CHASE & SANBORN'S Orange Pekoe Tea The Best TEA for ICE TEA

BREW in the same manner as though serving hot, only make a little stronger, as the addition of ice will reduce the strength.

When cold, add a small quantity of lemon juice and allow a few thin slices of lemon to float on top.

Add sugar to suit taste. Use cake of ice large enough to keep it thoroughly chilled.

FOR LARGE QUANTITIES

Use three ounces of tea for each gallon of water.

The New Holler Six

The Lewis Spring and Axle Co. has commenced deliveries on the Holler Six, their new car which sells at $1085. This is one of the classiest jobs that has come out of the Holler plant. It is a beautifully designed machine, with long, nearly horizontal hood and straight body lines. The windshield is given a slight slant, just enough to give a "racy" look to the car. The finish that is put on this machine is such that it will attract attention wherever seen. The body is in the standard Holler blue.

The point about the new six that will appeal to everyone located in this section of the country is its ability to ride easily over the rough roads. The spring suspension is the same as on the Holler Eight. Half elliptic springs in front and full cant-lever in the rear, the cant-lever being forty-two inches long, make a car that has been called "The car with five front seats." This is an expression that has been heard from many quarters, and comes from the fact that the combination of easy riding springs and easy riding upholstery is one that is very hard to beat.

The motor is one that has been thoroughly tested out on thousands of miles of road radiating in all directions from the factory, and has stood up remarkably well. It is of the valve-in-head type, cylinders three inch bore by four and one-fourth inch stroke. Cylinders are cast en-bloc. The entire head of the motor is detachable, including the valves and valve seats, allowing easy access for adjustment or cleaning. The pistons are light and well-balanced, with three rings. Motor is of the unit power plant type, three point suspension. Sight-feed lubricator on the dash.

Every point about this new car is up-to-the-minute. The gasoline tank is located at the rear of the frame, and gas is carried to the motor by means of a vacuum tank located under the cowl. Cooling is by thermosiphon system.

The chassis, with the exception of the motor is practically the same as that on the Holler Eight. The frame is made of a heavy, deep, strong steel channel, braced to make it extra strong.

The front axle is a high carbon steel forging, drop forged, heat treated and pickled. The rear axle is of the full floating type, with solid swaged tubes pressed into a malleable housing.

Artillery type wheels are used with 33x4 non-skid tires on all four wheels.

The new Holler Six is equipped with an efficient starting and lighting system with powerful headlights that are dimmed for town driving. One of the attractive features is the instrument board lamp which is wired in series with the tail light. The advantage of this is that the driver can always tell whether or not the tail light is burning. A storage battery is used which has sufficient capacity to run the engine continuously for twenty minutes or to carry the full lighting load for ten hours.

There is a selective type transmission. The gear shift lever is made with a curve which brings it into an unusually convenient position.

The clutch is an aluminum alloy casting, faced with leather. The clutch lever is adjustable for length.

The Holler Six is built with either of two standard bodies, a five passenger touring car and a four passenger roadster. Both are of extraordinary roominess and uncommonly pleasing in design. Upholstery is in genuine leather and curled hair.

A side view of the car shows the long sweeping design of the high-crowned fenders, which add greatly to the attractiveness of the Holler Six. The wheel base of 110 inches and road clearance of ten inches have been found to give the best results, particularly on Michigan roads.

From present indications, the new Holler Six gives promise of being fully as popular from the start as was the Holler Eight, which scored an instantaneous success. Production is proceeding rapidly and the roads around this part of Washtenaw county are being kept warm by the Holler Six test cars. Shipments of Holler Sixes are being made daily to all parts of the country and the Holler dealers report a lively interest being taken in this newest product of the big Holler factory.

There is no doubt that a great many of these Sixes will find homes within a few miles of Chelsea, as a number of the local merchants and farmers of this vicinity have been looking forward with anticipation to the arrival of the Holler Six.

An Enjoyable Service.

Last Sunday the members of the Old People's Home enjoyed a rare treat in listening to the sermon delivered by Rev. H. A. Leeson, of Ypsilanti. He spoke from the text found in 1st Kings, 19:12. In a simple, clear and impressive manner left in the hearts and memories such impressions of the meaning of those beautiful words as had never been so felt before, and while life lasts will be food for reflection. We are quite sure the "still small voice" will be listened for and heeded, and its refining influence felt in the culture and uplift of all who heard as never before.

Mrs. Frederick Schable.

Miss Marie Barbara Kaercher was born in Lima township, September 11, 1848, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. G. Falst on Orchard street, Tuesday morning, August 1, 1916.

She was united in marriage with Frederick Schable, (who died last January) September 21, 1869. For many years Mr. and Mrs. Schable were residents of Sylvan, moving to Chelsea from their farm last fall. Mrs. Schable had been in failing health for several months.

She is survived by one son Herman, one daughter, Mrs. A. G. Falst of this place, six grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. John Heller, and one brother, Michael Kaercher, both residents of Lima, and a number of nephews and nieces.

The funeral was held from St. Paul's church Thursday afternoon, Rev. G. Eisen, pastor of St. John's church, Rogers Corners, Freedom, preaching in German, and Rev. G. C. Nothdurft, pastor of Salem German M. E. church, Sylvan, delivering a sermon in English. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

Found in Horrible Condition.

What is said by Dr. A. S. Warthin, of the University of Michigan faculty, to be a case unique in medical history, was discovered at Ann Arbor Sunday by two Greeks, when they came upon the badly decomposed body of Frank Bogardus, and found that he was alive.

He was discovered near the Michigan Central tracks face upward, his body from head to foot decomposed and badly fly-blown. He had been attacked by vermin, his eyes, ears, nose and mouth being infected. A strong odor emanated from his body, which caused the two Greeks to look for the cause. They supposed the man to be dead, but were startled to hear him address them. Bogardus was taken to the jail, where he died three hours later.

Dr. Warthin found many blue bottle flies in the man's stomach, his body one mass of putrefaction with vermin back of the ear drums in the interior of the cranial cavity and elsewhere. Dr. Warthin said the body had been steeped in alcohol. Bogardus said that he had lain where he was found since Wednesday.

The Baptist Women's Missionary Circle will meet with Mrs. J. M. Whitaker, Wednesday, August 9, at 2:30 o'clock.

FIVE MEN DROWN AT GAUKLER POINT

ALL WERE EXPERT SWIMMERS AND BATHED EVERY NIGHT AT THE SAME PLACE.

WERE CAUGHT BY UNDERTOW

Rescued Once, Then Drowns Is the Case of Bowle Who Was Brought Near Shore.

Detroit—Battered by the waves, exhausted by walking on a muddy bottom and caught by an undertow off Gaukler Point, Lake St. Clair, five members of a swimming party of seven men were drowned in a 16-foot channel opposite Mat Kramer's old roadhouse.

Mrs. Clinton Knox and her 4-year-old son were sitting on the lake shore watching the bathers and were witnesses to their struggles for life.

The men were swimming at the same place they had bathed in every night for a week.

All were expert swimmers, but they had been in the water three-quarters of an hour and when they found themselves in the strong outflowing current of the channel, of the existence of which they were unaware, they had no strength to fight back to safety.

Four of them disappeared far out from shore.

The fifth disappeared after one of his companions had rescued him and placed him near the shore.

Clinton Knox, superintendent of the Detroit Piston Ring company; Joseph Goeck, Stanley J. Goeck, Milton Elliott and Leslie Bowle, all foremen, were the victims.

All but Bowle disappeared at the same time.

Bowle lost his life after he had been rescued once.

John Granger, employe, and Mason C. Knox, employe and brother of the superintendent, are the survivors.

Granger came near losing his life in rescuing Bowle and Mason Knox, only to learn Bowle had gone under after he had taken him near shore.

First intimation of distress of any of the swimmers came when Bowle called to Granger, "Give me a lift."

The men were not in deep water, but a high wind had lashed the waters of the lake into a choppy sea.

Granger made his way to Bowle, picked him up and started to carry him ashore.

As he did so he heard a cry for help from Mason Knox.

Granger had reached shallow water by this time and, asking Bowle if he could "make it" all right and receiving an affirmative answer, he placed Bowle on his feet.

