Summer pests—misery making for man and beast. Horses and cows waste their energy fighting them. It means less work, less and poorer milk. Spray COWEASE on your cows.

You'l, enjoy milking get lots more and richer milk. Spray it on your horses. Spray it about the barn and on the garbage, and keep disease carrying flies out of your house.

A Seasonable Suggestion

CHASE & SANBORN'S Orange Pekoe Tea The Best TEA for ICE TEA

REW in the same manner as though serving hot, only make a little stronger, as the addition of ice will reduce the strength.

When cold, add a small quantity of lemon juice and allow a few thin slices of lemon to float on top. Add sugar to suit taste. Use cake of ice large enough to keep it thoroughly chilled.

FOR LARGE QUANTITIES

use three ounces of tea for each gallon of water.

Visited Clinton.

There has been considerable talk about installing the boulevard system of street lighting in the business portion of the village, and on Friday evening the members of the common council and the electric light commission went to Clinton to inspect the system in use there. The system there presents a very pretty appearance and each unit consists of five lights mounted on an ornamental pedestal.

Died of Infantile Paralysis.

Dr. C. S. Layton, of Ypsilanti, admitted Tuesday evening that Howard Thorne, 18 years old, who died last Saturday near Willis, had infantile paralysis.

It was reported Saturday that he died of typhoid pneumonia, following heat prostration. Dr. Layton was called 24 bours before the young man

He said that there was no danger of the disease spreading, although the house was not quarantined.

Failed to Land Championship.

Chelsea failed to land the state amateur checker championship, which stood between Dr. Andros Guld of Chelsea and Postmaster O'Melay of Hillsdale. This is the second time that Mr. O'Melay has won the state championship, and Chelsea gave him the hardest time that he has had in landing it. Out of eighteen games played with Chelsea -Dr. Gulde and B. B. TurnBull representing Chelsea-O'Melay won six, Chelsea four and eight were draws. The final games were played at Jackson the first of the week, and resulted in O'Melay winning two, Dr. Gulde winning one, and three draws.

Band Concert Tonight.

The colors of Washtenaw are vellow and light blue, and those driving cars are requested to decorate them for the parade. Oliver Wilson, master of the National Grange, and John C. Ketcham, master of the Michigan State Grange, will be among the speakers.

Sun Brothers' Show.

Strange sights and still stranger aninals will be among the many things that will be unloaded when the big show train of the Sun Brothers' World's Progressive Show arrive in Chelsea. on Tuesday, August 8. This the date of the appearance here of this well known amusement enterprise. Long before dawn, the railroad yards will be the center of attraction for the younger generation of town and many a household will be startled from its peaceful slumbers at an unseemly hour by the tinkling of the alarm clock under the pillows of the small boy.

The Sun Brothers' Shows for this season have an all new equipment and brand new plethora of acts, and performances in all its departments, in fact it can truthfully be said that it is an all new show. The only recognizable thing of its past seasons is the adherance to of their old time policy of never allowing at any time or place any gambling, sure thing men, confidence games, fortune tellers, dancing girl show or anything in the nature of a roper-in-device. These issues have never been tolerated with this show nor will they ever be countenanced. Two complete performances will be given here during their engagement and the assurance is made that both performances will be presented without any curtailment whatever. Many new and novel free outside exhibitions are offered this season and are said to be of an unusually entertaining and "thriller" character.

An Excellent Program Has Beer Arranged.

One Day of Rest in Seven Has Demonstrated Many Benefits the Announcement has just been made by the management of the Redpath Chautauquas of the many good things in store on the forthcoming season's program in Cnelsea. This program covers a period of five days afternoons and evenings, in addition to the work of the story hour lady or playground worker.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rawei and daughter, highly educated New Zealanders, will appear on one evening of this program in a presentation of the scenes, music and customs of the South Sea Islands. Attired in native costumes they stand amid the seenes of their country which are thrown by means of a powerful stereoptican, on the background of the stage, while Mr. Rawei describes the New Zealand of sixty years ago and Mrs. Rawei the New Zealand of today. Grouped about the platform in front of them is the basketry and samples of Polynesian weaving which may be seen more closely by the audience at Another big event of the week will be known as "Health Day," when Dr. Charles E. Barker, who was President Taft's physical adviser during his administration in Washington, will give two addresses. One of these will be ......Miller entitled "Health and Happiness," and the other "How To Live A Hundred Overture-"Night in Berlin" Hartman Years." Dr. Barker was one of the biggest attractions in 1915 on the ..... Miller Redpath seven-day Chautauqua. It was not unusual for 300 people to be gathered about him at the close of the lecture, asking questions.

Frank Kryl and his band will appear in two concerts. Mr. Kryl, director and soloist on the French horn, was born and educated abroad, but The second annual Six-County has been in this country for about twenty-five years.

The Beulah Buck Ladies' Quartet which has been upon the lyceum and Chautauqua platform for seven years with great success will appear on the tenaw county will be well represent- opening day, both afternoon and ed. P. M. Broesamle, overseer of evening. This is one of the best

Uses of Liquid Air.

Liquid air is poorly adapted to the uses which were suggested for it for power. Its latent heat of evaporation is small and its specific heat is also small. It cannot compete with ammonia for refrigeration. It cannot be kept in a closed vessel, but must always have a vent to the air. For explosives many better materials are available. It is used to some extent to secure the oxygen of the air by first temperature than the oxygen.

For Prosecuting Attorney. To the Republican voters of Washtenaw County: I beg to announce myself as a candidate for the nomination as prosecuting attorney on the Republican ticket primary election, August 29th, 1916. Should you see fit to nominate me for this office I promise to conduct a clean and wholesome campaign, and should I be elected I shall give to the county of Washtenaw my best efforts in the administration of the affairs of the said office.

GEO. S. WRIGHT. It is with pleasure that the Leader publishes the above announcement and places before the public the name of our well known townsman, who will be a candidate for the nomination of prosecuting attorney on the Republican ticket at the coming primaries.

Mr. Wright is a man eminently qualified in every particular to give the work of the office the best of attention and if elected will no doubt render a good account of himself. He graduated from the University of Michgan in 1905, having been a successful educator for several years before taking up his law course. He came to Milan the same year and has established a good business here. In 1906 he was appointed village attorney which position he has filled ever since. Mr. Wright has been very active in political affairs in this town and the county and has always been a repub-

He has held no political office except that of representative for the second district of Washtenaw County in the state legislature of 1915 and 1916. The nomination came to him from the republican county committee absolutely unsolicited. In his work in the legislature he was painstaking and conscientious. He secured the $110,000 appropriation for the Michigan State Normal College, at Ypsilanti; assisted in securing the $350,000 appropriation when it was first made in large quan- for a new library for the University tities-that is, for refrigeration and of Michigan, and was active in the important affairs concerning this district throughout the session of the legislature.

