The State War Preparedness Board, which has been conducting an active campaign for the recruitment of the National Guard for several months, is making a final appeal to the young men of the state to enlist. The Board points out that it is almost the afternoon of the last day for those who are hesitating in their desire to become volunteers. "Any young man who desires to serve with a Michigan regiment in this war," says the appeal in part, 'rather than among strangers of the selective army, has little time left. First, because the National Guard is tilling up rapidly; in fact it is now very close to war strength. Second, because there is a probability after the Guard is called out, recruits will actually be refused because the lacking men will be taken from the selective army. "If the Michigan troops should be sent directly to the border, these additional men, to save transportation, might come to them from the drafts first time in his life Jose Sanchez felt terror-a terror too awful to be eadured-and he made the sign.

He was no longer the insolent defler, the challenger, but an imploring wretch, whose last powers of resist-ance had been completely shattered. His frightened eyes were glued to that devilish vessel in which his manhood had dissolved, the fear of it made a woman of him.

Slowly, in sighs and whimpers, in agonies of reluctance, his story came; his words were rendered almost incom prehensible by his abysmal fright. When he had purged himself of his secret Dave promptly unbound him; then leaving him more than half dead, he went to the telephone which connected the pumping station with Las Palmas and called up the ranch. He was surprised when Blaze Jones answered. Blaze, it seemed, had just urrived, summoned by news of the tragedy. The countryside had been slayer was being organized.

"Call it off," Dave told him. "Tve got your man." Blaze stuttered his surprise and incredulity. "I mean it. It's Jose Sanchez, and he has confessed. I want you to come here, quick; and come alone, if you don't mind. I need your help."

Inside of ten minutes Jones piloted his automobile into the clearing beside the river, and, leaving his motor running, leaped from the car. Dave met him at the door of the Morales house and briefly told him the story of Jose's capture.

"Say! That's quick work," the roll his head, he held his breath until runcher cried, admiringly. "Why, Ed his face grew purple and his eyes ain't cold yet! You gave him the 'wabulged. He strained like a man upon

A learned counsel on the defend-ant's side lost his temper, as well as his case, and remarked rudely to the opposing lawyer: "Why do you so often use the word 'also' and 'likewise?' They both mean exactly the same, as far as I can see."

Rosa screamed again; she writhed; she tried to sink her teeth into her captor's flesh. In her body was the strength of a full-grown man, and Dave could hardly hold her. But suddenly, as the two scuffled, from the back room of the house came a sound which caused Dave to release the girl as abruptly as he had selzed her-it was the clink and tinkle of Mexican spurs upon a wooden floor.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Water-Cure. Without an instant's hesitation Dave flung himself past Rosa and through the inner door. Juse Sanchez met him with a shout;

the shock of their collision overbore the lighter man, and the two went down together, arms and legs intertwined. The horse-breaker fired his revelver blindly-a deafening explosion inside those four walls-but he was powerless against his antagonist's strength and ferocity. It required but a moment for Law to master him, to wreach the weapon from his grasp, and then, with the aid of Jose's silk neckscarf, to bind his wrists tightly. From the front of the little house came the crash of a door violently slammed as Rosa profited by the diversion to save herself. When finally Jose stood, panting and snarling, his back to the wall, Dave regarded him with a sinister contraction of the lips that was almost a grin. "Well," he said, drawing a deep breath, "I see you didn't go to the east pasture this morning." "What do you want of me?" Jose maraged to gasp.

There was a somewhat prolonged dleace, during which Dave continued to stare at his prisoner with that same disquieting expression. "Why did you kill Don Eduardo?" he asked.

"I? Bah! Who says I killed him?" Jose glared defiance. "Why are you ooking at me? Come! Take me to jall, if you think that will do any

"Will you tell me, or will you force me to wring the truth out of you?" Jose answered by spitting at his cap-

"So! Torture, ch? Good. I can believe it of you. Well, a slow fire will not make me speak."

