

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING HELD LAST EVENING

Music and Drawing Retained, Three Trustees Elected and Money Voted for Next Year.

At the annual school meeting held last evening it was almost unanimously voted to retain a regular teacher of music and drawing in the schools for the ensuing year. The school board last spring had decided to dispense with a special teacher of those subjects and to depend upon one of the regular teachers to direct such work. Popular demand, however, seemed to be for the retention of the music and drawing teacher and the matter was definitely settled last evening.

Two new trustees, S. A. Mapes and Miss Elizabeth Depew, were elected for regular terms of three years, and M. J. Dunkel was elected for two years to fill vacancy.

ALUMINUM SET FREE.

The Chelsea Hardware company has an announcement on page three which should be of especial interest to those who need a new range. For a short time they are giving away a set of seven pieces of aluminum ware with each range of a certain manufacture which they sell. The value of the aluminum ware is said to be $10, which should be of more than passing interest to intending purchasers of ranges.

SHARON-SYLVAN RED CROSS.

The Sharon-South Sylvan Red Cross unit has recently shipped to county headquarters: Eighteen red gowns, 8 bandaged foot socks, 5 pairs of knitted wool socks and one sweater. New members are: Mrs. Albert Wolpert, Mrs. Hattie Cook, Henrietta Bowd. Renewal, John Rochon.

CHELSEA HOME GUARDS.

Hereafter the Chelsea Home Guards will drill only one evening each week, on Friday at 7:15 o'clock. The members who have attended the drills regularly now march like veteran troops and a little later drill will be started in the manual of arms, also a "non-com" school will be organized.

The drill should be especially beneficial to young men in deferred classifications or to those not yet 21 years of age who may be called upon to register later, and it is largely for the benefit of such men that the home guards were organized. Every loyal citizen should arrange to attend the drills regularly and to perfect the organization in every possible way.

TWO FINE NEW WELLS

Village Water Plant Will Soon Have Ample Supply Aqua Para.

Two new six inch wells were completed during the past week at the village reservoir on North street. Both are flowing wells and should so augment the water supply that there will be no serious water shortage in Chelsea for several years to come. The village now has a total of seven flowing wells supplying its water system. Four are four inch wells, one is three inch and the two just completed are six inches in diameter. The new wells were driven by J. F. Alber.

Superintendent Boehm of the water plant has plans for increasing the size of the reservoir at the wells and also for laying a larger suction main from the wells to the storage reservoir at the pumping station on North Main street, but these improvements may not be made for some time. Until they are made, however, the maximum water supply will not be available for the reason that the suction main is too small and must be enlarged in order to handle the increased volume of water.

CHICAGO BOY RUNAWAYS.

Two Chicago lads, Theodore Wilmer, 13 years old, and Ralph Johnson, 14 years old, were taken off from Michigan Central passenger train No. 46, Saturday morning, by local officers. The boys were riding the "blind baggage." Their parents were notified and Wilmer's mother sent money for a ticket to Chicago so that he was sent home last evening. Johnson is wanted in the juvenile court in Chicago and is being held in Ann Arbor for instructions as to what disposition shall be made in his case. The boys say they left Chicago Friday afternoon and slept in a Kalamazoo cemetery Friday night.

ORGANIZE REBECCA LODGE.

A meeting will be held Thursday evening, July 11th, at eight o'clock in the L. O. O. F. hall for the purpose of completing arrangements for the institution of a Rebecca lodge in Chelsea. Speakers from Ann Arbor will be present and all members of the Oddfellows and their wives, mothers, daughters and sisters, and any who are interested in the organization of a Rebecca lodge, are cordially invited to attend the meeting. It is expected that the new lodge will be instituted in about two weeks as a number of applications have been received all ready.

HOOVER'S CAR SKIDDED.

When a limousine driven by J. J. Hoover of Ann Arbor skidded on the sharp curve east of the county poor farm on the Washenaw road Sunday night, the car plunged off the road and into the ditch, both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover being slightly injured. Mr. Hoover was cut about the head and Mrs. Hoover's right wrist was painfully cut by broken glass from the windshield. First aid was given by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Trosper, who witnessed the accident. Mr. Hoover formerly resided in Chelsea and is well known to many here.

U. S. SOLDIERS OVERSIZE.

Two out of every 1,000 men in the army have to have their shoes made to order. In several camps entire regiments have had their feet measured, and hundreds of drawings were made of odd shapes and sizes. At the present time the army uses between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 pairs of shoes a month.

