Double Drowning at Cedar Lake.

Toney Gieze, aged 37 years, and Joseph Bannaack, aged 36 years, were drowned in Cedar Lake Sunday afternoon. The men went on a fishing trip in the morning and at noon they came ashore to eat their dinner which a friend had taken to the lake for them.

Just how the accident happened will probably never be known. The canoe which they used was overturned and anchored in about 20 feet of water near the Looney landing.

When the men did not return home, John Gieze, brother of Toney, notified the officers and searching parties went from here to the lake early Monday morning. Deputy Sheriff Brooks recovered the body of Mr. Gieze about 9 o'clock in the forenoon, and the body of Mr. Bannaack was located by Roy Evans and brought to the surface by Mr. Brooks about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Both bodies were taken to Staffan's undertaking rooms.

Toney Gieze resided with his brother on McKinley street and was employed by the Lewis Spring & Axle Co. He came here from Jackson where a number of his relatives reside. The funeral was held from the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Joseph Bannaack has a wife and two children residing in Hungary and a sister in Detroit. He had been in the employ of the Michigan Portland Cement Co., at Four Mile Lake most of the time for the past four years.

Mr. Bannaack's sister arrived here Wednesday afternoon. The funeral was held at 8 o'clock this morning from the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart.

Justice of the Peace Witherell, acting coroner, will hold an inquest at 8 o'clock Saturday evening.

Destroyed by Fire.

The residence on Harrison street, owned by Capt. E. L. Negus, and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hagadon, was badly damaged by fire Wednesday morning. The blaze was discovered about 8:15 by John Fay, who was at work on the opposite side of the street.

The occupants of the home were in the basement rooms and the first they knew of the fire was when Mr. Fay informed them. When the fire alarm was sounded a mistake was made in the fire district, the third being given instead of the first.

The household goods of Mr. and Mrs. Hagadon were all removed from the house by volunteers, but some of them were considerably water soaked. The roof of the house was so badly burned that it will have to be replaced, and the interior was damaged by smoke and water. The blaze probably started from a defective chimney. Mr. Negus had an insurance of $1,000 on the building.

Washtenaw to Furnish 223.

Under the new army act, Michigan must raise between 20,000 and 30,000 men by September. Michigan is apportioned three per cent of the men to be raised. For an army of 1,000,000 men Michigan must enlist 30,000 recruits, and for an army of 1,200,000, 36,000 are needed.

The Wolverine state, however, is credited with 1,648 regulars already enlisted, and the last federal inspection showed 3,650 national guardsmen, since raised to 5,000.

Washtenaw county, on the same basis, will be called on to furnish 223 men.

"In India."

The High School Chorus of the public schools will present to the public an operetta "In India," on Friday evening, May 25, at the opera house, the musical hit of the season. The argument is as follows: Meerah the most beautiful girl in the village of Fishni on the Ganges river in India, is chosen to become the dancing girl in the temple. The chosen one must be an orphan and Meerah believes herself to be one. During the day, which is the festival day of Ahu, the flower-god, a beggar escapes from a passing procession of elephants bearing people from the hill country. The beggar proves to be Meerah's mother and this renders Meerah ineligible.

There being no other orphan in the village except the village scold, How-now, she is carried off to become a slave in the temple and the reunited mother and daughter join the maidens in celebrating the festival day of Ahu.

The following is the cast of characters:

Meerah.....Bernice Prudden
Simla.....Marion Schmidt
How-now.....Esther Collins
Veerah.....Clarice Wright
Hear-no-Evil.....Esther Faust
See-no-Evil.....Ella Mohrblog
Speak-no-Evil.....Winifred Benton

"The Birth of a Nation."
It is a well-known fact that lovers of photo-plays have their favorites among the actors in the cast and rave over their cleverness and personal charm as if they were before them on the legitimate stage in actual flesh and blood.

Mae Marsh, who plays Flora Cameron, the youngest daughter in the southern household in "The Birth of a Nation," which will play the Whitney Theatre, Ann Arbor, commencing Friday afternoon, May 18 at 3 o'clock and twice Saturday, May 19, has by her elf-like charm naive personality attracted many admirers who greet with pleasure and enthusiasm her every appearance on the screen.

Miss Marsh has many fine bits of acting in this picture. Among the most engrossing are the scene in the cellar with Miriam Cooper; the making of "Southern ermine" with raw cotton and chimney soot; the welcoming of her brother, the "Little Confederate Colonel" back from the war; the pretty scene where she rains kisses on her brother Ben's mouth to console him for the temporary loss of his sweetheart Elsie and her sad death in her brother's arms.

She was discovered by David W. Griffith, the producer of so many film triumphs, long before he made "The Birth of a Nation."

ALBION—Ever since one of those "nasty dogs" invaded our back kitchen on a Sunday morning and lugged off a big hunk of beef, we had our opinion of dogs in general and dogowners who permit them to run at large.—Leader.

SYNOPSIS

Pierpont Stafford, with his daughter Gloria, is vacationing at Palm Beach. Coming late in the evening Gloria falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. She falls in love with her rescuer, Freeman. Five years later she leaves school and meets Freeman at the theater. He has forgotten Gloria. Later Freeman persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous and Doctor Rayce discovers in her a deadly disease. Freeman takes leave of Gloria. She sees from her window an attack made upon him. Doctor Rayce convinces her it is delirium. She accidentally receives the supposed suicide of Freeman reported in the paper. Gloria swears to find the murderer. Gloria insists on going to Palm Beach. She is recognized by her own-time captor, the young Indian chief. He tells her that Rayce and not Freeman was her rescuer at that time. Gloria, scarcely night court, she sees Mally there, also the tramp who attacked Freeman. But Judge Freeman releases him. She follows the tramp when he leaves court. She finds herself in a low saloon dance hall, and is escorted by one of the patrons as his partner. Doctor Rayce, however, follows her and what he attempts a rescue, cuts down a riot on their heads. The hall is raided and the crowd, including Gloria and Rayce, is arrested and taken before Judge Freeman. Captain arrives with the child Gloria, presumed to be dead. She orders Rayce to take Captain's wife to the Stafford home. She follows Trask and lands on a boatbound to bear him accused of Freeman's murder. She confronts him, he impresses her, but she loses him up and escapes. In the track Gloria and the man pursue the burglar. In the fight that follows Trask is badly wounded. He is taken to the Stafford home. Rayce enters to return to Lois her jewels. Freeman, during a playful scuffle Gloria sees and recognizes the envelope. She suspects Rayce of complicity in the murder. Rayce tells her all. She sees one of Lois' letters to Freeman. Judge Freeman confesses his part. When Lois is confronted she flies from Gloria's room on a snipe. But Gloria takes after her and prevents her from committing the deed. She then returns the jewels to Lois and forgives her. Thinking that David is the one responsible for Freeman's death, she tells him aside to confront Trask. But Trask has been spirited away by Judge Freeman who believes as Gloria does.

TWENTIETH EPISODE

Love's Reward

The mystery of mysteries, the mystery that envelops every other, is the mystery of life and its negative, death. Pierpont Stafford had given his daughter Gloria what the penniless Trask had given his daughter Nell, life, the same all beginning all necessary gift of Judge Freeman to his daughter Lois.

Through the existences of these three daughters Richard Freeman had wandered like a handsome Don Juan, wrapping each in romance and grandeur, as in a crimson cloak with a black lining. At Palm Beach he had flirted with Lois Freeman and won the child heart of Gloria Stafford. Gloria's father had wisely smothered her away from his spell and sent her to school for five years before she should enter the school of life.

In that long interlude Dick Freeman's thimble heart had gone bumping and bumping and bumping in his lumbering toes.

He Talked Very Earnestly.

As a broker's clerk he met Nell Trask, whose pretty face was not only fortune, and the cause of her misfortune. Freeman had dealt sagaciously to the power of life and left Nell broken-hearted with a wedding ring.

In his later prosperity as a winner and loser of fortunes he had dogged Nell and turned to more gorgeous creatures, such as Lois. Her he had won away from the sacraments of her wedding ring. And then Gloria dropped back into his life like a white dove, and he felt that he had never loved till now. What the result of such a union might have been to him was ever to know. For Gloria fell ill, and merely to breathe became the one great problem with her.

