A Seasonable Suggestion

CHASE & SANBORN'S Orange Pekoe Tea The Best TEA for ICE TEA

BREW in the same manner as though serving hot, only make a little stronger, as the addition of ice will reduce the strength.

When cold, add a small quantity of lemon juice and allow a few thin slices of lemon to float on top.

Add sugar to suit taste. Use cake of ice large enough to keep it thoroughly chilled.

FOR LARGE QUANTITIES

use three ounces of tea for each gallon of water.

HENRY H. FENN COMPANY

The New Hollier Six.

The Lewis Spring and Axle Co. has commenced deliveries on the Hollier Six, their new car which sells at $1085. This is one of the classiest jobs that has come out of the Hollier plant. It is a beautifully designed machine, with long, nearly horizontal hood and straight body lines. The windshield is given a slight slant, just enough to give a "racy" look to the car. The finish that is put on this machine is such that it will attract attention wherever seen. The body is in the standard Hollier blue.

The point about the new six that will appeal to everyone located in this section of the country is its ability to ride easily over the rough roads. The spring suspension is the same as on the Hollier Eight. Half elliptic springs in front and full cantilever in the rear, the cantilever being forty-two inches long, make a car that has been called "The car with five front seats." This is an expression that has been heard from many quarters, and comes from the fact that the combination of easy riding springs and easy riding upholstery is one that is very hard to beat.

The motor is one that has been thoroughly tested out on thousands of miles of road radiating in all directions from the factory, and has stood up remarkably well. It is of the valve-in-head type, cylinders three inch bore by four and one-fourth inch stroke. Cylinders are cast en-bloc. The entire head of the motor is detachable, including the valves and valve seats, allowing easy access for adjustment or cleaning. The pistons are light and well balanced, with three rings. Motor is of the unit power plant type, three point suspension. Sight feed lubricator on the dash.

Every point about this new car is up-to-the-minute. The gasoline tank is located at the rear of the frame, and gas is carried to the motor by means of a vacuum tank located under the cowl. Cooling is by thermosiphon system.

The chassis, with the exception of the motor is practically the same as that on the Hollier Eight. The frame is made of a heavy, deep, strong steel channel, braced to make it extra strong.

The front axle is a high carbon steel forging, drop forged, heat treated and pickled. The rear axle is of the full floating type, with solid swaged tubes pressed into a maleable housing.

Artillery type wheels are used with 33x4 non-skid tires on all four wheels. The new Hollier Six is equipped with an efficient starting and lighting system with powerful headlights that are dimmed for town driving. One of the attractive features is the instrument board lamp which is wired in series with the tail light. The advantage of this is that the driver can always tell whether or not the tail-light is burning. A storage battery is used which has sufficient capacity to roll the engine continuously for twenty minutes or to carry the full lighting load for ten hours.

There is a selective type transmission. The gear shift lever is made with a curve which brings it into an unusually convenient position.

The clutch is an aluminum alloy casting, faced with leather. The clutch lever is adjustable for length.

The Hollier Six is built with either of two standard bodies, a five passenger touring car and a four passenger roadster. Both are of extraordinary roominess and uncommonly pleasing in design. Upholstery is in genuine leather and curled hair.

A side view of the car shows the long sweeping design of the high-crowned fenders, which add greatly to the attractiveness of the Hollier Six. The wheel base of 116 inches and road clearance of ten inches have been found to give the best results, particularly on Michigan roads.

From present indications, the new Hollier Six gives promise of being fully as popular from the start as was the Hollier Eight, which scored an instantaneous success. Production is proceeding rapidly and the roads around this part of Washtenaw county are being kept warm by the Hollier Six test cars. Shipments of Hollier Sixes are being made daily to all parts of the country and the Hollier dealers report a lively interest being taken in this newest product of the big Hollier factory.

There is no doubt that a great many of these Sixes will find homes within a few miles of Chelsea, as a number of the local merchants and farmers of this vicinity have been looking forward with anticipation to the arrival of the Hollier Six.

A regular meeting of The Macca-bees on Friday evening of this week.

THE CANDIDATES HAVE FILED THEIR PETITIONS

Saturday Afternoon Was Last Chance To Get On Ballot.

TWO ARE FROM CHELSEA

Democrats Have But One Candidate
For Each Office—Republicans Have Several.

The following office seekers in Washtenaw county have filed their petitions with the county clerk, and their names will appear on the primary ballots. Several of the candidates waited until nearly the last minute before filing the petitions.

Republican Candidates—
State Legislature—First district, H. W. Newkirk and Walter Tubbs, Ann Arbor; second district, Hugh E. Vandewalker, Ypsilanti.
Prosecutor—Frank B. DeVine, Ann Arbor; Geo. S. Wright, Milan.
County Clerk—Edwin Smith, Theo. Trost, Ann Arbor.

Judge of Probate—John Kalmbach, Chelsea; Jacob F. Fahrner, Ann Arbor; E. E. Leland, Northfield.
Treasurer—Leo Gruner, Ann Arbor.
Sheriff—Herman G. Lindenschmitt, Ann Arbor.

Register of Deeds—Perry B. Townsend, Ypsilanti; Austin Robinson, Ann Arbor.

Coroner—Samuel W. Burchfield, Ann Arbor.

Circuit Court Commissioner—Wm. Laird, Henry A. Balser, Ann Arbor; Floyd Daggett, Ypsilanti.

Drain Commissioner—C. E. Deake, Ypsilanti.

Democratic candidates—
State Legislature—First district, Waldo Abbott, Ann Arbor. Second district, Ennis Twist, Ypsilanti.

The Socialists filed the following petitions:

State Representative—A. L. Wilk inson.

Judge of Probate—Horace Barnard, Sheriff—Joseph J. Fischer.

County Clerk—H. W. Nichols.

ELECTING A PRESIDENT

J. Q. ADAMS.

Adams
Elected by House
In Exciting
1824
Fight.

As there were no recognized political parties this year, election became a personal contest, which resulted as follows: Andrew Jackson, 99; John Quincy Adams, 84; William H. Crawford, 41; Henry Clay, 37. No one having received a majority, the house of representatives elected Adams. Thirteen states voted for him. John C. Calhoun was generally supported for vice president and was elected.

This is the first year where the popular vote is on record. That year it was: Jackson, 155,572; Adams, 105,521; Crawford, 44,282; Clay, 46,587. It is thus noted that, while Jackson received 50,000 more votes than Adams, yet he was defeated.

(Watch for the election of Andrew Jackson in 1828 in our next issue.)

Treasurer—Lawrence E. O'Connor.
Register of Deeds—Robt. Reichen-ecker.

In the second congressional district the following filed petitions with the secretary of state:

Republican—Thornton Dixon, Monroe; Thos. E. Wall, Ann Arbor; Mark R. Bacon, Wyandotte.

Democratic—Samuel W. Beakes, Ann Arbor; Albert D. Chandler, Hudson.

Socialist—Edward J. Koch, Ann Arbor.

Prohibition—Frank E. Titus, Jackson.

Former Chelsea Man Dead.

Clarence Dixon, formerly a resident of Chelsea, died in Ypsilanti Sunday after a short illness, at the age of 54 years.

Mr. Dixon was born in Lima township, and had lived his entire life in Washtenaw county. He is survived by a widow, two daughters, Mrs. Henry Schaible and Mrs. Ned Edinger of Ann Arbor; two sisters, Mrs. U. H. Townsend of Chelsea and Mrs. Abner Beach of Lima, and a brother, David, of Dexter.

North Sylvan Grange.

The North Sylvan Grange will meet with Mr. and Mrs. Wirt Ives, Friday evening, August 11. The following program will be given:

Song by Grange.
Roll call—First aid to the injured.

Song by Mrs. Emerson Lesser.
Topic—"How Can a Farmer's Wife

Take a Vacation at Home?" Led by Mrs. P. M. Broesamle.

Song by Grange.

An Enjoyable Service.

Last Sunday the members of the Old People's Home enjoyed a rare treat in listening to the sermon delivered by Rev. H. A. Leeson, of Ypsilanti. He spoke from the text found in 1st Kings, 19:12. In a simple, clear and impressive manner left in the hearts and memories such impressions of the meaning of those beautiful words as had never been so felt before, and while life lasts will be food for reflection. We are quite sure the "still small voice" will be listened for and heeded, and its refining influence felt in the culture and uplift of all who heard as never before. **

Mrs. Frederick Schaible.

Miss Marie Barbara Kaercher was born in Lima township, September 11, 1848, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. G. Faist on Orchard street, Tuesday morning, August 1, 1916.

She was united in marriage with Frederick Schaible, (who died last January) September 21, 1869. For many years Mr. and Mrs. Schaible were residents of Sylvan, moving to Chelsea from their farm last fall. Mrs. Schaible had been in failing health for several months.

She is survived by one son Herman, one daughter, Mrs. A. G. Faist of this place, six grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. John Heller, and one brother, Michael Kaercher, both residents of Lima, and a number of nephews and nieces.

The funeral was held from St. Paul's church Thursday afternoon, Rev. G. Eisen, pastor of St. John's church, Rogers Corners, Freedom, preaching in German, and Rev. G. C. Nothdurft, pastor of Salem German M. E. church, Sylvan, delivering a sermon in English. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

Found in Horrible Condition.

What is said by Dr. A. S. Warthin, of the University of Michigan faculty, to be a case unique in medical history, was discovered at Ann Arbor Sunday by two Greeks, when they came upon the badly decomposed body of Frank Bogardus, and found that he was alive.

He was discovered near the Michigan Central tracks face upward, his body from head to foot decomposed and badly fly-blown. He had been attacked by vermin, his eyes, ears, nose, and mouth being infected. A strong odor emanated from his body, which caused the two Greeks to look for the cause. They supposed the man to be dead, but were startled to hear him address them. Bogardus was taken to the jail, where he died three hours later.

Dr. Warthin found many blue bottle flies in the man's stomach, his body one mass of putrefaction with vermin back of the ear drums in the interior of the cranial cavity and elsewhere. Dr. Warthin said the body had been steeped in alcohol. Bogardus said that he had lain where he was found since Wednesday.

The Baptist Women's Missionary Circle will meet with Mrs. L. M. Whitaker, Wednesday, August 9, at 2:30 o'clock.

Sun Brothers' Show.

Now on what is termed their twenty-fifth jubilee year and tour, the Sun Brothers' world's progressive shows are coming back to Chelsea and will give two performances on Tuesday, August 8.

It is hardly necessary to state here that this tented show is alright, for the reason that our citizens know, that it is all right and besides it is simply pure, all clean and respectable.

The advance printing matter states that the program for presentation is absolutely all new for this season, not one old feature being retained. The success of this noted tented aggregation has been realized by presenting the American people a tented show entirely free from every form of graft; by keeping every promise made in the matter of exhibitions, and by treating those who visit these exhibitions with the utmost courtesy and respect. It is this manner of treatment which often causes one to feel more guest than patron when he visits the Sun Brothers' Shows.

Many of their rival showmen who countenanced the old time confidence man, the short changer and other forms of graft, made the assertion, that the show could not live without adjuncts of that kind, and also sneeringly referred to the Sun Brothers' shows as "that Sunday school show."

