Urges Boys' and Girls' Clubs.

County School Commissioner Essery is advocating the testing of seed, and other agricultural innovations, in letters sent out to the teachers of the county this week.

Mr. Essery believes that much can be done in the school room to materially aid the children in their knowledge of farming methods. The testing of seed to be used in planting, he points out, is especially necessary this year because of the season through which we recently passed. Another step in this direction is the instruction of the pupils in the different breeds of cattle in their district, their particular usefulness and their productiveness.

As an aid to this movement he sugrests the formation of boys' and girls' clubs with officers elected from their own number, and some such object as mentioned above.

Recently he suggested the formation of Audobon societies for the protection of birds, and a number of such societies have been organized.

Change in Dog Tax Law.

Act 264, Public Acts of 1915, makes a change in the manner of assessing and collecting dog tax and requires the following:

Sec. 2 The assessor of every township or ward, at the time of making his annual assessment, shall inquire and ascertain the number of dogs liable to be taxed, and shall enter in lists to be made by him the name of every person in his respective township or ward owning or keeping any dog subject to the above tax, the number kept by such person and the amount to be paid by him. He shall at the time of making such annual assessment, or within ten days thereafter, personally collect the tax herein provided for.

Sec. 3. The assessor of every township or ward shall, on or before the Tuesday following the third Monday in June in each year, make out a duplicate of the lists made by him as provided in the preceding section, and file the same under oath with the township or city clerk of his respective township or city.

The collector shall give to each person paying a tax on any dog, a receipt for the amount paid which shall also bear the date payment is made, shall describe the dog and be numbered with a serial number and the year. He shall also give to such person a metal label to be fastened to adog collar and this metal must bear the same serial number and year as does the receipt given.

The collector shall also furnish the sheriff with a list of all dogs on which the tax has not been paid.

The Best Time to See The NEW THINGS

Not all men think alike on many subjects but there are a number of things most men consider necessary to satisfaction in Clothes. Of course we are now interested in Easter Togs, but what we say about this store's service holds good for the year round. Clothessatisfaction to any man means that his clothes must be a combination of latest style, unsurpassable quality for the price he pays, faultless fit and assurance of reasonable service.

Easter Suits

You should come and try on some of the many clever models shown here. We have gathered a most comprehensive assortment here for men of all types-for men and young men, for men who like snappy style in all that the term implies, and for men of conservative taste. The season's most popular patterns are much in evidence, fashioned into suits cut on the latest

When you try on these Suits and then look in the mirror you'll see your ideas of the "proper things." Good snug fitting coat collars, the proper shape to the lapels, good buttons. You can feel sure that the "inside" construction is faultless. Each of these is a little thing in itself but taken collectively they mean much-Men's Suits unexcelled.

The Neckwear section is full of the best to be had. Priced at 25c to $1.00.

A Hat That Fits

That's easy you say, I always wear a 6 7-8, or whatever your size may be. True, but when we sell a hat we want it to fit in more ways than size. We want it to fit your personality-your facial type. We want it to fit in with your new suit. You want it to fit your pocket book too. All these things were to the front when we selected our spring Hats, and the result is a very comprehensive display of all that is proper and up-to-the-minute in Men's good Hats.

on Easter morning when he steps forth in his new suit. Of course he'll want it to come from this store for he knows from his own experience, or from the "other fellows" say, that this is the Boys' store of Chelsea. He will be proud of the style and the material in his Suit and the parents will be glad that he is pleased, for they will be satisfied that he is going to obtain such good service from the clothes they bought for him,

The plot of the thing is quite simple. The idle son of a millionaire has a rowe with his father and goes into business for himself. Father being the head of the soap trust, he decides to go in for soap and fight the trust. He meets a press agent, whose head is full of advertising en thusiasm. He invents a trade mark, not "the cheapest soap in the world." but "the most expensive." "Thirteen Soap, Unlucky for Dirt." How they begin to splurge on advertising-at one dollar a cake-how they almost go bankrupt before they even so much as make half a cake, how they almost manage to bamboozle, father into buying them out-these are all things you must find out for yourself.

