Knights of Pythias Picnic.

The picnic given by Chelsea Lodge Knights of Pythias at Cavanaugh lake Tuesday afternoon was a success in every way. One hundred were present and enjoyed every moment of the time.

Accidents were few, J. L. Fletcher and Floyd Mayett being the only ones to need the services of a surgeon to straighten them out. These two athletes received their injuries while taking part in the races. They evidently saw that that they were out-classed and were trying to make a Ty Cobb slide for the line and only succeeded in scraping nearly all the skin off their elbows and knees.

Some of the men are also complaining of lame shoulders as a result of intensive application to the game of quoits.

After dinner, F. E. Storms gave several readings and Rev. P. W. Dierberger gave a short address on Pythianism and Patriotism.

The participants gave a rousing vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Burkhardt, through whose invitation the picnic was held.

Get Out Your Smoked Glasses.

A total eclipse of the sun, visible as a partial eclipse throughout most of North America, is to occur on the afternoon of Saturday, June 8, which will be the most popular and interesting celestial event of the year and for which extensive preparations have been made by astronomers. The eclipse will appear total over a narrow belt about 120 miles in width extending diagonally across the United States from Astoria, Oregon, to Orlando, Florida, and it will be of greater magnitude the nearer the path of totality the observer is located. It will be the first in the series of three eclipses announced for the present year, and the only one visible in this country except a small partial eclipse of the moon to occur on June 24.

In 1917 the world was favored with seven eclipses, four of the sun and three of the moon—the greatest number possible in one year—but the smaller number this year will be fully compensated for by the eclipse of Saturday, which will occur under the most favorable conditions of time and season. A telescope, though affording a more satisfactory view, will not be necessary for observing the eclipse it being seen almost equally well by the naked eye, protected of course, by a smoked glass, which is all that will be required in order to observe its progress and general features to good advantage.

As viewed from lower Michigan and the upper middle states about three-fourths of the sun's disk will be covered by the moon, but as the distance to the southwest increases toward the path of total eclipse, more of the sun will be obscured until in the center of the narrow belt the greatest magnitude will occur.

The phases will occur at different local times, but in the new central standard time as at present adopted, the eclipse will begin at 5:30 p. m. and end at 7:24 p. m., the total phase continuing about two hours as seen from the middle part of the United States.

County Meeting of L. O. T. M.

The Washtenaw County Association of the L. O. T. M. will meet in the town hall, Chelsea, Friday, June 7. The morning session will be a business meeting. The afternoon session will be called to order at 1:30 and will be public. The address of welcome will be given by Rev. P. W. Dierberger, the response by Dr. Emma E. Bower, of Port Huron. A service flag with 27 stars honoring the sons and brothers of the members of the five will be dedicated. There will be a drill by 25 little girls, a playlet entitled "One Happy Day" will be given, and Dr. Bower will give a talk. The Chelsea Branch of the Red Cross will serve a luncheon at noon in Maccabee hall.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the election of Dr. Bower as Great Record Keeper will be celebrated at this meeting.

Attention, Housewives.

A practical food show will be put on in Ann Arbor at the city Y, M. C. A., June 5 to 8. This food show will open each day at 10 o'clock and close at 10 p. m.

Baking demonstrations will be given every afternoon and evening, also canning demonstrations Thursday and Saturday forenoons.

You cannot afford to miss this opportunity. Interesting programs will be given each session. Several food specialists will be present each day.

Regular meeting of K. of P. next Monday night.

TWELVE TON FLY WHEEL BURSTED

Engine and Building Wrecked at the Cement Plant—One Man Was Injured.

About 8:45 Tuesday morning an accident occurred at the Four-Mile Lake plant of the Michigan Portland Cement Co. that will cost $8,000 or $10,000 before the damaged buildings and machinery are replaced.

The large balance wheel of the Corless engine, weighing about twelve tons, burst, and scattered about the premises, mowing down everything with which the flying chunks of iron came in contact.

The northeast corner of the brick power house was torn out, the large dynamo and the wiring in that part of the building was wrecked, while the roof of the building was torn to pieces.

One piece of the flywheel entered the kiln building and dropped inside, while another went through the roof and landed in the field north of the building. One piece weighing about 800 pounds went up into the air higher than the top of the cement smokestack and landed on the railway track on the northeast side of the kiln building. Another piece weighing about 700 pounds landed in a field belonging to G. W. Coe, about 450 feet from its staling place.

About the yard spokes of the wheel are embedded in the earth, and one of the spokes went through the southwest corner of the shed in front of the boiler room.

George Burbanks, 58 years of age, an engineer, was the only person who was injured. A piece of cast iron two and one-half inches wide entered one of his cheeks near the point of the chin and cut a gash that reached nearly to his eye. Fellow workmen removed the iron, and Mr. Burbanks was taken to the hospital at Ann Arbor, and his injury is not considered as a serious one. Mr. Burbanks and his mother moved here from Cement City a short time ago.

While one of the large engines and the dynamo will be out of commission for some time while repairs are being made, the plant will continue to operate, as many of the machines are run by independent motors, and a portion of the power is furnished by the Commonwealth Power Co.

Just what caused the accident is not known, but it is thought by some that the large belt broke, letting the engine race.

Congressional Politics.

John Fitzgibbons, writing in the Detroit News of the indications of the present time, as to the status of the congressional politics of the state has the following to say regarding the second district:

Rep. Samuel W. Beakes, democrat, has three times in succession been elected in the second district and his highest plurality at none of the three elections exceeded 209. The district polls a little over 50,000 votes, and is normally republican by 3,000. He is a candidate for a fourth term. Two and perhaps three republicans will try for the nomination. State Representative H. Wirt Newkirk, Ann Arbor lawyer, has already given notice that he is a candidate.

