VICTORIOUS AT WAYNE

Claire Rowe Was the "Big Noise" a Tri-County Track Meet Saturday.

The Tri-County Athletic Association held their fifteenth annual track and field meet at Wayne on Saturday, June 3. While it threatened rain in the morning, it was an ideal day for the meet. The track was a little slow owing to the continued wet weather, but the boys entered into the meet with a good spirit which was kept up all through the day. The Chelsea team backed by a slim delegation left on the 7:45 morning car. The rooters had been disappointed on the previous Saturday and were not taking any chances this time with the rain threatening. Those that did elect to go were amply repaid for the chance they took. Everyone was in high spirits and anxious to get into the meet.

Chelsea took the lead on the first event and held it throughout the meet. To the whirlwind, Claire Rowe, of Chelsea goes the honor of being individual high man. He grabbed off seven firsts, one second and practically won the high school relay by a terrific sprint on the last lap. He rolled up a total of 384 points of the 624 won by Chelsea.

As winner of the meet, the Chelsea team was awarded the silver loving cup. This cup remains in the possession of the Chelsea high school during the year. If won by Chelsea three years in succession, it becomes their permanent property.

As winner of the high school relay, the team was awarded the relay banner. This was won by Chelsea last year also. This becomes the permanent property of the school.

The Chelsea team consisted of C. Rowe, captain, L. Kalmbach, A. Palmer, R. Wagner, H. Freeman, C. Webb, W. Cooper, M. Hoppe, H. Vogel.

I have just received direct from the factory a large quantity of MOLDED HOSE, both in half and three-quarter inch. By taking the amount I did, I bought it at a price that's right, and will sell it the same. If in need of any come in and inspect this MOLDED HOSE. This Hose is strictly guaranteed to me and you can return it a year from the time you buy it if you discover anything wrong. Where else can you find a hose they'll do that with?

I am still in the Plumbing and Heating game, and can say that my employee, Mr. Snyder, and myself are both practical men and guarantee satisfaction on this kind of work.

Now is the time of year to look after your Heating System. Jerk out your old smoky, dirty, hot air furnace and let us install you a nice little Vapor or Hot Water system. It doesn't take up your whole cellar, and I dare say you will save 40 per cent on fuel. Ask others that have them. Neither will you have your house full of smoke or dust.

Detroit.—Seven hundred million dollars is the accumulated value of the estate of a Pennsylvanian Revolutionary officer named Col. Jacob Baker.

His property was leased by him for 99 years shortly after the Revolution triumphed in 1783.

Now that estate, little valued at the time, is worth a small kingdom, and becomes the subject of an earnest conference of scores of "heirs of-Jacob Baker", who gathered in De. troit from many sections of the United States and Canada.

They came from many states. They laid aside many occupations and professions while they made this visit. Some keep stores, some work farms, some practice law. There are some darkhaired men and some blondes. The descendants vary as much in type as almost any crowd of people. though there are a few family traits common to many.

And they all share likewise in the common Baker family tradition. . It is a tradition handed down through old men and women in Pennsylvania. Ohio, Michigan, Ontario and other regions. There are now perhaps 300 great-grandchildren of Jacob Baker. And these great-grandchildren are in their fifties and sixties, for the years have been swift.

SYNOPSIS.

sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs is met at the station by his dister Edith. He finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the siderable. siderable and unconsidered figure in the siderable and unconsidered figure in the New House" of the Sheridans. He sees Mary Vertrees looking at him from a summer house next door. The Vertreeses, old town family and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and afterward discuss them. Mary puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. At the Sheridan housewarming banquet Sheridan preads himself, Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions, and Bibbs hears he is to be sent back to the machine shop.

Lacking sympathy and understanding of a fine nature, isn't t possible that a slave-driving father could practically force his frail, dreaming son to sulcide by making him do work which he is fitted to do neither mentally nor physically? CHAPTER VIII.

