's most formidable fortunes. . . .

Precisely at eleven minutes past noon (or at the identical instant chosen by Alan Law to catapult over the edge of a cliff in northern Maine) the muted signal of the little man's desk telephone clicked and, eagerly lifting receiver to ear, he nodded with a smile and said in accents of some relief:

"Ask her to come in at once, please."

Jumping up, he placed a chair in intimate juxtaposition with his own; and the door opened, and a young woman entered.

The mouse-brown man bowed. "Miss Rose Trine?" he murmured with a great deal of deference.

The young woman returned his bow with a show of perplexity: "Mr. Digby?"

"You are kind to come in response to my—ah—unconventional invitation," said the little man. "Won't you—ah—sit down?"

She said, "Thank you," gravely, and took the chair he indicated. And Mr. Digby, with an admiration he made no effort to conceal, examined the fair face turned so candidly to him.

"It is quite comprehensible," he said diffidently—"if you will permit me to say so—now that one sees you, Miss Trine, it is quite comprehensible why my employer—ah—feels toward you as he does."

The girl flushed. "Mr. Law has told you?"

"I have the honor to be his nearest friend, this side the water, as well as his man of business."

He paused with an embarrassed gesture. "So I have ventured to request this—ah—surfeitous appointment in order to—ah—take the further liberty of asking whether you have recently sent Alan a message?"

Her look of surprise was answer enough, but she confirmed it with vigorous denial: "I have not communicated with Mr. Law in more than a year!"

"Precisely as I thought," Mr. Digby nodded. "None the less, Mr. Law not long since received what purported to be a message from you; in fact—a rose." And as Miss Trine sat forward with a start of dismay, he added: "I have the information over Mr. Law's signature—a letter received ten days ago—from Quebec."

"Alan in America!" the girl cried in undisguised distress.

"He came in response to—ah—the message of the rose."

"But I did not send it!"

"I felt sure of that, because," said Mr. Digby, watching her narrowly—"because of something that accompanied the rose, a symbol of another significance altogether—a playing card, a tray of hearts."

Her eyes were blank. He pursued with openly sincere reluctance: "I must tell you, I see, that a tray of hearts invariably foreboded an attempt by your father on the life of Alan's father."

With a stricken cry the girl crouched back in the chair and covered her face with her hands.

"That is why I sent for you," Mr. Digby pursued hastily, as if in hope of getting quickly over a most unhappy business. "Alan's letter, written and posted on the steamer, reached me within twenty-four hours of his arrival in Quebec, and detailed his scheme to enter the United States secretly—as he puts it, by the back door; by way of northern Maine—and promised advice by telegraph as soon as he reached Moosehead Lake. He should have wired me ere this, I am told by those who know the country he was to cross. Frankly, I am anxious about the boy!"

"And I!" the girl exclaimed pitifully. "To think that he should be brought into such peril through me!"

"You can tell me nothing?"

"Nothing—as yet. I did not dream of this—much less that the message of the rose was known to any but Alan and myself. I cannot understand!"

"Then I may tell you this much more, that your father maintains a very efficient corps of secret agents."

"You think he spied upon me?" the girl flamed with indignation.

"I know he did," Mr. Digby permitted himself a quiet smile. "It has seemed my business, in the service of my employer, to employ agents of my own. There is no doubt that your father sent you to Europe for the sole purpose of having you meet Alan."

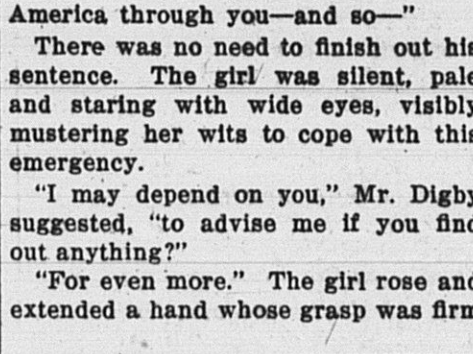

"Oh!" she protested. "But what earthly motive?"

"That Alan might be won back to America through you—and so—"

There was no need to finish out his sentence. The girl was silent, pale and staring with wide eyes, visibly mustering her wits to cope with this emergency.

"I may depend on you," Mr. Digby suggested, "to advise me if you find out anything?"

"For even more." The girl rose and extended a hand whose grasp was firm

"Oh, Come, Come!" She Cried Wildly, and vital on his fingers. A fine spirit of resolve set her countenance aglow. "You may count on me for action on my own part. I promised not to marry Alan because of the feud between our fathers—but not to stand by and see him sacrificed. Tell me how I may communicate secretly with you—and let me go as soon as possible!"