In introducing Mr. Wright we feel confident that he is the best man in the county available for the office of prosecutor, and if he is given the nomination by the party and elected, will liquefying the air and then boiling off give the affairs of the office the benethe nitrogen, which boils at a lower fit of sound business judgment, the practical experience of many years and his best efforts in every way to administer the office to the best pos-Mexican names that are euphonious sible advantage of the public.-Milan

How America's largest cigarette manufacturer has accomplished "the Impossible" by producing a MILD cigarette that SATISFIES. It is the CHESTERFIELD Cigarette LMOST anybody can make a cup of coffee. But there are said to be not over a half-dozen restaurants in the United States where they know now to make it right.

Similarly, almost anyone can make a eigarette. Just roll up some tobacco in a piece of pure paper-and there you are.

There are, perhaps, over 800 brands of cigarettes sold in this country today. But not one of them does what Chesterfields do - for Chesterfields are MILD; and yet they SATISFY.

Some cigarettes may be mild, but they don't satisfy. Only one cigarette does BOTH-Chesterfield!

This truly unique cigarette has all of that refreshing taste-delicacy (or mildness) which any good cigarette must have. Yet, without sacrificing any of this delightful mildness, Chesterfields go one step further - they do more than merely "please your taste" - they let you know you've been smoking. They satisfy!

And yet they're mild?

The mild, yet satisfying Chesterfield blend is not the result of happy chance. It is one of the results of our many years of cigarette experience - of the heavy volume of our purchases of eigarette tobacco - of the prestige and advantage these enormous purchases give us in securing the choicest leaf from the tobacco fields of the world.

Chesterfields are an achievement.

A New Thing for a Cigarette to Do

CHESTERFIELDS do the one thing you have always wished a cigarette would do-they satisfy!

Smoke them and we believe you will find that ordinary cigarettes seem by comparison almost flat.

Give Chesterfields (20 for 10 cents) a trial. We believe you will be glad to learn what they can teach you about cigarette enjoyment.

You have been reading here some rather unusual, almost daring, statements about a cigarette. If Chesterfields were an untried cigarette - if we had not been observing their behavior in other cities-if we did not KNOW that they make good with smokers, we could not afford to make these statements to you over our signature.

But these statements, strong as they are, can mean little or nothing to you until you have actually smoked your first Chesterfield.

You will find that your own dealer has Chesterfields waiting for you.

SYNOPSIS.

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by stanting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his re-turn Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old-town family next door and impover-ished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her arents' unspoken wish that she marry me of the Sheridan boys. Mary frankly accurages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Jim encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Jim tells Mary Bills is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel ever Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he mets Mary and rides home with her. mets Mary and rides home with her. Bibbs purposely interrupts a tete-a-tete between Edith and Lamhorn. He tells Edith that he overheard Lamhorn making love to Roscoe's wife. Doctor Gurney finds Bibbs well enough to go back to the machine shop. Mary and Bibbs meet by accident and form a pleasant friendship. Roscoe Sheridan and his wife quarrel desperately about Bobby Lamhorn. Bibbs work. Old man Shèridan hurts goes to work. "Not at all," said Bibbs. "I'm going to stand by the old zinc eater till five o'clock. I tell you I like it!" "Then I suppose that's the end of your wanting to write."

"I don't know about that," Bisos said, thoughtfully; "but the zinc eater doesn't interfere with my thinking, at least. It's better than being in busi- said. ness; I'm sure of that. A don't want anything to change. I'd be content to lead just the life I'm leading now to the end of my days."

"You do beat the devil!" exclaimed Gurney. "Your father's right when he Mrs. Sheridan was looking over a coltells me you're a mystery. Perhaps the Almighty knew what he was about when he made you, but it takes a lot of faith to believe it! Well, I'm off. Go on back to your murdering old machine." He climbed into his car, which he operated himself, but he refrained from setting it immediately in motion. "Well, I rubbed it in on the old man that you had warned him not to slide his hand along too far, and that he got hurt because he didn't pay attention to your warning, and because he was trying to show you how to do something you were already doing a great deal better than he could. You tell him I'll be around to look at it and change the dressing tomorrow morning. Goodby."

But when he paid the promised visit the next morning he did more than change the dressing upon the damaged hand. The injury was severe of its kind, and Gurney spent a long time over it, though Sheridan was rebellious and scornful, being brought to a degree of tractability only by means of horrible threats and talk of amputation. However, he appeared at the dinner table with his hand supported in a sling, which he seemed to regard as an indignity, while the natural inquiries upon the subject exidently struck him as deliberate insults. Mrs. Sheridan, having been unable to contain her solicitude several times during the day, and having been checked each time in a manner that blanched her cheek, hastened to warn Roscoe and Sibyl, upon their arrival at five, to omit any reference to the injury and to avoid even looking at the sling if they possibly could.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Sheridans dined on Sundays at five. Siby! had taken pains not to arrive alther before or after the hand was precisely on the hour, and the members of the family were all seated at the table within two minutes after she and Roscoe had entered the house.

It was a glum gathering, overhung with portents. The air seemed charged, awaiting any tiny ignition to explode: and Mrs. Sheridan's expression, as she sat with her eyes fixed almost continually upon her husband, was that of a person engaged in prayer. Edith was pale and intent. Roscoe looked 11: Sibyl looked ill, and Sheridan looked both ill and explosive. Bibbs had more color than any of these, and there was a strange brightness, like a sight, upon his face. It was curious to see anything so happy in the tense she unloosed the music.

"Where did Edith go?" she asked, cariously.

"Edith?" he repeated, opening his eyes blankly. "Is she gone?"

Sibyl got up and stood in the doorway. She leaned against the casing. still tapping her chin with the brooch. Her eyes were dilating; she was suddenly at high tension, and her expression had become one of sharp excitement. She listened intently.

When the record was spun out she could hear Sheridan rumbling in the library, during the ensuing silence. and Roscoe's voice, querulous and husky: "I wen't say anything at all. I tell you, you might just as well let But there were other sounds: a rustling and murmur, whispering, low, protesting cadences in a male voice. And as Mrs. Sheridan started another like fire in the eyes of Sibyl. She walked down the hall and straight into the smoking room.

But Edith's shaking was not so violent as Sibyl's, nor was her face so white. At sight of them and of their embrace, all possible consequences became nothing to Sibyl. She curtsied, holding up her skirts and contorting her lips to the semblance of a smile "Sit just as you were-both of you!" she said. And then to Edith: "Did you tell my husband I had been telephonng to Lamhorn?"

