Dexter Wants Electric Road.

Dexter Leader: The sentiment in favor of having the D. J. & C. electric railway construct a branch line in to this village, which has recently been revived, crystallized in a public meeting at the council room Monday evening. About fifty were present and the spirit of the meeting was such as to leave no doubt but that every effort will be made to secure the road.
Daniel E. Hoey was elected chairman and Jas. J. Page secretary of the meeting. The situation was thoroughly discussed, and as a result a committee consisting of Dr. Crumrine, Thos. Birkett, John Morrison, D. E. Hoey, R. P. Copeland, M. S. Cook, H. H. Peters, A. D. Miles and E. Jedele was chosen to confer with the officials of the D. J. & C. Company and ascertain if it will be possible, and under what conditions we can secure the road.

Celebrated Anniversary Day.

Another of the important events connected with the Old Peoples' Home located in Chelsea has come and gone, and it was considered the best ever. The event was the anniversary of the organization of the Home. A large number of those interested in the Home from various parts of the Detroit conference were in attendance.

The ample dinner was prepared and served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Chelsea M. E. church. The spacious dining room was completely filled with tables. About two hundred sat down and partook of the bounteous dinner.
Hon. Janus E. Beal, of Ann Arbor, acted as toastmaster and bubbled over with humor and witty stories, and the principal address was delivered by Rev. A. W. Stalker, of Ann Arbor. Other speakers were Drs. Jacklin, Ramsdell, Leeson and Baldwin and Rev. Oliver. Mrs. Hanly, of Bad Axe, who has been a donor to the amount of $8,000, was present and was roundly applauded.

Godfrey Kempf.

Godfrey Kempf, son of Jacob and Katherine (Mayer) Kempf, was born in Berks county, Pennsylvania, June 18, 1837, and died at the National Soldiers' Home at Danville, Illinois, Monday, June 19, 1916.

His parents settled in Ann Arbor in 1838. When a young man he learned the tinsmiths trade which he followed for many years. For a few years he was engaged in the hardware business at Unadilla, and removed from there to Chelsea in 1880, which has been the family home since that time. In June, 1884, Mr. Kempf enlisted in Co. A, 4th Michigan Volunteer Infantry at Monroe, and received an honorable discharge from the army in June, 1865.

For a number of years Mr. Kempf was employed in the Pullman car shops at Pullman, Illinois, and when his health failed a few years ago he went to the National home where he died.

He was united in marriage in Pennsylvania, March 6, 1864, with Miss Malinda Kistler. To this union five children were born, two of whom are living. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Chas. S. Winaas, wife of the American consul at Nuremberg, Bavaria, and Miss Flora Kempf of this place, two grandsons, one granddaughter, one brother, Hon. Chas. H. Kempf, of Detroit, and a number of nephews and nieces.

The remains reached here Wednesday morning and the funeral was held from the family home at 9:30 o'clock this morning, Rev. G. H. Whitney officiating. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery.

Names Road Bee Days.

Thursday and Friday, June 29 and 30, have been designated as "Road Bee Days" by Governor Ferris. In a proclamation he calls upon all residents of the state, who can, to help fix the roads in their immediate vicinity.

"During the past year road building sentiment in Michigan has grown rapidly," says the proclamation. "The legislature of 1915 passed some of the most progressive highway laws ever enacted in Michigan. These were followed by the largest cash appropriations ever made for state road purposes."

"In the aggregate the road taxes assessed last fall by the state, counties and townships, amounted to $9,164,000. Personal donations were made which would make a total expended on the highways of the state last year approximately $10,000,000."

"The mileage of state reward roads, if connected, would make more than three continuous lines across the state from the Ohio line to Mackinaw."
"But notwithstanding this apparent satisfactory progress there are thousands of miles of neighborhood roads which need attention constantly throughout the season. Good churches and good rural schools are impossible without good roads and all call for a live community interest and a well-organized system of maintenance."

Dr. H. J. Fulford has moved to offices on the second floor, Freeman block. 47

KILLED ON MICHIGAN CENTRAL RAILROAD

The Body of George Fitzgibbons of Detroit was Discovered Early Saturday Morning.

Engineer Finch of the second section of the east bound "horse special" on the Michigan Central, discovered the dismembered body of a man on the railway right-of-way, on what is known to railroad men as Chelsea hill, between the Hoppe and Notten crossings, at about 4:30 o'clock Saturday morning. The train was stopped and a man was left in charge of the body, who remained there until the officials from Chelsea arrived on the scene. Upon arriving in Chelsea the train crew reported their discovery to the railway officials. The crew of the first section of the "horse special" has also made a partial report of the discovery of the body.

Night telegraph operator, Arthur Collins, reported the results of the discovery to Justice Witherell, who accompanied by Undertaker Staffan, went to the scene of the accident and the body was brought here.

There was no means of identification on the body, except the name of the tailor who made the suit worn by the dead man. Mr. Witherell called the tailor and through him the body was identified as George Fitzgibbons, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fitzgibbons, of Dix avenue, Detroit. It is thought that the man had fallen some time during Friday night from a west bound train and was run over by it, as a portion of the body laid between the double tracks, and the remainder on the outside of the track. Mr. Witherell decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The parents sent an undertaker here and the body was taken to their home Saturday night. The young man was about 25 years old, and the funeral was held Tuesday morning.

The Story of a Big Man in a Big Town

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

SYNOPSIS.

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertrees, old town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. At the Sheridan housewarming banquet Sheridan spreads himself. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Mary shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough. In spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone.

For all his restless energy and confidence, Sheridan is about to receive a great blow. Bibbs shows to better advantage in the crisis than you'd believe he could. It is a question, now, whether the old man will recognize his "weak" son's power and give him something better to do than working in the factory.

He expanded this theme once more; and thus he continued to entertain the stranger throughout the long drive. Darkness had fallen before they reached the city on their return, and it was after five when Sheridan allowed Herr Farve to descend at the door of his hotel, where boys were shrieking extra editions of the evening paper.

"Now, good night, Mr. Farve," said Sheridan, leaning from the car to shake hands with his guest. "Don't forget I'm going to come around and take you up to—Go on away, boy!"

A newsboy had thrust himself almost between them, yelling, "Extra! Second Extra. Extra, all about the horrible accident. Extra!"

"Get out!" laughed Sheridan. "Who wants to read about accidents? Get out!"

The boy moved away philosophically. "Extra! Extra!" he shrieked. "Three men killed! Extra! Millionaire killed! Two other men killed! Extra! Extra!"

"Don't forget, Mr. Farve," Sheridan completed his interrupted farewells. "I'll come by to take you up to our house for dinner. I'll be here for you about half-past five tomorrow afternoon. Hope you enjoyed the drive as much as I have. Good night—good night!" He leaned back, speaking to the chauffeur. "Now you can take me around to the Central City barber shop, boy. I want to get a shave 'fore I go up home."

"Extra! Extra!" screamed the newsboys, zigzagging among the crowds like bats in the dusk. "Extra! All about the horrible accident! Extra!" It struck Sheridan that the papers sent out too many "extras"; they printed "extras" for all sorts of petty crimes and casualties. It was a mistake, he decided, critically. Crying "Wolf!" too often wouldn't sell the goods; it was bad business. The papers would "make more in the long run," he was sure, if they published an "extra"

"Now Good Night, Mr. Farve!"

only when something of real importance happened. "Extra! All about the horrible accident! Extra!" a boy squeaked under his nose, as he descended from the car. "Go on away!" said Sheridan gruffly, though he smiled. He liked to see the youngsters working so noisily to get on in the world.

But as he crossed the pavement to the brilliant glass doors of the barber shop, a second newsboy grasped the arm of the one who had thus cried his wares.

"Say, Yallern," said this second, hoarse with awe, "n't chew know who that is?"

"Who?"

"It's Sheridan!"

"Jeest!" cried the first, staring insanely.

At about the same hour, four times a week—Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday—Sheridan stopped at this shop to be shaved by the head barber. The barbers were negroes, he was their great man, and it was their habit to give him a "reception," his entrance being always the signal for a flurry of jocular hospitality, followed by general excesses of briskness and gaiety. But it was not so this evening.

The shop was crowded. Copies of the "extra" were being read by men waiting and by men in the latter stages of treatment. "Extras" lay upon vacant seats and showed from the pockets of hanging coats.

There was a loud chatter between the practitioners and their recumbent patients, a vocal charivari which stopped abruptly as Sheridan opened the door. His name seemed to rize in the air like the last sputtering of a firework; the barbers stopped shaving and clipping; lathered men turned their prostrate heads to stare, and there was a moment of amazing silence in the shop.

The head barber, nearest the door, stood like a barber in a tableau. His left hand held stretched between thumb and forefinger an elastic section of his helpless customer's cheek, while his right hand hung poised above it, the razor motionless. And then, roused from trance by the door's closing, he accepted the fact of Sheridan's presence. The barber remembered that there are no circumstances in life—or just after it—under which a man does not need to be shaved.

