Put It Up To Congress.

The board of canvassers of Jackson county has left the contest between Congressman Samuel Beakes, democrat, and Mark R. Bacon, republican, for the second district's seat in the house up to congress. The board adopted a resolution to certify the total vote, but to certify merely that the returns are correct except in the first precinct of the second ward in Jackson, where Mr. Beakes claims votes for him thrown out through an error would insure his re-election if counted. As it now stands, Mr. Bacon has a lead of 37 votes.

College Men in War. Possibly more than any other war ever waged, the present European struggle has drawn into its vortex men of education, men of mental attainments and students. In the very nature of this war, it could not be otherwise. With the possible exception of Russia there is not a nation engaged but has had to draw deeply upon its human reserve resources. It is doubtful if there is a family in France, Germany or Great Britain that does not have a representative somewhere among the fighters. What a toll this war has taken of the intellect of England is indicated by a report of Doctor Barrows, principal of King's college. From this it appears that regular men students of English birth have fallen from 800 in the year previous to the war to about 100 now. The college has contributed 512 officers to the army and navy. And the work of the college itself, especially the scientific part of it, is directed largely along

BRAVE OR CURIOUS?

If you received information that a mysterious murderer threatened you, would you call the bluff by staying where you were and defying the Mysteryor would you hurry into hiding?

Whitaker, thinking he was soon to die, married young Mary Ladislas to protect her good name, and sailed for parts unknown at once. Supposedly long dead, he turns up in New York several years later, healthy and wealthy, and finds his wife, "Sara Law," noted actress, in the midst of a performance. The play stops abruptly. She refuses to see him. Drummond, Whitaker's former law partner, engaged to marry the supposed widow, is reported a suicide. Whitaker's friend, Martin Ember, former detective, doubts the report.

Read how Whitaker acted when warned of violence-in this installment. It's thrilling and puzzling!

CHAPTER VIII.

Entr'acte. Dawn of Sunday found Whitaker still awake. Alone in his uncheerful bedchamber, his chair tilted back against the wall, he sat smoking and thinking, reviewing again and againevery consideration growing out of his matrimonial entanglement. He turned in at length to the dreamless slumbers of mental exhaustion.

The morning introduced him to a world of newspapers gone mad and garrulous with accounts of the sensation of the preceding night. What they his wife's career as detailed by the gratuitous Mr. Ember. There was, however, no suggestion in any report that Drummond had not in fact committed suicide. There had been, apparently, but a single witness of the felo de se, who in the subsequent confusion had vanished. No one dreamed of questioning the authenticity of the report. Several sensational sheets ran exhaustive resumes, elaborately illustrated, of the public life of "The Destroying Angel." It seemed to be an unanimous assumption that the news uses 'environment.' Has your wife of Drummond's suicide had in some manner been conveyed to the woman while on the stage.

> In the course of the forenoon a note for Whitaker was delivered at the ho-

The heavy sheet of white paper, stamped with the address in Fifty-seventh street, bore the message in a strong but nervous hand:

I rely upon the generosity you promise me. This marriage of ours, that is no marriage, must be dissolved. Please let my attorneys—Landers, Grimshaw & Clark, 149 Broadway-know when and where you will accept service. Forgive me if I seem ungrateful and unfeeling. I am hardly myself. And please do not try to see me now. Some day I hope to see and thank you; today—it's impossible. I am going away to forget, if I can. Mary Ladislas Whitaker.

Before nightfall Whitaker had sat isfied himself that his wife had, in truth, left her town house. The servants there informed all who inquired that they had been told to report and to forward all letters to Messrs. Landers, Grimshaw & Clark.

Whitaker promptly notified those atserved at their convenience. But beyond their brief and businesslike ac- On his return a sleepy hall-boy with knowledgment, he heard nothing more of the action for divorce.

He sought Max several times without success. When at length run to ground in the roulette room of a Fortyfourth street gambling house, the manager was grimly reticent. Warned by the manager's truculent and suspicious tone that his secret was, after all, buried no more than skin deep, Whitaker dissembled artfully his anxiety, and abandoned Max to his pet vices.