Through the open country Bibbs was borne flying between brown fields and sun-flecked groves of gray trees, to breathe the rushing, clean air beneath a glorious sky. Upon Bibbs' cheeks there was a hint of actual color, but undeniably its phantom. This apparition may have been partly the result of a lady's bowing to him upon no more formal introduction than the circumstance of his having caught her looking into his window a month before. It seemed to Bibbs that she must have meant to convey her forgiveness. Nor did he lack the impression that he would long remember her as he had just seen her; her veil tumultuously blowing back, her face glowing in the wind-and that look of gay friendliness tossed to him like a fresh rose in carnival.

By and by, upon a rising ground, the driver halted the car, then backed and tacked, and sent it forward again with its nose to the south and the smoke. They passed from the farm lands, and came, in the amber light of November late afternoon, to the farthermost outskirts of the city. The sky had become only a dingy thickening of the soiled air; and a roar and clangor of metals beat deafeningly on Bibbs' ears. Now the car passed two great blocks of long brick buildings, hideous in all ways possible to make them hideous. And big as these shops were, they were growing bigger, spreading over a third block, where two new structures were mushrooming to completion in some hasty cement process of a stability not over-reassuring. Bibbs pulled the rug closer about him, and not even the phantom of color was left upon his cheeks as he passed this place, for he knew it too well. Across the face of one of the buildings there was an enormous sign: "Sheridan Automatic

Thence they went through streets of wooden houses, all grimed, and adding their own grime from many a sooty chimney; flimsy wooden houses of a thousand flimsy whimsies in the fashioning, built on narrow lots and nudging one another crossly. Along these streets there were skinny shade trees, and here and there a forest elm or walnut had been left; but these were dying. Some people said it was the scale; some said it was the smoke; and some were sure that asphalt and "improving" the streets did it; but Bigness was in too big a hurry to bother much about trees.

Onward the car bore Bibbs through the older parts of the town where the few solid old houses not already demolished were in transition; some were being made into apartment buildings; others had gone uproariously into trade; one or two peeped humorously word! "Write what?"

"Nothing important-just poems and essays, perhaps."

"I see," said his father, breathing quickly with the restraint he was putting upon himself. "That is, you want to write, but you don't want to write anything of any account."

"You think-Sheridan got up again. "I take my hat off to the man that can write a good ad," he said, emphatically. "The best writin' talent in this country is right spang in the ad business today. "Just imagine any ladylike woman being interested in baseball." said his wife decidedly. "I've always felt sure that Anne Tompkins just pretends to like it because Jack Farley is such a-what do you call it-fan?"

"Not on your life! Baseball is about as free from followers who merely pretend to like it as anything under the sun."

Before Eleanor had time to reply, Robert was fumbling in one after another of his pockets. Finally he smiled in a relieved way as he drew out a small piece of blue cardboard which even to Eleanor was recognizable as the portion of a ticket retained by a seat holder. "I had an anxious moment then, for I didn't remember where I put my rain check."

"What is a rain check? Let me see it," said Eleanor, holding out her hand. "So you got rained out yesterday. did you?"

"No; the day before, and I've just got a hunch that there'll be some great hurling and hitting this afternoon. I'm sorry you don't take any interest in the game." As an afterthought, apparently, he added, "A lot of women do."

After Robert had gone whistling out of the front door, Eleanor stood by the dining-room window and gazed out at the gay nasturtiums blooming in window boxes, but she was not even conscious of their brilliant colors. She was thinking that Robert left her with the air of one who goes out to find what he likes rather than of one who leaves behind that which he likes most, and she didn't relish the possi-

Then she picked up the morning paper and went into the living room. With a determined air she turned through the paper until she found the sporting page.

After plodding through many parcgraphs of which she understood nothing, she finally found a comparatively lucid paragraph giving the place, the starting time and the personnel of the players for that afternoon's game. She remembered that Robert's rain check had borne this inscription: "Box No. 90, $1."