Then he struck out for Mason Knox, who was further out.

He reached Mason Knox, picked him up and struck out for shore. He took Knox clear to the beach.

Then both looked around for Bowle. He was gone.

Exhausted, Granger struck out to look for him, calling meanwhile for help from the other four swimmers.

The wind and sea made such a noise, however, that his voice carried but a short distance and he heard no reply.

FOUR MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES

When in Swimming to Get Relief From the Terrible Heat.

Lake Orion—Leonard Kirk, 24 years old, of Marlette, was drowned while bathing in Lake Orion. It is believed that he was the victim of cramps.

Saginaw—Henry Stall, aged 26, while seeking relief from the heat, was in bathing at Melburn park and was drowned. It is thought he was seized with cramps.

Houghton—Rock Tomasi, a miner at Isle Royale mine, went swimming in the Huron dam. He dove and struck a sunken tree and was killed instantly.

Kalamazoo—Henry Porter, a colored race track follower from Memphis, was drowned here when he went swimming in the river. He stepped into a deep hole and went down before aid could reach him. The body has been recovered.

OUR BOYS ON THE BORDER LINE

They Have Plenty Of Sand In The Line Of Duty As Well As In The Heated Air.

IT IS SOME STUNT ON GUARD

A Soldier Boys Graphic Picture Of Life Among Lizards And Half-Breed Mexicans

Laredo, Tex.—Well, I am here in Texas, I arrived Sunday morning at 11 o'clock but this is the first time I have succeeded in getting enough dust out of my eyes to see to write. The last time that it rained here was last October, so you can imagine what it is like. Everything has been quiet since I arrived but there is tension in the air and it is hard to tell when things will break. We had a midnight alarm the other night and I had to get up and go on a little scouting expedition and we all slept with our clothes on the rest of the night, but nothing happened.

Laredo is a city of 28,000 inhabitants, 23,000 of them being Mexicans.

The present national prosperity, Mr. Hughes characterized as a "goof's paradise" brought about by the "abnormal conditions of war," and he advocated as a "neutral safeguard against an "energized Europe" which will follow the close of the war "protective upbuilding policies" which shall be applied "fairly, without abuses, in as scientific a manner as possible."

He likewise declared for a merchant marine that will not put the government in competition with private capital.

Finally, Mr. Hughes made a strong plea for peace to further which he proposes the formation of an international tribunal to dispose of controversies of a justifiable nature.

The capacity of Carnegie hall was taxed by the throng of re-united Republicans and Bull Mooseers who gathered to participate in the notification proceedings.

Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, chairman of the notification committee, presided and led the formal nomination before Mr. Hughes in a brief speech which set the pace for the enthusiasm which marked the proceedings.

A particular demonstration was accorded Colonel Theodor Roosevelt. The colonel entered his box on the first tier and as he took his seat beside Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., the house burst into applause. As he paid no attention to the first round of cheers, the crowd stood up, and then cries of "Teddy, Teddy" swept over the auditorium. Rising, the colonel waved his hand and bowed, the band struck up "Auld Lang Syne," and Progressives and Republicans alike mingled their voices in a grand old harmony cheer.

Mr. Hughes himself gave the final touch to the event when he entered 15 minutes later and was greeted with a whirlwind of applause, with singing out the colonel, and waving a salute to him, which the colonel returned in kind to another great volley from the audience.

Former President Taft was the only notable Republican leader east of the Mississippi who did not attend the ceremony which formally opens the Republican campaign.

BRITISH AND FRENCH GAIN Germans Suffer Enormous Losses in Counter Attacks.

London—After an artillery bombardment so terrible that the advanced sections of the German third line were swept away, the British and French smashed forward in a tremendous assault on a front of eight miles. From east of Delville wood to the Somme, the blow was struck and the whole system of trenches, work of months, were carried.

Great losses were inflicted on the Germans, who suffered in a series of terrific counter attacks, according to official dispatches from the scene of conflict. More than 500 prisoners were found in the shattered ditches and dugouts.

Laredo, Tex.—Twelve persons were instantly killed and 22 injured in a wreck of a northbound train on the National Lines at Moriles, Mex., 40 miles north of Monterrey, Mex. The train encountered a bad place of track and turned over into a gulley.

San Diego, Cal.—Officers and men of the Pacific fleet said farewell to Admiral Cameron Winslow who retired from active service and hailed in his swimmers, Rear Admiral William B. Caperton. The cruiser San Diego, the scene of the ceremonies, will continue as the flagship of the fleet.

New York—"Anybody who charged President Wilson with deliberate keeping National Guardsmen from the Mexican border to prevent the army against him at home is guilty of treason," was the heated declaration of Chairman Vance McCormick, of the Democratic national committee.

Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, dean of the medical department of the University of Michigan, will go to New York as a member of the commission to study the infantile paralysis epidemic. He is gathering information through the state board of health on all Michigan cases.

Washington—Foreign trade of the United States closed its greatest year in history June 30, with a balance of $2,136,000,000 in favor of American exports. The year's exports aggregated $4,384,000,000, the department of commerce announced, and imports were valued at $2,198,000,000.

The trade balance was double that of last year and four times that of 1914. Exports exceeded those of last year by $1,800,000,000.

dope about scraps is usually very nearly correct.

The prevailing language in Laredo is Spanish. It is an awful looking place. The streets are narrow and unpaved. The sidewalks are not wide enough for more than two people to walk abreast. The buildings are (with a few exceptions) dilapidated old shacks. The conditions of the natives is, in general, pitiful. Until the other day it had not rained since last October but we sure had a peach when it did come and it rained again last night and is cool today. The nights are splendid and all in all it is not half bad here.

I know absolutely nothing about the Mexican situation. Everything is disquieting quiet now, but will probably break out again soon.

We took a 20-mile trip along the border the other day, accompanying the officers making a tour of inspection of the guard. Part of the trip was made on horseback and part by automobile.

In following the border there are places where the line winds so much that it almost doubles back on itself. There are places where you can throw a stone out of the United States across Mexican territory and hit a target in the United States.

This trip on horseback is a delightful one if you forget the presence of possible outlaws. Along the line under groves of fir, cottonwood and the eucalyptus, are quaint Mexican villages in which there is no other dwelling than the adobe hut. These houses are made of mud and straw. No man needs to be without a home, for he can go out in his yard, mix up some of the flour-like sand with water and straw and build himself a castle that even these Texas winds do not destroy.

Driving back to the center of the city one turns toward the river and the international bridge. You can pause on this bridge to observe the types of people it carries. In the course of the afternoon about every nationality in the world is represented in the stream of people that crosses or attempts to cross to foreign lands.

This talk about its being unsafe to go to Juarez is either all wrong or the people with guns have been awful lazy on the occasions which some of the Michigan people have taken to visit the place. One's life seems as safe there, safer in fact, than some of the districts in Detroit; one might visit on a Saturday night.

On the side of Mr. Franklin is a shelf they call the mesa, and it is here the artillery is stationed. Michigan troops are assigned here to strengthen the regular artillery. Each company gets a turn at it about 50 men having to do a 24-hour trick there at a time. This mesa affords a splendid opportunity to see the country for miles around. Here one can look down and see Juarez on the other side, and if he has a good glass, the monument of the liberator Juarez rising in the center of the long rows of adobe shacks and the great mile and an eighth oval over on the left where for 100 days or more each year the horses run and the crowds bet their money in one of the most racing plants in the world

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Mysterious "Cit" Helped Recruiting in Capital

WASHINGTON—Hidden under an immaculate Palm Beach suit, and usually leaning against a tree in front of the Pennsylvania avenue recruiting station, is what the recruiting officers of the District National Guard regard as the most dangerous germ of preparedness in the city.

Everybody and everything that comes up against him becomes inoculated with the fever to enlist—or to others enlist. For several days figures in the Palm Beach suit was the officers of the recruiting station.

He appeared to be taking things easy in a very calm and deliberate manner. He looked like a prosperous business man.

Every afternoon he would appear and remain standing against the tree or leaning quietly to groups of men in front of the station. After a talk with a man usually walked into the station and enlisted.

