Won Basketball Games.

The boys' and girls' basketball teams of the Grass Lake high school went down to defeat before the invincibles of the Chelsea high school on Friday evening. A large and enthusiastic bunch of rooters were in attendance to help the local boys and girls by their encouraging songs and yells. Owing to the late arrival of the Grass Lake bunch and as an accomodation to Mr. Ottmar, the referee, the boys' game was pulled off first. The local boys took advantage of the inexperience of their opponents and increased their margin of individual scores considerably. Brooks, Kalmbach and Capt. Wagner were the strong point winners for Chelsea, while VanArmun and Sanford did most of the scoring for Grass Lake. The line up follows: GRASS LAKE. VanArmun Kalmbach R. Wagner, Cap. C. ### Intolerance.

D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance," his first and only production, since "The Birth of a Nation," will be the attraction at the Majestic Theatre, in Jackson, for three days commencing Thursday evening, March 8th, and twice daily thereafter at 2:05 and 8:05.

This attraction will never be presented in any but the highest class of theatres and at prices customarily charged for first-class attractions.

Mr. Griffith's new offering carries four parallel stories of different ages of human history. Some of the greatest characters in the world's development are pictured at war with the irresistable currents of thought which dominated their ages and lead to the approaching era of individual responsibility tempered with the mutuality of brotherly understanding between

The entire conception is poetical and epochal, investing a newer understanding of the past and present with a more direct force than was dreamed possible until this method perfected by Griffith came to hand. It is staged with that attention to detail which marks the Griffith productions and its emotional message will be carried by an orchestral score equal to every demand called for by the range and sweep of the book.

Amazing magnitude, the most gigantic settings ever erected and thrill after thrill mark the progress of this masterpiece. Thousands upon thousands of people, set against tremendous backgrounds, are handled with an unequalled precision and a perfection of detail nowhere outdone and permeating all is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. Griffith has rebuilt and repeopled Babylon. He has re-erected Judea in the days of the Nazarene. He has reconstructed Paris during the Middle Ages. In its entirety "Intolerance" is so stupendous that description falters and fails to give an idea of the massiveness of its scope. In New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and Los Angeles it has created a sensation that has never been equalled, not by "The Birth of a Nation."

Uncle Sam Searching for German Submarine Base

MASHINGTON.—A systematic investigation has been started by American government officials for the purpose of finding out where the German submarines believed to be operating off the coast of South America are obtaining their supply of fuel oil and provisions. Naval experts who have been consulted have expressed the conviction that the only possible sources of the supply are in the oil fields of Tampico, Mexico, or in the United States. American or other neutral tank ships are suspected of being the medium through which oil is conveyed to the submarines. Naval officers are also convinced that one or more German submarine bases are being maintained on some out-of-the-way island in the Carribean sea. It is known that German interests control considerable oil deposits near Tampice, where the principal British supply is also located. It is realized, however, that these German-owned fields would be of no use to the German submarines upless ships could be obtained to transport the supply, and it is realized also that the only facilities for transporting It would be those afforded by American or neutral ships, there being no German merchant vessels available for the purpose.

While all ships taking on oil at any port are supposed to get clearance papers for a definite port or destination, it is suspected that some of these are stopping at some secret base and there depositing some of their oil cargo. Mexican port authorities of easy conscience, it is suspected, are certifying. for a consideration, to "short" cargoes whereas in fact the vessels under suspicion may be clearing with full cargoes. In this way, it is pointed out, the vessels could dispose of part of their oil en route without there being a discrepancy between the amount of the cargo certified to at the point of departure and the amount deposited at the final port of destination.

Equestrian Indian Statue for National Capital

A T LAST the national capital may have one equestrian Indian statue, a site for which is suggested in the Smithsonian grounds between the Smithsonian buildings and the New National museum, if the proposal made by Franklin Steele, Jr., a Washington authority on sculpture, is carried out. This statue is "The Scout," the work of Cyrus E. Dallin, standing about ten feet high. For this statue Mr. Dallin received a gold medal at the Panama-Pacific exposition. It is temporarily located in Kansas City, having been recently cast in bronze.

A Sioux brave is shown on his pony, and so impressive is the work and so true to type that when a number of Sioux Indians saw the effigy they cried out, "Lakota," meaning "the Sioux." The proposal for having this statue placed in some Washington park is thus outlined by Mr. Steele, as follows

"If this statue could be acquired by the city it would add greatly to our ornamental features and would, no doubt, meet with the approval of the fine arts commission. An ideal place to locate, if we are fortunate enough to secure it, would be in the grounds of the Smithsonian institution, where it could stand out boldly between it and the New National museum, standing, as it does, ten feet high. Evidently this statue of the Indian scout represents an aborigine of early days.

