ALUMNI BANQUET WAS ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

One Hundred Members Were Present at Maccabee Hall Thursday Evening.

The twenty-first annual banquet of the Chelsea High School Alumni Association was held in Maccabee hall last Thursday evening. There were one hundred members of the association present, and the affair proved to be one of the best that the organization has held in several years.

The hall was handsomely decorated with bunting and flowers in the colors of the association, white and yellow. At the business meeting the following officers were elected: President—George Neckel, '15. Vice President—Miss Esther Chandler, '16.

Secretary—Oscar Schettler, '14. Treasurer—Miss Olga Hoffman, '12. Owing to unavoidable circumstances Miss Flora Kempf, who had been chosen toastmistress, was unable to be present, and in her absence Earle Schumacher, president of the association, filled the vacancy, and was all that one could ask in that position. Dr. Faye Palmer, of Cass Lake, who had been assigned a number on the program, was unable to be present as he is a member of the Michigan National Guard, and was on duty at headquarters at Lansing.

The program was opened by music by Boos' orchestra from Jackson.

"Safety-First," by Herbert Schenk, was replete with jokes at the expense of the members of the class of '16, who were seated in the center of the hall in kindergarten chairs and a table from the kindergarten room was used. Each member of the class was fitted out with a lace-trimmed bib and an infant's rattle, the latter being used with considerable vigor.

Music—Orchestra. "Stop!" "Look!" "Listen!" by Miss Frida Wedemeyer, who in a vision gave an interesting report of the future of the members of her class.

Music—Orchestra. "1916 Model" by Waldo Kusterer, who before he closed proved that this model had all of the latest accessories and he used them to excellent advantage on those who had been taking a few sly digs at the youngsters.

Music—Orchestra. "Pathe Speaks—O, You Class of '13," by Miss Vivian Klingler, who gave a short history of the members of her class.

A piano duet by Misses Doris Schmidt and Rena Rodel was excellently rendered.

"Then," "In the good old days," by Miss Elizabeth Depew, who gave a very complete and interesting history of the Chelsea public school. During her address Miss Depew stated that since she became an instructor in the Chelsea schools she had walked a distance of 8,000 miles from her home to the school, and that she had during that time taught 1,400 pupils.

Vocal solo, by Blaine Barch, who responded to an encore.

At the close of the banquet the tables were moved back and dancing was indulged in.

Lewick-Sodt Wedding.

A pretty wedding took place at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 24, 1916, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Lewick, of North Lake, when their eldest daughter, Miss Ruth Cornella, was united in marriage with Mr. Reuben W. Sodt, of Freedom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fred Coats, of Brooklyn, former pastor of the North Lake M. E. church, the impressive ring service being used. The ring was carried by little Esther Sodt, concealed in a rose. The couple were attended by Miss Blanche Lewick, sister of the bride, and Mr. Wm. Sodt, of Dubuque, Iowa, cousin of the groom.

Miss Grace Walz, accompanied by Miss Nina Belle Wurster, sang "O, Promise Me," following which the bridal party entered the parlor where the services were witnessed by eighty-five guests. At the close of the ceremony Miss Walz sang "A Perfect Day."

The bride wore a handsome gown of white satin and Georgia crepe and carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. She graduated from the Chelsea high school with the class of 1911, and for the past few years has been a successful teacher in the rural schools in this vicinity. The groom is well known young farmer of Freedom.

A wedding supper was served to the guests, the table decorations being green and white, after which the young couple left on an automobile trip through southern Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Sodt will at home to their friends after July 1st, at their residence near Pleasant lake, Freedom.

J. W. Dresselhouse Elected Chairman.

The board of supervisors met at Ann Arbor Monday and the only business transacted was the election of a new chairman and the appointment of the committee on equalization.

The morning session did not last long, and Jacob Jedele of Scio was named temporary chairman.

At the afternoon session the board elected John W. Dresselhouse of Sharon, permanent chairman. Mr. Jedele was made chairman pro tem.

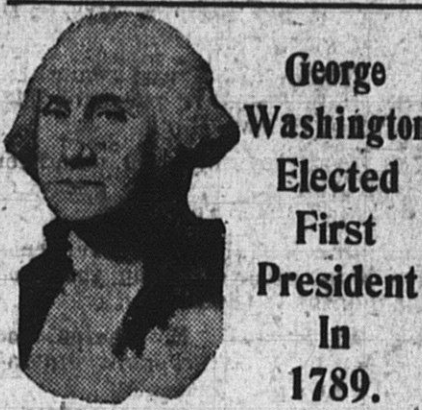

An equalization committee of five members was appointed as follows: Geo. M. Grandy of Ypsilanti, Gilbert Madden of Dexter, Herman Gross of Saline, Wm. H. Every of Bridgewater, and Chas. Brooks of Ann Arbor city.

The board then adjourned until today when the county house matter will be taken up.

The Chelsea Singing Circle will meet Wednesday, July 5, at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. J. R. Gates.

ELECTING A PRESIDENT

1

WASHINGTON.

THE first presidents were chosen by electors who were chosen by the legislatures of the various states. The person having the majority of these electors was declared president. The person having the next greatest number was declared vice president.

The first election took place on Jan. 7, 1789, in the states that had ratified the constitution. The electors chose the president on Feb. 4, 1789. The vote, counted on April 6, 1789, was:

George Washington, 69; John Adams, 34; Samuel Huntington, 2; John Jay, 9; John Hancock, 4; R. H. Harrison, 6; George Clinton, 3; John Rutledge, 6; John Milton, 2; James Armstrong, 1; Edward Telfair, 1; Benjamin Lincoln, 1. Ten states voted, but there is no record of the popular vote.

In the election of 1792 Washington received 132 votes and Adams 77.

(Watch for the election of Adams in 1796 in our next issue.)

Princess Bookings.

THURSDAY, JUNE 29.

Wm. Fox presents "St. Elmo," a stirring 9 reel story of a soul's salvation, a pictorialization of the play and novel by Augusta J. Evans.

FRIDAY, JUNE 30.

Pathe presents Pearl White in "The King's Game" produced by Arnold Daly. It will be remembered that Pearl White and Arnold Daly starred in the great "Elaine" serial.

SATURDAY, JULY 1.

"A Bushranger at Bay," fifth drama of the Stinger series.

MONDAY, JULY 3.

World Film Corp. presents Alice Brady and Holbrook Blinn in "The Ballet Girl," a remarkably realistic story of the temptations, pitfalls and triumphs of the stage.

TUESDAY, JULY 4.

The Vitaphone Co. presents "By Love Redeemed," featuring Jewel Hunt and Garry McGarry.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 5.

"A Close Call," ninth episode of "The Girl and The Game."

THURSDAY, JULY 6.

Wm. Fox presents the brilliant actress Theda Bara in "A Fool There Was," an adaptation from Rudyard Kipling's famous poem "The Vampire." One of the most successful plays of the century and Robert Hillard's greatest stage success. Theda Bara, leading woman at the Theatre Antoine, Paris, has been cast as the "Vampire," one of the most fascinating though revolting female characters ever created. Her interpretation is remarkable for intense dramatic realism, while her wonderfully seductive beauty serves to enhance the illusion created by her art. Her gowns in this production were designed by the leading costumers of her native Paris.—Adv.

The Fourth at Hague Park.

Chelsea residents and people living in this vicinity are invited to participate in a gigantic celebration of Independence Day at Hague park, Vandercook lake. Three balloon ascensions, a barbecue and a monster display of fireworks in the center of the lake are among the numerous attractions which have been arranged.

The barbecue, or ox roast, will be a feature which will be much enjoyed. Ten thousand buns have been ordered to care for the thousands of visitors and this number will be increased if necessary. The barbecue will be served at 11 o'clock in the morning. Spend the day at Hague park, the beauty spot of Michigan.

CHELSEA MEN INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE WRECK

Archie Keusch and Roy Brower in Car That Turned Over Near Ypsilanti Friday

Archie Keusch and Roy Brower, who are employed by the Lewis Spring & Axle Co., met with an accident last Friday when a Hollier Eight car which Mr. Keusch was driving turned over about three miles west of Ypsilanti.

The road was being given a dressing of gravel, and to avoid running into a workman Keusch turned out of the road, and in so doing struck a rural mail box and the car overturned in the ditch.

A few minutes after the accident Carl Lehman, Geo. J. Burke and Leonard Josephans reached the scene and found the men in the ditch under the auto.

An ambulance was called from Ypsilanti and the injured men were taken to Maplehurst hospital at Ann Arbor.

The injuries to Keusch consist of three cuts on the head and his neck was badly wrenched. Brower has a broken ankle. Both men are reported this morning as recovering as rapidly as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Keusch, parents of young Keusch, and his sister, Mrs. J. F. Haber, have visited him several times at the hospital, and they expect he will be able to return home Saturday.

Brower's home is in Adrian.

Canfield-Johnson Marriage.

A pretty home wedding took place Wednesday evening, June 21, 1916, at the home of Mrs. Georgia A. Canfield, 313 Putman avenue, Detroit, when her daughter, Miss Leota, was united in marriage with Mr. Harvey Johnson, of Flint, Rev. Walter R. Fruit, pastor of the Martha Holmes M. E. church, officiating. Miss Jennie Walker, of Chelsea, played the wedding march.

The bride was attended by Miss Mercedes Weaver, of Cleveland, Ohio, and the groom by his brother, Mr. Edwin Johnson, of Detroit. The bride was gown in white crepe de chene and carried a shower bouquet of white bridal roses, valley lilies and sweet peas. The bridesmaid wore a gown of white net over pink chiffon with a bodice of blue satin and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas. The home was decorated with palms and roses.

Light refreshments were served to thirty-five guests. The bride was a former resident of Chelsea, and is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Canfield of this place. The young couple will make their home in Flint.

New Savings Club.

Depositors' Weekly Savings Club has been organized with a view to adjust self to depositors' pocketbook. Can save any amount. Ideal way to secure money for any contingency, emergency or any reason at all is afforded.

The Kempf Commercial & Savings Bank, of Chelsea, Michigan, has recently adopted a system for saving money that is entirely new and it will make a strong appeal to hundreds of people of Chelsea.

It is called the Depositors' Weekly Savings Club and admits of the greatest flexibility, in that it adjusts itself to the depositors' pocketbook.

The cashier of the bank, John L. Fletcher, explains it to us about as follows:

If a boy wishes to get $12.00 or $15.00, he may take out a card and once a week make a payment ranging from two cents to fifty cents and at the end of fifty-two weeks, the bank will pay the boy $13.73.

People will do a thing better with an ultimate object in view. A person can save better if he tries to accumulate $50 within a specified time.

In the same manner, if a person desires to get an amount such as $27.45, $54.89, $109.78 or $219.56, he can make weekly payments that fit his income and may choose the amount he wishes to lay aside so that if the depositor has sickness, loss of position, or hard luck of any kind, there are small payments he can make, in keeping with financial condition and at the same time have a definite amount to his credit at the end of the year.

By using this system, you can save money for a definite purpose such as buying a home, or paying off a mortgage.

It offers an ideal way to secure money for paying taxes, insurance or debts of any kind.

If you wish money to spend at Christmas time you can start in now or at any time and withdraw your money just before Christmas.

Another good feature about it is that a person can take out more than one card if he finds that he can save a little more than he thought. Then, too, it is open to all depositors on every business day in the year.

It strikes us that this system furnishes about the best illustration we ever saw for accumulating a substantial fund with the least amount of trouble and we can readily see why people want to open new accounts on this plan.

Broke the Speed Limit.

Oscar Bauer, of Ann Arbor, thought that he was a second Barney Oldfield, and was endeavoring to make a new record on the dirt track Sunday when Marshal Cooper stopped him on south Main street and requested him to appear before Justice Withersell. He came up Monday evening and the judge assessed him $10 and costs. This is getting to be a habit with the young man, as he went through the same procedure in his home town about two weeks ago.

Celebration at Jackson.

Many celebrations have been held in Jackson in the past but it is doubtful if a bigger and better celebration was ever held than the one which is promised for July 4th. Jackson is to have a real old-fashioned celebration, and it believes that it is going to be so good that it wants the people of Jackson county and neighboring counties to come and participate.

Several bands have been engaged for the day and there will be music from early morning until late in the evening. A big street parade is to be one of the many features of the day. This will be held in the afternoon.

In the evening there will be a program of fireworks which will be in charge of an expert.

impending Mexican trouble, state authorities have compiled interesting records of the part Wolverine troops have taken in previous wars.

Although Michigan was not admitted as a state until 1837, men from the territory of Michigan were helpful to the United States in both the revolution and the war of 1812. In the Mexican, civil, Indian, Spanish-American wars Michigan guardsmen and volunteers played an even more prominent role.

Michigan territory furnished no troops for Gen. Washington's continental army, but settlers kept British troops in the northwest so busy that they were unable to move against the main forces of the colonies. In June, 1805, Michigan was organized as a territory and in August of that year the Michigan militia, now the M. N.
G., was organized.