He stepped forward, profoundly grave. "I be through with this man in the chair one minute, Mist' Sheridan," he said, in a hushed voice. "Yessuh." And of a solemn negro youth who stood by, gazing stupidly, "You goin' resign?" he demanded in a fierce undertone. "You goin' take Mist' Sheridan's coat?" He sent an angry look round the shop, and the barbers, taking his meaning, averted their eyes and fell to work, the murmur of subdued conversation buzzing from chair to chair.

"You sit down one minute, Mist' Sheridan," said the head barber gently. "I fix nice chair fo' you to wait in."

"Never mind," said Sheridan. "Go on get through with your man."

"Yessuh." And he went quickly back to his chair on tiptoe, followed by Sheridan's puzzled gaze. Something had gone wrong in the shop, evidently. Sheridan did not know what to make of it. Ordinarily he would have shouted a hilarious demand for the meaning of the mystery, but an inexplicable silence had been imposed upon him by the hush that fell upon his entrance and by the odd look every man in the shop had bent upon him.

Vaguely disquieted, he walked to one of the seats in the rear of the shop and looked down the two lines of barbers, catching quickly shifted, furtive glances here and there. He made this brief survey after wondering if one of the barbers had died suddenly, that day, or the night before; but there was no vacancy in either line.

The seat next to his was unoccupied, but someone had left a copy of the "extra" there, and, frowning, he picked it up and glanced at it. The first of the swollen display lines had little meaning to him:

Fatally faulty. New process roof collapses hurling capitalist to death with inventor. Seven escape when crash comes. Death claims—

Thus far had he read when a thin hand fell upon the paper, covering the print from his eyes, and, looking up, he saw Bibbs standing before him, pale and gentle, immeasurably compassionate.

"I've come for you, father," said Bibbs. "Here's the boy with your coat and hat. Put them on and come home."

And even then Sheridan did not understand. So secure was he in the strength and bigness of everything that was his, he did not know what calamity had befallen him. But he was frightened.

Without a word, he followed Bibbs heavily out through the still shop, but as they reached the pavement he stopped short and, grasping his son's sleeve with shaking fingers, swung him round so that they stood face to face.

"What—what—" His mouth could not do him the service he asked of it, he was so frightened. "Extra!" screamed a newsboy straight in his face. "Young North side millionaire instantly killed! Extra!"

"Not—Jim!" said Sheridan.

Bibbs caught his father's hand in his own.

"And you come to tell me that?" Sheridan did not know what he said. But in those first words and in the first anguish of the big, stricken face Bibbs understood the unuttered cry of accusation.

"Why wasn't it you?"

CHAPTER XI.

Standing in the black group under gaunt trees at the cemetery, three days later, Bibbs unwillingly let an old, old thought become definite in his mind: the sickly brother had buried the strong brother, and Bibbs wondered how many million times that had happened since men first made a word to name the sons of one mother. Almost literally he had buried his strong brother, for Sheridan had gone to pieces when he saw his dead son. He had nothing to help him meet the shock, neither definite religion nor "philosophy" definite or indefinite. He could only beat his forehead and beg, over and over, to be killed with an ax, while his wife was helpless except to entreat him not to "take on," herself adding a continuous lamentation. Edith, weeping, made truce with

"Not Jim!" Said Sheridan.

Sibyl and saw to it that the mourning garments were beyond criticism. Roscoe was dazed, and he shirked, justifying himself curiously by saying he "never had any experience in such matters." So it was Bibbs, the shy outsider, who became, during that dreadful little time, the master of the house; for as strange a thing as that, sometimes, may be the result of a death.

"Dust to dust," said the minister, under the gaunt trees; and at that Sheridan shook convulsively from head to foot. All of the black group shivered except Bibbs. He had been close upon dust himself for a long, long time, and the machine shop, if he had to go back to it, would probably bring him closer still. To Bibbs' knowledge, no one and nothing had ever prevented his father from carrying through his plans. He had the gift of terrible persistence, and with unfeigned confidence that his way was the only way, he would hold to that way of "making a man" of Bibbs, who understood very well, in his passive and impersonal fashion, that it was a way which might make, not a man, but dust of him. But he had no shudder for the thought.

The truth about Bibbs was in the poem which Edith had adopted. But he had not hidden his feelings about his father where they could not be found. He was strange to his father, but his father was not strange to him. He knew that Sheridan's plans were conceived in the stubborn belief that they would bring about a good thing for Bibbs himself; and whatever the result was to be, the son had no bitterness. Far otherwise, for as he looked at the big, woeful figure, shaking and tortured, an almost unbearable pity laid hands upon Bibbs' throat. Roscoe stood blinking, his lip quivering; Edith wept audibly; Mrs. Sheridan leaned in half collapse against her husband; but Bibbs knew that his father was the one who cared.

It was over. Men in overalls stepped forward with their shovels, and Bibbs nodded quickly to Roscoe, making a slight gesture toward the line of waiting carriages. Bibbs gazed steadily at the workmen; he knew that his father kept looking back as he went toward the carriage, and that was a thing he did not want to see.

After a little while, "It's too bad!" he half whispered, his lips forming the words—and his meaning was that it was too bad that the strong brother had been the one to go. For this was his last thought before he walked to the coupe and saw Mary Vertrees standing all alone on the other side of the drive.

She had just emerged from a grove of leafless trees that grew on a slope where the tombs were many. Against such a background Bibbs was not incongruous, with his figure, in black, so long and slender, and his face so long and thin and white; nor was the undertaker's coupe out of keeping, with the shabby driver dozing on the box and the shaggy horses standing patiently in attitudes without hope and without regret. But for Mary Vertrees, here was a grotesque setting—she was a vivid, living creature of a beautiful world. And a graveyard is not the place for people to look charming.

She also looked startled and confused, but not more startled and confused than Bibbs. All his life Bibbs had kept himself to himself—he was but a shy onlooker in the world. Nevertheless, the startled gaze he bent upon the unexpected lady before him had caused other than his shyness and her unexpectedness. For Mary Vertrees had been a shining figure in the view of this humble and elusive outsider, and spectators sometimes find their hearts beating faster than those of the actors in the spectacle. Thus with Bibbs now. He started and stared; he lifted his hat with incredible awkwardness, his fingers fumbling at his forehead before they found the brim.

"Mr. Sheridan," said Mary, "I'm afraid you'll have to take me home with you. I—" She stopped, not lacking a momentary awkwardness of her own.

"Why—why—yes," Bibbs stammered. "I'll—I'll be de— Won't you get in?"

In that manner and in that place they exchanged their first words. Then

He Started and Stared.

Mary, without more ado, got into the coupe, and Bibbs followed, closing the door.

"You're very kind," she said, somewhat breathlessly. "I should have had to walk, and it's beginning to get dark. It's three miles, I think."

"Yes," said Bibbs. "It—it is beginning to get dark. I—I noticed that."

"I ought to tell you—I—" Mary began, confusedly. She bit her lip, silent a moment, then spoke with composure. "It must seem odd, my—"

"No, no," Bibbs protested, earnestly. "Not in the least."

"It does, though," said Mary. "I had not intended to come to the cemetery, Mr. Sheridan, but one of the men in charge at the house came and whispered to me that the family wished me to—I think your sister sent him. So I came. But when we reached here I—oh, I felt that perhaps I—"

Bibbs nodded gravely. "Yes, yes," he murmured.

"I got out on the opposite side of the carriage," she continued. "I mean opposite from—where all of you were. And I wandered off over in the other direction; and I didn't realize how little time—it takes. From where I was I couldn't see the carriages leaving—at least I didn't notice them. So when I got back, just now, you were the only one here. I didn't know the other people in the carriage I came in, and of course they didn't think to wait for me. That's why—"

"Yes," said Bibbs, "I—" And that seemed all he had to say just then.

Mary looked out through the dusty window. "I think we'd better be going home, if you please," she said. She gave him a quick little glance. "I think you must be very tired. Mr.

Sheridan; and I know you have reason to be," she said gently. "If you'll let me, I'll—" And without explaining her purpose she opened the door on the side of the coupe and leaned out.

Bibbs stared in blank perplexity, not knowing what she meant to do. "Driver!" she called, in her clear voice, loudly. "Driver! We'd like to start, please. Driver! Stop at the house just north of Mr. Sheridan's, please." The wheels began to move, and she leaned back beside Bibbs once more. "I noticed that he was asleep when we got in," she said. "I suppose they have a great deal of night work."

Bibbs drew a long breath and waited till he could command his voice. "I've never been able to apologize quickly," he said, with his accustomed slowness, "because if I try to I stammer. My brother Roscoe whipped me once, when we were boys, for stepping on his slate pencil. It took me so long to tell him it was an accident, he finished before I did."

Mary Vertrees had never heard anything quite like the drawing, gentle voice or the odd implication that his not noticing the motionless state of their vehicle was an "accident." At once she discovered that he was unlike any of her cursory and vague imaginings of him. And suddenly she had a glimpse of Bibbs' life and into his life. She had a queer feeling, new to her experience, of knowing him instantly. It startled her a little; she did not realize, however, that she had made no response to his apology, and they passed out of the cemetery gates, neither having spoken again.