"You march out of here!" said Edith iercely. "March straight out of here!" Sibyl leveled a forefinger at Lam-

"Did you tell her I'd been telephonng you I wanted you to come?" "Oh, good God!" Lamhorn said

"You knew she'd tell my husband, lidn't you?" she cried. "You knew

"Hush!" he begged, panic-stricken. "That was a manly thing to do! Oh, was like a gentleman! You wouldn't ome-you wouldn't even come for five minutes to hear what I had to say! she told my husband! You're a man!" Edith saw in a flash that the consequences of battle would be ruinous to Sibyl, and the furious girl needed no further temptation to give way to her feelings. "Get out of this house!" she shricked. "This is my father's house. Don't you dare speak to Rob- keep her from seeing him, as long as ily touched, but he was indeed living

"No! No! I mustn't speak-" "Don't you dare!"

Edith and Sibyl began to scream insults at each other simultaneously, fronting each other, their furious faces close. Their voices shrilled and rose and cracked-they screeched. They could be heard over the noise of the phonograph, which was playing a brass-band selection. They could be heard all over the house. They were heard in the kitchen; they could have been heard in the cellar. Neither of them cared for that.

"You told my husband!" screamed Sibyl, bringing her face still closer to Edith's. "You told my husband! This man put that in your hands to strike me with! He did!"

"I'll tell your husband again! I'll tell him everything I know! It's time your husband-"

They were swept asunder by a bandaged hand. "Do you want the neighbors in?" Sheridan thundered.

There fell a shocking silence. Frenzied Sibyl saw her husband and his mother in the doorway, and she understood what she had done. She moved slowly toward the door; then suddenly she began to run. She ran into the hall, and through it, and out of the house. Roscoe followed her heavily. his eyes on the ground.

"Now then!" said Sheridan to Lam-

The words were indefinite, but the voice was not. Neither was the vicious gesture of the bandaged hand, which concluded its orbit in the direction of the door in a manner sufficient for the swift dispersal of George and Jackson and several female servants who hovered behind Mrs. Sheridan. They fled lightly.

"Papa, papa!" wailed Mrs. Sheridan. "Look at your hand! You oughtn't to been so rough with Edle; you hurt your hand on her shoulder. Look!"

There was, in fact, a spreading red selected one of the latter, remarking stain upon the bandages at the tips of the fingers, and Sheridan put his hand back in the sling. "Now then!" he repeated. "You goin' to leave my house?"

"He will not," sobbed Edith. "Don't you dare order him out!" "Don't you bother, dear," said Lamhorn, quietly. "He doesn't understand. You mustn't be troubled. "'S enough!" he roared. "He keeps record, a sudden, vital resolve leaped off these premises! And if any of you so much as ever speak his name to me again-"

But Edith screamed, clapping her hands over her ears to shut out the sound of his voice, and ran upstairs, sobbing loudly, followed by her mother. However, Mrs. Sheridan descended a few minutes later and joined her hushand in the library. Bibbs, still sitting in his gold chair, saw her pass. roused himself from reverie, and strolled in after her.

"She locked the door," said Mrs. Sheridan, shaking her head woefully. "She wouldn't even answer me. They wasn't a sound from her room."

"Well," said her husband, "she can settle her mind to it. She never speaks to that fellow again, and if he tries to telephone her tomorrow-Here! You tell the help if he calls up to ring off and say it's my orders. No. you needn't. I'll telk 'em myself."

"Better not," said Bibbs, gently. His father glared at him.

"It's no good," said Bibbs. "Mother when you were in love with father-' "My goodness!" she cried. "You ain't a-goin' to compare your father to that—"

"Edith feels about him just what ou did about father," said Bibbs. And if your father had told you-" "I won't listen to such silly talk!" she declared, angrily.

"So you're handin' out your advice, are you, Bibbs?" said Sheridan. "What

"Let her see him all she wants," Bibbs repeated, thoughtfully. "You're, up against something too strong for you. If Edith were a weakling you'd have a chance this way, but she isn't. and if you give her time and go easy she probably will. Marriage would do it for her quickest, but that's just what you don't want, and as you don't want it, you'd better-" "I can't stand any more!" Sheridan burst out. "If it's come to Bibbs advisin' me how to run this house I better resign. Mamma, where's that nigger George? Maybe he's got some plan how I better manage my family. Bibbs, for God's sake go and lay down! 'Let her see him all she wants!' Oh. Lord! Here's wisdom; here's-" "Bibbs," said Mrs. Sheridan, "if you haven't got anything to do, you might step over and take Sibyl's wraps home-she left 'em in the hall. I don't think you seem to quiet your poor father very much just now." "All right." And Bibbs bore Sibyl's wraps across the street and delivered them to Roscoe, who met him at the door. Bibbs said only, "Forgot these," and, "Good night, Roscoe," cordially and cheerfully, and returned to the new house. His mother and father were still talking in the library, but with discretion he passed rapidly on and upward to his own room, and there he proceeded to write in his notebook.

There seems to be another curious thing about love (Bibbs wrote). Love is blind while it lives and only opens its eyes and becomes very wide awake when it dies.

Let it alone until then. You cannot reason with love or with any other passion. The wise will not wish for love-nor for ambition. These are passions and bring others in their trainhatreds and jealousies—all blind. Friend-ship and a quiet heart for the wise. What a turbulence is love! It is dan-gerous for a blind thing to be turbulent; here are precipices in life. One would not cross a mountain-pass with a thick cloth over his eyes. Lovers do. Friendship walks gently and with open eyes.

To walk to church with a friend! To sit beside her there! To rise when she rises, and to touch with one's thumb and fingers the other half of the hymn book that she holds! What lover, with his flerce ways, could know this transcendent Friendship brings everything that heaven could bring. There is no labor that cannot become a living rapture if you know that a friend is thinking of you as you labor. So you sing at your work. For the work is part of the thoughts of your friend: so you love it!

Love is demanding and claiming and in-Friendship is all kindness 't makes the world glorious with kindness. What color you see when you walk with friend! You see that the gray sky is brilliant and shimmering; you see that the smoke has warm browns and is marvelously sculptured-the air becomes irilescent. You see the gold in brown hair.

Light floods everything.

When you walk to church with a friend you know that life can give you nothing richer. You pray that there will be no change in anything forever.
What an adorable thing it is to discover a little foible in your friend, a bit of vanity that gives you one thing more about her to adore! On a cond morning she will perhaps walk to church with you without her furs, and she will blush and return an evasive answer when you ask her why she does not wear them. Tou ict will say no niore, because you understand i het and try to look as if you had not thought

This theory is satisfactory except that t does not account for the absence of the muff. Ah, well, there must always be a mystery somewhere! Mystery is a part of Manual labor is best. Your heart can sing and your mind can dream while your hands are working. You could not have a singing heart and a dreaming mind all day if you had to scheme out dollars, or if you had to add columns of figures. Those things take your attention. You cannot be thinking of your friend while you write letters beginning, "Yours of the inst. received and contents duly noted." But to work with your hands all day, thinking and singing, and then, af-ter nightfall, to hear the ineffable kindness of your friend's greeting-always there-for you! Who would wake from such a dream as this?