The first regiment of Michigan troops was raised in Detroit by Col. A.
B. Woodward. In the war of 1812 the state troops rendered valuable aid by protecting Detroit and other border points from invasion, and it is estimated that 10,000 Michigan troops took part in this war. In addition to the militia, many Michigan men volunteered for service with the federal troops.

In the Mexican war Michigan sent a regiment of militia infantry, a company of volunteers, a company of dragoons and three companies of regulars. Following this war the M. N. G. was increased until it consisted of 28 companies at the time of the Civil war. It then numbered nearly as many as at the present time.

Altogether, Michigan sent 90,747 regulars to aid the north in the great intersectional struggle. Of this number, 14,858 were killed in action or died of wounds and disease. At the time of the Civil war the legislature passed a soldiers' relief law providing for the care of families of soldiers.

During the Indian wars Michigan again sent troops to the front, the most famous command being Custer's ill-fated regiment of cavalry.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war the entire state militia was mobilized at Island Lake and after a short training period sent to the various fronts. The Michigan Naval Reserve also served the country at this time.

ARE TO RECRUIT NEW FORCE

Mobilize at Grayling and Fill Places of Regiments Called to the Colors.

Lansing—As soon as the present Michigan National Guard leaves for the Mexican border it is planned to recruit and mobilize at Grayling a new Michigan National Guard to fill the places of the regiments called to the colors.

Under the national defense law, passed June 3, federalizing the National Guard, provision is made for drafting recruits to the reserve force in the event that there are not enough volunteers to fill the new troops.
Drafts may be made from the ranks of able-bodied citizens between the ages of 18 and 45.

The other occupants of the car were not seriously hurt. The car landed right side up.

According to a ruling by Attorney General Grant, Fellows any provision of a municipal charter attempting to provide for woman suffrage on strictly municipal matters cannot be upheld because the constitution of the state implicitly forbids the extension of the right of suffrage in such manner.

BIDS GOOD-BYE TO TROOPS HELD AT CAMP GRAYLING

GOVERNOR FERRIS

Camp Ferris, Grayling—Standing here before "his boys," Governor Ferris bade good-bye to Godspeed to the 5,500 national guardsmen that Michigan is offering for the protection of the Rio Grande.

"I could not bear to see you leave Michigan without bidding you goodbye," he said to the silent men in khaki.

baby was born dead.

MOREY HERO OF CARRIZAL FIGHT

Captain Forces Troopers to Abandon Him on Desert.

THINKS THAT HE IS DYING

Commander Compels Men to Save Themselves and Carry Report of Battle to Pershing—Later Escapes Himself.

San Antonio, Tex.—The story of now Capt. Lewis S. Morey, commander of Troop K, Tenth cavalry, severely wounded in the Carrizal battle between American troopers and Carranza soldiers, escaped with four of his troopers and later forced his men to abandon him on the desert in order that they might save themselves and carry his report of the fight to General Pershing is told in official dispatches received at army headquarters here. The cold official reports add another story of heroism to the many that have come from the scene of the unequal battle in the Mexican desert.

Later dispatches showed that Captain Morey also managed later to return to the American lines and is safe.
After the tide of battle had turned against the little American force, which was overwhelmingly outnumbered by the Mexican soldiers, Captain Morey with the three unwounded and one wounded men were together.
The five men realized further fighting would be in vain and took refuge in a hole 2,000 yards from the scene of the battle. There, while the Mexicans

Captain Boyd said he was going to Ahumada at this time.
"He was talking with Carranza commander," General Gomez was sent a written message requesting that Captain Boyd could bring his men into town and have a conference.
"Captain Boyd feared an ambush."
"He was under the impression that the Mexicans would run as soon as we fired."
"We formed for attack, his intention being to move up to the line of about 120 Mexicans on the edge of the town. We formed Troop C on the left, in line of skirmishers, one platoon of Troop K on right of line, and another Troop K platoon on extreme right, echeloned a little to the rear.

"When we were within 300 yards the Mexicans opened fire, and a strong one, before we fired a shot; then we opened up. They did not run, to make a long account short. After about an hour's fire, in which both troops had advanced, Troop C to position of Mexican machine gun and Troop K closing in slightly to the left, we were busy on the right keeping off a flank attack. A group of Mexicans left town, went around our rear, and drove our led horses away at a gallop.

"At about nine o'clock one platoon of Troop K, which was on our right, fell back. Sergeant said he could not stay there. Both platoons fell back about 1,000 yards to the west, and then, together with some men of Troop
C who were there, these men scattered.

"I was slightly wounded. Captain
Boyd, a man told me, was killed.
Nothing was seen of Lieutenant Adair after the fight started, so a man I saw stated.

"I am hiding in a hole 2,000 yards from field and have one other wounded man and three men with me.
MOREY, Captain."

Fight Overwhelming Numbers.
Columbus, N. M.—The handful of American troopers—84 in all—pitted against at least 700 Mexicans in the battle at Carrizal, never had a chance,

according to the story told by Sam H.
Harris, private of C troop, Tenth cavalry, who was brought to the border suffering from wounds in the arm and shoulder. The trooper's eyes filled with tears as he told how his wounded
charger had carried him through the Mexican lines to safety.

Here is Harris' account of the unequal battle:
"Our troop, with Captain Boyd commanding, had pulled up before Car-rizal. The captain ordered everyone to dismount and we all got down. I was a horse holder, and I took charge
of some animals while their riders stood at attention.

"Next thing I knew, the shooting had started. I looked around. Captain Boyd was down and I couldn't see him. I kept on looking. There were easily seven hundred of those 'greasers' around us. They had come up right out of the ground, forming a high circle. Our men kept on falling.
The first shots came from a machine gun. It was trained right on us and, believe me, it talked fast.

Trapped in Two Minutes.
"It wasn't more than two minutes before the Mexican had surrounded us.
We were right there—in the middle, fighting like the dickens. All around the horses were rearing and plunging.
Every little bit a horse or a man would get a bullet and go down."

"I couldn't fight, for I had to keep after those mounts. Pretty soon my own horse, a great big fellow, staggered and whinnied. They had hit him in the neck.

"I put my hand on the spot where the blood was spouting out. Just then they hit me—in the shoulder.

We Hadn't a Show.
"We didn't have a show in the world, and I saw it. I cut the horses loose and, climbing on my animal, hit it for the thinnest part of the circle.
"I went right through the Mexicans.
My horse brushed two of them out of the way as we charged.

"I owe my life to that horse, sure as you live. Don't you know, that animal was so brave and big hearted that he carried me along for ten miles before he settled down to a walk. Five miles farther on his legs just gave out and he went down."

Orders Men to Save Selves.
They appealed to him to allow them to take the chance, but Morey was determined that his report should get to General Pershing at any cost and ordered the troopers, as their commanding officer, to go forward. Their military training forbade any other course, and they departed.

The negroes stumbled forward across the desert until they were picked up by a detachment under Lieut. Henry A. Meyers, Jr., which was scouring the country to pick up men who had escaped the massacre.

Morey's Report of Fight.
Here is the report of the battle written by Captain Morey, while hiding in the hole in the ground:

"Carrizal, Mex., June 21, 1916, 9:15
a. m.—To Commanding Officer, Ojo
Federico: My troop reached Ojo
Santo Domingo at 5:30 p. m. June 20.
Met Troop C, under Captain Boyd. I came under Captain Boyd's command and marched my troop in rear for Car-rizal at 4:15 a. m. Reached open field to southeast of town at 6:30 a. m.

"Captain Boyd sent in a note requesting permission to pass through the town. This was refused. Stated we could go to the north, but not east,

against at least 700 Mexicans in the battle at Carrizal, never had a chance,
according to the story told by Sam H.
Harris, private of C troop, Tenth cavalry, who was brought to the border
suffering from wounds in the arm and shoulder. The trooper's eyes filled
with tears as he told how his wounded
charger had carried him through the Mexican lines to safety.

Here is Harris' account of the unequal battle:
"Our troop, with Captain Boyd commanding, had pulled up before Car-rizal. The captain ordered everyone to dismount and we all got down. I was a horse holder, and I took charge
of some animals while their riders

SOUTHERN ENVOYS URGE MEDIATION

LATIN-AMERICAN DIPLOMATS URGE CARRANZA TO YIELD TO UNITED STATES.

EARLY REPLY LOOKED FOR

Carranza Must Comply With the Demands of the U. S. and Release the American Troopers.

Washington—Following the refusal of the United States government to entertain any suggestions from the South American governments of mediation in the Mexican crisis, the Latin-American diplomats advised their governments to urge General Carranza to yield to the demands of the United States as the only means of preventing war.

It is known that Carranza had some hopes that the Latin-American move would succeed to the extent of at least giving him a chance for sparing for more time, but with the mediation plan squelched at the outset the issue is now squarely up to the "first chief."

Carranza must comply at once with the demands of the United States for the release of the American troopers, held prisoners at Chihuahua, and repudiate the orders of Trevino before there can be any prospect of a peaceful solution of the issue between the two governments.

Plain intimation to this effect was given by Secretary of State Lansing to the Bolivian minister, who went to him as the spokesman of the other Latin-American diplomats to suggest mediation.

President Wilson expects a reply to his demands within the next two or three days. What its nature will be is not known. If it is a refusal the president will lay the matter before congress and ask authority to take whatever steps he may regard as necessary.

Officials of the administration have taken into consideration the possibility that Carranza may make his answer a declaration of war; and the concentration of Carranza troops in the vicinity of Chihuahua City where the American troopers are being held, is regarded as ominous.

The Mexican embassy however holds out the hope that Carranza will go to the limit in his efforts to avoid a clash and the view is expressed that if war is declared the initiative must be taken by President Wilson.

Special Representative Rodgers, at Mexico City, advised the state department that although he received a copy of the American demands he had been unable to locate General Candido Aguilar, the Mexican minister of foreign relations, for the purpose of presenting them.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE MEXICAN CRISIS

Strong Carranza force concentrates opposite Naco, Ariz.

Lansing puts end to talk of mediating troubles with Mexico.

Refugees pouring into Vera Cruz and to border from interior Mexico.

Villa chiefs and wealthy backers rallying to aid Carranza in large numbers.

Villa shot by own men who planned to desert; wounded and in hiding, says deserter.

Pershing removing base and concentrating troops to checkmate attack on isolated camps.

A special train of 12 box cars arrived at Vera Cruz with 250 men, women and children.

Snipers infest American line of communication, wound and kill many American truck drivers.

Eastern states sending 35,000 guardsmen to border; units from Oregon and Florida ready to move.

Seven thousand members of American Society of Civil Engineers to offer services for Mexican campaign.

Wilson to be authorized to draft National Guardsmen for federal service, $1,000,000 for relief of guardsmen's families.

War seems certain with reports that indicate all but 7 of U. S. cavalry command of over 100 was annihilated in Carrizal fight.

Approximately 10,000 Mexican troops are concentrated at Magdalena, 54 miles south of Nogales, according to authentic reports.

Twenty vessels in the coast guard service are being made ready for use as naval auxiliaries in case they are called on for Mexican duty.

Seven Americans were removed by Mexican officials from a passenger train which arrived at Laredo from Mexico City, passengers report.

Chief Executive Carranza has telegraphed to Gen. Trevino at Chihuahua City to forward at once a complete report giving details of the battle at Carrizal.

It is claimed by El Paso Mexican officials that the rebels of Coahuila, Durango and parts of Zacatecas and Chihuahua had joined cause with the government.

Funston has transmitted to the war department a revised list of 17 troopers of the Tenth cavalry captured by the Mexicans at Carrizal and held prisoners at Chihuahua City.

William Robertson and Tom Snyder, American cattlemen, have been killed by Mexicans southwest of Nacozari, Sonora, according to the statement of military officials from Agua Prieta.

A troop train of 20 cars, loaded with Carranza soldiers, arrived at Nuevo Laredo, opposite here. It is estimated there were 1,500 men on the train. Arrival of another troop train is reported.

The report that Gen. Carranza, as head of the de facto government, had rejected offers of mediation between Mexico and the United States, proffered by Costa Rica and Salvador is untrue.

National guardsmen in mobilization camps in the states included in the department of the east, under command of Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood, now number 18,217, it is officially announced.

American affairs in Mexico will be taken over by British diplomatic and consular officials in case of war. Arrangements have virtually been made for the taking over of Mexican interests at Washington by the French embassy.

When the national guard of Michigan and other states is mustered into the federal service, probably within the week, it will constitute the first instance of use in America of the "draft" as a means of supplying an army in the beginning of a war.

Sam H. Harris, a private in C troop of the Tenth cavalry, was brought to the border with bullet wounds in the left shoulder and arm, received in the engagement at Carrizal. He said that there were fully 100 Mexicans against the 84 men of the American detachment.

Captain Lewis Sidney Morey is safe, having reached the main body of American troops with two of his men.
General Funston received a message by telegraph from Mrs. Morey at Austin, Tex., that she had had a wireless message from him from "Somewhere in Mexico" to that effect.