The newspapers reported Sara Law as being in retirement in several widely separated sections of the country. She was also said to have gone abroad, sailing incognito by a second-class steamship from Philadelphia.

The nine-days' wonder disintegrated naturally. The sobriquet of "The Destroying Angel" disappeared from the aker rallied and grappled, thus escapnewspaper scare-heads. Ember permitted Whitaker to consider the matter in silence for some moments. Then, "Do you want advice?" he inquired. "Well?"

"Hunt him down and put him behind the bars," said Ember instantly. "What's the good of that?"

"Your personal safety." "How?"

"With you out of the way, he could come back without fear." Ember permitted another pause to lengthen, unbroken by Whitaker. "Shall I try to find him for you?" he me to. Otherwise she'd let you know where to look for her." "True."

These fragments of dialogue are from a conversation that took place in the month of June, nearly seven weeks after the farewell performance at the Theatre Max. Interim, Whitaker had quietly resumed his place in the life of the town, regaining old friendships, renewing old associations. The mild excitement occasioned by his reappearance had already subsided; he was again an accepted and substantial factor in the society of his kind.

Gradually he began to know more hours of loneliness than suited his tastes. His rooms-the old rooms overlooking Bryant park regained and refurnished much as they had been six years before-knew his solitary presence through many a long evening. July came with blistering breath and he took to the Adirondacks, meaning to be gone a month. Within ten days he was home again, drawn back irresistibly by a strange, insatiable craving of unformulated desire. Town bored him, yet he could not seem to rest away from it.

He wandered in and out, up and down, an unquiet, irresolute soul, tremendously perplexed. . . .

There came one dark and sultry night, heavy beneath skies overcast, in August. Whitaker left a roof-garden in the middle of a stupid performance, and walked the streets till long after torneys that he was ready to be midnight, courting the fatigue that alone could bestow untroubled sleep. a wilted collar ran the elevator up to his tenth-floor landing and, leaving him fumbling at the lock of his door, dropped clankingly out of sight. Whitaker entered and shut himself in with the pitch-blackness of his private hall.

He groped along the wall for the electric switch, and found only the shank of it, the hard rubber button having disappeared. And then, while still he was trying to think how this could have happened, he sustained a murderous assault.

A miscalculation on the part of the marauder alone saved him. The blackjack (or whatever the weapon was) missing his head by the narrowest shave, descended upon his left shoulder with numbing force. Notwithstanding his pain and surprise, Whiter. His foot slipped on the hardwood floor, the ankle twisted, and he fell awkwardly, striking his head against a table leg with such force that he lay half stunned. An instant later his assailant emptied five chambers of a revolver into the darkness about him, and then, alarmed by a racket of pounding on the hall door, fled successfully by way of the fire escape to adjoining roofs and neighboring backvards.

By the time Whitaker was able to pull himself together and hobble to the door, a brace of intelligent policemen, who had been summoned by the hallboy, were threatening to break it down. Admitted, they took his safety into their care and, simultaneously, the revolver which he incautiously admitted possessing. HARDINESS OF JERSEY COW

She Has Shown Her Ability to Adapt Herself to All Conditions, Climatic and Otherwise.

A criticism often directed against the Jersey breed is that the animals are not hardy enough to stand severe weather.

Possibly such criticism has as its basis the fact that the climate of Jersey island, the birthplace of the breed, is rather mild. But the criticism has no basis; in fact, Eminent's Bess, one of the world's most famous cows, was bred, raised and made her

Washington Taxpayer Slowly Easing Conscience

WASHINGTON. Who is "H. D. V.?"—Haunted, apparently, by a sense of remorse that demands complete atonement, a person signing these initials is sending every month to the collector of taxes of the District government a five-dollar bill, urging each time that it be credited to the "conscience HIS WILL EASE fund" of the District. TY CONSCIENCE

There is never an explanation as to why the sender feels called upon to contribute the money, nor any indication as to how many of these fivedollar bills will have to be sent before full recompense is made. From the fact that the money is sent in monthly installments, however, officials in the collector's office assure that "H. D. V." is not any too well off, and that many self-denials must be made to meet the payments.