Dawn and the sea-music in moonlit gardens-nightingales serenading through Imond groves in bloom-what could bring such things into the city's turmoil? That is what it means not to be alone! That is what a friend gives you!

CHAPTER XXII.

Bibbs was the only Sheridan to sleep soundly through the night and to wake at dawn with a light heart. His cheerfulness was vaguely diminished by the troublous state of affairs in his family. Bibbs was a sympathetic person, eas-in a dream, and all things outside of Bibbs, who had never before been of any age, either old or young, had come to his youth at last.

He went whistling from the house before even his father had come upstairs. There was a fog outdoors, saturated with a fine powder of soot, and hough Bibbs noticed absently the dim shape of an automobile at the curb before Roscoe's house, he did not recognize it as Doctor Gurney's but went cheerly on his way through the dingy mist. And when he was once more installed beside his faithful zinc eater he whistled and sang to it, as other workmen did to their own machines sometimes, when things went well. His comrades in the shop glanced at him amusedly now and then. They liked him, and he ate his lunch at noon with a group of socialists who approved of his ideas and talked of electing him to their association.

The short days of the year had come. and it was dark before the whistles blew. When the signal came, Bibbs went to his office, where he divested himself of his overalls-his single divergence from the routine of his fellow workmen-and after that he used with a gasp. "That's the first time soap and water copiously. This was his transformation scene: he passed into the office a rather frail young ulously. "Though I wanted you to!" working man noticeably begrimed, and passed out of it to the pavement a cheerfully preoccupied sample of gentry, fastidious to the point of elegance.

The sidewalk was crowded with the Mary informed him, her tremulous bearers of dinner pails, men and boys and women and girls from the workrooms that closed at five. Many hurried and some loitered; they went both east and west, jostling one another, and Bibbs, turning his face homeward. was forced to go slowly.

Coming toward him, as slowly, through the crowd, a tall girl caught sight of his long, thin figure and stood still until he had almost passed ber. for in the thick crowd and the thicker gloom he did not recognize her, though his shoulder actually touched hers. He would have gone by, but she laughed delightedly, and he stopped short, startled. Two boys, one chasing the other, swept between them, and Bibbs stood still, peering about him in deep perplexity. She leaned toward him.

"I knew you!" she said. "Good heavens!" cried Bibbs. thought it was your voice coming out of a star!"

"There's only smoke overhead," said Mary, and laughed again. "There aren't any stars."

"Oh, yes "here were when you aughed!" She took his arm, and they went on

"I was in this part of town already." she said. "At least, I was only seven or eight blocks away, and it was dark when I came out, and I'd have had to go home alone and I preferred going home with you?

"It's pretty beautiful for me," said Bibbs, with a deep breath. "You'll never know what it was to hear your laugh in the darkness-and then toto see you standing there! Oh, it was like-it was like- How can I tell you what it was like?" They had passed beyond the crowd now, and a crossing lamp shone upon them, which revealed the fact that she was without her furs. Here was a puzzle. However, allowing it to stand, his solicitude for her took another turn. "I think you ought to have a car," he said, "especially when you want to be out after dark. You need one in winter, anyhow. Have you ever asked your father for one?" "No," said Mary. "I don't think I'd care for one particularly."

"But my mother tried to insist on sending one over here every afternoon for me. I wouldn't let her, because I like to walk, but a girl-"A girl likes to walk, too," said "Let me tell you where I've Mary. been this afternoon and how I happened to be near enough to make you take me home. I've been to see a little old man who makes pictures of the smoke. He has a sort of warehouse for a studio, and he lives there with his mother and his wife and their seven children, and he's gloriously happy. I'd seen one of his pictures at an exhibition, and I wanted to see more of them, so he showed them to me. He has almost everything he ever painted; I don't suppose he's sold more than four or five pictures in his life. He gives drawing lessons to keep

"How do you mean he paints' the smoke?" Bibbs asked.

"Literally. He paints from his studio window and from the street-anywhere. He just paints what's around him-and it's beautiful."

"The smoke?" "Wonderful!" He sees the sky through t, somehow. He does the ugly roofs of cheap houses through a haze of get to the top his boss happened to smoke, and he does smoky sunsets and smoky sunrises, and he has other things with the heavy, solid, slow columns of smoke going far out and growing more ethereal and mixing with the hazy light in the distance; and he has others with the broken skyline of downtown, all misted with the smoke and with puffs and jets of vapor that have colors like an orchard in mid-April. I'm going to take you there some Sunday afternoon, Bibbs."

"You're showing me the town," he said. "I didn't know what was in it at all."

"There are workers in beauty here." she told him, gently. "There are other painters more prosperous than my friend. There are all sorts of things. "I didn't know."

"No. Since the town began growing so great that it called itself 'greater,' one could live here all one's life and know only the side of it that shows."

"The beauty workers seem buried very deep," said Bibbs. "And I imagine that your friend who makes the smoke beautiful must be buried deepest of all. My father loves the smoke, but I can't imagine his buying one of your friend's pictures. He'd buy the 'Bay of Naples,' but he wouldn't get one of those. He'd think smoke in a picture was horrible-unless he could use it for an advertisement."

"Yes," she said, thoughtfully. "And really he's the town. They are buried pretty deep, it seems, sometimes, Bibbs.

"And yet it's all wonderful," he said. "It's wonderful to me." "You mean the town is wonderful to you?"

"Yes, because everything is, since you called me your friend. The city is only a rumble on the horizon for me. It can't come any closer than the horizon so long as you let me see you standing by my old zinc eater all day long, helping me. Mary-" He stopped I've called you 'Mary!' "

"Yes." She laughed, > little trem-"I said it without thinking. It must be because you came there to walk home with me. That most be it."

"W, men like to have things said," laughter continuing. "Were you glad came for you?".

"No-not 'glad.' I felt as if I were being carried straight up and up and up-over the clouds. I feel like that still. I think I'm that way most of the time. I wonder what I was like before I knew you. The person I was then seems to have been somebody else, not Bibbs Sheridan at all. It eems long, long ago. I was gloomy and sickly-somebody else-somebody don't understand now, a coward afraid of shadows afraid of things that didn't exist-afraid of my old zinc eater! And now I'm only afraid of what might change anything." She was silent a moment, and then, You're happy, Bibbs?" she asked.

"Ah, don't you see?" he cried. "I want it to last for a thousand, thousand years, just as it is! You've made nie so rich, I'm a miser. I wouldn't have one thing different-nothing,

Went With the Load.