Pope Benedict is much distressed over seeing virtually the whole world fighting, according to information coming from the Vatican, after the news of the combat between Americans and Mexicans had been received. The pon-tiff entertains hope that hostilities between the United States and Mexico will be averted through the intervention of Spain, which is supported by the Holy See.

The record for speed in mobilization is shared by New Jersey, Massachusetts and the District of Columbia.
All three had the units called out in company three days after receiving the war department order.

A copy of a message was brought to El Paso from Juarez, which is said authoritatively to be sent to all commanding officials throughout the revolution-riddled republic. The message reads: "At the outbreak of hostilities with the United States arrest all Catholics, scientists and other enemies of the constitutional government."

Detroit manufacturers are feeling a

The divorce suit of Clara Peck
Walte of Grand Rapids will not come to trial until some time in August. It is expected that an appeal in the case of Dr. Arthur Warren Walte will postpone his execution now set for the week of July 10.

"The demand for young men in business and industrial positions has been made even stronger by the Mexican situation," said H. F. Wegener, employment secretary of the Y. M. C.
A. "This demand comes to fill vacancies caused by young men being called to guard the Mexican border."

The chief of engineers of the United States war department has directed Major F. W. Olstaeffer, district engineer in charge of river and harbor
work along the east shore of Lake Michigan, to make a general survey of the Muskegon river from its mouth 35 miles inland to the dam at New-yago.

Rotten stringers carrying the sidewalk at the west end of Third street broke down under the weight of hundreds of Mardi Gras merrymakers returning to their homes from the east side and caused a panic. Fortunately an iron girder prevented the stringers from becoming completely released; otherwise many people would have been thrown into Saginaw river and drowned.

Dr. Perry Schurtz will not fight the estate of John E. Peck for the $25,000
he claimed for his services in detecting the poisoning of the wealthy Grand Rapids druggist and the conviction of
Dr. Arthur Walte. Shortly after receiving a check for $2,500 from Percy
S. Peck, Dr. Schurtz filed a claim for $25,000 in court. He has now announced that he will return the check together with a stipulation that the account has been settled in full.

According to the mortality report issued by Secretary of State Vaughan, 3,602 deaths occurred in Michigan during the month of May. During the same month 7,245 births were reported.

used in the manufacture of high explosives. Those buying for less pressing needs had the competition of the militaries where almost prohibitive.

The divorce suit of Clara Peck
Walte of Grand Rapids will not come to trial until some time in August. It is expected that an appeal in the case
of Dr. Arthur Warren Walte will postpone his execution now set for the week of July 10.

"The demand for young men in business and industrial positions has been made even stronger by the Mexican situation," said H. F. Wegener,
employment secretary of the Y. M. C.
A. "This demand comes to fill vacancies caused by young men being called to guard the Mexican border."

The chief of engineers of the United States war department has directed
Major F. W. Olstaeffer, district engineer in charge of river and harbor
work along the east shore of Lake Michigan, to make a general survey
of the Muskegon river from its mouth 35 miles inland to the dam at New-
yago.

Rotten stringers carrying the sidewalk at the west end of Third street
broke down under the weight of hundreds of Mardi Gras merrymakers returning to their homes from the east side and caused a panic. Fortunately an iron girder prevented the stringers from becoming completely
released; otherwise many people would have been thrown into Saginaw
river and drowned.

Dr. Perry Schurtz will not fight the estate of John E. Peck for the $25,000
he claimed for his services in detecting the poisoning of the wealthy Grand Rapids druggist and the conviction of
Dr. Arthur Walte. Shortly after receiving a check for $2,500 from Percy
S. Peck, Dr. Schurtz filed a claim for $25,000 in court. He has now announced that he will return the check together with a stipulation that the account has been settled in full.

Marie Gets Autograph, but Not One She Expected

WASHINGTON.—A smiling gentleman with eyeglasses walked down the gate, when one of two youngish women, just about to enter, pushed up to him with extended hand. The gentleman lifted his hat and shook the hand.

"Pardon me, Mr. President, but I just can't help telling you how perfectly lovely we think you are, Marie, this is Mr. Wilson. She lives in Wilkes-Barre and has never seen you—"

Marie from Wilkes-Barre ventured out a hand and the gentleman shook it. "I knew you the minute I saw you, Mr. President. Anybody would know you by your smile. You recognize him by his pictures, don't you, Marie? And, oh, Mr. President, will you mind giving Marie your autograph? It would be perfectly lovely to show it to them at home. Give the president your note book, Marie."

Marie held out the note book. The gentleman took it and wrote: "John T. Brown, Chicago."

It's all right to give his name. He told it himself to a newspaper-man.

Labor Department to Have Handsome New Building

CONTRACTS have been awarded for the construction of a thoroughly modern office building for the department of labor. The new home of the department of labor is to include many features not often found in ever the most modern office buildings. Commodious rest rooms for men and women employees and a roof garden, are among these features, which also include the probability of a cafe and restaurant for the use of employees of the department.

The new building is to occupy a site 92 by 101 feet on the south side of G street, just west of the corner of Seventeenth street, opposite the department's present home in the Mills building. Two dwellings, two old buildings that have stood since before the Civil war—one of which has been occupied as a branch of the Associated Charities—and a marble yard and ornamental cement works now occupy the site.

The building is to be nine stories in height, and the arrangement is to be such as to provide ample light and ventilation on all sides. Especial attention is being given in the preparation of the plans to provisions for the comfort and health of employees of the department, and it is claimed that the new building, when completed, is to be a model among buildings devoted to the use of government departments.

Materials to be used are buff brick and stone trim, the general style of the new building to be somewhat similar to that of the building occupied by the department of commerce at Nineteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

The department of labor has a lease on the building for a term of years at an annual rental of $24,000.

Neither "Eels" or "Snakes;" Merely Stringbeans

WHEN John S. Ward of Cherrydale, Va., sauntered into the District building the other day he managed to create a sensation unequalled since that memorable day when Detective Patrick O'Brien shaved off his mustache. The doorman looked at Ward suspiciously.

"I'm not sure you can bring eels into this place," he said.

Ward, lightly twirled the three-foot, limp and lifeless things that dangled from his right hand.

"They're not eels," he stated, confidently.

Then the elevator boy saw them. "Snakes!" he exclaimed, with sincere emotion. "Oh, my Lawd!"

And the elevator bounded skyward, with the elevator boy praying at every jump that the passenger wouldn't ride to the top floor.

However, that is what Ward did. He landed on the fifth floor and carried his treasure into one of the offices.

"Stringbeans," announced Ward, calmly. "They're three feet long, too."

There was no question about it. The stringbeans were measured, and one stringbean, upon which he lavished particular attention, reached the length of 44 inches, which he states is a stunning record-breaker for this part of the country. Six of Ward's stringbeans will provide a sufficient supply for a small family—providing the family isn't overfond of stringbeans.

The butt end of these mammoth beans is strongly reminiscent of the head of a reptile.

The Liberty Bell

By GRIF ALEXANDER

It is bulk without motion; a muck that knows lack;
A huge lump of metal; a bell with a crack;
A giant grown weakly; a day without noon;
A song lacking music; a tongue out of tune;
A tale still untold that it never can tell
So why should we cherish the Liberty Bell?

It was molded in glory and hallowed by age.
It was loved by the patriot, blessed by the sage.
'Tis a composite poem by sentiment fed.
The glowing oration of millions now dead.
'Tis a song that we love and we know very well.
Like the flag 'tis a symbol—the Liberty Bell!

Forever vibrating with freedom it lives!
It gives what it's getting; it gets what it gives.
The good it still praises; the bad it still blames;
And all the world over its message proclaims.
It speaks through our hearts. It is we who must tell
The world of the word of the Liberty Bell!

SAVED BELL FROM BRITISH

Patriotic Philadelphians Carried It to Allentown, Where It Was Buried

NO INCIDENT of Revolutionary times finds a more vivid and dramatic contrast in this day than the first trip of the Liberty Bell from Philadelphia, writes John A. Sheatz, ex-state treasurer of Pennsylvania, in the Philadelphia Press. That trip was to Allentown a year and two months after it became the Liberty Bell, at the time when Howe's army, victorious over the Continental forces at the battle of the Brandywine, was advancing for the capture of the city.

When the bell left for the San Francisco exposition last year it departed with the God-speed of the whole undivided city. It was escorted to the train by the First city troop and by the great assemblage gathered for the Fourth of July exercises on Independence square. It passed through streets thronged with venerable people. On the train it was under the escort of a large body delegated by the constituted municipal authorities. Its passage across the continent was a triumphal progress. A hundred cities along the route poured out their citizens to do it reverence as it passed and it was received at the other rim of the continent in reverential awe by a countless multitude.

Contrast With First Trip.
That is how the Bell travels today. It was very different in September, 1777. On that first trip to Allentown it went, not in daylight, but in the dead of night. Not with the music of bands and escorted in honor by multitudes, but in silence and under the guard of only one man. It went not in a special train but in a creaking old farm wagon loaded with manure, the better to conceal it.

For at that time there were many Tories in Philadelphia. These included families then counted among the foremost citizens. When the city was evacuated by the Continentals, these Tories came out of the obscurity in which they had been prudently lying and began preparing a welcome for Howe and his army. The following winter was a time of rare festivity for the British officers.

The British were expected by the city authorities, upon taking possession, to confiscate the church bells as spoils of war for the purpose of molding them into cannon. That was recognized as one of their rights as captors. It was to prevent this seizure that the executive council ordered the removal of the state house bell and the bells of Christ church and of nine other churches to Allentown by way of Bethlehem. I don't know why Allentown was selected unless it be that it was far enough away to keep the bells safe from the British.

Had Small Escort.
John Jacob Mickle, a soldier of the Continental army, was one of those detailed for the removal of the bells. To him the state house bell was entrusted. John Jacob Mickle was the son of Johann Jacob Mueckel (the German version of the name), and arrived in Philadelphia on the sailing vessel "Hope" in the early part of 1733. On August 27, 1733, he took the oath of allegiance to his adopted country. He was a farmer at Whitehall, Lehigh county, when the War of the Revolution broke out.

At Bethlehem Mickle's wagon broke down and the state house bell was transferred to the wagon of Jacob Lester, upon which it was hauled the remaining four miles. In the records of the Moravian church at Bethlehem is the following entry, under date of September 23, 1777: "The bells from Philadelphia brought in wagons, the wagon of the state house bell broke down here, so it had to be unloaded, the other bells went on."

Buried Under Church Floor.
The state house bell and the chimes of Christ church were buried beneath the floor of Zion Reformed church, Allentown. This church was built in 1762 of logs, rebuilt in stone in 1770, and again rebuilt later. The Rev. Abraham Blummer was pastor of the church at the time and assisted in the work of burying the bells. A tablet commemorating the event has been placed upon the church front and also a stained glass window with like purpose in the church.

After the evacuation of Philadelphia by the British, the bells were brought back and put in their respective places in the latter part of the year 1778.

Country Honored Lafayette.
It is said that "republics are ungrateful." That was not the case concerning Lafayette. Congress voted him the sum of $200,000 and a township of land; and, with the progressive development of the United States, the grateful American people named after him many cities, towns and counties, and erected monuments and statues to his memory enough for any measure of ambition.

By the rude bridge that spans the flood,
Their flag to April's airs unfurled.
Here once the embattled farmers stood
And fired the shot heard 'round the world.

The farmers of Lexington carried the cornet or standard of the Three County Troop. This banner was devised in the counties of Essex, Suffolk and Middlesex, Massachusetts, in 1659. The office of color bearer of this troop was a sort of inheritance in the Page family. The standard was carried in King Philip's war in 1676. When the Minute Men were organized Nathaniel Page III of Bedford took the old flag for use at drill. At the midnight alarm Captain Page snatched up the standard and carried it with him to Concord, where it "waved above the smoke of that battle."

The flag is now preserved under glass in a drop roof safe of the public

Traveling Coat of Gray Chinchilla

Everyone who goes traveling wants a coat that will serve for walking and for motoring, to be comfortable and look smart in. Here is one that engages to fill all these requirements, and do even more. How it arrived at such chic lines, with so few seams, is a thing to marvel at and to commend in its designer. In the picture it is shown made of gray chinchilla, but one can imagine its elegance in covert cloth, in homespun or almost any of the coatings that are made up for practical, all-round wear.

The back of the coat and collar is all in one piece, and the top of the sleeve is extended to the collar. There are ample turned-back cuffs and serviceable pockets, and a collar that furnishes both style and real protection. The collar is faced with silk like the coat in color and may be fastened up

Swimming Suits of Wool Jersey Cloth

Any number of clever answers to the question of beach clothes has put the unsightly bathing suit entirely out of countenance. Swimming suits, bathing frocks and shore dresses are designed to add to the enchantment of the beach, for the summer girl insists that they must be pretty. Dresses for the shore and for bathing are made of taffeta, poplin, pongee, fiber silk, and other stuffs, with hat or cap, shoes and hose all carefully thought out, and the outfits for water sports are as pleasing as any others.