Facts brought out in tests seem to prove that men in the present army are larger than those serving in previous wars. Not only is this shown by the larger sizes of shoes called for, but by the larger sizes of outer clothing that is being required. Records in the quartermaster corps show that a size larger, on the average, is being demanded in blouses, shirts, and breeches than have ever before been used.

MICHIGAN LEADS IN COAL SHIPMENTS

But Supply of Hard Coal Will Be Only 50 Per Cent of Normal.

Michigan will receive three times as much anthracite coal per capita as the citizens of Indiana and Ohio, says W. K. Prudden, federal fuel administrator for Michigan, in a letter to Governor Albert E. Sleeper sent to inform the governor of the "exact facts" in the matter.

"Another statement of the letter which shows that the people who must depend upon Mr. Prudden for their coal, have not been discriminated against as charged by certain interests in Detroit is that 28 counties of Pennsylvania where practically all the hard coal is mined will not receive a single ton of this fuel.

Mr. Prudden's letter is as follows: "There has been considerable misunderstanding relative to Michigan's allotment of anthracite coal for the coming year, commencing April 1, 1918, and ending April 1, 1919. "It has been stated that Michigan's allotment for the coming year was cut 25 per cent of the amount received from April 1, 1916 to April 1, 1917. This is true, but I think you are entitled to know all the facts regarding the matter which will show that Michigan has really fared better than any of the central western states, namely Ohio, Indiana or Illinois.

"Ohio will receive during the coming year, 246,000 tons, which is a cut of 57.95 per cent over its former allotment.

"Indiana will receive during the coming year, 284,110 tons, a cut of 60 per cent over its former allotment.

"Illinois will receive during the coming year, 1,750,585 tons, which is a cut of 20.97 per cent over its former allotment.

"Michigan will receive 1,201,000, a cut of 21.42 per cent.

"When you consider that Chicago alone has had taken from it upwards of 2,000,000 tons of Pocahontas coal heretofore used for domestic fuel, you will see that their allotment of anthracite coal is not high.

"At the time I was in Washington these allotments were discussed and a proposition was made to pool all the anthracite coming to the four states named, but careful consideration of this subject by me convinced me that Michigan, so far as the four states were concerned, had fared better than any one of them, and I was opposed to any such pooling arrangement. I felt that so long as we had 1,201,000 tons allotted to us, that we better take that amount than to pool it all and run a chance of not getting that much in the end.

"Our allotment of anthracite coal will not fill 50 per cent of the demand for domestic coal, so it will be necessary for consumers in Michigan to use a considerable quantity of bituminous coal."

MEATLESS DAYS IN FRANCE.

Meat cards were abandoned in France not long ago, and in place of them three meatless days a week were substituted. The three meatless days come in succession, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of each week.

These meatless days are not merely requested of the housewife. They are established by regulation and control the butcher himself. Three separate meatless days with intervals between them would not be anywhere nearly as efficacious in France as three such days here, because France has nothing like our cold storage facilities, and there would be inevitable wastage in the attempt to clean up stocks three times a week instead of once.

SEARCH FOR JACKSON
CONVICT-MURDERER

Officers From Neighboring County Found No Trace of Bushnell in Dexter Township.

The sheriff and three deputies from Jackson county yesterday scoured the country-side in the vicinity of the W. S. Baird farm in Dexter township in a futile search for the escaped Jackson prison convict, Harry Bushnell, suspected of having murdered Valden Borden and Tillie Jenkins, whose terribly mutilated bodies were found Saturday near one of the prison farms, where Bushnell worked.

While out riding Sunday, George Clark and family saw a suspicious looking character dodge across the road at the four corners, just east of the Baird farm and they reported the incident to the local officers, who in turn notified the Jackson officials.

The Jackson posse brought two blood-hounds with them in hopes of tracking the suspect and were accompanied from here by J. E. McKune, but were unsuccessful in finding any trace of the escaped convict and murder suspect in Dexter township.

DEXTER DIVORCE CASE.

William J. Lawrence, of Dexter, has filed an answer to the divorce suit of his wife, Grace E. Lawrence, of that village, by his lawyer, Andrew J. Sawyer, in which he makes the most serious counter charges against her.