"No. A fire would be too easy, Jose." "Eh ?"

Without answer Dave strode out of the room. He was back before his prisoner could do more than wrench at his bonds, and with him he brought his lariat and his canteen.

"What are you going to do?" Jose inquired, backing away until he was once more at bay.

But Jose had made a better fight than he knew. The canteen ran dry at last, and Law was forced to release his

"Will you speak?" he demanded. Thinking that he had come safely through the ordeal, Jose shook his head; he rolled his bulging, bloodshot eyes and vomited, then managed to call God to witness his innocence.

Dave went into the next room and Dave went into the next room and refilled the canteen. When he re-appeared with the dripping vessel in his hand, Jose tried to scream. But his throat was torn and strained; the sound of his own voice frightened him. sound of his own voice frightened him. Once more the torment began. The tortured man was weaker now, and in consequence he resisted more feebly; but not until he was less than half conscious did Law spare him to recover. Jose lay sick, frightened, inert. Dave watched him without pity. The fellow's wrists were black and swollen, his lips were bleeding; he was stretched like a dumb animal upon the vivisectionist's table, and no surgeon with lance and scalpel could have shown less emotion than did his inquisitor. Having no intention of defeating his own ends, Dave allowed his victim ample time in which to regain his ability to suffer.

Alaire Austin had been right when she said that Dave might be ruthless; and yet the man was by no means incapable of compassion. At the present moment, however, he considered himself simply as the instrument by which Alaire was to be saved. His own feelings had nothing to do with the matter; neither had the sufferings of this Mexican. Therefore he steeled himself to prolong the agony until the murderer's stubborn spirit was worn down. Once again he put his question, and,

"They?' Who are you talkin' about?"

"I mean Longorio and his outfit. He'r got her over yonder." Dave flung out a trembling hand toward the river. Seeing that his hearer failed to comprehend, he explained, swiftly: "He's crazy about her-got one of those Mexican infatuations-and you know what that means. He couldn't steal her from Las Palmas-she wouldn't have anything to do with him-so he used that old cattle deal as an excuse

"La Feria! Then she's in for it." Dave nodded his agreement; for the first time Blaze noted how white and set was his friend's face.

"Longorio must have foreseen what was coming," Dave went on. "That country's aflame; Americans aren't safe over there. If war is declared, a good many of them will never be heard from. He knows that. He's got her safe. She can't get out."

Blaze was very grave when next he spoke. "Dave, this is bad-bad. I can't understand what made her go. Why, she must have been out of her head. But we've got to do something. We've got to burn the wires to Washington-yes, and to Mexico City. We must get the government to send soldiers after her. What have we got 'em for, anyhow?"

"Washington won't do anything. What can be done when there are thousands of American women in the same danger? What steps can the government take with diplomatic relations suspended? Those greasers are filling their jails with our people-rounding 'em up for the day of the big break. No, Longorio saw it all coming-he's again receiving defiance, jammed the no fool. He's got her; she's in theretrapped."

The Point.

Former Premier Rene Viviani of the French commission impressed the country with his eloquence,

They tell a story of M. Viviani's youth. He had accepted an invitation to address a political meeting, and he launched into his maiden speech with trepfdation. But he carried all before him, and, when he purposed to sit down, there were loud cries of :

"Ge on! Keep her up! Go on !" "Do you really wish me to go on?" said M. Viviani.

"Yes! Yes! Go on! Go on !" shouted the audience.

"Then this is the exact point," said M. Viviani, "where a capable speaker sits down."

BEER AND WINE NOT AFFECTED

Final Disposal of Dry Legislation Will Come After Conference Be-. tween House and Senate.

Washington-The senate went en record in favor of "bone dry" national prohibition during the war so far as whisky and other distilled beverages are concerned.

