Chautauqua Boosters.

The dates for the holding of the Lincoln Chautauqua, June 21-26, are fast approaching, and the Chautauqua Boosters' Club met at the Congregational church Tuesday evening and elected the following officers and committees:

President—Rev. P. W. Dierberger. Vice President—R. D. Walker. Secretary—John L. Fletcher. Treasurer—Paul Niehaus. Press Committee—Ford Axtel, L. T. Freeman and Wm. Bacon. Grounds Committee—John S. Cummings, W. K. Guerin and E. P. Steiner.

Entertainment Committee—Messdames Alice Roedel, E. B. Hammond and J. S. Cummings.

Active work will be started at once and the sale of season tickets will be pressed.

There is no doubt about the value to a community of a good chautauqua, and it deserves everybody's personal boost, because it is a good thing for Chelsea, and because it is worth any man's money.

The Lincoln Chautauqua gives six days of the finest entertainment, all of which tend for the uplift of the whole community.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Fred Morton has entered the third grade.

Ellen Constable, from Omaha, has entered the second grade.

Winifred Ward has left the first grade, to be gone several days.

Miss Livingstone will visit the schools in Battle Creek, Friday.

The children of the seventh and eighth grades of the rural schools are taking their examinations.

James Willis has resumed his lessons in the sixth grade after two months absence due to an injury received during spring vacation.

Miss Grace Walz has accepted a position in the junior high school at Ypsilanti, with a substantial increase in salary for the coming year.

The fourth graders are having a series of lessons which bring out the spirit of Mothers' Day, and are busy making little booklets for their mothers.

Claire Rowe journeyed to Kalamazoo last Saturday to represent Chelsea high school in the Kalamazoo College meet. Once more he must be credited with putting our school on the map as regards athletics.

Last year through his excellent work the Chelsea high school team won the Tri-County meet at Wayne. Saturday, he smashed all records in the pole vaults for the Kalamazoo track, tied another for us in the high jump, won third place in the broad jump and single handed put Chelsea high in the fifth place in the meet. Claire deserves much credit for his persistent efforts in track and field work and to him must be credited much of the interest shown in this field of athletics. Locomotive for Now! The medals that he received are on exhibition in the show window of H. H. Fenn Co.

Found Stolen Car.

Fay Dunning, of Lansing, last Saturday morning purchased a seven-passenger Reo touring car. In the evening he drove down town and stopped in front of a store which he entered and was inside about ten minutes. When he returned to the street his car had disappeared. The machine was recovered by officer Howard Brooks Sunday morning.

The party who took the machine had abandoned it in front of the home of G. Heiber on south Main street. Kari Bagge notified Mr. Brooks of the abandoned machine and the officer had it taken to Palmer's garage where it was discovered that the gasoline was nearly gone and one cylinder was out of order. The car had been driven 125 miles.

Officer Brooks notified the Chief of Police in Lansing of the whereabouts of the stolen car, and Mr. Dunning came here and returned home with his machine Sunday evening.

Making Some Profit.

The Michigan Agricultural College department of experimental chemistry rubs the gloss off a gold brick last week when it served notice upon three Michigan chemical companies that unless they bring the labelling of certain "anti-smut cures" within the law before May 19, they will be put out of business. The college experiment station discovered that the manufacturers have been selling at $2 a pint plain formaldehyde, which when pure costs but $1.50 a gallon. Farmers were being asked to pay the difference between $16 a gallon and $1.50 for a little coloring matter, tar, oil and an improved smell.

For years the college has been recommending the use of formaldehyde to control the smut of oats, wheat and barley. Capitalizing this remedy, the Anti-Smut Chemical Company, of North Adams, the Albion Chemical Works, producing Bub's so-called Smuticide, and the Dr. Lape Veterinary Company, of Adrian, makers of Dr. Lape's Smut Destroyer, put ordinary formaldehyde into bottles renamed it, put in a little dye and aroma, and raised the price to $2 a pint. In making the transformation, however, they forgot to print upon their labels, as the law requires, the fact that their "smut cures" are nothing more than the common old formaldehyde of yore.

Similar remedies are being marketed as agents for the control of potato blight and the college accordingly is cautioning farmers to be on their guard.

It might be added that while plant disease specialists have been recommending the use of pure 40 per cent formaldehyde, the solutions marketed by three companies hit by the college never contained more than 30 per cent, and cost times as much.

"We'll Charge a Fortune for a Tea Biscuit and Bankrupt Everybody That Comes," Said Gloria.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

By Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Novelized from the Motion Picture Play of the same name by George Kleine.

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, with his daughter Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. Becoming lost in the everglades she falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Frenau. Five years later she leaves school and meets Frenau at the theater; he has forgotten Gloria. Later Frenau persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous and Doctor Royce discovers in her an ally. Frenau takes leave of Gloria. She sees from her window an attack made upon him. Doctor Royce convinces her it is delirium. She accidentally sees the supposed suicide of Frenau reported in the paper. Gloria swears to find the murderer. Royce tells what he knows of Frenau to Mr. Stafford. Gloria insists on going to Palm Beach. She is recognized by her one-time captor, the young Indian chief. He tells her that Royce and not Frenau was her rescuer at that time. Gloria attends night court; she sees Mulry there, also taken before Judge Freeman. But Judge Freeman releases him. She follows the tramp when he leaves the court. She finds herself in a low saloon dance hall, and is selected by one of the patrons as his partner. Doctor Royce, however, follows her and when he attempts a rescue, calls down riot on their heads. The hall is raided and the crowd, including Gloria and Royce, is arrested and taken before Judge Freeman. Casimir arrives with the child Frenau promised to adopt. She orders Royce to take Casimir's wife to the Stafford home. She follows Trask and lands on a houseboat to hear him accused of Frenau's murder. She confronts him; he imprisons her, but she ties him up and escapes. By many stages she arrives at home. In the yacht, Gloria and the men pursue the barge. Trask fires on them as they near him. In the fight that follows Trask is badly wounded. He is taken to the Stafford home. Royce endeavors to return to Lois her letters to Frenau. During a playful scuffle Gloria sees and recognizes the envelope. She suspects Royce of complicity in the murder. Royce tells her all. She sees one of Lois' letters to Frenau. Judge Freeman confesses his part. When Lois is confronted she flees from Gloria intent on suicide.

NINETEENTH EPISODE

Her Vow Fulfilled

As Lois Stafford fled down the terraces of her father-in-law's majestic estate, her own life seemed to be symbolized in her desperate ambition to destroy herself. The flowers and the aromatic shrubs threw out their fragrance about her, but she would not pause. She was bent upon the tragedy waiting for her in the deep ravine toward which the express train was plunging as if in obedience to her summons.

The cries of Gloria, who pursued her frantically, came to her like the voice of conscience. She had never heeded that voice and she would not hearken to it now. She had trodden the primrose path of dalliance and it had led her forth into the glare of exposure. She would not endure the shame. It seemed better to her irresponsible soul to run away from self-denial. She had not cared what laws of fidelity she broke and she did not care now what hearts she might break. Her husband's tarnished honor, her father's blighted career, did not win a thought from her.

It was Gloria who thought of these things even as she followed. Gloria felt more guilt than Lois, for Gloria had confronted Lois with the proofs of her perfidy, never fancying that Lois would answer the charge by punishing herself with the same recklessness that had marked her sin. As she saw Lois running toward death with eagerness, she understood for the first time that it was in Lois' character to do everything passionately. She realized that Lois had always been Lois, and that her fault was, perhaps, beyond her own control. Lois was go hurtling down the steep bank to the railroad tracks.

They were still battling when the engine roared past. The trainman, leaning out of his window, stared up at them in amazement. They were still struggling when the last coach flashed past.

It was only then, when her weapon of suicide was gone from her reach, that Lois gave up the fight. She fell to the ground weeping. She was more afraid of facing life than death, and she sobbed with terror if not with remorse.

Gloria knelt by her, begging her not to cry. At last she offered the final bribe in her power. She drew the envelope of letters from the bosom of her gown and held it out to Lois, saying:

"I forgive you, dear. I have no right to judge you. I can't take that responsibility. Keep your life and your past and make what you will of them."

Lois rather saw the prize than heard the counsel and she snatched at the letters with the instinct of a child.

Gloria felt her heart harden again. She could not keep back a feeling of contempt for the selfish pettiness of Lois.

Gloria was afraid to speak lest she waste further rebukes on a soul that could not profit by any other chastisement than sacrifice and fear. So Gloria left her and climbed the terraces. She noted with relief that no one had seen the brief drama that might have started the whole nation. She was afraid that she had done everything she ought not to have done.

As she was entering the house to go to her room the boy Stas called her. He was tugging a picture book of foreign paintings. He knew nothing of any of them and he asked Gloria many questions she could not answer. One of the pictures represented Christ kneeling and writing on the ground. Near him lay a contrite woman in shame and tears. In the background a number of men were turning away shamefaced. The picture was labeled, "Neither Do I Condemn Thee, Go and Sin No More."

Now, Gloria felt that she was justified in laying aside her impulse to exact a penalty from Lois. She told Stas that the picture was beyond the understanding of a child, and that he was lucky to be a child. She wished that she had never grown up. Then she went to her room. Looking from her window, she could see the embankment where she had won a double victory over Lois and herself. Lois was tearing the bundle of letters to bits and scattering the pieces upon the railroad track, where she had nearly been torn to pieces herself.

Gloria felt that one riddle at least was solved. She felt sorry for David and his choice among women. Then she remembered the judge's accusation against David. According to that her brother was guilty of a more heinous crime than Lois. He had taken a life or, with even greater wickedness, had persuaded another man to commit murder for him. She could not rest till she had either cleared David of that suspicion or warned him that his secret was known.