He not only denies her allegations that he was cruel and abusive to her and that he struck her, but he accuses her of doing the "beating up" charges that she used foul and abusive language toward him, charges her with infidelity and names a man with whom he believes her to have been unlawfully intimate, and charges that she even threatened to kill her children. In regard to the language, he charges her with using "oaths of the most wicked nature, calling this plaintiff names too vile for any human tongue to utter or for any paper to hold in print; that the oaths which she uses are so dirty, mean, vile and burning that they would start a fire on paper, and if the paper was filed in the court house would burn the court house down."

VICTOR D. HINDELANG.

Victor D. Hindelang, formerly of this place, died at his home in Grand Rapids, Sunday, June 7. Mr. Hindelang had been in failing health for some time. The interment will take place from St. Andrew's church, Grand Rapids, Wednesday at nine o'clock a. m.

The deceased was a brother of Louis H. Hindelang and Miss Frances Hindelang of this village.

WEBER - ALBER.

Miss Nora Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Weber of Sylvan and Mr. Adam Alber of Chelsea, were quietly married Thursday evening, July 4, 1918, at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. C. C. Nuthardt officiating. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Rex Dorr of Grass Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Alber will make their home with her parents for the present.

FOOD WAS CHEAP
IN OLD KALAMAZOO

Copy of Daily Telegraph Published in 1876 Contains Interesting Market Quotations.

The Tribune was recently privileged to examine an old copy of the Kalamazoo Daily Telegraph, dated February 4, 1876. The paper was found in the back of an old picture frame by Mrs. Thackey. Perhaps one of the most interesting items in the paper, from a present day view point at a time of soaring prices, is the market report, from which we quote as follows:

Bears, 75 @ $1.00; beef, dressed, 5 @ 6½¢; fat cattle, 3 @ 3½¢; flour, $7.00 bbl.; hams, 10 @ 12¢; dressed hogs, 7½ @ 14¢; potatoes 20 @ 25¢ bu.; dressed and matched flooring, per M, $16 @ $30; siding, $18 @ $25; barn boards, $13 @ $14.

Among other items we note an announcement of the eighth annual meeting of the Michigan Press association, at two o'clock on February 8, 1876, in the supreme court-room in Lansing.

DEXTER BOY WAR VICTIM.

The great world war was brought closer to the people of Dexter and vicinity, many of whom have relatives and friends in the service of their country, by word which was received Saturday, that John Devine, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Devine, who is serving in the marines, and was the first boy from the village to enlist, had been wounded on the evening of June 6th. In the letter, which was written for him by the Red Cross chaplain at the hospital where he was taken and where he is receiving the kindest attention, he states that he was hit by a shrapnel shell. His right arm was broken between the elbow and shoulder and there is a bad cut on his left hand. The captain of his company and a number of his good friends were killed at the same time that he was wounded, and it is a miracle that he was not killed. He suffered no other injury except the arms, and expects to be all right in about two months.

VILLAGE TAXES.

M. A. Shaver,
Treasurer.

The reign of King Albert, prior to the war, was characterized by the splendid thrift so typical of the devoted and courageous Belgian people.

As a consequence Belgian was, although she possessed but little in the way of natural advantage, busy and fairly prosperous.

Prosperity is one of the inevitable results of thrift—whether in the affairs of nations or individuals.

Your prosperity—that is, your continued prosperity—will depend largely upon your thrift.

Let us suggest that you form the wonderful habit of thrift and start by opening an account in this good bank. Then, if you will but add something regularly each week, you will have made a fair start along the road that leads to prosperity.

Camp Custer.—Unless the regulations concerning physical qualifications of men for service have been recently changed it appears that the government has been wasting time and money in training some of those men who will now be dismissed from the service. Those men had physical defects when they came into the army that disqualified them for overseas service but they have been carried in line regiments receiving the same training as the physically fit.

Kerensky Denounces Bolsheviks

Paris.—Alexander Kerensky, former Russian premier, and Spalmer Branting, Swedish Socialist leader, attended a meeting of the Socialist party at the Chant. Kerensky denounced the Bolshevik policy and displayed a copy of a protest voted on May 18, 1918, at a secret meeting of the Russian constituent assembly, against the Brest-Litovsk treaty and declaring that Russia still was at war with Germany. The text of the protest, he said, would be published later.

FORMER MAYOR OF N. Y. CITY DIES IN 'PLANE FALL

JOHN PURROY MITCHELL.

Lake Charles, La.—Investigation into the death of Major John Purroy Mitchell, former mayor of New York, who fell from his airplane at Gerstner field July 6, had not been concluded Sunday. Major Kirby, commanding officer at the field, announced. Evidence of cadet fliers and civilian workers was said to have made it certain that when Major Mitchell left the ground in his machine the straps of his safety belt were not buckled.

