Garrick

Harry Lauder, the spendthrift Scot, comes to the Garrick this week, November 12, on his annual farewell tour. He has several new songs to offer, among them, "I Love to Be a Sailor," "I'm Going to Marry," "Arry on the Fifth of January," "I Think I'll Get Wed in the Summer," "The Wiggles of the Kilt," "We'll Go Home the Same Way," and "The Lads Who Fought and Won." In addition he will make selections from his old favorites. In his company are the Arnaud Brothers, musical comedians; the Kitamura, Japanese entertainers; Cleo Gascoyne, a diminutive prima donna; Adelaide Bell and Arnold Grazer in dances, and Francis Renault, an impersonator. There will be a large orchestra and, in addition, the Scottish Highlanders band, including a number of men who have been at the front, will be heard.

Adams.

Vaughan Glaser, Fay Courteney and their company of selected players will present the sensational, dramatic success, "Within the Law" for one week, commencing Monday night, November 12. This will be Fay Courteney's week, for the leading role is Mary Turner, a shop girl wrongfully convicted of theft. Sent to prison through her employer's harsh determination to make an example of her, Mary revolts against society, sharpens her wits on her sense of injustice, and returns to New York at the expiration of her sentence to open a campaign of swindling and blackmailing—all within the law. Commencing this week, the Adams theatre will offer matinee performances Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, instead of Sundays, Wednesdays and Saturdays, as heretofore.

A Clean Sheet.

Good Gifts.

The blessedness of giving is not limited to checks and bank bills. There are gifts that far transcend these—gifts of patience, sympathy, thought and counsel, and these are gifts that the poorest can give.—Lillian Whiting.

Hard at First.

Mrs. Wabash.—Wasn't your first dollar the hardest to get? Mrs. Dearborn.—Why, yes. After the first time it seemed easier to take 'em out of my husband's pockets when he was asleep.—Yonkers Statesman.

Christmas packets for the soldiers and sailors must be got under way at once, and those to go to France must be ready to start on their journey by the 15th of November. Most of the men will be well remembered by their families, but in order that every man may be sure to receive something, Red Cross chapters will undertake to forward packets, to be distributed among the soldiers providing the packets are made according to their directions. "For wrapping gifts use a khaki-colored handkerchief, 27 inches square, and form the base of the packet by placing on the center of the packet a pad of writing paper about seven by ten inches. Select a variety of articles to an amount not exceeding $1.50, and arrange them on the pad of paper so that the entire package shall be the width of the pad and approximately five or six inches high. Wrap and tie with one-inch red ribbon, and place a Christmas card under the bow of ribbon. . . . Wrap the parcel again in heavy light brown manilla paper and tie securely with red, green or gilt cord, and use Christmas labels." Small tin or wooden boxes holding a half pound or less will keep dried fruits, candy, fruit cake, fruit crackers, etc., in good shape. These are the things which the soldiers will enjoy most at Christmas time. The Red Cross recommends, among other things, the following presents: Writing paper pad, envelopes, post cards, pencil, books (in paper covers) homemade scrap book, knife, such as boy scouts use, steel mirror, handkerchiefs, neckties, mouth organ, mechanical puzzles, checker board, electric torch, compass, playing cards, and other games, tobacco, pipe and pipe cleaners, watertight match box, chewing gum, sweet chocolate biscuits, fruit crackers, fruit cake, preserved ginger, salted nuts, pines, figs, dates, raisins, hard candy, chocolate, in tin foil and licorice. No liquids nor articles packed in glass should be sent in Christmas packages. Instead of sending a quantity of one kind of confection, it is better to provide a variety, packing each one in an oblong tin box holding a quarter of a pound. Fruit cake keeps well—and is about the best choice in cakes, because it keeps fresh so long.

TRAGEDY WHERE COMEDY REIGNS

Roses Stolen From Chicago Theater Found Right Spot After All.

SOLVE DEEP MYSTERY

Three Detectives' Work Several Days on Case, When They Find the Culprit—the Hat Is Passed for Real Flowers.

Chicago.—Folks who went to the La Salle theater the other night saw a comedy. Upstairs in the office of Nat Royster, the manager, a tragedy was being enacted. Several days ago Royster received complaints from Joe Daly, property man, that artificial roses used in one of the sets were being stolen. The flowers were not taken in large numbers. But every other day or so three or four would be missing. Three detectives worked on the case for a few days. The roses continued to disappear. Then the detectives arrested Sophie Korab, a theater scrubwoman. When the detectives and Royster questioned her she sobbed violently, but would not talk. Where the Roses Went. Finally she found a champion in Miss May Dowling of the theater staff, who pleaded for her release. Then Mrs. Korab broke down and told her story. Six months ago her husband, Anton, joined the army, leaving her to take care of the two children, John, 2 years old, and Mary, 3. A few weeks ago little John contracted an ailment. There was no money for adequate medical attention and he died. The day of the burial Mrs. Korab appeared as usual to do her scrub work at the theater. She saw the roses and purloined a couple of them. Next day she went to the cemetery and put the artificial flowers on John's grave. Real Flowers for the Living. The detectives made an exit. Miss Dowling slipped out and returned with a handful of real flowers. "For Johnny," she said, and wiped her eyes. The scrubwoman fearfully asked if she could go. Royster requested her to stay. He left the room for a few minutes and he saw Daly, the property man; Charlie Heede, in the box office; Bob Goring, the superintendent; the stage hands, the ushers, the doorman, the cigar store man next door, and the cafe fan next door, and when he returned he handed $60.35 to Mrs. Korab. "For Mary," he said.

"Purloined a Couple of Them."