Rep. Newkirk is a veteran republican worker, and 64 years old.

Thornton Dixon, of Monroe, says that it is his intention to become a candidate, but he has been so busy working and delivering addresses for patriotic war endeavors that he has not yet done anything to get the nomination. Mr. Dixon is a lawyer and head of a quarry company that produces crushed stone for road and building construction.

State Senator Charles J. Deland, of Jackson, acknowledges that he would like to represent his district in congress. The senator facetiously writes: "I have not yet made up my mind whether to be a candidate for congress or run again for the state senate or stay at home and hold fast to the old reliable meal ticket, to wit: my law practice. I realize that the time is getting short and that I must soon make up my mind which to do." Both Senator Deland and Thornton Dixon are live wires.

John Looney is now employed as watchman at the plant of the Lewis Spring & Axle Co.

RED CROSS NOTES.

Owing to the scarcity of shipping space for the present, Belgian quilts and afghans will be discontinued.

Kindly return knitted articles before June 15, which are being made from yarn given out previous to May 15.

New members of the Red Cross: Mrs. H. W. Schmidt, Doris Schmidt, Orrion Haynes, Mrs. Conrad Schanz. Junior members: Una Hathaway, Irene Koch, Helen Koch, Roy Koch.

Through the kindness of Dr. A. L. Steger the organization committee started an auxiliary at North Lake at the home of Mrs. Ella Burkhardt, Friday evening, May 31. At that time twenty-eight members were enrolled.

Mrs. G. A. BeGole and Mrs. J. E. McKune attended the directors' meeting of the Red Cross at Ann Arbor Wednesday evening at Red Cross headquarters.

The Red Cross luncheon given for the L. O. T. M. convention at 12 o'clock Friday, will be in charge of the following ladies: Mrs. J. H. Boyd, general chairman; Mrs. H. J. Fulford, chairman of ward table 1; Mrs. W. C. Boyd, chairman of ward table 2; Mrs. H. D. Witherel, chairman of ward table 3; Mrs. L. T. Freeman, chairman of ward table 4; Mrs. Frank Shepherd, in charge of the tea and coffee; Misses Beryl McNamara and Agnes Gorman, decoration committee; Mrs. J. S. Cummings, Mrs. A. Gulde, Mrs. G. P. Staffan, reception committee; Mrs. E. E. Koebe and Mrs. L. G. Palmer, finance committee.

Commencement Dates.

There are twenty members of the graduating class of the Chelsea high school. Commencement activities will start on Friday evening, June 14, when the junior reception will be held in Maccabee hall.

Sunday evening, June 16, Rev. A. A. Schoen will deliver the baccalaureate address at the M. E. church, and on Thursday evening, June 20, the graduating exercises will be held in the M. E. church.

The following are the members of the class:

Robert Lawrence, president; Bernice Prudden, vice president; Gladys V. Shepherd, secretary; Reuben Wagner, treasurer; Helen E. Vogel, valedictorian; Vivian R. Gorton, salutatorian; Frieda A. Oesterle, Leonard W. Shepherd, Edna M. Stadel, Gale W. Taylor, Herbert D. Vogel, Clarice Wright, D. Winifred Benton, Letha G. Alber, Gilbert Clark, Esther Collins, Vesta B. Hammond, Lalah E. Huehl, Walter B. Huehl, Rosine F. Reule.

Evangelical Synod Pledges Loyalty.

The Michigan conference of the Evangelical Synod of North America, which was in session at Bethel's church in Freedom township from May 29 to June 2, adopted without debate, by a rising vote the following declaration of loyalty, which was enthusiastically received by the delegates present:

"Resolved, That the Michigan district of the German Evangelical Synod of North America, in conference assembled, and representing 95 congregations of German-American constituency, reaffirms its undivided loyalty to this nation and avows its determination to support the government in every counsel and action which are deemed necessary in these critical times, and that we call on constituency to leave no deed undone to which they are obligated as citizens of this nation and which will contribute to the welfare of our country in this crisis in its history."

There were 68 pastors and as many lay delegates in attendance. Rev. Nelhuur, of Detroit, delivered a memorial service in English.

The following officers were elected: President, Rev. C. G. Haag, Port Huron; vice president, Rev. R. Schreiber, Grand Rapids; secretary, Rev. G. Risen, Chelsea; treasurer, Philip Elchorn, Port Huron.

The occasion was of especial interest to Rev. A. A. Schoen, of Chelsea, and Rev. Alber, of Detroit, who were ordained in the same church twenty-five years ago.

The Baxter Stock Co. will open a week's engagement under canvas, beginning Monday, June 10. They will present a line of new and up to date plays with high class vaudeville between the acts. The opening play for Monday night will be a four act comedy drama entitled "A Runaway Wife." Doors open at 7:30, performance at 8:20.

Amelia A. Miller.
Saturday, June 1, the sad news came to Chelsea of the death of Miss Amelia Miller at the University hospital at Ann Arbor, after a brief illness. The news was a great shock to her family and many friends, for Miss Miller had a lovely character and was most devoted to her family.

She was born and brought up in Lyndon and had spent her entire life in Lyndon and Chelsea, giving special care and attention to her parents. Her funeral was held Tuesday morning at 8:30 from the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, and the edifice was filled with sorrowing friends. Her pastor received the remains at the church entrance and blessed the body and brought it to the altar while the "Miserere" was chanted by the priest and choir. Requiem High Mass followed, celebrated by Rev. Father Bourke, of Ann Arbor, who had ministered to Miss Miller at the hospital. At the conclusion of the Mass, Rev. Father Maschino, of Dexter, a friend of the family, gave the absolution of the body. During the Mass Sister Gonzaga presided at the organ and played the requiem Mass most sympathetically.

ally, and St. Mary's choir did its part in a most feeling manner. At the offertory, Mr. George Condon, of Detroit, a friend of the family, and a noted singer, sang Schubert's "Ave Maria." At the end of Mass he sang "How Long Wilt Thou Forget Me, Lord" and as the body was borne from the church, he sang most beautifully "Don't You Mind the Sorrows." Mr. Condon has a fine tenor voice and his singing was a delight.