BINDER TWINE CHEAPER IN 1919

Estimated Saving to Grain Growers in U. S. is $6,000,000.

Lansing, Mich.—Binder twine for the harvest of 1919 will cost American farmers about three cents per pound less than they have paid this year; the estimated total saving to grain growers of the United States is $6,000,000.

This announcement of the United States food administration follows an arrangement it has made with the Comision Reguladora, the Yucatan monopoly controlling sisal, whereby the Comision has contracted to sell 500,000 bales of sisal to twine mills of this country at a price three cents per pound less than a year ago.

To maintain an economical operation of twine mills in the United States, sisal is contracted for about a year ahead and is manufactured into the finished twine throughout the year.

By the new arrangements, the cost of sisal will be approximately 16 cents wholesale at gulf ports compared with 19 cents per pound for the sisal used in making the twine for the present harvest.

WALL STREET WAR TAX HEAVY

Revenue Men Get $457,058,250 From This Financial District.

Washington.—War tax collections during the last fiscal year in the second New York district, in which is located the Wall Street section, were by far the heaviest in any district in the internal revenue bureau show. The twenty-third Pennsylvania district in which the city of Pittsburgh is located, was second.

The Wall street district returns totaled $457,058,250, including $414,608,907 from incomes and excess profits, and the Pittsburgh district paid $332,159,701, of which $292,576,362 came from incomes and excess profits.

Balance of the money received from both localities came from usual internal revenue sources—tobacco, whiskey and stamp sales.

IRELAND'S VOTE BOOSTED 150%

Believed New Law Will Add Much Strength to Sinn Fein.

Dublin.—The number of persons entitled to vote in Ireland will be increased nearly 150 per cent under the new franchise law, giving everyone who has lived in Ireland six months the right to vote. The franchise is extended to women over 30 years old who are the wives of electors. The city of Dublin has had up to now about 40,000 voters. In future it will have 100,000.

The effect on Irish politics generally is expected to be to increase the voting strength of the Sinn Fein party, since the larger part of the additional voters will be young men, and the young men are mostly Sinn Feiners.

Express Employees Raised.

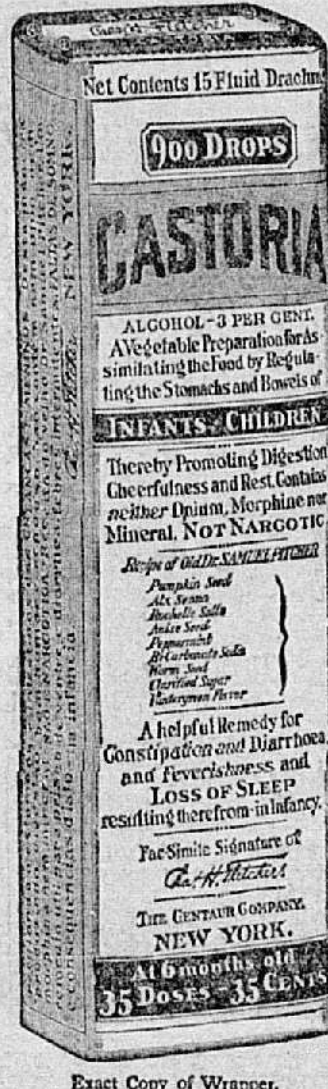

New York.—Express men throughout the country will receive higher wages dating from July 1, according to an announcement made by George C. Taylor, president of the American Railway Express company, which now operates the entire express business on railroads of the United States. "The increase in express rates recently granted by the interstate commerce commission," said President Taylor, "makes it possible to immediately revise wage schedules."

A Great Responsibility.

THE responsibility attached to the preparing of a remedy for infants and children is undoubtedly greater than that imposed upon the manufacturer of remedies for adults whose system is sufficiently strong to counteract, for a time at least, any injurious drug. It is well to observe that Castoria is prepared today, as it has been for the past 40 years, under the personal supervision of Mr. Chas. H. Fletcher.

What have makers of imitations and substitutes at stake? What are their responsibilities? To whom are they answerable? They spring up today, scatter their nefarious wares broadcast, and disappear tomorrow.

Could each mother see the painstaking care with which the prescription for Fletcher's Castoria is prepared: could they read the innumerable testimonials from grateful mothers, they would never listen to the subtle pleadings and false arguments of those who would offer an imitation of, or substitute for, the tried and true Fletcher's Castoria.