Thus far a total of $15 has come from the mysterious contributor. Two of the three installments were sent from Atlantic City, and the last from

With no other clue as to the address of the sender, all that Collector Prince has been able to do each time is to issue a general "Thank you."

Has Funniest Job in District of Columbia

WARIOUS members of the District government may claim to have the hardest, the most irksome, the most complicated, and the superlatives of all sorts of jobs. Charles F. Nesbit, superintendent of insurance, says he has the funniest. Not that he doesn't work-no, he is some claimant there, too-but

The next laugh came from the report of an inspector. A colored woman complained that she had been ill for two weeks, and no benefits had been paid. The insurance company stated that no medical certificate had been received from her.

The inspector called around to ask her about this.

"Laws, honey, I clean forgot. Just you lif up that scarf on the bureau and there's your certificate." The inspector found the certificate, all right, and four more, for four successive weeks in advance.

plotches, redness and roughness, the Proposed National Forest in Washington Area

THE proposed and planned conservation of the power of the Potomac river above Washington, the submergence of many localities and topographic features long familiar to Washington people, and the conversion of the river from Great Falls to a point near the Little Falls into a lake call to mind a plan for conserving the high wooded lands along the river. It was a plan to which considerable publicity was given at and following the National Conservation congress held at St. Paul, Minn., in 1910, and it is still alive.

William M. Ellicott of Baltimore suggested the creation of a great naof Columbia. It was proposed to actional park bordering on the District complish this by acquiring reservations along the Potomac, Patuxent and Anacostia rivers, covering territory between Washington, Annapolis and Baltimore, and preserving the Palisades and banks of the Potomac from Mount Vernon to and beyond the Great falls. A committee of the American Institute of Architects on the conservation of natural resources-Glenn Brown, William M. Ellicott, James Knox Taylor and Cass Gilbert-drew up a report indorsing this proposition.

It is pointed out that the presence of cleared lands within the forest boundaries would not be a disadvantage because the best of the farm lands could be used as experimental farms in co-operation with the department of agriculture, while those less adapted for agriculture could be planted in forests. There are many foreign trees that have not been fully tried in this country under forest conditions. The rate of growth of most of our native species, under the most favorable conditions as would result in planting, had not been determined at the time of the discussion of the Capital National forest, and it was reported that "the field of forest experimentation is a large and promising one which would find here the ideal conditions for its fulfillment."

Old Columns Reproduced by National Museum

AT THE National museum a weird and beautiful model has been erected.

At the front entrance of the building have been placed two great columns surmounted by lintels of wood, the whole forming an arch. The religious history of the original columns is a very ancient one. From them has been learned much concerning the aborigines of Central America. Archeology has disclosed the fact that at the portal of every place of worship two great columns stood guard. No single complete example of these columns has ever been found, of the gently stimulating, safe and the erection of the model in the museum was made possible under the personal direction of Dr. W. H. Holmes.

"I have eagerly watched the construction of our model of those great-feathered serpent columns found in the neighborhood of Yucatan at the entrance of numerous temples, and frequently scattered down the slopes of the pyramids or buried in the great mass of debris about their bases," said Doctor Holmes.

"The significance of the column is a very fascinating one common to nearly every branch of native art. The feathered-serpeant god Quetzalcoatl of the Aztecs (quetzal—a beautifully plumaged bird of middle America, and coatl—the snake), and the corresponding delty Kulkulkan of the Maya people (kulkul-bird, and kan-snake), held first place in the mythology of these peoples. Nearly the entire surface of the body represented in the column is covered with plumage typifying the bird element, while the general conformation, the projecting tongue, bulbous fangs, fear-inspiring eyes and beaded tion, the projecting tongue, the desire of the peoples was apparently for a god that like the bird could fly and yet had the readiness to strike character-

Youthful Soldiers Had to De Some Thinking Before They Could Find Effective Answer to Gibe.

Some young volunteers were traveling to their drilling ground and a certain neisy section of them at one station sought to pass the time by hurling ill-mannered gibes at a smart-looking officer in the "Regulars," who was waiting for his train. He stood the fire very well for ten minutes, and then, stopping near the compartment which held the rowdy volunteers, said sharply to the guard:

"Guard, what is the meaning of this train's long delay?"