That afternoon, about the time the game began Eleanor, timid but trim in a blue serge suit and sailor hat, requested the ticket seller to assign her to a seat slightly in the rear of box 90. All fear of being conspicuous in that crowd left Eleanor, for she soon saw that the slouching giants out on the field were the only individuals who were being noticed. She discovered Robert and three other men seated directly below her a few rows distant. Something decisive must have happened on the diamond just then, for thousands of enthusiastic young men and hundreds of dignified older ones rose to their feet and velled like Comanches, waving their arms wildly. Robert was standing and cheering and talking excitedly to his companions. Presently a big fellow at the bat knocked a ball that shot like a great white bullet up into the air and then seemed to take its own time to fall into the eager hands of the outfielder at the farthest side of the grounds. and while it soared the big fellow ran as if life were the stake, and the crowds yelled frantically until he stopped on third base. Eleanor clenched her hands and sat tense, as she felt a thrilling shiver in her spine and realized for the first time that the yelling fans about her were not maniacs. One morning at breakfast, a month later. Eleanor was daintily pretty in a lavender negligee, and Robert looked admiringly at her.

"Will you be my beau today, sir?" she asked, with a smile. "For luncheon? With pleasure, madam!

"Not for luncheon only," she replied, "but for the whole afternoon?" "What is it? A country club blowout? Couldn't we make it some other day? There's a peach of a double-header to come off this afternoon." "I know it, and that's where I want you to take me."

"But, Eleanor, dear, you'd be bored, just like you to want to take up with I'm afraid, sitting there for two or three hours when you know nothing of the game."

"But I do know something of the game, for I've been going to the games and posting myself on points for a whole month. When I saw that things outside my rather frivolous interests were the things that roused your greatest enthusiasm, I thought I'd better investigate. So I began with baseball. It was your rain check that set me to thinking one morning," she explained.

"Why, how was that?" "It had become evident that before our game of life together was even well begun we were getting away from each other, and it struck me that morning that we must make our wedding ring a sort of rain check-good

ALASKAN CLIFF DWELLERS Residents of Ketchikan Must Climb

Ketchikan, Alaska, lies right on the water. The mountains, says the Christian Herald, rise in green walls behind it. Their tops are sprinkled with snow, and great rocks show out through the evergreen trees that cover

The harbor is in the shape of a half moon protected by islands. It has no beach to speak of and the business part of the town rests upon piles. The streets are planked roadways upon posts, and much of the freight is carried about on trucks and carts pushed by men. There are several drays hauled by horses, but horses are unpopular, for their shoes roughen the planks, and they shake the town as they trot through the streets. Of late automobiles and motor delivery trucks have come in and these will probably be the future traffic conveyancers.

The residence section of the city is located in the sides of the cliff higher up. It is so steep that you have to climb stairways to reach certain streets, while other streets have winding roadways of boards upon which slats have been nailed to the planks to keep one from slipping. The Ketchikaners make you think of the tree dwellers, whe have to climb ladders to get to their homes.

France Bars Imported Trucks. The French government recently disposed of 740 motor trucks, used in the war since August, 1914, at public auction. The trucks were originally fitted with motor-bus bodies and were running in the streets of Paris. At mobilization they were commandeered and have been used in transporting meat and other provisions. New French-made chassis have taken their places and the government sold the old trucks. Hereafter all imported trucks will be "run to destruction" and then replaced by domestic product. France announces its intention of using no more imported trucks in the war.

are occasional instances here rodents, both the house rat and jouse, have been known to invade the bed or crib occupied by young chiliren, especially infants when left slone sleeping. Such an incident is corded in the death of William Webter Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Jackson of Washington, hose death is reported in the vital tatistics as due to a virulent blood pisoning from the infection of a ouse bite on the child's neck.

One night while the infant, only two reeks old, was sleeping in his crib be-Me his mother's bed a mouse crawled into the crib and, biting the baby on the neck, inflicted what was then thought to have been an insignificant wound. A simple application was made to the scratch or wound inflicted by However, the bite resulted in an intection which spread so rapidly that hysicians found it impossible to save the child's life. A high fever developed, and the child died.

Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt, who investigated the case, is satisfied that the child's death was directly traceable to the bite of the mouse. In commenting upon the case he said:

"It is a fact widely known among medical men that rats and mice carry disease, and householders should make every effort to rid their houses of them as a matter of personal and public protection. Cats, likewise, are a mence to public health, carrying germs disease to a marked degree. The extermination of rats and mice should be undertaken by the local and public ealth service."