Perhaps the torments of pain and the torments of delirium she underwent in that long battle were less than the years she would have had to endure as the wife of Freeman, for he had all the graces and none of the severities of character. Gloria had known only his charms when she saw him murdered before her window. She had a long battle to persuade her people that she even saw the deed. Her doctor, Stephen Rayce, persisted in declaring that what she witnessed was the fiction of her imagination.

With great difficulty she had learned a few truths. She had overheard Trask only to be told that she had better let him go since his confession would involve her brother David. She had refused to believe that David had taken justice into his own hands, and like an ancient Indian hired a bravo to assassinate his enemy. Trask alone could clear David of that charge or fasten it on him. And Trask had vanished.

Doctor Rayce had done all he could to keep Gloria from piercing the veil about the crime. But now that she had learned a part of Freeman's duplicity, he was ready to help her learn all the truth. He was eager to know it himself.

When she told him that Trask had been carried off, he said: "They can't carry him far without killing him. He is doomed anyway. I'm afraid. We must find him soon or there will be nothing to find."

He spoke a truth that Trask himself was beginning to realize. The human frame is too built to serve as a buffer between yachts and buoys, and Trask's frame was wrecked within his flesh by his accident. His feat of justice had made him consent to the effect to escape from the Stafford house, but the judge's automobile had not gone far when he was compelled to beg that it run more slowly. Finally it grew plain to him that he was about to escape from earthly judgment and punishment altogether. He had nothing to fear from the police or the wretches of the black robe. He began to fear the more what higher courts awaited him. He dared not enter those tribunals with a burden on his soul.

Suddenly he felt that Gloria, who had been his conqueror and his enemy, was one person on earth who could give him comfort. He began to cry out that he wanted to be taken back to her. And Nell and the chauffeur thought him mad, but they were afraid of him. He held the unerring weapon of the power to die.

"He'll be dying on us," the chauffeur said as he checked the car and began to turn it round. He had a superstitious fear of driving a man's last wish. He was not afraid of anything else, but he was in a panic because Trask should die in his car. He paid little heed to Trask's groans and made all speed to the Stafford home.

Rayce had just taken Gloria into his car as set forth on a hint for Trask when Judge Freeman's motor brought him back. Judge Freeman saw the weeping and he was covered with anguish. He saw that Gloria recognized his chauffeur, and she threw him a look of reproach, but she was too much absorbed in Trask's needs to reproach him.

To Gloria's astonishment, when Trask was lifted from the car he did not place at her, but put his hand out to her.

"He's got a lot he wants to tell you," Nell explained.

Rayce motioned for one of the reclining chairs to be brought from the sun parlor and Trask was placed in it. When they started to take him into the house, however, he shook his head and moaned: "No, no; leave me out under the sky over where there's flowers."

It is strange how the suffering of an enemy grows to sympathy for him. Gloria was disconcerted with sympathy for Trask, and her heart ached for him as for an old friend in distress. She had the servants carry him to a flower-walled nook where the breeze was spicy and there was shade without gloom.

Judge Freeman watched the group and an idea came to him. He stepped into the house and motioned to Pierpont Stafford's secretary as being his note pad and pencil.

"Is it a dictation?" the secretary asked.

"Yes," said the judge, "but it's beyond mine. It's possibly the final statement of a dying man and it may have legal importance."

He led the secretary back of the aster, where he could hear without being seen. The secretary did not resist such eavesdropping, but the judge kept him to the work.

There was some delay in making Trask as easy as possible, and Rayce sent for his medicine case that he might keep him from a sudden collapse. Trask grew impatient with the delay and clucked at Gloria, mumbling: "Listen, missy; I don't know yet just who you are, but I got a notion you got a right to know what I know about that yellow dog Freeman." Gloria winced at the insult to her dead lover, but she made no protest. Trask held her with lean fingers that hurt as he dragged her close.

"You said you see me kill that man. What was he to you?"

Gloria flushed as she sighed: "I loved him. We were engaged to be married."

Trask chuckled gruesomely. "I thought likely. I guess I done you a service gittin' rid of him. He was engaged to my girl first, missy. He promised to marry her. He told me he was goin' to marry her and he allowed he'd come right back. But he never did."

"You see, I used to be a bargeman, but my wife—Nell's—got her head trouble and the doctor said I had ought to take her to South Carolina or somewhere. So I did. I took to makin' down there—found some nice, New York brokers got interested, sent a young fellow named Freeman down to look over the property."

"He was there when Nell fetched me my dinner pail. He took quite a shine to her—hang round for several days. Poor girl, plumb crazy over him. She didn't see many fellows and he was a killer anywhere he went. I guess."

"I hooked him with his arm 'round Nell and I was goin' to beat him up. Wish I had. But he says they were engaged. So I wished 'em well. Nell gets a telegram to go back to the city. He never comes back, 'never writes. Seemed like Nell took on more'n she'd ought to, and by and by I knew why."

"Her man didn't get any better and she died down there—died before she knewed what had happened to the girl. Havin' my wife die and afterwards havin' Nell goin' crazy with shame at not havin' nobody's wife drove me out of my senses kind of. I never been good right since."

"Leave Her to Me, Miss, She Belongs to Me."

"I got over being mad at Nell, and we come away from there before the things got worse. I took up the huge business again and didn't have much time for lookin' up Miss Freeman. When I found him by accident it was outside your house in the city. I jumped for him and he hit me. I chased his automobile and got run over by another one. Went to the hospital. Come out a mite wrother than what I went in, I guess."

"Nell told me she'd found where he lived and she'd want to see him, seek the body with her, begged him to love her again, or bestways to marry her for the body's sake. But no, he wouldn't. He just laughed at her and said her to go on away."

"When she told me that, my head kind of filled up with poison. I didn't want anything but that fellow's life. I put out after him and always just missed him. That night I followed him to your house, seen him go in there, and I waited for him. A policeman chased me away and he must have went away without my seein' him, for I creep back to that big monument to watch for him. He didn't come out, but I waited. By and by I seen somebody comin' up Riverside drive. It was him. I thought I must a went crazy. I guess I had. But I waited for him. He stopped and lighted a match to light a cigarette with, and I creep up behind him and got a grand hit on his neck with these old on fingers and—"

His great crumpled fingers made a feeble repetition of their work, and Gloria covered her eyes. Trask laughed.

"I s'pose I'd ought to feel sorry, and I do, now that I've got to go where he went. But it felt mighty good then to know he wasn't goin' to break any more hearts or fool any more girls."

"I hit him by there in the snow and I got a way just as I could. Next day I expected to see a big boiler in the papers. Not a word. A hull week passed and not a word. I felt creepy about it. Then I read about him bein' found down in the bog and I couldn't understand. I been driven near out of my senses tryin' to figure out how he got there."

The secretary in hiding winked, too, but the judge kept silence and so did Gloria on her side of the flower screen.

Gloria was not concerned about Trask's bewilderment. She was staring at the little baby that Nell carried always in her arm. Her last spark of love for Freeman died out in her soul, leaving it utterly dark. There was not enough embers left to flare with jealousy. She was restless to have done with Freeman forever.

When Trask appealed for her forgiveness if he had caused her any pain, she gave it freely. Her bitter heart felt that Trask had done a cleansing task in removing Freeman from the earth.

Trask snuck back exhausted and his hand relaxed its hold on her. Then she left him to the ministrations of Doctor Rayce, who whispered to her that she had better not linger at the last. He sent her away. She went to her room in a loneliness more profound than she had ever felt. She had not even a dead love for companionship now. She found the photograph of Freeman there and her lips curled with disgust at the kisses she had squandered on that wretched image.

In her wrath she broke it to pieces, and laying the fragments in the empyrion, set a match to them. She watched them burn and hung herself across her bed weeping madly. She wept herself to exhaustion and finally to sleep. It was a troubled sleep with a hideous vision of Freeman in infernal flames that mounted about him as the flames had danced around his photograph only they did not consume him.

He put his arms out to her through the flames, appealing for pardon. She heard him say: "Gloria, I had repented of my evil ways and would to mend them, but I was struck down before I could. Forgive me?"

She answered him harshly: "Ask Nell, not me. Come back and undo the evil you did."

He sighed: "If only I could. There is only one evil that can be undone. I s'pose your love from a man who loved you before I did, and loves you still, give him your heart, Gloria. Give him your heart, Gloria—Gloria—"

His voice died away as the vision of him faded and she woke. She wept again to think of the pity of life and death and love, and her heart melted a little toward Freeman.