Liquor legislation was written into the food control bill in one of the sesate's bitterest contests, which would strike at consumption of distilled intoxicants by commandeering stocks in bond in addition to prohibiting absolutely their manufacture or importation. The beer and wine industries would be left undisturbed.

In lieu of the section of the house bill to prohibit the manufacture foodstuffs into beverages of any description, the senate substituted, 45 to 37, a provision prohibiting man-Engineers of the Michigan National ufacture and importation of distilled Guard, Arthur Smith, 34 years old, beverages during the war, and added, George Schneider, 24, and Joseph Bul- 65 to 12, a further clause directing lock, 23, were killed by a passenger the president to take over all distilled spirits in government bonded ware-AMERICAN NEEDS FILLED FIRST alry avenue Wabash railroad crossing, houses and to pay for it on the basis of cost plus 10 per cent.

Weather Months Are Trying Hot Times for Cattle, Sheep and Hogs.

East Lansing, Mich .-- The man who wants to be human to the stock intrusted to his care should never neglect them at this season of the year say animal husbandry men of the Michigan Agricultural college,

Here are a few of the things, they say, which the stockman should never meglect.

1. To provide an abundance of pure fresh water every day.

2. To give all animals a shady place to rest. If there is no natural shade in the pasture, open up the basement of the barn, if you have one.

3. To provide a wallow for the hogs. 4. To protect the cattle and horses from files.

5. To supplement falling pastures.

Fresh green grass and succulent crops are a balanced ration superior to any man can provide. As the grass or forage crop matures and dries up, the supply of protein decreases, and unless a supplement is provided, growth of young animals becomes much less rapid and there is danger of calves, pigs and lambs losing that bloom imparted by their mother's milk early in life, and which is so essential to their being marketed with profit at an early age.

Cows that are to freshen the coming fall should receive special care. The milk flow this winter will be influenced as much by their condition at the time Where an abundance of pasture or

East Lansing, Mich .-- Special precautions to keep plants from suffering from a lack of molsture are necessary when they are transplanted at this season of the year. The plant which may not be sensitive to rough usage early in the season is quite frequently susceptible to injury if it is dug up and moved in the heat of summer without proper measures being employed for its protection.

In transplanting at this time of year, therefore, plants should be thoroughly watered in the seedbed before they are moved. Then lift them with some soll attached to the roots to prevent injury and the escape of moisture.

Keep the plants covered while moving them to the garden or field, and transplant as quickly as possible after removing them from the seedbed. To prevent the rapid transpirations of moisture from the plant itself remove at least from one-third to one-half the leaf surface. If the soil is very dry and it is necessary to apply moisture to each plant as it is set, it is preferable to place the water around the roots rather than to apply it from the surface after the plant is set. COOLING THINGS FOR HOT DAYS

Ice-cold coffee diluted about half the strength used when serving it hot, is a most refreshing cool drink for warm weather. Serve it with a slice of lemon in each cup. Iced Cocos-Sift a cupful of cocoa with threequarters of a cupful of sugar, pour a cupful of hot water over the mixture and boll until a rich sirup results. Keep this in a jar in the ice chest and when wishing to serve it, a tablespoonful of the sirup is stirred into a glass of cold milk. Cocoa is liked by some with a very little vanilla flavor and a teaspoonful of cornstarch to give it more richness. A pinch of cinnamon or cloves is another addition liked by some. Chill the cocoa, mix it with sugar and cream and serve with whipped cream on top.

Fruit Mint Julep .-- Boil three plats of water and one and a half pounds of sugar ten minutes. Remove from the heat and add a packed cupful of mint leaves. Cover and let stand ten minutes. Strain through two thicknesses of cheesecloth and cool. Strain the juice of 12 lemons, add one and a half cupfuls each of orange and strawberry juice and turn into the mint sirup; let blend at least an hour. When ready to serve pour a quart of charged water over a large piece of ice in the punchbowl, then turn in the mint julep. Sprigs of mint and a few slices of fresh strawberries make a pretty addition to the bowl.