OUR GREAT NEW INDUSTRY

n Unprecedented Demand for High Explosives Developed Trade in Benzol and Toluol.

In response to the unprecedented denand for high explosives a new industry, the recovery of benzol and toluol, suddenly sprang into existence in the United States in 1915. Benzol and toluol, indispensable raw materials from which explosives, dyestuffs and other chemical products are manufactured, are oils similar to gasoline in appearence and smell and are present in the gas that is driven off from coal when it is made into coke. Before the European war the demand in the United states for these products was so mall and the price so low that but one ompany engaged in coke-making sought to recover them on a large these oils, which were then being institution. burned with the gas, and by the end of 1915 there were 19 new plants for benzol recovery in operation and others in course of erection. It is estimated that between 8,000,000 and 9,-000,000 tons of coal were carbonized in the ovens that furnished the gas from which the oils were recovered.

banks of small streams are showing much interest in the new invention of A. G. Watkins of Philadelphia, which is a small waterpower plant floating on the surface of the stream. This generates sufficient power to operate small dynamo, which will supply that there is a gradually narrowing channel between them. The broad end of this is turned upstream and water wheel. The water enters the to a small dynamo.

Origin of Britain's Broad Arrow. Now that the broad arrow is so fremently seen on military stores and vehicles it is interesting to recall that we owe this as the government mark o Henry Sidney, master of the ordiance (created earl of Rommey in 1691), who, finding that the government had no distinguishing mark to enable them to identify its property, caused it to be marked with his arms, "Pheen," or "Broad Arrow," which has ever since been so used.—

Oakland County Republicans at the coming August primaries will likely look with much favor upon the gubernatorial candidacy of Frank B. Leland, of Detroit. The fact that he is a native of this county will command the attention of Oakland county Republicans who are invariably loyal to he "home folks."

Leland was born on a farm in Rose township, this county; in fact for a number of years has owned and operated the farm on which his boyhood was spent, so it is but natural that Oakland county should have more-than a passing interest in his can-didacy. We have been proudly interested in the remarkable success of this former Oakland county boy in business circles, and it is a foregone conclusion that "folks back News says, "There is an appeal in the record of Mr. Leland, who as a farmer boy, worked his way through

But no one here need pin his faith on these grounds alone for Frank B. Leland is eminently well qualified for the position of governor of this great state. Experienced in finance and business, possessing educational training represented by two degrees from the state university, still retaining a warm place in his heart for the farming life and interests from which he sprung, he combines qualities seldom presented in gubernatorial candi-

As president of the United Savings Bank, of Detroit, he commands the confidence and respect of the solid business interests of the state, and as president of the Detroit Tuberculosis Sanitorium he has engaged in a war against the white plague that has made the entire state his debtor. Eight years a regent of the U. of M. handling the expenditures of millions of dollars, shows the capacity of the man as well as indicating that he has had exceptional opportunities for studying the business methods of the state and its institutions. He comes not before the public forum as an untried neophtyte but as a successful business man of practical experience.

From the standpoint of political expediency, the party which wishes to again control the reins of state government must consider Leland. He comes in the unique character of a man on whom all Wayne county republicans can combine and with the endorsement of all the press of the metropolis—a condition we cannot recall as ever occurring in the past. For, in harmonizing Wayne, he has accomplished an impossibility.

Nor does his support seem to be dependent upon the heavy vote of the metropolis, although that is bound to be a great factor in his favor at the primaries. He has a large following in the state as evidenced when he was nominated for regent of the U. of M. despite the opposition of factional organizations in Wayne.

Uncle Sam Wants Foreign Trade Investigators

ASHINGTON,-Young Americans afflicted with wanderlust, who have a speaking acquaintance with Spanish, German or French, will be given an opportunity to travel at good pay if they can satisfy the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of their ability to investigate and report intelligently on foreign trade conditions. The most extensive campaign ever undertaken at one time will be under way soon after the beginning of the new fiscal year in July.