The reason that the duel between Gloria and Lois had not been observed by anyone but the fleeting eyes of the fireman on the express engine was that the Stafford estate was a little world in itself.

David had been conferring with his business associates by telephone. Pierpont had been inspecting the prize cattle with which he jealously expected to confound his rival neighbors at the next county fair. Stas had been looking at the big picture books on the huge table in the great living room. His father, Casimir, had been working among the rose bushes with the head gardener. Judge Freeman had been involved in one more conspiracy, which he firmly hoped would be the last.

It was Casimir who first interrupted Gloria in her search for David. Casimir had hardly believed that there were as many roses in all the world as there in the Stafford close. He could see his wife lying in a reclining chair in a sunny nook and it occurred to him that one of those roses would cheer her and serve as a bit of gallantry. So he plucked one. The gardener saw the deed, charged on him with a roar, and snatched the flower from him. The deep thorn bite he received in his thumb did not pacify him. He stood sucking his thumb and swearing when Pierpont strolled by.

Pierpont had lost his temper at the dairy because the head valet to the cows had not brushed their teeth to his satisfaction nor manured their hoofs to perfection. When the gardener explained that Casimir had dared to pluck one of the famous and priceless Pierpont roses which had never failed of honorable mention at the annual exhibition of the Garden Club, Pierpont was more wrath than the head gardener.

Casimir quailed before the onslaught, and Gloria, drawn to the spot by the noisy voices, found him craven with confusion. She took his part at once, and when the gardener and her father explained the atrocity he had committed Gloria also turned on him: "In heaven's name, Casimir, what did you mean by taking the only rose my poor father has?"

"I did take it," Mees Gloria, for to geeve my poor wife. Better I should go away now, yes?"

"You took a rose to give to your wife, did you?" Gloria cried. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"I am it! Oh, I am it," Casimir protested.

"I should think you would be," Gloria stormed. "Taking one rose for your poor wife. The next time you want flowers for her you take as many as you can carry."

While her father and the gardener and Casimir gaped like dolls, she snipped off a dozen of the Pierpont roses with the gardener's own shears. She laid them in Casimir's arms and said: "Maybe she won't care for the Pierpont roses. I don't think much of them, myself. So take her some of each of these varieties, and find which she likes best. Then if the gardener bothers you again, tell me and I'll snip his head off the same way and you can have his place."

She gave the gardener his shears, pushed Casimir out of the inclosure, and followed, turning to say: "Thank you, father."

Pierpont and the gardener looked at each other and both said, "Whew!"

Gloria went along to make sure that Casimir's wife received the flowers with no hint of their hazardous gathering. Then she went to the house to find David.

She was encountered by her aunt, the great Hortensia, with a bevy of other great ladies from the countryside.

"Give us tea, Gloria, for heaven's sake," said Hortensia, "and come listen to our scheme."

They dragged Gloria to the Japanese tea garden, whither the servants brought tea and all its accompaniments across the lawn. Aunt Hortensia gathered in Doctor Royce as well.

Aunt Hortensia explained that it was about time to "get up something." Each of the ladies had her pet charity which needed funds and everyone talked at the same time. Gloria's mind was too full of her own problems to feel much interest. She beckoned to Casimir and sent him with tea and cakes for his wife. When he came back with the china she piled up a little midafternoon banquet for himself.

He took it shyly, then stared at it, and shook his head and offered it back. Gloria asked why. He hesitated, then exclaimed: "In my Poland millions of my peoples are dying because they have not of bread. And should I to eat of cake? No, I could not, please!"

Gloria respected his feelings too much to force him to eat, but she turned to the committee and, claiming the floor, asked the house to listen to a delegate from Europe. She made Casimir speak. He was tongue-tied at first with embarrassment, but he warmed to his theme and told of the miseries of his beloved land, over which vast armies had fought back and forth again and again till the wealthy and noble were living in cellars and eating husks and the poor were dying in herds.

When he had finished every eye was wet and every heart aflutter for Poland. When Gloria proposed a mammoth lawn festival for Polish relief there was unanimous assent.

"We'll charge a fortune for a tea biscuit and bankrupt everybody that comes," said Gloria. "Then I'll take the money over to Poland myself to make sure that it falls into the right hands."

"And I'll go along with you," Doctor Royce spoke up, "to make sure that you don't fall into the wrong hands."

Everyone applauded the impudence, but Gloria answered it with one of her blackest looks. Doctor Royce was still under the baff. He had confessed too much and duped her too well to be forgiven in haste. But her rebuke was ignored in the excitement of the convention. A mammoth lawn festival for Polish relief; there was no dissent.

Now once more Gloria felt free to seek David. She found him, hiding, he said, till the women got away. She asked him to follow her. She had perfected her scheme for testing his innocence or his guilt.

David had not been present when the yacht expedition set forth to run down Trask, nor had he been present when Trask was brought in. David was thoroughbred enough to rule his own expressions and to pretend ignorance of Trask's existence. But Gloria felt sure that if she could bring the two men suddenly face to face one of the other would betray a guilty knowledge.

So she said to David: "Come with me. I've got a surprise for you."

David followed her up to the guest room where Trask had been installed. She led him to the door, knocked, opened the door, and bade David enter. A screen stood before the bed and she drew it aside quickly, keeping her eyes on David. She saw surprise in his face, but not of the sort she expected. His surprise was blank wonder. She turned to see how Trask took the confrontation. Trask was not there. The bed was empty.

Gloria ran to find the nurse. She met her just coming in from a motor ride. She had taken her two hours of liberty, she said, leaving Nell to care for her father. She was stunned by the news of Trask's departure. He was too weak to rise and walk. It seemed impossible that he could have been carried out without attracting the attention of a dozen servants.

"And I'll Go Along With You," Said Doctor Royce.

Gloria felt bewitched. She ran to seek Doctor Royce. David ran after her, asking: "What's it all about? What's the little surprise you had for me? It seems to have caught you first."

"Don't bother me," was all Gloria would say.

David seemed so amused by her dismay that she began to suspect him of kidnapping his confederate. But she dared not accuse him lest, if he were innocent, she would reveal to him more of Lois' guilt than she felt it her right to divulge.

She stood off David and hurried on to find Doctor Royce. She met Judge Freeman on the lawn, and told him what had happened. He expressed surprise, but when she had left him she began to feel dissatisfied with the sincerity of his amazement. But she could not pause to investigate further. When at last she found Royce, she forgot that he was in her black book still. It had been her habit for so many years to run to him with her problems that she ran to him now, and, laying her hands on his arm, cried:

"Oh, Stephen, Stephen, they've stolen Trask! I've lost him again and I don't know what to do."

"Stolen Trask!" Royce exclaimed. "It's impossible."

"Of course, it's impossible," said Gloria, "but it's true, too." Royce set out to pick up what trace there might be of him. Gloria tagged along. Royce asked every servant he met where he had been. Several of them had been on the lawn serving tea. Judge Freeman had sent others on various errands. The cook and her crew had been busy providing for Aunt Hortensia's mob. Royce called for his own chauffeur. He had been in the kitchen, he confessed, as a guest at a tea party below stairs.

Judge Freeman was not to be found. As a matter of fact he was the principal offender. After he left Gloria he had wandered about in a deep and gloomy meditation. He was convinced that Gloria, with her impulsive and unmanageable temper, was set upon unraveling every knot in the tangle. He was sure that her inexperience with the world would keep her from foreseeing the consequences and that she would compel a complete revelation. This would end only in a public scandal, an enormous and irretrievable disaster.

David would be put on trial for his life and Trask would turn state's evidence against him to save his own life. David would perhaps be sentenced to death, or, if he escaped that, he would escape it in some pretense of insanity, with all the aftermath of endless serial scandals. In any case, Lois would be disgraced before the world, and if David's wealth could bribe an acquittal, it would purchase a divorce.

Another consequence would be that the judge himself would be impeached or forced to a resignation under fire, with his ermine dishonored. It is only fair to say that the judge's fears for his own suffering had less weight with him than his fears for the wreck of his daughter's life and of David's. He loved David as if he were his own son. He had a deep affection for Pierpont, and he cherished a great fondness for Gloria. He respected even the motives that were so perilous to herself as well as all the others.

He wandered disconsolately about the lonelier portions of the Stafford demesne and found himself at the outer gate. There he chanced to see the bargeman, Jed, come up the road. Jed asked if he knew where the Stafford place was. Judge Freeman told him that it was before him. Jed asked if a badly hurt man had been taken in there with his daughter. The judge nodded and asked what he knew of the pair.

Jed said he didn't know much except that the old man's daughter was his girl and going to marry him some day and he was afraid she was in trouble. So he had left the barge to hurry back and see if he could be of some use.

The judge questioned him cautiously and finally proposed that the best thing to do would be to get the old man out of the hands of the Staffords, who meant him no good. Jed seized on the suggestion hungrily and the judge offered his co-operation. He led Jed by a little frequented path to the rear of the house and bade him wait. He went in and sent Nell out to speak to her, asking: "What's it all about? What's the little surprise you had for me? It seems to have caught you first."

"Don't bother me," was all Gloria would say.

While Nell was talking with Jed Judge Freeman was ordering his own chauffeur to bring the car up to a corner of the driveway shielded from the house by a clump of ancient rhododendrons as large as trees. Then the judge, surprised at his own craftiness and bringing into play all the lore he had acquired from hearing thieves' confessions, set about the burglarious art of clearing the house. Most of the servants had been impressed into the serving of wholesale tea at Aunt Hortensia's convention. The rest Judge Freeman sent on various errands with messages to distant laborers on the grounds.