To Put Plattsburg Idea Into Effect at Sea

THE ASHINGTON.—Secretary Daniels and his advisers decided to inaugurate a system of civilian naval training similar in general outline to that on which military training camps have been established at Plattsburg and elsewhere. It is planned to use six battleships to take those who present themselves for training for a month's cruise, beginning about August 15. The vessels to be utilized as training ships will take on their student personnel along the Atlantic coast, probably at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Norfolk, Portland and Charleston. It is estimated that the six battleships will make possible the training of 2,500 men. A similar program, it is expected, will be prepared next year for development of the plan on the Pacific coast.

The plan, which was drafted by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, proposes that the cost to the men shall be sufficiently low to enable those in moderate circumstances to join. The only compulsory requirement is that each volunteer declare his intention of giving his services to the navy in case of war. It is not proposed to require an oath, but merely a declaration of

The object of the plan is to establish a naval reserve of civilians exclusive of former enlisted men and those of the professional seafaring classes. Navy department officials are confident a sufficient number of men will respond to make the undertaking a success.

Federal Health Service Makes War on Washrag

NOW comes the crusade for the extinction of the common washrag. Having swatted with a large measure of success the common towel, the public health service has found a new target in its companion piece, the washrag. In an official announcement the public health service, modestly admitting a large success in its campaign against the common towel and the roller towel, says: "Now comes the news that the common washrag is an even greater menace to health.

"The hotels and public hostelries have recognized this for some time, and have supplied their guests with sterilized washcloths in individual sealed packets. The damp, 'sour'- smelling washrag still exists, however, in many private bathrooms. Imperfectly washed out after use, frequently not wrung out at all, it is often hung over a rack or a radiator near an open window, there to collect dust and dirt. Frequently the same washrag is used by the entire family, thus affording an easy means of transference of mouth secretions from person to person. In many households each individual has his own washcloth, and his individual towel, but these hang so close to one another that there is ready interchange of bacteria. Each individual should have his own washcloth. It should be thoroughly washed out with clean hot water after use. It should be then wrung as nearly dry as possible, and, if possible, hung in the sun to dry. It should not come in contact with other washcloths. In the investigations the United States public health service is conducting in regard to the prevalence of trachoma, it has been found that common towels probably acted as a medium of distribution of the germ of

"I feel almost certain that nowhere else can there be found so extensive a collection of literature pertaining to aquatic biology. You perhaps know that the subject of fish conservation is one of the biggest questions before the commercial world of today. The fish food problem is a great branch of our work, as are fish diseases. Everything done in the work tends toward the problem of economy and efficiency in fish conservation, in which the matters of fish food and fish diseases bear a

The leopard moth in its adult form has a spotted appearance, the semitransparent white wings being thickly dotted with blackish, dark blue, or greenish spots. There are also large black spots on the thorax and dark cross bands on the white abdomen. The moth lays its eggs, either singly or in groups, during the summer, usually selecting crevices in the rouge bark of trees as a convenient place to deposit them. The larvae or caterpillars hatch about ten days afterwards and at once penetrate the living wood. As they feed, they burrow tunnels which frequently encircle completely the tree or branch. When the larva has grown too large for the branch in which it is feeding, it crawls out and moves to one more suitable. As the insect remains in the larva stage, feeding in this way, for nearly two years, it is capable of doing a great deal of damage before it transforms to the pupa or chrysalis stage. This it does in May or later, and some time between May and the end of September it emerges as an adult or

IN FARM EXPENSES

Should Be Carefully Considered by Farmer.

(By ALVA H. BENTON, Assistant Agri-culturist, University Farm, St. Faul, Minn.)

Reducing farm expense is the eas iest way to increase farm profits on many farms. Good crops and good live stock alone cannot make farming Nettie Maywell profitable. In closing up the leaks in profitable, in closing up the leaks in average at the cost of horse labor farm expenses the cost of horse labor and machinery should be carefully considered. When this vice becomes established, chickens will go so far as to pick holes in one another, and woe unto the bird on whose body the blood is once started!

Toe picking is a kindred evil, but only among young chicks. They like the taste of blood and an injured toe is a source of attraction.

Close confinement and unbalanced rations are the usual causes of such vices. Both grown fowls and young chicks need green food, meat food and grit, and if these are provided, along with plenty of exercise, the conditions favorable for the formstion of the above habits will not be

COST OF KEEPING A HEIFER

About the Surest Way to Avoid Any Possible Error Is to Keep Complete Set of Accounts.