The secret of fine-flavored feed tea is to make it fresh. Draw the tea about three minutes, then pour it over ice and let stand in chipped ice until chilled. Serve by filling glasses one third full of shaved ice and top with a bit of lemon. Let each person sweet n his own tea.

WASHINGTON .-- Quana Washosha, as his fellow Comanchians know him, or just plain Capt. H. B. Hicks, Comanche Indian chief of Oklahoma, was in the city recently to pay his respects to President Wilson and to offer his services in whatever capacity he might serve during the war, either in this country or in France.

Captain Hicks was chief of the ndian scouts with the recent Pershing expedition into Mexico, and was wounded in one engagement with the Villa forces. Shortly after war was declared he succeeded in inducing 1,000 of his tribe in far-away Oklahoma to remove their paint, cut their hair and garb themselves in the khakl in place of the Indian blankets. These 1000 men are now in training at Fort Sill, Okla., and awaiting word from the war department that will send them for duty in France, on the Mexican border or wherever they are most needed.

Captain Hicks is seventy-four years old, but remarkably well preserved and bubbling over with enthusiasm in the thought that he may have a chance to be of service to the country. He realizes that his advanced years make it well-nigh impossible for him to join the forces in actual fighting. But if there is opportunity for scout duty, he is ready to do just as much in France as he did for the Pershing forces during the expedition in Mexico.

Captain Hicks claims to be the son of George McAlpin, whose remains rest in a cemetery in Hyattsville, Md. McAlpin was at one time a wealthy Baltimore merchant and served the government in the purchase of supplies during the Civil war. He was also prominent in Masonic circles in this section of the country and founder of Oriental, 289, of Philadelphia.

Captain Hicks points with pride to the fact that he is a graduate of the Carlisle Indian school. Globe trotter, champion rifle shot and champion pedestrian, are some other references that bring a smile to his countenance, and cause him to talk of adventures that have made his life worth the living.

Capital Society Women Sewing for Red Cross

COLLOWING the example set by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the vice president, nearly all of the women in the official circle here devote many hours daily to sewing for the Red Cross. Not only this, but they are organizing other women to help in the good work. Mrs. Marshall has organized the wives of senators and they meet every Monday morning in the headquarters of the Red Cross and make surgical dressings, sew on hospital garments or make themselves useful in other ways. Some of those interested in this class are Mrs. Thomas P. Gore, Mrs. Willard Saulsbury, Mrs. Claude Swanson, Mrs. Ralph Gallinger, Mrs. Frank Kellogg and Mrs. Maurice Sheppard. Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, wife of the secretary of the interior, was the first to organize the women in the federal service. She got together those in her husband's department and they have done an astonishing amount of work. Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, wife of the secretary of the treasury, is whipping into shape a similar organization among the women of the treasury department.

Mrs. Robert Lansing, wife of the secretary of state, is taking steps to bring together the officials of the state department and the women employed there, and Mrs. David Franklin Houston, wife of the secretary of agriculture, and Mrs. Carl Vrooman, wife of the assistant secretary of agriculture, are conferring with a view to starting a similar movement in the department of agriculture.

The Home club, a social and economic club composed of the employees of the interior department, of which Secretary Lane is honorary president, has been the greatest amount of assistance to Mrs. Lane in perfecting her organization. Meetings have been held in the headquarters of the club, which also serves as a clearing house, and through the officers of the club the rank and file of the employees of the department have been reached.

German Chancellor Says Teutons Will "Fight to Last Gasp."

PEACE IS STILL FAR DISTANT

Zurich-Germany must fight to the last gasp."

With these ringing words, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg announced to the world that peace is still far distant, said an official dispatch from Berlin Tuesday. The Taglische Rundschau, of Berlin, was given as authority for the chancellor's declaration. The speech was made Monday before the main committee of the reichstag in secret session.