"Before the statue in question is disposed of there should be an effort on. the part of the people of this city to add this fine work of art to other ornamentations of beautiful Washington

"You just simply know it. It must be intuition," he said. "But they rarely ever get by without being recognized. "What is my formula? That's a hard question.

"You see that couple strolling down this way?" the policeman asked, as he pointed to a young fellow and girl headed toward the executive offices some distance away. The man was holding the girl's arm, and they were looking into each other's faces as they strolled along.

"They are not married," Dalrymple explained. "There are many other. persons in the White House grounds now, and they know it. The average newly wed is self-conscious, and while proud of the fact that he is married, always is trying to conceal it. He wouldn't dare catch the arm of his bride in crowded grounds like these. Neither would each gaze into the other's eyes while in company. They think that such an act would easily label them

"Even is they did not say a word, seven times out of each ten you would be able to spot a recently married pair by their clothing. Whenever you see a girl with gray shoes, stockings, dress and hat to match, you can bet your last dollar that she's a bride. But few women that come to the White House ever have complete costumes, each garment and piece matching the other in detail, unless they are part of their trousseau."

She paused again, but still he was mute and immobile.

"So now you know me-what I am. No other man has ever known or ever will. But I had to tell you the truth. It seems that the only thing my career had left uncalloused was my fundamental sense of honesty. So I had to come and tell you."

And still he held silence, attentive, but with a set face that betrayed nothing of the tenor of his thoughts.

Almost timidly, with nervously fumbling fingers, she extracted from her pocketbook a small ticket envelope.

"Max was afraid you might upset the performance again, as you did on my last appearance, Hugh," she said; "but I assured him it was just the shock of recognizing you that bowled me over. So I've brought you a box for tomorrow night. I want you to use it-you and Mr. Ember."

He broke in with a curt monosyllable: "Why?" "Why-why because-because I want you-I suppose it's simply my vanityto see me act. Perhaps you'll feel a little less hardly toward me if you see that I am really a great actress, that I give you up for something bigger than just love-"

"What rot!" he said with an odd, short laugh. "Besides, I harbor no resentment.

"I really don't mind," he assured her with a strange smile. "But . . would you mind excusing me one moment? I've forgotten something very important."

"Why, certainly . . ." He was already at the telephone in the hallway, just beyond the livingroom door. It was impossible to escape overhearing his words. Mary, I admit, at first you got me: I believed you meant what you said. But only my mind believed it; my heart knew better, just as it has always known better, all through this wretched time of doubt and misery and separation you've subjected us both to. And that was why I coulon't trust myself to answer you; for if I had, I should have laughed for joy. O Mary, Mary!" he cried, his voice softening, "my dear, dear woman, you can't lie to love! With neither invitation nor salutation, he slipped into a chair on the other side of the table, and stared.

Whitaker smiled benignantly upon nim, and called a waiter.

Ember, always abstemious, lifted his hand and smiled a negative smile. Whitaker dismissed the waiter. "Well . . . ?" he inquired cheerfully.

"What right have you got to look like that?" Ember demanded.

"The right of every free-born American citizen to make an ass of himself according to the dictates of his conscience. I've been exploring the dark backwards and abysm of the Bronxafoot. "But-my dear man !-you said you were celebrating; you permitted me to congratulate you just now-"

"The point is," said Whitaker, with a bland and confident grin; "I've succeeded in arguing that nonsense out of my head-not hers-mine."

Ember gave a helpless gesture. "I'm afraid this is one of my stupid nights . . ."

"I mean that, though Mary ran away from me, wouldn't listen to reason, I have, in the course of an afternoon's hard tramping, come to the conclusion that there is nothing under the sun which binds me to sit back and "Yes! Black Out.

The auditorium was in almost total darkness. A single voice was audible from the stage that confronted it like some tremendous, moonlight canvas in a huge frame of tarnished gold. They stole silently round the orchestra seats to the stage-box-the same box that Whitaker had on the former occasoin occupied in company with Max.

They succeeded in taking possession without attracting attention, either from the owners of that scanty scattering of shirt bosoms in the orchestra -the critical fraternity and those intimates bidden by the manager to the first glimpse of his new revelation in stagecraft-or from those occupying

Everyone has uric acid in the system, but naturally in small quantities. Excessive amount is caused by eating too much meat and foods that ferment in stomach. The kidneys, being the filters of the blood, are supposed to separate and throw the poisons out of the system. Weak, tired and overworked kidneys fail to do this, hence the uric acid accumulates and the urate salts are carried by the blood to the solid tissue structure, causing backache, lumbago, rheumatism, dropsy, drowsiness, and tired feeling. To overcome the trouble is only matter of toning up the kidneys, and this is best done by a treatment with Anuric three times a day. Anuric is a recent discovery of Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. and can be obtained at any drug store.