CHAPTER VII.

The Mutineer.

Within the hour Rose Trine stood before her father in that somber room wherein he wore out his crippled days, in that place of silence and shadows whose sinister color-scheme of crimson and black was the true livery of his monomania—his passion for vengeance that alone kept warm the embers of life in that wasted and moveless frame.

An implacable glimmered in his sunken eyes as he kept her waiting upon his pleasure. And when at length he decided to speak, it was with a ring of hateful irony in that strangely sonorous voice of his.

"Rose," he said slowly—"my daughter!—I am told you have today been guilty of an act of disloyalty to me."

She said coolly: "You had me spied upon."

"Naturally, with every reason to question your loyalty. I had you watched."

She waited a significant moment, then dropped an impassive monosyllable into the silence: "Well?"

"You have visited the man Digby, servant and friend of the man I hate—and you love."

She said, without expression: "Yes."

"Repeat what passed between you."

"I shall not, but on one condition."

"And that is?"

"Tell me first whether it was you who sent the rose to Alan Law—and more, where Judith has been during the last fortnight?"

"I shall tell you nothing, my child. Repeat—the resonant voice rang with inflexible purpose—"repeat what the man Digby told you!"

The girl was silent. He endured her stare for a long minute, a spark of rage kindling to flame the evil old eyes. Then his one living member that had power to serve his iron will, a hand like the claw of a bird of prey, moved toward a row of buttons sunk in the writing-bed of his desk.

"I warn you I have ways to make you speak."

With a quick movement the girl bent over and grasped the bony wrist in her strong fingers. With her other hand, at the same time, she whipped open an upper drawer of the desk and took from it a revolver which she placed at a safe distance.

"To the contrary," she said quietly, "you will remember that the time has passed when you could have me punished for disobedience. You will call nobody: if interrupted, I shall hesitate to defend myself. And now"—laying hold of the back of his chair, she moved it some distance from the desk—"you may as well be quiet while I find for myself what I wish to know."

For a moment he watched in silence as she bent over the desk, rummaging its drawers. Then with an infuriated gesture of his left hand, he began to curse her.

She shuddered a little as the black oaths blistered his thin old lips, dedicating her and all she loved to sin, infamy and sorrow; but nothing could stay her in her purpose. He was breathless and exhausted when she straightened up with an exclamation of satisfaction, studied intently for a moment a sheet of papers, and thrust them hastily into her hand-bag, together with the revolver.

Then touching the push-button which released a secret and little-used door, without a backward glance she slipped from the room and, closing the door securely, within another minute had made her way unseen from the house.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Incredible Thing.

Broad daylight, the top of a morning as rare as ever broke upon the north country: Alan Law opening bewildered eyes to realize the substance of a dream come true.

True it proved itself, at least, in part. He lay between blankets upon a couch of balsam furs, in a corner of somebody's camp—a log structure, weather-proof, rudely but adequately furnished. His clothing, rough-dried but neatly mended, lay upon a chair at his side.

He rose and dressed in haste, at once exulting in his sense of complete rest and renewed well-being, a prey to hints of an extraordinary appetite, and provoked by signs that seemed to bear out the wildest flights of his delirious fancies.

There were apparently indisputable evidences of a woman's recent presence in the camp: blankets neatly folded upon a second bed of aromatic balsam in the farther corner; an effect of orderliness not common with guides; a pair of dainty buckskin gaiters depending from a nail in the wall; and—he stood staring witlessly at it for more than a minute—in an old preserve jar on the table, a single rose, warm and red, dew upon its petals!

There was also fire in the cook stove, with a plentiful display of things to cook; but despite his hunger Alan didn't stop for that, but rushed to the door and threw it open and himself out into the sunshine, only to pause, dashed, chagrined, mystified.

There was no other living thing in sight but a loon that sported far up the river and saluted him with a shriek of mocking laughter.

The place was a cleft in the hills, a table of level land some few acres in area, bounded on one hand, beneath the cliff from which he had dropped, by a rushing river fat with recent rains; on the other by a second cliff of equal height. Upstream the water curved round the shoulder of a towering hill, downstream the cliffs closed upon it until it roared through a narrow gorge.

Near the camp, upon a strip of shelving beach that bordered the river where it widened into a deep, dark pool, two canoes were drawn up, bottoms to the sun. Dense thickets of pines, oaks, and balsams hedged in the clearing.