An Irishman, having arrived in New York a few days ago, got employment with a lumber merchant. Later he was ordered to take a load of lumber some distance away. Having gone half his journey, he came to a steep hill, and while the horses were struggling to meet him, and seeing the horses in such a difficulty, and Pat standing on top of the load, he stopped him and exclaimed:

"Do you think the horses haven't got enough to do without hauling you up this hill?"

Pat, fixing himself more comfortably on top of the load, said: "Is that what you stopped me for?"

Then, with a crack of his whip, Pat concluded: "Gee up, it's a poor ship that can't carry the captain."

TREATED HIM LIKE LEPER

Characteristic French Method of Paying Informer for Services That Made Him Forever Infamous.

Alexandre Dumas contributed to the Curieux an anecdote told him by Henri Didier, who was a deputy under the Second empire. Didier's father was secretary to the ministry of the interior at the time when the Duchesse de Berri was arrested at Nuntes at the end of her attempt to raise the country against Louis Philippe and in favor of her son, the Count de Chambord. The traitor Deutz agreed to sell to the government the secret of her hiding place for five hundred thousand francs, and it was the elder Dider's duty to pay the scoundrel for his dirty work. He took his son Henri nto the office and said: "Look well now at what passes, and never forget it. You will learn what a lache is, and the method of paying him." Deutz was then brought into the room where Monsieur Didier was standing behind his desk, on which were placed two hundred and fifty thousand francs. As Deutz neared the desk Monsieur Didier made a sign to him to stop. Then, taking a pair of tongs, he extended the packets, one after the other, into the hands open to receive them. Not a word was spoken, and, when the transfer was effected, Monsieur Didier pointed to the door.

embodies the full, rich nutriment of whole wheat combined with malted barley. This combination gives it a distinctive, delicious flavor unknown to foods made from wheat alone.

Only selected grain is used in making Grape-Nuts and through skillful processing it comes from the package fresh, crisp, untouched by hand, and ready to eat.

Through long baking, the energy producing starches of the grain are made wonderfully easy of digestion.

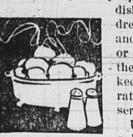

A daily ration of this splendid food yields a marvelous return of health and comfort.

"WANTED-A Man Who Can Beat Beakes."

This sentiment, expressed by a prominent Republican of the Second Congressional district in discussing the congressional situation recently, shows clearly what is uppermost in the minds of Republicans all over the district. They want a candidate who can beat Beakes.

Next fall there will be held a presidential election which will be one of the most important presidential elections held in years. The mistakes of the present Democratic administration, the apparant inability of President Wilson to cope with the momentous questions of state, the greedy pork-grabbing propensities of the Democratic congress, and the apparant indifference of the entire administration to the world-wide problems which the United States must solve, and solve correctly, have caused Republican voters to resolve that the terrible mistake of 1912 shall not be repeated this year.

While the selection of former Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Hughes as chief executive head of this nation is the question which is paramount in Republican circles today, it is not by any means the only problem which Republican voters are called upon to solve this year. A Republican president without a Republican congress would be like a ship without a rudder. We Republicans believe that Charles E. Hughes is the man best fitted to preside over the destinies of this nation during the momentous era through which this country is passing. We believe that he possesses the qualifications which will enable him to solve the worldwide problems which will confront this country during the next few years, wisely, and for the best interests of our country.

But he cannot assume the task with his hands tied. If he is to take up the burdens of state and the unsolved problems of diplomacy bequeathed by an inefficient Democratic edministration, which failed signally to rise to its opportunities upon numerous occasions, he must have the whole-souled support of a Republican congress. This being the case, it behooves the Republicans of the Second Congressional District to see to it that a Republican, espousing Republican principles,—a strong man—shall sit in the next congress as a representative of the Second District. While everything points to a Republican landslide in November, politics is a queer thing, and it might be possible that a margin of Republican safety in the lower house of congress would hinge upon the election in the Second District.

See to it, Republicans, that a candidate is selected who will be big enough, strong enough, intelligent enough and in every way suitable to conduct a campaign which will result in the return to the house of representatives from the Second District of a Republican.

Among the candidates who are seeking the nomination on the Republican ticket is such a man. We refer to Thornton Dixon of Monroe County, who is an ideal man for the place. Mr. Beakes, who has represented the Second district for two terms is a congressman by sufferance only. He was elected the first time, as was Mr. Wilson, as a result of the Progressive party movement, But in spite of the defection of thousands of Republicans in the district, Mr. Beakes was only able to defeat the late W. W. Wedemeyer by a few votes, recounts being required in practically every county in the district to determine the result.

After serving one term, Mr. Beakes again asked the votes of the people of his district, and once more, with the aid of the Progressive vote, he was elected, having a plurality of 209 votes over Mark Bacon, Republican candidate. We believe that beyond a question of doubt a strong Republican candidate would have defeated Mr. Beakes at this election, and defeated him easily. Mr. Bacon, with no particular qualifications for the place, demonstrated that the Second district is normally Republican, and furnished the best proof in the world that if Mr. Beakes had been confronted with a strong, able candidate instead of a weak one, he would have been defeated with ease.

We propose to show, in a series of articles, that Mr. Dixon is the one candidate for the nomination best fitted for the task of returning the Second congressional district to the Republican fold, where it belongs, and where it would be today if the Republicans of the district had not erred in choosing a candidate who could not rally to his support the members of his party.

Mr. Beakes is a professional politician, and we give him the credit of being a clever one. Realizing his cleverness, we recognize the danger of putting in nomination against him a man who will not be able to gather to his standard the entire Republican vote of the district. So it is our purpose to show the voters of Washtenaw County our reasons for believing that Thornton Dixon of Monroe County is the man best fitted to oppose Mr. Beakes at the polls in November.

KILLED SEEKING TO ESCAPE

How General Morgan, Famous Confederate Raider, Ended His Long Series of Forays.

In December, 1863, Longstreet, who had been conducting an active campaign in Tennessee, returned into Virginia, leaving the noted guerrilla, Col. John H. Morgan, to carry on the struggle in East Tennessee. December 29 there was a fight between General Sturgis and Morgan—the latter having an army of about 6,000-near New Market, in which Morgan was defeated. In another fight January 16, 1864, Morgan made the attack and Sturgis was driven back to Strawberry Plains. Morgan lingered in East Tennessee until May, and late in the month, with a small band of men, he went over the mountains and raided through eastern Kentucky, plundering the wealthy district as he went through. He captured several small towns, dashed into Lexington, burning the railway station and other property there, and hurried on to Frankfort. But General Burbridge was in pursuit, and came up with Morgan's men near Cynthiana, and in the fight which followed, Morgan lost 200 in killed and wounded, 400 prisoners, and 1,000 horses captured. Morgan now retreated into East Tennessee. In September he had his force at Greenville, and Morgan himself and his staff were at the house of a Morgan was killed while trying to es cape. His body was sent through the lines by a flag of truce, and was bur-ied with imposing ceremonies at Ab-

BREVITIES

MANCHESTER—The original plan of the waterworks system in this village called for driving three wells, but the cost was so great that only two were driven and we have never had a proper supply of water. The council has decided now to put down another well,—Enterprise.