When the coast, or at least the stairway, was clear, he called in his chauffeur and Jed. They hurried up to Trask's room and, lifting him in his sheets, hurried out into the hall and down the stairs with him. The old man suffered agonies from the jolts and jars, but he smothered his groans somewhat. The judge went ahead as a scout and warned off one maid who ran in for Aunt Hortensia's parasol and a man who hurried back for a social register of the county to be used in making up a committee list.

Thus Trask was, as the saying is, spirited away without being seen by anyone except his abductors. The chauffeur ran his car from the grounds by the tradesmen's entrance and Judge Freeman, lingering, saw the cloud of dust the machine raised as it dashed north. He remained to keep watch and to do what he could to turn pursuit in the wrong direction.

He felt disquieted by the pallor of Trask and by his extreme exhaustion. He was afraid that the old man would not last long. He hated himself for the thought, but he could not dismiss the belief that it would solve all problems if the wretch would pass away in silence. If he spoke he might condemn himself to death in the chair and take David with him.

Judge Freeman abhorred his own deed and regretted that he could not punish himself publicly as severely as he would have punished another judge who violated his honor so. But he had been a father before he became a judge, and the parental instinct overruled the legal obligation. He understood as never before the almost irresistible impulses that compel men toward criminal acts, and he wondered which it were better to do, resign his post as judge of other men or remain on the bench and administer mercy more freely than he had been wont to do.

Meanwhile he smiled, though dimly, to think that his old head had outwitted the young wits of Gloria. He saw how disturbed she was by the escape of her captive, but he felt no more remorse than one feels who takes a sharp knife away from a child lest it wound itself as well as others.

Gloria was frantic. She was still surrounded by hostile friends who thwarted every effort she made to learn the truths that were all important to her peace of heart.

Government Issues Warning Against Fly Poisons

Following is an extract from "The Transmission of Disease by Flies," Supplement No. 29 to the Public Health Reports, April, 1916.

"Of other fly poisons mentioned, mention should be made, merely for a purpose of condemnation, of those composed of arsenic. Fatal cases of poisoning of children through the use of such compounds are far too frequent, and owing to the resemblance of arsenical poisoning to summer diarrhea and cholera infantum, it is believed that the cases reported do not, by any means, comprise the total. Arsenical fly-destruying devices must be rated as extremely dangerous, and should never be used, even if other measures are not at hand."

106 fly poisoning cases have been reported by the press within the last three years. As stated above this number is but a fraction of the real number. Protect your children by using the safe, efficient, non-poisonous fly catcher.

WAR ON INSECT PERIL NEXT

Extermination of Winged and Creeping Enemies of Mankind Held to Be of Vital Importance.

A writer in an English journal has suggested that the next great war will be between man and the insect world. This war would be waged not only on insects that actually attack man himself, but also on all those winged or creeping things that are his enemies in less direct ways—those species that, to use the writer's phrase, "exist at the expense of human progress and happiness."

We all shudder with horror at the thought of a scorpion or of a centipede, although few of us ever see one of them, but we do not shudder enough at the thought of the millions of untold disgusting things that are putting up with all the time. Perhaps it is unfortunate for us that many of these harmful, and even death-dealing, insects are very small. If they were as large as they are bad we should soon rid ourselves of them. When we see the housefly or the mosquito hugely magnified we realize at once that, compared with them structurally, the tiger is a charming and beautiful thing; but we go away and forget the magnified picture and submit to the original of it.

The death toll that vermin have caused in the present war so enforced its lesson that the world has roused itself to clean things up. The knowledge that certain insects were disgusting and unclean did not seem to be sufficient reason for action, but the knowledge that these same insects are quite as dangerous as so many bullets is a strong argument.—Youth's Companion.

NOTABLES ON PRISON LIST

Caesar, Richard Wagner, Bryan, Cleveland and Washington appear on Registry at Leavenworth.

Did Julius Caesar conceive the plan under which he later ruled Rome while serving a prison sentence at Leavenworth? Did the famous prize fighters, John L. Sullivan and Jack Johnson, prepare for the battles which won them the championship of the world while sojourning within these walls? Did Richard Wagner, the celebrated musician and composer of "Parsifal," and other great operas, find the inspirations for their masterpieces in Uncle Sam's largest prison?

Students of history may not find it recorded so. Neither do their names appear on the visitors' register of this institution, but rather on the prisoners' record of those who have been confined here, says a writer in the New Era, published at the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth. Among the names appear many former presidents, orators, generals and musicians of note, besides that of the Roman emperor. Whether these names represent merely that many aliases of persons desirous of keeping their real identity secret, or whether the namesakes of these famous men told the truth when first registered into the institutional records, is not known, but the following entries of notable names are recorded here:

Canadian Farmers Profit From Wheat

The war's devastation of European crops has caused an unusual demand for grain from the American Continent. The people of the world must be fed and wheat near $2 a bushel offers great profits to the farmer. Canada's invitation is therefore especially attractive. She wants settlers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves by helping her raise immense wheat crops.

Wonderful crops also of oats, barley and flax. Mixed farming as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition are the only food required for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools, churches, markets convenient for farm labor to replace the men who have volunteered for the war. The Government is urging farmers to put extra acreage into grain. The KITCHEN CABINET

The power of evil habit is deceptive and fascinating, and the man by coming to false conclusions argues his way down to destruction.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Eggs are again becoming more plentiful, so that we need not feel extravagant to serve them occasionally in place of meat.

Cheese Eggs.—Take three-fourths of a cupful of grated American cheese, six eggs, a tablespoonful of butter, a few grains of paprika, a teaspoonful of salt, a fourth of a cupful of crumbs and milk or cream to moisten. Butter a baking dish or individual ramekins; spread half of the cheese in the bottom and slip in six eggs, being careful not to break the yolks; dust with salt and pepper, add the remaining cheese and crumbs well buttered, then barely cover with cream. Set in a pan of hot water and bake slowly until the eggs are set and the top is brown.

Chicken Croquettes.—Take two cupfuls of chopped cold chicken, a half cupful of chopped English walnut meats, a fourth of a teaspoonful each of salt and celery salt, a few grains of cayenne, a few grains of nutmeg, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, a few drops of onion juice, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, and a cupful of thick white sauce. Mix the ingredients in the order given and mold in cork-shaped croquettes, using a tablespoonful of the mixture for each croquette. Roll in crumbs, dip in egg white diluted with a tablespoonful of water, then roll in crumbs. Fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper. Serve with white sauce or mushroom sauce.

Duck à la Casserole.—Clean, pluck and cut up a five-pound duck, roll each piece in seasoned flour and brown in beef drippings. Pack into a large casserole in layers, alternating a mixture of half a can of peas and a cupful of mushrooms mixed; cover with a quart of well-seasoned soup stock, a half teaspoonful of onion juice and a teaspoonful of powdered mint. Bake slowly for three hours in a moderately hot oven.

Queen Victoria's Favorite Soup.—Heat a cupful of minced roast chicken in a pint of chicken broth, well-seasoned; add a cupful of cream and thicken with three hard-cooked eggs yolks sifted fine.

A dish of asparagus in alternate layers with grated cheese and white sauce, then finished with buttered crumbs, makes a most nourishing and palatable dish. If cheese is not desired hard-cooked eggs may be substituted. If a cupful of cooked asparagus is left from a meal, add it to the scrambled eggs for luncheon. This will add variety and make the dish more tasty.

Without virtue and without integrity the finest talents and the most brilliant accomplishments can never gain the respect and confidence of the esteem of the truly valuable part of mankind.—George Washington.

A FEW COMPANY DISHES.

When company comes or is planned for, we are happy to make extra effort to have something that will be both pleasing to the eye as well as to the palate.

California Salad.—Take half a cupful of sliced ripe olives, four hard-cooked eggs finely chopped, a half cupful of broken walnut meats, two pimentos, all mixed together just before serving. Add any desired salad dressing and serve on lettuce.

Caramel Pudding.—Caramelize three-fourths of a cupful of sugar and dissolve by adding a cupful of boiling water, add a cupful and a quarter of sugar, 1 1/4 tablespoonfuls of gelatin softened in cold water, add another cupful of water and mix all the ingredients together until dissolved, pour it boiling hot over four egg whites beaten stiff and mold. Serve with a boiled custard.

Brown Almond Sauce.—Blanch and chop a fourth of a pound of almonds, brown in two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and salt and pepper to taste, then add a pint of thin cream, pouring it in slowly. Cook until thick, and serve with an omelet.

Yum Yum Sandwiches.—One cream cheese mixed and blended with two cupfuls of minced ham; add the leaves from a bunch of watercress, and when well blended spread on buttered yeast bread.

Grape Punch.—Combine the juice of three lemons, one orange and a pint of grape juice, add a cupful of sugar and a cupful of shredded pineapple. Let stand several hours, adding a quart of water and ice as needed when serving.

Amber Marmalade.—Cut in thin slices a well-washed lemon, grapefruit and orange, remove the seeds and cover overnight with twelve cupfuls of water. The next day cook the fruit until tender, then set away again overnight; the next day add ten cupfuls of sugar and cook until it is thick. Put in glasses and seal when cold. This is a most delicious preserve to serve with toast and tea.

Miss Gertrude Whitney painted a little. She composed a poem now and then. She wrote a story now and then for the magazines.

She read a good many books. That was the sum and substance of what Miss Gertrude Whitney did, and there were good reasons why she didn't do more or less. She was all alone in the world. She had an apartment in the city and a maid. She had just enough of an income to maintain her comfortably.