Experience taught Doctor Pierce that Anuric is a more powerful agent than lithia in dissolving uric acid, and it is then carried out of the system.

PRESIDENT ASKS POWER TO GUARD RIGHTS OF U. S.

Declares Diplomatic Means Have Failed to Safeguard American Interests.

FORCED TO ARMED NEUTRALITY

Requests Congress to Grant Power to Arm American Merchant Vessels and to Use Armed Forces of the Nation to Defend Rights of United States Citizens.

Washington, Feb. 27.-President Wilson delivered an address before a joint session of congress yesterday. He declared that diplomatic means had failed to safeguard American interests and that all that is left now is to adopt an attitude of armed neutrality. He specifically asked that he be given authority to arm American merchant vessels. The president's address was as follows: "Gentlemen of the Congress:

through critical times during which it seems to me to be my duty to keep in close touch with the houses of congress, so that neither counsel nor action shall run at cross-purposes between us.

informed you of the sudden and unexpected action of the imperial German government in declaring its intention to disregard the promises it had made to maintain and for which there is to this government in April last and abundant American precedent. undertake immediate submarine operations against all commerce, whether belligerents or neutrals, that should seek to approach Great Britain and Ireland, the Atlantic coasts of Europe, or the harbors of the eastern Mediterranean, and to conduct those operations without regard to the established restrictions of international practice. without regard to any considerations of humanity even which might interfere with their object. That policy was forthwith put into practice. It has now been in active execution for nearly four weeks.

All Commerce Suffering.

"Its practical results are not yet fully disclosed. The commerce of other neutral nations is suffering severely. but not, perhaps, very much more severely than it was already suffering befor the first of February, when the new policy of the imperial government was put into operation. We have asked the co-operation of other neutral governments to prevent these depredations. but so far none of them has thought it of action.

"Our own commerce has suffered, is suffering, rather in apprehension than in fact, rather because so many of our ships are timidly keeping to their home ports than because American ships have sunk.

"Two American vessels have been sunk, the Housatonic and the Lyman M. Law.

"The case of the Housatonic, which was carrying foodstuffs to a London firm, was essentially like the case of the Frye, in which, it will be recalled. the German government admitted its liability for damages, and the lives of the crew, as in the case of the Frye, were safeguarded with reasonable care. "The case of the Law, which was carrying lemon-box staves to Palermo, disclosed a ruthlessness of method which deserves grave condemnation, but was accompanied by no circumstances which might not have been expected at any time in connection with the use of the submarine against merchantmen as the German government has used it.

"In summing up, therefore, the situation we find ourselves in with regard to the actual conduct of the German submarine warfare against commerce and its effects upon our own ships and people is substantially the same that it was when I addressed you on the third of February, except for the tying up of our shipping in our own ports because of the unwillingness of our shipowners to risk their vessels at sen without insurance or adequate protection, and the very serious congestion of our commerce which has resulted, a congestion which is growing rapidly more and more serious every day.

"This in itself might presently accomplish, in effect, what the new German submarine orders were meant to accomplish, so far as we are concerned.

"We can only say, therefore, that the overt act which I have ventured to hope the German commanders would in fact avoid has not occurred.

Some Alarming Signs.

"But while this is happily true, it must be admitted that there have been certain additional indications and expressions of purpose on the part of the German press and the German authorities which have increased rather than lessened the impression that, if our ships and our people are spared it will be because of fortunate circumstances or because the commanders of the German submarines which they may happen to encounter exercise an unexpected discretion and restraint rather than because of the instructions under which those commanders are acting.

"It would be foolish to deny that the | to defend these things."

situation is fraught with the gravest possibilities and dangers. No thoughtful man can fail to-see that the necessity of definite action may come at any time, if we are in fact, and not in word, merely, ready to defend our elementary rights as a neutral nation. It would be most imprudent to be unpre-

"I cannot in such circumstances be unmindful of the fact that the expiration term of the present congress is immediately at hand by constitutional limitation, and that it would in all likelihood require an unusual SUCH ACT WOULD MEAN WAR length of time to assemble and organize the congress which is to succeed it.

ARMING MERCHANTMEN MAKES THEM SUBJECT TO ATTACK WITHOUT WARNING.

Killing of Americans on Laconia Termed Plain Violation of International Law.