GRASS LAKE—Automobile accidents constantly increase in number. Alice Shelly, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Shelly, was walk ing on the sidewalk in front of the hotel Saturday when an auto going east driven by a young lady, ran right up on the sidewalk and knocked the little girl down and bruised her up considerably. Fortunately for her, she was struck a glancing blow which saved her from more serious injury.—Grass Lake News.

STOCKBRIDGE—E. D. Dickinson in shipping some hayracks last Wednesday from the warehouse, found a mysterious looking package in a nail keg, and upon investigation found a bottle of nitroglycerine, some caps and fuses rolled up in an old sweater. It is thought that the package was hidden by the bunch who were caught here last spring after entering several places at Webberville. The gang was taken to Mason and are now serving time at Jackson.—Brief-Sun.

JACKSON—While driving a team over the Blackstone street crossing of the Michigan Central, Tuesday morning, William LaGrange, an inmate of Jackson prison, was struck by fast passenger train No. 36, eastbound, sustaining injuries which resulted in his death a short time afterward. Both horses were killed. One of them was nearly cut in two. LaGrange was headed for the Greenwood prison farm, located west of the city. He had been sent to haul peas which are being harvested there.

YPSILANTI—Milton Huston, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Huston, of Cherry Hill, who is on an arctic trip, writes his parents from Fort Finley, a point on the extreme northern part of the North American continent. He is contemplating a three months' trip still farther north from there. He says the scenery is very beautiful and the rivers exceptionally high owing to heavy snows. The party enjoys trout from the brooks, and tracks of deer, moose and bear have been seen, but no hunting has been done.—Record.

ADRIAN—The body of Henry Carlise, who was drowned in Devil's lake Saturday, July 8, was found Sunday morning at 6 o'clock, after having been in the water eight days. It was floating on the water a short distance north of Cedar Point, and was seen by a party of fishermen. Evidence that the death was not accidental were found upon examining the body, for the anchor rope, which was found to be broken from the boat, just after the drowning, was found tied around Carlisle's neck, and the anchor was attached.

BRIGHTON—Everyone knows that Richard Paddock is quite light on his feet, don't they? Well one day last week he demonstrated that fact by executing a few steps of the Oriental Snake Dance on a load of hay. Becoming interested as to the cause of such a demonstration, Gliff Collett, such a demonstration, Gliff Collett, who was the audience, found that Dick was dancing to the exciting music of a rattler, which had been unconsiously pitched onto the load. The actended with the untimely death of the "orchestra."—Argus.

ANN ARBOR-Darling and Love have for some time given punsters an opportunity to exercise their ingenuity in funmaking by reason of the fact that they operate one of the Packard street cars. Darling, who answers to the name of Marion, is the conductor, and Love, whose front names is James, is the motorman. Yesterday, at almost the same hour both became parents of bouncing baby boys, and the air of cheerfulness which permeated their car and oozed out through the open windows this morning was distinctly noticeable. Both mothers and children are doing well, and the fathers are getting along as well as may be expected.-Times News.

YPSILANTI-Harry Dennis, eight years old, recently felt the need of some ice cream and other boyhood luxries. Harry saw a nice big ten dollar note in his mother's pocketbook which be confiscated. He then secured his chum, Freddy Frederick, and they started out to celebrate. The first thing Harry did was to have the bill changed into two fives, one of which he gave to Freddy. They bought ice cream, crackerjack and candy and went into a jewelry store and offered two dollars for a dollar watch, which the firm accepted. In the meantime the mother of Harry called up the police, who found $3.25 of the money left. They also took the dollar watch back to the jewelry store and rescued the two dollars. Harry said explaining about the balance of the money that he treated several of his girl friends to candy.

RAILROAD WAGES

Shall they be determined by Industrial Warfare or Federal Inquiry?

To the American Public:

Do you believe in arbitration or industrial warfare?

The train employes on all the railroads are voting whether they will give their leaders authority to tie up the commerce of the country to enforce their demands for a 100 million dollar wage increase.

The railroads are in the public serviceyour service. This army of employes is in the public service—your service.

You pay for rail transportation 3 billion dollars a year, and 44 cents out of every dollar from you goes to the employes.

On all the Eastern Railroads in 1915, seventy-five per cent of the train employes earned these wages (lowest, highest, and average of all) as shown by the payrolls—

A 100 million dollar wage increase for men in freight and yard service (less than one-fifth of all employes) is equal to a 5 per cent advance in all freight rates.

The managers of the railroads, as trustees for the public, have no right to place this burden on the cost of transportation to you without a clear mandate from a public tribunal speaking for you.

The railroads have proposed the settlement of this controversy either under the existing national arbitration law, or by reference to the Interstate Commerce Commission. This offer has been refused by the employes' representatives.

Shall a nation-wide strike or an investigation under the Government determine this issue?

NEW BUILDINGS FOR STATE FAIR

Improvements Will Gost Over $150,000, Says Manager.

COLISEUM WILL SEAT 15,000

Floral Hall, Art, Woman's and Poultry Buildings, New Entrance, Sidewalks and Macadam Roads to Be Constructed During the Summer Months.

Improvements costing a total of more than $150,000 are to be made at the Michigan State Fair Grounds during the summer, and when the 1916 exposition opens for ten days on Sept. 4 the Michigan grounds will be superior to any similar grounds in the United

Through the efforts of G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the Michigan State Fair, new buildings will be erected on the grounds, as well as a large new entrance, additional bleach-ers, a lighting system, concrete sidewalks and macadam roads.

Will Seat Over 15,000.

The coliseum, which will be similar to the coliseum at the Indiana State Fair grounds, Indianapolis, will have a seating capacity of over 15,000. In addition to being used during the State Fair, it will undoubtedly be the meeting place of large conventions and similar gatherings which are not held in Detroit at the present time because of no suitable building. The coliseum will cost about $100,000 and will be constructed north of the Automobile Building, with which it will be connected.

Other buildings which will be constructed during the summer are an Art Building, Floral Hall, Poultry Building as well as a Woman's Building. Work upon the Woman's Building, Art Building and Floral Hall will be commenced at once, and all will be finished by the time the Fair opens. It is probable, however, that the Poultry Building will not be completed until later in the year.

Mr. Dickinson announces that the additional bleachers, which will seat several thousand people, will cost about $4,000 and will be erected for the convenience of many persons who do not want to pay for seats in the grand e admitted to

This will give every one an opportunity to see the speed events and the horse show at a nominal price.