One afternoon an ex-volunteer officer passed the station, saw the "germ" and shook it warmly by the hand. Then the volunteer came into the station.

"What rank does Marshall hold?" he asked, pointing to the "germ." "And how came out. This man is Creighton T. Marshall, officially known in the records of his country as a sergeant in Troop K, First United States volunteer cavalry, from May, 1895, to October, 1898. Unofficially he's "Crat" Marshall, Rough Rider, comrade and friend of Capt. Allyn K. Capron, Capt. Bucky Bell, and Sgt. Hamilton Fish, among the first three men killed in the Spanish-American war.

Privately, Marshall is custodian of the presses at the bureau of engraving and printing. He is a preparedness expert, who believes in every man doing his part and doing it up to the hilt. Marshall wears glasses because of the bit in Cuba. He wasn't expected to survive the Cuban episode—but he did.

Washington Woods Very Popular With the Crows

R. KALMBACK of the biological survey has studied the crow for several years, has thoroughly familiarized himself with its habits and is interested in every newly discovered crow roost.

He avers that the assembling of thousands of crows for the purpose of roosting, usually close to some large city, presents one of the most curious and remarkable phenomena occurring in the bird kingdom.

Mr. Kalmback has ascertained that there are several false-crow roosts in the vicinity of Washington. A roost at Arlington held during the most crowded period of its existence, fully 200,000 crows. In fact A. H. Howell of the biological survey attests that during the winter of 1910-11 the Arlington roost was occupied by 270,000 birds and that at least 100 crows flew to roost a second during "the height of the influx."

This would mean that 6,000 crows entered the roost in a minute's time, and a total of 45 minutes was generally consumed before all had returned from their foraging. This estimate proves that approximately 270,000 actually made Arlington roost a headquarters for the season.

The Woodbridge roost, near Langdon, D. C., was used by crows for some time, but the birds found another roost more to their liking. The successor is the one on which Mr. Kalmback made observations. He noted four lines of birds coming to this roost and estimated that probably 1,800 or 1,900 in each line, which would total something in the neighborhood of 7,500 when strays and belated members were taken into consideration.

A few months later the crows deserted this roost and returned to the Woodbridge roost, where other crows joined the original settlers, the whole population amounting to 80,000.

Counting these birds would be very confusing to a novice. Ornithologists familiar with two methods by means of which they are able to count large numbers. By one method the birds are counted in the evening as they fly and the roost in distinct lines, and, as a rule, there are anywhere from three to six paths chosen. The other method is to wait until all the birds have gathered for the night and then to choose a limited area of the roost, count birds gathered there and estimate from this the approximate total.

Army Medical School Fights a Silent Foe

PRETENTIOUS and unheralded, yet one of the biggest tasks of the militia mobilization, has been going on at the Army Medical school, at 721 Eleventh street northwest, where the vaccine for the prevention of various diseases is being prepared. A force of 20 men, members of the United States army medical corps, headed by Lt. M. A. Reasoner, has been working day and night on one floor of the building, preparing the enormous amount of vaccine which the 100,000 men of the militia require since mobilized.

An idea of the tremendous work is given by the fact that in ordinary times this same force makes the vaccine for the army and navy and the post service, and furnishes it to numerous other organizations besides. Since mobilization this force, in addition to the supplies for the services mentioned, has been furnishing the vaccine for the militia troops also.

Each of the soldiers in this army must receive three inoculations of anti-hold vaccine, and in other cases, inoculations for other diseases are made. The tremendous quantity of this vaccine has been furnished by this little force of 20 men, secretly a sergeant's section in the terms of army organization.

While the big men get the troops ready for service and have their names listed in the papers daily with suitable praise for their efforts, this little force, working with silent efficiency, is safeguarding the lives of the soldiers and the big men are organizing.

Washington's Great Walnut Tree Is Victim of War

WASHINGTON had a wonderful walnut tree. It stood near the American university, and has been noted ever since this country was known to the world. About the time that William the Conqueror invaded England, midway of the eleventh century, a splendid walnut sapling began to run its head toward heaven, near what was later to become the city of Washington.

In the times that followed William, while the times that followed William, while a disorderly group of islands were being welded into a Great Britain, in some tree developed with almost infinite slowness into a forest giant. A few weeks ago the Tunlaw walnut, after 900 years of life, was felled to help satisfy the war-time needs of that Great Britain it so far antedated.

England must have walnut wood of the finest to manufacture rifle stocks. She ransacked her own possessions, she has turned to America for the only source of such a manufacture. So the huge tree, a floral Methuselah, stood on the tract bounded by the Tunlaw ridge and Loughborough roads, been sold to a British agent for $120, lowered to earth, lopped of its top, and freighted to Baltimore for transportation abroad.

The Tunlaw walnut was famed as the largest hardwood tree in this section of the country. It was 125 feet high, 21 feet in circumference, and had a bough of 160 feet.

The word "Tunlaw" is walnut spelled backward, and it is said that General Grant and Sherman were fond of visiting the estate upon which the tree stood, near what is now known as the American university, and they suggested the name.

Happy Union of Voile and Organdie.

Transparent organdie, daintily embroidered, and striped or flower-sprinkled voiles are evidently made for one another. Aided by hemstitching, designers have joined them, and no one would ever wish to put them asunder.

The result of this happy union is numerous, whimsical, and altogether adorable little afternoon and party frocks with much captivating charm. One of them makes its appearance, and every feminine beholder runs straight a-shopping to acquire such a frock for herself.

Designers vie with one another in making alluring models, and have shown how much can be done with these simple materials. One of the prettiest is made of white voile having a delicate crossbar in lines that are of blue, green, rose and black. But they are so fine that the colors are indistinct. Little sprigs of blue and duplicate roses, no larger than a pea, are scattered over it.

The baby waist is cut with short kimono sleeves. These are lengthened by puffs of organdie extending to the wrist. This is gathered into a cuff of the embroidered organdie finished with val lace. The bodice is made over a net foundation and finished with a deep collar of the embroidered organdie. The girdle is of lavender velvet ribbon. The underskirt is of plain white voile.

The dainty frock pictured is made of white voile striped with pale bands in maize blue and rose.

Cape-Collar and Cuff Sets.

The new matched sets, of sheer material, made to wear with jackets, frocks and coats, add more style and life to the toilette than any other accessory of dress. They are unbelievably low priced as compared to their effectiveness, and anyone may own at least two or three sets. For the needlewoman who knows how to do hand embroidery they make opportunity for the addition of real elegance to her wardrobe.

But the ready-made, machine-embroidered sets look almost as well and are as crisp and fresh. Those who cannot embroider can make the sets, trimmed with plaided fillis or hemstitched borders in contrasting colors.

Transparent organdie is the dainty fabric most favored for making neckwear, but there are several other materials each effective in its own way. Fine, washable silks, crepe georgette and crepe de chine, chiffon and net all are used in sets of equal charm. Even silk mull does well for these matched sets.

Frisks of net or lace on the less sheer materials, and embroidered organdie borders, help make up the endless variety of style in which these matched sets are shown. But the embroidered sets with dots or small flower designs and eyelid work are, above all, the most elegant.

A curious change has taken place in the trimming of hats. Formerly a hat was deliberately trimmed with this or that—flowers, feathers or something else—a separate garniture attached to the hat. Now the trimming is made, as it were, in one with the hat—a sort of mural decoration. If the trimming were removed there would be no hat. The new hat is effective, less cumbersome and more beautiful, but alas! so less expensive.

GRAPE IS ONE OF SUREST FRUIT CROPS

Vine at Different Ages, Showing Training by Hudson Horizontal System—A, Pruned Vine in Its Third Year; B, Pruned Vine in Its Fourth Year; C, Unpruned Vine in Its Fourth Year.

When planting grapes, the exposure should be to the sun, as this fruit revels in sunshine, and the place should admit of cultivation on all sides. One or two year old vines may be used. At planting time the tips should be cut back three or four eyes and the roots well spread out. Fine soil should be dug so that the roots may be about six inches below the soil surface and well spread out. Fine soil should then be worked around them and well firmed down. If the season should be dry, a mulch of coarse litter may be spread around the vine. If all the buds start the stronger one or two may be allowed to grow. Remove the others.