Ever since its inception twenty-five years ago, the Sun Brothers have been deadly foes to anything of a demoralizing character and have kept their shows intact and free from it, and to-day it is the only show of its size in America that can successfully "repeat" each season town for town. The amusement going people have confidence in the show, because of the new and original performances each succeeding season, and always of the very best. Its great cleanliness and honest, courtesy and fair treatment given to all who visit their shows or do business with them.

The show will arrive in Chelsea by special train service early Tuesday morning. At noon-time preceding the afternoon performance, a number of highly original free outside shows will be presented to the public, all taking place on the show grounds and absolutely free to the public.

Perfect Enough.

"Yes," said the Olathe man introducing his son to the visitor from back East, "I think I've done pretty well by my boy. I've brought him up so he tells the truth about everything now except his automobile."—Kansas City Star.

Do You Want Your Kidneys Examined On?

Kidney troubles are getting more common every day. Government health bureau figures say deaths from this cause are 72 per cent more than 20 years ago.

Anybody who suffers constant backache, who feels blue, nervous and irritable; who has dizzy spells, headache and urinary disorders should suspect kidney weakness. Overworked kidneys must have a rest. Take things easier; live more carefully. Take a good kidney remedy to build the kidneys up again.

But be sure to get Doan's Kidney Pills—the oldest, the most widely used, the best recommended of all kidney pills, now in use all over the civilized world. Don't experiment with your kidneys. Thousands have already tested Doan's. You have their experience to go by. Plenty of cases right here in Chelsea. Here's one:

F. A. Hammond, Madison St., Chelsea, says: "My back got lame from lifting and every time I caught a hard cold, it made the trouble worse. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me promptly and removed the lameness in my back."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hammond had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

FIVE MEN DROWN AT GAUKLER POINT

ALL WERE EXPERT SWIMMERS AND BATHED EVERY NIGHT AT THE SAME PLACE.

WERE CAUGHT BY UNDERTOW

Rescued Once, Then Drowns Is the Case of Bowie Who Was Brought Near Shore.

Detroit—Battered by the waves, exhausted by walking on a muddy bottom and caught by an undertow off Gaukler Point, Lake St. Clair, five members of a swimming party of seven men were drowned in a 16-foot channel opposite Mat Kramer's old roadhouse.

Mrs. Clinton Knox and her 4-year-old son were sitting on the lake shore watching the bathers and were witnesses to their struggles for life.

The men were swimming at the same place they had bathed in every night for a week.

All were expert swimmers; but they had been in the water three-quarters of an hour and when they found themselves in the strong outflowing current of the channel, of the existence of which they were unaware, they had no strength to fight back to safety.

Four of them disappeared far out from shore.

The fifth disappeared after one of his companions had rescued him and placed him near the shore.

Clinton Knox, superintendent of the Detroit Piston Ring company; Joseph Goeck, Stanley J. Goeck, Milton Elliott and Leslie Bowie, all foremen, were the victims.

All but Bowie disappeared at the same time.

Bowie lost his life after he had been rescued once.

John Granger, employe, and Mason C. Knox, employe and brother of the superintendent, are the survivors.

Granger came near losing his life in rescuing Bowie and Mason Knox, only to learn Bowie had gone under after he had taken him near shore.

First intimation of distress of any of the swimmers came when Bowie called to Granger, "Give me a lift."

The men were not in deep water, but a high wind had lashed the waters of the lake into a choppy sea.

Granger made his way to Bowie, picked him up and started to carry him ashore.

As he did so he heard a cry for help from Mason Knox.

Granger had reached shallow water by this time and, asking Bowie if he could "make it" all right and, receiving an affirmative answer, he placed Bowie on his feet.

Then he struck out for Mason Knox, who was further out.

He reached Mason Knox, picked him up and struck out for shore. He took Knox clear to the beach.

Then both looked around for Bowie. He was gone.

Exhausted, Granger struck out to look for him, calling meanwhile for help from the other four swimmers.

The wind and sea made such a noise, however, that his voice carried but a short distance and he heard no reply.

FOUR MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES

When in Swimming to Get Relief From the Terrific Heat.

Lake Orion—Leonard Kirk, 24-years old, of Marlette, was drowned while bathing in Lake Orion. It is believed that he was the victim of cramps.

Saginaw—Henry Stall, aged 26, while seeking relief from the heat, was in bathing at Melburn park and was drowned. It is thought he was seized with cramps.

Houghton—Rock Tomasi, a miner at Isle Royale mine, went swimming in the Huron dam. He dove and struck a sunken tree and was killed instantly.

Kalamazoo—Henry Porter, a colored race track follower from Memphis, was drowned here when he went swimming in the river. He stepped into a deep hole and went down before aid could reach him. The body has been recovered.

Corn and potato crops in Kalamazoo county will be a complete failure unless immediate rain comes. Farmers are exceedingly alarmed over present conditions. It has been nearly five weeks since a hard rain.

Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, dean of the medical department of the University of Michigan, will go to New York as a member of the commission to study the infantile paralysis epidemic. He is gathering information through the state board of health on all Michigan cases.

OUR BOYS ON THE BORDER LINE

They Have Plenty Of Sand In The Line Of Duty As Well As In The Heated Air

IT IS SOME STUNT ON GUARD

A Soldier Boys Graphic Picture Of Life Among Lizards And Half-Breed Mexicans

Laredo, Tex.—Well, I am here in Texas, I arrived Sunday morning at 11 o'clock but this is the first time I have succeeded in getting enough dust out of my eyes to see to write. The last time that it rained here was last October, so you can imagine what it is like. Everything has been quiet since I arrived but there is tension in the air and it is hard to tell when things will break. We had a midnight alarm the other night and I had to get up and go on a little scouting expedition and we all slept with our clothes on the rest of the night, but nothing happened.

Laredo is a city of 28,000 inhabitants, 23,000 of them being Mexicans.

Studying the Position.

How the city exists I can't tell, because absolutely nothing will grow here, except mesquite and cactus. I have looked at the thermometer just once since I arrived and that was at 7 p. m. Sunday night. It was then 102 in the shade. I haven't looked since. They say that it averages from 100 to 115 during the summer and you know how I love the hot weather. It is very dry though it does not seem so hot as it is and there is usually a breeze which helps you to keep cool and which keeps your eyes, ears, nose, mouth, etc., full of sand. The wind is always southeast and at night it blows a gale and fills everything with sand. When I go to bed I tie a handkerchief over my eyes and take off my clothes and lie on top of all the covers and let her blow. It sure is great stuff to make you breathe through your nose. In the morning everything is always absolutely full of sand.

The soil is a sort of clay that is baked until it is as hard as rock and is covered with this sandy dust. The inhabitants are Mexicans, a few Tex. Mex (half and half), a very few white people, scorpions, lizards, tarantulas, rattlesnakes, but no mosquitoes.

Our camp is out on the desert near the 9th Inf. camp, in the edge of Laredo. We are about 200 yards from the Rio Grande, and can see the Mexican soldiers moving around on the other side. The Rio Grande is not a large river as I had expected, but is quite small (smaller than the Willamette, I think) and is muddy as the dickens. Our drinking water comes from the river and we have to boil it before we drink it, because it is full of Mexican germs.

Our camp would be very comfortable if it was comfortable, but we should worry.

I feel sorry for the pitiful conditions of most of these poor Mexicans. Their homes are hovels, worse than pig pens and their condition is awful. Although Laredo is a city of 28,000, the main part of the town is not so prosperous looking as the business section of the poorest Michigan hamlet.

It is very hard to write here, so I wish you would pass this on. Don't worry about me because I am O. K. and perfectly safe.

Must stop now and get busy. We always have about two hours, in the early morning, of really delightful weather.

Hope to hear from you soon. Don't pay much attention to stuff you read in the papers about conditions. Their

Washington—Foreign trade of the United States closed its greatest year in history June 30, with a balance of $2,136,000,000 in favor of American exporters. The year's exports aggregated $4,384,000,000, the department of commerce announced, and imports were valued at $2,198,000,000. The trade balance was double that of last year and four times that of 1914. Exports exceeded those of last year by $1,500,000,000.

Washington—Junk men in the United States collected $114,000,000 worth of scrap iron and other metals last year, the Geological survey announced.

Washington—President Wilson has signed the rivers and harbors bill appropriating $42,000,000 for the continuance of old projects and a few new ones.

London—Sir Roger Casement's request for permission to appeal to the house of lords from the verdict convicting him of high treason, has been denied.

dope about scraps is usually very nearly correct.

The prevailing language in Laredo is Spanish. It is an awful looking place. The streets are narrow and unpaved. The sidewalks are not wide enough for more than two people to walk abreast. The buildings are (with a few exceptions) dilapidated old shacks. The conditions of the natives is, in general, pitiful. Until the other day it had not rained since last October but we sure had a peach when it did come and it rained again last night and is cool today. The nights are splendid and all in all it is not half bad here.

I know absolutely nothing about the Mexican situation. Everything is disgustingly quiet now, but will probably break out again soon.

We took a 20-mile trip along the border the other day, accompanying the officers making a tour of inspection of the guard. Part of the trip was made on horseback and part by automobile.

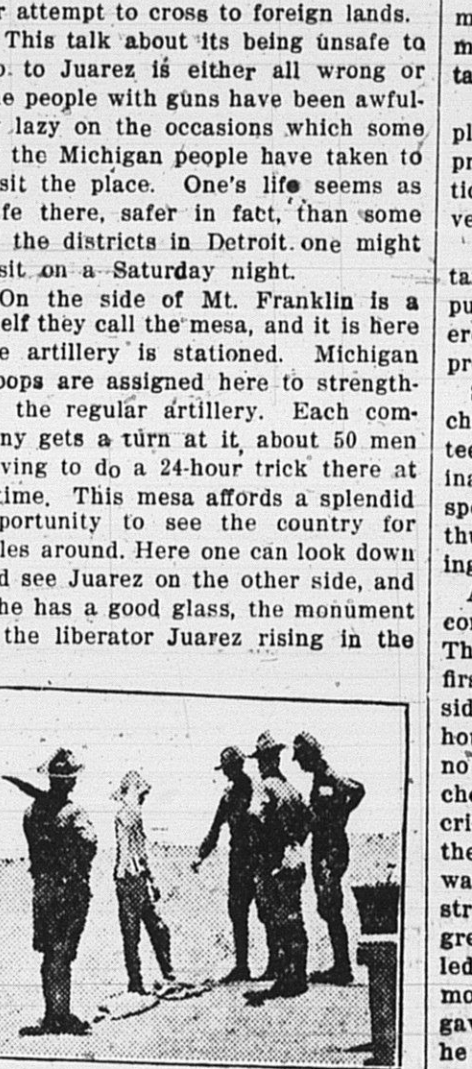

In following the border there are places where the line winds so much that it almost doubles back on itself. There are places where you can throw a stone out of the United States across Mexican territory and hit a target in the United States.

This trip on horseback is a delightful one if you forget the presence of possible outlaws. Along the line under groves of firs, cottonwood and the eucalyptus, are quaint Mexican villages in which there is no other dwelling than the adobe hut. These houses are made of mud and straw. No man needs to be without a home, for he can go out in his yard mix up some of the flour-like sand with water and straw and build himself a castle that even these Texas winds do not destroy.