These investigations will be aimed at the newer and more undeveloped markets lying well outside the fighting zone, especially those in South America, China, India, Africa and Australia. Twelve different lines are to be investigated. The difficulty the bureau has experienced in getting suitable men for its foreign investigations illustrates the lack of trained men for foreign commercial work, which has so often been called to the attention of Americans in the last year. There are plenty of men capable of sizing up market conditions in any part of their own country, but there is a different story to tell when a man is wanted to study the prospects of selling goods in foreign countries

For South America, for example, the bureau wants men who can speak Spanish; who understand their particular line well enough to learn the essential facts so necessary to American exporters, and who, when in possession of these facts, can write them up in clear-cut, logical, convincing fashion. Such men are scarce.

For investigations in the far East a foreign language is not essential although extra credit is given in the examination for a knowledge of French. German or Spanish

Playing for High Stakes in the Court of Claims

THERE is a government firing line where firing is almost constantly going on. No blood is spilt, but interest is intense always, for it is shooting for money-big money. Long shots predominate. It is in a queer place for a firing line-in a former art gallery. In other words, the old abode of the Corcoran sallery, Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, now houses the United States count of claims; and there nearly every day of the court's sessions eminent counsel endeavor to score a bull's-eye and thereby win for themselves and their clients coin of the nation in sums all the way from a few thousands to many millions of dollars. It is a mighty absorbing and always alluring game because, as a rule the stakes are high. Competitors are numerous because, if a hit is made, At the present writing some $90,000,000 (in fresh crinkly notes of Uncle Sam worth 100 per cent of each 100 cents) are involved. That is, cases are now pending in the court of claims calling for $98,730,115.70. A judgment by the court of claims, unless reversed by the United States

Supreme court, is as good as cash. It follows that the prize of prizes in legal circles today is some sort of a fairly well substantiated claim against the United States government. Innumerable such claims are discovered and made. The cases now pending number more than 10,000.

Needless to say if all or any considerable part of this $98,000,000 is paid Indian trade, its importance being di- 138 square miles of Denmark's West it will come out of the United States treasury-i. e., out of the pockets of the people of the United States. Therefore, on this firing line the people have mother country, Denmark, maintained times as many people as the 46,740 their representatives, the same consisting of an enormous staff of attorneys retained upon salaries by Uncle Sam. Nominally their chief is the attorney general, but the attorney general in person is engrossed with greater matters -the construction and enforcement of the greater laws, particularly the antitrust laws. He has very little time to devote to "routine."

The gentleman in actual charge, therefore, is the "assistant attorney general in charge of the defense of suits against the United States." Under the present administration this gentleman is Huston Thompson of Denver, former classmate at Princeton of President Wilson. Mr. Thompson holds one of the many big submerged jobs in the government service.

Insists United States Pay Him Thirty Cents

COME years ago the crew of a government revenue cutter gave an entertainment, and, according to custom, assessed the cost of the affair among those shoard. Each man's share was taken from his pay. One young man was not in sympathy with some feature of the entertainment and objected to having to pay his share. It cost him only 30 cents, but it was the principle of the thing

He began to write to the assistant secretary of the treasury, who had charge of the revenue cutter service, and demanded justice.

That was about seven or eight years ago and the man has averaged about two letters a week ever since. He numbers his letters, and the last one numbered seven hundred and something. Two or three years ago he resigned from the revenue cutter service and is now living in New York, but he is still after his 30 cents and the establishment of a great principle. When Charles Dewey Hilles was an assistant secretary of the treasury he sent the man his personal check for 30 cents in the hope that it would end the long correspondence, but it did not. The man promptly sent back the check, saying that he did not want the money, but justice, and that the 30 cents must come from the government itself.

And so the correspondence goes on with no sign of ever letting up.