She attended the theater now and then, made brief trips here and there, did her shopping like any other young woman, and sat on a park bench with her book. Scores and scores of times men had come that way and seeing her alone on the long bench had halted and were about to sit down when a look restrained them.

It was inevitable that a morning would come, however, and come it did. Miss Gertrude sat at one end of her favorite bench with a morning paper in her hand when a young man of about twenty-five came along and took the other end, and also opened a newspaper. He didn't bow and he didn't ask her permission.

It seemed to Miss Gertrude that she had been snubbed, ignored and contemptuously treated, and she hoped the newcomer would try to open a conversation with her so that she might snub him. But he didn't try it. On the contrary, he turned partly away from her, sat very still and read very intently. She sat there for ten minutes. When she got up to go she expected he would look up, but he didn't. On the contrary, he seemed to look down.

The next two mornings were lowly, and Miss Gertrude did not go to the park. It was better weather on the third morning, and as she left home she hoped that the young man had spent the two days prowling through the park in hopes to find her. As she entered the grounds she walked and walked and walked, until she was a mile away from where she had last sat. She hadn't been seated five minutes when a loaferish-looking fellow came along and plumped down and said:

"They say that squirrels are mighty good eatin', but I never had a chance to try 'em."

No reply.
"I've eat rabbits, and they are purty good."

No reply.
"Is that air book you're readin' about Buffalo Bill?"
"Sir!" demanded the girl.
"Oh, come on—let's go to a matinee this air."

ALL BY CHANCE

By ALONZO THOMAS.

Miss Gertrude Whitney painted a little. She composed a poem now and then. She wrote a story now and then for the magazines.

She read a good many books. That was the sum and substance of what Miss Gertrude Whitney did, and there were good reasons why she didn't do more or less. She was all alone in the world. She had an apartment in the city and a maid. She had just enough of an income to maintain her comfortably.

Miss Gertrude sat at one end of her favorite bench with a morning paper in her hand when a young man of about twenty-five came along and took the other end, and also opened a newspaper. He didn't bow and he didn't ask her permission.

It seemed to Miss Gertrude that she had been snubbed, ignored and contemptuously treated, and she hoped the newcomer would try to open a conversation with her so that she might snub him. But he didn't try it. On the contrary, he turned partly away from her, sat very still and read very intently. She sat there for ten minutes. When she got up to go she expected he would look up, but he didn't. On the contrary, he seemed to look down.

The next two mornings were lowly, and Miss Gertrude did not go to the park. It was better weather on the third morning, and as she left home she hoped that the young man had spent the two days prowling through the park in hopes to find her. As she entered the grounds she walked and walked and walked, until she was a mile away from where she had last sat. No reply.
"Is that air book you're readin' about Buffalo Bill?"
"Sir!" demanded the girl.
"Oh, come on—let's go to a matinee this air."

Miss Gertrude rose up to look for a policeman, but sat down again almost instantly. A hundred feet away, and headed for her bench was the young man and his newspaper. His eyes were on the loafer, but he did not increase his pace any nor did he make any preparations. He arrived at the bench in due time and reached for the loafer's neck and lifted him to his feet. Then he got a body hold and flung him into the shrubbery as if he had been a doll. He stood for a moment to watch the loafer sink off, and then sat down on the other end of the bench and began to read.

There was a human being sitting within a few feet of him, but he seemed oblivious of the fact.

What should she do—walk away again in a huff or return thanks to him of the strong arm? She did not know that she had decided yet when she found herself saying:

"Sir, if you could see a loafer it seems that you ought to be able to see a young lady at the same distance."

"It does look that way," he smilingly replied as he laid aside his paper. "I hope the fellow wasn't too rude."

"He deserved what you gave him. Why did you hunt me down this morning?"

"Please don't use that term. Our meetings have been by chance."

"But I changed to this place, and here you are again!"

"Chance, chance. I met that loafer many rods from here and I thought he looked impudent. I should have taken another path but for following him. Have I won or lost my case?"

"You have stated it pretty fairly, I guess, but what I can't understand is—"

"Is why I didn't take advantage of some of the incidents to address you? he finished for her, as a furtive glance at her showed that she was blushing and probably mad at herself for saying as much as she had said.

She was looking off into the bushes as he continued.

"It was because I fell in love with you at first sight."

Miss Gertrude rose and hurried away, and it cost Mr. Fred Fayram, civil engineer and a mighty nice young man, a full three months to find her again and secure her forgiveness. And the three months became fifteen before she was Mrs. Fayram.

DAIRY THE DAIRY

HAY SUPPLY FOR DAIRY COWS

Roughages Are Relatively Cheaper Than Grain, but Should Not Be Fed Exclusively.

"Because of the large hay crop and the small demand for it now, roughages should be fed to the limit of the dairy cow's capacity, says Prof. C. C. Hayden of the Ohio experiment station. "Relatively, the roughages, like hay and corn stover, are much cheaper than grain, and hay is of unusually good quality. Roughage, of course, should not be fed exclusively, as such feeding might lead to compaction and death, even in dry cows and heifers. Some grain is needed in every dairy ration."

This dairy specialist also declares "Choice alfalfa hay at $20 a ton is cheaper than bran at $30. Our experiments show that soy bean hay is in the same class as alfalfa, and clover is third. With corn at $1 a bushel, clover hay should be worth about $20 a ton, or $5 more than it is now quoted."

Timothy hay is recommended for milking cows only in small quantities, to replace such grasses as corn and hominy. Leguminous roughages have proved far superior in numerous experiments to timothy for cows in milk.

RECORDS OF BIG ASSISTANCE

Help Breeder Answer Questions From Prospective Buyer of Herd Sire—Write for Details.

The present sharp competition in the dairy business and the increased price of feed force the successful dairyman to secure the greatest return possible from his outlay. If he has registered cows he expects more for his progeny than if he had only grades. But to obtain more and enough more to pay to keep purebred stock, L. W. Wing, Jr. of the Missouri college of agriculture, reminds the dairymen that he must be able to answer the following questions from the prospective buyer of a herd sire. Is the sire registered? What is the record of his dam? How many advance registry daughters and proved sons has his sire? And what are the records of his granddams and grandfathers? If the breeder is selling a registered cow he must answer: What is her record; the record of her dams and granddams and the ability of her sire and grandfathers to produce advance registry daughters and proved sons.

To answer these questions and meet the demands of buyer the breeder of purebred dairy cattle must do official testing. This testing is under the supervision of the various state colleges of agriculture. Breeders ready to take up this work or wishing further information, should write to the dairy department of the college of agriculture of their respective states.

CORK-BRICK BARN FLOORING

Non-Absorbent and Adapted to Needs of Farm Animals—Laid in Cement Over Concrete Base.

The search for a warm, non-absorbent flooring suited to the needs of horses, cows, hogs and sheep has led to the adoption of cork brick. The brick, as described in Popular Science Monthly, consists of finely granulated cork and refined asphalt, heated and thoroughly mixed, and then molded under pressure into bricks nine by four by two inches. The flooring is laid in cement mortar over a sub-base of concrete and crushed stones or ashes.

Is Your Back Stiff, Lame and Achy?

Do Weak Kidneys Keep You Sick, Tired and All Worn Out?

IF YOU have a constant, dull ache, or sharp pains whenever you bend or twist your back, and the kidney secretions seem disordered, too, don't waste time plastering or rubbing the bad back. It's likely that the cause is kidney weakness, and delay in treating the kidneys may invite uric acid poisoning, gravel, dropsy or fatal Bright's disease.

DOAN'S MADE HIM WELL. IN GOOD HEALTH NOW.

Ambrose Hatfield, Brook St., Eaton Rapids, Mich., says: "When I was twenty-five years old, I began to suffer from rheumatic pains and as I grew older, the trouble got worse. I became weak, nervous and discouraged and didn't know what to do, as the best doctors were unable to help me. My kidneys were badly affected and the secretions burned terribly in passage. The pains were mostly in my limbs and shoulders and often I had to be helped around. I had awful dizzy spells, too. Finally, I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they made me well, after everything else had failed."

Mrs. Lester Brown, 418 Alice St., Flint, Mich., says: "I was helpless with kidney trouble and unable to walk without taking hold of something. For weeks I couldn't stand and my back ached terribly. Splitting headaches came on and dizzy spells, too. I was getting worse and as the doctor's medicine didn't help me, I gave up hope. A friend urged me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did. Gradually the ailments left me until I was cured. Since then I have been in good health."

Luminous Radium Paint. A luminous compound containing radium has been developed by an American manufacturer for use in locating electric-light switches in the dark, marking watch dials, etc. In powder form the compound is of about the same fineness as ordinary talcum powder, and is nearly as white, says Electrical Merchandising. This powder may be mixed with adhesives or varnishes and used as a paint. The compound is also furnished in flexible sheets which can be cut and shaped as desired, and can be applied to uneven or broken surfaces. This form can be used in making self-contained brass-backed buttons to glue on electric switches already installed and for manufacturers to fit into the hard rubber portions of new switch buttons. The enamel is said to be waterproof and immune to damage from vibration, and may be applied to watch dials and indicating devices of all sorts.

Ordinance No. 54.

An Ordinance granting permission to the Consumers Power Company, a corporation, of the City of Jackson, Michigan, to set poles and maintain wires for transmission of power along certain streets of the Village of Chelsea.

THE VILLAGE OF CHELSEA ORDAINS:—
Section 1.—That consent and permission are hereby granted to the Consumers Power Company, to set poles, and thereon to string wires for the transmission of electricity beginning at the transformer, on the property of The Lewis Spring and Axle Company, on the east side of north Main street, in the Village of Chelsea, and running thence west across said north Main street to North street, thence west along North street to Hayes street; thence south along Hayes street to a point opposite the land of the Chelsea Steel Ball Company; thence west across Hayes street to the land of Chelsea Steel Ball Company's land.