Driving back to the center of the city one turns toward the river and the international bridge. You can pause on this bridge to observe the types of people it carries. In the course of the afternoon about every nationality in the world is represented in the stream of people that cross or attempt to cross to foreign lands.

This talk about its being unsafe to go to Juarez is either all wrong or the people with guns have been awfully lazy on the occasions which some of the Michigan people have taken to visit the place. One's life seems as safe there, safer in fact, than some of the districts in Detroit, one might visit on a Saturday night.

On the side of Mt. Franklin is a shelf they call the mesa, and it is here the artillery is stationed. Michigan troops are assigned here to strengthen the regular artillery. Each company gets a turn at it, about 50 men having to do a 24-hour trick there at a time. This mesa affords a splendid opportunity to see the country for miles around. Here one can look down and see Juarez on the other side, and if he has a good glass, the monument of the liberator Juarez rising in the center of the long rows of adobe shacks and the great mile and an eighth oval over on the left where for 100 days or more each year the horses run and the crowds bet their money in one of the finest racing plants in the world.

The best residence district of El Paso is on the foot hills of this range of mountains, and just to the left, perhaps two miles away from the artillery is Fort Bliss, where nearly 20,000 men are quartered and 15,000 horses and mules fight flies under the blazing sun.

Perhaps this will give you some idea of the surroundings of the boys from Michigan. It is interesting—not quite exciting enough—and holds out little hope for the future of the men who are here ready to fight for they know not what.

Michigan boys are making the best of conditions and will make good in a real scrap if one comes. Of course there are some who sigh for the cool lake breezes though letters from home show that Michigan is some long on a hot spell. The boys are healthy, minor ills only have thus far affected a few.

We are here doing our duty as orders are issued but what will come next is the unknown quantity with us. Inaction is hard to bear. There are several details from the Michigan regiments for guard duty at outposts. The machine gun company is being recruited to full strength and there are some detailed for motorcycle duty at Fort Bliss.

BIG OVATION IS GIVEN HUGHES

CARNEGIE HALL CROWDED TO ITS CAPACITY AT HUGHES'S NOTIFICATION.

COL. ROOSEVELT ATTENDED

Former President Taft Was the Only Notable Republican Leader Absent.

New York—Charles E. Hughes pledged himself to "a policy of firmness and consistency" in dealing with Mexico if elected to the presidency.

Accepting the formally tendered Republican nomination, Mr. Hughes charged the sinking of the Lusitania, and the loss of American lives in that and subsequent U-boat disasters, together with the loss of national prestige abroad, to the weakness and vacillation of the Wilson administration.

He unequivocally endorsed the extension of suffrage to women. He denounced "all plots and conspiracies in the interest of any foreign nation."

Declaring the nation to be "shockingly unprepared," he declared for "adequate national defense," adequate protection on both our western and eastern coasts. In this he included both an enlarged army and a greatly reinforced navy.

The present national prosperity, Mr. Hughes characterized as a "fool's paradise" brought about by the "abnormal conditions of war," and he advocates as a needful safeguard against an "energized Europe" which will follow the close of the war, "protective upbuilding policies" which shall be applied "fairly, without abuses, in as scientific a manner as possible."

He likewise declared for a merchant marine that will not put the government in competition with private capital.

Finally Mr. Hughes made a strong plea for peace, to further which he proposed the formation of an international tribunal to dispose of controversies of a justifiable nature.

The capacity of Carnegie hall was taxed by the throng of re-united Republicans and Bull Moosers who gathered to participate in the notification proceedings.

Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, chairman of the notification committee, presided, and laid the formal nomination before Mr. Hughes in a brief speech which set the pace for the enthusiasm which marked the proceedings despite the stifling heat.

A particular demonstration was accorded Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. The colonel entered his box on the first tier, and as he took his seat beside Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., the house burst into applause. As he paid no attention to the first round of cheers, the crowd stood up, and then cries of "Teddy, Teddy!" swept over the auditorium.

Rising, the colonel waved his hand and bowed, the band struck up "Auld Lang Syne," and Progressives and Republicans alike mingled their voices in a grand old harmony cheer. Mr. Hughes himself gave the final touch to the event when he entered 15 minutes later and was greeted with a whirlwind of applause, by singing out the colonel, and waving a salute to him, which the colonel returned in kind to another great volley from the audience.

Former President Taft was the only notable Republican leader east of the Mississippi who did not attend the ceremony which formally opens the Republican campaign.

BRITISH AND FRENCH GAIN

Germans Suffer Enormous Losses in Counter Attacks.

London—After an artillery bombardment so terrible that the advanced sections of the German third line were swept away, the British and French smashed forward in a tremendous assault on a front of eight miles. From east of Delville wood to the Somme, the blow was struck and whole systems of trenches, work of months, were carried.

Great losses were inflicted on the Germans, who, rallied in a series of terrific counter attacks, according to official dispatches from the scene of conflict. More than 500 prisoners were found in the shattered ditches and dugouts.

Guy Hall of Hillsdale county was killed when he jumped on a pitchfork in a load of hay.

Miss Iva Smith, 17, of Deerfield township, Lenawee county, was the first infantile paralysis victim to die in Michigan since the outbreak of the disease in the state, according to the records of the state board of health.

Chicago—John Krutowski, an employe of a Detroit automobile factory, who recently kept bar attendants at the Blackstone hotel busy for two days while he spent $100, has been ordered committed to the Kankakee State hospital for the insane.

Laredo, Tex.—Twelve persons were instantly killed and 22 injured in a wreck of a northbound train on the National Lines at Morales, Mex., 40 miles north of Monterey, Mex. The train encountered a bad piece of track and turned over into a gulley.

PLEGGED HIMSELF TO A POLICY OF FIRMNESS AND CONSISTENCY IN DEALING WITH MEXICO

CHARLES E. HUGHES.

Mr. Hughes will open the Republican National campaign, making his first address in behalf of the Republican party in Detroit. This will be the first time that the opening of the national campaign has been made in Michigan and the party leaders express great joy over the coming of the distinguished candidate.

APPAM AWARDED TO ENGLISH OWNERS

Norfolk, Va.—Possession of the British liner Appam, brought into Hampton Roads last February by a German prize crew, was awarded to her English owners, the African Steam Navigation company, by Judge Daddill, of the federal district court.

An appeal will be taken and the final decision in the libel proceedings probably will be given by the United States supreme court.

In the meantime the Appam will stay at Newport News in the custody of the United States marshal, or will be turned over to her owners under bond. Her cargo has been sold for $834,000 and the money is being held by the courts.

What is to become of Lieutenant Berg, the prize commander, and his crew of 22 men must be determined by the state department at Washington. They have been living aboard the Appam, claiming her as the property of the German government, but the general belief is that they now will be interned along with the men of the German raiders laid up here.

Judge Waddill's decision, given after months of consideration, held that the Appam lost her status as a prize when she entered American territorial waters to remain indefinitely. He rejected the German contention that the Prussian-American treaty of 1799 permitted German prizes to be laid up in American waters, and held that prizes could be brought in only by a war vessel acting as convoy, and then only for the temporary causes recognized by international law.

CAPTURE 2,658,000 ENEMIES

German Government Issues Statement At the End of the Second Year.

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—The German government has issued officially the figures relating to the conquests at the end of the second year of the war in a statement which reads:

"The Central powers occupied 431,000 square kilometers against 180,000 a year ago. The enemy occupied in Europe, 2,000 square kilometers, against 11,000 a year ago.

"The Central powers, Bulgaria and Turkey captured 2,658,000 enemy soldiers, against 1,695,000. Of those 5,947 officers and 348,000 men were French, 9,019 officers and 1,202,000 men were Russians; and 947 officers and 30,000 men were British.

"The war booty brought to Germany, in addition to that utilized immediately at the front, comprised 11,036 cannon, 4,700,000 shells, 3,450 machine guns and 1,556,000 rifles.

"According to the list of statistics of German wounded soldiers 90.2 per cent returned to the front; 1.4 per cent died; the rest were unfit for service or were released. The military measures of the Central powers, in consequence of vaccinations, were never disturbed by epidemics."

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Mysterious "Cit" Helped Recruiting in Capital

WASHINGTON.—Hidden under an immaculate Palm Beach suit, and usually leaning against a tree in front of the Pennsylvania avenue recruiting station, is what the recruiting officers of the District National Guard regard as the most dangerous germ of preparedness found within a day's journey in the District. Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts and Col. Robert N. Sampson of the Navy league are the two amateurs compared to him—according to accounts.

Everybody and everything that takes up against him becomes inoculated with the fever to enlist—or to be others enlist. For several days figure in the Palm Beach suit was the officers of the recruiting station. He appeared to be taking things easy in a very calm and deliberate way. He looked like a prosperous business man.

Every afternoon he would appear and remain standing against the tree or leaning quietly to groups of men in front of the station. After a talk with a man usually walked into the station and enlisted!

One afternoon an ex-volunteer officer passed the station, saw the "germ" and shook it warmly by the hand. Then the volunteer came into the station. "What rank does Marshall hold?" he asked, pointing to the "germ." And came out. The man is Creighton E. Marshall, officially known in the records of his country as a sergeant in Troop K, First United States volunteer cavalry, from May, 1898, to October, 1898. Unofficially he's "Crate" Marshall. Rough Rider, comrade and friend of Capt. Allyn K. Capron, Capt. Bucky Bell, and Sergt. Hamilton Fish, among the first three men killed in the Spanish-American war.

Privately, Marshall is custodian of the presses at the bureau of engraving and printing. He is a preparedness expert, who believes in every man doing his part and doing it up to the handle. Marshall wears glasses because of the bit did in Cuba. He wasn't expected to survive the Cuban episode—but he did through.

Arlington Woods Very Popular With the Crows

R. KALMBACK of the biological survey has studied the crow for several years, has thoroughly familiarized himself with its habits and is interested in every newly discovered crow roost.

He avers that the assembling of thousands of crows for the purpose of roosting, usually close to some large city, presents one of the most curious and remarkable phenomena occurring in the bird kingdom.

Mr. Kalmbach has ascertained that there are several fabled-crow roosts in the vicinity of Washington. A roost at Arlington held, during the most crowded period of its existence, fully 200,000 crows. In fact, A. H. Howell of the biological survey alleges that during the winter of 1910-11 the Arlington roost was occupied by 270,000 birds and that at least 100 crows flew to roost second during "the height of the influx."

This would mean that 6,000 crows entered the roost in a minute's time, and a total of 45 minutes was generally consumed before all had returned from their forage. This estimate proves that approximately 270,000 actually made the Arlington roost a headquarters for the season.

The Woodridge roost, near Langdon, D. C., was used by crows for some time, but the birds found another roost more to their liking. The successor is the one on which Mr. Kalmbach made observations. He noted four lines of these birds coming to this roost and estimated that probably 1,800 or 1,900 in each line, which would total something in the neighborhood of 7,500 when strays and belated members were taken into consideration.

A few months later the crows deserted this roost and returned to the Woodridge roost, where other crows joined the original settlers, the whole population amounting to 30,000.

Counting these birds would be very confusing to a novice. Ornithologists familiar with two methods by means of which they are able to count large numbers. By one method the birds are counted in the evening as they fly and the roost in distinct lines, and, as a rule, there are anywhere from three to six air paths chosen. The other method is to wait until all the birds have congregated for the night and then to choose a limited area of the roost, count the birds gathered there and estimate from this the approximate total.