Where the Government Takes Tremendous Chances

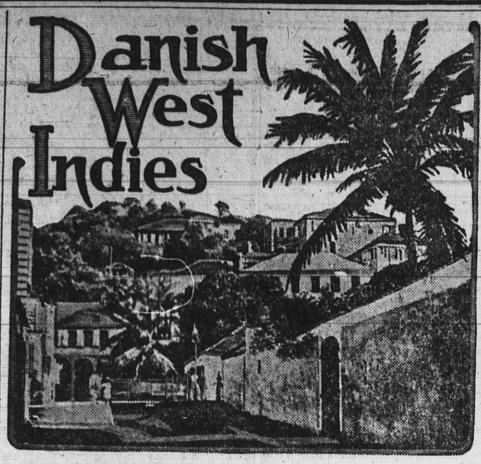

FIRE occurred recently in one of the detached buildings of the bureau of engraving and printing, which, fortunately, was confined to its place of have come up out of the earth and general course, then 60 miles parallel origin and to a comparatively small damage. The building is used in part as fallen into obliterate ruin again. the rag laundry, where the cloths which are employed in wiping the printing plates are washed. Though of brick walls it is far from being fireproof, and the fire department was ortunate in confining the flames. Only the detached situation of the structure abled it to check the blaze.

The fire did immediate damage of about $20,000. The actual loss to the government, however, was heavier by the delay of the work in printing money and stamps, which cannot proceed without the cloths, for the treatment of which this department is maintained. The engraving bureau is well equipped in the new main building, but it is compelled to use some of the old parts, and in this respect the situation is much like that of every other branch of the government.

There is scarcely a department that has not some part of its organization housed in a flimsy, fire-inviting structure. The government never insures and indeed it would have to pay some rather high rates if it did seek insurance on the ordinary commercial basis. Many of the "risks" of the public service tipment are decidedly bad, and considering the values dependent upon the ditions in which the departmental work is done the United States is taking through narrow valleys into which greatest battleship, it is so shallow darming chances of disaster in its regular routine.

What an absurd thing it is to pass over all the valuable parts of a man, and fix our attention on his infirmities.

Eggs are reasonable in price and this is the time to enjoy many of the dishes which are prohibitive many months of the year.

Escalloped Eggs.-Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and when bubbling hot add two tablespoonfuls of flour; add a cupful and a half of milk, and cook slowly until thick. Butter a baking dish and place in the bottom a layer of buttered crumbs, over these lay three thinly sliced eggs; cover with half of a fourth of a cupful of chopped olives and repeat with crumbs and three more eggs, olives and then the white sauce. Cover with buttered crumbs. Salt and pepper should be used to season the white sauce and a cupful and a half of crumbs will be needed. Bake until nicely browned.

Jam Omelet .- Beat the yolks of five eggs until light and lemon colored: add a tablespoonful of powdered sugar, and three tablespoonfuls of milk mixed with a teaspoonful of cornstarch. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs and cook in a buttered frying pan until set, then spread with jam and fold; serve as a dessert. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and garnish with jam.

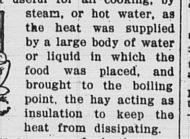

Coffee Custard.—Scald two cupfuls of milk with two tablespoonfuls of ground coffee; strain after it is well steeped, add three beaten eggs, a fourth of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt. Strain into cups and set in hot water to bake until firm. Flavor with a few drops of vanilla or coffee

EARL KITCHENER'S DEATH SAD BLOW TO BRITISH PEOPLE

Was on the Cruiser Hampshire, Which Was Torpedoed or Mined off the North Coast of Scotland

ENGLAND'S GREATEST MILITARY ORGANIZER

The Party Was Bound for Petregrad to Confer With Russian Officials Over War

London.-The loss of Earl Kitchener, secretary of state for war, England's greatest military organizer and the conqueror of the Soudan, with his entire staff, when the cruiser Hampshire was sunk off the Orkney Islands by a mine or torpedo, was officially announced by the admiralty Tuesday. Accompanying Earl Kitche-O'Beirne, former councillor of the. British embassy at Petrograd and former minister at Sofia; O. A. Fitzgerald, Earl Kitchener's private military secretary; Brig.-Gen. Ellershaw and Sir Frederick Donaldson. The party was bound for Petrograd to confer with Russian officials.

Hope that Lord Kitchener and his staff escaped death was practically abandoned when searchers along the Scottish coast returned with no trace of the British secretary for war. Intense gloom settled down over

England. Many public gatherings were adjourned. Lord Kitchener stood next to Lord tary idol in the British empire.