In order to understand the growing of grapes it should be borne in mind that fruit is borne on wood of the present season, which arises from wood of the previous season. To illustrate: a growing shoot, or cane of 1915, makes buds. In 1916 a shoot arises from each bud, and near the base of this shoot the grapes are borne (one of four clusters on each). While every bud on the 1915 shoot may produce shoots or cane in 1916, only the strongest of these will bear fruit.

The skilled grape-grower can tell by the looks of his cane at pruning time which buds will give rise to the grape-producing wood the following season. The larger and stronger buds usually give best results; but if the cane itself is very big and stout, or if it is very weak and slender, he does not expect good results from any of its buds. A hard, well-ripened cane the diameter of a man's little finger is the ideal size.

Another thing to remember is this: a vine should bear only a limited number of clusters; only from 80 to 80 should be allowed to develop on one

There are so many species of grapes, each having peculiarities of its own and therefore responding most readily to certain cultural methods, that each grower must, in a measure, use his own judgment in the matter of training the vines. There are many more or less popular methods of training, all of which have some good points, and, according to location and other considerations, have been used successfully.

The principal methods of training are as follows: The trellis, the high-renewal, or upright system; horizontal arm-spur system; horizontal block system; the fan system; the Hudson horizontal system; four-cane Kniffin system; umbrella or two-cane Kniffin system; Munson system; overhead Caywood system; Chittenden system; multiple cross-wire system; or overhead arbor; overhead trellis or parvaes system; cross-wire system; the spur stool or short pruning system (used in most vineyards in California); the long or cane-pruning system (also used in California). Vines trained on trellises are comparatively rare in California.

Grapes do not require stimulating fertilizers. Wood ashes, about one-half bushel per vine, is one of the best fertilizers to apply. An application of three pounds per vine of the following mixture is recommended by some of the experiment stations: Ninety pounds acid phosphate, 90 pounds kainit and 20 pounds cottonseed meal.

Grapevines are sometimes girdled or ringed for the purpose of hastening maturity and fruitfulness. Experiments at the experiment stations in New York and Massachusetts show that fruit on ringed vines is sometimes ten days to two weeks earlier than on unringed vines, and larger both in bunch and berry. Shoots bearing the bunches are ringed between the fruit and the arm bearing the shoot. The ringing should be done when the grapes are about one-third grown, a ring of bark about one inch wide being removed from the arm or shoot. Implements for this purpose are to be had.

During hot weather frequent cultivation needs to be given the strawberry field if the soil is to be maintained in good condition. A dust mulch will greatly help to keep the soil moist. The use of the cultivator or hoe every few days during the hot weather will do much to keep the soil moist underneath. The surface must never be allowed to cake. Former Dean L. H. Bailey of the New York state college of agriculture speaks literally when he says: "Water your garden with your hoe."

If barnyard fertilizer is not available a good substitute can be had in the pulverized sheep manure, obtained from the stock yards. The use of nitrate of soda must be done with great care. A hundred pounds to the acre just as growth starts in the spring and a second application of the same amount just as the buds are ready to burst into bloom will do a great deal of good. But it is not advised to use nitrate of soda in any other way or at any other time, as it is expensive. Take an old pair of gloves and scatter the soda by hand, being careful not to let any of the nitrate touch the plants themselves. Nitrates are very hot and will burn and destroy plant life.

Fertilizer Most Suitable Is That Strong in Nitrogen—Potash Is Important Element.

The manures most suitable for asparagus are those strong in nitrogen. Horse, sheep and hen manure are excellent. Nitrate of soda gives good results. Potash is another important element. A good source of it is wood ashes, but commercial forms are also good. A good plan is to apply the barnyard manures as a mulch in the winter after the ground is frozen, so as to prevent the frost from going deep. In the spring the coarse refuse may be worked into the soil, but it is better to rake off the refuse and apply some finely rotted manure.

Pruned and Unpruned Vine at Different Ages, Showing Renewal System of Pruning—A, Second Year; B, Third Year; C, Fourth Year; D, Unpruned Vine in Its Fourth Year.

Vine. If a vine is strong enough to bear 80 clusters of grapes about 40 should be left at pruning time. If it is strong enough to bear 80 clusters 40 buds should be left.

With these principles in mind it will be seen that the essential operation in pruning grapes is to cut back a limited number of the best canes to a few buds each season and entirely remove the others. The more usual method at the present time is to cut the canes back to 8 or 10 buds and to leave but 8 or 4 canes, all of which should start from near the head or trunk of the vine. New arms should be taken out from year to year, as the bearing wood gets farther away from the trunk.

There are various ways in which the objects of pruning are accomplished. For instance, the growth and health of a plant are promoted and the size of the fruit is increased (1) by removing all the diseased parts and suckers; (2) by shortening extended shoots, side shoots, and laterals; (3) by putting upright the part whose rapid growth is desired; and (4) by removing the fruit buds or fruit. The plant is retarded in growth and made to bear earlier and richer fruit by shortening the leading shoots and leaving

REMOVE HORNS FROM CALVES

According to Writer, Best Dehorning Agent Is Caustic Potash in Pen-Cell or Stick Form.

The best dehorning agent is caustic potash fused in the pencil or stick form. The caustic should be applied as soon as the budding horn or button can be felt under the skin. As a rule, this can be done when the calf is but a few weeks old, and although it is claimed by some that horns may be removed from animals six months old, it is undoubtedly best to operate early, advises Dr. E. H. Lehnert in Farm and Home.

When the proper time arrives, clip the hair over the horn from an area the size of a half dollar, wash with soap and water and rub on the moistened caustic. To prevent the caustic from running, moisten it only slightly, and apply lard or vaseline all about the spot treated. When the scabs fall off, a careful examination should be made, and if the horn is still prominent, make another application of the caustic. To protect the fingers, wrap the caustic well with paper. If active caustic is thoroughly applied over a sufficiently large area, the horn will unfailingly be killed by one application.

VALUE OF PUREBRED HEIFERS

Editor of Agricultural Paper Picks Up Prize at Public Sale—Possibilities Unknown.

A few years ago a certain editor of an agricultural paper bought a couple of cheap little Jersey heifers at a public sale. Some of the breeders present had a good bit of fun at his expense and they haven't all got over it yet. When these heifers became cows the better one made a record of production excelled by only a few of her age in the country for a month or so and was then injured. She may be heard of later. The other one produced over 10,000 pounds of milk and 480 pounds of fat with her first calf, which was not so bad for a $50 heifer.

The fact is that nobody knows very much about the possibilities of purebred youngsters. When they are going cheap it's not a bad plan to pick them up and wait awhile. They may develop into the basis of a useful herd.

and they can't lose much money if they don't. More than one herd of purebred cattle has been built on something that didn't look very good to the crowd on sale day.

USE OF CENTRIFUGAL FORCE

Various Movable Parts of Machine Arranged to Render Separation Nearly Positive.

The Scientific American, in illustrating and describing a cream separator invented by J. A. Falk of Stacyville, Iowa, says:

Mr. Falk's invention comprehends an improved construction of separator, making use of centrifugal force, the various movable parts of the separator being so arranged as to render the separation as nearly positive as possible, and to prevent the mixture of the cream with the heavier portions of the milk after the separation of the cream therefrom.

FEED CALVES IN STANCHIONS

After Young Animals Have Devoured Milk and Grain They Lose Desire to Suck Ears.

There are several good reasons for feeding calves in stanchions. The calves can be fed their milk, then their grain, and after they have eaten the grain they will lose their desire to suck one another's ears. A stanchion made of wood will be entirely satisfactory. It should be made from 3 to 3 1/2 feet high and 18 to 24 inches from center to center, with the neck space 4 to 5 inches wide. It is built in the same manner as the old-style rigid stanchion. The calf should be fastened while eating, but loosened from the stanchion after it has eaten its grain. The calf pens and stanchions should be built in the south side of the barn, where plenty of sunshine and light can be had.

manure for the asparagus. Fertilizer Most Suitable Is That Strong in Nitrogen—Potash Is Important Element.