We sometimes get the impression that the cost of keeping a horse or a cow is determined by the amount of feed consumed, plus the amount of labor expended, and possibly an interest charge. The government has published figures on the cost of raising, from birth, a two-year-old heifer which show that 65.6 per cent of the total cost was expended for feed, 12.9 per cent for labor, 5.9 per cent for interest, and 15.6 per cent for other charges, such as buildings, equipment, bedding, etc., or with a total expense of $62.06. These items which might be called "other charges" amounted to $9.72.

This emphasizes the need of caution in determining the cost of any single enterprise of the farm. Too frequently these "other charges" are omitted in reporting profits. About the surest way to avoid the possible error is to for generations to clean and stimulate keep a complete set of accounts. Of sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize course, there is some work attached to it but by adopting a simple direct entry method of bookkeeping it isn't such a bad job.

RIGHT PASTURE FOR CALVES

Most Young Animals Better Off in the Barn Than Fighting Flies in the Hot Fields.

(By R. M. WASHBURN.) While it is very important that heifers should have free access to pasture during the second summer, to develop strong bodies, the calf need not have pasture the first summer. In fact, for calves born after the first of the year, pasturing may be a disadvantage. Most young calves in this country are better off chewing tender hay in the quiet and half-dark stable than fighting flies, panting from the heat, and cropping tough grass in the pasture.

SALTS IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS TROUBLE YOU

Eat Less Meat If Your Kidneys Aren't Acting Right or If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stemach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.-Adv.

Of course, his lordship always managed to avoid her when he was at home, but one day she happened to see him just as he was about to enter his carriage.

> HANDY HUSBAND Knew How to Get Part of the Breakfast.

"I know one dish I can prepare for breakfast as well as any cook on earth,' said my husband one morning when the cook was ill and he had volunteered to help get breakfast. He appeared with his dish and I discovered it was Grape-Nuts which, of course, was easy to prepare for it was perfectly cooked at the factory, but it was a good illustration of the convenience of having Grape-Nuts about.

"We took up Grape-Nuts immediately after returning from a five years' sojourn in a hot country. Our stomachs were in bad condition and we were in poor health generally.

"In a day or two we liked Grape-Nuts better than any other kind of food on the table. We both gained steadily in health and strength, and this was caused by Grape-Nuts and Postum.

"A friend of ours had a similar experience. She was seriously ill with indigestion and could find nothing to eat that would not give her heartburn and palpitation, especially at night.

"She found that a small dish of Grape-Nuts with cream made her a satisfactory supper and gave her a omfortable night's rest. In a short time she gained several pounds in

"I don't believe in coddling criminals," said the district attorney, smashing down his red fist upon the table. "No, sir! What with your humanities, and your movies for criminals nowaday, you're making the penitentiary a pleasant resort for the outlaws of this country."

"I don't know," answered the governor thoughtfully. "I remember when I was warden at Salt Lake prison camp-"

"You initiated this modern system in our state, sir," said the district attorney.

nature, Mr. Elson?" "It doesn't exist."

the old days-the whip, the cooler, and all the rest of it. Well, it was Big Steve changed my viewpoint. He was the worst nigger of the lot. Why, we'd almost seared the flesh off his back, and then we couldn't do anything with him. He'd half killed a woman-that was why he was sent up for a dozen years. Savagely attacked the guards and his fellow prisoners. But he hated me worst of the lot, and whenever I went near the fellow he'd snarl like a mountain lion.

