Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform mirac'es if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which, if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from any druggist or storekeeper. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sani-

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to bathe on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do. -Adv.

Back is Hurting or Kidneys and Bladder Trouble You. The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health. When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the arine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

RAILWAY STATION AT WINDHOEK

the Germans spell it, the capi- tralia. tal of German Southwest Africa, over which General Botha has hoisted the Union Jack, writes Charlotte Cameron in the Sphere. It lies some 390 kilometers from Swakopmund. The express train used to run twice a week, conducting one to Windhoek in thirteen hours; if you failed to catch the special the journey required thirty-six. The line is a narrow gauge track, with uncomfortable, overcrowded carriages. For eighty miles you proceed across an arid desert of blinding sunshine and monotonous sands, broken here and there by tiny huts, where the government dynamite stores are kept.

The old man, Jim Ross, mooning about the camp, had little by little become unbearable to her. Himself an old gold prospector, he had found nothing in all his life except a few worthless pockets; yet he had never ceased to dream of the day when he would make his fortune by some lucky strike.

There had once been rumors of ever found any. Day by day the old fellow would set cut hopefully with his assaying pan, and every evening he would return with his hopeful stories, which so jarred his daughterin-law's shattered nerves.

It was a day later that the storm broke. Old Jim Ross had come back. late for supper, with the usual story.

Bessie stood up and faced him, a regular virago, her shattered nerves tense and quivering.

"I've heard those stories before," she cried. "For the Lord's sake go pure yellow, dull, rich, and unmistakand get your gold, you useless old able, and at least as large as a fool. Go and find it and don't come back till you've got it."

The old man looked at her, aghast at the sudden outburst.

"Why, Bessie," he faltered, "I didn't know as you was sot against my finding gold. I tell you," he went on enthusiastically, "there's gold in them hills. Yes, sir," he continued, "there certainly ought to be a mint of gold there, if we could only get at it."

So it was himself! He had never guessed that he was in the way. Despite his years, he had done such work as was in his power. He had helped Bessie with the dishes-chattering the while about the gold; he had talked of "pockets" and produced samples of likely quartz while she fumed inwardly and said nothing. But he had never drumed that he was a nuisance.

The old man's pride was stung to "Well, seeing as we've got your fathe quick. They stared at each other. The old his proposal that when they pulled up man must have been gone long since, for when they searched the flat of the plains he was nowhere in sight.

"I do hope he has come to no harm." said Bessie. "He must have heard me when I said what I did. I-I'm sorry, dear. When he comes back I'll never lose my head again like that."

Meanwhile old Jim Ross was industriously grubbing among the boulders of the gulch. He spent the entire day there. At night he slept in the river bed. Next morning, awakening late, he stood up and peered out across the plain. Some sense, long latent in him, told him that there was another human being approaching him.

He looked out to see a man walking across the sand and alkali. At once a fear came over him. This man was coming to rob him of his cherished

(From Weekly Letter, United States De- | on Si partment of Agriculture.) Fall or winter pruning of grape vines in the home garden, as well as on the commercial plantation, may be done at any time during mild weather while the vines are in a dormant condition. In general, the period from November to March gives the most satisfactory results, but the work should in all cases be done at least a week or ten days before the vines are likely to start into growth.

In the colder sections of the country, wherever varieties not hardy enough to withstand severe winters are grown, the vines must be artificially protected. Under such circumstances the vines should be pruned as soon as they become dormant. The system of pruning should be such as to easily admit of laying down the stalk and canes for next season's fruit production. The next step is to the strongest shoot should be removed and this should be cut back to two or three buds. If a strong growth has been made and there is one straight, well-ripened shoot, all other growth should be removed and this cane cut back to the height at which it is intended to head the vine. This will concentrate all the force and growth of the plant into the cane which is to become the trunk of the vine. From this only such shoots should be allowed to grow as are needed for shaping the vine for the following, its first, fruiting season. After this framework has been established, the fruit-bearing part of the plant should be so pruned that it will be renewed from year to year and so adjusted to the variety and the food supply as never to allow the plant to overbear, but at the same time to induce it to bear its full capacity. Under such treatment the bedy of the plant will gradually become stronger and its fruiting capacity will increase correspondingly. Not only do different countries have

Such a condition not only allows the rain water to percolate to lower depths too rapidly, but it admits too much surface air, which rapidly dries out the lumps and robs the seed bed of its moisture. The seed bed should consist of well firmed and fine earth if the roots or crops are to penetrate it readily.