When the funeral mass was over, Rev. Father Bourke preached a most eloquent and beautiful sermon from the text, "I am the resurrection and the life." His comforting words made a deep impression on all. Then Rev. Father Considine, the pastor, to whom Miss Miller was so devoted, said a few words in commendation of the saintly life just ended. He spoke of her devotion to her church and her family and her friends. She was loyal and true and devotion to duty was the watchword of her life. Father Considine was visibly affected while paying his beautiful tribute to Miss Miller, and his brief and sincere words coming from the heart, made a profound impression on all.

He expressed deep sympathy for the venerable mother and the family and commended the noble life of Miss Miller as an example to all.

Miss Miller received many beautiful flowers from kind friends and neighbors, also many spiritual bouquets of masses, prayers and acts of piety.

Fathers Considine and Maschino went to Mt. Olivet cemetery, where Father Considine said the final prayers and the precious remains were laid to rest until the breaking of the eternal morning.

Miss Miller was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, and was born November 12, 1871.

She is survived by her mother, five sisters, Sister Mary Ignatius, O. S. D., of St. Clair, Misses Mary, Margaret, Anna and Lena Miller, of Chelsea; and five brothers, Edward J., George A., and Louis J., of Chicago, Charles W., of Ithaca, and John P., of Detroit.

Those from out of town who attended the funeral were: Sister M. Ignatius O. S. D., and Sister M. Josita, of St. Clair; E. J., Geo. A., and Louis J. Miller, of Chicago; Charles W. Miller, of Ithaca; John P. Miller, Miss Mary Miller, Mrs. A. C. Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Urdike, Mrs. M. Condon, George Condon, and Miss Powell, of Detroit; Mrs. J. F. Quinlan, J. P. Foster, Miss Lena Foster and Miss Ida Fennell, of Ann Arbor; Mr. and Mrs. D. Hoey and family, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tiplady, Mrs. Walsh and Miss Anna Dunlavy, of Dexter; Mrs. Seth Taylor, of Albion.

THIS WEEK, NERVOUS MOTHER

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness."—Mrs. J. WORTHLINE, 2342 North Taylor St., Philadelphia Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal healthy condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthline.

A Life-Saver. Gutzen Borglum, apropos of his report on the deficiencies of the government's aerial program, said at a luncheon in New York: "To get results we must use originality—must show initiative—like the doughboy's dad, you know. 'My father,' said a doughboy, looking up from a bad camp dinner with a grimace—'my father was a very brave man.' 'Was he?' said the camp chief. 'Yes,' said the doughboy. 'Two weeks after he enlisted he saved his whole regiment.' 'How did he do it?' 'Shot the cook!'"

Casualties Unknown. After a strenuous day's shooting Giles returned to the house alone. Now, Giles was only an amateur at the sporting game, and this fact was well known to the anxious host. "Have you shot anything?" he demanded of Giles, expecting to hear the worst. "Dunno," replied Giles. "We'll have to wait until the rest of the party come in, and then we can call the roll!"

All Complete. Katherine was playing in her yard, where a little calf was grazing. A woman who was passing remarked, "Why, Katherine, what a cute little calf you have." "Yes," answered Katherine, "we've got the cow to it in the barn."

she wiped an errant tear away, and made her way to a store. The stock of ready-made clothing drove her to despair. It seemed that what women resided in Hazelton must invariably dress in Mother Hubbard gowns of cheap cotton print with other garments to match. But eventually they found for her undergarments of a sort, a waist and skirt, and a comfortable pair of shoes. Hats, as a milliner would understand the term, there were none. And in default of such she stuck to the gray felt sombrero she had worn into the Klappan and out again—which, in truth, became her very well, when tilted at the proper angle above her heavy black hair. Then she went back to the hotel, and sought a bathroom.

Returning from this she found Bill, a Bill all shaved and shorn, unloading himself of sundry packages of new attire. "Aha, everything is lovely," he greeted. "Old Hack jumped at the prettiness of the deal he got through. He's a prince, old Hack. Sent up a man and had it surveyed and classified and the deed waiting for me. And—oh, say, here's a letter for you!" "For me? Oh, yes," as she looked at the handwriting and postmark. "I wrote to Loraine Marsh when we were going north. Good heavens, look at the date—it's been since last September!"

"Hackberry knew where we were," Bill explained. "Sometimes in camps like this they hold mail two or three years for men that have gone into the interior." She put aside the letter, and dressed while Bill had his bath. Then, with the smoke and grime of a hard trail obliterated, and with decent clothes upon them, they sought the dining-room. There, while they waited to be served, Hazel read Loraine Marsh's letter, and passed it to Bill with a self-conscious little laugh.

"There's an invitation there we might accept," she said casually. He returned the letter as the waitress brought their food. "Wouldn't it be nice to take a trip home?" Hazel suggested thoughtfully. "I'd love to." "To show 'em," he supplied inconspicuously. "Oh, of course," she smiled. "But I mean to Granville. I'd like to go back there with you for a while, just to—just to—"

"To show 'em," he supplied inconspicuously. "Oh, of course," she smiled. "But I mean to Granville. I'd like to go back there with you for a while, just to—just to—"

"Still thinking Granville?" Bill queried, when they had finished an uncommonly silent meal. Hazel flushed slightly. She was, and momentarily she felt that she should have been thinking of their little nest up by Pine River Pass instead. She knew that Bill was homing to the cabin. She herself regarded it with affection, but of a different degree from his. Her mind was more occupied with another, more palpitating circle of life than was possible at the cabin, much as she appreciated its green and peaceful beauty. The sack of gold lying in the bank had somehow opened up far-flung possibilities. She skipped the interval of affairs which she knew must be attended to, and betook herself and Bill to Granville, thence to the bigger, older cities, where money shouted in the voice of command, where all things were possible to those who had the price.