For the girl who swims much, or paddles the precarious canoe, regular swimming suits are made of wool jersey cloth like those shown in the picture. Navy blue remains the best-looking color, but there are brown and green and two-color mixtures as well. Nearly all the solid-color suits are bordered with a braid in white or white with a color. In two-color mixtures one of the colors is used for the narrow bands that make the borders.

In bathing frocks plaid silks are used for trimming plain colors. Broad stripes and pointed skirts are novelties that are liked, and shades of knitted silk have added color touches. Swimming suits are in two pieces, with knickers extending to the knees.

The one-piece overgarment sets close to the figure and fastens on the shoulder or slips on like a sweater, without fastening. It is slashed up at each side in order not to hamper the swimmer. Occasionally a suit is shown with elastic bands across the service.

With these trim and practical suits satin sandals are worn and brightly colored diving caps of rubber. They are for the girl who spends her time in the water, and are made for real service.

Bathing frocks for the beach and bathing are made with blouses and full skirts, and there are swimming suits less scant in the skirt than those shown in the illustration, but added fullness means added weight. For those who like the beach but not the water, there are shore costumes, but they are few as compared to the unending variety to be found in bathing frocks.

A LETTER FROM ROME

By SUSAN E. CLAGETT.

He had come across the continent to see her and as he stood in her sitting room he was fully alive to its homely comfort. Manlike, he did not notice its suggestion of shabbiness.

He had been in the country a week and had, as yet, found no opportunity for the question he had come to ask. As he waited for her he wondered why.

But he was determined to know tonight where he stood. Was it possible she had changed? He squared his shoulders and threw back his head. No. That was out of the question. Their correspondence had faltered occasionally, but had always been resumed, even after the two or three amazing letters he had received from her several years before.

He put his hand in his pocket and drew out a well-worn letter and was reading it as she came into the room.

"That was the first," he said. "I received it in Athens. The others reached me while I was in Cairo. There were four in all, and they about spoiled my trip. They were remarkable letters, Eleanor, remarkable from the fact that they were written by so cold a woman as you. I have read them every day and every day have wondered at the imbecile reply I sent you from Rome."

"Whatever the reason, I have long regretted that letter, and I hope you will believe me when I say it is my dearest hope that you will consent to be my wife."

She did not answer at once and her reply was not direct when it came. "I would like to tell you a story, Judge Norton," she said.

"It commenced a good many years ago, this story of a man and a woman ran its way through friendship and ended, as is usual in such cases, with one of them becoming somewhat more than a friend. The man, it was, when he was serious, she laughed. Not in ridicule, but because, although she cared in a way, it was not enough to make marriage desirable. The man went away, but their correspondence did not take the place of his companionship and each time he returned she felt she had grown a little nearer to him, but could not bring herself to let him see what she knew he wished to know, although he said little."

"The odd part of the story, your honor, is, the young woman never thought the man might change. At first she was sorry this was so, but as her home life, always difficult, now became intolerable, she turned to him, never doubting an immediate response. Made desperate by conditions she could not bear, she asked him to come to her."

"It was a heart letter, but it brought no reply. Many weeks later, she received two or three lines. They told her he was on his way east."

"She watched for him, but the days passed without further word. Then a line came to her from his old home. He had passed her by, the first time in all the years of their friendship, and she was in trouble. Yet so dulled was she by wretchedness that even then she did not doubt him."

"Their last evening together was a nightmare for her to remember. Her coldness had chilled him, else he would have spoken. Of this she was sure. She must tell him plainly she cared. Then she committed the folly of her life. She wrote to him. Not one letter, but several. They were all love letters. That much she knows. What she said, she has mercifully forgotten. Then one day came a letter from Rome."

"She laughed when she read it. 'What has come over the man?' she asked herself. When realization came to her she was numbed, frozen by what she had done. The thought that she had told him she cared bit so deeply into her pride there had to be a reaction."

"As a judge, you, yourself, have been called upon to decide nice questions, questions where the distinctions are subtle. Was the woman in the wrong? She thinks not. But she can glimpse the man's amazement as he read those letters; his feelings, that even if his actions were confirmatory until those last days, she had no right to attach importance to them until he had said the words that would support them."

"He has come back and now asks in plain words what he asked many years ago when they were young together—what he asked by implication year after year. She is no longer young. She is alone. Her support comes from her own efforts and sometimes she grows very tired. His offer means wealth, leisure. Her love for him is dead. But she feels warm, friendliness. Will friendliness and companionship take the place of that other feeling now that she is past youth? Does he really care, or is his desire for her merely a pang of conscience that he should have so hurt her?"

Long before she had finished Judge Norton had left his place before the fire and was walking slowly back and forth the length of the room. As her voice ceased he stepped before her.

"I show up pretty badly, Eleanor. I did not know how badly, but I will be thankful for your friendship and companionship if you will give them to me. I have been a very lonely man since I sent you that letter from Rome. Will you go back there with me?"

"Yes, whenever you wish."

Career of Historic Coast Guard Cutter Is Ended

THE remarkable and historic career of the coast guard cutter Thetis, covering a period of 35 years, is done. Having "outlived her usefulness," in the cold, matter-of-fact way in which she is thrown into the discard as superannuated by the officials of the coast guard, who consider only efficiency, she was sold recently for $23,100.

In normal times the Thetis would have fetched, coast guard officials estimate, less than $4,000. The present scarcity of ships caused many firms to submit bids for the vessel. Even at the price $23,100, however, officials believe she virtually will pay for herself on her first commercial trip because of the prevailing high rates of ocean transportation. It was the Thetis, in this quest, while a third ship, the Alert, found the way barred to her endeavors.

This was the feat that brought an undying and unquestioned glory to her commander, then Commander Winfield Scott Schley, afterward the hero of Santiago, and the other naval officers and men who accompanied him in this Greeley relief expedition.

Scattered over a U-shaped area a mile long, covering 450 acres, a great powder plant, costing upward of $1,500,000, was recently completed in five months at Drummondville, Quebec, by an American firm of engineers and constructors. Two acid-making plants added to the original contract have since been built, at an additional cost of $500,000. As described in the current issue of the Engineering Record, the work as a whole required extensive clearing and grading, the construction of 75 concrete, brick, and timber buildings, and a railroad yard, the installation of heavy machinery, and the fitting of an extraordinary quantity of pipe. It will be operated by the Aetna Chemical company of Canada for the manufacture of gun cotton and smokeless powder.

"I HAVE REGAINED FORMER ENERGY."

Mrs. Hackley Comes Out Strongly In Favor of Tanlac.

Mrs. Addie Hackley, of Mattawan, Michigan, writes: "Tanalac has given me the first relief from stomach trouble and nervousness I have known in eight years. My nerves have been in a terrible condition and the least little excitement would upset me badly and cause me great distress. I hardly knew what it was to get a good night's rest. My stomach became disordered and my digestion impaired. I lost my appetite and the sight of food would some times nauseate me. I was depressed and melancholy.

"After reading about Tanlac I decided to try it and got my husband to get me a bottle in Kalamazoo. Since using the medicine regularly I feel like a different woman. My nerves are steady and my stomach is in good condition. I have a good appetite and good digestion. I have regained my former energy and ambition. I am glad to praise Tanlac for it is a good medicine for all."

Tanalac may be obtained here at the store of H. H. Penn Co.

A recital of piano-forte music and dramatic readings will be given by the pupils of Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell at Macabee hall, Friday evening, June 30th at 8 o'clock. A ten cent admission will be charged to defray expenses. The summer course commences July 6th.

Federal Inquiry or Railroad Strike?

Faced by demands from the conductors, engineers, firemen and brakemen that would impose on the country an additional burden in transportation costs of $100,000,000 a year, the railroads propose that this wage problem be settled by reference to an impartial Federal tribunal.

With these employees, whose efficient service is acknowledged, the railroads have no differences that could not be considered fairly and decided justly by such a public body.

Railroads Urge Public Inquiry and Arbitration

The formal proposal of the railroads to the employees for the settlement of the controversy is as follows:

"Our conferences have demonstrated that we cannot harmonize our differences of opinion and that eventually the matters in controversy must be passed upon by other and disinterested agencies. Therefore, we propose that your proposals and the proposition of the railroads be disposed of by one or the other of the following methods:

1. Preferably by submission to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the only tribunal which, by reason of its accumulated information bearing on railway conditions and its control of the revenue of the railroads, is in a position to consider and protect the rights and equities of all the interests affected, and to provide additional revenue reasonable; or, in the event the Interstate Commerce Commission cannot, under existing laws, act in the premises, that we jointly request Congress to take such action as may be necessary to enable the Commission to consider and promptly dispose of the questions involved; or

2. By arbitration in accordance with the provisions of the Federal law" (The Newlands Act).

Leaders Refuse Offer and Take Strike Vote

Leaders of the train service brotherhoods, at the joint conference held in New York, June 1-15, refused the offer of the railroads to submit the issue to arbitration or Federal review, and the employees are now voting on the question whether authority shall be given these leaders to declare a nation-wide strike.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is proposed by the railroads as the public body to which this issue ought to be referred for these reasons:

No other body with such an intimate knowledge of railroad conditions has such an unquestioned position in the public confidence.

The rates the railroads may charge the public for transportation are now largely fixed by this Government board.

Out of every dollar received by the railroads from the public nearly one-half is paid directly to the employees as wages; and the money to pay increased wages can come from no other source than the rates paid by the public.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, with its control over rates, is in a position to make a complete investigation and render such decision as would protect the interests of the railroad employees, the owners of the railroads, and the public.

A Question For the Public to Decide

The railroads feel that they have no right to grant a wage preferment of $100,000,000 a year to these employees, now highly paid and constituting only one-fifth of all the employees, without a clear mandate from a public tribunal that shall determine the merits of the case after a review of all the facts.

The single issue before the country is whether this controversy is to be settled by an impartial Government inquiry or by industrial warfare.

FOOLED THE BUNGO STEERER

Texas Was Altogether Too Wide-awake to "Fall" for Any Such Barefaced Trickery.

One evening while Colonel Richie's regiment was stationed at the fair grounds a bronzed and broad-shouldered Texan walked into a hotel office, says a New Orleans paper, and, squaring himself at a table, began the task of composing a letter. It was evidently a hard job. He stuck out his tongue, scratched his head, changed pens a dozen times, and went through all the contortions of a man with a bad case of St. Vitus' dance before he concluded the epistle. Then he fished out a black wallet, unwound a strap a yard long, and extracted a $5 bill, which he carefully folded up with the sheet.

By that time the performance had excited the sympathetic interest of several bystanders, and one of them pointed out the mail box in the corner. "Just put your letter in there, my friend," he said. "Hey!" exclaimed the Texan, glancing up. "I said to drop your letter in that box," repeated the other. The big inmate bent upon him a look of unutterable scorn. "Well, I've heard tell of all kinds of city bunks games," he said slowly, "but that's the dumbest barefaced one of the hull lot! Don't you say nothing, now, or I'll have to smash y'. Say, mister!" he called to the clerk, "kin you tell me where the postmaster keeps his shop?" He was given the proper directions, and returned beaming.

"Say," he asked one of the hotel staff confidentially, "do I really look as green as all that—like I'd bite at such a game?" He was assured that he looked like a thoroughbred, and went away happy. "Hope to die if I ever give any more tips to a Texan," was the comment of the gentleman who pointed out the box.

NO RAISE FOR LEVINSKY

Goldstein Was Able to Prove With Cold Figures That His Employees Did Not Deserve It.

Levinsky worked for Goldstein at $15 a week for a year or so. Then one day he plucked up courage and asked Mr. Goldstein for a raise.

Goldstein said: "Vy do you wish a raise for? Vat do you do vit your time?"

Says Levinsky: "For you I volk eight hours; I sleep eight hours and I play around for eight hours."

"Den," says Goldstein, "I show to you vy you do not deserve any raise. Look! Dere is 365 days in the year. Yeh? You say yourself you sleep for eight hours a day. Dat is von told of the year, so ve take it away, 122 days, and dere is left 243. Den ve will take away the time you play around, vich is another 122 days, and ve half 121 days. Now you don't haf to work Sundays, so ve vill take away 52, vich lets us 69."

By this time Levinsky was thinking hard.

"Also," says Goldstein, "you haf off Saturday afternoon, vich is 36 more days, leaving 43. Also for lunch off day you lose so much time, say for the year 14 days, vich lets only 29. Now for all these Shentile holidays in the year, vich are 18 in all, ve must deduct it, vich lets only one day—that is for Yom Kippur; so you see, Levinsky, the matter is you do not volk for me enuff that I should raise you even a little."

Bibles on Watch-Chains.