REMOVE ALL TRASH FROM THE ORCHARD

Many Insects and Fungous Diseases Can Be Destroyed During Cold Winter Months.

Farmers do not, as a rule, realize the value of cleaning up the orchard during winter. Many insects and fungous diseases which would make trouble the following season can be destroyed in the cold months. First remove all trash and burn it, thereby destroying the insects that are lying dormant. Then remove from the orchard all mammied fruits. Old, rotten peaches, apples, plums and other fruits, whether on the tree or on the ground. contain millions of spores which are capable of spreading diseases to the next crop of fruit.

An order of work that is recommend ed by Clemson college is to prune the orchard, clear it of all trash and then plow thoroughly. Such a system will aid materially in the production of a perfect crop of fruit the following sea-

PULVERIZED SOIL IS BETTER THAN CLODS

Plantfood Already in Ground Is More Accessible-Land Rendered More Fertile.

Soil well pulverized before the cror is planted is much more productive than cloddy land or any land left with an uneven surface, because the plantfood already in the land is made more accessible and the little root feeders which literally fill the ground can better gather nourishment from both earth and air.

Land thoroughly plowed and thoroughly pulverized before planting is draft. not only rendered more fertile from a natural standpoint, but is in far better condition to receive whatever artificial fertilizing one may wish to apply.

former milking. This makes it imperative that the milker be well cared for. The milk separator should receive no more careful cleansing than the milker. After milking it is a good plan to dip the teat cups in cool water and allow the machine to pump water through the tubes. All parts should be scrubbed with a brush and washing soda and then rinsed. The metal parts may be well sterilized with steam and the rubber parts kept suspended in a solution of 11 pounds of salt and five ounces of chloride of lime in 10 gallons of water. The solution will have to be changed every week, and it is well to put in an extra ounce of chlo-ride of lime every other day. When proper care is taken, extremely clean milk can be gotten with the milkers, some dairymen producing certified milk with them, but on the other hand, if no care is taken to keep the machine clean it will prove to be a collector of dirt.

DAIRYING ON BUSINESS BASIS

Farmers Must Use Milk Scales, Tester and Record Book-Keep Account With Each Cow.

In order to put dairying upon a business basis every farmer needs to use the milk scales, the tester and the record book. Farmers must come to this proposition and do a little simple bookkeeping to know where they are Every successful business man has a ledger to guide him in his transac-

Every dairyman needs to enter a separate account with each of his cows so that he may have an indicator to tell him at the end of the year just how much feed each has consumed, the amount of milk produced and the percentage it tests.

Too many farmers of this country are still keeping scrub cows, feeding and milking them twice each day, fourteen times each week and sixty times each month.

With the exception of the diamond fields of Luderitzbucht, the country has failed to produce the predicted wealth, and disappointment has been the lot of prospector and colonist. The diamonds, a small amount of copper and some marbles from Karibib form the exports, otherwise everything for the country's use has to be imported. One changes at Karfbib into the wide-gauge of the government railway, where the carriages are like our own. One now enters the rich lands of the farming district.

To acquire a good farm in this region it is estimated that a colonist hould have at least £5,000. He must buy stock and build a home and outuses; agricultural machinery at this great distance is expensive, and with a few years with wear and rust needs renewal. There may be a drought. Crops perish, and the farmer after his beavy outlay is ruined, often resorting to mortgaging, and becomes the vic-tim of money-lenders. The Sisal Fibre Trust.

A complete monoply of the sisal fibre output of Yucatan, Mexico, has been obtained by the Comision Reguladora del Mexicado de Henequen (committee to regulate the sisal fibre market), a body created by Yucatan alw. All fibre dealers in Yucatan have been forced to quit business. The Comision is now composed of supporters of Gen. Carranza, head of the de facto government of Mexico.

To finance the monopoly the Comision has enlisted the aid of New Orleans bankers, who in turn have prevailed on banks in New York, Chicago and St. Louis to take parts of the large loan required and which will be secured by warehouse receipts on fibre stored in New Orleans and elsewhere. A company composed of American bankers and members of the Comision has been formed and will receive a large commission on all fibre sales in addition to the interest paid the banks

The Comision Reguladora was created three years ago to buy surplus stocks of sisal fibre to prevent them from being dumped on the market and bearing down the price. The Comision fixed a certain price as the one required by planters to make their crop Chauncey Freeman was in Ann profitable, but was unable to get sufficient financial backing in Mexico to J. G. Schofield, of Detroit, spent carry out its plan. With the power of Carranza behind it the Comision has now driven out the fibre dealers and no Yucatan sisal can be purchased through any agency other than the