"They are examining the volunteers' tickets, sir," answered the guard. "Oh, thanks," drawled the officer; but I always thought that children in arms never required tickets."

And the train started again before any of the volunteers had sufficiently recovered from the shock to reply."-London Tit-Bits.

$250,000,000 A YEAR NEEDED

The Estimate of $1,250,000,000 Includes Nothing for Extensions Into New Territory.

Washington-Railroads will need $1,250,000,000 additional capital annually for the next 10 or 12 years to increase their facilities to handle the P. Thom, counsel for the railway executive's advisory committee, told the congressional railroad investigating committee that on behalf of the railroads about $250,000,000 a year adrefund maturing indebtedness.

Tto attract investors, Mr. Thom suggested that federal regulation should replace the present system of examples of injustice and hampering interstate roads.

Referring to the need of additional railroad facilities, Mr. Thom said: "It has been found that the wealth of the countr yhas been increasing the same ratio of increase has held tation. For the next 10 or 15 years, at least, the investment in railroad facilities to meet the large requirements of the future must consequently grow at a corresponding annual rate of increase."

The estimate of $1,250,000,000 for additional transportation facilities inlcudes nothing for extensions into new territory, he added.

"Where is this money to come from?" asked Mr. Thom. "This problem is one of vital interest to the public because on its successful solution depend the commercial facilities of the country.

"Would it do to confront the investor with a situation where the revenues of the railroads are not subject to the control of the investors, but are governmental authority and by many unco-ordinated state authorities?"

A mysterious woman frightens father tells her that the Mask has met death. A mysterious woman frightens Legar's henchman into a promise of confession to clear the Laughing Mask. She meets Margery and discloses herself to that young lady as David Manley. Legar and his gang get possession of some foot and escape, taking Margery with them. The Laughing Mask adds to his usness by once more saving her

SIXTEENTH EPISODE

The Unmasking of Davy.

In that gloomy sanctuary of evil doers known as the Owl's Nest, Jules Legar bent over the half sheet of paper on which the pen in his lean fin- driveway. gers was inscribing certain cryptic characters. This daring eavesdropper wore a vellow mask, with the mouth slit curvng upward in a fixed, mocking smile. He now seemed animated by a strong lesire to accompany One-Lamp Louie as that worthy departed on his strange rrand. Swiftly mounting a shaky lader on one side of the room, the masked interloper groped his way upward through a narrow bulkhead door, on him, knocking his weapon from his hand and bearing him heavily to the ground under their combined weight. Fighting with a courage born of desperation, the Laughing Mask with one supreme effort shook off the clutches of his unwieldy opponents and sprang to his feet, the strip of white paper still gripped in his left hand.

The astonished girl, sitting as motionless as an equestrian statue, had barely time to gather her scattered wits, when that disputed scrap of parchment came gently floating down the breeze. She knew that paper must have some great intrinsic value or the Laughing Mask would not have jeopardized his life for its possession.

Wheeling her tender-mouthed horse in his tracks, she struck him a sharp blow with her riding crop. Smarting under this unusual indignity, he launched out like a black thunderbolt toward the startled gangsters blocking his path. Margery swung low like an Indian and scooped up the paper.

As Margery swept past the last of her enemies she saw the black limousine backing out from the shrubbery thoughtfully surveying the peaceful just ahead of her, and by a herculean effort succeeded in pulling up barely in time to avoid a collision with that mysterious vehicle. Just then the Laughing Mask, with his left hand hastily bandaged, burst out of the bushes and ran swiftly toward the waiting motor car. He stopped in sudden wonderment as he saw the sereneeyed girl who smilingly extended a ley, you are under arrest!" With these words he dexterously slipped the handcuffs over the secretary's wrists.

"But this is preposterous, Captain Brackett," declared Enoch Golden somewhat heatedly. "I would as soon think of accusing my own daughter of being the Laughing Mask as this at close range. A stinging pain in his boy, who has stood by me through all my troubles."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Golden, but the law must take its course," answered the smug-faced police officer. "I didn't make any move until I was sure of what I was doin', though I've had my suspicions ever since I found this here piece of joolry on your library floor the time the Laughing Mask gave us the slip."