She hurried her eyes and went out into the hall. There she found Nell Trask weeping inconsolably. Her father's secretary, her brother and his secretary even her brother's wife, she made use of.

Lois responded to the lash with an enthusiasm that surprised Gloria. She began to understand that idleness had been a more expert excuse for loafing than she had believed when Lois came in. She saw that Lois' heart, which had melted so easily to the handshakes of Freeman, yielded as easily to the allurements of unselfish labor.

The plans for the Polish fête were changed again and again. The boy Stus was so much in the way that Gloria set him a task to keep him out from under her feet. He brought in the children of the marriage and established himself as their leader.

Some of the men, like their parents, were good fellows; a few of them were snobs. These latter twisted Stus with his origin, whereupon he had resort to the wild abandonment of burlesque and two or three handsome suits of clothes, after that Stus was the accepted leader.

"In his recollections among the pretentious he found a 'Pied Piper of Hamelin' and made his 'Lullaby' tell him all about it. He decided that he should be the pied piper and he would organize an army of children for her to pipe away. She missed him for the inspiration and that event was one of the successes of the afternoon. Millions of people thronged the Stafford estate on the afternoon of the festival and the yards outside were quadruply lined with automobiles.

There was no hesitation about employing piratical methods of extorting from the rich as much money as they had been reckless enough to bring with them. The hollow eyes of the raggard scoundrels of Poland would have filled with wonder if they could have seen in far-off America the well-fed, staid aristocrats reveling in their behalf. It was a strange way of getting food for the hungry, but it was the fashion of the day, and most important of all, it accomplished its purpose.

The world was so packed with tragedy and so lugged with cries for pity that it took something more than sorrow to vibrate funds from the wealthy people. It took beauty and entertainment. Gloria furnished these in full measure at her festival. In her ragged chamber and house with her feathered cap still on she danced and posed and the children followed about the lawn with a moving audience till she set her little army into the great row that Pierpont had ordered constructed in one of the hills.

The mothers left behind prevented it easy for later out ones and they begged the poor people to return. So Gloria, contrary to tradition, came back from the lawn and surrounded by her damaged troop, bowed and bowed.

Gloria was good and tired when the end of the operations had gone some improvement. She stretched herself out on the lawn in the living room and let her unconscious come back upon her. Her hat was thrown and she was so dazed she did not know for of course her father had pointed out to her that she ought to have the funds to finance it, perhaps she was a beautiful responsibility. There were several thousands of dollars of bond.

She was in so dazed a humor that when Doctor Rayce took a chair close to her and poured forth his praises, she accepted them humbly. He was encouraged by the widest hopes by her response and he kept lurching his chair closer and closer.

His hand was almost touching hers when her father had come into the room with the proceeds of the festival. There were baskets of bills and boxes of coins and the total was thousands of dollars.

Rayce fell back disconcerted. He had forgotten how rich Gloria was, and how poor the competition was even his success. He had been on the point of was kept on the run for days and nights. She worked as only rich women work when some orgy of charity is on foot.

Gloria in turn kept everyone in her neighborhood scampering. Her father, her father's secretary, her brother and his secretary even her brother's wife, she made use of.

Lois responded to the lash with an enthusiasm that surprised Gloria. She began to understand that idleness had been a more expert excuse for loafing than she had believed when Lois came in. She saw that Lois' heart, which had melted so easily to the handshakes of Freeman, yielded as easily to the allurements of unselfish labor.

Rayce fell back disconcerted. He had forgotten how rich Gloria was, and how poor the competition was even his success. He had been on the point of telling her how long and how deeply he had loved her, but he felt that such a declaration would only be a presumptuous folly.

Gloria could not read his thoughts, but she knew that he had suddenly chilled and shortly after he was gone. And then she knew how much she missed him. She was tempted to fall ill again so that she might summon him to wait upon her once more. But her health, which had broken down when she was in the first flush of her affair with Freeman (for "affair" was what she called it now), held up splendidly when she felt sick at heart and weary of life.

For some reason which he did not make plain—largely because his excuse was artificial—Doctor Rayce happened to drop in at the country place a few days later. The fact was that he could neither endure the lack of Gloria nor find a plausible reason for calling. So he called and mumbled his reason inarticulately.

He talked very earnestly about nothing at all and kept saying that he must go but did not go. At length he really started, and Gloria felt that she was being married once more on the dull waste of life. So she pretended to swoon. He heard her little gasp and saw her toppling over on a carefully selected soft spot. He ran to her in great alarm, tried her pulse and found it normal, chafed her hand and found it warm. He was bewildered. The symptoms and the condition did not jibe.

Gloria opened one eye and watched him unbeknownst. He let go her hand and walked the floor.

She sat up in disgust, demanding, "Don't you know what is the matter with me?"

He shook his head meekly.

She cast her eyes up in despair and said: "I'm afraid you're too stupid a doctor to keep in the family. Good-by."

"In the family?" he stammered, wondering why she said just that. "Did you say 'in the family'?"

She looked at him with despair in her eyes and nodded her head.

"I said 'in the family,'" she said. And, "Oh," said he.

Then he stared at her so hard that she closed her eyes and did not see the change come over his face from bewilderment to an eager guess, to a capricious hope, and a reckless courage. She did not even see him settle her in his arms and kiss her. But she was well aware that he did. And she had a womanly intuition that romance, instead of being ended for her, had just begun.

THE END.

OPERATIONS UNDER SELECTIVE DRAFT

Measures for Raising of Military Forces, as Agreed Upon by Congress.

AGE LIMIT, 21 TO 30 YEARS

Male Citizens, and Those Who Have Declared Their Intention to Become Citizens, of That Age, Liable to Draft—Classes That Are Excluded.

Washington.—The selective draft under which the new United States army will be raised will be applied under the following provisions of the army bill:

"That the enlisted men required to raise and maintain the organizations of the regular army and to complete and maintain the organizations embodying the members of the National Guard drafted into the service of the United States, at the maximum legal strength as by this act provided, shall be raised by voluntary enlistment, or if and whenever the president decides that they cannot effectually be so raised or maintained, then by selective draft; and all other forces hereby authorized shall be raised and maintained by selective draft exclusively; but this provision shall not prevent the transfer to any force of training cadres from other forces.

Age Limits Are Fixed.

"Such draft as herein provided shall be based upon liability to military service of all male citizens or male persons not alien enemies who have declared their intention to become citizens, between the ages of twenty-one and thirty years, both inclusive, and shall take place and be maintained under such regulations as the president may prescribe not inconsistent with the terms of this act.

"Quotas for the several states, territories and the District of Columbia, or subdivisions thereof, shall be determined in proportion to the population thereof and credit shall be given to any state, territory, district, or subdivision thereof for the number of men who were in the military service of the United States as members of the National Guard on April 1, 1917, or who have since said date entered the military service of the United States from any such state, territory, district, or subdivision, either as members of the regular army or the National Guard.

Provides for Military Law.

"All persons drafted into the service of the United States and all officers herein provided for shall, from the date of said draft or acceptance, be subject to the laws and regulations governing the regular army, except as to promotions, so far as such laws and regulations are applicable to persons whose permanent retention in the military service on the active or retired list is not contemplated by existing law, and those drafted shall be required to serve for the period of the existing emergency unless sooner discharged, provided that the president is authorized to raise and maintain by voluntary enlistment or draft, as herein provided, special and technical troops, as he may deem necessary, and to employ them into organizations and to officer them as provided in the third paragraph of section 1 and section 9 of this act.

"Organizations of the force herein provided for, except the regular army, shall, as far as the interests of the service permit, be composed of men who come, and of officers who are appointed from, the same state or locality."

No person liable to military service will be permitted to escape therefrom by furnishing a substitute or the payment of money, and the payment of bounties for recruits is prohibited.

Men Who Are Exempt.

The persons who will be exempted from military service are those designated by this provision of the bill:

"That the vice president of the United States, the officers, legislative, executive, and judicial, of the United States and of the several states, territories, and the District of Columbia, regular or duly ordained ministers of religion, students who at the time of the approval of this act are preparing for the ministry in recognized theological or divinity schools, and all persons in the naval service of the United States shall be exempt from the selective draft herein prescribed.