He was, it seemed, to be left severely to himself, that day; when he had cooked and made way with an enormous breakfast, Alan found nothing better to do till time for luncheon than to explore this pocket domain.

He feasted famously again at noon; whiled away several hours vainly plunging the pools with rod and tackle found in the camp, for trout that he really didn't hope would rise beneath that blazing sun; and toward three o'clock lounged back to his apomatic couch for a nap.

The western sun had thrown a deep, cool shadow across the cove when he was awakened by importunate hands and a voice of magic.

Rose Trine was kneeling beside him, clutching his shoulders, calling on him by name—distracted by an inexplicable anxiety.

He wasted no time discriminating between dream and reality, but gathered both into his arms. And for a moment she rested there unresisting, sobbing quietly.

"What is it? What is it, dearest?" he questioned, kissing her tears away.

"To find you all right. . . . I was so afraid!" she cried brokenly.

"Of what? Wasn't I all right when you left me here this morning?"

She disengaged with an effort, rose, and looked down strangely at him.

"I did not leave you here this morning, Alan. I wasn't here—"

That brought him to his own feet in a jiffy. "You were not!" he stammered. "Then who—?"

"Judith," she stated with conviction. "Impossible! You don't understand."

The girl shook her head. "Yet I know: Judith was here until this morning. I tell you I know—I saw her only a few hours ago. She passed us in a canoe with one of her guides, while we watched in hiding on the banks. Not that alone, but another of her guides told mine she was here with you. She had sent him to South Portage for quinine. He stopped there to get drunk—and that's how my guide managed to worm the information from him."

Alan passed a hand across his eyes. "I don't understand," he said dully. "It doesn't seem possible she could—"

A shot interrupted him, the report of a rifle from a considerable distance upstream, echoed and re-echoed by the cliffs. And at this, clutching frantically at his arm, the girl drew him through the door and down toward the river.

"Oh, come, come!" she cried wildly. "There's no time!"

"But, why? What was that?"

"Judith is returning. I left my guide up the trail to signal us. Don't you know what it means if we don't manage to escape before she gets here?"

"But how?"

"According to the guide the river's the only way other than the trail."

"The current is too strong. They could follow—pot us at leisure from the banks."

"But downstream—the current with us—"

"Those rapids?"

"We must shoot them!"

"Can it be done?"

"It must be!"

Two more shots put a period to his doubts and drove it home. He offered no further objection, but turned at once to launch one of the canoes.

As soon as it was in the water, Rose took her place in the bow, paddle in hand, and Alan was about to step in astern when a fourth shot sounded and a bullet kicked up turf within a dozen feet. A glance discovered two figures debouching into the clearing. He dropped into place and, planting paddle in shallows, sent the canoe well out with a vigorous thrust.

Two strokes took it to the middle of the pool where immediately the current caught the little craft in its urgent grasp and sped it smoothly through more narrow and higher banks. A moment more and the mouth of the gorge was yawning for them.

With the clean balance of an experienced canoeist, Alan rose to his feet for an instantaneous reconnaissance both forward and astern. He looked back first, and groaned in his heart to see the sharp prow of the second canoe glide out from the banks. He looked ahead and groaned aloud. The rapids were a wilderness of shouting waters, white and green, worse than anything he had anticipated or ever dreamed of.

But there was now no escaping that ordeal. The canoe was already spinning between walls where the water ran deep and fast with a glassy surface.

The next instant it was in the jaws; and the man settled down to work with grim determination, pitting courage and strength and experience against the ravenous waters that tore at the canoe on every hand, whose mad clamor beat back and forth between the walls of the gorge like vast bellows of infernal mirth.

He fought like one possessed. There was never an instant's grace for judgment or execution; the one must be synchronous with the other, both instantaneous, or else—destruction.

The canoe wove this way and that like an insane shuttle threading some satanic loom. Now it hesitated, nuzzling a gigantic boulder over which the water wore a pale green and glistening hood, now in the space of a heartbeat it shot forward twice its length through a sea of creaming waves, now plunged wildly toward what promised instant annihilation and cheated that only by the timely plunge of a paddle, guided by luck or instinct or both.

The one ray of hope in Alan's mind, when he surveyed before committing himself and the woman he loved to that hideous gauntlet, sprang from the fact that, however rough, the rapids were short. Now, when he had been in their grasp a minute, he seemed to have been there hours.

His laborings were tremendous, unbelievable, inspired. In the end they were all but successful. The goal of safety was within thirty seconds' more of quick, hard work, when Alan's paddle broke and the canoe swung broadside to a boulder, turned turtle and precipitated both heading into that savage water.