But she was beginning to know this husband of hers too well to propose anything of the sort abruptly. Behind his tenderness and patience she had sometimes glimpsed something inflexible, unyielding as the wilderness he loved. So she merely answered: "In a way, yes." "Let's go outside where I can smoke a decent cigar on top of this fairly decent meal," he suggested. "Then we'll figure on the next move. I think about twenty-four hours in Hazelton will do me. There's a steamer goes down-river tomorrow."

Four days later they stood on the deck of a grimy little steamer breasting the outgoing tide that surged through the First Narrows. Presently they swung around Brockton Point, and Vancouver spread its peninsula before them. Tugs and launches puffed by, about their harbor traffic. A ferry clustered black with people hurried across the inlet. But even above the harbor noises, across the intervening distance they could hear the vibrant hum of the industrial hive. She had no regrets when Bill confined their stay to the time necessary to turn his gold into a bank account, and allow her to buy a trunkful, more or less, of pretty clothes. Then they bore on eastward and halted at Ashcroft. Bill had refused to commit himself positively to a date for the eastern pilgrimage. He wanted to see the cabin again. For that matter she did, too—so that their sojourn there did not carry them over another winter.

From Ashcroft an auto single whirled them swiftly into the heart of the Cariboo country—to Quesnel, where Bill purchased four head of horses in an afternoon, packed, saddled, and hit the trail at daylight in the morning. The vanguard of the land hungry had already penetrated to Fort George. Up and down the Nacho valley, and bordering upon the Fraser, were the cabins of the pre-emptors. The roads were dotted with the teams of the incoming. A sizable town had sprung up around the old trading post.

"They come like bees when the rush starts," Bill remarked. Leaving Fort George behind, they bore across country toward Pine River. Here and there certain landmarks, groves deep in Hazel's recollection, sprang to claim her attention. And one evening at sunset they rode up to the little cabin, all forlorn in its clearing.

Inside, a gray film of dust had accumulated on everything, and the rooms were oppressive with the musty coils that gather in a closed, untenanted house. But apart from that it stood as they had left it thirteen months before. No foot had crossed the threshold. The pile of wood and kindling lay beside the fireplace as Bill had placed it the morning they left.

"So it ever so humble," Bill left the line of the old song unfinished, but his tone was full of jubilation. Beyond that lay another clear space of level land, perhaps forty acres in extent. They broke through the belt of poplars—and pulled up again. On one side of the meadow stood a cabin, the fresh-peeled log walls glistening yellow in the sun, and lifting an earth-colored roof to the autumn sky. Bill whistled softly.

Along the west side of the meadow ran a brown streak of sod, and down one side of this a man guided the handles of a plow drawn by the strangest yoked mates Hazel's eyes had seen for many a day. "For goodness' sake!" she exclaimed. "That's the true pioneer spirit for you," Bill spoke absently. "He has bucked his way into the heart of a virgin country, and he's breaking sod with a mule and a cow. That's adaptation to environment with a vengeance—and grit."

"There's a woman, too, Bill, and see—she's carrying a baby!" Hazel pointed excitedly. "Oh, Bill!" The man halted his strangely assorted team to watch them come. The woman stood a step outside the door, a baby in her arms, another toddler holding fast to her skirt. A thick-bodied, short, square-shouldered man was this newcomer, with a round, pleasant face.

"Hello, neighbor!" Bill greeted. The plowman lifted his old felt hat courteously. His face lit up. "Ach!" said he. "Neighbor, Dot has a good word in dis country 'ere dere is no neighbor. But I am glad to meet you. Will you come do der house and rest a while!" "Sure!" Bill responded. "But we're neighbors, all right. Did you notice a cabin about half a mile west of here? That's our place—when we're at home."

"You're about as sociable as a clam," she broke into his absorption at last. He looked up in surprise, then chuckled the volume carelessly aside, and twisted himself around till his head rested in her lap. "You're a good girl," he asked cheerfully. "Lonesome? Bored with yourself? Ain't I here? Surely you don't feel yourself neglected because I happen to have my nose stuck in a book?" "Of course not!" she denied vigorously. The childish absurdity of her attitude struck her with sudden force. "Still, I'd like you to talk to me once in a while."

Bill's eyes narrowed a trifle, but he still smiled. And suddenly he stepped around behind her chair, put both hands under her chin, and tilted her head backward. "Ah, you're plumb sick and tired to death of everything, aren't you?" he said soberly. "You've been up here too long. You sure need a change. I'll have to take you out and give you the freedom of the dities, let you dissipate and pink-tea, and rub elbows with the mob for a while. Then you'll be glad to drift back to this woody hiding place of ours. When do you want to start?"

"You're on the right track," Bill nodded. "It's a pity more people don't take the same notion. What do you think of this country, anyway?" "It iss good," Lauer answered briefly, and with unhesitating certainty. "It iss good. Vor der boor man it iss a big salutation. Mit five hundred dollars and hisse two haunts he can himself a home make—and a living be sure of."

Beside Hazel, Lauer's wife absently caressed the blond head of her four-year-old daughter. "No, I don't think I'll ever get lonesome," she said. "I'm too glad to be here. And I've got lots of work and my babies. Of course, it's natural I'd miss a woman friend running in now and then."