Having a complete monopoly the Comision can dictate the price at all times. The price it is now demanding Mr. and Mrs. Howard Boyd spent is 2 cents higher than the price it pronounced profitable to the planters H. R. Schoenhals spent the first of in the beginning. It is 2 cents higher than the price which prevailed a year ago. It is 14 cents higher than the average price paid for sisal fibre by binder twine manufacturers last season; hence if no farther advance is made the price of twine is sure to increase that much over the price of 1915. And there is no telling how Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Foster spent high the price will be raised by the Comision before the required amount of fibre for next season's twine supplyhas been purchased, and in the succeeding years.

In advancing the price the Comision has ignored the law of supply and demand; for last year, notwithstanding the consumption of sisal fibre was the largest in the history of the trade, there was a large surplus in Yucatan. Under normal conditions of competition, such as existed before the Comision seized the market, the price would have declined from last year's figure. The price is therefore arbitary and unwarranted.

Thus the American farmer is to be forced to pay tribute to a fibre trust financed with American capital; for until such time as other fibres suitable for binder twines can be obtained in sufficient quantities, the farmer must depend on sisal for the greater part of his twine supply. Conditions make Mrs. A. D. Prout, of Detroit, was it impossible to obtain an adequate supply of manila fibre at this time. For every cent added to the price of twine through the operations of the sisal monoply, $2,500,000 will be added to the binder twine bill of the American farmer.

Is this monopoly amendable to antitrust laws of the United States? If it were purely a Mexican affair, or if the financial backing were obtained from other countries, the UnitedStates would be powerless to interfere. But Miss Winifred Bacon, of Highland since the capital is contributed by, Park, was the guest of her parents American banks from deposits of American depositors, the combination should be amenable to American re visiting J. P. Miller at his home laws. Justice to the farmer requires that the government take such steps D. H. Wurster and R. D. Walker as may be taken lawfully to prevent the financing of the monoply with American money,

Every American farmershould take this matter up with his United States Senator and Congressman, asking them to investigate, and if possible save the American farmer from paying an unreasonable price for his twine this and ensuing years.

Alan felt a trembling in all his limbs. "I want to quit. too, Alix," he said in his low vibrating voice, "but I'm afraid we can't. You see, I'm beaten, too. While I was just in love with your body we were safe enough, but now I'm in love with you. It's the kind of love a man can pray for in vain. No head in it; nothing but heart. Honor and dishonor become mere names. Nothing matters to me but you."

Tears crawled slowly down Alix' cheeks. She stood with her elbows on the rall and faced the ocean so no one might see. Her hands were locked, In her mind her own thoughts were running. Somehow she could under stand Alan without listening. If only Gerry had done this thing to her, she was thinking, the pitiless wracking misery would have been joy at white heat. "No," he answered. "I have trifled with many women and I was ready to trifle with you. No one had ever driven you and I wanted to drive you. I thought I had divorced passion and love. I thought perhaps you had too. But love is here. I am not driving in pure, uncontrolled excitement.

Alix and Alan were in the grip of a Tover that is hard to break save through satiety and ruin. They were still held apart by generations of sound tradition but against this bulwark the full flood of modern life as they lived it was directed .-

It was only a year ago that the table talk one night had turned on what was society's religion and Alan had said. "Society has no religion nowadays; it has given up religion for a corrosive philosophy of nonethics." He had seen clearly the but not clearly enough to save himself. He had played with the corrosive philosophy until he had divorced flesh from the soul and now it self powerless in the grip of his desire for Alix.

Alan's blood turned to liquid fire. The note conjured before him a vision of Allx. He crushed it and held it to his lips and laughed-not jeeringly but

It was not a coincidence that Gerry had sought out Alix at the very hour that Nance was summoning Alan, Gerry and Nance were driven by the same orewarning of catastrophe. Gerry had felt it first but he had been slow to believe, slower to act. He had no precedent for this sort of thing. His whole being was in revolt against the situation in which he found himself, you." It was after a sleepless night-a most unheard of thing with him-that he decided he could let things go no longer. He went to Alix' room, knocked

When she was there one felt as though there were flowers in the house. Gerry was seized with a great desire to hide from his world, his mother, himself. He pictured the scare-heads in the papers. That the name of Lansing should be found in that galley! It was too much. He could not face it.