Bibbs was so content with the silence he did not know that it was silence. The dusk, gathering in their small inclosure, was filled with a rich presence for him; and presently it was so dark that neither of the two could see the other, nor did even their garments touch. But neither had any sense of being alone. The wheels creaked steadily, rumbling presently on paved streets; there were the sounds, as from a distance, of the plod-plod of the horses. Oblongs of light came leaping into the coupe, and passed, leaving greater darkness. And yet neither of these two last attendants at Jim Sheridan's funeral broke the silence.

It was Mary who perceived the strangeness of it—too late. Abruptly she realized that for an indefinite interval she had been thinking of her companion and not talking to him. "Mr. Sheridan," she began, not knowing what she was going to say, but impelled to say anything, as she realized the queerness of this drive—"Mr. Sheridan, I—"

The coupe stopped. "You, Joe!" said the driver, reproachfully, and climbed down and opened the door.

"What's the trouble?" Bibbs inquired.

"Lady said stop at first house north of Mr. Sheridan's, sir."

Mary was incredulous; she felt that it couldn't be true and that it mustn't be true that they had driven all the way without speaking.

Bibbs descended to the curb. "Why, yes," he said. "You seem to be right." And while he stood staring at the dimly illuminated front windows of Mr. Vertrees' house Mary got out, unassisted.

"Let me help you," said Bibbs, stepping toward her mechanically; and she was several feet from the coupe when he spoke.

"Oh, no," she murmured. "I think I can—" She meant that she could get out of the coupe without help, but, perceiving that she had already accomplished this feat, she decided not to complete the sentence.

"You, Joe!" cried the driver, angrily, climbing to get back. And he rumbled away at his team's best pace—a snail's.

"Thank you for bringing me home, Mr. Sheridan," said Mary, stiffly. She did not offer her hand. "Good night."

"Good night," Bibbs said in response, and, turning with her, walked beside her to the door. Mary made that a short walk; she almost ran. Realization of the queerness of their drive was growing upon her, beginning to shock her; she stepped aside from the light that fell through the glass panels of the door and withheld her hand as it touched the old-fashioned bell handle.

"I'm quite safe, thank you," she said, with a little emphasis. "Good night."

"Good night," said Bibbs, and went obediently. When he reached the street he looked back, but she had vanished within the house.

Moving slowly away, he caromed against two people who were turning out from the pavement to cross the street. They were Roscoe and his wife.

"Where are your eyes, Bibbs?" demanded Roscoe. "Sleep-walking, as usual?"

But Sibyl took the wanderer by the arm. "Come over to our house for a little while, Bibbs," she urged. "I want to—"

"No, I'd better—" "Yes, I want you to. Your father's gone to bed, and they're all quiet over there—all worn out. Just come for a minute."

He yielded, and when they were in the house she repeated herself with real feeling: "All worn out!" Well, if anybody is, you are, Bibbs! And I don't wonder; you've done every bit of the work of it. You mustn't get down sick again. I'm going to make you take a little brandy."

He let her have her own way, following her into the dining room, and was grateful when she brought him a tiny glass filled from one of the decanters on the sideboard. Roscoe gloomily poured for himself a much heavier libation in a larger glass; and the two men sat, while Sibyl leaned against the sideboard, reviewing the episodes of the day and recalling the names of the donors of flowers and wreaths. She pressed Bibbs to remain longer when he rose to go, and then, as he persisted, she went with him to the front door. He opened it, and she said:

"Bibbs, you were coming out of the Vertrees' house when we met you. How did you happen to be there?" "I had only been to the door," he said. "Good night, Sibyl."

"Wait," she insisted. "We saw you coming out."

"I wasn't," he explained. "I'd just brought Miss Vertrees home."

"What?" she cried.

"Yes," he said, and stepped out upon the porch. "That was it. Good night, Sibyl."

"Wait!" she said, following him across the threshold. "How did that happen? I thought you were going to

"My God!" He Cried, "What's That?" She paused, but moved nearer him insistently.

"I did wait. Miss Vertrees was there," he said, reluctantly. "She had walked away for a while and didn't notice that the carriages were leaving. When she came back the coupe waiting for me was the only one left."

Sibyl regarded him with dilating eyes. She spoke with a slow breathlessness. "And she drove home from Jim's funeral—with you!"

Without warning she burst into laughter, clapped her hand ineffectually over her mouth, and ran back uproariously into the house, hurling the door shut behind her.

CHAPTER XII.

Bibbs went home pondering. He did not understand why Sibyl had laughed. At home, uncles, aunts and cousins from out of town were wandering about the house, several mournfully admiring the "Bay of Naples," and others occupied with the Moor and the plumb line, while they waited for trains. Edith and her mother had retired to some upper fastness, but Bibbs interviewed Jackson and had the various groups of relatives summoned to the dining room for food. One great-uncle, old Gideon Sheridan from Boonville, could not be found, and Bibbs went in search of him. He ransacked the house, discovering the missing antique at last by accident. Passing his father's closed door on tiptoe, Bibbs heard a murmured sound, and paused to listen. The sound proved to be a quivering and rickety voice, monotonously bleating:

"The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away! We got to remember that; we got to remember that! I'm a-gittin' along, James; I'm a-gittin' along, and I've seen a many of 'em go—two daughters and a son the Lord gave me, and he has taken all away. For the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away! Remember the words of Biddad the Shubite, James. Biddad the Shubite says, 'He shall have neither son nor nephew among his people, nor any remaining in his dwellings.' Biddad the Shubite—"

Bibbs opened the door softly. His father was lying upon the bed, in his underclothes, face downward, and Uncle Gideon sat near by, swinging backward and forward in a rocking chair, stroking his long, white beard and gazing at the ceiling as he talked. Bibbs beckoned him urgently, but Uncle Gideon paid no attention.

"Biddad the Shubite spake and he says, 'If thy children have sinned against him and he have cast them away—'"

There was a muffled explosion beneath the floor, and the windows rattled. The figure lying face downward on the bed did not move, but Uncle Gideon leaped from his chair. "My God!" he cried. "What's that?"

Did Mary Vertrees wait at the cemetery until Bibbs was ready to go just because she wanted to make his acquaintance? Jim is dead, you know, and the aristocrats must have money.

Keep Them Well

MICHIGAN MEN ARE AWAKE AND READY

PROMPTLY TAKE THE NEW OATH TO SERVE AT HOME OR ABROAD WHEN NEEDED.

BECOME THE NATIONAL GUARD

Ready for Their Country's Service When The Bugle Call For War Is Sounded in the Land.

Detroit—Detroit officers of the Thirty-first infantry have taken new oaths swearing allegiance to the country and state, promising to support and defend the constitution of the United States and the state of Michigan against all enemies, foreign or domestic, that they will obey all orders of the president of the United States and the governor of Michigan; that they will well and faithfully discharge the duties of their office in the national guard of the United States and of the state of Michigan.

This is the new oath every officer must take before a notary public before he can leave his home station. This is the result of the new military bill, changing the name of the national guard in the different states to the National Guard of the United States, and giving the president power to send the troops any place he desires, including a foreign country.

Inside of 12 hours after receiving the mobilization order, which came at 1:40 a. m., 38 officers and 862 men of Detroit troops had answered the call, according to Col. Walter D. Barlow. This is held to be a remarkable record by local officers.

The National Guardsmen will be compelled to await the regular army officers which will be sent from the department commander's headquarters at Chicago to muster in the guardsmen. As the officers come from the federal government all the men must be checked up by the regular army.

The order contemplates the moving of the guard in the strength which it now is recruited, which is peace strength, and begin immediate recruitment to bring the companies to war strength. In Michigan this means that 2,197 men will be needed to bring the brigade to war strength. Each battery requires 171 men, infantry 120 and cavalry 86.

"The Michigan National Guard is probably as well prepared, if not better than any other Guard in the country," said Col. Bersey Sunday night. There is every indication that the Michigan national guard, in answer to the call of President Wilson, will mobilize at Grayling on Saturday with a full war strength of 5,700 men. With but 3,500 when the mobilization call was sent out, recruits are coming in rapidly and the full quota demanded will be on hand when the camp is opened. Reports reaching state military headquarters from almost every home station in the state indicate that the full complement for all companies, troops and batteries will be on hand long before Saturday.

Each private in the 31st who serves with his regiment must carry from 60 to 65 pounds of equipment. In addition to his rifle this includes: Shelter tent, blankets, poncho, extra clothes, shells, three days' rations, knife, fork, cup, plate and spoon.

MAKES HEALTHY SHOWING

P. M. R. R. Does $19,766,515 Business Since July 1, 1915, and June 7.

Detroit—The estimated revenue of the Pere Marquette railroad is showing healthy gains in all departments, according to the weekly report of the receivers. From July 1, 1915, to and including June 7, 1916, the estimated freight revenue was $14,122,835, a gain of $2,225,580 over the same period of 1914-15. The estimated passenger revenue for the same time was $3,836,155, a gain of $154,492. The total estimated revenue for the period is $19,766,515, an increase of $2,867,497.