News of the destruction of the Hampshire and the probable death of staggering blows received in England since-the war started. Despite his year, Lord Kitchener was in the prime of his vigor and was a tower of strength in the grand war councils that were held in Paris. It was stated that Lord Kitchener's trip to Petrograd was a "special mission." It is believed to have related to the Russian offensive on the east front as an offset to the pressure being exerted by the Teutons against the Italians and against the French

England was shocked too deeply to give much thought to the question of a successor, but there were quiet reports on the street that David Lloyd George, the present minister of munitions, might occupy the war

The report to the admiralty of the loss of the Hampshire was made to the admiralty by Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, commander of the British Lord Kitchener has been one of the most conspicuous figures in the war. It was he, who, in November, 1915, went to the Near East and inspected conditions at the Dardanelles.

This trip led to the withdrawal of the British expedition from Gallipoli peninsula.

The war secretary left London on November 5, 1915. He visited Gallipoli and Salonika where he conferred with the British and French generals in charge. On November 20, Lord Kitchener went to Athens, where he conferred with King Constance, king of the Hellenes, for at that time the situation in the Balkans was looking very black for the allies and it was feared Greece might side with the central powers. The Orkney islands, off which the Hampshire went down, are off the north coast of Scotland. The Hampshire was on her way into the Atlan. tic and around the northern end of the Scandinavian peninsula into the White sea. Earl Kitchener probably intended to debark at Archangel.

The Hampshire was one of the Devonshire class of six cruisers, She was built' in 1903 and normally carried 655 men, She displaced 10,850 tons, was 450 feet long, 68 1.2 feet beam and drew 25 1.2 feet. She was armed with four 7-5-inch, six 6-inch, two 12-pound and 20 3-pound guns and two torpedo tubes. She cost $4,-250,000. Her commander was Capt.

Henry W. Grant. Shanghai.-Right Rev. C. H. Brant, Protestant Episcopal bishop of the Philippine islands, was one of the passengers rescued from the ill-fated Chiyo Maru, when she was wrecked on/a reef south of Hongkong, April 1. William Sulzer, former governor of New York, prohibition candidate for president, spoke under the auspices of the University of Michigan chapter of the Intercollegiate Prohibition sociation Sunday. He declared himself in favor of woman suffrage and discussed preparedness extensively.

PRACTICAL WORK IN FORESTRY | 5

The M. A. C. Offers a Valuable Summer Course of Study in Camp.

East Lansing-On June 19th the Michigan Agricultural College opens its Forestry Summer School at Dayhuff Lake, 12 miles northwest of Cadillac. Here on the bank of a beautiful lake, under giant hardwood trees the tents of the school are pitched on the very edge of the virgin forest. No more beautiful spot could be found for a camp site and no place could be better located for the work. The camp is almost ideally arranged. The students' tents form a great crescent around the camp fire. Within a few rods is the assembly hall a wooden building containing class room and office. On the immediate edge of the lake, a short distance down the slope is the large cook house and mess hall, and the meals served are excellent. The drainage is perfect and there is every facility for work and play. There are always some canoes taken up by the students and an open field nearby furnishes a baseball ground and a series of games is arranged each year with nearby towns. The postoffice is at Meauwataka, about one mile distant.

The work given is all practical and consists of three principal courses: Forest mensuration, including timber estimating and growth studies, work which is of particular value to anyone interested in timber or forestry; ner as his staff were Hugh James legging including a time study of logging operations and the comparative cost of taking out logs of different sizes, and also milling operations; and logging engineering and surveying, including land surveying and topographic mapping. The opportunities for carrying on these studies are unsurpassed. The heavy hardwood timber furnishes an excellent field for timber estimating and bodies of second growth nearby afford a field for growth studies. The logging operations which are being carried on within a few miles of the camp furnish a field for the work in lumbering and the large saw mills at Cadillac give an opportunity for study of milling. Perhaps the best hour of the day is in the evening when the campfire is lighted and students and instructors gather around it for song and story.

The course should appeal to those who are interested in lumbering and forestry and the student may enroll for all or any part of the course. It furnishes an opportunity for a pleasant and instructive outing under ideal

The railroad station for the camp is Boon on the Ann Arbor railroad. This is about five miles from camp over a good highway.