He bought a morning paper full of shipping news and, getting into a taxi, He did not look upon this palm-strewn gave the address of his bank. On the way he studied the sailings' column. He found what he wanted. The Gunter due to sail that afternoon for Brazil, Pernambuco the first stop.

palance of his current account. It amounted to something over two thousand dollars. He took most of it in Bank of England notes. Then he started home to pack but before he reached the house a vision of the servants, flurried after helping their mistress off, commiserating him to each other, pitying him to his face perhaps, or in the case of the old butler, suppressing a great emotion, was too much for him. He drove instead to a big department store and in an hour had bought a complete outfit. He lunched at one of the quiet restaurants that divide down town from up. The people about him were voluble in French | There Gerry installed himself. and Spanish. Already he felt as if his exile had begun.

The Gunter was to sail at three from Brooklyn. Gerry crossed by the ferry. He did not get out of his cab. Over his baggage, piled outside and in, he caught a glimpse of the suspension bridge. Years and years ago his father had led him across that bridge when it was the eighth wonder of the world. Gerry gave a great sigh at the memory. He nad not invaded Brooklyn since. As the cab threaded the interminable and reeking length of Furman street he looked out and felt himself upon an alien shore.

He had avoided buying a ticket. As the Gunter warped out, the purser came to him. "I understand you have no ticket."

"No," said Gerry, drawing a roll of bills. "How much is the passage to Pernambuco?"

The purser fidgeted. "This is irreg-"Is it?" said Gerry, indifferently.

A DOUBLE EVENT

"And the right man hasn't turned up yet, Rita?" inquired her brother, taking her hands in his.

"Not yet, Jim," answered his sister, smiling. "Besides, you know, Jim, I am never going to get married anyway until you do, because there will be nobody to look after you then."

Jim smiled. "I've been looking after myself a good deal since I came to New York," he answered. "But anyway, I'm going to stay with you long enough to put your household affairs in order and—and sew on all your buttons," replied the girl. Since Jim left the little town to take up a position in the big city Rita had worried constantly about him, and at last she had left her mother and gone to spend a couple of weeks with Jim. He was taking her for a round of gayety. As they entered the big roofgarden hotel Jim looked fondly at his sister. How pretty she was, and how fortunate the man would be who got her! He hoped it would be someone worthy of her.

"I am always so sorry for boys like you who are lonely in a great city," said Rita, slipping her hand into his. Jim winced inwardly. He was thinking of a certain poker party of a few nights before, of which Rita would never have approved, and wondering if she suspected that he had a good many friends.

In the elevator a forlorn-looking young man was standing. He, too, was going up to the roof-garden, and he was going up alone. Rita's heart smote her.

"He looks as lonely as I imagine you must be sometimes," she whispered to Jim as the elevator stopped. "Let's ask him to join us."

Jim looked at the young man. He was certainly a presentable young fellow, a gentleman, and a stranger to the city, as Jim imagined. They hap- to make 'em, however, the allowance pened to approach an empty table together. Jim made some casual remark.

"Plenty of room here," he said. The young fellow sat down, and soon the three were engaged in conversation. Jim was not sorry for the respite from a tete-a-tete with his sister. He was dreading the time when he would have to tell her a very natural thing from which, nevertheless, he shrank—that he was as good as engaged to a very charming girl, Miss Ida Campbell.

"By the way, Jim," said Rita, "do you remember Ida Campbell? Well. I have got her address, and I was The ship crawled in from an oily thinking of looking her up. It is The young man started. "Why, "I am John Campbell. My uncle and

The ice was fairly broken, and soon they were all chatting like old friends, in the intervals of the performance. Rita found the young man delightful, and Jim-well, Jim was pleased, because somehow it seemed to ease his own guilty conscience. But in the midst of the mirth a thin wisp of smoke was seen to curl out of the side of the stage. A moment later a thick, black cloud drifted toward the audience.

"Fire!" shouted somebody.

The stage manager appeared and held up his hand. "There is no danger!" he said quietly. "Please leave your seats in an orderly manner and go toward the elevators."

The panic was checked, but as the three drew near the entrance those ing room. She passed in and he closed who were in front came running back, it. Alix threw back her veil and shricking. CLINTON-Geo. M. Lancaster, proprietor of the Clintonian Garage, met with a peculiar experience while in Detroit Thursday. He was starting home with a new Ford car when a street car struck the car broadside. The pavement was so slippery with ice that the machine was pushed along with the car for some distance without doing any damage to the machine. It was a time when a slippery pavement proved fortunate. Local.