The devout in all lands have their own particular way of giving outward demonstration to their piety. In Russia it frequently takes the form of wearing miniature Bibles as charms on the watch-chain. They are got up in attractive form: about an inch square and three-eighths of an inch in thickness, and contain the first five books of the Old Testament. The text of the book is in Hebrew and the titles in Latin. It is true that the book could not be read without the aid of a powerful magnifying glass, but that does not trouble the Russian "unco" goid; he places great reliance on the fact that he carries the "word" on his person.

Forgetting Things Learned in Haste.

To commit "points" to memory during a few hours or days of intense application immediately preceding an examination, for instance, little or no work having been performed during the previous course of the term, is a bad mode of study, say scientists. Things learned thus in a few hours, on one occasion, for one purpose, cannot possibly have formed many associations with other things in the mind. Their brain processes are led into by few paths and are relatively little liable to be awakened again. Speedy oblivion is the almost inevitable fate of all that is committed to memory in this simple way.

A' Ye Blind?

A large firm in Aberdeen, says Pearson's Weekly, recently engaged as office boy a raw country youth. It was part of his duties to attend to the telephone in his master's absence. When first called upon to answer the bell, in reply to the usual query, "Are you there?" he nodded assent. Again the question came, and still again, and each time the boy gave an answering nod. When the question came for the fourth time, however, the boy, losing his temper, roared through the telephone:

"Man, a' ye blind? I've been noddin' me head off for the last half hour!"

Man Should Pick Life's Work by Time He Is Twenty

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

By the time a man is twenty, if his occupation has not been chosen for him in childhood, and if he has not allowed chance opportunity to determine it for him, he should know what his inclinations are. If he is to be a mechanic, he will by that time find himself tinkering with machines. If he is to be a newspaper man, he already will have composed several epic poems and a blank verse tragedy. If he is to be a politician, he will be a leader at school and have several henchmen doing his algebra for him.

It is such indications as these that reveal the boy's real inclination. If his parents and teachers are alert and intelligent enough to perceive and encourage these tendencies, the boy has taken the first step toward success. But if he has a love for building motors, and yet studies law because he has an opportunity to go into his father's office, as did one young man of splendid natural endowment, he has foredoomed himself to mediocrity.

For the scientists tell us that the fixation of habit is an element which enters into a man's career as soon as he has chosen it, and slowly but surely binds him to it for better or for worse. At fourteen, perhaps, Tommy might adopt any one of several occupations. At twenty-one his inclination has become pretty well fixed. At twenty-five he has begun to discover his limitations and special-ize upon the things he can really do. By thirty he is pretty well fixed in his position in life, and a radical change will be difficult. His occupation, whether it is the one for which he is fit or not, has formed permanent grooves in his mind. By the time he has reached middle age a radical change is practically impossible.

Mother's Cook Book

Fruit Bars.

Mix two and one-half cupsful of flour, two and one-half cupsful of rolled oats, one cupful each of shortening and brown sugar, one-half cupful of sour milk, and a teaspoonful of soda. Flour the board generously, roll thin and cut with an oblong cutter. Put a half pound of dates and a half cupful of pecan meats through the meat chopper, mix this and roll out in a thin sheet and cut with the same cutter. Put a layer of date paste between every two of the cookie dough, sandwich fashion, and bake in a hot oven. When cold pack edgewise in a jar. Hide the jar.

Apricot Shortcake.

Make a rich biscuit dough, roll out and cut with a large biscuit cutter and bake. Cook six apricots either fresh or dry with the juice of half a lemon, and half a cupful of sugar, mash, strain and flavor with a quarter of a teaspoonful of almond extract. Put three half apricots between the cakes and a half one on top. Pour the sirup over all and fill the top apricot with sweetened whipped cream.

Jam Omelet.

Beat the yolks of five eggs light with a tablespoonful of powdered sugar; into this stir a teaspoonful of cornstarch mixed with three tablespoonfuls of milk, cook. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and cook in a buttered omelet pan until set. Spread with jam, fold and serve sprinkled with powdered sugar. Serve as a dessert.

Escalloped Eggs.

Make a white sauce as for creamed eggs. Cook six eggs in the shell, cut in eighths lengthwise, put a layer of white sauce, then a layer of eggs and a layer of chopped olives using a fourth of a cupful of olives, repeat and finish the top with a thick layer of buttered crumbs using a cupful and an half of crumbs. Bake until the crumbs are brown.

Egg and Ham Timbales.

Cook together two tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter, add a cupful of milk and when smooth and thick cool and add three beaten eggs and two cupfuls of chopped ham, season well with pepper and salt and put into timbale molds to cook in hot water until firm. Stuffed eggs are always appetizing and may be served as a hot dish with a white sauce.

Some men would growl about the weather if it rained silver dollars.

Advice to an actor: When the whistle blows look out for the locomotive.

Not Entirely a Fool.

Kutcher—Did Jones lock the stable door after the horse was gone?

Bocker—Certainly; there was another horse.

Just Smiles.

Use of Platform.

Bacon—Don't you think there is a great similarity between a political platform and one on a trolley car?

Egbert—Sure, nobody's supposed to stand on either.

Lucky.

Patience—Peggy says that her face is her fortune.

Patrice—Well, it's a good thing it's the kind of a fortune she can't leave to anyone when she's gone.

Not Necessary.

Lady of the House—Say, Dinah, did you clean the fish?

Dinah—Law, no missus! Why should Ah clear dat fish? He done lib all his life in de watah.—Pup-pet.

No Doubt.

Bill—I see that fresh-caught sea fish are said to form the principal ingredient in an artificial rubber invented in Holland.

Jill—Come to think of it, I've heard of some "bouncing" sea fish.

Brought to Book.

He (grumblingly)—My hand's always in my pocket.

She (sharply)—Then how is it you can't feel there the letters I give you to mail?

The Danger.

"It was while traveling in Switzerland that I proposed to Miss Smith on the verge of a mountain gorge."

"Horrors! Suppose she had thrown you over!"

Ain't This Awful.

Heiny—Anna Little was recently wedded to Andrew Lott.

Omar—Well, what of it?

Heiny—Oh, it was merely a case of A Little becoming A Lott.

Both Disappointed.

Husband (angrily)—When I married you I thought I was getting a helpmate.

Wife (calmly)—And I thought I was getting a man who could supply the meat so I could help myself.

Its Contrariness.

"A club buffet furnishes but paradoxical comfort."

"How so?"

"Because the members often use it when they are out of spirits."

About Women

Of the 5,864,493 farmers in the United States, 257,703 are women.

Miss Maude Meagher is the world's successful writer of masques.

Women in Denmark, Finland and Sweden outnumber the men by over 300,000.

Miss Grace R. Finney, head of the circulation department of the public library of Washington, handled over 800,000 books last year.

For her relief work in behalf of French war sufferers, Mrs. Edith Wharton, the novelist, has been presented with the French Legion of Honor medal.

Women are in a majority in nine occupations—musicians or teachers of music, school teachers, boarding house keepers, housekeepers, landladies, nurses, servants, stenographers and typists.

SAVED ARM

Plucky Woman Terribly Burned—Wouldn't Allow Amputation.

Most people in Michigan will be interested in the case of Mrs. A. P. Brown, of Dryden, N. Y., whose husband says: "My wife burned arm so the muscles projected like a shelf. The arm was so stiff she could not straighten it. Physicians failing to heal the arm, wished to operate. We refused and treated it with Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh. She can use the arm extensively—Balsam of Myrrh saved the arm."

BREVITIES

DEXTER—Thos. Birkett has given this village the use of the land between the Huron river bridge and the mill dam for park uses.

BRIGHTON—Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Stonex have moved from Dexter to Brighton and will occupy the Episcopal parsonage in which they lived many years ago.—Brighton Argus.

JACKSON—A Daughter of the American Revolution makes objection to the practice of children playing with the national flag and dragging it in the dust and dirt of the street. She states the action has been general and often repeated, and that these children should be taught to elevate and respect the flag and not degrade it.—Patriot.

YPSILANTI—A model city in miniature, the work of Frederick Cleveland, of the circulating division of the Normal library, is on exhibition in the parlors of the Presbyterian church. It consists of a school, a church, a hospital and a library, and is made of gray cardboard. The church windows are stained glass, the hospital has screened porches and the school is a duplicate of Ypsilanti's new high school.—Ypsilanti Record.

DEXTER—When he fell from a box car on the Michigan Central line at Dexter Sunday while beating his way on the road with two companions, Patrick O'Farrell, who claims Providence, R. I., as his home, sustained a fractured leg. Marshal Fred Wyman had the man removed to a hospital where his injury was dressed. Thirteen dollars which the man had in his pocket were appropriated by the authorities to pay for the treatment given him.

JACKSON—Again I am reminded that the citizens of this town are slow to recognize and applaud patriotic features in form of progress during march. An evidence was afforded on "Preparedness Day," when the great Old Glory, borne by the Elks, and measuring 30x45 feet, passed without a good, glad hand. And the same was noted Wednesday of this week, when the Eagles pulled off their great parade. The citizens stood as if paralyzed. We are a cold bunch.—Saturday Evening Star.

STOCKBRIDGE—As a result of considerable controversy here over the digging of what is known as the Lowe Lake Drain, which was taken up before the state highway commission, a decision has been handed down that the same is necessary and that it is to go through. Parties from Gregory have been fighting this matter, as it will necessarily lead to the removal of a dam a little below Williamsville lake which is the source of the electric light supply for Gregory. The commission also decided that the dam was a detriment to the property owners along the source of the stream back and that the same was to be removed. It is expected the work of surveying will begin soon.

JACKSON—As the result of recent difficulties encountered in the handling of blind pig cases in which women, with children, are the offenders, the sheriff's department has hit upon a new scheme which, while somewhat expensive, it is believed will go a long way toward solving the problem. Hereafter, when a woman is arrested, her children will be placed in the Friendly Home in this city, her household goods placed in storage and the accused sent to jail unless she is able to furnish bail. The difficulty has arisen in the handling of blind pig cases among the foreign population of the city. Women arrested invariably appear in court carrying infants to incite pity. The result has been that most women have been released upon the payment of a fine or the case nolle prossed.

BROOKLYN—Mrs. W. H. Kinney who lives in the Henry Keusch house is under quarantine for diphtheria. She is not severely ill with the disease, but is about doing her work as usual. The family will remain in rigid quarantine, however, because culture from her throat have under repeated tests shown real diphtheria germs. In medical terms Mrs. Kinney is known as a "carrier." She has had a sore throat at intervals since moving here in March, and while apparently immune to the disease herself, has developed and carried the germs, unwittingly endangering the whole community. Mrs. Kinney is being given the anti-toxin treatment. Meanwhile the local physicians urge that any case of sore throat in this community be immediately inspected, as a precaution.—Brooklyn Exponent.

Not the Day for Chicken.
Little May was sent to call her father for supper. He was talking with some friends over the front fence. May was anxious to get her father in to supper, and one of the men noticed this, said to her: "You must have something good for supper to-night. What is it, chicken?" May looked quickly up and answered: "Oh, no, sir; today ain't Sunday."

HORSES AND DRIVERS ALIKE

Their Respective Callings Seem to Bear Out to Perfection Harmony in Appearance.

Ever notice how the horse resembles the driver—or the driver the horse? Inquires the Columbus (O.) Dispatch. Here stands an old horse hitched to a scavenger's wagon. The driver, the wagon and the horse all resemble each other. The wheels of the wagon do not "track." They wobble around, making serpentine tracks, and creak and groan as they rumble along. The horse has a spavin on one leg and a misshapen hoof on one foot and a few white patches on his back where the harness in other days has made sores. And there is the driver, poking about in the barrels in the alleys, unkempt, wobbly in his gait, uncertain upon his feet, dejection in his features—for all the world like the horse and wagon.

Here comes a fellow down the street driving a high-headed horse, with shiny harness. It seems out of date, of course, for the motor car has rendered obsolete the best of horses and the finest of carriages. But the driver is of the same stripe—a smooth-looking fellow, well groomed and habited in flashy apparel. But he, too, seems a bit out of date; at least he carries you back to the "sporty" days of the past. He and the buggy and the horse resemble each other as nearly as the scavenger and his outfit resemble each other.

There goes an ice wagon—a pair of ponderous Norman horses, with strength in every feature. And on the seat of the wagon sits a man of strength, with good, strong arms and robust body, resembling the stability of the wagon and the team.

You can go through the whole list and you will find the resemblance of driver and team and vehicle. We wonder if it will come to be the case with the motor cars when we have a motorized world. We half suspect it will.

THINK MUCH OF ENVIRONMENT

Breeders of Black Cattle Will Have Nothing of Light Color About Their Establishments.

The breeders of the Polled Angus—a particular race of black cattle in Scotland—who make a great point of keeping up the perfect uniformity of their blackness, getting rid of every individual that has even a single white foot, take care to have everything black about their farmsteads. All the buildings are black, the horses are black, the dogs are black, the fowls are black. No breeder will have anything colored or white about his place.