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Extracts from Letters by Grateful Parents to Chas. H. Fletcher.

G. J. English, of Springfield, Mass., says: "It was your Castoria that saved my child."

Mrs. Mary McGinnis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "We have given our baby your Castoria ever since she was born, and we recommend it to all mothers."

N. E. Calmes, of Marion, Ky., says: "You have the best medicine in the world, as I have given your Castoria to my babies from first to last."

Mrs. Albert Ugusky, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., says: "As I have had your Castoria in use for nearly three years, I am pleased to say it is just as represented. My children are both well and happy—thanks to Castoria."

R. P. Stockton, of New Orleans, La., says: "We began giving your Castoria to our baby when he was eight days old and have kept it up ever since, never having had to give any other medicine."

Mrs. Dolph Hornbuckle, of Colorado Springs, Colo., says: "We commenced giving your Castoria to our baby when she was four weeks old. She is now seven months and weighs 19 pounds. Everyone remarks: 'What a healthy looking baby.' We give Castoria credit for it."

Goose Was a Fighter.

Fighting a goose a man had an exciting experience at Grand Lake, Newfound, the other day. The man was goose hunting, and it being after nightfall he had a searchlight rigged upon his boat, when he came upon two geese in the distance perched upon a piece of ice. He fired and struck one of the birds. He hastened to secure it, when the other attracted by the light flew right on board the boat, and for a considerable time both huntsman and bird fought with each other upon the dark waters of Grand lake.

Of No Value to Him.

"Can you give me any quotations from the Bible," asked the pious-looking individual of his friend, the stockbroker.

"Well, I can have one of the boys look them up, but I don't believe you will find them of much assistance at this late date," returned the other.

Get New Kidneys!

The kidneys are the most overworked organs of the human body, and when they fail in their work of filtering out and throwing off the poisons developed in the system, things begin to happen.

One of the first warnings is pain or stiffness in the lower part of the back; highly colored urine; loss of appetite; indigestion; irritation, or even stone in the bladder. These symptoms indicate a condition that may lead to that dreaded and fatal malady, Bright's disease, for which there is said to be no cure.

Do not delay a minute. At the first indication of trouble in the kidney, liver, bladder or urinary organs start taking Gold Medal Hairline Oil Capsules, and save yourself before it is too late. Instant treatment is necessary in kidney and bladder troubles. A delay is often fatal.

You can almost certainly find immediate relief in Gold Medal Hairline Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this famous preparation has been an unfailing remedy for all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles.

It is the pure, original Hairline Oil your great-grandfather used. About two capsules each day will keep you toned up and feeling fine. Get it at any drug store, and if it does not give you almost immediate relief, your money will be refunded. Be sure you get the GOLD MEDAL brand. None other genuine. In boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

JUST HIS LITTLE MISTAKE

Of Course Soldier Could Not Be Blamed, but It Was an Unfortunate Error.

The anonymous author of "Nursing Adventures" tells an amusing story of a soldier brother of hers, who came to crave her hospitality, for a brief period at a clearing hospital "somewhere in France."

He was caked all over with mud, so as a preliminary he was sent to wash in the kitchen. I left him (she writes) getting off layers of mud into a bucket of warm water. Later he joined us.

"Have you emptied your bucket?" I asked, as I had not heard the heavy door open.

"Oh, yes," he replied; I emptied it down the kitchen sink.

A horrid thought came to me.

"There is no sink," I exclaimed, "only the well of drinking water in the corner."

Sure enough it was there the dirty water had gone, and some one even murmured that the coffee that night had a flavor not its own.

True.

"Clothes don't make the man." "Oh, I don't know. Uncle Sam's uniform is making many a man today."

Hot Weather Poisons Hit The Stomach First

How to Keep Your Stomach Strong, Cool and Sweet

Hot weather always starts those quick chemical changes which produce poisons in meats, fish, fruits, vegetables, milk and food products.

Such summer poisons in foods not only make well stomachs sick but develop with dangerous rapidity in sensitive, sick or ailing stomachs and bowels.

These poisons not only generate gases and fluids which cause that bloated, lumpy feeling, heartburn, sour stomach, belching, acidity, but endless other stomach and bowel miseries.

A sure, safe, quick acting relief has been found which absorbs and neutralizes these poisons, too much acid and harmful gases. EATONIC Tablets, one or two taken after every meal, will keep your stomach sweet. You will have a good appetite to eat what you like, when you want it and be free from all those bad effects liable to come after a hearty meal in summer.