The manures most suitable for asparagus are those strong in nitrogen. Horse, sheep and hen manure are excellent. Nitrate of soda gives good results. Potash is another important element. A good source of it is wood ashes, but commercial forms are also good. A good plan is to apply the barnyard manures as a mulch in the winter after the ground is frozen, so as to prevent the frost from going deep. In the spring the coarse refuse may be worked into the soil, but it is better to rake off the refuse and apply some finely rotted manure.

GENERAL MANAGER WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR WONDERFUL GROWTH OF STATE FAIR

G. W. DICKINSON.

The 1916 State Fair was a great success, both from an educational and financial viewpoint, and the general manager of the fair, G. W. Dickinson, is responsible for the growth of the fair. Dickinson, who has been in charge of the fair for several years, is a man of great energy and initiative. He has been successful in securing the cooperation of the various state institutions, and in securing the participation of the various counties. The fair is now open, and the public is invited to visit it. Dickinson is confident that the fair will be a great success, and that it will be a valuable educational and financial asset to the state.

The general manager is working overtime to insure the success of the State Fair, and says that with favorable weather all attendance records should be shattered. Dickinson is confident that the fair will be a great success, and that it will be a valuable educational and financial asset to the state.

BOYS AND GIRLS TO COMPETE FOR PRIZES IN STATE FAIR'S BETTER BABIES' CONTEST

So great was the interest manifested in the Better Babies Contest at the Michigan State Fair last fall that G. W. Dickinson, secretary and general manager of the big exposition, expects entries in the 1916 contest will total several hundred.

Mr. Dickinson, who is the board member in charge of the contest, announces that Mrs. George G. Caron of Detroit will again act as superintendent, and that Dr. Mary Thompson Stearns, also of Detroit, will continue as judge. Both women gave excellent satisfaction last year and both are intensely interested in child welfare work.

Entries close Sept. 1.

Mr. Dickinson says that all entries must be received by Sept. 1 and that examinations will begin on the opening day of the fair, Sept. 4. The babies will be made up on Tuesday, Sept. 12.

The babies will compete in three classes—those from rural districts and those from cities and towns of over 1,000 population or less, and those from cities and towns of over 10,000 population and less than 10,000.

and babies from cities of over 10,000 population.

Babies awarded first prizes will be given sterling silver cups. Silver napkin rings will be given as second prizes and silver spoons as third prizes.

The boys and girls will compete in separate classes, and there will be sections for babies from one year to two years of age and sections for babies two years of age and under three years.

Insures Better Race.

"The Better Babies contest is a popular, yet scientific movement to insure better babies and a better race," said Mr. Dickinson. "More beauty does not count in our contest. Physical and mental development only is to be considered by the examining physicians. Our Better Babies contests teach parents how to care for their children and improve the physical condition of their boys and girls. Conservation of child life is also aroused. We hope to receive many entries from all sections of the state and will be pleased to mail entry blanks on application to our Detroit office."

Best Midway in Fair's History.

The midway at the 1916 State Fair will be the cleanest and best in the history of the exposition, according to General Manager Dickinson, who has completed arrangements for several of the attractions.

Mr. Dickinson says the entertainment features will be worth while and that many new attractions have been contracted for.

Sept. 4 to 13, will be the first opportunity Michigan residents will have to inspect the 1917 models. Practically all the leading manufacturers will be represented at the auto show.

DISPLAYS OF FRUIT ATTRACT MUCH ATTENTION AT MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

OCEANA COUNTY always makes a wonderful display of fruit at the Michigan State Fair and will be represented again at the exposition, which will be held at Detroit Sept. 4 to 13.

Many other counties are annual exhibitors at the State Fair, and it is expected that the competition for first honors this fall will be most keen.

THOMAS E. WALL, ANN ARBOR, MICH.

Candidate for Representative in Congress Second Congressional District, Republican Ticket.

Mr. Wall is a man intimately acquainted with the needs of the District, having been in the postal service of the United States for several years—six of which were spent in the Second District.

Mr. Wall is a firm believer and an ardent advocate of an adequate preparedness policy for this country, preparedness not for war but for peace.

His views on Americanism can best be expressed by the following: "Let it be borne on the flag under which we rally in every exigency, that we have one country, one constitution, one destiny."

He stands for an equitable revision of the tariff along constructive lines.

He opposes the needless waste of public funds and looks upon government as a business proposition in which the best and more lasting results are to be obtained through the application of business principles.

A square deal to all is his slogan. "Tom Wall can be elected in November, so vote for him at Primary election, August 20th, and it will be appreciated.—Adv.

DREAD THE "SNEAK CURRENT"

Electricians in Constant Fear of Happening Which Means Immediate and Fearful Disaster.

One of the most dreaded risks in the use of electricity for power purposes is the "sneak current," which may be compared to a leakage in a gas main. Only it is far more dangerous, because you can smell escaping gas, whereas you cannot smell electricity. One of the earliest warnings of the existence of this new kind of hidden peril occurred at the electricity works of the Manchester (Eng.) corporation on September 18th, 1899, in the engine room of the power house at the time no fewer than fourteen engines, each of 400-horse-power, were working at full pressure. By some unexplained means a sneak current reached and fused the copper rivets which held together the two ends of a leather belt connecting one of these engines with a dynamo. The result was that the belt parted, the released flywheel started revolving with terrific speed, and presently flew to pieces. These hurtling in all directions, wrecked other flywheels, and in a few seconds the splendid power house, with all its costly and beautiful machinery, was utterly destroyed.

Agnostic Squealed.

Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon, the American preacher filling Spurgeon's famous pulpit in London's Metropolitan tabernacle, quoted Spurgeon, in his part of that new symposium book, "What Happens After Death?" in this happy fashion: "Spurgeon was quoting an English pastor who had preached on the immortality of the soul, and who was approached by one of his parishioners who told him that he did not believe in such teaching. 'There is no difference,' this parishioner said, 'between the man and the dog.' 'Well,' replied the preacher, 'I really thought that I was furnishing food for people who had souls; if I had known that there was a dog among them I would have brought bones for him.'"

Old Soldiers to Attend Fair.

G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the Michigan State Fair, announces that old soldiers of Michigan will again be invited to attend the big exposition in September as guests of the Fair management.

Very Much Misunderstood.

"I was presented at a ball," said Jones, "to a young lady whose proportions were anything but meager. After the accustomed manner, I asked her to honor me with a dance. She replied with a desolate air: 'I am only free for the cotton and I cannot pledge myself for that, because I am not certain whether my people will be leaving before it comes off.' Jones thought he would seize the chance of a compliment and said: 'Oh, how empty the room will seem when you have left it.' You should have seen the savage look that she gave poor Jones."

Secret of Harmony.

Pull together. This is the real secret of harmony. There is a story told of a man who had committed the error of one of his teams to a faithful servant for years. At last one of the horses sickened and died. While the servant was burying the faithful animal, the other horse came across the field and stood by, watching the work as a silent mourner. The master said: "I believe Dick loved Billy." Instantly the servant replied: "In case he did, massa; why, they pulled together nigh 20 years."—Christian Herald.

A BUSINESS MAN.

Merely One of Lincoln's "Plain People."

MARK R. BACON.

What a man says when he is not thinking of running for office is generally given more weight than opinions framed with a view of catching the popular vote.

Fifteen years before Mark R. Bacon ever thought of being a candidate for Congress in 1916, he was asked to appear before the Industrial Commission in Washington, D. C., and give his ideas as to Industrial Conditions, Railroad Regulations and Freight Matters. He appeared before the Commission on June 14th, 1900; his arguments cover fourteen pages of the Industrial Commission's report; and the Commission in their general summing up referred to his arguments on sixteen different pages of its report. Mr. Bacon in speaking of trusts made these remarks:

"No combination is right that would curtail the reasonable wages now paid for labor or that would be detrimental to the people. No combination is right that is organized to increase the necessities of life or against the business interests of the country. No combination is right that would limit the resources of the country or that would have a tendency to stagnate the growth and improvement of the country. No combination is right that has for its object the annihilation of reasonable competition in any branch of business."