"He got away one night. We went tells on the nerves of his guards, even heard the fellow had got away I didn't past me. lose two minutes starting after him. What made it worse was that he'd managed to overpower a guard and he thought he'd have use for the rifle afterward, as proved to be the case. "He had about half an hour's start of us, and the route he had taken was perfectly plain. He had, in fact, only one route to take. That was round the borders of the lake in the direction of the little railroad that carried the pine products down to the coast. Everywhere else was nothing but forest and swamp. There wasn't a house within miles. He'd have starved to death if he could manage to escape the quicksands anywhere else. The prison camp had been built wisely and well. "We tracked Big Steve. We went on foot, couldn't hope to catch up with the convict before we reached the line, but we'reckoned that he'd have half an hour to wait before the night train came along, and it proved to be

"I was clean mad all through. I swore that I'd retake Big Steve single-handed, if necessary. I had only a revolver against his rifle, but the three guards I took with me were armed to the teeth. As it happened, the most unpected ill luck happened to us. "Two of my men got bogged in the swamp. They were up to their waists, and the rope that we'd brought with us to bind the prisoner had to be requisitioned to pull them out. It was near the end of the journey, and every second was precious to us. You see, there was no telegraph there in those days. We couldn't warn the man at the station. We had to go in person. And it would be the easiest thing in the world for Big Steve to hop on one of the ears as they lumbered downhill and go on any distance till he chose to drop off and make his way into some of the negro settlements along the track. "The third man stayed to pull out the two who were mired in the nd when he was freed the two of them could get Adams free. But it ing the cargo was begun it was disant ten minutes, and I was so mad with hate that I didn't even stop to exchange my revolver for a rife. "I stood still, searching around for Big Steve. The train was already within earshot, puffing up the grade on the other side of the hill. I looked around-and then in the moonlight I saw Big Steve's face behind a tree, a hundred yards away, and his black features twisted with rage as he looked along the barrel of his rifle,

"He had me. Of course I fired. But I knew I couldn't hit him at that distance. I emptied my revolver-and I heard Big Steve laugh. Then I stood still, waiting for the bullet.

"I heard a savage snarl behind me, but I didn't associate it with anything "You never heard how I came to see | particular. "That's all. We never had any trouble with the convict from that day on. But the event started me thinking, and all at once it came to me what was the matter with Big Steve. He had never been up against a really elemental human situation before—that's intuitive personality the fact that men are brothers. He was the victim of his environment. When I became governor I had him pardoned."

The district attorney rose. "And probably he committed half a dozen rimes after that," he remarked.

HARD FOR MIND TO MASTER

igures of Interest to Those People Who Talk So Glibly of a Million Years.

Astronomers and geologists habitually deal in large numbers. It is utterly impossible to conceive 1,000,000,miles, and even the familiar illustration of a railroad train going so many miles an hour for so many years conveys a very vague idea.

It is equally difficult to form an idea of the vast period of time with which geologists deal. What idea can man. who is limited to a hundred years form of 1,000,000 years?

Professor Croll tells us how a striking impression of such a lapse of time may be partially conveyed to the mind. "Stretch a piece of paper 83 feet 4 inches long around the walls of a room somewhat over twenty feet square, recall the events of life to give some conception of a hundred years, and then consider that a mark one-tenth of an inch broad at one end of the paper represents the century, while the whole strip gives place for only a million years. This illustration is worth trying.

An even more striking illustration may be seen in the works of nature. Could we stand upon the edge of a gorge a mile and a half in depth, that had been cut out of the solid rock by a tiny stream scarcely visible at the bottom of this terrible abyss, and were we informed that this little streamlet was able to wear off annually only one-tenth of an inch from its rocky bed, what would our conception be of the prodigious length of time that this stream must nave taken to excavate the gorge? We should certainly feel startled on finding that the stream had performed this enormous amount of work in something less than a million

An Everyday Cake

Here is a simple and inexpensive cake that can be varied in many ways with different frostings and icings. It looks a little nicer baked in a tube pan, but will be equally as good baked in a square loaf. «

K C Gold Cake

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine. † cup butter; † cup sugar; yolks of † eggs, beaten light; 1 cup flour, less 2 level tablespoonfuls; 2 level teaspoonfuls KC Baking Powder; † cup milk; grated

Sift flour and baking powder together three times; cream butter and sugar, beat yolks of eggs, add these to creamed mixture, and lastly add the moisture and flour alternately, beating batter until smooth. Gold Cake can only be made successfully by beating yolks of eggs, very, very creamy and light lemon colored, using a rotary beater.

Beat the whites of 2 eggs dry; gradually beat in half a cup of sifted confectioner's sugar and continue the beating until the frosting is smooth, thick and glossy; then beat in grated cocoanut, fresh or prepared, and spread upon the cake. This frosting is made thick by beating rather than by sugar.