"I took you for better or for worse," he answered, with a kiss. "I don't want it to turn out worse. I want you to be contented and happy here, where I've planned to make my home. I know you love me quite a lot, little person. Nature fitted us in a good many ways to be mates. But you've gone through a pretty drastic siege of isolation in this rather grim country, and I guess it doesn't seem such an alluring place as it did at first. I don't want you to nurse that feeling until it becomes chronic. Then we would be out of tune, and it would be good-by to happiness. But I think I know the cure for your malady."

"In the morning he began his hay cutting. About eleven o'clock he threw down his scythe and stalked to the house. "Put on your hat, and let's go investigate a mystery," said he. "I heard a cow baw in the woods a minute ago. A regular barnyard bellow."

"A cow bawing?" she echoed. "Sure? What would cattle be doing away up here?" "That's what I want to know?" Bill laughed. "I've never seen a cow north of Fraser—not this side of the Rockies, anyway."

"They saddled their horses, and rode out in the direction from whence had arisen the bovine complaint. The sound was not repeated, and Hazel had begun to chaff Bill about a too-vivid imagination when within a half mile of the clearing he pulled his horse up short in the middle of a little meadow.

"Look!" The track of a broad-tired wagon had freshly crushed the thick grass. Bill squinted at the trail, then his gaze swept the timber beyond. "Somebody has been cutting timber over there," he enlightened. "I can see the fresh ax work. Looks like they'd been hauling poles. Let's follow this track a ways."

The tiny meadow was fringed on the north by a grove of poplars. Beyond that lay another clear space of level land, perhaps forty acres in extent. They broke through the belt of poplars—and pulled up again. On one side of the meadow stood a cabin, the fresh-peeled log walls glistening yellow in the sun, and lifting an earth-colored roof to the autumn sky. Bill whistled softly.

Along the west side of the meadow ran a brown streak of sod, and down one side of this a man guided the handles of a plow drawn by the strangest yoked mates Hazel's eyes had seen for many a day. Hazel at Once Appropriated the Baby.

and then to chat. But a person can't have it all. And I'd do anything to have a roof of our own, and to have it some place where our lives don't depend on a pay envelope. Many a time I've sat and cried, just from thinking how had I wanted a little place of our own, where there was grass and trees and a piece of ground for a garden. And I knew we'd never be able to buy it. We couldn't get ahead enough."

"And so," her husband took up the tale, "I hear of dis country, vere last can be for noddings got. Und so we scrape and pinch and save nickels und dimes for life year. Und here ye are. All der way from Wisconsin in der valgon, yer cow, so dot der haf der fresh milk. Und dot iss lucky. For von want op der land und hant my valgon mit von mule und Gretchen der cow."

Hazel had a momentary vision of unrelated hardships by the way, and she wondered how the man could laugh and his wife smile over it. Two thousand miles in a wagon! And at the journey's end only a rude cabin of logs—and yards of steady toil. Isolation in a huge and lonely land. Yet these folk were happy. She wondered briefly if her own viewpoint were possibly askew. She knew that she could not face such a prospect except in utter rebellion. Not now. The bleak peaks of the Klappan rose up before her mind's eye, the picture of five horses dead in the snow, the wolves that snapped and snarled over their bones. She shuddered. She was still pondering this when she and Bill dismounted at home.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Dollar Chasers.

Granville took them to its bosom with a haste and earnestness that made Hazel catch her breath. Tactfully none so much as mentioned Andrew Bush, nor the five-thousand-dollar legacy—the disposition of which sum still perplexed that reagent gentleman's executors. And once more in a genial atmosphere Hazel concluded to let sleeping dogs lie. She learned from various sources that Bill's fortune loomed big, had grown by some mysterious process of Granville's tattle, until it had reached the charmed six figures of convention.

There had been changes. Jack Barrow had consoled himself with a bride. Moreover, he was making good, in the popular phrase, at the real-estate game. The Marches, as she had previously known them, had been tottering on the edge of shabby gentility. But they had come into money. And as Bill stangly put it, they were using their pile to cut a lot of social ice. Kitty Brooks' husband was now the head of the biggest advertising agency in Granville. Hazel was glad of that mild success.

She was inordinately proud of Bill, when she compared him with the average Granville male—yet she found herself wishing he would adopt a little more readily the Granville viewpoint. He fell short of it, or went beyond it, she could not be sure which; she had an uneasy feeling sometimes that he looked upon Granville doings and Granville folk with amused tolerance, not unmixed with contempt. But he attracted attention. Whenever he was minded to talk he found ready listeners.

Once or twice she conjured up a vision of his getting into some business there, and utterly foregoing the North—which for her was already beginning to take on the aspect of a bleak and cheerless region where there was none of the things which daily whetted her appetite for luxury, nothing but hardships innumerable—and gold. The gold had been their reward—a reward well earned, she thought. Still—they had been wonderfully happy there at the Pine River cabin, she remembered.

"I feel it my duty to write you a letter of thanks for your kind gift of Peter's Ointment. I had a running sore on my left leg for one year. I began to use Peter's Ointment three weeks ago and now it is healed."—A. C. Gilbrath, 703 Reed St., Erie, Pa.

"I rather get a letter like that, says Peter, than have John D. Rockefeller give me a thousand dollars. It does me a lot of good to be able to be of use to my fellow men. For years I have been selling through druggists a large box of PETER'S OINTMENT for a trifle. The healing power of this ointment is marvelous. It cures sores in a few days. Old sores heat up like magic; piles, that other remedies do not cure, are cured. It cures all kinds of skin diseases. Eczema and nasty blackheads disappear. Mail orders filled. Price 25c per box. W. F. Young, P. O. F., 311 Temple St., Boston, Mass.