PLAINLY ANSWERS CARRANZA'S INSULT

PRESIDENT WILSON COMES BACK FORCEFULLY AND TELLS WHAT'S COMING.

TROOPS WILL STAY IN MEXICO

The Def is the Opening for Grim Visaged War If Carranza and His "Greasers" Desire It.

Washington—The note to Carranza in reply to his demand that U. S. troops be withdrawn from Mexico is long and bravely worded. Following quotations from it clearly show its tenor:

"Your note threatening war unless United States troops were withdrawn is discourteous in tone and temper. Continuous bloodshed and disorder have marked the progress of the Mexican revolution."

"Lives of Americans and other aliens have been sacrificed."

"Bandits have been allowed to roam at will without effective attempt at punishment."

"You are not sincerely trying to catch Villa."

"Outrage after outrage, atrocity after atrocity, have been recorded."

"Our frontier has been thrown into turmoil by sudden and frequent incursions into American territory, depredations and murders."

"Uncivilized acts of mutilation were perpetrated."

"Since attacks on American towns the bandit leaders have been enjoying the liberty of Mexican towns."

"Some of their leaders have even received the protection, encouragement and aid of the Carranza government."

"We have repeatedly asked the de facto government to safeguard the lives and home of American citizens."

"The United States government has given every encouragement to the pacification of Mexico."

"The United States denies your charge that it seeks territorial aggrandizement."

"American troops will remain in Mexico until the de facto government arrests and punishes the bandits."

RAILROADS MAKE BILLION

Operating Revenues for Ten Months Amounted to $2,797,817,962.

Washington—More than $1,000,000,000 in operating income will be earned by the railroads of the United States for the year ending this month. An interstate commerce commission report showed that during the ten months ending with April operating revenues of the roads amounted to $2,797,817,962, indicating a total of approximately $3,360,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year, and operating expenses were $1,827,816,880, indicating a total of about $2,208,000,000 for the year.

Net revenue from railway operations during the ten months was $970,001,082, but deductions for tax accruals and uncollectable revenues brought the recorded operating income to $848,542,135.

Operating income per mile of road was $3,703 for the ten months, compared with $2,600 in the same period last year.

In the eastern district the operating income per mile was $6,335, compared with $4,019 last year's period; in the southern district $2,817, compared with $1,876, and in the western district $2,783, compared with $2,180.

Few men can stand prosperity if it comes in a lump.

Censored. "Our candidate," said the campaign orator, "stands squarely on his record. His life is an open book."

"How do you know he hasn't torn out some of the pages?" queried a voice from the rear of the hall.

Her Last Cook. Mistress—My last cook shed tears on the slightest provocation. Maid—Did she spot it, mum?

Sober second thoughts never come to some men until they find themselves in jail.

Bumper Grain Crops

Good Markets—High Prices

Prizes Awarded to Western Canada for Wheat, Oats, Barley, Alfalfa and Grasses

The winnings of Western Canada at the Soil Products Exposition at Denver were easily made. The list comprised Wheat, Oats, Barley and Grasses, the most important being the prizes for Wheat and Oats and sweep stake on Alfalfa.

No less important than the splendid quality of Western Canada's wheat and other grains is the excellence of the cattle feed and fattened on the grasses of that country. A recent shipment of cattle to Chicago topped the market in that city for quality and price.

Western Canada produced in 1915 one-third as much wheat as all of the United States, or over 300,000,000 bushels.

Canada in proportion to population has a greater exportable surplus of wheat this year than any country in the world, and at present prices you can figure out the revenue for the producer. In Western Canada you will find good markets, splendid schools, exceptional social conditions, perfect climate and other great attractions. There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

LEGALIZING VIOLENCE

The petitions now being circulated by organized labor asking that the constitution of the state be amended so as to take from the courts the power to issue injunctions in labor disputes is one of the most arbitrary and revolutionary moves ever made in a democratic country in time of peace. The suspension of the writ of habeas corpus would be fraught with no more danger to the rights of citizens than the depriving of certain classes of our people of the right to seek this remedy to prevent the destruction of their property and the ruin of their business. It is the most radical kind of class legislation because it seeks to deliver up one class of our citizens, bound and helpless, to the tender mercies of another class.

We might look upon this move with more or less complacency if the evil was to affect only the class at which it is aimed, but the evil effects from such legislation will touch every citizen of the state. We cannot isolate such a vicious principle. Sooner or later the whole people, who pay all the bills in the end, will taste the bitter fruit, and it is better that they should realize this before putting their hands to a petition which is bound to handicap their commercial activities, work disaster to their industries and open the door to a whole flood of vicious legislation. If the fundamental law of the state is to be changed so as to deprive the manufacturer of the power to protect his property by injunction it will pave the way for an orgy of disorder and destruction against which the local authorities will be powerless.

Organized labor may deny that it intends either disorder or destruction, but the very fact that it is asking that the legal restraints upon such action be removed proves the case against it. If a business man's property is threatened with destruction at the hands of disgruntled employees or anyone else is he not entitled to the entire force of the commonwealth to protect it? If organized labor does not intend to coerce the employer by threatening the destruction of his property why is it making such strenuous efforts to deprive him of the legal protection which he has had since the foundation of the republic? The motive behind all this activity is too transparent to deceive any citizen who will acquaint himself with the facts.

It is time that the people realized that they have to pay, in the final accounting, for all labor disputes, strikes, lockouts and boycotts. This fact is undeniable. Have the people of any city in this state so many factories that they can afford to open the doors to fire and destruction? Are we not all vitally interested in the payrolls of our factories? Are we not all affected adversely when those payrolls dwindle or disappear? Can we afford to place our factories at the mercy of those who respect not the personal or property rights of another? The vast majority of our workingmen are orderly and law-abiding citizens, but there are, unfortunately, too many to whom the destruction of property appeals as the best arguments which can be used in the settlement of labor disputes. Before our citizens give encouragement to this movement they should consider the patent fact that organized labor would not ask for this power if it did not intend to use it.

Marble Pudding

Steamed puddings will not be heavy if made with KC Baking Powder and cooked slowly to give the pudding time to rise before the dough is cooked through. Have a low blaze under the water for at least the first fifteen minutes.

K C Marble Pudding

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

2 cups sifted pastry flour; 2 level teaspoonsful K C Baking Powder; 1/2 teaspoonful cinnamon; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; yolks of 2 eggs, beaten light; 1 cup sugar; 1/4 tablespoonful melted butter; 1 cup cold water; whites of 2 eggs, beaten dry; 1/4 ounces melted chocolate.

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. To the yolks add the sugar, butter and water, and stir into the dry ingredients. Add the whites of the eggs. Divide the mixture into two parts and add the chocolate to one part. Dispose the two parts in a buttered mold to give a marbled appearance. Steam forty-five minutes.

Vanilla Sauce

Boil 2 cups of sugar and a cup of water six minutes; add 2 tablespoonsful of butter and a teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

The K C Cook's Book containing this and 90 other delicious, successful, recipes sent free upon receipt of the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K C Baking Powder. Write your name and address plainly. Jacques Mig. Co., Chicago.

68 YEARS AGO

Famous in the Early 30's and 40's—Still At It.

Many Michigan people have already heard of the discovery by that English Horse-Farrier of the peculiar liniment which made him famous back in the early 30's and 40's all along the Hudson River Valley. That it has served the American public well, is known by the fact that more and more of it has been used since 1846. Here is one of thousands of similar cases. Mr. O. Wilkie, of Syracuse, N. Y., says: "Hanford's Balm of Myrra was the only remedy I used when my arm was hurt. I recommend it for all cuts and bruises."

Molded Hose

I have just received direct from the factory a large quantity of MOLDED HOSE, both in half and three-quarter inch. By taking the amount I did, I bought it at a price that's right, and will sell it the same. If in need of any come in and inspect this MOLDED HOSE. This Hose is strictly guaranteed to me and you can return it a year from the time you buy it if you discover anything wrong. Where else can you find a hose they'll do that with?

I am still in the Plumbing and Heating game, and can say that my employee, Mr. Snyder, and myself are both practical men and guarantee satisfaction on this kind of work.

Now is the time of year to look after your Heating System. Jerk out your old smoky, dirty, hot air furnace and let us install you a nice little Vapor or Hot Water system. It doesn't take up your whole cellar, and I dare say you will save 40 per cent on fuel. Ask others that have them. Neither will you have your house full of smoke or dust.

LOCAL ITEMS.

George Haist has purchased a Studebaker touring car.

Wm. Fahrner has purchased an interest in the firm of John Farrell & Co.

Mrs. E. R. Dancer entertained a number of ladies at her home on South street Friday evening.

The Chelsea Screw Co. has this week installed three new automatic screw machines to their equipment.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Lewis and family have moved from their home in Jackson to the Lovejoy cottage at Cavanaugh Lake.

Rev. G. Eisen has purchased the Mast residence on Washington street, and he will move from Rogers Corners, where he has been pastor of St. John's church for a number of years.

L. H. Ward was in Ann Arbor Tuesday evening, where he visited his wife who recently underwent an operation at the homeopathic hospital. Mrs. Ward is fast recovering her former health.