Army Medical School Fights a Silent For

SPRENTENTIOUS and unheralded, yet one of the biggest tasks of the militia mobilization, has been going on at the Army Medical school, at 721 nineteenth street northwest, where the vaccine for the prevention of various diseases is being prepared. A force of 20 men, members of the United States army medical corps, headed by M. A. Reasoner, has been working day and night on one floor of the building, preparing the enormous amount of vaccine which the 100,000 troops of the militia require since mobilized.

An idea of the tremendous work is gained by the fact that in ordinary times this same force makes the vaccine for the army and navy and the United States public health service, and furnishes it to numerous other organizations besides. Since mobilization this force, in addition to the supplies for the services mentioned, has been furnishing the vaccines for the militia troops also.

Each of the soldiers in this army must receive three inoculations of anti-diphtheria vaccine, and in other cases, inoculations for other diseases are made. The tremendous quantity of this vaccine has been furnished by this little group of 20 men, scarcely a sergeant's section in the terms of army organization. While the big men get the troops ready for service and have their names in the papers daily with suitable praise for their efforts, this little group, working with silent efficiency, is safeguarding the lives of the soldiers and the big men are organizing.

Washington's Great Walnut Tree Is Victim of War

WASHINGTON had a wonderful walnut tree. It stood near the American university, and has been noted ever since this country was known to the world. About the time that William the Conqueror invaded England, midway of the eleventh century, a splendid walnut sapling began to run its head toward heaven, near what was later to become the city of Washington.

In the times that followed William, while a disorderly group of islands were being welded into a Great Britain, this same tree developed with almost infinite slowness into a forest giant. A few weeks ago the Tunlaw walnut, after 900 years of life, was felled to help satisfy the war-time needs of that Great Britain it so far antedated.

England must have walnut wood of the finest to manufacture rifle stocks. The ransacked her own possessions, she has turned to America for the only source of such a manufacture. So the huge tree, a floral Methusalem, stood on the tract bounded by the Tunlaw ridge and Loughborough roads, been sold to a British agent for $120, lowered to earth, lopped of its branches, and freighted to Baltimore for transportation abroad.

The Tunlaw walnut was famed as the largest hardwood tree in this section of the country. It was 125 feet high, 21 feet in circumference, and had a bough of 150 feet.

The word "Tunlaw" is walnut spelled backward, and it is said that General Grant and Sherman were fond of visiting the estate upon which the tree stood, near what is now known as the American university, and they suggested the name.

Happy Union of Voile and Organdie.

Transparent organdie, daintily embroidered, and striped or flower-sprinkled voiles are evidently made for one another. Aided by hemstitching, designers have joined them and no one would ever wish to put them asunder. The result of this happy union is numerous, whimsical, and altogether adorable little, afternoon and party frocks with much captivating charm. One of them makes its appearance, and every feminine beholder runs straight a-shopping to acquire such a frock for herself.

Designers vie with one another in making alluring models, and have shown how much can be done with these simple materials. One of the prettiest is made of white voile having a delicate crossbar in lines that are of blue, green, rose and black. But they are so fine that the colors are indistinct. Little sprigs of blue and dainty pink roses, no larger than a pea, are scattered over it. The skirt is made of three wide bands of voile set together with bands of transparent organdie with a dainty embroidered edge. The embroidered edge overlaps the voile, and the plain edge is finished with narrow val lace. A band of the embroidered organdie finishes the bottom of the skirt.

The baby waist is cut with short kimono sleeves. These are lengthened by puffs of organdie extending to the wrist. This is gathered into a cuff of the embroidered organdie finished with val lace. The bodice is made over a net foundation and finished with a deep collar of the embroidered organdie. The girdle is of lavender velvet ribbon. The underskirt is of plain white voile.

The dainty frock pictured is made of white voile striped with pale bands in maize blue and rose.

Cape-Collar and Cuff Sets.

The new matched sets, of sheer material, made to wear with jackets, frocks and coats, add more style and life to the toilette than any other accessory of dress. They are unbelievably low priced as compared to their effectiveness, and anyone may own at least two or three sets. For the needlewoman who knows how to do hand embroidery they make opportunity for the addition of real elegance to her wardrobe. But the ready-made, machine-embroidered sets look almost as well and are as crisp and fresh. Those who cannot embroider can make the sets, trimmed with plaided frills or hemstitched borders in contrasting colors.

Transparent organdie is the dainty fabric most favored for making neckwear, but there are several other materials each effective in its own way. Fine, washable silks, crepe georgette and crepe de chine, chiffon and net are all used in sets of equal charm. Even silk mull does well for these matched sets.

Frills of net or lace on the less sheer materials, and embroidered or organdie borders, help make up the endless variety of style in which these matched sets are shown. But the embroidered sets with dots or small flower designs and eyelet work are, of course, the most expensive.

Evolution of Hat Trimming. A curious change has taken place in the trimming of hats. Formerly a hat was deliberately trimmed with this or that—flowers, feathers or something else—a separate garniture attached to the hat. Now the trimming is made, as it were, in one with the hat—a sort of mural decoration. If the trimming were removed there would be no hat. The new hat is effective, less cumbersome and more beautiful, but alas! no less expensive.

GRAPE IS ONE OF SUREST FRUIT CROPS

Vine at Different Ages, Showing Training by Hudson Horizontal System—A, Pruned Vine in Its Third Year; B, Pruned Vine in Its Fourth Year; C, Unpruned Vine in Its Fourth Year.

When planting grapes, the exposure should be to the sun, as this fruit revels in sunshine, and the place should admit of cultivation on all sides. One or two year old vines may be used. At planting time the tips should be cut back three or four eyes and the roots well spread out. Fine soil should be dug so that the roots may be about six inches below the soil surface and well spread out. Fine soil should then be worked around them and well firmed down. If the season should be dry, a mulch of coarse litter may be spread around the vine. If all the buds start the stronger one or two may be allowed to grow. Remove the others.

In order to understand the growing of grapes it should be borne in mind that fruit is borne on wood of the present season, which arises from wood of the previous season. To illustrate: a growing shoot, or cane of 1915, makes buds. In 1916 a shoot arises from each bud; and near the base of this shoot the grapes are borne (one of four clusters on each). While every bud on the 1915 shoot may produce shoots or cane in 1916, only the strongest of these will bear fruit. The skilled grape-grower can tell by the looks of his cane at pruning time which buds will give rise to the grape-producing wood the following season. The larger and stronger buds usually give best results; but if the cane itself is very big and stout, or if it is very weak and slender, he does not expect good results from any of its buds. A hard, well-ripened cane the diameter of a man's little finger is the ideal size.

Another thing to remember is this: a vine should bear only a limited number of clusters; only from 30 to 50 should be allowed to develop on one

ing the fruit-bearing wood and by bending down the branches and ring-pruning them. The healing of wounded and diseased plants is promoted by removing the injured parts and dressing the wood. The head of a plant is renewed by cutting off the branches above; the head is made to grow thicker by cutting back the outer branches and to grow thinner by amputating all canes on which there is too much growth.

There are so many species of grapes, each having peculiarities of its own and therefore responding most readily to certain cultural methods, that each grower must, in a measure, use his own judgment in the matter of training the vines. There are many more or less popular methods of training, all of which have some good points, and, according to location and other considerations, have been used successfully.

The principal methods of training are as follows: The trellis, the high-renewal, or upright system; horizontal arm spur system; horizontal block system; the fan system; the Hudson horizontal system; four-cane Kniffin system; umbrella or two-cane Kniffin system; Munson system; overhead Caywood system; Chittenden system; multiple cross-wire system; or overhead arbor; overhead trellis or paravale system; cross-wire system; the spur, stool or short pruning system (used in most vineyards in California); the long or cane pruning system (also used in California). Vines trained on trellises are comparatively rare in California.

Grapes do not require stimulating fertilizers. Wood ashes, about one-half bushel per vine, is one of the best fertilizers to apply. An application of three pounds per vine of the following mixture is recommended by some of the experiment stations: Ninety pounds acid phosphate, 90 pounds kainit and 20 pounds cottonseed meal.

Grapevines are sometimes girdled or ringed for the purpose of hastening maturity and fruitfulness. Experiments at the experiment stations in New York and Massachusetts show that fruit on ringed vines is sometimes ten days to two weeks earlier than on unringed vines, and larger both in bunch and berry. Shoots bearing the bunches are ringed between the fruit and the arm bearing the shoot. The ringing should be done when the grapes are about one-third grown, a ring of bark about one inch wide being removed from the arm or shoot. Implements for this purpose are to be had.

During hot weather frequent cultivation needs to be given the strawberry field if the soil is to be maintained in good condition. A dust mulch will greatly help to keep the soil moist. The use of the cultivator or hoe every few days during the hot weather will do much to keep the soil moist underneath. The surface must never be allowed to cake. Former Dean L. H. Bailey of the New York state college of agriculture speaks literally when he says: "Water your garden with your hoe."

If barnyard fertilizer is not available a good substitute can be had in the pulverized sheep manure, obtained from the stock yards. The use of nitrate of soda must be done with great care. A hundred pounds to the acre just as growth starts in the spring and a second application of the same amount just as the buds are ready to burst into bloom will do a great deal of good. But it is not advised to use nitrate of soda in any other way or at any other time, as it is expensive. Take an old pair of gloves and scatter the soda by hand, being careful not to let any of the nitrate touch the plants themselves. Nitrates are very hot and will burn and destroy plant life.

Manure for the asparagus. Fertilizer most suitable is that strong in Nitrogen—Potash is important element.

The manures most suitable for asparagus are those strong in nitrogen. Horse, sheep and hen manure are excellent. Nitrate of soda gives good results. Potash is another important element. A good source of it is wood ashes, but commercial forms are also good. A good plan is to apply the barnyard manures as a mulch in the winter, after the ground is frozen, so as to prevent the frost from going deep. In the spring the coarse remains may be worked into the soil, but it is better to rake off the refuse and apply some finely rotted manure.

There are various ways in which the objects of pruning are accomplished. For instance, the growth and health of a plant are promoted and the size of the fruit is increased (1) by removing all the diseased parts and suckers; (2) by shortening extended shoots, side shoots, and laterals; (3) by putting upright the part whose rapid growth is desired; and (4) by removing the fruit buds or fruit. The plant is retarded in growth and made to bear earlier and richer fruit by shortening the leading shoots and leaving the fruit-bearing wood and by bending down the branches and ring-pruning them. The healing of wounded and diseased plants is promoted by removing the injured parts and dressing the wood. The head of a plant is renewed by cutting off the branches above; the head is made to grow thicker by cutting back the outer branches and to grow thinner by amputating all canes on which there is too much growth.

There are so many species of grapes, each having peculiarities of its own and therefore responding most readily to certain cultural methods, that each grower must, in a measure, use his own judgment in the matter of training the vines. There are many more or less popular methods of training, all of which have some good points, and, according to location and other considerations, have been used successfully.

REMOVE HORNS FROM CALVES

According to Writer Best Dehorning Agent is Caustic Potash in Pen-cil or Stick Form.