Hunger Tower. Food Controller Hoover said at a meek dinner in Washington: "The German food situation forced on the part German offensive. The hungry German populace was sick of the war and starvation. The Kaiser had to attack or knuckle under. 'I heard a story the other day from Germany. 'A cadaverous tourist was visiting an ancient schloss or castle. After wandering among the moats and dungeons and portcullises awhile, he said to the cadaverous keeper: 'My guidebook informs me that there's an ancient hunger tower here—a tower where they used to starve their prisoners to death.' 'Yes, sir; that's right, sir,' said the keeper. 'This way for the hunger tower, and you'll be just in time for luncheon. You see, sir, it's been made into a restaurant now.'"

Stoker's Act of Bravery. In these days of underson warfare, when the blow is often struck without warning, a new danger is added to the already hazardous tasks of the ship's firemen. Speed is an essential in beating the U-boat, and this requires constant work. Recently the bottom blow valve of a boiler was clogged away on a vessel of the United States Navy. One of the crew, Augustus Fawcett, a fireman, first class. With two others he made his way through a steam-filled fire room and fought a passage through a hot cloud in the engine room. Here he helped haul the fires at a critical moment. The nerve and quickness of the act saved the boiler and the vessel from serious accident. Fawcett enlisted in the navy in 1911, at Cincinnati.

WEAK KIDNEYS MEAN A WEAK BODY

When you're fifty, your body begins to break a little at the hinges. Motion is more slow and deliberate. "Not so young as I used to be" is a frequent and unwelcome thought. Certain bodily functions which good health and good spirits so much depend, are impaired. The weak spot is generally the bladder. Urgeless and spasms show themselves. Painful and annoying complications in other organs arise. This is particularly true with elderly people. If you only know how, this trouble can be obviated.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Harlem Oil has been relieving the inconvenience and pain due to advancing years. It is a standard, old-time home remedy, and needs no introduction. It is now put up in odorless, tasteless capsules. These are easier and more pleasant to take than the oil in bottles.

Each capsule contains about one dose of the drops. Take them just like you would any pill, with a small swallow of water. They soak into the system and throw off the poisons which are making you old before your time. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs.

GOLD MEDAL Harlem Oil Capsules cleanse the kidneys and purify the blood. They frequently ward off attacks of the dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidneys. They have a beneficial effect, and often completely cure the disease of the bodily organs, allied with the bladder and kidneys.

If you are troubled with soreness across the loins or with "simple" aches and pains in the back take warning, it may be the preliminary indications of some dreadful urinary ailment which can be warded off or cured in a few bottles.

Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Harlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. GOLD MEDAL are the pure, original imported Harlem Oil Capsules. Accept No Substitutes.—Adv.

You Can Now Eat Your Favorite Food Without Any Fear

Kramer Says: "Eatonic" Rids Weak Stomachs of Acids, Gas, Heartburn, Food Repeating and Stomach Miseries

What miserable feelings are caused by an upset stomach! That dull, heavy, "bloated" sensation that makes a full meal, robs you of half the pleasure. Is there any way out for you sufferers with stomach weakness?

Yes; H. L. Kramer, the man who originated Casarets, has found a sure, quick, relief for indigestion, dyspepsia, "sour stomach," heart-burn, formation of painful gases, "bloating," etc., etc. He calls his stomach relief EATONIC, and it certainly is making a wonderful record. Countless thousands of people who formerly approached their meals with dread, now eat their fill of their favorite foods without fear of the after-effects.

Mr. Kramer says: "My EATONIC tablets are the solution of the age-old problem of indigestion and all forms of stomach misery. EATONIC neutralizes the acids, that form the painful gases, 'sweet-berry,' 'bloated' sensation, and gives the gastric a full meal, robs you of half the pleasure. Is there any way out for you sufferers with stomach weakness?"

"To promote appetite and aid digestion, take EATONIC tablets—one or two after each meal. They are perfectly harmless. Eat them just like candy.

"For distress after eating; sour, 'grassy,' acid stomach, vertigo, nausea and belching, and that wretched, puffed-up, 'lumpy' feeling, after over-eating; there is nothing to compare with EATONIC Tablets."

All druggists sell EATONIC—50c for a large box. Watch out for imitations. The genuine bears the name EATONIC on each tablet—guaranteed tablets are the solution of the age-old problem of indigestion and all forms of stomach misery.

Scenes of Prosperity
Are Common in Western Canada

The thousands of U. S. farmers who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops of wheat and other grains.

Where you can buy good farm land at $15 to $20 per acre—get 25 bushels of wheat and make $9 to $12 bushels to the acre you are bound to make money—that's what you can do in Western Canada.

In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta you can get a HOMESTEAD OF 160 ACRES FREE and other land at very low prices.

During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre—many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of Oats, Barley, and Flax.

Wheat Farming is as profitable as any industry as grain raising. Good schools, churches, markets convenient, climate excellent. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Dept. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to

COVER CROPS ARE HELP IN ORCHARD

Use of Them Lessens Need for Fertilizers, M. A. C. Horticulturist Says.

LEGUMES FIT IN WELL

Vetch, Peas and Clover Ideal Under Michigan Conditions—Oats and Rye Also Have Place.

By PROF. H. P. HALLIGAN, Department of Horticulture, Michigan Agricultural College.

East Lansing, Mich.—The current scarcity of fertilizers and the consequent high price of potash and nitrogenous fertilizers emphasizes the necessity for using cover crops in Michigan fruit orchards this season. Of all the resources at hand on a fruit farm for overcoming the fertilizer famine and maintaining the fertility of the orchards, cover crops are one of the most efficacious. While they add no potash or phosphoric acid to the soil, they make such of these elements as are already present more available to the fruits at seasons of the year when they are most needed.