The number of students is limited by the equipment used in giving instruction. All inquiries and applications for enrollment should be made to A. K. Chittenden, Professor of Forestry, East Lansing, Michigan

The College would like to have all young men interested in this work participate in it just as far as the equipment will permit. It is understood that a number of men can still be admitted if application is made promptly and any men interested are urged to take the matter up at once.

BAD FEED FOR THE DRY COW

Advisability of Feeding Animal Well Is Not Usually Recognized-Give Her a Vacation.

By R. W. LATTA, New Mexico State

"We'll feed this spoiled hay to the lry cows." This statement shows a common attitude, but a wrong one. frue, the dry cow can utilize to adantage, as part of her ration, some iff-grade hay, but the advisability of eeding her well is not usually recogtized. A cow will do better in milk production for twelve months if she ias six weeks to two months' "vacaion on full pay." While she is dry ier system into condition to give a arge flow of milk when she freshens. While drying off the cow, she may be given the starvation treatment-no grain and only a poor grade of dry 'oughage, but as soon as she is dry she should be well fed again. The good dairy cow cannot be made too at, when dry. All the fat stored up, and white. n her body will be milked off again. ncreasing the yield of milk, and also, t has been demonstrated, her milk vill test higher throughout the folowing lactation period than if she reshens in poor flesh.

Ten days to two weeks before catvng, the feed should be reduced, and ight, loose feeds of choice quality should be fed. Bran, ground oats and inseed oilmeal are especially valuable it this time. A bran mash fed as a warm gruel is excellent to cool out the cow's system. It is important to have the bowels in a laxative condiion at calving time. The cow should get plenty of exercise, and water not :00 cold. After calving she should not be crowded with feed, two weeks should pass before she is on full feed. If cared 'or in this way the calf will be strong ind healthy, and the cow will be eady to do a big year's work.

FURN SEPARATORS TOO SLOW

arge Majority of Operators Lose From Seven to Twelve Pounds of Butter From Each Cow.

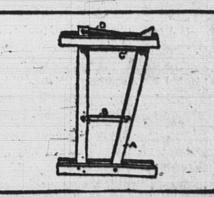

Extensive investigations conducted by Purdue experiment station and others show that 19 out of 20 separator operators turn their machines too slow and that every time they do they lost from 7 to 12 pounds of butter per cow per year. This serious loss many times spells the difference between success and failure in dairying.

Watch Wasn't Necessary. The colonel of a certain regiment in Kitchener's army is a great stickler for obedience, instant and complete. "Smith," he said to his orderly re cently, "I want you to ride down to the railway station and get me the correct time." Smith shuffled his feet and fiddled with his fingers. "Well, man," roared the officer

irately, "why don't you do as you are told?" "Please, sir," replied the orderly meekly, "I haven't a watch."

"A watch-a watch!" snapped the colonel. "What d'ye want a watch for? Just write it down on a bit of paper.'

"How do you manage to drive your cab at night?" the officer asked. "It's like this," he replied. "If we hear a smash we know we have hit something, and if we don't we know it's all right." He was remanded to Scotland Yard for further examination.

Three Hundred Million Bushel Grop in 1915

Farmers pay for their land with one year's crop and prosperity was never so great.

Regarding Western Canada as a grain producer, a prominent business man says: "Canada's position today is sounder than ever. There is more wheat, more oats, more grain for feed, 20% more cattle than last year and more hogs. The war market in Europe needs our surplus. As for the wheat grop, it is marvelous and a monument of strength for business confidence to build upon, exceeding the most optimistic predictions."

Wheat averaged in 1915 over 25 bushels per acre Oats averaged in 1915 over 45 bushels per acre Barley averaged in 1915 over 40 bushels per acre

Prices are high, markets convenient, excellent land, low in price either improved or otherwise, ranging from $12 to $30 per acre. Free homestead lands are plentiful and not far from railway lines and convenient to good schools and churches. The climate is healthful.

There is no war tax on land, nor is there any conscription. For complete infination as to best locations for settlement, reduced railroad rates and descriptive illustrate pamphlet, address Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa, or