Washington-The death of Mary E. Hoy and Elizabeth Hoy, of Chicago, in the sinking of the Laconia was deslared by the administration to be "a plain violation of international law." The cold formal report of Consul Frost at Queenstown described the two American women as "dead from exposure and bodies lost at sea."

The Laconia was described as another "Lusitania case," and administration officials made it plain that the "next step" to protect Aemrican rights at sea was now inevitable.

It was stated that before many days American vessels, armed fore and aft, with American gunners aboard, will be defying the German war zones.

There is not a single official of government who does not believe the moment that the president orders the American mail carrying liners which float the Stars and Stripes to resume their sailings-which will be to Liverpool-and orders them armed, that they will be subject to attack without warning by German submarines.

An assault upon such vessels will be accepted not as an "overt act" but as an act of war.

kept from her. The maid, hearing her moan, ran out of the house and summoned the doctor who was caring for her. He saw that her disease was the incurable one that mothers are often prey to, the loss of their children. There was no remedy for this in the doctor's books and the only help he could give was to answer her one remaining wish that her son's body should be brought home to be buried in the family plot where his father lay and where she hoped soon to rest.

The doctor telegraphed the mother's request to Freneau's partner, Frank Mulry, who took steps at once to comply.

Thus it was that Gloria was deprived even of the sad satisfaction of following her lover to the grave. Her chief enemies were those who loved her best, Stephen Royce and her own father. They would do everything Gloria clad in heavy mourning. For a they could to thwart her. When she learned of his mother's wishes her first impulse was to go to Colorado herself, but that impulse she quickly put aside; black herself. He felt also that her loyalty would not permit her to believe evil of the dead man who was now unable to defend himself. The whole situation was intolerable.

He went to Gloria's room, finding her as he had expected, brooding by the window. He took her in his arms and clasping her hands found they enfolded a picture of Freneau. Anger mastered him; he took the photograph from her, saying: "I wish you would the moment. She nodded her head in You are so very thoughtful. I must put that out of my sight and out of

He was old and heartbroken. He could not endure the sight of her in black. He was jealous of the dead man's hold on her heart. Pity moved her as fear could not. To comfort him she yielded. She drew the ring from her finger, dropping it into his outstretched palm. He clutched it with a sigh of relief

Gloria studied the blue gown for a moment, then snatched it from Burroughs, threw it on the floor in wrath and burst into tears.

The maid was at a loss. She pondered, then went again to the dressing room and brought forth another gown. "Here, Miss Gloria, dear, here's your little black tulle dress with the gold and black brocade bodice. Mr. Stafford won't mind that and you'll feel better in it, too."

Gloria patted Burroughs on the shoulder tenderly. "Yes, that will have to do," she murmured sorrowfully, and she let the maid dress her.

Then she went slowly down the stairway. Her father met her and

NEW DISEASE IS ANNOUNCED

Comes "Angina of Effort," a Pain.

The rush of modern life has produced a new disease, greatly increasing "That's it. Now'I shall have my in extent and especially prevalent own little beautiful girl to dine with among doctors, teachers, clergymen, lawyers and other men of affairs, observes the Philadelphia Bulletin. Dr. Oliver S. Haines, who announced the new ailment, calls it "angina of effort." In plain English that means a sudden shooting pain under your breastbone because you're working too hard. If, at the age of 50, you find yourself unable to walk a city block without a pain, you probably have "angina of effort." It comes from having lived too hard and sometimes from an "antagonistic attitude toward the problems of life." No happy-go-lucky ever gets it. Those who have been obsessed by love of power, love of struggle, or who harbor exaggerated ideas of their rights and privileges usually do. Everybody who gets "angina of effort" dies a sudden death, usually ascribed to gastritis, according to Dr. Haines. Deadly, corked up venom, brought on by mental conflict with the prevailing ideas, becomes a toxin, he says, which gives rise to a pain that radiates into every part of the body. Neuralsia, rheumatism and similar aches may be symptoms of it.

You can best be cured by slowing down, Dr. Haines thinks, and by modifying the war spirit which, he says, you carry into every day life. If you don't slow down, you're doomed.

For certain temperaments De Haines announced more specific remedies. The victim of "Old Man Copscience," who worries over unimportant details, and cannot sleep at night because of the passionate and harsh way he has treated his family during the day, ought to be given a potash preparation.

For the emotional idealist who dissolves readily into tears-"at the movies, for instance, or the theater," Dr. Haines said-treatment by oxalic acid is the cure. The prey of suicidal desires is about hopeless in Dr. Haines' estimation, but he recommends aurum