Section 2.—In constructing and repairing said line along streets aforesaid all poles or apparatus that may interfere with the rights of others or the public use of said streets by the Village, shall be set in such places as the Common Council shall designate and the said council reserves the right to order said Company to change the location of any of its poles or wires along said streets whenever it shall deem it proper to do so, and the said Consumers Power Company upon the receipt of such orders shall make change required within a reasonable length of time.

Section 3.—In constructing said line said Company shall not unreasonably obstruct any of said streets and shall hold and save said Village harmless from damages resulting from the use of said streets for the transmission of power.

Section 4.—This Ordinance shall take effect and be in full force from and after its publication.

Approved, May 2, 1917.
C. LEHMAN,
President of Village of Chelsea.
W. R. DANIELS, Village Clerk.

OPERATION OF NEW DRAFT LAW

Official Instructions Concerning
the Raising of Military Forces Determined On.

POLLING PLACES TO BE USED

All Persons Within the Age Limits Prescribed by the Law Must Present Themselves There—Governors of States at Head of Registration Work.

Washington.—With the object of stimulating publicity to the work of raising the military forces called for under the army draft law the war department has issued the following instructions, which will govern the work:

There was a time in the country's history when military enumerators, backed by bayonets, went out among the people
to take a compulsory service
census. Today, under the principle of universal liability to service, the execution of the law is put into the hands of the people.

The approval of the new national army bill and the president's proclamation thereunder have been coincident.
All persons within the age limits prescribed are required to present themselves for registration at the customary voting places in the voting precincts
in which they have their permanent homes, on a day which the president will announce.

The governor of each state is the chief of registration therein. The machinery of registration in each county
is in charge of the sheriff, the county clerk, and the county physician, according to office, unless a different arrangement is made by the governor. In cities containing populations of more than 30,000, the registration will be under the control of the mayor and selected boards of registration. In order that the designated county and city officials, and the people generally, can get a clear understanding of the census methods the following brief outline is given:

The sheriffs, or other designated officials, immediately upon receiving notice from the governor, shall appoint registrars for each voting precinct.

Apportionment of Registrars.
The proportion of registrars shall be one for each 170 persons to be registered. Each age to be registered will comprise about 1 per cent of the population.

If, for instance, all men between nineteen and twenty-five years of age,
inclusive, are to be registered, the registrar would have to enroll about 7
per cent of the precinct population.

It is desirable to accept the services of competent volunteer registrars to serve without compensation. All registrars must be sworn.

The voting place in each precinct must be prepared for registration. Full printed instructions covering every detail of registration will be in the hands
of sheriffs and mayors on the fifth day
after the president's proclamation.

Cities of Over 30,000 Population.
The mayor of a city containing more than 30,000 inhabitants, or the officials
designated by the governor therein,
shall, with approval of the governor,
appoint for each ward or convenient
minor subdivision containing about 30, 000 people one registration board, and shall designate one officer of each board to perform duties similar to those imposed on the sheriff, as heretofore outlined. If the mayor desires,
he may appoint a central board to coordinate the work of minor boards.

Duties of County Clerks, and of Clerks of Cities of Over 30,000
People.
On the fifth day after the president has issued his proclamation, clerks of counties and cities of over 30,000 must secure a supply of blanks and copies of the registration regulations from the sheriff or from the mayor. Absentees and the sick will apply to such clerks to have their registration cards filled out. In no case shall such persons be given registration certificates.
They are to be instructed by the clerk
that the burden is on them to see to it that the cards reach the registrars of their home precincts by registration day.

Absentees and the Sick.
Persons absent from their home counties may be registered by mail. If so absent, a man should go to the clerk of the county where he may be staying,
on the sixth day after the date of the president's proclamation. If he is in a city of over 30,000 population, the city
clerk is the official to whom to apply.
The absentee will be told how to register, but he must mail his card in time to reach his precinct by registration day.

Persons too sick to present themselves for registration must send a competent person to the county or city clerk on the sixth day after the issuing of the proclamation. The clerk will give instructions for registration.
Colleges, Universities, Homes and Other Institutions.

Officials of educational, charitable and other institutions should apply for instructions to the county or city clerk
on the sixth day after the date of the

proclamation for instructions as to a convenient method of registration.
The wardens of jails, penitentiaries,
and reformatories should apply to the county or city clerk for instructions on the sixth day.

Five days after the date of the president's proclamation complete regulations will be in the hands of all sheriffs and of the officials of cities of over 30,000 population.

The president is authorized to call upon all public officers to assist in the execution of the law. The plan is,
however, to rely on the people for the proper execution of the law. It is expected that patriotic citizens will offer their services free as registrars. Such services will be gratefully acknowledged. Volunteers for this service should communicate immediately with the proper official.

BANKS ASKED TO CO-OPERATE

Secretary Authorizes Financial Institutions to Receive Subscriptions
for the Bond Offerings.

Washington.—Secretary McAdoo telegraphed the entire list of 27,513 national and state banks and trust companies
in the United States, authorizing them
to receive subscriptions for the $2,000, 000,000 bond offering, enlisting them to co-operation, and requesting them to telegraph a rough estimate of the amount of bonds each would take for itself and its patrons.

"You can render an invaluable service to your country," Mr. McAdoo told the banks, "by receiving subscriptions and co-operating with the federal reserve bank in your district."

Loan Subscriptions Pour In.
To all clearing house associations in the country Mr. McAdoo sent a telegram in which he said:

"The amount of the initial loan has been determined by the needs of the government and not arbitrarily. The enthusiasm and patriotic co-operation of the banks and bankers of the country will guarantee the success of the undertaking."

The result of the first announcement of the loan has been a deluge of subscriptions, aggregating many millions.
Most of these came in by wire to the treasury. Virtually every large city and every state in the Union was represented.

Lend $100,000,000 to Italy.

Negotiations continued today with representatives of the nations to which the United States is extending credit. Count di Cellere, the Italian ambassador, received the full amount of the first $100,000,000 loan made by this government to Italy.

Subscriptions to the second offering of treasury certificates were received during the day by the federal reserve
banks. Indications are that the secretary will call for the proceeds within a week, possibly a few days.

The $100,000,000 loan to France will be turned over to Ambassador Jusserand, in whole or part, within a day or so.

MAY CENTER IN WASHINGTON

Probability That One Committee Will Purchase All Supplies Needed by the Allied Countries.

Washington.—Creation of a central purchasing committee in Washington for all supplies bought in the United States for the allied governments was forecast here by Sir Hardman Lever,
financial expert of the British war
mission. The committee will supplant
J. P. Morgan & Co.

Discussing the world financial situation, the British expert expressed the opinion that Germany will be practically bankrupt in the credit markets
after the war.

"Our enemies," he said, "for all their boasted efficiency, have never had the courage to face their financial problems, with the result that when the war is over they will be hard put to it."

The Teutonic governments having pyramided one internal loan upon another, he explained, their interest charges would be so great that he believed they would either have to repu-
diate a large part of their debt or face
inability to buy the enormous quantities of material they would need for reconstruction.

The allies, he added, had paid their way in the war "by the straightforward and natural means, by pouring out their gold, by selling enormous masses of American securities, by raising loans." As a result, he predicted that the end of the war would find the allies in good shape financially, despite their enormous permanent debts.

Agree on Paying Men in Training.

Washington.—Conferees on the army
bill agreed on a provision to pay $100
a month to men in training camps
seeking to qualify as members of the officers' reserve corps.

Although the full allotted quota of 40,000 men probably will be enrolled in the officers' training camps when they open May 15, there still is "plenty of room for men of the right qualities,"
the war department announced.

In a statement saying that each of the sixteen camps seemed assured of its full allotment of 2,500 applicants for commissions, the department appealed for further recruits among men of proved ability.

Chicago to Furnish Chasers.

Chicago.—This city is now mobilizing its naval resources. Acting under orders from the navy department, Capt. W. A. Moffett, commandant of the Great Lakes naval training station,
began rounding up hundreds of small power boats preparatory to equipping them as submarine chasers. Captain Moffett expects to rush them "to the seaboard" as rapidly as possible.

WAR PRISONERS TO WORK FARMS HERE

BRITISH MISSION SUGGESTS SENDING CAPTURED MEN TO AMERICA.

SUPPLIES IN EUROPE SHORT

Sending Prisoners to U. S. Would Relieve Allies of Burden and Overcome Labor Shortage Here.

Washington.—Plans have been practically completed by the British mission with officials of this government for the United States to act as the prison for the Entente Allies, it was learned here. The plan contemplates the transportation to this country of all prisoners of war, thousands of them, captured by the Entente, including those now held as well as those captured in the future.

The first prisoners are expected to arrive in the United States within 20 days. It is proposed to employ them chiefly on farms in raising foodstuffs.

Because of the shortage of supplies
in Europe, the Entente Allies would be relieved of a vast burden by sending the captured soldiers to this country, where supplies are comparatively plentiful and could be spared easily.
It would also relieve the scarcity of farm labor in the United States.

The matter of transportation would be easy, officials have pointed out, as the men by hundreds could be put on commercial vessels returning to the United States, many of them at present without cargo, after having taken food to England and France. Arrangements for this are now being considered.

NEWS CHANNELS CLOSED

Secretary Lansing Orders Department Heads to Withhold Information.

Washington.—The usual channels of information through which news of America's relationships to foreign powers have up to now reached the public
have been closed by Secretary Lansing.