New Entrance to Cost $5,000. The new entrance to the grounds will cost about $5,000 and is to be located at the southwest corner of the Fair property. Mr. Dickinson says that, with the additional entrance, congestion due to automobile traffic will be eliminated. New sidewalks costing about $4,000 are to be built, as well as macadam roads, and the appearance of the grounds will be generally improved.

"With the new buildings and improve. ments completed the Michigan State Fair Grounds will provide a wonderful place for the holding of our annual exhibitions," said General Manager Dickinson, "We now have agricultural dairy, automobile, executive, horticultural and main buildings as well as the machinery hall and grand stand, all of which are large and in good repair. Our horse barns as well as the buildings for the other live stock are being repaired and painted and will be in first class shape for the 1916 Exposition, which will be the greatest Fair of its kind ever held in the middle

"We are now making arrangements for many attractions and can assure Michigan residents that the amusement and entertainment features will excel anything brought to the State Fair in the past."

Big Poultry Show at Fair. The 1915 poultry and pet stock show at the Michigan State Fair was the largest exhibit of the kind ever held in the state, and it is expected that the 1916 show will also be a record breaker. pearl;
Advantaging their loan, with interest,
Oftentimes double gain of happiness.

Was there ever a woman-no matter how many blessings surrounded her -who did not give herself up completely to a fit of the blues now and then? They have indulged this habit—for it is nothing else than a fight starvation, ejection from the habit—from girlhood up until at last home that shelters them and with init has taken such a hold upon them sufficient clothes to cover them, they are unable to shake off these

The splendid army of working girls should be an example of cheerfulness to the women in good homes who have nothing to do but nurse their grievances.

These working girls, each and every one, know the and how to radiate cheerfulness. If you put the question to them whether or no they ever have fits of the blues, the smile will die out of their eyes as gravely that in the business world there is no place for the girl or woman who gives free rein to fits out discontent and cultivate a happy of melancholy and that good nature, disposition, though we have it not, a happy mood and a genial disposi- and always look on the bright side.

tion in general are the assets she depends on not only to keep her posttion, but to forge ahead. There are too many helpless ones at home, usually, dependent upon her to encourage fits of the blues.

It is only the idlers or those who have little or nothing to do who rall secretly over really insignificant affairs. . The women wedded to men who drink up the greater part of their wages, leaving the family at home to bravely fight the demon discontent, put their shoulders to the wheel and live and dream of the glorious duties they are performing in keeping their children at school and the golden reward that will surely be theirs later

The childless wife, who has longed for the clasp of little arms around her neck and childish, loving lips pressed to her own, encounters battles which she must fight bravely to outwit attacks of the blues. Philosophical women accomplish this by answering the cry of their lonely hearts with this truth: Whatever should be, will Whatever is, is best. He who denies their earnest prayers knows

Eggs to be used for hatching should not be subjected to either abnormally high or low temperatures. If they can be gathered before they have time to cool after being laid it is all the better for their hatching qualities. From 50 to 60 degrees is the best temperature for storing hatching eggs... Little chicks should be protected from cool, damp surroundings. Nothing is more detrimental to their health and more certain to bring heavy mortality than to let them out in the wet grass early in the morning.

When shipping live poultry to market always allow sufficient room and use a coop sufficiently high, so that the fowls will not suffer from cramped positions while on the road. Any discomfort reduces their weight and costs the producer a certain amount of

The early hatched pullet is the one that begins to lay early in the fall, when eggs are high in price.

Collars Make Blouses.

Do you know how to "trim up" the plain blouse and make it become your individual style? Get a collar in white chiffon or sheerest organdie which, in turning back, covers the nape and the sides of the neck, runs flatly across the shoulders and straight down over the bust, forming a slender "V" opening below the throat. This collar is bordered with pin-tucked self material, straight on its outer edge and widely scalloped along the fine, embroideryoutlined inner edge. Another blouse dominating collar has a tapering, narrow turnover coming high against all save the front of the neck, and widened by an extremely broad frilling of the plaited material, a-jour hemmed. In crepe de chine this second collar is extremely practical as well as dainty.

Education Sometimes Costly.

For the education of the 325 seniors at Yale college slightly more than $1,-000,000 has been required. While it is figured that $4,073 for the entire four years is the average cost a student one man alone has spent $15,000 in the process of going through college while another has required only $500 to provide his education. In this con nection it is a noteworthy fact that 120 members of the class have earned their way through college either in part or in whole, having earned to date a grand total of more than $300.

THE LANDLORD

By LOUISE OLIVER.

When moving time came it was unfortunate for Cornelia that both her parents had to be away.

So with black Judas and his wife Violet, she had managed to get china. rugs and furniture into shape for cozy new bungalow in the hillside above the river.

For days Cornelia had scoured agencies and scanned lists, waded ing process. But her courage remained unshaken and her will at last bungalow on a hillside with a superb view of the river. This was no mere house, it was explained to her at the office, the owner having built, it for and had gone to war and was now somewhere in the trefrches in France.

Moving day came. Cornelia rose at six and after a huried breakfast tock the car to her future home. The conductor began to call stations instead of streets. At one of these Cornelia got off and made her way along the roads toward the haven on the hill that was to be her home. She mounted the steps of the terrace and took out her key. Then the hum of a powerful motor caught her ear. Down the road were coming two Immense trucks loaded with furniture! Then around the corner of the house came a man who called, "Hello, Dorgan! Come on and help me get a door open. I forgot to get the keys!" Then, seeing Cornella with her key in the lock, he hurried up the steps,"

"I don't quite understand," said Cornelia. "I rented this house a week ing. There seems to be some mistake."

The man régarded her quietly for a minute. She was very pretty, was Cornelia-very-and one would have said that his mind was not entirely upon the fact that someone else was trying to move into the same domicile with himself.

"What shall we do to McAlpin & Co.?" asked the man quietly. "They assured me the property was without a tenant and that I could certainly won't help hatters much, will it? And for us to demolish one another wouldn't do either, would it, because -he paused an instant, "well, be cause it wouldn't. You said 'we' were moving in. That implies a family?"

"Yes, my father and mother and brother. I am Cornelia Anderson." "So, you see, to do away with you still leaves a father and mother and brother. Now with me it's different. I'm alone! And if you will only look will beat a hasty retreat and take my cook stove and rocking chairs along home." They laughed together. "But." h protested, "you wouldn't exactly be leaving me without a home. I really was only going to use the place as a sort of storage house for my things for the time being-not a home, you see, at least for some time to come. Besides, I'm not altogether an American genfleman. I'm an English sol-sounds so unfriendly." "But the house is yours! They told me all-about you at the office!"