BEAR HUNTS THE HUNTERS

Misses Men in the Fog and Is Shot, White Mate Escapes the Bullets.

Newton, N. J.—James N. Dobbins and Henry DeWitt returned to their camp at Montague township recently with the carcass of a black bear, weighing 201 pounds, and with a thrilling story. For two days they had been chased by the bear and his mate in the woods near Dingman's but they were aided by the fog in eluding the animals. One of the hunters ran short of ammunition and had to make his way alone to Dingman's for more, and then the two of them undertook the work of seeking the bears. They came upon the big black bear in the woods, and, after repeatedly shooting at him, managed to kill him. Leaving this bear where he had fallen, they made a search for his mate, but, after several hours of this work, had to give it up. They obtained a large log, strung the bear on it, and marched into camp. For Evening or Dinner Wear

The lovely Flanders gown which graces this page may have been designed for an evening gown for some one who is serious minded, or as a dinner gown for some one who likes to dress up to the limit for the informal dinner. The chances are that its creator foresaw that it would be obliged to lead the double life, serving for both dinner and evening wear, for it is the order of the day that evening gowns shall practice restraint, and not flaunt a thoughtless, gaudy splendor in the face of war. Here is a model that will appeal to the woman of fine perceptions and elegant taste. The American designer of this and other gowns appears to have arrived, with styles that suit and express the American woman and are as beautiful as any France has sent to us. This gown is of orchid satin, not in one of the pale, pinkish shades, but in a purple which ought to be called royal from its character, but is too light to be classed under that head. It is a wonderful shade, vivid and rich and exquisite. No one but an artist should take the liberty of working with such a fabric, for the design must not fail to equal the material in class. The skirt is almost plain. It is beautifully draped with the side drapery that continues to be favored. The bodice is equally simple with surplice fronts extended into end. Wrapped about the figure and straight sleeves of georgette crepe bound with satin. A vestee of lace partially veiled with crepe is set in, leaving a margin of unveiled lace at the top. Revers of lace extended from the line of the bust over the shoulders to the shoulder blades. This is the brief story of a truly wonderful gown. It takes genius to achieve such lines and such management of fascinating color by means so direct and simple. It is a gown that will not lose its charm for it is modest and conservative, but at the same time brilliant enough for the opera, and not too brilliant for an informal dinner.

Julia Bottomley

A Blouse in Three Shades.

A blouse of colored chiffon boasts of three shades instead of the customary two—the three being dull periwinkle blue, deep violet and orchid color. The resulting effect is one of the most charming seen in any of the color combinations. The underbodice is orchid color, and the sleeves are half of this shade. A deep band of violet color, cut into points at the top, is used at the bottom of the sleeves and there are cuffs of periwinkle blue with a flaring band at the top, lined in orchid. The overblouse is of periwinkle with a vest made of orchid, and an oddly shaped rolling collar of violet, lined in blue. There is no embroidery or trimming of any other sort on the blouse.

Slip Knot Line Holder.

The average washerwoman has never taken a course in seamanship, and she is rarely adept in tying a knot, with the result that some considerable portion of her time is spent on wash-day in putting up the line, and even at that she does not always make a good job of it, and the line sags hopelessly instead of being tight from post to post. A new-line holder to be secured to the post enables the most inexperienced hand to hang the line as taut as may be desired without the necessity of tying a knot. The line is merely slipped over a lever portion of the device and under another portion, with the result that the greater the pull exerted on the line the tighter it is clamped in the device.

MISS CHERRYBLOSSOM.

Miss Cherryblossom, the delightful musical comedy which has been presented in nearly all the larger cities of Michigan, and other western middle states by amateurs will have a local hearing on November 28th and 29th, at St. Mary's auditorium.

The delightful story of the play has to do with Evelyn Barnes, an American girl in Japan and reared in the land of cherryblossoms to believe she is one of its own daughters. Through her love affair with a gallant American she learns her true identity and comes into her fortune and her happiness.

The Teacher's club of the Highland Park schools presented "Miss Cherryblossom" last June with great success. Miss Winifred Bacon of Chelsea, played the title role of "Miss Cherryblossom" and has consented to do the same in the production here. Besides Miss Bacon there will be a cast and chorus that without doubt will be the best aggregation of singers ever assembled for a similar occasion.

The piece will be directed by Mr. John Wilson Dodge, the author of the book and co-author of the music.

Mr. Dodge has had extended experience in the music field. He is a graduate of the Ypsilanti Normal college conservatory of music; a pupil of Tomassi, New York, Strigle and Bouhey, Paris, and William Shakespeare, London, England. Mr. Dodge was head of the vocal departments of Hillsdale college, Hillsdale, Michigan, and Lawrence University, Appleton, Wisconsin. Besides this excellent preparation for his work, Mr. Dodge has had extended experience in concert and operatic fields.

"Miss Cherryblossom" is built along the lines of "Pinafore," "The Mikado," etc., and is a musical comedy in the truest sense of the word. It is not a lot of nursery rhymes interspersed with a little singing and dancing as are so many of the musical pieces before the public.

The plot is interesting and brought to a logical conclusion. There are eighteen musical numbers, the kind that you will go home whistling. The comedy element is unusually strong and the scenic effects are very beautiful. Thousands of cherryblossoms are used in the stage decorations on real trees in full bloom.

Next issue of this paper will contain the names of the full cast and chorus.

TECUMSEH — Joseph Waring died suddenly Tuesday noon while fixing the furnace fire in the basement of his home. He had been in failing health for some time.

Certain Cure for Croup

Mrs. Rose Middleton, of Greenville, Ill., has had experience in the treatment of this disease. She says, "When my children were small my son had croup frequently.