Recent experiments in fertilizing commercial orchards have shown that it is possible to derive great benefits from fertilizers which add nitrogen to the soil. Some of the chief advantages of leguminous cover crops lie in the fact that they serve just this purpose, and furnish an element which, if the purchaser had to buy it in the form of commercial fertilizer, would be very expensive. Clovers, vetches, beans and peas when used as cover crops supply nitrogen to the orchard soils. But cover crops have their greatest value in that they add humus to the soil. This humus tends to maintain the physical condition and increase the water-holding capacity of the orchard land. One of the strongest arguments in favor of cultivation in Michigan orchards is the fact that this practice conserves the moisture. Soils without humus are not capable of holding large quantities of water. The addition of humus makes their capacity in this respect greater.

The selection of a plant for cover-crop purposes depends largely upon the character of the soil and the time at which it can be seeded. On the sandy loam soils, winter vetch is one of the most desirable leguminous cover crops. It must be seeded rather early, that is, some time in July or early August, and it usually is combined with oats or rye, as vetch makes but a slow growth in the fall and early winter. It is able to withstand very dry weather during late summer and fall as well as the tramping of pickers and packers at harvesting time. If used with oats and seeded with a drill, 15 pounds to the acre is sufficient with a bushel of oats, but if spread broadcast 20 to 25 pounds should be used per acre. On the heavier clay loam soils, Mammoth clover and June clover are both desirable leguminous cover crops. These crops require a very well prepared seed bed and if the weather conditions are favorable in late summer and fall, a good growth will be secured. Crimson clover is also used sometimes as a cover crop, but its lack of hardiness, especially during severe open winters, makes it less desirable than those first mentioned.

On orchard lands that have not been previously used for cover crops, where the soil is not in an ideal condition, rye is a desirable crop to use. It brings the soil to a mellow state so that other cover crops can be grown. Rye is also an excellent cover crop to sow if the seedling has been delayed until the fall. It makes a fair growth during the fall and springs up very early in the spring so that by the time the orchard is plowed there is a fairly heavy crop of rye to turn under.

Of the other crops that may be used, oats are probably the most popular. The seed is not expensive and is much better than weeds in an orchard. Oats can be sown late and produce a good cover in the fall. They are also very popular in orchards that are to be plowed in the spring rather than plowed as there is less difficulty in working them into the soil. Oats also make an excellent crop to sow with winter vetch or peas, but being nonleguminous, they do not themselves add nitrogen to the soil.

The comparatively high price of seed at the present time makes it important that the soil should be very well prepared, and to obtain the maximum benefit from the amount of seed used, it will often be desirable to drill the seed rather than to broadcast it. Under the present abnormal conditions, fruit growers in Michigan cannot afford to neglect this practice of obtaining the many benefits to be derived from cover crops.

POULTRYMEN TO CO-OPERATE

M. A. C. Plans Demonstrations of Culling, Feeding and Marketing—Asks Teamwork.

By PROF. C. H. BURGESS, Department of Poultry Husbandry, Michigan Agricultural College.

East Lansing, Mich.—Can you cull out of your farm flock the layers from the nonlayers? Can you figure out a ration that in a certain season will bring the best returns from your hens at a minimum cost? Are you posted on the big and little tricks of marketing, knowledge of which will make possible the obtaining of the best prices? Among Michigan's professional poultrymen are to be found a large number of highly skilled and capable individuals who are pretty well up in all these practices, but this doesn't apply to Michigan agriculturists as a whole. On the average farm, poultry raising is usually a side issue and receives only the attention, or rather the lack of attention, which is usually the fate of "side issues." Yet, in the aggregate, these farm flocks of a few score or a hundred hens, each produce more poultry products by far than our out-and-out poultry farmers. And what is more, the farm flock, properly handled, can be made quite a lucrative source of income.

What is proper handling? The query isn't a new one by any means, but if inferences are to be drawn from the number of times this question is asked in letters received by the college, it is still a live one.

The matter, however, is not one that can be very easily made clear by letter—wherefore the department, during the coming season, proposes to conduct a number of demonstrations among farmers. Farms will be selected where flocks will be culled and put upon a profit-earning basis—and of course the co-operation of interested persons will be necessary. If you are one of those who would like to see something of this sort done in your community, take the matter up with your county agricultural agent and ask him to communicate your request to us. Or if you are in a county where no agent is employed, then write direct to the department of poultry husbandry, Michigan Agricultural college, East Lansing. This work will be started on July 1.

TO AID CREAMERY MEN

M. A. C. Will Put Man in Field to Work With Dairy Manufacturers of State.

East Lansing, Mich.—A man whose business it will be to give assistance to the dairy manufacturers of Michigan will be employed by the department and extension division of the college after July 1. The particular function of this new member of the extension staff will be to travel about the state visiting creameries and co-operating with the managers of them just as a physician might make his rounds to prescribe for his patients—though the dairy industry of Michigan, as it happens, is far from being a "sick man."

The official announcement by the college of the plans for the new work set forth that the object of it will be to assist Michigan dairy manufacturing plants to become more efficient and to improve the quality of their products. A study of the conditions surrounding the making of dairy products in these plants will be made to the end that assistance can be given where help is needed. Personal acquaintance will be built up with buttermakers and others in plants in order that they may know to whom to turn when troubles develop or questions of factory policy crop up.

Assistance will also be given to producers and to county agents in the organization and establishment of new co-operative plants and improvement of conditions in the old ones if such be called for.

D. T. Goodwin, formerly associate professor of dairying in the Georgia Agricultural college, is the man to whom the new commission will be entrusted. He will begin his work in Michigan on July 1.

SCHOOL TEACHERS TO DRILL

Men and Women Will Be Given Military Instruction at M. A. C. This Summer.

East Lansing, Mich.—Michigan, so it is reported from the Michigan Agricultural college, will have a "battalion of death" all its own this summer—though unlike the Russian amazons, the M. A. C. organization is expected to be more stunning than killing. The M. A. C. "woman's battalion" will be one of the features of the summer session at the college.