The Michigan Central railroad has had the coal shed that stood on the north side of track in front of the office building of the Lewis Spring & Axle Co. moved to the east of the passenger house.

A number of auto loads of boomers from Gregory were in Chelsea this morning, advertising the Fourth of July celebration which our neighbor is making preparations to hold. The Unadilla band was with them and furnished the music.

Miss Norma Laubengayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Laubengayer of Ontario, Cal., former residents of Sylvan, was united in marriage to John Philip Scherb, Wednesday, June 7th. Miss Laubengayer was the recipient of a kitchen shower on Monday evening, June 5th.

William Merritt Osband, aged 79, of Ypsilanti, widely known over the state as an educator and journalist, died of apoplexy at the U. of M. hospital Sunday, where he has been the last seven weeks on account of a broken hip. Mr. Osband had charge of the Chelsea schools in 1870-71.

D. B. Cooley, who has been the general superintendent of the Hollier Eight plant since it started here, severed his connection with the factory Saturday, and has returned to his home in Detroit. Samuel King has been appointed to the position made vacant by the removal of Mr. Cooley.

Private Thomas H. Ewing, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ewing of Chelsea, was one of the injured when a band of Mexican bandits crossed the Rio Grande forty miles northeast of Laredo, Texas, last Thursday and attacked the American border patrol. A telegram to his parents states that his injuries are not serious.

W. L. Beeman and wife of Williamston, brother of Mrs. S. M. B. Fox, Mrs. Clara E. Bearse, sister, and Master Clayborne Bearse, of North Dakota, helped celebrate Mrs. Fox's eightieth birthday Sunday. Through the kindness of a friend in Rochester Mrs. Fox was enabled to present a box of candy to each member of the Old People's Home.

A very pleasant family reunion was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Steinbach of Lima, in honor of Miss Minnie Steinbach, of Los Angeles, Cal. Twenty-eight were present from Chelsea, Dexter, Ann Arbor, Detroit and Lima. An elaborate dinner was served. After dinner a picture of the company was taken, and visiting and music made a most enjoyable occasion.

Married, on Wednesday, June 21, 1916, Miss Vera Gage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gage, and Henry L. Heim, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Heim, at St. Mary's church, Jackson. Rev. Father Cullinane officiating. The couple were attended by Miss Bertha Merkel and James Heim. Mr. and Mrs. Heim will make their home on the Michael Merkel farm, which Mr. Heim recently purchased.

The following will be the program given by the Hollier Eight band at the open air concert, Thursday evening, June 29: March, "Old Timer," (Fred Jewell); grand overture, "Bridal Rose," (Keller Beha); overture, "North Pole," (Al Hayes); waltz, "Italian Melodies," (Tobanni); intermezzo, (J. W. Young); "Sailing Down Chesapeake Bay," (Botsford); march, "Together We will Stand," (Skaggs); and always a few popular numbers thrown in now and then.

The war spirit has struck Chelsea and two young men, Clayton Hesel-schwerdt and Frank Horton, have enlisted in the Signal Corps of the Michigan National Guard at Ypsilanti. P. D. Foster, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Hoppe, is an officer of the Signal Corps. Ralph Radeke, an employee of the Lewis Spring & Axle Co., and who resides with his wife and two small children in the McKune residence, corner Main and Summit streets, is a member of Co. R at Ann Arbor, and has reported for duty.

Married, at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, June 10, 1916, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Haas of Waterloo, Miss Olive K. Haas and C. Earl Beeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orson Beeman of Lyndon, Rev. T. W. Blackburn, pastor of the Waterloo U. B. church, officiating. The ceremony was witnessed by a number of the friends of the young couple. A wedding supper followed the congratulations. After a short wedding trip the young couple will be at home to their friends on the Beeman farm in Lyndon.

About seventy-five attended the fish supper, given by the Brotherhood of the Congregational church, at Cavanaugh Lake Tuesday.

Invitations are out announcing the marriage of Miss Ruth Cornelia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lewick of North Lake, and Reuben W. Sordt of Freedom, Saturday, June 24.

The Detroit Free Press of Sunday contained a portrait of Miss Millie Kannowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kannowski, formerly of Chelsea. Miss Kannowski was united in marriage to Erwin Michel, of Detroit, on Wednesday.

BREVITIES

PLYMOUTH—The Alter Motor Car Co. has decided to move its plant to Bay City.

STOCKBRIDGE—The third biennial reunion of the Stockbridge Welcome Home Club will be held August 3 and 4.

MANCHESTER—Lewis Lonier is suffering from blood poison. He used a pin in extracting a thistle from his finger and trouble began next day. Manchester Enterprise.

MANCHESTER—Postmaster Koebbe and family moved from Freedom and became regular, and we might add, welcome residents of Manchester on Tuesday. Manchester Enterprise.

JACKSON—The annual reunion of the First Michigan Infantry will be held in Jackson June 27. Both the three months and three year men will join.

JACKSON—Warden Simpson said Thursday that at the next session of the legislature he will recommend that the name "Michigan state prison" be changed to the "Michigan Industrial Institution." Other states have or are about to make such change in the designation of their prisons.

MANCHESTER—Postmaster Koebbe came in from Freedom last Thursday afternoon and made his appearance at the office where his many friends greeted him. From the blackened condition of his right eye and his explanation of the runaway and tipover, we wonder that he escaped with so slight an injury. Manchester Enterprise.

OXFORD—P. T. Barnum's well known adage that "the American people like to be humbugged" seems to be very white as true today as it was when he paraded the sacred white-washed elephant before their awe inspired gaze. Evidence of this locally can be seen every Wednesday by the parking of numerous automobiles, not to speak of Fords, in front of the Maccabee hall and of an endless procession of old and decrepit men and women, the lame, the halt and the blind, who wend their way up the stairs to part with their hard-earned cash for the "cures" said to come by the "laying on of hands" of a Detroit female divine healer. Oxford Leader.

Ringling Bros. Coming to Jackson.

Announcement is made that on Wednesday, July 5, Ringling Bros. circus will give afternoon and night performances at Jackson.

The famous showmen are this season presenting an all new and wonderful program. The tremendous spectacle, "Cinderella," will appeal to both young and old. More than 1000 persons take part in it. It is easily the biggest spectacle Ringling Bros. have ever staged and its "Ballet of the Fairies," with 300 dancing girls, is in itself worth going many miles to see. Following "Cinderella" 400 arenic artists appear in the main tent program. Because of the great European war the Ringlings have secured scores of circus performers never before seen in America. An entire trained animal show has been made a part of the main tent program this season. The menagerie now numbers 1009 wild animals. The elephants, including "Big Bingo," the earth's largest pachyderm, have been increased to 41 and almost 800 horses are carried. There will be 60 clowns and a big free three-mile street parade show day morning.

Lima Weed Notice.

To owners, possessors or occupiers of lands, or any person or persons, firm or corporation having charge of any lands in this state: Notice is hereby given that all Noxious Weeds growing on any lands in the township of Lima, county of Washtenaw, or within the limits of any highway passing by or through such lands must be cut down and destroyed on or before the 1st day of July and 1st day of September, 1916. Failure to comply with this notice on or before the dates mentioned or within ten days thereafter shall make the parties so failing liable for the costs of cutting same and an additional levy of ten per centum of cost to be levied and collected against the property in the same manner as other taxes are levied and collected.

Dated, Lima, June 5, 1916.
G. EDWARD GROSS,
Commissioner of Highways of the Township of Lima, County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan.

"WORK IS EASY FOR ME NOW."

Saginaw Man Has Found New Health in Great Remedy, Tanlac.

Robert Shirley, a foundryman, who lives at 537 Howard street, Saginaw, states: "Stomach trouble caused my whole system to become run down. I lost weight and energy. I suffered from indigestion a great deal. I did not sleep well and wake up with a sort of dull headache, which would last all day. Everything I ate would ferment on my stomach. Some days I would just feel 'all in.'"

"A friend advised me to try Tanlac, the new medicine, and I got a bottle. Since using the medicine I feel much better in every way. I can now eat what I want without being distressed and can sleep like a top. I have a good appetite and more real energy than I have known in years. I can endorse Tanlac highly."

Tanlac may be obtained here at the store of H. H. Penn Co.

DEMOCRATS NAME WILSON-MARSHALL BY ACCLAMATION

President and Vice President
Unanimous Choice of St.
Louis Convention.

NAMED AFTER SERIES OF DEMONSTRATIONS

William Jennings Bryan Addresses
Delegates, Praising Chief Executive—Ticket Named at Night
Session—Story of the Big Political Gathering.

St. Louis.—In the presence of a cheering, song singing crowd of 12,000 that packed the Coliseum to its capacity and left a surging, tumultuous mob of disappointed ticketholders outside, Woodrow Wilson was renominated for president of the United States by acclamation at 11:50 o'clock, Thursday night.

At 11:55 o'clock Vice President Thomas Riley Marshall was renominated by acclamation.

Thus, by five minutes, did the Democrats escape the dreaded hoodoo of a ticket named on Friday.