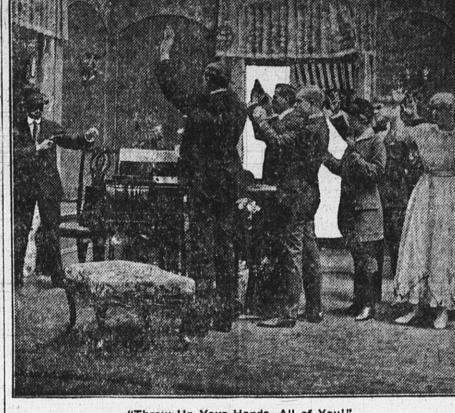

Fishing in a deep sidepocket, he frew out a gold cuff link with the letters D. M. monogrammed on its oval

"You'll have to do a lot of explainin' before you get through." he thundered at Davy in a third-degree voice, "and since you say you ain't the Laughing Mask, you might as well commence by tellin' us how he happened to drop this sleeve button with your initials on it." "I guess you'll have to do your duty, captain," came his low-toned deply. "I have no explanation to offer you." Suddenly from behind a lace hanging stepped a familiar figure holding a black automatic in his hand. His features were hidden by a yellow mask, the mouth slit curving into an enigmatic smile. "The Laughing Mask!" involuntaget out to Wrenney's Oak in a hurry if we're goin' to beat the Iron Claw and his pirates to that sack of loot."

With his usual buoyant spirits decidedly crushed, David Manley stood on the broad veranda and watched the little party embark in a racing long trail of foam in its wake. For a brief space Davy stared irresolutely out over the lake then a look of sudden determination flashed into his face, and a few minutes later he was at the helm of the speedy "Arrow," skimming over the surface of that lake as lightly as a swallow on the wing.

He landed a short distance below the deserted craft of his employer and made his way through the moss-carpeted woods toward Wrenney's Oak his quest.

The giant oak had implanted its edge of a precipitous ravine, and as Davy's eyes traveled up the steep hillside which abruptly flanked the narrow nath skirting this ravine his face suddenly went white with fearsome apprehension.

Peering out of a tangled thicket was the deep-seared face of Jules Legar. That face was as repellant in its beastlike ferocity as must have been the hideously painted savages who once roamed these forest glades, bent on murder and destruction. Unconscious of the presence of this lurking foe, the stalwart police captain was solemnly pacing off certain distances, guided by a slip of white paper which he held in his hand.

Standing near by and completely absorbed in these awkward maneuvers was the graceful figure of Margery Golden, her stoop-shouldered father close beside her.

A rasping oath from Legar warned Dayy that something had gone amiss with that worthy's plans. "The cop's stumbled on the right place by accident," growled the angry voice from behind the bushes; "the fool thinks the stuff is in the affound -now he's starting to dig right in front of the cave—that sews up Louie good and tight-we'll have to do something and do it quick."

"If you want to put the kibosh on that bunch buttin' into our business. I know how to do it," said Frank. "That big rock we seen up the hill don't need much of a shove to send it goin' down like thunder let loose, an' it's headed just about right to the main line, Gus," he shouted as he dived into the boxlike structure. "The Overland is due any second. They'll crash together head on."

Almost as he spoke the last words he jammed over one of the shining levers with all his strength. At that moment came a long-drawn screeching whistle, accompanied by the grinding sound of hastily applied airbrakes. Down the level stretch of track the onlookers, gripped in an agony of suspense, saw the heavy Overland express rushing at top speed straight for the lumbering freight engine. The intervening space between those speedng iron-clad monsters lessened with every second.

With set faces the little group by the water tank steeled themselves for that seemingly inevitable crash of collision. But at that crucial instant the outlaw engine werved with incredible swiftness and shot off into the long siding, just as the express thundered past with its dozen coaches of human freight.

Like a crazy Malay running amuck the engine, with the desperado at its throttle, tore down the siding toward a startled group of laborers who had been ripping out a defective rail. Amid plunged headlong over the steep embankment. Under that shapeless mass of twisted metal which had once been faced pursuers of One-Lamp Louis found the crushed and lifeless form of the unregenerate gunman huddled across a burlap sack of stolen plate. BREVITIES

YPSILANTI-This city is planning for a mammoth municipal Christmas tree this year.