Save this recipe. You will want to use it frequently Or better, send us the colored certificate packed in each 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder and we will mail you "The Cook's Book" containing this and 89 other baking recipes equally good—all by Mrs. Hill. tagues Mfg. Co., Chicago.

PRESIDENT WILSON ON THRIFT

President Wilson has said: "If a man does not provide for his children, if he does not provide for all those dependent upon him, and if he has not that vision of conditions to come, and that care the days not yet dawned, which we sum up in the whole idea of thrift and saving, then he has not yet opened his eyes to any adequate conception of human life. We are all in this world to provide, not for ourselves, but for others, and that is the Basis of economy."

SYNOPSIS. -14-

Alan Wayne is sent away from Red Hill. Alan Wayne is sent away from Red Hill-his home, by his uncle, J. Y., as a moral failure. Clem drinks Alan's health on his birthday. Judge Healy defends Alan in his business with his employers. Alan and Alix, Gerry's wife, start a flirtation. Ger-ry, as he thinks, sees Alix and Alan elop-ing, drops everything, and goes to Per-nambuco. Alix leaves Alan on the train and goes home. Gerry leaves Pernam-I told him that's what he ought to go and goes home. Gerry leaves Pernambuco and goes to Piranhas. On a canoe trip he meets a native girl. The judge fails to trace Gerry. A baby is born to Alix. The native girl takes Gerry to the ruined plantation she is mistress of. Gerruined ry marries her. At Maple house Collinge-ford tells how he met Alan-"Ten Per ford tells how he met Alan—"Ten Per Cent Wayne"—building a bridge in Africa. Gerry begins to improve Margarita's plantation and builds an irrigating ditch. A baby comes to Margarita. Collingeford meets Alix in the city and finds her changed. Alan meets Alix, J. Y., and Clem, grown to beautiful womanhood, in the city and realizes that he has sold his highly the company of pottage. Kenn the city and realizes that he has sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. Kemp and Gerry become friends. They visit Lieber, and the three exiles are drawn together by a common tie. Lieber tells his story. In South America Alan gets the fever and his foreman sends him to Lieber's. Alan tells Gerry the truth about Alix and Gerry tells him of Margarita and the baby. Alan wonders and is disgusted. A flood carries away Margarita and her baby, despite Gerry's attempt at rescue. Fever follows Gerry's exposure. He sends a note to Alix by Alan, who forwards the note to Alix when he arrives in New York. Alan goes on to Red Hill.

Here Alan has an opportunity to spoil all of Gerry and Alix' future life by telling just a little about Margarita and the boy back in South America. Men and women frequently do such things in mere human perversity. Should he answer Alix truthfully or should he lie like a gentleman and save the day for Ger-something. Is he well? Is he-" Alan held up his hand. "Just one thing and then I'm going to sleep. I never thought the old Rock would ever loom so big."

Alix watched him doze off. She felt strangely comforted by the crumb he had tossed her. She went back in her mind to a dinner of long ago, when she had defended Gerry's placid weight against Alan. She sat on for half an hour, busy with varying thoughts. She looked curiously around Alan's sitting room. How strange that she should be here and yet how natural. How safe she felt. She wondered if it was all because of the defenses she had raised up in herself or whether any woman would feel safe. with the new and weakened Alan. At night when all the rest of the household had gone to bed, J. Y. softly opened Alan's door and looked in. Alan was awake and nodded. J. Y. came in and pottered about the room. He rolled a bit of paper into an ampler shade and further velled the night lamp. The ines in J. Y.'s rugged face were softened to lines of sweetness. He asked if there were nothing he could do and then turned to leave the soom. With his hand on the door, he paused and smiled down on Alan. "My boy, you have been far, far away."

"Far away," replied Alan drowsily, "but I have come back."

The bracing air of Red Hill and a long night's sleep enabled Alan to keep his word with himself. He was up and spread rugs instead in a nook under the trees, and Alan stretched himself out amid a riot of many-colored cushrocking chair and talked and read and Talking or reading, Clem was a source of unvarying delight to Alan. His own life rose up before him and mocked at him. Was it possible that one could live thirty years in this same world and be so old? He shrugged a shoulder petulantly. He would not think-he refused to think while he was so weak.