There followed some speeches. Then at 12:31 a. m. the convention adjourned until eleven o'clock Friday morning for action on the platform.

Give Display of Unity.

It was after a series of demonstrations of enthusiasm and party amity lasting nearly three hours and emphasized by the appearance of William Jennings Bryan on the stand as a speaker, interrupting the speeches according to the nomination of President Wilson, moved that the selection of the candidate be made by acclamation. "Senator Hughes moves that the rules be suspended and the nomination made by acclamation," bawled Chairman James above the tumult. We wait about to put the motion when a man rushed down the aisle with upraised monitory forefinger and the uplifted voice of protest. It was "Bobby" Burke of Chicago, elected Illinois delegate at large as an anti-Wilson man.

"Mr. Chairman, I object," exclaimed Mr. Burke. "A point of order."

"What is the point of order?" demanded the chairman.

"I wish to make an explanation, Mr. Chairman, I wish—"

Mr. Burke was down in front demanding a hearing, but the delegates and the spectators howled him down. Senator James banged his gavel down and, ignoring Mr. Burke, put Senator Hughes' motion.

There was a thunder of ayes in favor of the nomination of Mr. Wilson by acclamation. Chairman James demanded the nays.

"No," shouted Burke.

The chairman announced "the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for president of the United States by a vote of 1,092 to 1," there being 1,093 delegates in the convention.

Marshall Named Quickly.

The cheering for Wilson was stifled, for the sands of Thursday were running fast into unluck Friday.

The nomination for vice president were called for. Senator Kern of Indiana was recognized, and with his eye on his watch named Vice President Marshall in a single sentence.

The opposition to Marshall had melted away. Roger Sullivan had withdrawn in the interest of harmony and the names of the other candidates were not presented. James put the question and Marshall was declared the vice-presidential nominee.

Wescott Names Wilson.

President Wilson was placed in nomination by John W. Wescott of New Jersey, who performed the same office on behalf of Mr. Wilson at Baltimore four years ago. Mr. Wescott paid a glowing tribute to the president, whom he entitled "schoolmaster, statesman, financier, pacificator, and moral leader of the Democracy."

Mr. Wescott concluded his oration at 10:50 o'clock, whereupon a bedlam of noise, cheers, band playing, song singing, parading of state delegation standards, and general jubilation broke loose.

Demonstration Is Started.

A bugle rings out in one of the galleries. A great portrait of the president drops down and shuts out the view of many in the gallery. The bandmaster thumps his bass drum. A march round is started. Georgia springs a big banner reading, "Woodrow Wilson, Dixie's gift to the nation."

A woman delegate from Kansas marches past the press stand carrying a red, white and blue umbrella. South Carolina unfurls a palmetto flag and joins the column. Texas carries her big single-star banner. Former Congressman Baltz carries a broom at the head of the Illinois delegation. Governor Dunne is in line with his straw hat on his head.

Girl Leads in "Tipperary."

The band starts "Tipperary," a pretty girl in the speakers' stand swings her arms, and hundreds roar out the words of the famous marching song. The speakers' stand is packed. Among them is South Trimble, clerk of the lower house of congress, waving his black slouch hat. The delegates from New York and a dozen other states are tired and have sunk down in their seats.

A pretty girl in white falls in with the Georgia delegates. The band plays "Turkey in the Straw." A banner like the state standards, bearing the name "Tutulla," is sandwiched between Tennessee and Indiana in the marching line. John I. Martin, the sergeant at arms, jumps on the speaker's desk and waves the huge Lone Star flag of Texas, while the spotlight is thrown on it and the band plays "Dixie."

Now someone starts singing "My Old Kentucky Home." Hundreds take it up and the band falls in.

Blue Banner Comes First.

The aisles are packed with spectators and it is hard for the procession to force a way. The band plays "How Dry I Am," and swings into the "Red, White and Blue," scores of people singing the words.

A big blue banner is forced down the center aisle. "For Woodrow Wilson—Peace, Prosperity and Preparedness," it reads.

With about 8,000 seats in the hall there are surely 12,000 people in the building.

"Cheer, Cheer, the Gang's All Here" starts a new gale of singing. Now it is "Maryland," the clear voices of women leading the chorus. A pretty young woman, carries the banner of California. Senator Hughes of New Jersey mounts the speaker's stand, and, waving a cane, proposes three cheers for Wilson. They are lost in the general uproar. The demonstration has been under way for 20 minutes.

Str Over Suffrage Colors.

At 11:20 p. m., 32 minutes after the demonstration had started, a yellow suffrage umbrella was hoisted over the head of Congressman Hefflin of Alabama who was still holding the gavel temporarily. This served to rouse the enthusiasm.

Two Nebraska delegates leaped into the middle of the New York delegation, sitting tight in its chairs, and urged Murphy and the Tammany braves to get happy. Former Governor Glynn and a few others got on their chairs. Murphy didn't move a muscle.

A handsome woman in full evening dress waved the South Carolina flag from the speaker's stand, while the band played, "Dixie."

The band quit playing at 11:30. Two minutes afterward it starts all over again and then Chairman James begins to pound for order. The demonstration has lasted 45 minutes.

After a couple of brief seconding speeches, the nomination of Mr. Wilson was rushed through.

Glynn Is the Keynote.

In a hall gay with flags and bunting and with pictures of party leaders, past and present, looking down upon them from medallions around the balcony, the delegates to the Democratic national convention assembled on scheduled time Wednesday. The proceedings were formally started when William F. McCombs, chairman of the national committee, ascended the platform and rapped for order. He incited the first burst of enthusiasm of the convention when, in a short address introducing the temporary chairman, he predicted victory for the party in the fall.

The keynote speech was delivered by former Gov. Martin H. Glynn of New York, the temporary chairman. He was frequently interrupted by applause when some point in his speech stirred the enthusiasm of the delegates. His eulogy of President Wilson started the biggest demonstration of the day. Following Governor Glynn's speech, committees on credentials, permanent organization, rules, and resolutions were announced, and that day's work was done.

James Permanent Chairman.

The delegates were a little slow in assembling for Thursday's session, and it was almost noon when Temporary Chairman Glynn called the convention to order. Permanent Chairman Ollie James was escorted to the chair and introduced. He immediately launched into his address. He lauded the president and defended his policies, particularly in regard to the controversy with Germany over the submarine warfare and our relations with Mexico. An enthusiastic demonstration greeted his praise of President Wilson, which lasted more than twenty minutes. At the close of Chairman James' speech the convention took a recess until nine o'clock in the evening.

Before the nominating speeches began at the evening session the Democrats indulged in a love feast in which the advent of harmony in their ranks was celebrated. The leader of this demonstration of good will was William Jennings Bryan.

Wilson Praised by Bryan.

Mr. Bryan was cheered enthusiastically as he entered the press section at 8 o'clock. A few minutes later, joined by Mrs. Bryan, he shortly after upon the motion of Senator Thompson of Kansas, the convention suspended the rules amid tumultuous good feeling and invited Mr. Bryan to the rostrum. A committee conducted Mr. Bryan amid wild cheering to the side of Chairman James.

Mr. Bryan launched into a speech lauding the administration of the president.

Following Mr. Bryan's address the convention got down to the real business for which it had been convened and the renomination of President Wilson and Vice President Marshall was quickly put through as related above. The convention took a recess until eleven o'clock Friday morning, when the report of the committee on resolutions was presented and the platform was adopted with little discussion and practically no opposition.

Adopt Americanism Plank.

Condemnation of the activities of all persons, groups and organizations in the United States that conspire to advance the interests of a foreign power are contained in the Americanism plank of the Democratic platform adopted.

"We charge," the plank declares, "that such conspiracies among a limited number exist and have been instigated for the purpose of advancing the interests of foreign countries to the prejudice and detriment of our own country."

Through preparedness on land and sea against unexpected invasion and the joining of the United States with other nations to "assist the world in securing settled peace and justice" also were urged in other planks adopted.

A suffrage plank similar to that adopted by the Republican convention, endorsing the issue but leaving its adoption or rejection to the individual states, was adopted.

"We recommend," the plank reads, "the extension of the franchise to the women of the country by the states upon the same terms as men."

The Only Difference.

NEWS and GOSSIP of WASHINGTON

Uncle Sam Aids Cupid With Model Cottage Plan

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam and Dan Cupid announce the invention of a "perfect love of a vine-clad cottage, economically and scientifically made," that any prospective builder can obtain by writing to the department of agriculture. This model house is so ingeniously arranged that it will save the housekeeper 182,500 steps a year. There are, besides the wonderful patent kitchen, a dining room, living room and two bedrooms, a front porch and a large sleeping porch.

The kitchen's principal feature is the cooking room, just large enough to accommodate a stove. When the door of the room is closed the cabbage may boil or the ham burn up and no odor will penetrate to the kitchen proper. The housewife need not stay in the room with the stove; in fact, she couldn't stay in it if she wanted to.

Windows are so arranged that there is always a breeze through the kitchen. The front porch is arranged so it will not exclude any sunlight. The sleeping porch is germ proof and airy. The china closet has doors in kitchen and dining room and dishes are laid in at one door and taken out of another in the next room.