"Nothing in this act contained shall be construed to require or compel another person to serve in any of the forces herein provided for who is found to be a member of any well-recognized religious sect or organization at present organized and existing and whose existing creed or principles forbid its members to participate in war in any form and whose religious convictions are against war or participation therein in accordance with the creed or principles of said religious organization; but no person so exempted shall be exempted from service in any capacity that the president shall declare to be noncombatant.

Certain Classes to Be Excluded.

"The president is hereby authorized to exclude or discharge from said selective draft and from the draft under the second paragraph of section 1 hereof, or to draft for partial military service only those liable to draft as in this act provided, persons of the following classes: County and municipal

"That the qualifications and conditions for voluntary enlistment as here provided shall be the same as those prescribed by existing law for enlistments in the regular army, except that recruits must be between the ages of eighteen and forty, both inclusive, at the time of their enlistment, and such enlistments, and such enlistments, shall be for the period of the emergency unless sooner discharged.

Plan Grouping by States.

"Provided, That all persons enlisted or drafted under any of the provisions of this act shall as far as practicable be grouped into units by states and the political subdivisions of the same; provided, further, that all persons who have enlisted since April 1, 1917, either in the regular army or in the National Guard, and all persons who have enlisted in the National Guard since June 3, 1916, upon their application, shall be discharged upon the termination of the existing emergency.

"The president may provide for the discharge of any or all enlisted men whose status with respect to dependents renders such discharge advisable, and he may also authorize the employment on any active duty of retired enlisted men of the regular army, either with their rank on the retired list or in higher enlisted grades, and such retired enlisted men shall receive the full pay and allowances of the grades in which they are actively employed."

Provision for Increased Pay.

The army pay increases are set forth in the following provisions:

"That all officers and enlisted men of the forces herein provided for other than the regular army shall be in all respects on the same footing as to pay, allowances, and pensions as officers and enlisted men of corresponding grades and length of service in the regular army; and commencing June 1, 1917, and continuing until the termination of the emergency, all enlisted men of the army of the United States in active service whose base pay does not exceed $24 per month shall receive an increase of $10 per month; those whose base pay is $24, an increase of $8 per month; those whose base pay is $30, $36, or $40, an increase of $6 per month, and those whose base pay is $45 or more, an increase of $5 per month; provided that the increases of pay herein authorized shall not enter into the compilation of continuous service pay."

President's Powers Broadened.

An entirely new provision of the bill as drafted is:

"That the president is authorized to increase or decrease the number of organizations prescribed for the typical brigades, divisions, or army corps of the regular army, and to prescribe such new and different organizations and personnel for army corps, divisions, brigades, regiments, battalions, squadrons, companies, troops, and batteries as the efficiency of the service may require; provided further that the number of organizations in a regiment shall not be increased nor shall the number of regiments be decreased.

The president will officer the regular army and National Guard under existing law, and for the conscript force he is empowered:

"To provide the necessary officers, line and staff, for said force and for organizations of the other forces hereby authorized, or by combining organizations of said other forces, by ordering members of the officers' reserve corps to temporary duty in accordance with the provisions of section 38 of the national defense act approved June 3, 1916; by appointment from the regular army, the officers' reserve corps, from those duly qualified and registered pursuant to section 23 of the act of congress approved January 21, 1903 (thirty-second statutes at large, page 775), from the members of the National Guard drafted into the service of the United States who have been graduated from educational institutions at which military instruction is compulsory or from those who have had honorable service in the regular army, the National Guard, or the volunteer forces or from the country at large; by assigning retired officers of the regular army to active duty with such force with their rank on the retired list and the full pay and allowances of their grade; or by the appointment of retired officers and enlisted men, active or retired, of the regular army as commissioned officers in such forces."

The Purchase of a Saxon Insures Riding Satisfaction

Saxon cars are today generally recognized as the best cars in their price classes.

Their greater value has been definitely and decisively established by their performance records in the hands of thousands of owners in all parts of the country.

The Saxon Motor Car Corporation has earned one of the biggest successes in the automobile industry. It owes its success to the policy of building good cars and building them in quantities. Its cars have won the respect of the motor buying public.

Such absolute satisfaction as is represented in the following testimonial is the big reason back of Saxon success:

"I want to say that Saxon 'Six' is an automobile that will do all the Saxon Motor Car Corporation claims it will do—and more. We have driven our car many thousand miles and can honestly say it is the easiest riding car we ever rode in."

Such boards shall be appointed by the president and shall consist of three or more members, none of whom shall be connected with the military establishment, to be chosen from among the local authorities of such subdivisions or from other citizens residing in the subdivision or area in which the respective boards will have jurisdiction under the rules and regulations prescribed by the president.

Powers of Exempting Boards.

"Such boards shall have power within their respective jurisdictions to hear and determine, subject to review as hereinafter provided, all questions of exemption under this act, and all questions of or claims for including or discharging individuals or classes of individuals from the selective draft, which shall be made under rules and regulations prescribed by the president, except any and every question or claim for including or excluding or discharging persons or classes of persons from the selective draft under the provisions of this act authorizing the president to exclude or discharge from the selective draft persons engaged in industries, including agriculture, found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment, or the effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency."

THE 3 D'S IN DODD'S

Mr. Robert W. Ferguson, Hingham, Mass., writes: I suffered from kidney disorder for years. Had incessant backache and trouble. Nearly died from it at one time while in Vancouver, but overcame it by a persistent use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Finally I was completely cured. I occasionally use the remedy now in order to keep the kidneys regulated. I have the highest praise for Dodd's. Be sure to get "DODD'S," the name with the three D's for deranged, disordered, diseased kidneys, just as Mr. Ferguson did. No similar named article will do.—Adv.

What Does Music Mean To You?

The New Edison

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

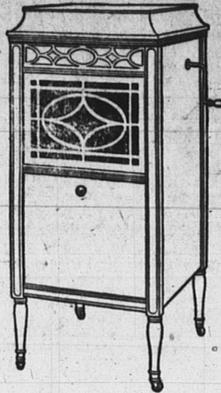

solves the problem. It doesn't give you the travesty on music which is characteristic of the ordinary talking machine. Instead, it gives you the literal Re-Creation of music, meaning that it Re-Creates the human voice and other forms of music with such literal fidelity that if a living artist sang or played in comparison with the New Edison's Re-Creation of such artist's performance you could not tell one from the other, if you closed your eyes. The truth of this statement has been demonstrated in public before more than half a million people and these demonstrations are chronicled in nearly five hundred of America's principal newspapers.

We Want You To Hear

this wonderful new invention. We invite you and your friends to come to our store. We want to be your hosts at a complimentary musicale. You will not be urged to buy. You will not even be asked to buy. We are perfectly satisfied if you will come and listen.

NOTICE—Please do not ask us to sell you Edison Re-Creations if you intend to attempt to play to play them on any other instrument than the New Edison. No other instrument can bring out the true musical quality of Edison Re-Creations. Furthermore, injury to the records is likely to result if you attempt to play them on an ordinary phonograph or talking machine.

DO IT NOW

Chelsea People Should Not Wait Until It Is Too Late.

The appalling death-rate from kidney disease is due largely to the fact that the little kidney troubles are usually neglected until they become serious. The slight symptoms often give place to chronic disorders and the sufferer may slip gradually into some serious form of kidney complaint.

If you suffer from backache, headaches, dizzy spells; if kidney secretions are irregular of passage and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. Help the kidneys at once.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney disorders—they act where others fail. Over one hundred thousand people have recommended them. Here's a case at home:

Charles Schmid, shoemaker, W. Middle St., Chelsea, says: "I had lumbago and backache and when I stooped it was hard work to straighten. My kidneys were disordered and knowing them—They gave me relief. I don't hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others who suffer from kidney trouble."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Schmid had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

GROUP Made Harmless by Foley's Honey and Tar A few doses toward nightfall wards off croup, hoarseness and stuffy wheezy breathing. Keep it on hand. Sold everywhere in Chelsea. Adv.

WAR TARIFF BILL MAKES EVERYBODY PAY HIS SHARE

$1,800,000,000 To Be Raised in Year by Measure Reported to House.