When Clem talked, it was like a child dreaming aloud; when she was silent one felt the presence of womanhood, wise with the unconscious accumulations of generations and unabashed. When Clem talked Alan was at ease, but when she was silent he was moved-troubled. A scarred man may play with a child and no harm to either. He can detach himself from his past as from the child and at a safe moral distance turn to watch its inconscious gambols. But with a woman it is different. Womanhood is a force: its mission to embrace, to sacrifice. It is unreasoning. Like fundamental man it demands a god and worships the god that comes to its need. Alan felt this force hovering in Clem's silences and was troubled.

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at your druggist or from the store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipa tion, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly .-

Professor Hudiberg had heavy, bushy eyebrows, knuckly hands and features that were rugged. There was no experiment that he would not attempt. He was brave in that way. But when it came to making Helen Burne's acquaintance there his heart failed.

And Helen Burne was of all the girls who studied under him the very one he wanted to know.

"I never could understand," he said to her one day when he had at last got up courage enough to talk with her aside from the necessary instructions in the laboratory, "why you chose to specialize in chemistry."

Helen looked up at him with bewilderment, test tube in hand. "Am I really so stupid?" she asked, and her eyes of blue were very wide open. "Indeed, it is not that. Perhaps I have said more than I ought."

"Not at all," Helen replied, putting down the test tube and wiping ber acid-stained hands on her enveloging apron. "I see what you mean. You mean that in your native land blondes like me would be picked for the career of a hausfrau. I suppose you will have no use for me when you know that I am a suffragist. I've just been elected president of the club here at college.'

One day-it was Saturday, with no laboratory hours-Helen came unceremoniously into the laboratory.

"Oh, Professor Hudiberg," she began, "I have just thought that you would do for a part in the suffrage pageant we are getting up. Tell me you will, please. I've gone over the list of all the men in college, and there isn't another one that looks the part. Will you?"

"Yes," said the professor happily. "Oh, lovely," she said clasping per hands. "You see, we are going to depict the evolution of woman from primitive times to the present day. We are going to have the primitive man tramping down the primite woman. You'll do beaut mily for that. You are so-what shall I call it? Well, you have such wonderful dark, bushy eyebrows and you are so, so-rugged."

"I am afraid-but I gave my promise." There was a twinkle in the professor's dark eye. Clearly he was very much amused. "By any chance are you going to be the primitive woman?'

"Oh, no, indeed. I am going to be the emancipated woman. That's betunic, with my hair down my backand all the arts and sciences will come before me-those will be some of the college boys dressed to symbolize the different subjects-and pay me trib-

"Yes, that is a very good idea," he said after a pause. "But you are not the one for the part. One of those tall young persons-there are so many Amazons in your class-would do much better for that final tableau. That is only my suggestion. You would not really like always to remain on that pedestal-alone, independent, self-reliant, would you?"

Helen blushed in spite of herself and said precisely what she did not wish to say: "That depends a great deal on circumstances. No. I should probably become very lonely. Still, it is all arranged. I must not change the plans."

Work for the suffrage pageant progressed. Helen put many hours into the work. The affair promised to be a really splendid production." Helen had worked herself pale and worn over it and, truth to tell, had sadly neglected her studies because of it. Then one day-it was the week after the midterm quizzes-a very pale little Helen appeared rather timidly in the laboratory of Professor Hudiberg. "I wanted to tell you," she began, and then swallowed a choke in her voice and went on, "that I am no longer to have anything to do with the suffrage pageant. It will be carried out as I planned. But on the results of the quizzes I have had my warning note from the office. That means, you know, that I can take no more active part in college activities till I have raised my standard. It is fair, I suppose. I am glad, at least, that you didn't have to give me a bad mark."

"I should have been very sorry, I am sure," said the professor, "if you had done anything but good work in my department. What, then, of the primitive man?"

"That was what ' was going to say. The pageant will go on without me. of course. They will want you for rehearsal tomorrow afternoon. I have rehearsed everyone else." "Then you can please tell them that they will have to find a new primitive man. I made my promise to you, no to your successor. I had hoped for means of escape, although I am so that it should be one that is unpkant to you." So far during this intervieem