Though no account can be given of the physiological action which makes these precautions effective (as they are asserted to be) in securing the desired results, yet some scientists are strongly inclined to think that some influence of this kind is concerned in producing many singular correspondences between the surface aspect of fishes and crustacea inhabiting shallow waters and the character of the bottoms on which they live.

Putting the Baby to Sleep.
In the matter of sleep, babies are inclined to be contrary. You must first form the time-honored habit of walking the floor with him. Care must be taken not to walk on a highly polished hardwood floor, for if you should happen to drop him he is likely to scratch up the nice, smooth surface. Pick out a room with a rug or a carpet in it, preferably one where your wife has been sewing during the day. In this way the pleasure of the walk will be increased by the delightful pastime of picking pins out of the soles of your feet ever and anon, and the baby will have further opportunity of increasing his vocabulary.

If you object to walking the floor and are willing to stoop to deception you might hire somebody to drive a heavy cart up and down on the cobblestones in front of the house. The baby will think it is the milkman on his morning rounds, and, satisfied that he has kept you awake all night, he will go to sleep with a clear conscience. However, he will never have the same confidence in you after he grows up and learns how you have deceived him.

Had to Have "Owl Car."
A conductor on the Cottage Grove line insists that the following incident really occurred on New Year's morning:

The car was proceeding at about ten o'clock in the morning, when a tipsy individual who had been celebrating the arrival of the new year throughout the night stepped on to the track, and halted the motorman, saying: "Shay, m' fren', is zish Cottage Grove owl car?"

On being assured that it was a Cottage Grove car, but not an owl, he waddled unsteadily back to his seat on the curb, exclaiming:

"Go along, then; I'm waiting for an owl car."—Chicago News.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

"Pa, were you ever caught smoking when you were a boy?" asked Tommy Slathers, who had been invited to the woodshed for a private interview with his father.

"Why—er—yes," answered Mr. Slathers.

"Did your father punish you?"

"No, he didn't."

"Then I hope you won't be hard on me because you have caught me smoking."

I'll Try

When difficulties line his way,
I like to hear a fellow say:
I'll try!

Confronted by a task that's new,
Perhaps a dangerous mission, too,
I like to see him think it out,
Sum up his chances and reply:
I'll try!

There's something in the boy or man
Who rules himself upon this plan:
I'll try!

Too many say: "I can't" before They've ever looked a problem o'er;
Responsibility they shirk,
And seem to fear unusual work.
This is the phrase of do or die,
I'll try!

Would there were more young men to-day
When duty calls to them, who'd say
I'll try!

Would fear had not so strong a hold
On mortals, and that more were bold;
Bold in their willingness to face
The tasks that are not commonplace—
To answer doubt with this reply:
I'll try!

—Edgar A. Guest, in Detroit Free Press.

Taffeta Frocks

Undoubtedly many practical frocks of the tailored type made of taffeta will be worn by the young girl as well as by her older sister, and charming examples are on view in shops which make a specialty of clothing for the younger contingent. One such model is fashioned from taffeta checked in green, brown and white and made with a blouse jacket, the waistline of which is defined by a narrow belt of the material placed at a high waistline. The skirt is gathered and untrimmed. There are collar and cuffs of white linen embroidered in green and brown silk.

Season of Satin.

Satins are in for a good season. They will contribute to the development of dressy costumes as well as to street frocks and coats. It is anticipated that satins in the dark colors—in so far as they may be obtained—will be in demand. Otherwise there will be satin fancies in light colors toned down with dark colors to please the woman who likes her demi-taille of some fabric other than cloth.

Genius—Whence Comes It?

No Amount of Training or Environment
Can Create It, but a Child's Natural Talents
May Be Developed by Cultivation.

By SIDONIE MATZNER GRUENBERG

No Environment Can Develop Qualities That Are Not There.

"IS IT possible to make a musical genius out of my child by providing a favorable environment for him?"

This question was asked by an ambitious mother of a very young infant. This is the kind of question that mothers (and fathers, too, no doubt) often ask themselves, but feel too timid or modest to ask the family physician. When the question is answered in the affirmative efforts are stimulated, and after many years there is disillusionment and disappointment. When the question is answered in the negative there is disappointment and often neglect and indifference.

The fact is that the question itself involves a contradiction. A genius is an exceptional person by very "nature"—that is, by having inherited a combination of qualities that makes him distinct from his fellows. The most that the environment can do for him is to make possible the formation of certain habits, the cultivation of certain interests, the development of certain native powers. In other words, the environment can provide conditions favorable for the growth of genius; but it can never create genius out of mediocre capacities.

One need not go very far in a study of the development of children to realize how incompletely do the capacities of most individuals ever develop, compared to the possibilities latent at birth. Every individual is born with rather definite limits to what he may become, whether it be in music or in science, in art or in business, in golf or in astronomy. But it is very sel-

Fashion's Edicts.

Fashion influences are now one of several Russian, Spanish, Directorate or Oriental.

The more novel the shape and coloring of the parasol, the more fashionable it is.

Khaki-kool is an imported eastern silk used for men's suitings and now for women's sports coats, suits and frocks.

Second empire styles in veils fall in with the fashions. They are sometimes nothing more than a frill on the hat, but throw a becoming shade on the face.

Pastel shades in broadcloth are used for daytime coats. The raglan sleeve is prominent.

Remember the inevitable touch of red on your costume if you would be "on time" in fashiondom.

An infantry helmet of the blue faille is a millinery inspiration.

With the new vogue for leather trimmings and accessories of all kinds there are now being offered sets of leather articles which consist of stock collar, gloves and tie to match.

A blouse developed in peace-gray crepe georgette is unique in the single rose motif embroidered in purple and green on each side of the waist front. The collar and cuff have orchid purple silk hemstitched to the crepe.

The supreme court held that a rehearing should be denied in the matter of Homer C. Millen against Nathan S. Potter, sr., an echo of the sensational suit tried in the circuit court a year ago and in which a court award gave Millen $66,666.66. The case was appealed and the decision of the lower court affirmed. A motion for rehearing was then made and this was denied Friday.

W. B. Ewing is in receipt of a letter from his son Thomas, who was wounded in a skirmish with Mexican bandits recently, saying that the wound is slightly infected, but that it is thought there is no danger. The injury was caused by an explosive bullet which passed through his arm, struck his gun and exploded. The surgeons have been busy picking pieces of the shell from his chest.

Miss Emilie Steinbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Steinbach of this place, left New York city last Saturday for an auto trip through the New England states and lower Canada. Miss Steinbach will continue her studies in New York the coming year.

During the storm Friday night one of the rotaries in the Commonwealth power house, on south Main street, became short circuited and was put out of commission. The lightning arrester of the company at the plant of the Michigan Portland Cement Co. at Four Mile Lake was also burned out by lightning following the wires. The crew of linemen who were working here were called out at midnight and commenced work on the necessary repairs. The linemen have changed the location the high tension wires across the site of the Chelsea Screw Co.'s new building.

The H. C. Hanson Co. of Chicago has been awarded the contract for furnishing the state of Michigan with automobile, motorcycle and chauffeurs' license plates for the year 1927. The bid of the Chicago firm was a matter of $400 lower than that of the Abbott Stamping Co. of Detroit, which has the contract for the current year. On regular automobile plates the Hanson bid was fourteen cents per pair, on motorcycle plates five and one-half cents a pair, and for chauffeurs' badges five cents. The license plates for next year will be black with white letters and figures.

Alvin Riedel, son of Mrs. Mary Riedel of Lincoln street, had a narrow escape Wednesday. Alvin and his brother "Billy" were playing with a gun which they supposed contained an empty shell, as they had "broken" the gun and the shell showed that it had been punctured. "Billy" had snapped the gun several times while it was aimed at his brother, and at last the shell exploded. A few weeks ago "Billy" had made some blank cartridges using a loading outfit that belonged to his older brother, and it is thought that he had placed one of them in the gun and had forgotten about it. The contents of the shell struck Alvin's right side, and while the wound is very painful, no serious results are looked for, unless some complications set in.

The Profit That Chelsea Readers Cannot Deny.

What could furnish stronger evidence of efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills have brought lasting results. Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test. Mrs. W. D. Arnold, E. Middle street, Chelsea, says: "I suffered greatly from dull, nagging backaches and distressing pains in the region of my kidneys. My kidneys gave me a great deal of annoyance. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Fenn's drug store, and they helped me wonderfully. They banished the pains in my back and corrected the action of my kidneys." (Statement given July 7, 1909.)

Over Three Years Later, Mrs. Arnold said: "My cure has been permanent and I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit." Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Arnold has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

SYNOPSIS.

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanatorium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself in an incoherent and uncomprehending figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Verrees, old town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. At the Sheridan housewarming banquet Sheridan spreads himself. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Mary shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—just queer. He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe, Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to look after the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family help in his grief. Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her.

Love has awakened in the bosom of Bibbs—shy, hopeless love for something unattainable. The emotion is reflected in his gentleness with his grief-stricken father. Will it stir his ambition and impel him to activity that will help him win the girl finally? Will Old Sheridan come to understand and appreciate?

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

There came a second explosion, and Uncle Gideon ran out into the hall. Bibbs went to the head of the great staircase, and, looking down, discovered the source of the disturbance. Gideon's grandson, a boy of fourteen, had brought his camera to the funeral and was taking "flashlights" of the Moor. Uncle Gideon, reassured by Bibbs' explanation, would have returned to his quotation from Hil-dad the Shubite, but Bibbs detained him, and after a little argument persuaded him to descend to the dining room whither Bibbs followed, after closing the door of his father's room. He kept his eyes on Gideon after dinner, diplomatically preventing several attempts on the part of that comforter to reascend the stairs; and it was a relief to Bibbs when George announced that an automobile was waiting to convey the ancient man and his grandson to their train. They were the last to leave, and when they had gone Bibbs went sighing to his own room.

He stretched himself wearily upon the bed, but presently rose, went to the window, and looked for a long time at the darkened house where Mary Verrees lived. Then he opened his trunk, took therefrom a small notebook half filled with fragmentary scribbings, and began to write:

Laughter after a funeral. In this reaction people will laugh at anything and at nothing. The band plays a dirge on the way to the cemetery, but when it turns back, and the mourning carriages turn out of hearing, it strikes up, "Darkness is Out To-Night." That is natural—but there are women whose laughter is like the whirling of whips.

Beauty is not out of place among grave-stones. It is not out of place anywhere. But a woman who has been betrothed to a man would not look beautiful at his funeral. A woman might look beautiful, though, at the funeral of a man whom she had known and liked. And in that case, too, she would probably not want to talk if she drove home from the cemetery with his brother; nor would she want the brother to talk. . . . Nevertheless, too much silence is open to suspicion. It may be reticence, or it may be a vacuum. It may be dignity, or it may be false teeth.

Silence can be golden? Yes. But perhaps if a woman of the world should find herself by accident sitting beside a man for the length of time it must necessarily take to drive home from the cemetery, she might expect that man to say something of some sort? If he did not even try, but sat every step of the way as dumb as a frozen fish, she might think him a frozen fish. And she might be right. She might be right if she thought him about as pleasant a companion as Biddad the Shubite!

Bibbs closed his notebook, replacing it in his trunk. Then, after a period of melancholy contemplation, he undressed, put on a dressing gown and slippers, and went softly into the hall to his father's door. Upon the door was a tray which Bibbs had sent George, earlier in the evening, to place upon a table in Sheridan's room—but the food was untouched. Bibbs stood listening outside the door for several minutes. There came no sound from within, and he went back to his own room and to bed.

In the morning he woke to a state of being hitherto unknown in his experience. Sometimes in the process of waking there is a little pause—sleep has gone, but coherent thought has not begun. It is the moment, as we say, before we "remember," and for the first time in Bibbs' life it came to him bringing a vague happiness. However, it was a brief visitation and was gone before he had finished dressing. It left a little trail, the pleased recollection of it and the puzzle of it, which remained unsolved. And, in fact, whether happily in the morning or not usually the result of a drive home from a funeral. No wonder the sequence evaded Bibbs Sheridan!

His father had gone when he came downstairs. "Went on down to 's office, jes' same," Jackson informed him. "Come sat breakfas' table, all by 'mself; eat nothin'. George bring nice breakfas', but he di'n eat a thing. Yessuh, went on downtown, jes' same he yosta do. Yessuh, I reckon putty much ev'rythin' goin' on same as it yosta do."

It struck Bibbs that Jackson was right. The day passed as other days had passed. Mrs. Sheridan and Edith were in black, and Mrs. Sheridan cried a little, now and then, but no other external difference was to be seen. Bibbs went for his drive, and his mother went with him, as she sometimes did when the weather was pleasant. Altogether, the usualness of things was rather startling to Bibbs.