At a teachers' banquet seventeen years ago he in his address said: "And may the teaching of our teachers be an inspiration to all—and that inspiration should remind us that all men are equal—that the poor man is the equal of the rich man—that the laborer's heart beats as warm—that its milk of human kindness is as pure—that he is as human, as honest, as respectable as any class of people on earth, be they rich or poor—that clothes nor money do not make the man—that an upright life will be honored and respected by all worthy citizens."

"We must not forget to teach our boys and girls to respect and obey the laws, to love their home, to love their work, to love the farm, to love the shop and factory, to love their country and their country's flag—that poverty of itself is no disgrace—that it is no disgrace to work and that 'Honesty is the best policy,'—whether rich or poor—always remembering that all honesty is not clothed in fine broadcloth or clean linen,—but beneath the soiled clothing of the laborer and the farmer, the workman of this country, is to be found fountains of pure honesty—jewels of great price."

Mark R. Bacon believes that the Government should be run as a business man would run his business; economically, and on business principles.

If I am big enough to be your Congressman, I am too big to enter the mud-slinging contest.

Please mark your ballot where it says Mark—that is, where it says [] MARK R. BACON—On Tuesday, August 20th.—Adv.

I am a candidate for the nomination to the office of Prosecuting Attorney at the office of Prosecuting Attorney, Republican ticket.

If nominated and elected I will give to the County of Washtenaw the same kind of service that I have given to the City of Ann Arbor during my administration as City Attorney.

I will greatly appreciate your support on the 28th.

Most respectfully,
Adv. FRANK B. DAVINE.

WANTED—A Man Who Can Beat Beakes.

While interest in the coming fall election centers in the contest between former Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Hughes and President Wilson for the presidency of the United States, the campaign committees of both the Republican and Democratic parties will not lose sight of the necessity for the election of a congress which will be prepared to back up the president who may be chosen by the voters. Without a Democratic congress President Wilson would have been a mere figure-head during his term, and while Republicans everywhere are confident that Mr. Hughes will be the choice of the voters, they are also conscious of the fact that he must have a majority in congress to back him up.

Republican leaders are counting upon a solid Republican delegation in the next house from Michigan. At present there are two Democrats in the house from this state, and the defeat of both of them is confidently expected. Michigan is normally a Republican state, and this year it is expected to return to the house a solid Republican delegation.

One of these Democratic congressmen is from the Second Congressional District, and Republicans of the nation are counting upon the Republicans of this district to do their duty by their ticket and the man who will bear the Republican standard this year. We do not underestimate the political ability of the present congressman from the Second District, Mr. Beakes. While his campaigning is of the pussy-footing variety, Republicans must not for a moment assume that he is not busy every minute. In fact he has been busy keeping his "political fences in repair" ever since he became a congressman. Because of this fact it is supremely essential that the congressional nominee who is chosen by the Republicans of this District shall be a man who is acceptable in every way to the voters. He must be clean as a hound's tooth—a man of ability not only along political lines, but in his business life—and he must be a man who can command the respect of the voters.

Mr. Beakes does not meet the popular conception of a congressman in any manner. He is not an orator, and because of this fact his appearance on the stump is rare. He is not the sort of a man who can get up before an audience and by the compelling force of his personality impress his hearers with his ability. Instead he must rely upon other means to keep his candidacy before the voters. The governmental frank which permits United States congressmen to send tons of literature to his constituents without cost to the congressman provides the mean for Mr. Beakes' campaigning, and he has used this privilege to the very limit.

With the Democratic candidate lacking in ability to conduct a speaking campaign, it seems to us that it behooves the Republicans of the District to choose a man who combines with his other eminent qualifications for the place, a pleasing personality, marked business ability, real oratorical powers and deep knowledge of affairs of state acquired by years of close study.

We would not select a man for his oratorical ability alone, but if, in qualification all the candidates in other respects were equal (and this we do not admit for a moment), we would choose as a man to conduct a campaign against Mr. Beakes the one who could conduct a public speaking campaign, thus bringing direct to the voters a first-hand knowledge of his abilities along all lines.

Of the candidates for the Republican nomination for congress in the Second District there is but one man who meets the requirements of such a campaign as we believe should be waged against Mr. Beakes. This man is Thornton Dixon. Those of you who recall the campaign made by Mr. Bacon two years ago know that he does not possess the qualifications for such a campaign. Mr. Beakes does not possess them either, and it is but natural to conclude, since Mr. Dixon does possess them, and is otherwise qualified, that of these three men he will be able to secure the votes of the greatest number.

Vote getting ability on the part of the Republican candidate is essential in the coming campaign. Mr. Beakes has had four years in which to build up his political organization, and while the bulk of the work has been done secretly and through the aforementioned governmental frank privilege, it has been no less effective. So we assert that it is absolutely essential that Republicans of the Second District choose a man who possesses not only great business ability, knowledge of state affairs, a winning personality and unblemished reputation, but the ability to go upon the stump and carry his message to the voters personally.

Mr. Bacon is not such a man, but Mr. Dixon is, and Mr. Dixon should receive the vote of every Republican who wants to see Michigan's delegation in the next house solidly Republican.

To all outward appearances, the Progressive party in Michigan is dead. According to the clerks at the secretary of state's office, not a single petition was filed by any person for any office on the Progressive ticket, in the National Progressive column. The concert given by the Hollister Eight band last Thursday evening was as pleasing as its predecessors, and drew the usual large crowd. The next concert will be given Thursday, August 10, at which time Director LaFe promises one of the best entertainments of this character ever given here. One of the numbers will be the Tannhauser overture by Wagner, one of the most difficult overtures ever written for brass bands. Mr. Lafe has been giving the band some hard training on this number. If everyone who has visitors or goes visiting would hand it to The Standard what a paper we would have. There is nothing that adds more to the local interest of the paper than the goings and comings of its people. Also the little happenings of the community add a wonderful sight of interest to all the readers.

Word has been received of the death of Jacob Richardson, at the home of his nephew, Edward Truckenmiller, of Pasadena, Cal., on Thursday, July 27, aged 74 years. New Field Editor.

The Baptist Standard, published in Chicago, is announcing the change of field editor of that paper gives the following concerning a former Chelsea boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Killam:

Rev. Edgar L. Killam was born in Chelsea, Mich., December 20, 1873. He was educated in the Chelsea high school, Kalamazoo college, Moody Bible Institute, and Crozier Theological Seminary, from which institution he was graduated in the class of 1901, previous to which time he had been pastor at Cairo, Mich., where he had been ordained in 1897.

While a student at Crozier, he was pastor at Magnolia, N. J., for two years. Upon his graduation, with several other Crozier men he spent a year in West Virginia in voluntary service and was located at Bellington, a mining community. After a pastorate at Williamston, Mich., for two years, Mr. Killam was called into the work of the Michigan Baptist State Convention in 1904, first as missionary pastor of a group of churches, then on the chapel car "Herald of Hope," and subsequently as pastor-at-large to the Saginaw Valley Association. He was released by the state convention to take up a new work at Burton Heights, Grand Rapids, where he remained five years. Here he specialized in group work for boys and girls, which resulted in his return to service under the state convention. After a year in specialized work for boys and girls, he became three years ago one of the district superintendents. For four years he has served as corresponding secretary of the state convention and for the last three years he has been manager of the Bulletin. Mr. Killam was married May 1, 1897, to Ida May Currier, of Kalamazoo, and has four children. Mr. Killam has been a prodigious worker and in whatever he has undertaken he has more than "made good." His experience with the smaller churches, his interest in evangelism, his expert knowledge of work with boys and girls, his intimate acquaintance with all phases of state convention work, will make him an invaluable coadjutor.

Another Cement Suit.

Suit was filed Friday in the circuit court at Ann Arbor for $283,300 by Homer C. and May Miller alleging Nathan S. Potter, his son, and three other members of his family, owe that amount for stock taken from the Michigan Portland Cement Co. treasury and never paid for. The suit is one of the largest ever filed there.

Charges of wild-cattling, high financing and conspiracy are made against the Potters. A receiver and injunction to prevent sale, manipulation or incumbrance of the property is sought. (An order to show cause July 31 was issued by Judge E. D. Kinne, and was then adjourned until August 14th.)

The property figured in a recent supreme court decision, upholding a judgment of $66,800.66 awarded the Millens in the circuit court at Ann Arbor.