"True enough! But that hasn't any thing to do with the case. I'm home on sick leave. I'm going back soon. All I'm doing now is to make have of other people's plans. So I'm better out of the way."

Cornella thought a minute. Then, There's an immense attic! Would that be of any use?" He caught her meaning. "That's a bully idea! Don't you need it-the garret, I mean?" "No, indeed! We'd be glad to have you use it!" "Thanks, awfully. Then it's sel tled. I'll tell Dorgan he can put things in. I must be off on the o'clock train and I've some business to attend to before I leave." Cornella was silent. Try as would, she could think of nothing to say in parting. But the soldler we on: "Will you come to the end of the veranda with me, where there is better view of the river?"

She went with him. "A soldier in active service cannot afford to lose a minute. Don't think me abrupt, if you can help it, but I to understand that after the next fel minutes L may never see you again and I'd like to go away with the fee ing that you'd hope for me to

House Debates Whether Wife Is Member of Family

ASHINGTON.—There have been some interesting debates in the house of representatives recently, and for reasons best known to the general public these debates have not yet seen the light of print save in the gloomy columns of the Congressional Record.

At almost any time one can drop into the house and get a thrill, but owing to the news from the Mexican, Austrian, Galician and other harried borders it takes more than a speech in congress to get a rise out of a newspaper these days. Perhaps it is for that reason that the orators of congress are seeking new fields in their endeavor to start a little something in the way of

For instance, it was not long ago when the national house of representatives debated the question of whether a wife is a part of a man's family. This is not a joke. It really happened. It was while the Hay resolution was being discussed in a tumult which reminded old-timers of a town meeting. This resolution provided money for dependent families of National Guardsmen. They stuck in the father and mother and little brothers and sisters and the children, amid cheers at each addition.

In the midst of this wild clamor up rose a tall Kansas man and solemnly demanded that the word "wife" be inserted then and there. He argued that there were reasons for this; that certain volcanic actions on the part of crossgrained courts, presided over presumably, by woman-hating bachelors or cowardly hennecked husbands, made it necessary that whenever the national legislature is making laws for the benefit of the family, the word "wife" must be written in with indelible ink in capital letters, so as to prevent the woman of the house from being robbed of her due.

Then he house batted the suggestion back and forth like a basket ball. Some of them said the Kansas man was right and some of them said he was

In the melee no one seems to remember whether the wife got into the resolution or not.

Uncle Sam's Campaign to Safeguard Milk Supply

THE milk you drink interests Uncle Sam. He recognizes it to be one of the most easily contaminated and easily spoiled foods in existence and at the same time one of the foods in most general use. The dairy division

In the educational campaigns the responsibility of the consumer in the matter of temperature also is emphasized. # Senator Martine Gave His Dog Suitable Burial

SENATOR MARTINE of New Jersey had a dog. It was not much of a dog. taking it by and large, but it had been a member of Martine's bousehold for a long time and he was attached to it. A while ago the dog died, from a English crepe or silk, like that used for by extreme old age.

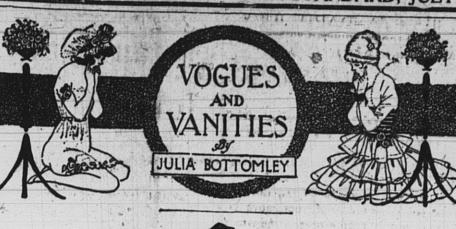

Senator Martine was insistent that the dog should have a decent and proper burial. He was living in a Washington apartment house at the time, and the finding of a suitable burial plot was a problem. He could not go out in the backyard and hold his funeral, because there wasn't any backyard. Anybody living in a small apartment who has ever put in a day the cord, appear at the left side. To Martine's delight he learned that there is in Washington an ultraexclusive dog cemetery, intended only for dead dogs of high social standing. Martine went and bought a lot in that cemetery and gave his dog such a burial as any dog might well be proud of.

The prospect of such a burial should reconcile almost any dog to having had his day. Martine forsook his senatorial duties long enough to go to the funeral and personally see to it that the dog was paid every respect.

Today a neat little marble headstone marks the spot where the Martine dog made its final descent into the bosom of the earth

POISON WILL HOLD CUTWORM IN CHECK

Mixture of Bran, Paris Green or Arsenate of Lead and Molasses Is Effective.

(By J. S. GARDNER, Missouri Agricultural College.) If cutworms prove troublesome in the garden or corn field, they can be held in check with a mixture of 25 pounds of bran, half a pound of paris green or lead arsenate and a quart of molasses. The lead arsenate is now cheaper than the paris green, and whichever is used should be dissolved in two gallons of water, to which the molasses and ground pulp of two lemons or oranges should be added.

This poison mixture should be scattered in the evening in order that it may stay moist as long as possible, as the worms refuse to eat it after it has become dry. The addition of the orange or lemon juice is important in making it attractive to the worms, but it is likely to be attractive to the chickens and some other farm animals also, with fatal results.

DOUCHE IS OFTEN NECESSARY

Plan Outlined for Treating Cows for Sterility and Abortion-Good Solution In Use.

Frequently the dairyman finds it necessary to use a vaginal douche as a treatment for abortion and sterility troubles. The following method is recommended for such cases:

Secure a large galvanized pail, four to six gallons in capacity according to the size of the herd, and fit it with a stop-cock. Buy a pure gum horse stomach tube and fit it to the stopcock. Elevate the pail until it is about three feet above the cow so that the liquid will flow freely. This can be readily done by making use of the feeding and litter track if there is one in the barn. When ready to use the apparatus, insert the stomach tube into the vagina, open the stopcock and allow the douching solution to flow into it by gravity until it is completely filled. A very good solution to use is a 1 to 2,500 or 3,000 parts of permanganate of potash and water.

SEPARATING A THICK CREAM

Skimming High-Test Product Leaves More Skim Milk on Farm for Hogs, Calves and Fowls.

Farmers will make more money by separating a reasonably thick cream than a thin cream. Skimming hightest cream leaves more skim milk on the farm to feed to the hogs, calves and chickens. Skim milk utilized in this way has a feeding value of about 35 cents per hundred, while if the milk is left in the cream, nothing is realized.

The butter maker usually wants a cream testing around 35 or 44 per cent butterfat. In the winter, if the cream is above 40 per cent it is rather difficult to get the cream all out of one can into another or into a vat." Cream testing about 35 per cent in the winter and 40 per cent in the summer is right for buttermaking.

COWS ARE DAIRY MACHINES

If They Fall to Produce Profits Sor thing is Wrong—Usually it is Raw Material.

The cows on the dairy farm repreent the equipment that produce profit. If they fail something must be wrong. They are the machines. The feed is the raw material, the milk or butterfat is the finished product. If the machines are efficient and the finished product is not all that can be desired, the trouble must be with the raw material.