During the drive Mrs. Sheridan talked fragmentarily of Jim's childhood. "But you wouldn't remember that," she said, after narrating an episode. "You were too little. He was always a good boy, just like that—And he'd save whatever papa gave him, and put it in the bank. I reckon it's just about kill your father to put somebody in his place as president of the Realty company, Bibbs. I know he can't move Roscoe over; he told me last week he'd already put as much on Roscoe as any one man could handle and not go crazy. Oh, it's a pity—" She stopped to wipe her eyes. "It's a pity you didn't run more with Jim, Bibbs, and kind of pick up his ways. Think what it'd meant to papa now! You never did run with either Roscoe or Jim any, even before you got sick. Of course you were younger; but it always did seem queer—and you three bein' brothers like that. I don't believe I ever saw you and Jim sit down together for a good talk in my life."

"Mother, I've been away so long," Bibbs returned, gently. "And since I came home I— He was busy, you see, and I hadn't much to say about the things that interested him, because I don't know much about them."

"It's a pity! Oh, it's a pity!" she moaned. "And you'll have to learn to know about 'em now, Bibbs. I haven't said much to you, because I felt it was all between your father and you, but I honestly do believe it will just kill him if he has to have any more trouble on top of all this! You mustn't let him, Bibbs—you mustn't! You don't know how he's grieved over you, and now he can't stand any more—he just can't! Whatever he says for you to do, you do it, Bibbs, you do it! I want you to promise me you will."

"I would if I could," he said, sorrowfully.

"No, no! Why can't you?" she cried, clutching his arm. "He wants you to go back to the machine shop and all on earth he asks is for you to go back in a cheerful spirit, so it won't hurt you! That's all he asks. Look, Bibbs, we're gettin' back near home, but before we get there I want you to promise me that you'll do what he asks you to. Promise me!"

In her earnestness she cleared away her black veil that she might see him better, and it blew out on the smoky wind. He readjusted it for her before he spoke.

"I'll go back in as cheerful a spirit as I can, mother," he said.

"There!" she exclaimed, satisfied. "That's a good boy! That's all I wanted you to say."

"Don't give me any credit," he said, ruefully. "There isn't anything else for me to do."

"No, don't begin talkin' that way!" "No, no," he soothed her. "We'll have to begin to make the spirit a cheerful one. We may—" They were turning into their own driveway as he spoke, and he glanced at the old house next door. Mary Verrees was visible in the twilight, standing upon the front steps, bareheaded, the door open behind her. She bowed gravely.

"We may—what?" asked Mrs. Sheridan, with a slight impatience.

"What is it mother?" "Of all the queer boys!" she cried. "You always were. Always! You haven't forgot what you just promised me, have you?"

"No," he answered, as the car stopped. "No, the spirit will be as cheerful as the flesh will let it, mother. It won't do to behave like—"

CHAPTER XIII.

The outward usualness of things continued after dinner. In the library, while his wife sat in her customary chair, gazing at the fire, Sheridan let the unfolded evening paper rest upon his lap, though now and then he lifted it, as if to read. Bibbs came in noiselessly and sat in a corner, doing nothing; and from a "reception room" across the hall an indistinct vocal murmur became just audible at intervals. Once, when this murmur grew louder, under stress of some irrepressible merriment, Edith's voice could be heard—

"Bobby, aren't you awful!" and Sheridan glanced across at his wife appealingly.

She rose at once and went into the "reception room"; there was a flurry of whispering, and the sound of tiptoeing in the hall—Edith and her suitor changing quarters to a more distant room. Mrs. Sheridan returned to her chair in the library.

"They won't bother you any more, papa," she said, in a comforting voice. "She told me at lunch he'd phoned he wanted to come up this evening, and I said I thought he'd better wait a few days, but she said she'd already told him he could." She paused, then added, rather guiltily: "I got kind of a notion maybe Roscoe don't like him as much as he used to. Maybe—maybe you better ask Roscoe, papa." And as Sheridan nodded solemnly, she concluded, in haste: "Don't say I said so. I might be wrong about it, anyway."

He nodded again, and they sat for some time in a silence which Mrs. Sheridan broke with a little sniff, having fallen into a reverie that brought tears. "That Miss Verrees was a good girl," she said. "She was all right."

Her husband evidently had no difficulty in following her train of thought, for he nodded once more, affirmatively.

"Did you— How did you fix it about the— the Realty company?" she faltered. "Did you—"

He rose heavily, helping himself to his feet by the arms of his chair. "I fixed it," he said, in a husky voice. He went to her, put his hand upon her shoulder, and drew a long, audible, tremendous breath. "It's my bedtime, mamma; I'm goin' up." When he reached the door he stopped and spoke again, without turning to look at her. "The Realty company'll go right on 't's like sand, mamma. It puts me in mind of children playin' in a sand-pile. One of 'em sticks his finger in the sand-pile and makes a hole, and another of 'em 'll pat the place with his hand, and all the little grains of sand run in and fill it up and settle against one another; and then, right away it's flat on top again, and you can't tell there ever was a hole there. The Realty company 'll go on all right, mamma. There ain't anythin' anywhere, I reckon, that wouldn't go right on—just the same."

And he passed out slowly into the hall; then they heard his heavy tread upon the stairs.

Mrs. Sheridan, rising to follow him, turned a piteous face to her son. "It's so forlorn," she said, chokingly. "That's the first time he spoke since he came in the house this evening. I know it must 'a' hurt him to hear Edith laugh with that Lamhorn. She'd oughtn't to let him come, right the very first evening 'th' way; she'd oughtn't to do it! Sh— just seems to lose her head over him, and it scares me. You hear what Sibyl said the other day, and—you hear what—what—"

"What Edith said to Sibyl?" Bibbs finished the sentence for her.

"We can't have any trouble o' that kind!" she wailed. "Oh, it looks as if movin' up to this new house had brought us awful bad luck! It scares me!" She put both her hands over her face. "Oh, Bibbs, Bibbs! If you only wasn't so queer! If you could only be a kind of dependable son! I don't know what we're all comin' to!" And, weeping, she followed her husband.

Sibbs gazed for a while at the fire; then he rose abruptly, like a man who has come to a decision, and briskly sought the room—it was called "the smoking room"—where Edith sat with Mr. Lamhorn. They looked up in no welcoming manner, at Bibbs' entrance, and moved their chairs to a less conspicuous adjacency.

"Good evening," said Bibbs, glancing at them. "You say he made love to anti; and he seated himself in a leather easy-chair near them.

"What is it?" asked Edith, plainly astonished.

"Nothing," he returned, smiling.

She frowned. "Did you want something?" she asked.

"Nothing in the world. Father and mother have gone upstairs; I shan't be going up for several hours, and there didn't seem to be anybody left for me to chat with except you and Mr. Lamhorn."

"Chat with!" she echoed, incredulously.

"I can talk about almost anything," said Bibbs with an air of genial politeness. "It doesn't matter to me. I don't know much about business—if that's what you happened to be talking about. But you aren't in business, are you, Mr. Lamhorn?"

"Not now," returned Lamhorn, shortly.

"I'm not, either," said Bibbs. "It was getting cloudier than usual, I noticed, just before dark, and there was wind from the southwest. Rain tomorrow, I shouldn't be surprised."

He seemed to feel that he had begun a conversation the support of which had now become the pleasurable duty of other parties; and he sat expectantly, looking first at his sister, then at Lamhorn, as if implying that it was their turn to speak. Edith returned his gaze with a mixture of astonishment and increasing anger, while Mr. Lamhorn was obviously disturbed, though Bibbs had been as considerate as possible in presenting the weather as a topic. Bibbs had perceived that Lamhorn had nothing in his mind at any time except "personalities"—he could talk about people and he could make love. Bibbs, wishing to be courteous, offered the weather.

Lamhorn refused it, and concluded from Bibbs' luxurious attitude in the leather chair that this half-crazy brother was a permanent fixture for the rest of the evening. There was no reason to hope that he would move, and Lamhorn found himself in danger of looking silly.

"I was just going," he said, rising.

"Oh no!" Edith cried, sharply.

"Yes. Good night! I think I—"

"Too bad," said Bibbs, genially, walking to the door with the visitor, while Edith stood staring as the two disappeared in the hall. She heard Bibbs offering to "help" Lamhorn with his overcoat and the latter rather curtly declining assistance, these episodes of departure being followed by the closing of the outer door. She ran into the hall.

"What's the matter with you?" she cried, furiously. "What do you mean? How did you dare come in here when you knew—"

Her voice broke; she made a gesture of rage and despair, and ran up the stairs, sobbing. She fled to her mother's room, and when Bibbs came up, a few minutes later, Mrs. Sheridan met him at his door.

"Oh, Bibbs," she said, shaking her head wearily, "you'd oughtn't to distress your sister? She says you drove that young man out of the house. You'd ought to be more considerate."

Bibbs smiled faintly, noting that Edith's door was open, with Edith's naive shadow motionless across its threshold. "Yes," he said. "He doesn't appear to be much of a 'man's man.' He ran at just a glimpse of one."

Edith's shadow moved; her voice came quavering: "You call yourself one?"

"No, no," he answered. "I said 'just a glimpse of one.' I didn't claim—"

But her door slammed angrily; and he turned to his mother.

"There," he said, sighing. "That's almost the first time in my life I ever tried to be a man of action, mother, and I succeeded perfectly in what I tried to do. As a consequence I feel like a horse thief!"

"You hurt her feelings," she groaned. "You must 'a' gone at it too rough, Bibbs."

He looked upon her wanly. "That's my trouble, mother," he murmured. "I'm a plain, blunt fellow. I have rough ways, and I'm a rough man."

For once she perceived some meaning in his queerness. "Hush your non-sense!" she said, good-naturedly, the astral of a troubled smile appearing.

"You go to bed."

He kissed her and obeyed.

Edith gave him a cold greeting the next morning at the breakfast table.

"You mustn't do that under a misapprehension," he warned her, when they were alone in the dining room.

"Do what under a what?" she asked.

"Speak to me. I came into the smoking room last night on purpose," he told her, gravely. "I have a prejudice against that young man."

She laughed. "I guess you think it means a great deal who you have prejudices against!" In mockery she adopted the manner of one who implores. "Bibbs, for pity's sake promise me, don't use your influence with papa against him!" And she laughed louder.

"Listen," he said, with peculiar earnestness. "I'll tell you now, because I've decided I'm one of the family."

And then, as if the earnestness were too heavy for him to carry it further, he continued, in his usual tone, "I'm drunk with power, Edith."

"What do you want to tell me?" she demanded, brusquely.

"Lamhorn made love to Sibyl," he said.

Edith hooted. "She did to him?" "No," he said, gravely. "I know."

"How?" "I was there, one day a week ago, with Roscoe, and I heard Sibyl and Lamhorn—"

Edith screamed with laughter. "You were with Roscoe—and you heard Lamhorn making love to Sibyl?"

"No, I heard them quarreling."

"You're funnier than ever, Bibbs!" she cried. "You say he made love to her because you heard them quarreling!"

"That's it. If you want to know what's between people, you can—by the way they quarrel!"

"You'll kill me, Bibbs! What were they quarrelling about?"

"Nothing. That's how I know. People who quarrel over nothing—it's always certain."

Edith stopped laughing abruptly, but continued her mockery. "You ought to know. You've had so much experience, yourself!"

"I haven't any, Edith," he said. "My life has been about as exciting as an incubator chicken's. But I look out through the glass at things."

"Well, then," she said, "if you look out through the glass, you must know."

"I'm not, either," said Bibbs. "It was getting cloudier than usual, I noticed, just before dark, and there was wind from the southwest. Rain tomorrow, I shouldn't be surprised."

He seemed to feel that he had begun a conversation the support of which had now become the pleasurable duty of other parties; and he sat expectantly, looking first at his sister, then at Lamhorn, as if implying that it was their turn to speak. hate the machine shop only; you hate the whole show—the noise and far and dirt, the scramble—the whole bloomin' craze to 'get on.' You'd like to go somewhere in Algiers or to Tasmania, perhaps, and bask on a balcony, smelling flowers and writing sonnets. You'd grow fat on it and have a delicate little life all to yourself. Well, what do you say? I can like sixty, Bibbs! Shall I tell your father he'll lose another of his boys if you don't go to Sicily?"

"I don't want to go to Sicily," said Bibbs. "I want to stay right here."

The doctor's drowsiness disappeared for a moment, and he gave his patient a sharp glance. "It's a risk," he said. "I think we'll find you're so much better 'th' we'll send you back to the shop pretty quick. Something's got hold of you lately; you're not quite so lackadaisical as you used to be. But I warn you: I think the shop will knock you just as it did before, and perhaps ever harder, Bibbs."

He rose, shook himself, and rubbed his eyelids. "Well, when we go over you this afternoon what are we going to say about it?"

"Tell him I'm ready," said Bibbs, looking at the floor.

"Oh no," Gurney laughed. "Not quite yet; but you may be almost. We'll see. Don't forget I said to walk down."

And when the examination was concluded, that afternoon, the doctor informed Bibbs that the result was much too satisfactory to be pleasing. "Here's a new 'situation' for a one-act farce," he said, gloomily, to his next patient when Bibbs had gone. "Doctor tells a man he's well, and that's his death sentence, likely. Dam' funny world!"