But while the new organization will be novel, it is by no means intended to be for show purposes, the military department of the college is letting it be known. The idea is to afford a means by which school teachers can be trained in military fundamentals, so that upon returning to their schools in the fall they can drill their pupils as is being done in large numbers of progressive communities.

The military course at M. A. C. will be open to masculine as well as feminine teachers. Maj. P. G. Wrightson, commandant of the cadet regiment at the college, will instruct those who enroll for it. The "recruits" will be organized into one or more companies and schooled in both close and extended order tactics, the manual of arms, and a number of other fundamentals suitable for high school and grade school companies such as teachers will be called upon to direct.

Individuals wishing to enroll are advised that they can secure information by writing to Prof. E. H. Ryder of M. A. C.

FOCH'S RESERVES NOW THROWN IN TERRIFIC BATTLE

FRENCH ARMY STRIKES BACK AT ENEMY AND RETAKE FOUR VILLAGES—FOE ARMY REACHES MARNE.

GERMANS FAIL IN THEIR EFFORTS TO CONQUER RHEIMS

Nowhere Has the Enemy Crossed the River Marne—French Counter-Attack Wins Back the Village Fort de la Pompelle.

Paris—The strength of General Foch's reserves has been felt by the armies of the German crown prince in the "battle for Paris."

East of the line running from Soissons to Chateau Thierry, where the Germans in a continuation of their mighty strokes gained several additional villages and then attempted to proceed further westward, magnificent opposition was imposed by the terrific strengthened lines and, with terrific smashes, the French forces recaptured Longpont, Corcy, Faveroles and Troesnes, vantage points in the center of the line leading to the forest of Villers Cotterets, which seems to be the present objective here of the enemy.

Enemy Reach the Marne.

The Germans, however, still have in their possession the village of Vaux-la-Petite, lying to the west of Soissons, and further south Saconin-Et-Breuil, Chaudun, Licy and Bourches, the last named directly west of Chateau Thierry. A little to the southwest of Chateau Thierry the enemy has reached the Marne.

Nowhere has there been any attempt by the invaders to cross the river, and at all points east of Chateau Thierry they are urging the northern bank of the stream. It is not improbable, however, the tactics of the Germans have in view the fording of the river when the time is more propitious, for in the center of the line between Chateau Thierry and Rheims they have pushed back the Allied front across the Rheims-Dormans road between Oilly-Violaines and Ville-en-Tardenois and are pressing toward the Marne.

Germany's Best Troops in Battle.

This is the only point on their left wing, however, where the enemy has been able to make fresh gains, notwithstanding the fact he has thrown new divisions into the battle, some of them the best trained troops in the German army.

Having failed in all their efforts to conquer Rheims by direct assault, it now seems to be the intention of the Germans further to widen their occupation of the territory lying south of the Rheims-Dormans road and thereby outflank the cathedral city and bring about its capitulation.

In the fighting in the immediate vicinity of Rheims the enemy won Fort de la Pompelle, but his tenure of the position was short-lived, for the French troops in a counter attack reconquered it.

Counter-Revolutionary Plot Barred.

LONDON—Discovery in Moscow and Petrograd of a large counter-revolutionary plot which stretches throughout the whole of Russia, is announced in a Russian wireless message. To this plot is attributable in part the mutiny of the Czech-Slovak troops which have captured several important railway junctions and lines.

The soviet executive decided May 29 to undertake the partial calling to arms of several classes of workmen and the poorer peasants in Petrograd and Moscow and the Kuban and Don regions.

At the same time Moscow has been declared in a state of siege. Counter-revolutionaries have been arrested in considerable numbers and energetic measures have been taken against the press. These measures are necessary, it is announced, owing to the situation in which the Russian revolution has been placed.

Enemy Planes Hit Hospitals.

With the British Army in France—British Red Cross hospitals again have come under the German bombardment. Hostile airplanes raided the same group of hospitals which suffered May 19. Several hospitals were hit, and the casualty list among patients and workers is considerable.

One hospital was almost demolished when an enemy aviator dropped an explosive on it after getting his bearings by letting fall a brilliant flare which lighted up the whole district.

Wants Wood to Head 85th Division.

Washington.—Senator Hiram Johnson, California, voiced an energetic protest on the floor of the senate Friday afternoon against the action of the war department in depriving Major-General Leonard Wood of his command of the Eighty-ninth division on the eve of its departure for France. Senator Johnson expressed "very great regret" that General Wood was not to be sent to France and insisted there was "dire need of such soldiers as he."

Swift & Company

The Farmer's Share

Live stock is marketed from farmer to consumer at a lower cost than almost any other farm product.

The United States Department of agriculture reported in 1916 that the farmer gets for his cattle "approximately two-thirds to three-fourths" of the final retail price paid by the consumer for the resulting beef.

Under normal conditions, the farmer's share of retail prices of various farm products is approximately as follows:

|----------|-----------------------|
| Butter | 71 per cent |
| CATTLE | 66 2/3 to 75 per cent |
| Eggs | 65 per cent |
| Potatoes | 55 per cent |
| Poultry | 45 per cent |
| Fruits | 35 per cent |

The difference between farmer's price and retail price represents the necessary expenses of packing, freight and wholesale and retail distribution.

Swift & Company not only performs the manufacturing operations of preparing cattle for market in its well-equipped packing plants, but it pays the freight on meat to all parts of the United States, operates 500 branch distributing houses, and in most cases even delivers to the retail butcher. All this is done at an expense of less than 2 cents per pound, and at a profit of only about 1/4 of a cent per pound of beef.

Large volume of business and expert management, make possible this indispensable service to the live-stock raiser and to the consumer, and make possible the larger proportion of retail prices received by farmers.