BOOST DUTIES; NO FREE LIST

Limit on Incomes Reduced to $1,000 for Single Men and $2,000 for Married Men—Taxes for Heirs Are Increased—Tariff Raised 10 Per Cent and Articles on Free List Are Taxed 10 Per Cent.

Washington.—A war revenue bill designed to raise $1,800,000,000 by taxation during the coming year was approved finally in the house ways and means committee Tuesday by unanimous vote and reported to the house Wednesday.

In the meantime the senate finance committee is holding public hearings on the bill, with a view to being ready to report soon after the house acts.

To bring the amount to be raised up to the desired total, the house committee wrote into the bill a flat increase of 10 per cent in all existing tariff duties and 10 per cent duties on all articles now admitted free, all estimated to bring in $240,000,000, this more than doubling the present tariff revenues.

In addition it was decided to make all income-tax increases retroactive, beginning with the present calendar year. Other taxes provided for would become effective upon the signing of the bill.

The income-tax increases, applying to both personal and corporation incomes, are designed to produce $533,000,000 more than the present income-tax receipts.

Income and Profits.

Most of the new revenue will come from the income, excess profits, and inheritance taxes and additional tariff duties, but the levies of the bill would reach into many other sources.

Letter mail rates would be increased from two to three cents an ounce, and postal cards from one to two cents, while $19,000,000 would be added to charges against newspapers under a new system based upon the present parcel-post zones.

Internal-revenue taxes upon liquor and tobacco would be materially increased, and there would be taxes on amusements, and stamp taxes of wide scope.

Increase in Supertaxes.

The war income tax section would double the present normal tax of 2 per cent on individuals and 3 per cent on corporations. It would lower the exemptions of individual incomes from $4,000 to $2,000 in the case of married persons and from $3,000 to $1,000 for the unmarried.

In addition, beginning with incomes of $5,000, graduated supertaxes would be imposed, in addition to the normal 4 per cent, ranging up to 33 per cent on all incomes over $500,000 a year.

The surtax schedule follows:

Table with columns for Income, Tax, and Tax Under Original Law. Rows show income brackets from $5,000 to $100,000 and corresponding tax rates.

HOW INCOME TAX WORKS OUT

This table is based on an exemption of $2,000 for heads of families. For persons unmarried and not heads of families the exemption is $1,000.

Table showing tax calculations for various income levels. Columns include Income, Tax Under Original Law, Tax Under Proposed Law, and Tax Under Proposed Law with Exemption.

NEW AND ADDITIONAL TAXES PROPOSED IN $1,800,000,000 WAR REVENUE BILL

These figures are those of the house bill. When the measure goes to the senate it will be subject to amendment and doubtless in many cases there will be revision. The senate finance committee will hold hearings at which arguments and objections may be presented.

Table listing various taxes and their rates. Includes categories like All tariff duties, Letter postage, Postal cards, Excess profits tax, Corporation tax, Stock exchange transactions, Capital stock, Bonds, Indemnity bonds, Drafts, Deeds, Proxy, Power of attorney, Life insurance, Marine, Casualty policies, Freight bills, Passenger tickets, Steamboat tickets, Seats, berths, Express rates, Automobiles, Electric power, Musical instruments, Talking machines, Jewelry, Amusement tickets, Moving picture film, Chewing gum, Distilled spirits, Beer, Still and sparkling wines, Grape brandy, Soda-fountain and similar drinks, Natural mineral or table water, Carbonic acid gas, Tobacco tax, Cigars, Cigarettes, Tennis rackets, Fishing rods, Billiard and pool tables, Chess and checkerboards, Playing cards, Yachts, Club memberships, Oil pipe lines, Postal rates, Religious and educational papers, Advertising, Newspapers, and Theatricals.

Washington.—The administration measure is passed after 5 weeks of stubborn fighting. DRY AMENDMENT IS KILLED. Clause in Bill That Would Have Made Manufacture of Liquor Illegal Is Stricken Out. ESPIONAGE BILL PASSED BY SENATE

ADMINISTRATION MEASURE IS PASSED AFTER 5 WEEKS OF STUBBORN FIGHTING.

DRY AMENDMENT IS KILLED

Clause in Bill That Would Have Made Manufacture of Liquor Illegal Is Stricken Out.

Washington—Stripped of censorship and prohibition, the administration's espionage bill was passed by the senate Monday afternoon by a vote of 77 to 6, after approximately five weeks of the most stubborn fighting the upper house has seen in recent years.

- Washington—The administration espionage bill provides for: Prevention of injury or destruction of vessels. Punishment of espionage and disclosure of information to the enemy. Draconic penalties for conspiracies to set fire to or blow up ships. Prevention of interference with foreign commerce by violent means. Enforcement of neutrality. Seizure of arms and other articles intended for illegal export. Executive authority to declare an embargo on exports. Suppression of false propaganda to influence the foreign relations of the nation. Draconic new passport regulations. Issuance of search warrants to detect espionage. Closing the mails to treasonable matter.

DRY AMENDMENT KILLED.

By a vote of 47 to 37, the senate unexpectedly reversed its action of Saturday in accepting the Cummins amendment, prohibiting the use of grains, cereals, sugar and syrups in the manufacture of alcoholic liquors.

FOOD BILLS ARE INTRODUCED

Government Aims to Centralize Buying of War Supplies.

Washington—Two more important food measures, backed by the administration, it is understood, have been introduced in the senate by Senator Gore, chairman of the agriculture committee. One would authorize the president to appoint a controller-general of supplies for the war period and the other would prevent interstate or foreign shipment of calves and cows for slaughter.

At the reception in city hall for Mr. Balfour and the British commission, Mayor Mitchell referred to Mr. Choate as the "foremost citizen of New York."

Mr. Choate, born in Salem, Mass., January 24, 1832, was one of the most distinguished practitioners of law in the United States, ambassador to England with signal success, a speaker applauded on innumerable occasions, and a remarkable octogenarian.

TEUTON LOSSES TERRIBLE

To Fill Gaps Troops Are Being Withdrawn From Russian Front.

London—Official news comes from Petrograd that Hindenburg already has sent 40 divisions—800,000 men—from the eastern front to the west to check the Entente drive.

Upon the heels of this news come dispatches from the front, giving authoritative figures as to the German losses in the vain counter thrusts against the French and British. Correspondents at British headquarters, taking advantage of a new lull in the fighting, telegraphed totals compiled from authoritative quarters, showing unprecedented casualties on the German side.

Between April 16 and May 1, these figures show, the Teutons lost in killed, wounded and captured 200,000 men on the French front alone. This makes an average of more than 500 men killed every hour in sixteen days. In the last two weeks, it is asserted, the German losses were even greater.

Nearly 50,000 prisoners were taken by the French and British between April 9 and May 12, the exact figure being 49,579, including 976 officers. To fill these terrific gaps, Hindenburg is throwing more and more divisions from the east into the western battle, relying upon the disorganization of the Russian army to eliminate it as an offensive factor.

PAN-AMERICA TO SEND FOOD

Promise to Double Production if U. S. Will Furnish Capital.

Washington—Prospects of food exports totaling approximately $1,000,000 from Latin-America for the United States and the Entente Allies are held out here by the Pan-American union. More than three-fourths of the food will be shipped to England and France.

John Barrett, director of the union, announced this government work had been extended to all Latin-America in an effort to obtain this stupendous supply of foodstuffs. The United States government is urged to furnish the Latin-American nations with capital, machinery and agricultural experts necessary to double the food production.

GUARDS EXPECT TO TRAIN AT GRAYLING

LEADERS ARE PREPARING CAMP TO ACCOMMODATE ENTIRE ELEVENTH DIVISION.

EXPECT TO MOBILIZE JULY 1

Plan Has No Official Sanction But State Preparedness Board Will Advance Money Needed.

Lansing—Michigan and Wisconsin National Guard, comprising the 11th division, probably will be mobilized at Grayling, July 1.

Without orders, National Guard leaders are preparing the guard camp. It is planned to house the entire division under wood.

While this plan has no official sanction, it is certain the state preparedness board will supply at least part of the needed funds and take its chances of getting the money back.

The whole move is not a gamble. Gen. Barry commanding the central department, has indicated his approval, which he could not give officially.

The quartermaster general has been instructed to prepare quarters for the troops at these points in all departments and officers already have been assigned to that work.