The kitchen has a screened porch, and connected with it is a fuelroom. Fuel is poured into it from the back yard—it may be dumped right from a wagon into the rooms—and, like the trick china closet, permits being emptied from another entrance into the kitchen.

There are seven closets in the house, which is only one story. The nearest approach to a second story is where a window has been inserted. That window gives exit to the smoke and smells from the cooking room, with which it and an inside chimney connect.

Government Makes Needles for Asphalt Testing

FEW people know enough about Uncle Sam's business to understand offhand why he should design and manufacture needles, but it was recently found desirable by the highway experts of the office of public roads and rural engineering to do so. The new needles were produced, it happens, to replace ordinary No. 2 sewing needles. The tiny points are used to test the consistency of asphalts and other pitch-like road materials.

When bituminous substances were first introduced engineers tested them by the primitive method of chewing a small sample, estimating the consistency by the resistance to the teeth. A generation ago the idea was conceived of thrusting a needle into the substance by a machine under known conditions of temperature and load, measuring the time and distance of penetration.

For years the needles employed have been No. 2 sewing needles of a certain make. The government road experts have not been satisfied with the degree of accuracy, however, and as a result of a series of careful microscopic investigations recently showed that the needles considered standard even by the makers of precise instruments varied greatly. They therefore set to work to design a needle of different shape whose dimensions could be accurately duplicated. They have succeeded so well that a number of needles made by specification alone have given results practically free from even minute variations. It is not improbable that the government needles will become in a short time the acknowledged standard for the engineering profession.

Washington's New Bridge Will Be Named for Key

UNLESS congress shall legislate to the contrary, "the Key bridge" will be the official designation of the new million-dollar bridge to be constructed across the Potomac river at Georgetown, to replace the condemned Aqueduct bridge. Lieut. Col. C. A. F. Flagler, the engineer-in-charge of river and harbor improvements in this vicinity, who will have charge of the construction of the new bridge, suggested that name "in memory of Francis Scott Key, author of 'The Star Spangled Banner,' who for a number of years lived at the corner of Thirtieth and M streets, Georgetown," which is expected to be selected as the site of the Washington approach to the new bridge. The secretary of war approved the suggestion and referred the matter to the district commissioners, with the suggestion that it be transmitted to congress with their views on the subject.

The existing bridge got its name from the fact that it was designed to carry the Chesapeake and Ohio canal across the river. Its use as an aqueduct was abandoned entirely many years ago. The name of the bridge, however, remained unchanged. There is nothing in the act authorizing the new bridge to govern its name, beyond the general provision for "a bridge at or near what is now known as the Aqueduct bridge." Inasmuch as the new bridge will not serve as an aqueduct in any sense, army engineers say it would be a misnomer to call it "the Aqueduct bridge."

Vast Number of Letters Received by Mr. Wilson

PERHAPS no other president received as many letters as does President Wilson. Veterans of the White House staff admit that since the outbreak of the European war all records have been broken. Talking to friends the other day, the president said the letters called to run in cycles, the subjects coming forth the correspondence varying almost with the months. Just now, one of the undersecretaries said, money requests are multiplying with the approach of the campaign. One man wrote the other day asking for $50 to take a long-delayed trip to the Southern town, promising to return the loan in two years. He prefaced the request with a glowing tribute to the president's statesmanship. He received a polite reply, but no money.

"If the president complied with one-tenth of these loan requests he would be a bankrupt," one of the executive staff confided.

NORTH CAROLINA IN THE LEAD.
North Carolina easily retained first rank in gold output among the eastern or Appalachian states in 1915. The total production of gold in 1915 amounted to 8,320.55 fine ounces. In 1915 the value of the North Carolina gold yield was slightly more than half of the eastern states' total. The gold was obtained from twenty-two placers and seven deep mines, but "several" of the mines made a very small production. The largest producing placer was the Tigerstaff, in Rutherford county. The Uwarra mine, in Montgomery county, had the largest yield of gold from deep mining.

MAKE LIVING FROM PHILANTHROPY
In New York city it is stated that in the neighborhood of 4,000 persons make their living out of the distribution of philanthropic aid. The salaries of these are estimated to aggregate $4,000,000 a year. One person draws $10,000; nine others draw $5,000 or more a year, and 58 draw a minimum of $2,400.

MOST PRODUCTIVE SOIL FOR STRAWBERRY

The strawberry leads the list of small fruits in popularity because of its wide range of adaptation to soil and climatic conditions. The large number of varieties gives a long season of the most delicious fruit. Its ease of culture and its early season of bearing makes it a desirable home and market crop.

"The strawberry is most productive in a sandy loam soil, but if this type of soil is not available it may be grown with good results in many of the heavier soils," says F. S. Merrill of the horticultural department of the Kansas state agricultural college.

NEGLECT IS COSTLY IN NURSERY STOCK

Big Loss Caused Every Spring Through Poor Handling, Says Minnesota Expert.

From 10 to 25 per cent of the nursery stock bought is lost every spring through poor handling, says W. G. Brierley of the horticultural division of the Minnesota college of agriculture. One should buy all nursery plants subject to inspection, he said, and reject the stock if it is in poor condition.

"One of the safest methods of handling nursery stock," he continues, "is to remove it from the shipping case and 'heel in,' so that the plants may replenish the moisture lost in transit. If the bark appears shriveled it may be advantageous to even bury the entire stock in light soil for a day or two. Immersing in water is not advisable; it softens the bark too much."

"Other means of safe handling," Mr. Brierley continues, "are packing the soil firmly around the roots, throwing the richer top-soil in the bottom of the hole and crowning the top with light, loose soil, so as to preserve all moisture for the plant."

MARKETS DIFFER IN DEMAND FOR POULTRY

New York Not Particular Whether Its Dressed Fowls Are Scalded or Dry Picked.

There is a marked difference between the kind of prepared poultry different markets demand. For instance, New York is not very particular as to whether its dressed poultry comes scalded or dry picked.

Many of the western cities think the same if the poultry be nicely prepared and fowls of the same size are packed together, the yellow and white-skinned packed to themselves. Boston strictly wants its dressed fowls dry picked, Chicago likes its turkeys dry picked, but prefers chickens, ducks and geese scalded.

KEEP CLOSE WATCH FOR RIPPED SEAMS

Runaway Caused by Broken Parts of Harness Can Be Avoided by Attention.

"A stitch in time saves nine," sometimes it saves a runaway. When you use a harness, keep a sharp lookout for ripped seams and broken buckles. If there is a break, fix it at once, or else take it to the harness maker's without delay. Don't try to patch it with a piece of string, for the string is apt to break when you are going down hill. "Safety first."

"The poorest results usually occur on the sandiest soils, for these dry out more severely in the late summer months and prevent the formation of new plants and runners and reduce the development of fruiting buds for the subsequent season.

Freshly Broken Land Ideal. "Freshly broken land is usually ideal for a strawberry bed provided it has first been planted to some cultivated crop, such as potatoes. Sod land is likely to be infested with white grubs which are a dangerous foe to the tender plants."

There are many different ways of planting, states Mr. Merrill, but the two most commonly used are the hill system and the matted row system. In the hill system the plants are set 18 inches apart and no runners are allowed to develop. The strength of the plant is utilized in the formation of one stool. All the work done in cultivation in this system must be done with hand implements, but the returns are higher than the matted row system. A modification of this system is sometimes practiced by setting the rows three feet apart and the plants 18 inches apart in the row.

In the matted row system the rows are from three to four feet apart and the plants 12 to 18 inches apart in the row. New plants are permitted to develop until the row is two feet wide. With this system the work can be done mainly with horse-drawn implements.

FLAVOR OF MILK IS IMPROVED BY OATS

Series of Experiments Made to Ascertain the Truth of This Assertion.

It has been asserted by some dairymen that the feeding of crushed oats to cows will improve the flavor of milk. To ascertain the correctness of this theory a series of experiments was made by the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture at the experimental dairy farm at Beltsville, Md.

Six cows were used in the experiment; three were fed a grain ration of cornmeal, bran and cottonseed meal; the other three were fed a grain mixture of five parts crushed oats and one part cottonseed meal.

A number of samples of milk from the cows fed these rations were submitted to various persons in the dairy division and they were asked to indicate their preference. In all 50 opinions were passed on various samples. Of these, 16 showed a preference for the milk from cows fed on crushed oats, 25 preferred that from the bran and corn ration, while nine expressed no choice.

The results show that in these rations not only was there no marked difference in favor of the crushed oats as a feed to improve flavor, but, if anything, the ration containing bran and corn was more successful in producing a fine-flavored milk.

PLANT FOOD NEEDED BY RUN-DOWN SOILS

Lime and Phosphorus Recommended to Improve Physical Defects of Worn Land.

The farmer who robs his soil is saving off the limb upon which he is sitting. Your deed calls for the subsoil as well as the surface soil and the subsoil is a mine of fertility and a well of water if properly utilized.

Lime is the one thing most needed by the average rundown soil. Phosphorus, next to lime, is the mineral plantfood probably most needed by the average unproductive soil.