The best dehorning agent is caustic potash fused in the pencil or stick form. The caustic should be applied as soon as the budding horn or button can be felt under the skin. As a rule, this can be done when the calf is but a few weeks old, and although it is claimed by some that horns may be removed from animals six months old, it is undoubtedly best to operate early, advises Dr. E. H. Lehnert in Farm and Home.

When the proper time arrives, clip the hair over the horn from an area the size of a half dollar, wash with soap and water and rub the moistened caustic. To prevent the caustic from running, moisten it only slightly, and apply lard or vaseline all about the spot treated. When the scabs fall off, a careful examination should be made, and if the horn is still prominent, make another application of the caustic. To protect the fingers, wrap the caustic well with paper. If active caustic is thoroughly applied over a sufficiently large area, the horn will unfailingly be killed by one application.

VALUE OF PUREBRED HEIFERS

Editor of Agricultural Paper Picks Up Prize at Public Sale—Possibilities Unknown.

A few years ago a certain editor of an agricultural paper bought a couple of cheap little Jersey heifers at a public sale. Some of the breeders present had a good bit of fun at his expense and they haven't all got over it yet. When these heifers became cows the better one made a record of production exceeded by only a few of her age in the country for a month or so and was then injured. She may be heard of later. The other one produced over 10,000 pounds of milk and 480 pounds of fat with her first calf, which was not so bad for a $50 heifer.

The fact is that nobody knows very much about the possibilities of purebred youngsters. When they are going cheap it's not a bad plan to pick them up and wait awhile. They may develop into the basis of a useful herd and they can't lose much money if they don't. More than one herd of purebred cattle has been built on something that didn't look very good to the crowd on sale day.

making use of centrifugal force, the various movable parts of the separator being so arranged as to render the separation as nearly positive as possible, and to prevent the mixture of the cream with the heavier portions of the milk after the separation of the cream therefrom.

FEED CALVES IN STANCHIONS

After Young Animals Have Devoured Milk and Grain They Lose Desire to Suck Ears.

There are several good reasons for feeding calves in stanchions. The calves can be fed their milk, then their grain, and after they have eaten the grain they will lose their desire to suck another's ears. A stanchion made of wood will be entirely satisfactory. It should be made from 3 to 3 1/2 feet high and 18 to 24 inches from center to center, with the neck space 4 to 5 inches wide. It is built in the same manner as the old-style right stanchion. The calf should be fastened while eating, but loosened from the stanchion after it has eaten its grain. The calf pens and stanchions should be built in the south side of the barn, where plenty of sunshine and light can be had.

GENERAL MANAGER WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR WONDERFUL GROWTH OF STATE FAIR

G. W. DICKINSON.

THE 1915 State Fair was a great success, both from an educational and financial viewpoint, and the 1916 exposition will be even a greater success if the efforts of G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the Fair, will make possible a better showing.

Mr. Dickinson announces that the exposition, which will open on Sept. 4 and will continue for ten days, will have many new features, including exhibits by several state institutions.

The general manager is working overtime to insure the success of the State Fair and says that with favorable weather all attendance records should be shattered. Inquiries in regard to the exposition are being received from all sections of the state, and many persons who have never been exhibitors at Detroit will show their live stock, farm products, fruits, flowers, dairy products and poultry for the first time.

BOYS AND GIRLS TO COMPETE FOR PRIZES IN STATE FAIR'S BETTER BABIES' CONTEST

So great was the interest manifested in the Better Babies Contest at the Michigan State Fair last fall that G. W. Dickinson, secretary and general manager of the big exposition, expects the entries in the 1916 contest will total several hundred.

Mr. Dickinson, who is the board member in charge of the contest, announces that Mrs. George G. Caron of Detroit will again act as superintendent and that Dr. Mary Thompson Stevens, also of Detroit, will continue as judge. Both women gave excellent satisfaction last year and both are intensely interested in child welfare work.

Entries Close Sept. 1.

Mr. Dickinson says that all entries must be received by Sept. 1 and that examinations will begin on the opening day of the Fair, Sept. 4. The awards will be made on Tuesday, Sept. 12.

The babies will compete in three classes—those from rural districts and towns of 1,000 population or less, babies from cities and towns of over 1,000 population and less than 10,000.

Best Midway in Fair's History.

The Midway at the 1916 State Fair will be the cleanest and best in the history of the exposition, according to General Manager Dickinson, who has completed arrangements for several of the attractions. Mr. Dickinson says the entertainment features will be worth while and that many new attractions have been contracted for.

DISPLAYS OF FRUIT ATTRACT MUCH ATTENTION AT MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

OCEANA county always makes a wonderful display of fruit at the Michigan State Fair and will be represented again at the exposition, which will be held at Detroit Sept. 4 to 13.

Many other counties are annual exhibitors at the State Fair, and it is expected that the competition for first honors this fall will be most keen.

THOMAS E. WALL,
ANN ARBOR, MICH.

Candidate for Representative in Congress Second Congressional District, Republican Ticket.

Mr. Wall is a man intimately acquainted with the needs of the District, having been in the postal service of the United States for several years—six of which were spent in the Second District.

Mr. Wall is a firm believer and an ardent advocate of an adequate preparedness policy for this country, preparedness not for war but for peace.

His views on Americanism can best be expressed by the following: "Let it be borne on the flag under which we rally in every exigency, that we have one country, one constitution, one destiny."

He stands for an equitable revision of the tariff along constructive lines.

He opposes the needless waste of public funds and looks upon government as a business proposition in which the best and more lasting results are to be obtained through the application of business principles.

A square deal to all is his slogan.

Tom Wall can be elected in November, so vote for him at Primary election, August 29th, and it will be appreciated.—Adv.

DREAD THE "SNEAK CURRENT"

Electricians in Constant Fear of Happening Which Means Immediate and Fearful Disaster.

One of the most dreaded risks in the use of electricity for power purposes is the "sneak current," which may be compared to a leakage in a gas main. Only it is far more dangerous, because you can smell escaping gas, whereas you cannot smell electricity. One of the earliest warnings of the existence of this new kind of hidden peril occurred at the electricity works of the Manchester (Eng.) corporation on September 19th, 1899. In the engine room of the power house at the time no fewer than fourteen engines, each of 400 horse power, were working at full pressure. By some unexplained means a sneak current reached and fused the copper rivets which held together the two ends of a leather belt connecting one of these engines with a dynamo. The result was that the belt parted, the released flywheel started revolving with terrific speed, and presently flew to pieces. These, hurtling in all directions, wrecked other flywheels, and in a few seconds the splendid power house, with all its costly and beautiful machinery, was utterly destroyed.

Agnostic Squelched.

Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon, the American preacher filling Spurgeon's famous pulpit in London's Metropolitan tabernacle, quoted Spurgeon, in his part of that new symposium book, "What Happens After Death?" in this happy fashion: Spurgeon was quoting an English pastor who had preached on the immortality of the soul, and who was approached by one of his parishioners who told him that he did not believe in such teaching. "There is no difference," this parishioner said, "between the man and the dog." "Well," replied the preacher, "I really thought that I was furnishing food for people who had souls; if I had known that there was a dog among them I would have brought bones for him."

Very Much Misunderstood.

"I was presented at a ball," said Jones, "to a young lady whose proportions were anything but meager. After the accustomed manner, I asked her to honor me with a dance. She replied with a desolate air: 'I am only free for the cotillon and I cannot pledge myself for that, because I am not certain whether my people will be leaving before it comes off.' Jones thought he would seize the chance of a compliment and said: 'Oh, how empty the room will seem when you have left it.' You should have seen the savage look that she gave poor Jones."

Secret of Harmony.

Pull together. This is the real secret of harmony. There is a story told of a man who had committed the care of one of his teams to a faithful servant for years. At last one of the horses sickened and died. While the servant was burying the faithful animal, the other horse came across the field and stood by, watching the work as a silent mourner. The master said: "I believe Dick loved Billy." Instantly the servant replied: "In case he did, massa; why, they pulled together nigh 20 years."—Christian Herald.

A BUSINESS MAN.

Merely One of Lincoln's "Plain People."

For Congress

[] MARK R. BACON.

What a man says when he is not thinking of running for office is generally given more weight than opinions framed with a view of catching the popular vote.

Fifteen years before Mark R. Bacon ever thought of being a candidate for Congress in 1916, he was asked to appear before the Industrial Commission in Washington, D. C., and give his ideas as to Industrial Conditions, Railroad Regulations and Freight Matters. He appeared before the Commission on June 14th, 1900; his arguments cover fourteen pages of the Industrial Commission's Report; and the Commission in their general summing up referred to his arguments on sixteen different pages of its report. Mr. Bacon in speaking of trusts made these remarks:

"No combination is right that would curtail the reasonable wages now paid for labor or that would be detrimental to the people. No combination is right that is organized to increase the necessities of life or against the business interests of the country. No combination is right that would limit the resources of the country, or that would have a tendency to stagnate the growth and improvement of the country. No combination is right that has for its object the annihilation of reasonable competition in any branch of business."

At a teachers' banquet seventeen years ago he in his address said: "And may the teaching of our teachers be an inspiration to all—and that inspiration should remind us that all men are equal—that the poor man is the equal of the rich man—that the laborer's heart beats as warm—that its milk of human kindness is as pure—that he is as human, as honest, as respectable as any class of people on earth, be they rich or poor—that clothes nor money do not make the man—that an upright life will be honored and respected by all worthy citizens."

"We must not forget to teach our boys and girls to respect and obey the laws, to love their home, to love their work, to love the farm, to love the shop and factory, to love their country and their country's flag—that poverty of itself is no disgrace—that it is no disgrace to work, and that 'Honesty is the best policy'—whether rich or poor—always remembering that all honesty is not clothed in fine broadcloth or clean linen,—but beneath the soiled clothing of the laborer and the farmer,—the workmen of this country, is to be found fountains of pure honesty—jewels of great price."

Mark R. Bacon believes that the Government should be run as a business man would run his business—economically, and on business principles.

If I am big enough to be your Congressman, I am too big to enter the mud-slinging contest.

Please mark your ballot where it says Mark,—that is, where it says [] MARK R. BACON—On Tuesday, August 29th.—Adv.

WANTED—A Man Who Can Beat Beakes.

While interest in the coming fall election centers in the contest between former Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Hughes and President Wilson for the presidency of the United States, the campaign committees of both the Republican and Democratic parties will not lose sight of the necessity for the election of a congress which will be prepared to back up the president who may be chosen by the voters. Without a Democratic congress President Wilson would have been a mere figure-head during his term, and while Republicans everywhere are confident that Mr. Hughes will be the choice of the voters, they are also conscious of the fact that he must have a majority in congress to back him up.

Republican leaders are counting upon a solid Republican delegation in the next house from Michigan. At present there are two Democrats in the house from this state, and the defeat of both of them is confidently expected. Michigan is normally a Republican state, and this year it is expected to return to the house a solid Republican delegation.

One of these Democratic congressmen is from the Second Congressional District, and Republicans of the nation are counting upon the Republicans of this district to do their duty by their ticket and the man who will bear the Republican standard this year. We do not underestimate the political ability of the present congressman from the Second District, Mr. Beakes. While his campaigning is of the pussy-footing variety, Republicans must not for a moment assume that he is not busy every minute. In fact he has been busy keeping his "political fences in repair" ever since he became a congressman. Because of this fact it is supremely essential that the congressional nominee who is chosen by the Republicans of this District, shall be a man who is acceptable in every way to the voters. He must be clean as a hound's tooth—a man of ability not only along political lines, but in his business life—and he must be a man who can command the respect of the voters.