In the meantime Quartermaster General Rogers is preparing bids for the supplies that will be needed when the guardsmen are assembled. It is believed by military men in Lansing that if the National Guardsmen are sent to Grayling July 1, they will remain at the state camp until the 1st of September and will then be ordered into a concentration camp somewhere in the south.

From September 1 until November 1 the state camp could be used as a training quarters for the men called for duty under the selective conscription law.

LOW PRICES IMPROBABLE

State Market Director Says Farmers Need Not Fear Over-Production.

Lansing—Farmers who are refraining from planting maximum acreages of crops because they fear over-production and low prices, are making themselves victims of needless worry in the opinion of James N. McBride, state director of marketing. Prices at harvest time, he declares, are practically certain to be high enough to insure a good return on crops, and particularly on beans, wheat and potatoes.

"The probability that beans will be in excess of $5 a bushel, and wheat around $2, will enormously increase the consumption of potatoes over normal," said Director McBride.

"During the civil war, the farmer who had the nerve to grow crops established himself financially. Assuming a preponderating crops, and nature in her most lavish moods, there is equipment at hand to dry potatoes and conserve the supply.

Plans of beet sugar manufacturers to utilize their pulp dryers to dry potatoes were well in hand for 1915 if the crop of that year had been like that of 1914, when potatoes failed. These same plans will be carried out in 1917."

CARE FOR DOCTOR'S FAMILIES

Medical Society Will Provide for Dependents of Those Who Enlist.

Lansing—Michigan doctors who go to the front can go with the assurance that their wives, babies and dependents will be well provided for, and with the assurance that during their absence their practice will be taken care of by the physicians who have remained at home because of the age limit or physical disability.

Members of the Michigan State Medical society, in an extraordinary session in Battle Creek vetoed unanimously to take care of all dependents of doctors who go to the front and preserve their practice.

It was also decided by the state society to ask the war department to give medical students and those about to begin the study of medicine in service and are not slackers. Several doctors insisted that unless this were done the students with red blood in their veins would enlist in the United States army and if the doctors who there will be no doctors in a few years.

But as if his thoughts were telegraphic messages, she did the very thing he feared.

"We won't be in before midnight," she said, "but I'll send you to Jonesville in the morning."

"Thank you, ma'am—I'll have to go right through."

"I'll get you there in time for business. We've gained a reputation for inhospitableness at Las Palmas that I want to overcome. Mr. Austin ought to know," she added, "about this—matter we were discussing, and I want him to meet you."

"He has!" Dave said, shortly; and at his tone Alaire looked up.

"So!" She studied his grim face. "And you quarreled?"

"I'd really prefer to go on, ma'am. I'll get to Jonesville somehow."

"You refuse to stay under his roof?"

"That's about it."

"I'm sorry," she said not asking for further explanation.

The windows of Las Palmas were black, the house silent, when they arrived at their journey's end; Dolores was fretful, and her mistress ached in every bone. When Jose had helped his countrywoman into the house, Alaire said:

"If you insist upon going through, you must take the car. You can return it tomorrow."

"And—about Panflo?" Dave queried.

"Wait. Perhaps I'll decide what is best to do in the meantime. Good night."

Law took her extended hand. Alaire was glad that he did not fondle it in that detestable Mexican fashion of which she had lately experienced so much; glad that the grasp of his long, strong fingers was merely firm and friendly. When he stepped back into the car and drove off through the night, she stood for some time looking after him.

Blaze Jones had insisted that Dave live at his house, and the Ranger had accepted the invitation; but as it was late when the latter arrived at Jonesville, he went to the hotel for a few hours' rest. When he drove his borrowed machine up to the Jones house, about breakfast time, both Blaze and Paloma were delighted to see him.

"Say, now! What you doing rolling around in a gasoline go-devil?" the elder man inquired, and Law was forced to explain.

"Father has never learned to drive a car without yelling 'Gee' and 'Haw,'" laughed Paloma. "And he thinks he has title to the whole road, too. You know these Mexicans are slow about pulling their wagons to one side. Well, father got mad one day, and when a team refused him the right of way, he whipped out his revolver and fired."

Blaze smiled broadly. "It worked great. And believe me, them Greasers took to the ditch. I went through like a hot wind, but I shot up sixty-five cartridges between here and town."

"Why didn't Mrs. Austin ask you to stay all night at Las Palmas?" the girl inquired of Dave.

"She did,"

"Wonderful!" Paloma's surprise was evidently sincere. "I suppose you refused because of the way Ed treated you. Tell me, is she nice?"

"She's lovely."

This vehement declaration brought a sudden gleam of interest into the questioner's eyes.

"They say she has the most wonderful gowns and jewels, and dresses for dinner every night. Well"—Paloma tossed her head—"I'm going to have some nice clothes, too. You wait!"

"Now don't you start riggin' yourself up for meals," Blaze said, warningly. "First thing I know, you'll have me in a full-dress suit, spillin' soup on my shirt." Then to his guest he complained, feelingly: "I don't know what's come over Paloma lately; this new dressmaker has plumb stampeded her. Somebody'd ought to run that feline out of town before she ruins me."

"She is a very nice woman," complacently declared the daughter; but her father snorted loudly.

DAVE LAW RECEIVES TOKENS OF GRATITUDE FROM RICARDO GUZMAN AND MRS. AUSTIN—DURING ANOTHER DAY WITH HIM ALAIRE DISCOVERS THAT THE RANGER SECRETLY LOVES HER

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Alaire Austin, handsome young mistress of Las Palmas ranch, lost in the Texas desert, wanders into the camp of David Law, state Ranger, waiting in ambush to capture a Mexican murderer. She has to stay 24 hours, until Law captures his man, kills another and escorts her home. "Young Ed" Austin, drunkard, berates his wife and makes insulting insinuations about the ranger. Law discovers Austin is secretly in league with Mexican rebels and horse thieves. Mrs. Austin encounters Gen. Luis Longorio, Mexican Federal, when she goes to La Feria, her Mexican ranch, to collect damages, and he makes odious love to her. Dave Law kills a cattle thief and comes into unpleasant contact with Austin, at the same time becoming more friendly with Alaire.

all Jonesville walkin' around ladders, and spittin' through crossed fingers, and countin' the spots on their nails. He interprets their dreams and locates lost articles."

"Maybe he can tell me where to find Adolfo Urbina?" Dave suggested.

"Humph! If he can't, Tad Lewis can. Say, Dave, this case of yours has stirred up a lot of feelin' 'gainst Tad. The prosecutin' attorney says he'll sure clinch him and Urbina both. One of Lewis' men got on a bender the other night and declared Adolfo would never come to trial."

"What did he mean?"

"It may have been mesca! talk, but witnesses sometimes have a way of disappearin'. I wouldn't put anything past that gang."

Not long after breakfast Don Ricardo Guzman appeared at the Jones house and warmly greeted his two friends. To Dave he explained:

"Last night I came to town, and this morning I heard you had returned, so I rode out at once. You were unsuccessful?"

"Our man never went to Pueblo."

"Exactly. I thought as much. However, I go to meet Blanco today, and perhaps I shall discover something."

"What takes you over there?" Blaze inquired.

"Wait until I tell you. Senor David, here, brings me good fortune at every turn. He honors my poor, thirsty rancho with a visit and brings a glorious rain; but he destroys my enemies like a thunderbolt. No sooner is this done than I receive from the Federals an offer for fifty of my best horses, Caramba! Such a price, too. They are in a great hurry, which looks as if they expected an attack from the Candelarios at Matamoros. I hope so. God grant these traitors are defeated. Anyhow, the horses have gone, and today I go to get my money in gold."

"Who's going with you?" asked Law.

Ricardo shrugged. "Nobody. There is no danger."

Blaze shook his head. "They know you are a red-hot rebel. I wouldn't trust them."

"They know, also, that I am an American, like you gentlemen," proudly asserted Guzman. "That makes a difference. I supported the Liberator—God rest his soul!—and I secretly assist those who fight his assassins, but so does everybody else. I am receiving a fine price for those horses, so it is worth a little risk. Now, senor," he addressed himself to the ranger, "I have brought you a little present. Day and night my boys and I have worked upon it, for we know the good heart you have. It was finished yesterday. See!" Ricardo unwrapped a bundle he had fetched, displaying a magnificent bridle of plaited horsehair. It was cunningly wrought, and lavishly decorated with silver fittings. "You recognize those hairs?" he queried. "They came from the mane and tail of your bonita."