An order bearing his name was distributed broadcast to state department officials instructing them not to talk with newspapermen "even on insignificant matters of fact or detail." Henceforth, under the order, the press
will not be able to discuss the background of complicated international questions with the experts at the head of each bureau.

If this order remains in effect the public will receive from the state department only such perfunctory news
as the bureau gives out and such fragmentary explanations as Secretary Lansing himself finds time for in the crush of other work.

200,000 ASK TO BE OFFICERS

Apply to War Department for Admission to Training Camps.

Washington.—More than 200,000 men
—five times as many as can be accommodated—have applied for admission to the 16 officers' training camps which opened Tuesday to begin developing men who will lead American armies to be raised within the next four months. About 60,000 have been certified as qualified for admission.
From these 40,000 will be selected and placed under intensive instruction.

From among the 40,000 men under training, 10,000 will be chosen at the end of three months to become officers of the first army of 500,000 men to be called to the colors about September
1, under the selective draft system.

The remainder who qualify will be assigned to fill vacancies in the regular army or National Guard, or will be commissioned in the reserve corps and held to fill gaps in regiments at the fighting front when American troops get into action.

"MEATLESS DAY" ABOLISHED

England Finds That It Increased Demands On Bread Stuffs.

London.—Great Britain's "meatless day" is to be abolished because it augments the demand on bread stuffs
and other substitutes less plentiful than meat. This was announced by Baron Devonport, the food controller, in the house of lords. He declared a diminution in the consumption of breadstuffs was of vital moment and a main factor in the situation, but he added:

"Provided that the call for a reduction is responded to and the efforts of the submarines are not successful beyond reasonable likelihood, we shall get through with a fairly satisfactory balance in hand to the time when the harvest becomes available."

Albion.—It was announced that all seniors and juniors of Albion college
who leave school to enter the army,
navy or for farm work under government direction will receive full credits.

Flint.—A general increase in salary
for teachers in the Flint public schools has been granted by the board of education. The maximum salary of grade teachers was fixed at $350
and of high school teachers at $1,100.
The minimum salary for untrained
grade teachers was fixed at $450.

ARMY ENGINEERS SEE SERVICE FIRST

TRAINED RAILWAY MEN FIRST AMERICAN TROOPS TO BE SENT TO FRANCE.

12,000 MEN IN EXPEDITION

Detroit Is One of the Nine Great Railway Centers Asked to Recruit Men Needed.

Washington.—Nine new regiments of army engineers, to be composed exclusively of highly trained railway men, will be the first American troops to be sent to France.

They will go "at the earliest possible moment," the war department announced, for work on communication lines, but speculation as to exactly when or to what points they will be sent is forbidden because of the submarine menace.

The new forces will be volunteers raised at the nine great railway centers of the country. Each regiment will be commanded by an engineer
colonel of the regular army aided by an adjutant. All other officers will be railway engineers or officials.

The recruiting points will be New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Atlanta, San Francisco and Philadelphia.

The expedition will have a total strength of between 11,000 and 12,000
men, each regiment being composed of two battalions of three companies
each.

Every branch of railway workers
necessary to the building or operation of lines will be represented in the ranks and the war department expects a response to the call that will permit
a careful selection to be exercised and insure a force already trained to the minute, an army of experts in railway operation.

Recruiting for the regiments and
the organization of each force will be directly under the colonel of each regiment. Recruiting machinery of the regular army or the national guard
will be placed at their service and it is hoped the enrollment of the troops will take little time.

ALLIES NEED 2,000 DOCTORS

Medical Men and Ambulance Attendants Needed at Front.

Chicago.—England and France are in immediate need of 2,000 medical officers
and 5,000 ambulance attendants,
according to a statement issued by Dr.
Franklin Martin, head of the medical division of the Council of National Defense.

Dr. Martin calls attention to the great need of England and France for trained medical men and reminds Americans that it is their duty to respond to the call of their allies.

Six Red Cross base hospital units
with 24 doctors, 50 nurses, and a supporting personnel; aggregating 196
each, have been ordered by the war department to France for immediate service.

One hundred and ten hospital units
with approximately 3,000 automobile ambulances and 5,000 men asked for by France, will be dispatched within the next three weeks.

Michigan to Send 600 Doctors.

Grand Rapids.—Six hundred doctors
for the army and navy is Michigan's quota, according to Dr. Frederick O.
Warnshuis, of Grand Rapids, secretary of the Michigan State Medical society.
The society meets in Battle Creek this week to obtain the enrollment of the necessary physicians and to plan for the care of their business interests and their dependents.

Durant.—Thieves by going around the front way stole five bushels of beans from H. E. Beatty, farmer, who was sitting on a log behind his barn
with a shotgun guarding his granary.

Port Huron.—To assist citizens to purchase government war bonds without working a hardship on themselves, a local bank has offered to purchase any number of bonds of $50 denomination and hold them until the price is paid into the bank at the rate of $1 a week on each bond.

TWO ROOKIE FLYERS KILLED

Plane in Which They Were "Joy Riding" Falls 2,000 Feet.

New York.—Privates Peter Merritt,
of Roosevelt, N. Y., and John Spilleno, Tonawanda, N. Y., who have been training at the army aviation school at Hempstead, L. I., were killed when they took an airplane aloft without permission. Their machine fell about 2,000 feet.

Neither man ever had handled a machine before, nor had taken any actual instructions in handling aircraft, although both had been aloft as observers.

Unnoticed by the authorities, the men started on their wild aerial joyride in an "L. W. F." biplane. After being aloft about half an hour, the machine suddenly shot downward and both were instantly killed.

Spectators were divided as to whether the gasoline tank exploded or the men lost control of the craft.

GUARD 222,000 MEN SHORT

Are At Less Than One-third Their Required War Strength.

Washington.—State National Guard organizations which have not yet been mustered into the federal service are at less than one-third their required
war strength, the bureau of military affairs of the war department announced. This fact became known following a survey by the bureau of every National Guard organization in the country. About 222,000 more men will be needed to put them on a war footing.

The bureau received reports showing a widespread lack of officers as well as men.

The National Guard which had not come into the federal service May 1 contained a total of 4,928 officers and 107,219 enlisted men, according to reports from all states except Indiana, Illinois and Texas. The reports do not include the National Guard troops
that have been mustered into the federal service and are now on duty.

NEGROES IN CUBA REBEL

Refugees Report Property of Whites Is Being Destroyed.

New York.—Charges that Cuban Negro rebels are burning and pillaging the homes and properties of Americans and other foreigners in the districts of Palmarito, Bayate and Miranda, Oriente province, were made by 24 American and British refugees who arrived here.

They predicted that there will be a massacre of the white residents remaining unless the United States intervenes, and asserted the Cuban government is powerless to cope with the situation. Most of the refugees escaped with only the clothes they wore.

The accusations were substantiated
by an appeal for aid signed by 116
Americans remaining in the territory occupied by the rebels.

HUNGER RIOTS IN SWEDEN

When Refused Bread and Potatoes Mobs Take Supplies By Force.

Stockholm, via London.—Serious rioting has occurred in Stockholm and other Swedish cities.

Many standing in line for hours to buy bread and potatoes when turned away began riotous demonstrations.
When they were refused supplies, they began taking bread by force, often without paying for it.

No potatoes are to be had in Stockholm and many other cities and villages in Sweden.

Standish.—The Sterling schoolhouse
near here was burned with all its contents. The loss is $7,000.

East Lansing.—To the farmer who wants to know what to plant to produce the greatest possible amount of food to the acre, the Michigan Agricultural college is saying "grow corn."
"Corn," according to the college, "will
in those districts where soil and climate are adapted to it, produce more food per acre for both human beings and livestock than anything else that could be sown."

WAR TRAINING AT FORESTRY CAMP

"COLLEGE IN WOODS" TO HAVE DRILLS IN ADDITION TO REGULAR STUDIES.

SCHOOL WILL OPEN JUNE 25

Differs From Old Camps of Past, in That It Is Open to Any Young Man Wishing to Attend.

Lansing.—Men who enroll this spring in M. A. C.'s "college in the woods" will get war training as part of their daily academic fare.

The principal aim of the forest school will be to instruct men in forestry and lumbering, but attention will be devoted to preparation for the war service ahead. Daily drills and exercises to round the men into sound physical condition will be part of the program.

The "college in the woods" will be at Daykuff lake, in Wexford county.
It will differ from the old forestry camps of the past, however, in that it will be open to any young men who chooses to attend.

The school will open June 25 and continue until Aug. 3.

FEDERAL AID TO BUILD ROADS

Five Pieces Recommended by Highway Commissioner.

Lansing.—The first real step in the use of federal money for Michigan
good roads, under the act of congress and the Road bill in the last legislature, has been taken by Highway Commissioner Frank F. Rogers.

He referred to the government through its chief engineer of roads for this district, James Boushell, of Chicago, five pieces of road upon which he wants federal aid and which he will start within a month or sooner,
if the preliminaries are completed.

The five pieces are as follows: Six miles across Laketon township, Allegan county, a portion of the West Michigan pike; nine miles from Montague in Muskegon county to New Era, in Oceana county, a piece of the West Michigan pike; 10 miles
in Isosco county, running southwest-ward from the town of Oscoda, a portion of the East Michigan pike; 10 miles in Presque Isle county, between Rogers of the East Michigan pike. A stretch across Baraga county, connecting the copper country with Marquette county.

THRESHERS WASTE GRAIN

State Food Preparedness Committee to Inspect Machines.

Lansing.—At a dinner given to farmers in the vicinity of Lansing by W. K. Prudden a member of the state food preparedness committee a suggestion was made by E. W. Banks,
one of the farmers attending the banquet that will no doubt help save a lot of grain.