As the next few minutes passed he was fighting like a mad thing against overwhelming odds. Then, of a sudden, he found himself rejected, spewed forth from the cataract and swimming mechanically in the smooth water of a wide pool beyond the lowermost eddy, the canoe floating bottom up near by, and Rose supporting herself with one hand on it.

Her eyes met his, clear with the sanity of her adorable courage.

He floundered to her side, panted instructions to transfer her hand to his shoulder, and struck out for the nearer shore.

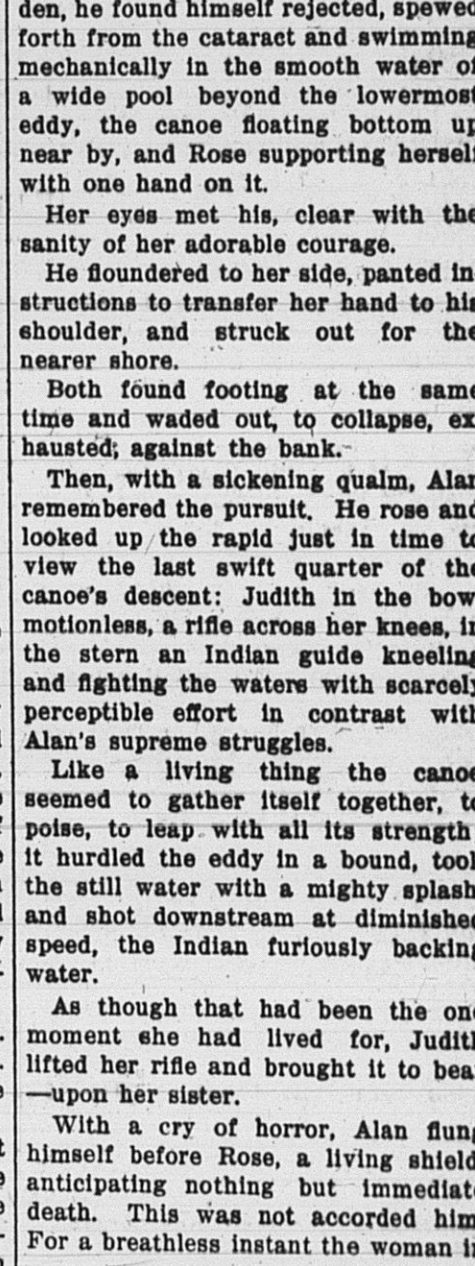

Both found footing at the same time and waded out, to collapse, exhausted, against the bank.

Then, with a sickening qualm, Alan remembered the pursuit. He rose and looked up the rapid just in time to view the last swift quarter of the canoe's descent: Judith in the bow, motionless, a rifle across her knees, in the stern an Indian guide kneeling and fighting the waters with scarcely perceptible effort in contrast with Alan's supreme struggles.

Like a living thing the canoe seemed to gather itself together, to poise, to leap with all its strength; it hurled the eddy in a bound, took the still water with a mighty splash, and shot downstream at diminished speed, the Indian furiously backing water.

As though that had been the one moment she had lived for, Judith lifted her rifle and brought it to bear—upon her sister.

With a cry of horror, Alan flung himself before Rose, a living shield, anticipating nothing but immediate death. This was not accorded him. For a breathless instant the woman in the canoe stared along the sights, then lowered her weapon and, turning, spoke indistinctly to the guide, who instantly began to ply a brisk paddle.

The canoe sped on, vanished swiftly round a bend.

After a long time, Alan voiced his unmitigated amazement: "Why—in the name of heaven!"

The girl said dully: "Don't you know?" And when he shook his head, "Her guide told mine you had saved her life on the dam at Spirit Lake. Now do you see?"

His countenance was blank with wonder: "Gratitude?"

Rose smiled wearily: "Not gratitude alone, but something more terrible. . . ."

She rose and held out her hand. "Not that I can blame her. . . . But come, if we strike through here we will, I think, pick up a trail that will bring us to Black Beaver settlement by dark."

SCORED ONE ON THE HOTEL

Simeon Ford Tells How He Once Entertained Guest With Lively Sense of Humor.

Simeon Ford, who accomplished the extraordinary feat of running the Grand Union Hotel and being a humorist of nation-wide reputation at the same time, and now that the hotel is defunct, is presumably turning his whole attention to the consulting of dinner guests over their coffee, expressed himself with much modesty in reply to a question of the Boston Herald.