"Bessie Belle!" Law accepted the handsome token, then held out his hand to the Mexican. "That was mighty fine of you, Ricardo. I—You couldn't have pleased me more. We're going to be friends."

Guzman's delight was keen, his grizzled face beamed, and he showed his white teeth in a smile. "Say no more. What is mine is yours—my house, my cattle, my right hand, and my sons will serve you, and you must come often to see us. Now I must go." He shook hands heartily and rode away, waving his hat.

"There's a good Greaser," Blaze said with conviction, and Dave agreed feelingly.

"Yes! I'd about do anything for him, after this." Then he took the bridle in for Paloma to admire.

CHAPTER XI.

The Rodeo.

It was with a feeling of some reluctance that Dave drove up to Las Palmas shortly after the lunch hour, for he had no desire to meet "Young Ed." However, to his relief, Austin did not appear, and inasmuch as Alaire did not refer to her husband in any way, Dave decided that he must be absent, perhaps on one of his notorious sprees.

Of course Dave had to tell of Don Ricardo's thoughtful gift, and concluded by saying, "I think this must be my birthday, although it doesn't fit in with the calendar."

"Don Ricardo has his enemies, but he is a good-hearted old man."

"Yes," Dave agreed. Then, more gravely, "I'm sorry I let him go across the river." There was a pause, "If anybody harms him, I reckon I'll have a feud on my hands, for I'm a grateful person."

"I believe it. I can see that you are loyal."

you're not in too great a hurry to go home, you may go with me."

"That would be fine," he agreed.

"Come, then. I have a horse for you." As she led the way back toward the farm buildings, she explained: "I'm selling off a bunch of cattle. Benito is rounding them up and cutting out the best ones."

"You keep them, I reckon."

"Always. That's how I improve the grade. You will see a splendid herd of animals, Mr. Law—the best in south Texas. I suppose you're interested in such things."

"I'd rather watch a good herd of stock than the best show in New York," he told her.

When they came to the corral, an intricate series of pens and chutes at the rear of the outbuildings, Law beheld two thoroughbred horses standing at the hitching rail.

"I'm proud of my horses, too," said Alaire.

"You have reason to be." With his eyes alight, Dave examined the fine points of both animals. He ran a caressing hand over them, and they recognized in him a friend.

"These beauties were raised on Kentucky bluegrass. Brother and sister, aren't they?"

"Yes. Montrose and Montrosa are their names. The horse is mine, the mare is yours." Seeing that Dave did not comprehend the full import of her words, she added: "Yours to keep, I mean. You must make another Bessie Belle out of her."

"Mine? Oh—ma'am!" Law turned his eyes from Alaire to the mare, then back again. "You're too kind. I can't take her."

"You must."

Dave made as if to say something, but was too deeply embarrassed. Unable to tear himself away from the mare's side, he continued to stroke her shining coat while she turned an intelligent face to him, showing a solitary white star in the center of her forehead.

"See! She is nearly the same color as Bessie Belle."

"Yes! I—I want her, ma'am; I'm just sick from wanting her, but—won't you let me buy her?"

"Oh, I wouldn't sell her." Then, as Dave continued to yearn over the animal, like a small boy tempted beyond his strength, Alaire laughed. "I owe you something, Mr. Law, and a horse more or less means very little to me."

He yielded; he could not possibly continue his resistance, and in his happy face Alaire took her reward.

The mare meanwhile was doubtfully nosing her new master, deciding whether or not she liked him; but when he offered her a cube of sugar, her uncertainties disappeared, and they became friends then and there.

He talked to her, too, in a way that would have won any female heart, and it was plain to anyone who knew horses that she began to consider him wholly delightful.

"You do speak their language," Alaire said, after she had watched them for a few minutes. "You have bewitched the creature." Dave nodded silently, and his face was young. Then, half to herself, the woman murmured, "Yes, you have a heart."

"I beg pardon?"

"Nothing. I'm glad you like her."

"Do you mind if I call her something else than Rosa, just to myself?"

"Why, she's yours! Don't you like the name?"

"Oh, yes! But—see!" Dave laid a finger upon Montrosa's forehead. "She wears a lone star, and I'd like to call her that—'The Lone Star.'"

Alaire smiled in tacit assent; then when the two friends had completely established their intimacy, she mounted her own horse and led the way to the round-up.

"I was starved on sentiment when I was little, but it's in me bigger than a skinned ox. They say gratitude is an elemental, primitive emotion—"

"Perhaps that's why it is so rare nowadays," said Alaire, not more than half in jest.

"You find it rare?" Dave looked up keenly. "Well, you have certainly laid up a store of it today."

Benito and his men had rounded up perhaps three thousand head of cattle when Alaire and her companion appeared, and they were in process of "cutting out." It was an animated scene, one fitted to rouse enthusiasm in any plainsman, for the stock was fat and healthy; there were many calves, and the incessant, rumbling complaint of the herd was blood-stirring. The Las Palmas cowboys rode like centaurs; the air was drumming to swift hoofbeats, and over all was the hoarse, unceasing undertone from countless bovine throats. Out near the grub wagon the remuda was grazing, and thither at intervals came the perspiring horsemen to change their mounts.

Benito, wet, dusty and tired, rode up to his employer to report progress.

"Dios! This is hot work for an old man. We will never finish by dark," said he, whereupon Law promptly volunteered his services.

"Lend me your rope, Benito." Dave slid out of his seat and, with an arm around the mare's neck, whispered into her ear. Rosa answered by nosing the speaker over with brazen familiarity.

"Diablo! He has a way with horses, hasn't he?" Benito grinned. "Now, that Montrosa is wilder than a deer."

The giant herd milled and eddied, revolving like a vast pool of deep, swift water. The bulls were quarrelsome, the steers were stubborn, and the wet cows were distracted. In and out of this confusion the cowboys rode, following the animals selected for separation, forcing them out through dust and brush, until they had joined the smaller herd of choice animals which were to remain on the ranch. It was swift, sweaty, exhausting work, the kind these Mexicans loved, for it was not only spectacular but held an amount of danger. Dave Law made himself one of them.

Alaire sat her horse in the heart of the crowding herd and watched the Ranger. Good riding she was accustomed to. But Law seemed to inspire his mount. In spite of the man's unusual size, he rode like a feather; he was grace and life and youth personified. Now he sat as erect in his saddle as a swaying reed; again he stretched himself out like a whiplash. Once he had begun the work he would not stop.

All that afternoon the cowboys labored, and toward sundown the depleted herd was driven to the water. Then through the cool twilight came the drive to the next pasture, and here the patience of the cowboys was taxed to the utmost, for as the stronger members of the herd forged ahead, the weaker, worried, littlest members fell behind. But now these swarthy, daredevil riders were as gentle as women; they urged the tiny youngsters onward with harmless switches or with painless blows from loose-collared ratas; they picked them up in their arms and rode with them.

Once through the gate and safe inside the restraining pasture fence, the herd was allowed to settle down. Then began a patient search by outraged mothers, a series of mournful quests that were destined to continue far into the night; endless nosings and sniffings and caressings, which would keep up until each cow had found her own, until each calf was butting its head against maternal ribs and gaining that consolation which it craved.

But love is a dangerous element, especially when it occurs between a married woman and a man not her husband—Both Alaire and Dave discover this and are unhappy—read about developments in the next installment.

Disheartened.

"An astronomer has been telling me about the incredible speed with which light travels," said the motorist.

"Why should that make you look sad?"

"He's just about convinced me that 60 miles an hour in my car is a mere snail's pace."

HOLLWEG OFFERS PEACE TO RUSSIA

REFUSES, HOWEVER, TO OUTLINE KAISER'S TERMS TO OTHER ALLIED NATIONS.

CALLS QUESTION PREMATURE

Chancellor is Bitterly Attacked by Socialist Leader Who Threatens Revolution in Germany.

Berlin—Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, imperial chancellor, refused in the reichstag Tuesday to give Germany's terms of peace. Instead, he offered peace to Russia. The only condition, he said, was annunciation by Russia of her aims of conquest.

When he ended a long threatening storm broke loose. Refusing to be content with vague offers, hopes and promises, his opponents opened up the bitterest attack launched against a German statesman since Bismarck's days.