Mr. Beakes does not meet the popular conception of a congressman in any manner. He is not an orator, and because of this fact his appearance on the stump is rare. He is not the sort of a man who can get up before an audience and by the compelling force of his personality impress his hearers with his ability. Instead he must rely upon other means to keep his candidacy before the voters. The governmental frank which permits United States congressmen to send tons of literature to his constituents without cost to the congressman provides the mean for Mr. Beakes' campaigning, and he has used this privilege to the very limit.

With the Democratic candidate lacking in ability to conduct a speaking campaign, it seems to us that it behooves the Republicans of the District to choose a man who combines with his other eminent qualifications for the place, a pleasing personality, marked business ability, real oratorical powers and deep knowledge of affairs of state acquired by years of close study.

We would not select a man for his oratorical ability alone, but if, in qualification all the candidates in other respects were equal (and this we do not admit for a moment), we would choose as a man to conduct a campaign against Mr. Beakes the one who could conduct a public speaking campaign, thus bringing direct to the voters a first-hand knowledge of his abilities along all lines.

Of the candidates for the Republican nomination for congress in the Second District there is but one man who meets the requirements of such a campaign as we believe should be waged against Mr. Beakes. This man is Thornton Dixon. Those of you who recall the campaign made by Mr. Bacon two years ago know that he does not possess the qualifications for such a campaign. Mr. Beakes does not possess them either, and it is but natural to conclude, since Mr. Dixon does possess them, and is otherwise qualified, that of these three men he will be able to secure the votes of the greatest number.

Vote getting ability on the part of the Republican candidate is essential in the coming campaign. Mr. Beakes has had four years in which to build up his political organization, and while the bulk of the work has been done secretly and through the aforementioned governmental frank privilege, it has been no less effective. So we assert that it is absolutely essential that Republicans of the Second District choose a man who possesses not only great business ability, knowledge of state affairs, a winning personality and unblemished reputation, but the ability to go upon the stump and carry his message to the voters personally.

Mr. Bacon is not such a man, but Mr. Dixon is, and Mr. Dixon should receive the vote of every Republican who wants to see Michigan's delegation in the next house solidly Republican.

DETROIT

An Everyday Cake

Here is a simple and inexpensive cake that can be varied in many ways with different frostings and icings. It looks a little nicer baked in a tube pan, but will be equally as good baked in a square loaf.

K C Gold Cake

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.
1 cup butter; 1 cup sugar; yolks of 4 eggs, beaten light; 1 cup flour, less 2 level tablespoons; 2 level teaspoonsful K C Baking Powder; 1 cup milk; grated rind of 1 orange.
Sift flour and baking powder together three times; cream butter and sugar, beat yolks of eggs, add these to creamed mixture, and lastly add the moistened and flour alternately, beating batter until smooth. Gold Cake can only be made successfully by beating yolks of eggs, very, very creamy and light lemon colored, using a rotary beater. The rotary beater is the only beater that will do justice to the yolks of eggs. The beating kills all egg taste and improves the texture of the cake.

Cocoanut Frosting

Beat the whites of 2 eggs dry; gradually add in half a cup of sifted confectioner's sugar and continue the beating until the frosting is smooth, thick and glossy; then beat in grated cocoanut, fresh or prepared, and spread upon the cake. This frosting is made thick by beating rather than by sugar.

Save this recipe. You will want to use it frequently. Or better, send us the colored certificate packed in each 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder and we will mail you "The Cook's Book" containing this and 89 other baking recipes equally good—all by Mrs. Hill. Issues Mig. Co., Chicago.

BREVITIES

MANCHESTER—This village has usually been considered pretty free of petty larceny cases, but of late we have heard of thefts of various articles from stores and dwellings.—Enterprise.

ANN ARBOR—Because of the extended hot and dry weather, the milk question is getting to be a serious one here, unless help in the shape of a long rain comes, and the milk dealers say they will be obliged to refuse to sell to the grocers, and to sell to those homes having children.

JACKSON—Charged with aiding and abetting in the marriage of Bertha Hose Huit, aged fourteen, alleged to be an epileptic, Mrs. Alice Huit, mother of the child, and Wm. Wolcott, husband of the girl, were arrested late Tuesday afternoon. They were arraigned in police court, and both demanded an examination, which was set for next Tuesday.

JACKSON—Catherine Mullen, aged five years, was killed Monday night while at play in the car barns of the Michigan Railways Co. in this city. The child was standing on a flat car when a playmate, Mabel Horsfall, aged nine, turned on the current of a car on the same track, colliding the two cars and throwing the Mullen child upon the rail, fracturing her skull.

MANCHESTER—Millers are urging farmers to leave their wheat in the shock or stack to sweat or cure before being threshed. Some of our local millers, Lonier & Hoffer, last season, found, it is claimed, that they were amply repaid for so doing as the berry was plumper and weighed more than that drawn early and threshed.—Enterprise.

MANCHESTER—Times have changed. In the early days when a farmer wanted to drive a flock of sheep or a few head of cattle to market he took his dog and perhaps a boy and did the job without much trouble. But today we frequently see one man and a dog on foot, one man in a buggy and another in an auto, pulling off the stunt. Perhaps the endless number of vehicles passing to and fro on the highways demands that extra precaution be taken.—Enterprise.

WHITMORE LAKE—Miss Edna Zeeb had about one-fourth of her hair torn from her head one day last week when drying it in a motor boat on Whitmore Lake. Miss Zeeb with a party of friends had been in bathing, and had taken to the motor boat for a ride afterwards, the girls in the party taking advantage of the breeze to dry their hair. Miss Zeeb stooped near the machinery for an instant and the next thing she knew the hair from one side of her head had been wrenched out. Examination by a physician showed that the scalp had not been torn, but Miss Zeeb's nervous condition from the shock was such that she was ordered to bed.

Children to Be Cared For at Fair. Mothers who attend the Michigan State Fair, which will be held at Detroit Sept. 4 to 13, will have an opportunity to leave their children in the new Woman's Building, where they may be assured that the boys and girls will have the best of attention. General Manager Dickinson says that competent nurses will look after the children, who will be provided absolutely pure milk, to be kept in refrigerators. Mr. Dickinson says that mothers are heartily invited to attend the Fair, at which there will be many exhibits and attractions in which they will be particularly interested.

Big Tractor Demonstration. A tractor demonstration and exhibition will be one of the features of the 1916 State Fair, according to G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the big exposition, which will be held at Detroit Sept. 4 to 13. Tractor manufacturers from all sections of the country have signified their intention of having tractors at the Fair, and practical demonstrations will be given on several acres of land set aside for that purpose.

Five Days of Horse Racing. Five days of harness racing will be offered at the 1916 Michigan State Fair. The racing events will open on Labor Day and continue through the next four days. There will be four races each day, and some of the speediest trotters and pacers in the middle west will compete for purses. The race meeting will be conducted under the auspices of the short ship circuit.

KNEW HOW TO HANDLE MULES

Drivers in the Civil War Had Their Own Methods, and They Were Eminently Successful.

The wagons were generally drawn by four mules driven by negroes, who rode the high wheeler and managed the team by a jerk line to the high leader. In these days it may seem like a shiftless way to drive a team, but it worked well, and possibly because the darkies and the mules, through some medium or other, understood each other perfectly; at any rate the drivers talked to their teams as if they comprehended every word said to them. And sometimes it was worth listening to, when the roads were bad and some of the wagons ahead of them were stuck in the mud. "Calline" (Caroline, the high leader), giving her an awakening jerk of the line, "stop dreamin' with dem y'ears of yourn." "Jer'miah (Jeremiah, the off-wheeler), 'you'll think the insex is bit'n you if you don't put dem sholdahs agin dat collah." "Dan'l (Daniel, the wheeler he is on), giving him a sharp dig in the ribs with his boot heels, the road getting heavier every minute, "no foolin', you old haddened sinnah!" "Member, Mrs. N'nias" (Mrs. Ananias, off leader), reaching for her left hip with the tip of his black snake, "if dis yere wagon sticks in dat hole ahead o' you, you'll wish you'r down in dat grave 'longside dat lie'n husband o' yourn." And, on reaching the worst place in the road, yelling "Yeh! Yeh!" loud enough to be heard half way from Washington to Baltimore, every prophet and lady mule in the team knew what to expect if the wagon stuck, and generally the faithful creatures pulled it through.—Morris Schaff, in the Atlantic.

MAY DRAW HEAT FROM EARTH

Scientists Have Seriously Proposed Deep Borings by Means of Which It Can Be Obtained.

As we go downward into the earth we find a steady increase of temperature. So marked is this increase that it has been seriously proposed to make very deep borings in order to obtain supplies of warm water for heating our towns.

Arago and Walferdin suggested this method for supplying warmth to the Jardin des Plantes in Paris; and now that such important improvements have been made in carrying borings to enormous depths the time may not be far distant when we shall draw extensively upon these supplies of "submarine" heat. The city of Budapest is extensively supplied with hot water from an underground source. It may be well to remember that in the event of our coal supply failing we have these inexhaustible supplies of heat everywhere beneath our feet.

Invitation to Enter. "The latch string hangs out," signifies hospitality and is a standing invitation for a person to visit. In early times Indiana pioneers lived in log cabins built of round logs, notched near the ends, to make them lie closely together. Openings for doors and windows were made by sawing out holes after the logs were laid. The doors were of puncheons or rough slabs fastened together with wooden pins. Nails were expensive and little used. The door latch was a wooden catch or kind of trigger which, when the door was closed, fell into a little groove and could be opened from the outside by pulling a string, one end of which was fastened to the latch and the other, passing through a hole in the door above the latch, hung outside, so the latch could be raised by pulling the string. To lock the door the string was pulled inside. Hence the expression, "the latch string hangs outside," meant an invitation to come in.

How Habits Affect Sleep. Habits play an important part in our daily life—habits, for instance, of drumming, tapping the foot, sniffing, pulling the whisker, "pushing the face," pulling out the watch every few minutes and scratching to relieve an itch.

The latter, say nerve specialists, is among those most difficult to conquer. If we can restrain the desire to scratch every time we feel an itching sensation we shall have made a distinct advance in control of our nerves, and we will find that in a short time the itching itself will lessen. Science has lately discovered that if a person masters these habits, which tend to nervous breakdown, he will acquire the power of whatever position he assumes, and will find himself falling asleep in a quarter of the accustomed time. He will feel more energetic the next day and perform his work better.

John S. Haggerty, president of the Michigan State Fair, is a firm believer in good roads, and he has endorsed the action of G. W. Mr. Haggerty is a member of the Wayne county road commission, and many miles of macadam highways have been constructed under his supervision. The roads to be built at the State Fair Grounds will be of macadam and will be constructed by the State Fair management. Mr. Haggerty's name stands for good roads throughout the state, and that the highways at the Fair grounds will be models of their kind is evident from the fact that Mr. Haggerty is assisting in supervising the construction work.