"Every year the threshers lose us a lot of good grain," said Banks. "Go through the country and look at the straw stacks. You will see grain of all kinds left in the straw. Your committee or the state or somebody should see to it that the threshing machines are inspected."

The suggestion of Banks struck former Gov. Warner, the head of the committee, with such force that he is going to make some move toward carrying it out. It is possible under a law passed by the last legislature compelling the threshers to make weekly reports, to have their machines reached and inspected at all times by the county agents.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Plans for placing a minimum price
on farm products are evidently being carried out by Secretary Houston, of the national department of agriculture. W. J. Orr, of Saginaw, president of the Michigan Bean Jobbers' association, was called by the department over the long-distance telephone from Washington and asked what minimum price per bushel for 1917
beans would be satisfactory. He replied that $6 would be satisfactory,
but that nothing less would get all of the Michigan farmers into line planting beans. Asked if $5.50 would do,
Mr. Orr replied positively that it would not.

Attendance in the University of Michigan is 7,517, an increase of 303
students over that of last year, according to enrollment figures. The enrollment includes students from all states in the union except Delaware
and from 34 foreign countries.

Boys at the Michigan school for deaf at Flint are taking up military training, although it is not expected
they will ever be called into service.
Supt. L. L. Wright decided upon the training to develop the students mentally and physically.

The Bryant Paper Co., of Kalamazoo
announced increases in the general wage scale for its 1,200 employees, which will aggregate slightly more than $100,000 annually. The minimum for women employees will be $11.50 a week. The increase is the second in nine months.

DAVE LAW AND ALAIRE AUSTIN MEET AGAIN AND SPEND THE DAY TOGETHER — LAW RECEIVES WARNING FROM AN AVENGER BUT LAUGHS AT THE DANGER OF DEATH

SYNOPSIS.—Mrs. Alaire Austin, handsome young mistress of Las Palmas ranch, lost in the Texas desert, wanders into the little camp of David Law, state ranger, waiting in ambush for a Mexican murderer. She is drunkenly wastrel, berates his wife and makes insulting insinuations about the ranger. Law discovers that Austin is secretly in league with Mexican rebels and horse thieves. Mrs. Austin encounters Gen. Luis Longorio, Mexican federal, when she goes to La Feria, her ranch in Mexico to collect war damages, and Longorio, a bad man, falls in love with her. Dave Law kills a cattle thief and comes into unpleasant contact with Austin.

There was a murmur from the onlookers; someone cried, "Viva Longorio!"

The general bowed smilingly; then, taking Alaire's arm, he waved the others out of his path with a magnificent gesture.

When, later in the day, Mrs. Austin came to say good-by and thank the Mexican for his courtesies, he humbly begged permission to pay his respects that evening at her hotel, and she could not refuse.

As the coach went bouncing across the International bridge, Dolores said, spitefully: "It will take more than the pardon of poor Juan Garcia to unlock heaven for that bandit. Do you notice the way he looks at you? It is enough to damn him for all eternity."

Upon her arrival at the hotel Alaire received an agreeable surprise, for as her vehicle paused at the curb David Law stepped forward, hat in hand.

"What bloodthirsty business brings you to Pueblo?" she queried, when they had exchanged greetings.

Law smiled at her. "I came to offer free board and lodging to a poor Greaser. But he ain't here. And you, ma'am?"

When Dave learned that she was counting upon General Luis Longorio's aid in securing justice, he regarded her with some curiosity as he inquired:

"Isn't Longorio the very man who robbed you?"

"Yes."

"Mexicans are peculiar people," Law said slowly. "At least we don't understand their business methods or their habits of mind. From my experience with them, I wouldn't put much confidence in this Longorio's word. I say this and I'm supposed to have a little Mexican blood in me."

During this brief conversation they had entered the hotel, and she gave her hand to Law.

"I hope we shall see each other again," she murmured.

"That's more'n likely; I'm located in your neighborhood now," he informed her. "I'm leaving for Jonesville in the morning."

"By train?"

"No'm. I'm goin' to follow the river road if I can get an automobile."

Mindful of the Ranger's courtesy to her on their previous meeting, Alaire said: "Won't you go with us? We intend to start early."

Dave was nearly speechless with delight, and when the mistress of Las Palmas had gone upstairs he felt inclined to pinch himself to see if he were dreaming. He had pursued a fruitless quest during the past few days, and his resentment had grown as he became certain that Tad Lewis had sent him on a wild-goose chase; but the sight of Alaire miraculously restored his good spirits, and the prospect of a long, intimate ride in her company changed the whole trend of his thoughts. His disappointment at not seeing her upon his visit to Las Palmas had only served to enhance his memories of their first meeting, and time now had deepened his interest tenfold. Yes, she was "The Lone Star," the estrella brillante of his empty sky. There could be no doubt about his feelings; he was more than romantically interested, the mere sight of her had electrified him. The discovery distressed him, and he very properly decided that the affair should end here, since it could lead to nothing except disappointment.

At the time of this story, relations between the United States and the established government of Mexico were such that a hostility had sprung up between the troops fronting each other along the Rio Grande, and in consequence their officers no longer crossed the boundary, even when off duty. It created a flurry of suppressed excitement, therefore, when Luis Longorio, the autocrat of the Potosista forces, boldly crossed the bridge, traversed the streets of Pueblo, and entered the Hamilton hotel.

From his seat in the lobby Law heard the general inquire for Mrs. Austin, and then saw him ascend in the direction of the parlor. He rose and strolled restlessly about the hotel. A half-hour passed and Longorio did not reappear; an hour dragged by, and then Dave took occasion to go to his room. A glance through the open parlor door showed the foreigner in closest conversation with Mrs. Austin. They were laughing; they were alone; even Dolores was nowhere to be seen. He chewed several cigars viciously before realizing that he was jealous—yes, madly, unreasonably jealous.

So? His divinity was not as unapproachable as he had imagined. Doubtless Longorio was mad over her, which explained the fellow's willingness to help her exact reparation from his government. Fine notions of a respectable married woman! It was wrong, scandalous, detestable!

Had Dave only known the truth, he would have gained a grim comfort from it, for Alaire Austin was not enjoying herself that evening. Her caller stayed on interminably, and she became restive under the flow of his conversation. For some reason or other, Longorio was not the romantic figure he had been; in his citizen's clothes he was only a dandified Mexican gentleman like any number of others. The color was gone from the picture; this quixotic guerrilla hero, this elegant Ruy Blas, was nothing more than a tall, olive-skinned foreigner, whose ardor was distasteful. Longorio was tiresome.

CHAPTER X.

Jose Sanchez Swears an Oath.

Jose Sanchez made use of the delay at Pueblo to institute further inquiries regarding his missing cousin, but nowhere could he find the slightest trace. Jose swore an oath that he would learn the truth if it required his whole lifetime, and, if it should turn out that his sainted relative had indeed met with foul play—well! Jose told his friends they could judge, by looking at him, the sort of man he was. He proudly displayed Longorio's revolver, and called it his cousin's little avenger. The weapon had slain many; it had a duty still to perform, so he said.

Jose intended to confide his purpose to Mrs. Austin, but when it came time to start for Las Palmas there was a fourth passenger in the automobile.

"How did you happen to read Anatole France?" Alaire asked, with a sharp stare of surprise.

The Ranger stirred, but he did not meet her eyes. "Well," said he, "I read 'most anything I can get. A fellow meets up with strange books just like he meets up with strange people."

"Not books like—that?" There was a brief silence. "Mr. Law, you went to school in the East, didn't you?"

"Where?" The man hesitated, at which she insisted, "Where?"

Dave reluctantly turned upon her a pair of eyes in the depths of which there lurked the faintest twinkle.

"Cornell," said he.

Alaire gasped. After a while she remarked, stiffly, "You have a peculiar sense of humor."

"Now don't be offended," he begged her. "I'm a good deal like a chameleon; I unconsciously change my color to suit my surroundings. When we first met I saw that you took me for one thing, and since then I've tried not to show you my mistake."

"Why did you let me send you those silly books? I dare say you've had a fine laugh at my expense?"

"No!" gravely denied the man.

They had come to an arroyo containing a considerable stream of muddy water, and Law was forced to get out to plug the carburetor and stop the oil intakes to the crank-case. This done, Alaire ran the machine through on the self-starter. When Jose's "Carambas!" and Dolores' shrieks had subsided, and they were again under way, Mrs. Austin, it seemed, had regained her good humor.

"You will receive no more of my favorite authors," she told Dave, spitefully. "I'll keep them to read myself."

"Do you still believe in chivalry?"

Alaire turned her eyes upon the questioner, and there were no girlish illusions in them. "Do you?" she queried, with a faint curl of her lip.

"Why—yes."

She shook her head. "Men have changed. Nowadays they are all selfish and sordid. But—I shouldn't generalize, for I'm a notorious man-hater, you know."

He nodded, whereupon she eyed him speculatively. "Let us see. You are a man—how far would you go for the woman you loved?"

"The limit!"

Mrs. Austin frowned at this light-seeming answer. "I suppose you mean that you would make any sacrifice?"

"Yes; that's it."

"Would you give up the woman herself, if you considered it your duty?"

"No. There couldn't be any duty higher than love—to my way of thinking. But you shouldn't take me as a specimen. I'm not a good representative of my sex."

"I think you are a very good one," Alaire said quietly, and Dave realized that no flattery was intended.

Despite the rough roads, they made fair time, and the miles of cactus and scrubby brush rolled swiftly past. The morning sun swung higher, and by midday the metal of the automobile had become as hot as a frying pan. They stopped at various goat ranches to inquire about Adolfo Urbina, and at noon halted beside a watercourse for lunch.