The Socialist Independent leader, Ledebour, declared it impossible for Germany to win a war of subjugation; and expressed the conviction that a revolution must happen in Germany as it had happened in Russia. "We shall propose a constitutional committee," he said, "to take preparatory steps in the direction of introducing a republic in Germany."

Philipp Scheidemann, in introducing the Social Democratic interpellation, said:

"Peace by agreement would be good fortune for Europe. Ninety-nine per cent of all the peoples look with hope and longing to Stockholm. If France and Great Britain renounce annexation and Germany insists thereon, we shall have a revolution in the country."

Calls Questions Premature.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg asserted that the questions proposed called for the government's specific peace program, the announcement of which would be premature now.

While appreciating the passionate desire of all classes to know the government's views, the chancellor declared he would not permit himself to be swayed by pressure from any source, and that he was not under the spell of any party or clique.

The best interests of the nation, he said demanded the reticence he had imposed on himself in the continuous clamor since December 1, 1915, should be observed by him until the moment was ripe. He was sure that such a course would be endorsed by the nation at large, and would also meet the views of the majority of the members of the Reichstag.

RUSSIAN SITUATION HOPEFUL

Executive Committee of Radicals Votes for Coalition Now.

Petrograd, via London—The executive committee of the Council of Workmen and Soldiers' delegates, after discussing the internal situation in Russia, decided by 41 votes against 19 to favor the participation of representatives of socialist parties in the provisional government.

It is believed that this action virtually saves Russia as a nation, and insures the formation of a coalition government and also assures the continued participation of Russian forces on a more active scale in the war against the Teutonic allies.

The council of workmen and soldiers' delegates issued an appeal to the Socialists of Germany and Austria to prevent their troops from being hurled against the western front in order to crush France and then dash on to Russia.

SEVEN U-BOATS CAPTURED

Reported to Have Been on Way to U. S. When Taken By English.

An American Port—A fleet of at least seven German submarines has been sunk or captured by the British navy while on its way to United States waters to raid American shipping, according to information received here.

The submarines were on their way into the Atlantic when overhauled by British men of war.

The news was brought here by an officer who recently arrived on an Atlantic liner coming into an American port. He learned that the British admiralty through its secret service obtained information of the departure of this submarine fleet bound for American waters.

The admiralty took prompt and effective measures to block North sea channels. The submarines captured were taken to a British port.

Corunna—Frank Strello dropped his hat in his haste to get out of the chicken coop of Donald Warriner, a neighbor, last fall. Last week a jury found him guilty of stealing chickens.

Big Rapids—Eighteen cars of coal are side tracked at Byres, six miles south of here, on the G. R. I., while Big Rapids and many other cities are without fuel. Byres is merely a side track. It isn't even a hamlet, and passenger trains do not usually stop there. Nobody around here knows who owns the coal.

You could put all our United States (excluding Alaska) into Brazil, and have 200,000 square miles left.

GOOD HOMEMADE MILK STOOL

Device Intended to Hold Pail and Provide Seat for Milker Made Out of Fork Handle.

A homemade milk stool, serving to hold the pail and provide a seat for the milker is made out of an old fork handle and an inch board 12 inches wide and 3 feet long.

To make the stool cut a board 2 feet long and 1 foot wide. With a draw-shave taper it to 6 inches wide at one end. Two cleats, each 4 inches by 6 inches, are fastened crosswise of the grain at the narrow end to prevent splitting of the board. With an expansive bit or bridge auger, drill three holes in which to insert the legs. The two front legs are cut from an old fork handle, and hold the pail flat form 4 inches above the floor. The back leg is driven through leaving the pail platform level with the floor, and projecting above to support the seat at a height convenient for the milker. A cross piece 6 inches by 12 inches serves as a seat, and is secured on top of the back leg with a wood screw.

This stool removes the weight of the pail from the milker's knees, yet supports it in the same position. If the cow should want to kick, the milker can shift all the weight to the back leg, and swing the pail from beneath the animal.

Materials required: First, fork handle cut as follows: One piece, 15 inches; 2 pieces, each, 4 inches. Second, inch board 3 feet by 1 foot cut as follows: One piece, 12 by 24 inches; 2 pieces, each, 4 by 6 inches; 1 piece, 6 by 12 inches.—Horseshoe Dairyman.

BIG MONEY FROM PUREBREDS

Interesting Comparison Made by Illinois Agricultural College on Dairy Profits.

A comparison of the yearly incomes of 124 farms where purebred bulls were kept at the head of the dairy herd, with 463 dairy farms where a grade bull was used, has been made by the Illinois Agricultural college.

The average farm income for the first list of farms was $1,102 after deducting taxes, interest on investment, etc. Where a grade bull was used the farm income was $734. On 83 farms where scrub bulls were used the farm income was only $243, or only half enough to pay interest on the investment, to say nothing about any pay for the owner's time.

HANDY COVERED MILK PAILS

More Important in Dirty Stable Than in Clean Ones—Wire Gauge is Sometimes Used.

Covered milk pails are more necessary in a dirty than in a clean stable. Such pails are designed to reduce the size of the opening and thereby expose less milk to the air and the dust. In some cases, layers of cotton and wire gauge are placed over the small-topped pail.

Careful trials have demonstrated that 60 per cent less dirt and from 25 to 90 per cent fewer bacteria get into the milk when covered milking pails are used.

DAIRYING INDUSTRY IN WEST

Small Farmer is More Dependent Upon Sale of Products Than Many Are Ready to Admit.

No greater calamity could befall the farmers of the West than the destruction of all places where cream or butter could be sold. The small farmer is more dependent upon the sale of dairy products than many are willing to admit. The cream-receiving stations and the possibility of easy shipment to the creamery have for years been the mainstay for many western farmers and as such they will continue to be.

AN OPERATION AVERTED

Philadelphia, Pa.—"One year ago I was very sick and I suffered with pains in my side and back until I nearly went crazy. I went to different doctors and they all said I had female trouble and would not get any relief until I would be operated on. I had suffered for four years before this time, but I kept getting worse the more medicine I took. Every month since I was a young girl I had suffered with cramps in my sides and back and was never regular. I saw your advertisement in the newspaper and the picture of a woman who had been saved from an operation and this picture was impressed on my mind. The doctor had given me only two more days to make up my mind so I sent my husband to the drug store at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and believe me, I soon noticed a change and when I had finished the third bottle I was cured and never felt better. I grant you the privilege to publish my letter and am only too glad to let other women know of my cure."—Mrs. T. MCGONIGAL, 3432 Hartville Street, Phila., Pa.

Safe Position. "I heard the boys say, Sam, that you were bragging to them about going to the front."

YES! MAGICALLY! CORNS LIFT OUT WITH FINGERS

You say to the drug store man, "Give me a small bottle of freezone." This will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

A few drops of this new ether compound applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, relieves the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, dries up and can be lifted off with the fingers.

This new way to rid one's feet of corns was introduced by a Cincinnati man, who says that freezone dries in a moment, and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without irritating the surrounding skin.

If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to order a small bottle from his wholesale drug house for you.—adv.

Some Objection. "I would like to run over in my automobile some fine evening if you're willing."

"Hold on a minute; not if you want to run over me."

THE NEW DE LAVAL

THE worth of a separator depends very largely upon its bowl. A separator bowl must be scientifically designed, properly constructed and perfectly balanced or it will not only lose some cream to begin with, but will soon get out of balance and lose a great deal more cream, besides wearing out the bearings and gears in a short time. That is why the average life of a cheap separator is only two or three years.

The bowl of the NEW De Laval is self-centering

The new De Laval bowl is so constructed and so balanced upon its detached spindle that it will run true and do perfect work even after the machine has been in use for a long time.

The De Laval bowl has always been noted for its close skimming under all conditions, but the new De Laval patented milk distributing device, together with the larger discs, makes the new De Laval bowl an even closer skimmer than the old one and gives considerably greater capacity into the bargain.

Endurance—the Supreme Tire Quality

United States Tires have proved that they have that supreme quality, —that miles are packed into their structure the way endurance is packed into steel.

A vast number of the motoring public know that by experience,

—and they have answered in the only way that the buying public can answer,

—by giving United States Tires tremendous sales increases,

—sales increases that are vastly greater than even the sensational increase in the number of automobiles this year over last.

United States Tires Are Good Tires