On Thursday, the Potters were held in contempt of court for failure to produce books and records at a hearing before Commissioner Frank C. Cole, of Ann Arbor.

Important to Education.

The most important part of education is the training of the senses which, besides supplying the faculty of accurate observation, creates the habit of careful reflection and measured reasoning. The boys on the farms, no less than those who are being trained in the trades, acquire extensive development of the senses. The advent of mechanical power and machinery, however, has impaired this development. President Charles W. Eliot.

MAKE CHUM OF YOUR CHILD

Boy Will Welcome Companionship of Father Who He Feels Can Understand Him.

The influence of a man's companionship in a child's life is usually a larger, less detailed thing than that of a woman, but it is for this very reason the more needed. The child is eager to enlarge his own world; he is, in fact, normal, growing and outgrowing—he is longing to step out of his own little circle into the larger one of men and affairs in which he knows his father moves. I think I may say I do not know a single child, and I very much doubt if anyone else does, who would not willingly give up his play at the offer of half an hour's companionship with a grown man whom he can trust and who really understands him. And when the grown man is the child's father, the response is just so much the more ready.

You notice I have said, whom he can trust and who really understands him. And in those two conditions are implied all the obligations as well as all the rewards of fatherhood. If a boy cannot trust his father, or if his father does not understand him, it is likely enough he will prefer his toys; and I cannot help feeling that he shows wisdom in the preference. It is a pitiful commentary that so many children, given the chance to be with their fathers, to sit beside them, to go for a walk with them, to hear them tell of this or that, will jump at the chance, not because the companionship is so complete and satisfying but because it is a rare treat, a real novelty—Laura Spencer Portor, in Mother's Magazine.

Appreciation of a Prodigy. "Bliggins is still talking about the bright things his boy says." "Well, I envy him. It must be great to have a boy who entertains himself thinking of bright things instead of banging on the cellar door with a board of experimenting with a shotgun."

Central American Eden

THIS is written in what would be called in Virginia a "manor house." But since it is in Guatemala it is of the Spanish colonial type, says Wingo, but in the Office Saturday Globe. The residence is the office and home of the largest sugar plantation in Central America, and to visit it has been a privilege which has fallen to the lot of very few residents of the United States, or of Europe, either, for that matter, as the records of visitors here show.

The great Humboldt came down through these fertile valleys of black mud veins and recorded that he had found at last the celebrated "garden of Eden," and he predicted that what was then a wilderness beneath the tropic sun would some day blossom and bear fruit—the sweetest dreams of the agriculturist.

But he never dreamed that here would one day be found, as anyone who comes here may, a sugar mill in which it was necessary to invest, as is done in the United States and in Cuba, $500,000 before a pound of sugar could be obtained. Nor did he dream that visitors of today would find, as they do, an American chemist making sugar with a polyposcope, assisted by thousands of Indians of the west coast of Central America, descendants of the ancient Toltecs mixed with Mayas.

GUATEMALAN INDIAN GIRL.

The approach to Pantaleon for the writer and the circumstances of the inspection were exceptional. It may be as well to set down here that in Guatemala and in many other Central American countries, a plantation, or a series of plantations, is known as a "finca."

The start was made from Guatemala City, the capital, in the morning. Down a grade through magnificent views of the mountains and volcanoes which make a setting for the capital, the train traveled over the west coast branch of the International Railways of Central America, which was built by the late C. P. Huntington despite almost insurmountable obstacles of an engineering character, and among waterfalls and water powers from which some day will be developed vast electrical energy.

Towering above the train as it wound down through canyons, amid the hazy, dewy clouds were the peaks of the twin volcanoes, Agua (water) and Fuego (fire), no longer active, which have sent down into these valleys in years gone by showers of rich black mud that contains all the chemical elements of the best fertilizers, and in which three crops of corn each year are raised. A third volcano, Santa Maria, blew out in 1904, destroying millions of dollars' worth of property.

The train skirted the shores of one of the most beautiful lakes in the world, as interesting and as beautiful as anything Switzerland has ever offered any traveler—Lake Amatitlan—where some of the well-known residents of the capital maintain bungalows for recreation; not for "summer resort" purposes, as there is neither winter nor summer in Guatemala. The train passed through miles and miles of tender, green, young sugar cane, as well as cane in full growth, being cut by the Indian laborers, or occasionally by Jamaican negroes, whose villages of thatched cottages lined the tracks and were visible in the valleys down which the train sped. Some cottages were thatched with banana leaves, some with red, native tiles of beautiful tint.

Indian Fruit Sellers. Indians came to the train with pineapples in size and flavor far superior to anything one obtains in the United States, and with coconuts, grapes, alligator pears, rich, juicy, fruit mangos of fresh pink and red and pale green tints as different from the dark, pickled mango of United States consumption as can well be imagined.

Everywhere, from Guatemala City to San Jose, on the Pacific, there was, in truth, a very "garden of Eden," with immense tracts of land not yet taken up, ready for the enterprising citizen of the United States, whom the government of Guatemala is ready at every turn to encourage and to assist. At Esquintla, a modern city of brick and stone and cement, there are memorials of the Spanish domination, and of the times when the aristocracy of Guatemala went there each January and February for diversion. It is a city filled with palms, and there are many beautiful baths.

There are other memorials, too, and some of these attracted immediate attention upon arrival at Pantaleon. These are of the Indians who are making that great estate, the greatest in Central America, still greater. In the patio behind the "manor house" was a great group of stone idols, visible through the open doors of the residence, with a fountain for a foreground, which was surrounded by four immense coconut palms, studded a few feet up with that parasite of the tropics—orchids. No one knew when or how the idols had come there.

It is said that all along the west coast once extended the tribes of Choluta, who founded many "lordships." Sculptured stone idols were first found in this neighborhood in 1800. Excavations brought to light pillars, statues, stone obelisks, etc. Butterflies were found which contained the representations of the horns of cows. Oxen were not known in the new world before the arrival of the Spaniards.

Some archeologists and historians, therefore, believe that these butterflies represent the goddess Isis of the Egyptians. But this has to do with ancient history and the mystery of the civilization and settlement of Central America, a theme for the scientists. As we turned away from the sculptured stone idols and monuments at Pantaleon plantation we found, ready waiting, a most up-to-date steam locomotive and private car, to transport us through the miles and miles of sugar cane to San Vicente, a coffee beneficio (cleaning factory), and another beneficio, named San Gregorio, also belonging to Herrara Brothers, the owners of Pantaleon sugar plantation and mill.

Coffee and Sweetening. The coffee trees had just come into flower and their fruit was not yet ready to wash and put through the various processes, but we were in luck on the sugar plantations, for it was cutting and grinding season, and after we had watched the 5,000 cattle grazing knee-deep in the great pastures and the Indians cutting the cane we came back to the mill and the manor house. In the mill we saw 1,000 bags of 100 pounds each of refined white sugar being turned out each day. Sugar cane was fed in and refined sugar in sacks, 1,000 of them a day, taken out. The mill worked night and day, 24 hours on a stretch. Grinding season began at Christmas and continued until the middle of May. There are 80,000 tons of cane in a crop.

The white granulated sugar goes to the United States and white Demara crystal sugar is made for export to London. Every Indian on the place has been taught there. There is a splendid laboratory equipment, with perfect chemical and scientific control of the product.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The first lesson of life is to burn our own smoke, that is, not to inflame our outsiders on personal sorrows and petty morbidness, not to keep thinking of ourselves as exceptional cases. —James Russell Lowell

SALAD DRESSINGS

A salad dressing makes or mars a salad. Too little dressing or that which is so thin that it is unpleasant to eat, should be avoided.

There are any number of bottled dressings, which are commonly used, but the savory dressing, especially for vegetables in the French dressing and the mayonnaise. These are both made with oil, as the chief ingredient.