DANCER BROTHERS.

OPEN EVERY EVENING

LOCAL ITEMS.

Today is the Standard's birthday; just starting on its forty-sixth year.

Born, on Saturday, July 29, 1916, to Mr. and Mrs. Austin Balmer, of Lyndon, a son.

The steel workers have commenced work on the new factory building for the Chelsea Screw Co.

The school board has tendered the position of music and drawing teacher to Miss Hazel Speer of this place.

The M. C. R. R. has a large gang of Turks at work here, raising the tracks and putting in the steel on the new sidetrack west of the village.

The "silent cop" at Main and Middle streets is down and out. Twice within the past week careless drivers have bumped him, and on Wednesday he was taken to the hospital.

The ordination of C. Rufus Osborn, who has been acting as pastor of the Chelsea Baptist church for more than a year, will be held at that church Thursday, August 10, afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Poor, who have been residing in Toledo for the past year have returned to Chelsea. They moved their household goods into the Henry Heininger house on Madison street on Monday of this week.

Powell Rosencrans, of Lima, was placed under arrest Monday night and was taken before Justice Withersell Tuesday morning, where he received a sentence of ten days in the county jail on charge of being drunk. Marshal Cooper took him to Aqu Arbor.

The Standard has received a number of tickets for the Michigan state fair for sale. The price of admission at Detroit will be fifty cents. We are authorized to make the advance sale at thirty-five cents each, or three for $1.00. Tickets are good for any day of the fair, September 4 to 13.

A number of the farmers in this vicinity have threshed their wheat crop during the past week. Some of them report the yield as being from 25 to 30 bushels per acre, and that the berry is plump and in fine condition. Some of the new crop has been sold in the market here during the past few days.

Mrs. Christian Samp, of Lima, was considerably bruised Sunday evening when an auto driven by Clarence Trinkle, son of Mrs. Julia Trinkle, ran into her buggy and threw her out. The young man was just learning to drive the machine and accidentally placed his foot on the accelerator instead of the brake, sending the machine into the buggy with terrific force.

To all outward appearances, the Progressive party in Michigan is dead. According to the clerks at the secretary of state's office, not a single petition was filed by any person for any office on the Progressive ticket, in the National Progressive column. At the primaries, however, a single vote for some one written in may nominate a full ticket from governor down.

The following friends and relatives from out-of-town attended the funeral of the late John Visel, at the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart: Mrs. A. P. Kildea and children, Mrs. William Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Visel, of Jackson, Mrs. Michael Heinzman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heinzman, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Miss Christina Wyman, Mrs. Schiller, Mrs. Herman Bliss, Mrs. Oscar Bliss, Mrs. Klager and son, Mrs. Peter Egnoff, Christian Heinzman, Mrs. Geo. Boettger.

According to Superintendent of Public Instruction Keeler the bill passed at the last legislature requiring applicants for county teachers' certificates to have at least six weeks' work in a state or county normal, has greatly increased the attendance at the summer classes in the state normal schools. The summer enrollment at Ypsilanti normal is 1,900, while the Kalamazoo normal has 1,217 summer students. Eight hundred are registered at Mt. Pleasant and 620 at the northern state normal at Marquette.

The concert given by the Hollier Eight band last Thursday evening was as pleasing as its predecessors, and drew the usual large crowd. The next concert will be given Thursday, August 10, at which time Director LaFee promises one of the best entertainments of this character ever given here. One of the numbers will be the Tannhauser overture by Wagner, one of the most difficult overtures ever written for brass bands. Mr. LaFee has been giving the band some hard training on this number. Some means should be taken to stop the driving of autos and horses through the crowded street during the concert.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Hughes and family, of Highland Park, spent the first of the week with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Branch have returned to their home in Brooklyn, N. Y., after spending several weeks with relatives here.

The location of the new waiting room on the D., J. & C. Ry. has been marked, and as soon as the track is moved work will be started on the building.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Colton attended the funeral of Mrs. Nelson Howell at Eaton Rapids Wednesday.

The careless use of fireworks, gasoline and other explosives cost eleven lives in Michigan in July, according to a report made Monday by the state fire marshal.

The baseball game Saturday afternoon between the two Hollier teams, the Eight and Six, resulted in a victory for the Six by a score of 3 to 1.

Miss Cornelia Allmendinger, who has been the courteous and efficient probate register for the past year, has resigned. Miss Eliza Armbruster has been appointed to the position.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Boyden and children, Ruth, Everett and Arthur, visited for a few days at the home of E. S. Spaulding. They motored from Medina, Ohio, enroute to Kalamazoo and Chicago.

The Loyal Guard excursion which starts from here at 5:15 Wednesday morning, August 9, for Put-in-Bay, includes everybody who wishes to have a days outing at a reasonable price. Tickets on sale at L. T. Freeman Co.'s store.

A group of friends of Miss Orrion Haynes motored from Detroit Sunday, among whom were Miss Gertrude Davison, Leigh Hall, Miss Lucille D'Arcy, and Roger Warren. Herbert Haynes and LaVerne Kinney were other guests of the day.

If everyone who has visitors or goes visiting would hand it to The Standard what a paper we would have. There is nothing that adds more to the local interest of the paper than the goings and comings of its people. Also the little happenings of the community add a wonderful sight of interest to all the readers.

Word has been received of the death of Jacob Richardson, at the home of his nephew, Edward Truckenmiller, of Pasadena, Cal., on Thursday, July 27, aged 74 years. Mr. Richardson was a former resident of Lima, and has been in California for about three years. He is survived by his widow, one son and two daughters.

Officers Howard Brooks and H. E. Cooper were called to the McLaren neighborhood, Lima, Sunday afternoon to take charge of an insane man who had been in that vicinity for several days. The officers took the man to the county jail at Ann Arbor. It is reported that the man has relatives residing at Manchester who will care for him.

Mrs. Andrew Sawyer, of McKinley street, was given a very pleasant surprise Tuesday, the occasion being the anniversary of her birth. The out of town guests were Mrs. Paul Geiger, Mrs. Wm. Estabrook and Mrs. Ida Stautz, of Clinton; Mrs. Bert Marshall of Tecumseh; Mrs. Charles Chadwick of Jackson, and Mrs. Earl Hatfield of Ann Arbor. Mrs. Sawyer was the recipient of many pretty and useful tokens.

New Field Editor.

The Baptist Standard, published in Chicago, in announcing the change of field editor of that paper gives the following concerning a former Chelsea boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Killam:

Rev. Edgar L. Killam was born in Chelsea, Mich., December 29, 1873. He was educated in the Chelsea high school, Kalamazoo college, Moody Bible Institute, and Crozer Theological Seminary, from which institution he was graduated in the class of 1901, previous to which time he had been pastor at Cairo, Mich., where he had been ordained in 1897.

While a student at Crozer, he was pastor at Magnolia, N. J., for two years. Upon his graduation, with several other Crozer men he spent a year in West Virginia in voluntary service and was located at Belington, a mining community. After a pastorate at Williamston, Mich., for two years, Mr. Killam was called into the work of the Michigan Baptist State Convention in 1904, first as missionary pastor of a group of churches, then on the chapel car "Herald of Hope," doing special evangelistic work, and subsequently as pastor-at-large in the Saginaw Valley Association.

He was released by the state convention to take up a new work at Burton Heights, Grand Rapids, where he remained five years. Here he specialized in group work for boys and girls, which resulted in his return to service under the state convention. After a year in specialized work for boys and girls, he became three years ago one of the district superintendents. For four years he has served as corresponding secretary of the state convention and for the last three years he has been manager of the Bulletin. Mr. Killam was married May 1, 1897, to Ida May Currier, of Kalamazoo, and has four children.

Another Cement Suit.

Suit was filed Friday in the circuit court at Ann Arbor for $283,300 by Homer C. and May Millen alleging Nathan S. Potter, his son, and three other members of his family, owe that amount for stock taken from the Michigan Portland Cement Co. treasury and never paid for. The suit is one of the largest ever filed there.

Charges of wild-catting, high financing and conspiracy are made against the Potters. A receiver and injunction to prevent sale, manipulation or incumbrance of the property is sought. An order to show cause July 31 was issued by Judge E. D. Kinne, and was then adjourned until August 14th.

The property figured in a recent supreme court decision, upholding a judgment of $66,666.66 awarded the Millens in the circuit court at Ann Arbor.

On Thursday, the Potters were held in contempt of court for failure to produce books and records at a hearing before Commissioner Frank C. Cole, of Ann Arbor.

Important to Education.

The most important part of education is the training of the senses which, besides supplying the faculty of accurate observation, creates the habit of careful reflection and measured reasoning. The boys on the farms, no less than those who are being trained in the trades, acquire extensive development of the senses. The advent of mechanical power and machinery, however, has impaired this development. President Charles W. Eliot.

MAKE CHUM-OF YOUR CHILD

Boy Will Welcome Companionship of Father Who He Feels Can Understand Him.

The influence of a man's companionship in a child's life is usually a larger, less detailed thing than that of a woman, but it is for this very reason the more needed. The child is eager to enlarge his own world; he is, if he is normal, growing and outgrowing—he is longing to step out of his own little circle into the larger one of men and affairs in which he knows his father moves. I think I may say I do not know a single child, and I very much doubt if anyone else does, who would not willingly give up his play at the offer of half an hour's companionship with a grown man whom he can trust and who really understands him. And when the grown man is the child's father, the response is just so much the more ready.

You notice I have said, whom he can trust and who really understands him. And in those two conditions are implied all the obligations as well as all the rewards of fatherhood. If a boy cannot trust his father, or if his father does not understand him, it is likely enough he will prefer his toys; and I cannot help feeling that he shows wisdom in the preference. It is a pitiful commentary that so many children, given the chance to be with their fathers, to sit beside them, to go for a walk with them, to hear them tell of this or that, will jump at the chance, not because the companionship is so complete and satisfying but because it is a rare treat, a real novelty—Laura Spencer Portor, in Mother's Magazine.

Appreciation of a Prodigy. "Billings is still talking about the bright things his boy says." "Well, I envy him. It must be great to have a boy who entertains himself thinking of bright things instead of banging on the cellar door with a board or experimenting with a shotgun."

Central American Eden

THIS is written in what would be called in Virginia a "manor house." But since it is in Guatemala it is of the Spanish colonial type, says Wingrove Bathon in the Utica Saturday Globe.

The residence is the office and home of the largest sugar plantation in Central America, and to visit it has been a privilege which has fallen to the lot of very few residents of the United States, or of Europe, either, for that matter, as the records of visitors here show.

The great Humboldt came down through these fertile valleys of black mud years ago and recorded that he had found at last the celebrated "garden of Eden," and he predicted that what was then a wilderness beneath the tropic sun would some day blossom and bear fruit—the sweetest dreams of the agriculturist.

But he never dreamed that here would one day be found, as anyone who comes here may, a sugar mill in which it was necessary to invest, as is done in the United States and in Cuba, $500,000 before a pound of sugar could be obtained. Nor did he dream that visitors of today would find, as they do, an American chemist making sugar with a polystyrene, assisted by thousands of Indians of the west coast of Central America, descendants of the ancient Toltecs mixed with Mayas.