Bibbs decided to walk home. It was a dingy afternoon, and the smoke was evident not only to Bibbs' sight, but to his nostrils, though most of the pedestrians were so saturated with the smell that they could no longer detect it. This incited a train of thought which continued till he approached the new house. As he came to the corner of Mr. Verrees' lot Mr. Verrees' daughter emerged from the front door and walked thoughtfully down the path to the picket gate. She was unconscious of the approach of the pedestrian and did not see him until she had opened the gate and he was almost beside her. Then she looked up, and as she saw him she started visibly. And if this thing had happened to Robert Lamhorn, he would have had a thought far beyond the horizon of faint-hearted Bibbs' thoughts. Lamhorn, indeed, would have spoken his thought. He would have said:

"You jumped because you were thinking of me!"

CHAPTER XIV.

Mary was the picture of a lady flustered. Bibbs had paused in his slow stride, and there elapsed an instant before either spoke or moved—it was no longer than that, and yet it sufficed for each to seem to say, by look and attitude, "Why, it's you!"

Then they both spoke at once, each hurriedly pronouncing the other's name as if about to deliver a message of importance. Then both came to a stop simultaneously, but Bibbs made a heroic effort, and as they began to walk on together he contrived to find his voice.

"I—I—hate a frozen fish myself," he said. "I think three miles was too long for you to put up with one."

"Good gracious!" she cried, turning to him a glowing face from which restraint and embarrassment had suddenly fled. "Mr. Sheridan, you're lovely to put it that way. It was an imposition for me to have made you bring me home, and after I went into the house I decided I should have walked. Besides, it wasn't three miles to the car line. I never thought of it!"

"No," said Bibbs, earnestly. "I didn't, either. I might have said something if I'd thought of anything. I'm talking now, though; I must remember that, and not worry about it later. I think I'm talking, though it doesn't sound intelligent even to me. I made up my mind that if I ever met you again I'd turn on my voice and keep it going, no matter what it said. I—"

She interrupted him with laughter, and Mary Verrees' laugh was one which Bibbs had declared, after the housewarming, "a cripple would crawl five miles to hear." And at the merry lifting of it Bibbs' father's son took heart to forget some of his trepidation. "I'll be any kind of idiot," he said, "if you'll laugh at me some more."

She did; and Bibbs' cheeks showed a little actual color, which Mary perceived. They had passed the new house without either of them showing—or possessing—any consciousness that it had been the destination of one of them.

"I'll keep on talking," Bibbs continued, cheerfully, "and you keep on laughing. I'm amounting to something in the world this afternoon. I'm making a noise, and that makes you laugh. Don't be bothered by my blathering out such things as that. I'm really frightened. I don't remember talking as much as this more than once or twice in my life. I suppose it was always in me to do it, though, the first time I met anyone who didn't know me well enough not to listen."

"But you're not really talking to me," said Mary. "You're just thinking aloud."

Do you think that Mary's warm friendship for Bibbs will help him to endure the machine shop long enough to impress his father with his usefulness in a better job?

"That's about it," Bibbs murmured. "Of course I knew what you want to do," said Gurney, drowsily. "You don't

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y.—"For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks at a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation."—Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed. "If you want advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass."

CARRANZA REJECTS LATEST DEMANDS

IF PRISONERS ARE NOT RELEASE PRESIDENT WILSON PLANS TO GO BEFORE CONGRESS

RESCUE THEM BY FORCE

Eleventh Cavalry Sent Out to Bring Back Survivors of the Carrizal Fight Crash With Carranza's On the Santa Maria River.

Washington—Coincident with a report coming through Latin-American diplomatic circles, that Carranza has decided to reject the latest demands of the United States, it became known that unless the Mexican first chief releases the 23 American prisoners held at Chihuahua, President Wilson will go before congress and ask for authority to rescue them by force.

The feeling in Latin-American quarters was decidedly pessimistic. The diplomats were practically one in declaring that there is no prospect of settling the dispute through arbitration if Carranza refuses to release the prisoners, and for that reason all idea of renewing the mediatory offers has been abandoned. No confirmation of these reports was obtainable in administration circles. Officials were still waiting with tense interest for the formal reply.

President Wilson spent the entire evening in his study awaiting information from the state department in regard to the reply. Secretary of State Lansing and Counselor Polk of the state department dined together at the former's residence. Secretary of War Baker, who had gone to Baltimore earlier in the evening to address the Maryland branch of the League to Enforce Peace, returned to Washington and went direct to the war department.

At that hour officials of the war department professed to have no confirmation of the report from El Paso that the four squadrons of the Eleventh cavalry, sent out to bring back the survivors of the Carrizal engagement, had clashed with Carranza's on the Santa Maria river, killing and wounding a large number of Mexicans and capturing others.

The state department had no information as to when a reply to the note sent Sunday demanding immediate release of the soldiers might be expected. It was delivered. Special Agent Rodgers has been unable to forecast the action of the de facto authorities. Prompt compliance by congress with any request the president may make as to Mexico was foreshadowed by the calm which prevailed in both houses. Although measures designed to prepare for war were under consideration and the corridors of the capitol hummed with rumors, there was no excitement and discussion of the subject on the floor was avoided. The legislative branch of the government was plainly waiting to do its part when what the moment regarded as inevitable should come.

Russians Occupy Bukovina

Austrian Crown Land Falls Into the Hands of the Czar.

London—That Russian forces now occupy the entire Austrian crown land of Bukovina was officially announced by the Russian general staff. The official statement says the possession of the province was completed by the capture of the town of Kimpulung, in the southern part of Bukovina, at the foot of the Carpathians. In the taking of the town more than 2,000 Austrian soldiers were captured.

Violent attacks on the Austro-German forces which have countered the Russian offensive in Volhynia are being continued. The Berlin war office announced that all these attacks, made repeatedly with strong forces, had been repulsed.

On the western front, says Berlin, the Germans have repelled vigorous French attacks north of Verdun, made in an effort to regain lost ground.

The British have developed pronounced artillery activity along the part of the Franco-Belgian front they hold from La Bassee canal to the Brit-Somme according to Berlin. The British fire continued uninterrupted all night.

DAIRY

ESTIMATING VALUE OF CALF

Young Animal Is Worth Practically Nothing Until Labor and Capital Have Been Invested.

In estimating the gross product of a cow it is customary to credit her with one calf a year valued at $5 to $10. A little clear thinking will reveal the fact that no such amount can properly be allowed the cow as a producer of wealth. The cow should be credited only with the value of her calf three days after birth. After that the calf is no longer the creation of the dam's internal economy, but the product of feed that has a market value. After that time the cow's milk can be sold for cash in some form of dairy product. The average cost of production of milk in the United States is close to five cents a quart. A husky calf will consume at least two gallons of milk a day to grow into a $10 veal at one month.

That it costs more to veal a calf than it will ordinarily bring is bad enough in itself and deserves deliberation on the part of the farmer who may not have given the matter of cost systems much thought, says a writer in an exchange. The point is that the calf is worth practically nothing until labor and capital have been put into him.

If anyone doubts this statement let him try to sell an ordinary calf when it is three days old and see what it will bring. It takes time and effort and money to bring a calf to the point where it is productive. Its value at birth is potential rather than actual. It would be as reasonable to credit the cow with a yearling worth $10 as a month-old calf worth $10.

A wellbred, registered calf is worth a goodly sum at birth because the purchaser can feed it expensive milk, grain and hay and still make a profit on its ultimate value. An ordinary calf would eat so much before it became productive that only a thoughtful person would pay anything for it at the beginning of its career.

Hence a cow may properly be credited with the actual selling value of her calf before any money is invested in its development.

METHOD FOR DRYING UP COW

No Specific Rule for Such Work—Judgment and Experience of Attendant Is Required.

A cow should be dried off for six weeks before calving. It may take two weeks to dry her off, that depending upon the persistency of milk flow. To dry off a cow the rich feed has to be removed and the cow allowed to pasture short grass or eat hay. Some milk is left in the quarters at each milking at first; then a milking is omitted; then the milking is done every other day, and afterward only a little milk is taken, as seen to be necessary. There is no specific rule for such work, and it requires the best judgment and experience of the attendant.

GRAIN RATION IS DESIRABLE

Corn-and-Cob Meal, Oats and Cottonseed Meal Mixture Is Recommended for Dairy Cows.

A desirable grain ration for cows, when corn and oats are used as a base, is one made up of 300 pounds of corn-and-cob meal, 200 pounds of oats and 100 pounds of cottonseed meal. Feed this at the rate of one pound for every three pounds of a per cent milk produced. In addition feed as much legume hay and corn stover as the cows will consume.

HAND STRIPPING IS FAVORED

Some Failures With Machines Due to Leaving Strippings in Udder—Last Milk Is Richest.

A milking machine user says that some failures with the machines are due to leaving the strippings in the udder. He believes in saving the last milk, which is the richest, and hand stripping enables him to know the exact condition of the cow's udder every day.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

HELPFUL HINTS.

In the first place every home keeper should keep accounts. Do you know any successful business man who keeps no account of his income and outgo? He is just as rare as is the housekeeper who does record her daily expenditures. Since the cost of living is constantly advancing it is vitally necessary that deep concern be paid to reducing certain items of expenditure. Food for the family costs more than any other item, and those who work with the thrifless and improvident know that their condition is largely a matter of what they spend for the inside rather than the outside of the body.

Since meat makes up a large part of the ordinary family diet, any economy in the purchase of it will make a noticeable reduction in the food bill. By using meat substitutes, which are less expensive, but as nutritious, the amount may be cut down by half. The use of cheese, which is rich in protein, a pound of cheese being equal to two pounds of meat in food value with much less waste, will prove most satisfactory.

It is a great advantage to market in person; she sees the food products, is able to furnish variety and if she has strength of mind enough to refuse to buy that which she knows she cannot afford, no matter how alluring, she will find her marketing profitable. The butcher will not give short weight with the customer looking on, though the difference may be small it amounts to much in the course of a year.

The cheaper cuts of meat, nuts prepared in loaf, eggs in various forms, are all economical dishes when prepared intelligently.

The utilizing of left-overs in the planning of the meals is another important item. It goes without saying that the economical housewife makes out her menu days ahead in order to save expense and use those left-overs profitably.

Brown bread, white bread or whole wheat bread is made more wholesome by the addition of a few raisins.

Fruit and vegetables lend themselves to all sorts of combinations. As soups and salads they are satisfactory.

Something is wrong with everything. We live upon the planet of mistakes. Most of us are misfits. The rest are excuses. I know of no ideal condition except the condition of someone else. No human being ever had things just exactly to suit him. The sooner we awake to this truth and make up our minds that if ever we are to find contentment at all, it will be among things as they ought to be, the better it will be for us—and also for the unfortunate people who have to live with us.—Frank Crane.

DAY WITH PANCAKES.

If pancakes are to be light, more mixing will not do. The batter must be thoroughly beaten for five or ten minutes. The frying pan should be very smooth and fairly hot so the cakes may cook quickly without getting soggy.

Plain Pancakes.—Sift one cupful of flour into a basin; add a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one unbeaten egg, and half a cupful of milk. Mix until smooth, then begin to beat with a wooden spoon for a few minutes; then add another half cupful of milk and continue beating until air bubbles rise to the top. Fry on a hot griddle and serve with lemon juice and sugar.

Cherry Shortcake.—Add to the cherry juice a little cornstarch, cook until smooth, add butter, then the pitted cherries and place on the cakes. Serve with the sauce instead of cream.

Rice Pancakes.—Boil a quarter of a pound of rice until quite soft, then drain. Mix with it one cupful of cream, four well beaten eggs, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, nutmeg to taste, a half cupful of melted butter and sufficient flour to form a smooth batter. Fry and serve.

Serving a thin slice of orange sprinkled with sugar on the nice brown cake, which is but little larger than the orange is a most attractive and delicious cake.

Scotch Pancakes.—Beat four eggs with four tablespoonsful of sugar. Have six tablespoonsful of flour and a pint of sweet milk, mix a little of the milk with the flour until smooth, add this to the beaten eggs, then add a little salt and mix all together. Put a tablespoonful of butter on a smooth griddle and pour a cupful of the well beaten batter on to the pan, cook until well-browned, then spread with butter and orange marmalade, roll up, sprinkle with sugar, serve on a hot dish.

Chopped pineapple or other fruits may be served on these cakes, even grated chocolate added just as they are taken from the griddle, dusted with sugar, is a cake liked very much.

He "Dot."

Mrs. Youngwed (a doctor's daughter)—Did papa say he would do anything for you?

Youngwed—Yes; he said he would operate upon me at any time free of charge.—Pickings.

Taking Her Seriously.

"I've begun to think that fellow is really seriously in love with me."

"What makes you think so?"

"He's taken up to the theater three times now and not once has he ever tried to kiss me good night."