According to this newspaper the chancellor's opposition to a policy of no annexation and no indemnities may te summed uup in these words:

"It is impossible and dangerous." Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg went on to say that "the government is unable to accept socialistic propositions because they proved unsuccessful in Russia."

When vegetables such as lettuce are wilted do not throw them away, wash in cold water then place in a pall tightly covered and let stand an hour or two when the crisp freshness will have returned. Parsley may be kept for two or three weeks, by washing it carefully and then putting it into a glass jar with a cover weil screwed on. It will help to wash the parsley once or twice during the time it is kept, shaking off the surplus water. A coffee can is a fine receptacle for crisping lettuce or parsley as it is easier to handle from a large-mouthed receptacle.

This is the season for mushrooms and they may be found in old pastures or woods in abundance, affording delicious food at little cost. Raspberries and strawberries keep better when spread out on a platter or plate, in fact twice as long as when heaped in a dish; the weight of the berries crush and spoll them.

Oatmeal Cookies .--- Take two cupfuls of fine or ground oatmeal which has been browned, two cupfuls of flour, one egg, a half cupful of sour milk and a half teaspoonful of soda, a half cupful of shortening and a cupful of sugar, add raisins and nuts and drop from a tenspoon on a well-greased baking pan.

Rhubarb is delicious baked, using a cupful of sugar to a pint of finely cut rhubarb. Bake in an earthen dish until jellylike in consistency.

Rhubarb Cup Pudding .-- Put a teaspoonful of sweetened, stewed rhubarb into a buttered cup. Pour boiling water on a pint of bread crumbs and let them soak until soft and then drain. Add a well beaten egg to the crumbs, a tablespoonful of sugar and a little nutmeg. Turn this over the rhubarb in the cups and bake. Add a cupful of chopped peanuts that have been carefully cleaned from the little brown husk, to a well cooked corn mush and mold in a small bread pan to cut in slices to fry. Other nuts such as hickory or walnut meats may be added, but the peanuts are so common that they are always in the market.

MILKROOM IS A NECESSITY

Particularly Desirable in Warm Weather and Should Be Screened and Kept Clean.

A milkroom is a necessity in dairying, according to W. E. Tomson, in structor in dairy husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural college. A milkroom is needed at all times, but is particularly important in warm weather, pointed out Mr. Tomson, Milk must be kept away from flies. The room should be tightly screened and kept in a sanitary condition.

The milkroom affords good facilities for keeping the milk cool. This is essential because when the temperature of the milk is higher than 5 degrees undesirable bacteria that cause the milk to spoil in a short time are likely to develop.

GOOD TREATMENT FOR COLIC

Not Adapted to Stomach of Young Animals.

Colic in calves is the result of feedng materials not adapted to the undeveloped stomach of the young animal, or the feeding of the regular ration at unusual hours or in unusual amounts. The calf usually suffers violent abdominal pains, indicated by an unusual activity of the animal, frequent and continuous kicking, and, inally, complete prostration. Unless relieved within a short time, death usually follows. A standard treatment is to drench the calf at intervals of two hours with a mixture containing tenspoonful of turpentine and a tablespoonful of raw linseed oll.

GIVE RIGHT AMOUNT OF FEED

Careful Feeders Study Individual Anlmais and «Keep Them at Their Maximum Production.

Many careful feeders have their cows giving the most milk four or five weeks after the freshening time. They study the individual animals and endeavor to keep them at their maximum production by giving just the right amount of feed and no more, ngraving depends entirely on the general deficiency bill to keep on with its work. There were 50,000,000 stamps a day to be furnished to the post office department for the public service; internal revenue stamps to be turned over by the bureau every day amounting to between $1,500,000 and $1,750,000.

Paper money in various kinds to meet the public demand to the face value of $20,000,000 a day on an average must be turned out, and the bu-reau had orders for $$00,000,000 fed-