GUATEMALAN INDIAN GIRL

The approach to Pantaleon for the writer and the circumstances of the inspection were exceptional. It may be as well to set down here that in Guatemala and in many other Central American countries, a plantation, or a series of plantations, is known as a "finca."

Magnificent Scenery. The start was made from Guatemala City, the capital, in the morning. Down grade through magnificent views of the mountains and volcanoes which make a setting for the capital the train traveled over the west coast branch of the International Railways of Central America, which was built by the late C. P. Huntington despite almost insurmountable obstacles of an engineering character, and among waterfalls and water powers from which some day will be developed vast electrical energy.

Towering above the train as it wound down through canyons, amid the hazy, fleecy clouds were the peaks of the twin volcanoes, Agua (water) and Fuego (fire), no longer active, which have sent down into these valleys in years gone by showers of rich black mud that contains all the chemical elements of the best fertilizers, and in which three crops of corn each year are raised. A third volcano, Santa Maria, blew out in 1904, destroying millions of dollars' worth of property.

The train skirted the shores of one of the most beautiful lakes in the world, as interesting and as beautiful as anything Switzerland has ever offered any traveler—Lake Amatitlan—where some of the well-known residents of the capital maintain bungalows for recreation; not for "summer resort" purposes, as there is neither winter nor summer in Guatemala.

The train passed through miles and miles of tender, green, young sugar cane, as well as cane in full growth, being cut by the Indian laborers, or occasionally by Jamaican negroes, whose villages of thatched cottages lined the tracks and were visible in the valleys down which the train sped. Some cottages were thatched with banana leaves, some roofed with red, native tiles of beautiful tints.

Indian Fruit Sellers. Indians came to the train with pineapples in size and flavor far superior to anything one obtains in the United States, and with coconuts, grapes, alligator pears, rich, juicy, fruity mangoes of fresh pink and red and pale green tints, as different from the dark, pickled mango of United States consumption as can well be imagined.

Everywhere, from Guatemala City to San Jose, on the Pacific, there was, in truth, a very "garden of Eden," with immense tracts of land not yet taken up, ready for the enterprising citizen of the United States, whom the government of Guatemala is ready at every turn to encourage and to assist.

At Esquintla, a modern city of brick and stone and cement, there are memorials of the Spanish domination, and of the times when the aristocracy of Guatemala went there each January and February for diversion. It is a city filled with palms, and there are many beautiful baths.

There are other memorials, too, and some of these attracted immediate attention upon arrival at Pantaleon. These are of the Indians who are making that great estate, the greatest in Central America, still greater. In the patio behind the "manor house" was a great group of stone idols, visible through the open doors of the residence, with a fountain for a foreground which was surrounded by four immense coconut palms, studded a few feet up with that parasite of the tropics—orchids. No one knew when or how the idols had come there.

It is said that all along the west coast once extended the tribes of Choluta, who founded many "lordships." Sculptured stone idols were first found in this neighborhood in 1860. Excavations brought to light pillars, statues, stone obelisks, etc. Bas-reliefs were found which contained the representations of the horns of cows. Oxen were not known in the new world before the arrival of the Spaniards.

Some archeologists and historians, therefore, believe that these bas-reliefs represent the goddess Isis of the Egyptians. But this has to do with ancient history and the mystery of the civilization and settlement of Central America, a theme for the scientists. As we turned away from the sculptured stone idols and monuments at Pantaleon plantation we found, ready waiting, a most up-to-date steam locomotive and private car, to transport us through the miles and miles of sugar cane to San Vicente, a coffee beneficio (cleaning factory), and another beneficio, named San Gregorio, also belonging to Herrara Brothers, the owners of Pantaleon sugar plantation and mill.

Coffee and Sweetening. The coffee trees had just come into flower and their fruit was not yet ready to wash and put through the various processes, but we were in luck on the sugar plantations, for it was cutting and grinding season, and after we had watched the 5,000 cattle grazing knee deep in the great pastures and the Indians cutting the cane we came back to the mill and the manor house.

In the mill we saw 1,000 bags of 100 pounds each of refined white sugar being turned out each day. Sugar cane was fed in and refined sugar in sacks, 1,000 of them a day, taken out. The mill worked night and day, 24 hours on a stretch. Grinding season began at Christmas and continued until the middle of May. There are 60,000 tons of cane in a crop.

The white granulated sugar goes to the United States and white Demarra crystal sugar is made for export to London. Every Indian on the place has been taught there. There is a splendid laboratory equipment, with perfect chemical and scientific control of the product.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The first lesson of life is to burn our own smoke; that is, not to inflict on outsiders our personal sorrows and petty morbidness, not to keep thinking of ourselves as exceptional cases.—James Russell Lowell.

SALAD DRESSINGS.

A salad dressing makes or mars a salad. Too little dressing or that which is so thin that it is unpleasant to eat, should be avoided.

There are any number of boiled dressings which are commonly used, but the savory dressing especially for vegetables is the French dressing and the mayonnaise. These are both made with oil as the chief ingredient.

To make French dressing, which is the simplest form of salad dressing, have the mixing bowl cold as well as the oil; mix the condiments, using a half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of cayenne, six tablespoonfuls of oil and two to four of vinegar, depending somewhat upon the taste, the combination of foods, or the acidity of the vinegar. The ice is sometimes used as a mixing spoon by pressing a fork into it or against it. Mix the condiments, add the oil and mix again, then add the acid a few drops at a time, beating until an emulsion is formed. Another way to use this dressing is to pour the oil over the vegetables, tossing until evenly mixed, then sprinkle with salt and pepper and add the vinegar and toss again. When a quantity of dressing is needed it may be put into a mason jar all ready for mixing; put on the rubber cover and give it a good shaking to mix the dressing.

Mayonnaise Dressing.—Take the yolks of two eggs, beat well and then add a teaspoonful of mustard, a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of red pepper, a teaspoonful of powdered sugar and mix again; then add oil, drop by drop, until it is very thick, when the acid may be added, also a few drops at a time; beat until a pint of oil is used and two tablespoonfuls each of lemon juice and vinegar. After the dressing has used a cupful of oil, the oil may be added faster. Have all the dishes and ingredients cold and the dressing will not separate. If this should happen, start the process all over again, using fresh egg yolks, and use the dressing to beat into it as if it were the oil.

Roquefort Cheese Salad Dressing.—Make a French dressing by using nine tablespoonfuls of olive oil and four of vinegar, one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt, a dash of red pepper and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. When blended add three tablespoonfuls of chili sauce and two tablespoonfuls of thick sweet cream. Put on ice and chill. Just before serving add a fourth of a pound of Roquefort cheese, cut in fine pieces. This will serve ten people.

It is not the events of life nor its emotions, nor this nor that experience, but life itself which is good.

A thought, good or evil, and act, in time a habit, so runs life's law; what you live in your thought world that sooner or later you will find objectified in your life.

—Ralph Waldo Trine.

FRUIT SALADS.

This is a nice sweet salad to serve with cake. Peel and slice for bananas, four oranges lengthwise, carefully removing the seeds. Take half a pineapple from the core in small pieces with a silver fork. Hull and wash a part of a basket of strawberries.

Arrange the fruit in a salad bowl making each layer smaller than the preceding. Pour over the following dressing.

Sweet Salad Dressing.—Boil together one cupful of sugar and a half cupful of water five minutes, then pour on to the beaten yolks of three eggs; return to the fire and cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thickened; cool and add the juice of two lemons.

A sirup with the grated rind of a lemon and the lemon juice may be liked by many, or orange juice in place of half the lemon juice.

Fig and Nut Salad.—Slice pulled figs, cooked and cooled, and mix them with a few slices of walnuts or blanched almonds. Serve with French dressing, using orange and lemon juice instead of vinegar. When fresh figs are available they are better uncooked.

Turquoise Salad.—Mix together equal parts of celery and apple, cut in matchlike strips and one or two fresh red pimentos, cut likewise. Dress with mayonnaise, made light with whipped cream.

Peach Salad.—Cut ripe, fine-flavored peaches in halves, serve with a sirup made of orange juice (the grated rind) and sugar; sprinkle with the petals of tea roses and serve at once.

Almond and Peach Salad.—Sprinkle peeled quarters of peaches with shredded blanched almonds; cover with a dressing of whipped cream, with a tablespoonful of seasoned, boiled dressing blended in it. Serve cold.

Drill Amenities. Mayor John Purroy Mitchell said at a dinner in New York:

"The memories of camp life are a very pleasant thing to any soldier. Even the little vicissitudes of camp life seem in the retrospect pleasant enough."

"Thus I often laugh about a banker who was being drilled one day at Plattsburg by a broker-sergeant. 'What'll you give me,' said the broker-sergeant, an old Yale end, 'I take that hump off your back?' 'I'll give you,' the banker answered, with a tart laugh, 'something to make your hair grow, sarge.'"

Maybe. "Reforms are being carried on everywhere just now."

"Yes, and after we have reformed some of our reforms we will probably have matters in pretty good shape again."

Simplicity of the Fathers. Mrs. Everett M. Raynor of New York, president general of the Daughters of the Revolution, said at a luncheon:

"There are many anecdotes in illustration of the simple living of the Fathers."

"One of our country's pre-Revolutionary fathers had occasion to call on the governor of his province, and was invited to stay to luncheon."

"Luncheon began, and a liveried servant moved busily about, serving the wife, carving the fowl, and so forth."

"The guest watched the servant for some minutes, and then said to him irritably:

"What are you doing, dance, dance! In about the room for, man? Can't you pull up a chair and sit down? Surely there's enough for the three of us."

The Crime. "You don't mean to say the sheriff has done arrested the boys that made up that lynchin' party?"

"He sho' did."

"Name o' goodness! What for?"

"Sheriff says he 'lows the law's got to be respected mo' round here, an' them boys used a tree in the cotehouse grounds an' tramped all over the lawn right where there was a plain sign sayin' 'Keep Off the Grass.'"—Town Topics.

Bumper Grain Crops

Good Markets—High Prices—Prizes Awarded to Western Canada for Wheat, Oats, Barley, Alfalfa and Grasses

The winnings of Western Canada at the Soil Products Exposition at Denver were easily made. The list comprised Wheat, Oats, Barley and Grasses, the most important being the prizes for Wheat and Oats and sweep stake on Alfalfa.

No less important than the splendid quality of Western Canada's wheat and other grains, is the excellence of the cattle fed and fattened on the grasses of that country. A recent shipment of cattle to Chicago topped the market in that city for quality and price.

Western Canada produced in 1915 one-third as much wheat as all of the United States, or over 300,000,000 bushels.

Canada in proportion to population has a greater exportable surplus of wheat this year than any country in the world, and at present prices you can figure out the revenue for the producer. In Western Canada you will find good markets, splendid schools, exceptional social conditions, perfect climate and other great attractions. There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

Daughter's Idea. Mrs. Brown was in the habit of introducing her big daughter as, "This is Jane; she is only fifteen—you'd never think it, would you?"

At last the girl protested, "It's mean of you to tell everybody how young I am. I could have a lot better time if you didn't."

"Perhaps you could. But I don't propose to have people saying, after you've been out in society a couple of seasons, 'Don't tell me Jane Brown is only twenty—why, she was a grown girl years ago.'"

"Just the same," retorted the daughter, "you wouldn't like it if I introduced you to my friends as,