Dave was refilling the radiator when he overheard Jose in conversation with Mrs. Austin.

"Nowhere a trace!" the horse-breaker was saying. "No one has seen him. Poor Rosa Morales will die of a broken heart."

Alaire explained to her guest: "Jose is worried about his cousin Panfilo. It seems he has disappeared."

"So! You are Panfilo's cousin?" Dave eyed the Mexican with new interest.

"Si!"

"You remember the man?" Alaire went on. "He was with that fellow you arrested at the water-hole."

"Oh, yes. I remember him." With steady fingers Dave shook some tobacco into a cigarette paper. He felt Alaire's eyes upon him, and they were eloquent of inquiry, but he did not meet them.

Jose frowned. "No one at La Feria has seen him, and in Pueblo there was not a word. It is strange."

"Panfilo was in bad company when I saw him," Law finished rolling his cigarette and lit it, still conscious of Alaire's questioning gaze. "He may have had trouble."

"He was a good man," the horse-breaker asserted. "If he is dead—the Mexican's frown deepened to a scowl."

"What then?"

Jose significantly patted the gift revolver at his hip. "This little fellow will have something to say."

Dave looked him over idly, from head to heel, then murmured: "You would do well to go slow, compadre. Panfilo made his own quarrels."

"We were like brothers, and I do not know of any quarrels. But I shall find out. I am not given to boasting, senior, but I am a devilish bad man in my way."

Nothing more was said during the luncheon, but when Alaire had finished eating and her two employees had begun their meal, she climbed the bank of the arroyo ostensibly to find a cool spot. Having succeeded, she called to Dave:

"There is a nice breeze up here."

The Ranger's face set; rising slowly, he climbed the bank after her. When they stood face to face in the shade of a gnarly oak tree, Alaire asked him point-blank:

"Where is Panfilo Sanchez?"

Dave met her eyes squarely; his own were cold and hard. "He's where he dropped at my second shot," said he.

He could hear his companion's sharp inhalation. He did not flinch at the look she turned upon him.

"He was practically unarmed! What do you call—such an act?"

Dave's lips slowly whitened, his face became stony. He felt himself pitilessly condemned.

"Why didn't you tell me at the time?" she asked. "Why didn't you report it?"

"I'll report it when you give me permission."

"I—? What—?" She wheeled to face him.

"Think a moment. I can't tell half the truth. And if I tell everything, it will lead to—gossip."

"Ah! I think I understand. Mr. Law, you can be insulting."

For the first time the man lost muscular control of his features; they twitched, and under their tan his cheeks became sickly yellow.

"You've no right to say that," he told her harshly. "You've plumb overstepped yourself, ma'am, and—I reckon you've formed quite a wrong opinion. Panfilo had his six-shooter and he used it; he intended to ambush me and release his companion, but I forced his hand; so it ain't what I'd call murder; I haven't lost any sleep over it. I—"

"You are utterly ruthless."

"Yes'm! I'm not what you would consider a nice person; the death of Panfilo Sanchez means nothing whatever to me. If you can grasp that fact, you'll see that your own reputation weighed heavier in my mind than the lives of a dozen Mexicans—or whites, for that matter."

"I go anywhere, everywhere. No one has ever had the effrontery to question my actions," Alaire told him, stiffly.

"And I don't aim to give 'em a chance," Dave was stubborn.

There was another interval of silence.

"You heard what Jose said. What are you going to do?"

Dave made a gesture of indifference. "It doesn't greatly matter. I'll tell him the truth, perhaps. You might warn him against any foolishness. Jose has some sense."

The woman looked up curiously. "Don't you know how to be afraid? Haven't you any fear?" she asked.

Dave's gray eyes were steady as he answered: "Yes'm! I'm afraid this thing is going to spoil our friendship. I've been desperately afraid, all along, that I might have hurt your reputation. Even now I'm afraid, on your account, to make public Panfilo Sanchez's death. Yes'm, I know what it is to be afraid."

It became evident to Dave, as the afternoon progressed, that they would be very late in arriving at Las Palmas, and he began to fear that his hostess would feel in duty bound to insist upon his spending the night at her home.

Dave Law finds further traces of criminal doings near the Austin ranch. Longorio makes himself extremely distasteful to Mrs. Austin. Some exciting episodes are described in the next installment.

Syriac Language.

Syriac is one of the three groups of languages into which the old "Annals of Assyria and Babylonia" was developed, the other groups being the Chaldean and the Nabatean-Sabean.

The Syriac is emphatically a Christian literature language, the Bible was translated into it as was a deal of writing from the fourth to the tenth century, and it, instead of Latin, is the liturgical language of the Roman Catholics of Lebanon in Syria today.

The Syro-Chaldean is a variant of the Syriac, combining features of both the Syriac and Chaldean groups. It is found in use in Kurdistan and the Lake Urmia districts.

What Well Dressed Women Will Wear

The Way of Coiffures

The style of coiffure that is most widely popular is shown in one of its several developments in the accompanying picture. It is a modification of the "Bobby" style which Mrs. Vernon Castle is said to have originated, and whether she created it or not, it has been at least well demonstrated and advertised by this famous dancer.

The "Bobby" coiffure is less becoming when it is dressed with the hair drawn back, leaving the forehead entirely uncovered, than in the development of it shown in the picture. Here the hair is loosely waved and brought forward, so that it partly covers the brow. At the sides it is pinned with small, invisible pins, so that it will lie on the cheek and cover the ears.

Where the forehead is left uncovered, mere prettiness is sacrificed to something a little better. This arrangement is more severe but immensely refining in its effect on young, round faces. It is not a coiffure for faces that are not youthful, but a trace of it is found in those styles which have been brought out for matrons.

Return of the Lace Jabot

After a rather long period of retirement the lace jabot has returned from the realm of forgotten finery. It made a quiet and almost unheralded entry a few weeks ago and immediately achieved a decisive, hit with thousands of devotees of uncovered throats. Today it is the darling of fashion. The "stock" jabot with high, stock collar and falling flounce or cascade of net-top lace, has reached the pinnacle of success and brought all of its kindred into the limelight.

Not having worn jabots for so long, we appreciate just how enchanting they are, but are hardly prepared for the extravagantly high prices that are asked for even the simpler styles. From two to five dollars is demanded for well-made jabots of fine net or good net-top lace. The cheaper nets and laces appear to lose their sheerness and to thicken up with washing. When this happens their charm is gone.

It is not the price of lace but the price of labor that places jabots in the class of expensive luxuries. Women who sew for themselves can cut the cost in half by making their neckwear at home. A wide net flouncing jabot in the length required for one jabot, will make two. Those of plain net are prettily finished with hemstitched vems, picot edges or with tating or very narrow, fine crochet lace.

Crepe georgette and all-over laces, finished with hemstitching, make successful jabots, and narrow tucks provide as pretty decoration as any for them. A good example of a lace jabot is shown in the picture and its construction is very simple. A straight piece of the lace edge forms the stock, with turn-over at the top, and the flounce is laid in plaits and sewed to it. A narrow lace finishes the lower edge of the stock and the ends of the flounce. There are any number of ways for arranging the fullness of the jabot and attaching it to the stock.

BROKEN DOWN IN HEALTH

Woman Tells How $5 Worth of Pinkham's Compound Made Her Well.

Lima, Ohio.—"I was all broken down in health from a displacement. One of my lady friends came to see me and she advised me to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I began taking your remedies and took $5.00 worth and in two months was a well woman after three doctors said I never would stand up straight again. I was a midwife for seven years and I recommended the Vegetable Compound to every woman to take before birth and afterwards, and they all got along so nicely that it surely is a godsend to suffering women. If women wish to write to me I will be delighted to answer them."

—Mrs. JENNIS MOYER, 342 E. North St., Lima, Ohio.

Women who suffer from displacements, weakness, irregularities, nervousness, backache, or bearing-down pains, need the tonic properties of the roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

His Back Hurt When He Stopped

"Just the one box of Foley Kidney Pills relieved my backache."—J. W. Etris, Etris, Ga.
"Last year I was suffering with a terrible backache," writes J. W. Etris of Etris, Ga. "Every time I'd lean or stoop over or to one side, I'd have a painful catch in my back just over my kidneys. I tried medicines with no good results. I bought a bottle of Foley Kidney Pills, and just the one box entirely relieved my backache. It has been some time since I took them, so I think I am well."
Weakened, overworked, stopped-up kidneys cause stiff joints, sore muscles, rheumatism, sleep disturbing bladder ailments, biliousness and various other ills. Foley Kidney Pills are a scientific medicine, compounded to clear the kidneys and restore them to healthy action by dissolving and driving out of the system the waste products and poisons that cause kidney trouble and bladder ailments. You will like their tonic and restorative action, ready effect and quick good results.

BREVITIES

STOCKBRIDGE—E. H. Applegate had rather a novel experience at his store Monday afternoon. He threw a can of spoiled tomatoes into his heating stove. Shortly after there was an explosion which blew the stove off the foundation, breaking it in several places.—Brief-Sun.

ANN ARBOR—The dental college of the University of Michigan will offer a course in dental surgery for war to all its graduates and students during the last two weeks in the college year. The course will be absolutely free. Michigan, it is thought, the first college to offer such a course, and to make it free to all alumni and students.

MILAN—A man by the name of Baker carried big ads in large city papers endeavoring to interest the unwary in a co-operative farming scheme, promising the impossible in return for what money he could secure from his victims. He gave his address as Milan, but he's been hanging out in Adrian for some time. In addition to the scheme above related he has been caught in other shady transactions and is now in limbo.

DOUBT DISAPPEARS