To make French dressing, which is the simplest form of salad dressing, have the mixing bowl cold as well as the oil; mix the condiments, using a half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of cayenne, six tablespoonfuls of oil and two to four of vinegar, depending somewhat upon the taste, the combination of foods, or the acidity of the vinegar. The ice is sometimes used as a mixing spoon by pressing a fork into it or against it. Mix the condiments, add the oil and mix again, then add the acid and drop at a time, beating with an emulsion (a formed). Another way to use this dressing is to pour the oil over the vegetables, tossing until evenly mixed, then sprinkle with salt and pepper and add the vinegar and toss again. When a quantity of dressing is needed it may be put into a mason jar all ready for mixing; put on the rubber cover and give it a good shaking to mix the dressing.

Mayonnaise Dressing. Take the yolk of two eggs, beat well and then add a teaspoonful of mustard, a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of red pepper, a teaspoonful of powdered sugar and mix again; then add oil, drop by drop, until it is very thick, when the acid may be added; also a few drops at a time; beat until a pint of oil is used and two tablespoonfuls each of lemon juice and vinegar. After the dressing has used a cupful of oil, the oil may be added faster. Have all the dishes and ingredients cold and the dressing will not separate. If this should happen, start the process all over again, using fresh egg yolk and use the dressing to beat into it as if it were the oil.

Roquefort Cheese Salad Dressing. Make a French dressing by using nine tablespoonfuls of olive oil and four of vinegar, one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt, a dash of red pepper and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. When blended add three tablespoonfuls of chili sauce and two tablespoonfuls of thick sweet cream. Put on ice and chill. Just before serving add a fourth of a pound of Roquefort cheese, cut in fine pieces. This will serve ten people.

It is not the events of life nor its emotions, nor this nor that experience, but life itself which is good.

"A thought, good or evil, and act, in time a habit, so runs life's law; what you live in your thought world that sooner or later you will find objectified in your life." —Ralph Waldo Trine.

FRUIT SALADS

This is a nice sweet salad to serve with cake.

Peel and slice for bananas, four oranges lengthwise, carefully removing the seeds. Take half a pineapple from the core in small pieces with a silver fork. Hull and wash a part of a basket of strawberries. Arrange the fruit in a salad bowl making each layer smaller than the preceding. Pour over the following dressing.

Sweet Salad Dressing. Boil together one cupful of sugar and a half cupful of water five minutes, then pour on to the beaten yolks of three eggs, return to the fire and cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thickened; cool and add the juice of two lemons.

A sirup with the grated rind of a lemon and the lemon juice may be liked by many, or orange juice in place of half the lemon juice.

Fig and Nut Salad. Slice pulled figs, cooked and cooled, and mix them with a few slices of walnuts or blanched almonds. Serve with French dressing, using orange and lemon juice instead of vinegar. When fresh figs are available they are better uncooked.

Turquoise Salad. Mix together equal parts of celery and apple, cut in matchlike strips and one or two fresh red pimientos, cut likewise. Dress with mayonnaise, made light with whipped cream.

Peach Salad. Cut ripe, fine-flavored peaches in halves, serve with a sirup made of orange juice (the grated rind) and sugar; sprinkle with the petals of tea roses and serve at once.

Almond and Peach Salad. Sprinkle peeled quarters of peaches with shredded blanched almonds; cover with a dressing of whipped cream, with a tablespoonful of seasoned, boiled dressing blended in it. Serve cold.

Drill Amenities

Mayor John Purroy Mitchell said at a dinner in New York:

"The memories of camp life are a very pleasant thing to any soldier. Even the little vicissitudes of camp life seem in the retrospect pleasant enough."

"Thus, I often laugh about a banker who was being drilled one day at Plattsburg by a broker-sergeant. 'What'll you give me,' said the broker-sergeant, an old Yale end, 'I take that hump off your back?' 'I'll give you,' the banker answered, with a tart laugh, 'something to make your hair grow, sarge.'"

Simplicity of the Fathers. Mrs. Everett M. Raynor of New York, president general of the Daughters of the Revolution, said at a luncheon:

"There are many anecdotes in illustration of the simple living of the Fathers."

"One of our country's pre-Revolutionary fathers had occasion to call on the governor of his province; and was invited to stay to luncheon."

"Luncheon began, and a liveried servant moved busily about, serving the wife, carving the fowl, and so forth."

"The guest watched the servant for some minutes, and then said to him irritably:

"What are you doing, dance, dance, in about the room for man? Can't you pull up a chair and sit down? Surely there's enough for the three of us!"

The Crime. "You don't mean to say the sheriff has done arrested the boys that made up that 'lynchin' party'?"

"He sho' did."

"Name o' goodness! What for?"

"Sheriff says he 'loves the law's got to be respected mo' round here, an' them boys used a tree in the cotchouse grounds an' tramped all over the lawn right where there was a plain sign sayin' 'Keep Off the Grass.'"

Bumper Grain Crops

Good Markets—High Prices. Prizes Awarded to Western Canada for Wheat, Oats, Barley, Alfalfa and Grasses.

The winnings of Western Canada at the Soil Products Exposition at Denver were easily made. The list comprised Wheat, Oats, Barley and Grasses, the most important being the prizes for Wheat and Oats and sweep stake on Alfalfa.

No less important than the splendid quality of Western Canada's wheat and other grains is the excellence of the cattle fed and fattened on the grasses of that country. A recent shipment of cattle to Chicago topped the market in that city for quality and price.

Western Canada produced in 1915 one-third as much wheat as all of the United States, or over 300,000,000 bushels. Canada in proportion to population has a greater exportable surplus of wheat this year than any country in the world, and at present prices you can figure out the revenue for the producer. In Western Canada you will find good markets, splendid schools, exceptional social conditions, perfect climate and other great attractions. There is no war tax on land and no conscription. Send for illustrated pamphlet and ask for reduced railway rates, information as to best locations, etc. Address Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or

Daughter's Idea

Mrs. Brown was in the habit of introducing her big daughter as, "This is Jane; she is only fifteen—you'd never think it, would you?"

At last, the girl protested, "It's mean of you to tell everybody how young I am. I could have a lot better time if you didn't."

"Perhaps you could. But I don't propose to have people saying, after you've been out in society a couple of seasons, 'Don't tell me Jane Brown is only twenty—why, she was a grown girl years ago.'"

"Just the same," retorted the daughter, "you wouldn't like it if I introduced you to my friends as, 'This is my mother. She's only forty-eight—you wouldn't think it, would you?'"

Reason for Growing

Rivers had just got home, and was stumbling over the things in the dark hall.

"What are you growing about, dear?" called out Mrs. Rivers from the floor above.

"I am growing," he answered in his deepest bass voice, "to drown the barking of my shins."

Sun Brothers' Show.

Now on what is termed their twenty-fifth jubilee year, the Sun Brothers' world's progressive shows are coming back to Chelsea and will give two performances on Tuesday, August 8.

It is hardly necessary to state here that this tented show is alright, for the reason that our citizens know that it is all right and besides it is simply pure, all clean and respectable.

The advance printing matter states that the program for presentation is absolutely all new for this season, not one old feature being retained. The success of this noted tented aggregation has been realized by presenting the American people a tented show entirely free from every form of graft, by keeping every promise made in the matter of exhibitions, and by treating those who visit these exhibitions with the utmost courtesy and respect. It is this manner of treatment which often causes one to feel more guest than patron when he visits the Sun Brothers' Shows.

Many of their rival showmen who countenanced the old time confidence man, the short changer and other forms of graft, made the assertion, that the show could not live without adjuncts of that kind, and also sneeringly referred to the Sun Brothers' shows as "that Sunday school show."

Ever since its inception twenty-five years ago, the Sun Brothers have been deadly foes to anything of a demoralizing character and have kept their shows intact and free from it, and today it is the only show of its size in America that can successfully "repeat" each season town for town. The amusement going people have confidence in the show, because of the new and original performances each succeeding season, and always of the very best. Its great cleanliness and honest, courtesy and fair treatment given to all who visit their shows or do business with them.

The show will arrive in Chelsea by special train service early Tuesday morning. At noon-time preceding the afternoon performance, a number of highly original free outside shows will be presented to the public, all taking place on the show grounds and absolutely free to the public.

Perfect Enough.

"Yes," said the Olaf man introducing his son to the visitor from back East. "I think I've done pretty well for my boy. I've brought him up so he tells the truth about everything now except his automobile."—Kansas City Star.