JACKSON-With the arrival at the prison Friday night of James Walton, the Burroughs pay car robber, there had come from Detroit in the last eight days 21 convicts on sentences ranging from nine months to life.

MANCHESTER-The new rifles arrived Wednesday of last week for the Manchester Rifle Club, which has been organized. The club consists of about 30 members, many of whom served in the war with Spain. The lease for a range has been secured and contests are being arranged with teams from the surrounding towns.

ANN ARBOR-Ann Arbor has 222 more houses this year than at the same time last year. These figures were compiled by mail carriers of the city, who make annual observation as to the extent of building within the city. Twenty-one new business places ave been erected.

MILAN-The burglars who were bottled up and captured in Minto's store in Milan a few weeks ago, after spending some time in jail, decided to plead guilty and throw themselves on the mercy of the court. There were three of them and they were given indeterminate sentences of from two to five years each at Marquette prison Deputy Sheriffs Kreker and Fulcher, of this place conducted them there last week.-Leader.

ANN ARBOR-Home orchards in Michigan are on their last legs and ought to be. Apple wood furniture makers should go out and buy up a whole lot of them and get them off the land, said Prof. H. J. Eustace, of Lansing, here Friday afternoon to the Washtenaw Horticultural Society in its annual meeting. He said Michigan apple orchard conditions were unusually good this year.

YPSILANTI-Saturday was a harvest time for Ypsilanti garages, due to the excessive auto travel to and from the Michigan-Penn football game at Ann Arbor. Partially wrecked cars poured into this city for repairs in record numbers after the game. An Ypsilanti man driving to Detroit after the game reports counting eight cars stranded along the paved road by smash-up. One Ford driver had an argument with a telephone pole and succeded in breaking the pole in three places.-Record.

HILLSDALE—Harried by a troublesome conscience, a young woman one day last week paid back to the New York Central railroad, fourfold, the dime of which she admitted she had cheated the company ten years ago. She came to the window of Ticket Agent Dickinson to whom she said she had a confession to make. Then she related how, at the age of 13 years, she had ridden from Hillsdale to Jonesville without paying her fare. She insisted on paying fourfold so the agent stamped tour tickets which he gave to Conductor Harwood of the Jackson branch, who cancelled them.

SALINE-Frank Lane, 33 years old whose home is in Buffalo, N. Y., was the victim of an accident late Tuesday evening, while at work on a corn shredder on the farm of Fred Wiedmayer west of town. When his left hand was drawn into the rolls of the machine he was unable to extricate himself in time and suffered the loss of the entire arm. He was still conscious when taken from the machinery and to the Wiedmayer home, where medical aid was summoned. The wound was cared for and it is believed he will pull through although he is very weak from loss of blood .- Observer.

Do You Want Your Kidneys Experimented On?

Kidney troubles getting more com-

Kidney troubles getting more common every day. Government health bureau figures say deaths from this cause are 72 per cent more than 20 years ago.

Anybody who suffers constant backache, who feels blue, nervous and irritable; who has 1122, spells, headache and urinary disorders should suspect kidney weakness. Over worked kidneys must have a rest. Take a good kidney remedy to build the kidneys up again.

But be sure to get Doan's Kidney Pills—the oldest, the most widely used, the best recommended of all kidney pills, now in use all over the civilized world. Don't experiment with von kidneys. Thousands have already ed Doan's. You have their experies to go by. Plenty of cases right here in Chelsea. Here's one:

Which Do You Prefer?

Pullman or Freight?

No one would think of riding in a freight car if he could enjoy the comfort of a big, comfortable easy riding Pullman parlor car.

So with automobiles. Most of the popular priced cars ride like freight cars. This is due to the old fashioned type of spring.

Many manufacturers still continue to use them.

The Overland does not. The 75 B Overland has the latest type of cantilever shock absorbing springs. As a result it is one of the easiest riding cars in the world. One demonstration will prove this. $635 f. o. b. Toledo.