WEED SEEDS SPREAD IN DIFFERENT WAYS

Found in Manure, Hay, Threshing Machines and Finally the Wind Blows Them.

Some of the many ways in which weed seeds find their way to the farms, as investigation shows, are in manure, in hay and in threshing machines, and finally the wind blows some of the lighter seeds for several miles.

DAIRY

WOODEN BLOCKS FIND FAVOR

Ideal for Paving Floors of Dairy Barns—Coal Tar Creosote Adds Much to Durability.

(By B. O. LONGYEAR, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.)

Pavements made of wood blocks are no new thing—in fact, they were extensively used a generation ago in the principal timber-producing regions of the country. They were usually composed of round blocks set on end and the spaces filled with sand. While excellent when new, they soon wore out in places by the decay of some of the blocks, which left the pavement rough and full of holes, unless frequently repaired.

Substitutes such as stone, brick and asphalt have largely replaced wood for pavements, while concrete has come into use for ground floors in stable and dairy barns. The desirable qualities of wood, however, which these substitutes largely lack, have again brought the wooden block into favor. Thus, it is more quiet, it is not so slippery and is less trying to the feet and legs of animals than are most of its substitutes.

Its lack of durability is now overcome by treating the blocks with coal tar creosote, and the blocks are cut square or rectangular so that there are no large openings between them.

For dairy barns, creosoted wood blocks laid on a concrete foundation are found to produce an almost ideal floor, and one that is lasting and sanitary as well.

PROPER COOLING FOR CREAM

Attention Must Be Given Just as Soon as Separated—Dampened Blankets Lower Temperature.

Now that warm weather is approaching, every possible means must be taken to get cream on the market in good condition. The warm days that have already passed have had a marked effect in lowering the quality of cream now being made into butter. Attention must first be paid to cooling the cream just as soon as separated. However, the greatest exposure to heat usually comes when the cream is hauled to market, and the cans are left uncovered and exposed to the hot sun and dust.

It has been found by experiment that the temperature may be kept more than 20 degrees lower when dampened blankets are thrown over the can or dampened blankets are used than when the cans are left uncovered. In addition, the dirt and dust are kept away from the cans and cream.

It is not only to the advantage of the producer to help in keeping up the quality of the cream so that good prices may continue, but low-grade cream cannot be allowed to come upon the market in the future.

KEEP A MILK BOTTLE CLEAN

Closure, Invented by Terre Haute Man, Is More Sanitary Than Ordinary Pasteboard Disk.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing a bottle closure, invented by R. E. Redding of Terre Haute, Ind., says: The invention provides a closure which is more sanitary than the ordinary pasteboard disk. This is due to the provision of a cloth strip which forms an auxiliary closure member and prevents dirt from entering the bottle while the main closure member is being removed. It also provides a device having a closure of the type described which may be readily taken off or applied to the bottle.

BEST RATION FOR DAIRY COW

Much Rough Feed in Form of Hay and Silage Must Be Supplied—Also Give Her Grain.

The good dairy cow is a large eater and drinker. She has a large stomach and must consume large amounts of feeds daily to fill the milk pail at every milking during the year. She must eat till she is full and content to lie in the stall or pasture and chew her cud.

Much rough feed in the form of hay and silage must be included in her daily ration. Also she must have some rich or heavy feeds such as grain or meal. The total amount of feed she should receive daily or at a single feeding will depend somewhat upon the amount of milk she is giving, or capable of giving. While she is giving her heaviest flow of milk she should have a rather heavy grain or concentrated ration in addition to the bulky matter.

GIVEN ONE HOUR TO RELEASE TROOPER

U. S. SOLDIER CAPTURED BY CARRANZA TROOPS AND HELD PRISONER FOR SEVERAL HOURS.

PERSHING TO ATTACK TOWN

If Prisoner Was Held An Hour Longer—But He Was Released By the Mexican Commander.

Colonla Dublan, Chihuahua, Mexico, (via Wireless to Columbus, N. M.)—An American soldier was captured by Carranza troops of the Casas Grandes garrison and held prisoner for several hours. He was released only when General J. J. Pershing, expeditionary commander sent a demand to the Mexican commander that if the soldier was held an hour longer American troops would attack the town.

Washington—The issue of war or peace with Mexico hung in the balance awaiting General Carranza's decision as to the course he will pursue. Officials here believed that 48 hours might bring a clear understanding of what the immediate future has in store. A note signed by Secretary Lansing, conveying President Wilson's rejection of the demand for withdrawal of American soldiers from Mexico, accompanied by a specific warning that an attack on the troops "will lead to the gravest consequences," was telegraphed to Mexico City by Eliseo Arredondo, Mexican ambassador-designate.

In plain terms, it accuses General Carranza of having brought matters to the verge of war by open hostility toward the United States and failure to safeguard even the lives of Americans in Mexico or on the border, from the lawless elements among his countrymen.

In sternest terms, the note repudiates and resents imputations of bad faith and ulterior motives brought against the Washington government in the Mexican communication to which it is a reply. General Carranza is informed in so many words that protection of its own borders is the only object sought by the United States; and is told that object will be pursued whatever the consequences may be.

When the note had been handed to Mr. Arredondo for delivery to his chief, copies were sent to all embassies and legations for their information. A summary was telegraphed to Special Agent Rodgers in Mexico City that he might wisely counsel Americans resident there. He will not communicate it to Carranza officials.

RUSHING HELP TO AUSTRIANS

The Germans Arrived Too Late to Relieve the Austrians at Lutsk.

London—Russian semi-official reports that the Austrian General Pflanzer's army has been cut in two and is in precipitate retreat, seem to be borne out by Russian official statement that the Russians have occupied three towns on the Sereth river, and the admission in the Austrian communication that Russian troops have crossed the River Sereth.

The Russians are pressing close on the rear of the Austrians in Bukovina, who were compelled to retreat hastily after the fall of Czernowitz. Reuter's Petrograd correspondent says the Russians covered 13 miles in one day in advancing southward from Czernowitz, and that the army of General Pflanzer is believed to have been split into two or more segments.

It is stated that the Austrians and Germans have sent reinforcements to the southwestern front from the Italian, French and Balkan war zones, as well as from the Pinsk and Baranovitch regions. The Germans arrived too late at the Lutsk front to relieve the Austrians, having reached this region three days after the beginning of General Brussiloff's drive.

The occupation by Russian troops of the towns of Zadorva, Strogots and Gliboka, on the River Sereth, was announced by the Russian war office.

Three German attacks made on the French positions northwest of HEN No. 321 were repulsed by the fire of the French machine guns, according to an official statement issued by the French war office. The Germans are heavily bombarding the French positions in the neighborhood of Vaux, Chaptre and Chantonnay.

TELEGRAPHIC FLASHES

London—Re-mapping Europe after the war is going to be as colossal a diplomatic task as the war has been a military undertaking.

Paris—Jules Hedeman, a prominent French journalist, has been killed at Verdun, where he was serving in the French army as a lieutenant.

Havana—The senate has passed Senator Mazaritola's bill providing that any president who is a candidate for re-election shall retire from office 65 days before the elections. The measure has been supported by the Liberals in order to procure the retirement of President Menocal and to nullify the influence of the administration in the November elections.

Such tobacco enjoyment as you never thought could be is yours to command quick as you buy some Prince Albert and fire-up a pipe or a home-made cigarette!

Prince Albert gives you every tobacco satisfaction your smoke-appetite ever hankered for. That's because it's made by a patented process that cuts out bite and parch! Prince Albert has always been sold without coupons or premiums. We prefer to give quality!

PRINCE ALBERT

has a flavor as different as it is delightful. You never tasted the like of it! And that isn't strange, either.

Buy Prince Albert everywhere tobacco is sold in tippy red bags, 5c; tidy red tins, 10c; handsome pound and half-pound tin humidors—and that corking fine pound crystal-glass humidor with sponge-moistener top that keeps the tobacco in such clever trim—always!

Men who think they can't smoke a pipe or roll a cigarette can smoke and will smoke if they use Prince Albert. And smokers who have not yet given P. A. a try-out certainly have a big surprise and a lot of enjoyment coming their way as soon as they invest in a supply. Prince Albert tobacco will tell its own story!

HELP THE KIDNEYS

Chelsea Readers Are Learning The Way.

It's the little kidney ills—The lame, weak or aching back—The unnoticed urinary disorders—That may lead to dropsy and Bright's disease.

When the kidneys are weak, Help them with Doan's Kidney Pills. A remedy especially for weak kidneys.

Doan's have been used in kidney troubles for 50 years.

Endorsed by 40,000 people—endorsed at home.

Proof in a Chelsea citizen's statement.

John Kelly, W. Middle St., Chelsea, says: "Hard work started my kidney trouble. The kidney secretions became irregular and too frequent in passage. I also suffered from rheumatic pains in my back and was stiff and sore. Mornings, I felt all tired out and was dizzy and nervous. I tried different medicines, but was not helped until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They relieved me of the trouble from my back and kidneys."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Kelly had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.