"I never tell stories," wrote he, "nor can I remember them." That looked damning. But presently Mr. Ford brightened up amazingly and finished his communication in this way:

BREVITIES

MANCHESTER—Many of our farmers had stock ready for shipment when the order came prohibiting the railroads from taking stock, and the check has worked some injury but most of our farmers are in good condition financially and will only be inconvenienced.—Enterprise.

BRIDGEWATER—Business men of Clinton donated the labor of 20 teams one day to help draw gravel on the pike between the Lancaster school house and John Blachner's. Farmers in this township turned out by solicitation of Highway Commissioner Johnson to gravel the only piece of road on the pike not heretofore made good.

DEKTER—The spire has been removed from the steeple of the Congregational church in Webster, it having been decided that it was beyond the possibility of repairing. This spire is one of Webster's oldest landmarks, having been built in the early thirties, and will be much missed by the older residents of the community.—Leader.

ANN ARBOR—The damaged suit of Mrs. Stella French whose husband, Bennett French, was killed in an accident at Curtis switch on November 8, 1913, against the Detroit, Jackson & Chicago railway company, was settled out of court Monday morning. Mr. French met his death in a rear end collision between two interurban cars. He had been to a football game and was on his way home, when he met with the fatal accident.

HILLSDALE—Twelve years ago Oscar Dicerman rescued a little girl from drowning in a canal in Holland. He is in receipt of a letter from a law firm in Arnhem, Holland, informing him that Aaron B. Vanderbolton had died and bequeathed to Dicerman nearly $9,000. The beneficiary of the will was married four months ago and purchased a farm on which he still owes $5,000 and the bequest is very acceptable.—Leader.

ANN ARBOR—Automobiles belonging to Walter S. Bibble, good roads commissioner, and Dr. C. L. Washburn, which were stolen a few days ago, have been recovered. Road Commissioner Bibble found his machine in Freedom township, near the home of Frank Dettling, where it had been abandoned by the thief. Dr. Washburn's machine was found on the other side of Ypsilanti. It was damaged slightly, but Mr. Bibble's machine was not.

ANN ARBOR—United States Senator C. E. Townsend has given his consent to speak at the Y. M. C. A. annual boys conference to be held at Ann Arbor, November 27-29. Governor Ferris has also accepted an invitation to speak. Both these men will take part in the meeting Friday evening, November 27. The Hill auditorium, at the state university, has been secured for this meeting. Secretary of State W. J. Bryan is the best known man on the program.

BROOKLYN—Somebody told Harris Every that the way to clean a musty cask barrel was to pour in a little gasoline and burn it out. Harris thinks it was no friend of his, for when he tried it last week all that prevented a funeral was that he stood at the side instead of the end of the barrel. When the thing exploded a piece of the head went through a picket fence and actually drove a hole in the siding of his western farm house forty rods away. Harris was speechless for an hour and even now can be induced to say very little about the affair.—Exponent.

Princess Theatre.

Florence Lawrence in "The Doctor's Testimony" will be seen tonight at the Princess, a splendid two reel feature.

"Swede Larson" in three parts, a drama laid in the northwest with Bob Leonard and Hazel Buckham playing the leading roles and written by "The Master Pen" will be Saturday's feature. Songs by Paul Kuhl.

Monday night the second installment of "The Trey O' Hearts" will be given. During the past two weeks we have heard the most flattering praises of this serial by several Chelsea people who have been in Detroit recently and have seen one or several episodes of the play, while in that city. We offer it at the Princess with the full assurance that it will amply fulfill the claims made for it and will prove a splendid series of entertainments to our patrons. Read the story each week in this paper, then see it played at the Princess.

30,000 VOICES

And Many Are The Voices Of Chelsea People.

Thirty thousand voices—What a grand chorus! And that's the number of American men and women, who are publicly praising Doan's Kidney Pills for relief from backache, kidney and bladder ills. They say it to friends. They tell it in the home papers. Chelsea people are in this chorus.

Here's a Chelsea case: Mrs. S. J. Trouten, McKinley St., Chelsea, says: "I suffered from kidney trouble. My back was lame and sore and I had headaches and dizzy spells during which I had to grasp something for support. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and now some years later, I can say that the cure has been lasting. I occasionally take a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills to keep me in good health. Doan's Kidney Pills are fine and I don't hesitate to confirm my former endorsement of them."

Mrs. Trouten is only one of many Chelsea people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you—don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Trouten—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores.