EATONIC Tablets are hot weather protectors for the stomach. They guard against the gases that lurk in the things you eat and drink. They rebuild listless appetites, promote digestion by aiding proper action of the stomach functions and insure speedy relief from indigestion and all stomach distresses.

EATONIC is good to eat like candy. People from all over send grateful testimonials. Tens of thousands are obtaining relief with EATONIC every day but the best evidence is to let your own stomach tell you the truth. Go to your druggist and get a big box of EATONIC. Tell him you want it for the prevention and sure relief of stomach and bowel disorders produced by hot weather poisons.

Then if EATONIC fails to satisfy you—return it to your druggist, whom you know and can trust. He will cheerfully refund your money. If your druggist doesn't keep EATONIC—drop us a postal. It will be delivered to your address and you can then pay for it. Address, H. L. Kramer, President, 1015 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FOOD FISH DISPLAY.

One of the big features of the government's display at the State Fair will be the exhibit of the Bureau of Fisheries of the Department of Commerce. The food question has loomed large in the public mind for many months and the fisheries bureau will show the fair visitors a number of excellent food fish that have not been offered heretofore. These will include the whale, shark, gray fish and many others. In the display at Detroit with the federal and state food administrators will combine in giving the interested visitor an insight into the undertakings of these bodies in the war. Mr. Dickinson has arranged for the government exhibit to occupy 15,000 square feet of space in the automobile building. The department of agriculture will have a model farm buildings display with a view of encouraging the raising of live stock and poultry on a more scientific basis. The farmers visiting the fair will be interested in the displays of department which include specimens of wheat and wheat substitutes which may be successfully grown in Michigan.

WHEAT HOARDERS GET GOVERNMENT CHECKSYpsilanti Farmer Refuses His and Tipton Farmer Leaves His in Tecumseh Bank.

Frank D. Fitzgerald, executive secretary to Food Administrator George A. Prescott, has received an official receipt from Nelson D. Curtis, a Dundee farmer, for $341.36, representing payment for 173 bushels of wheat, minus the transportation, handling and other charges. Curtis refused to sell his stock of wheat and the same was requisitioned by the government.

Wyman Wells' check for around $5000 is still uncalled for at a Tecumseh bank. The banker told Mr. Fitzgerald that Wells is a peculiar type and the voucher might be there for weeks or months before Wells would call for it. So far as is known at Lansing, Wells is satisfied with the settlement, which represents the price of his grain as graded by the U. S. Grain Corporation, less the expense incident to marketing the same. Wells is the Tipton farmer who threatened all sorts of violence if anyone attempted to take the wheat, which was moved to the elevator under the surveillance of a detachment of men from the state constabulary.

The case of Walter Cady, the Ypsilanti farmer is now under investigation in Washington. The government in his case took the wheat and sent him a check which he declined to accept, refusing to accept the registered letter carrying the settlement. It is not known at Lansing how the Federal authorities will dispose of the Cady matter.

HOW TO KNIT SWEATER

Official Instructions Issued by the Chelsea Red Cross.

The following instructions for the knitting of a Red Cross sweater are published by request of the Red Cross and are official:

Sweater of light weight wool requires about 3/4 pound of 4-10 yarn and one pair of No. 3 Red Cross needles.

Cast on 78 stitches; knit 2, purl 2, for 4 inches; knit plain 17 inches. (a) Knit 28 stitches; knit 2, purl 2, for 22 stitches; then knit 28. (b) Knit 28 stitches; purl 2, knit 2, for 22 stitches; then knit 28. Repeat (a) and (b) for 12 rows (2 inches); knit 28 stitches; bind off 22 stitches (opening for neck); knit 28.

First shoulder—Knit 2, purl 2, for 28 stitches; then knit 2, purl 2, back over the 28 stitches. Continue to knit and purl back and forth in this way 15 times, which leaves the wool at outer edge. Break off wool and tie it on at neck-opening for second shoulder.

Second shoulder—Purl 2, knit 2, for 28 stitches; then purl 2, knit 2, back over the 28 stitches. Continue to knit and purl back and forth in this way 15 times, which leaves the wool at outer edge.

Knit plain 28 stitches; cast on 22 stitches; and knit plain across the 28 stitches for first shoulder. (c) Knit 28 stitches; purl 2, knit 2, for 22 stitches; then knit 28. (d) Knit 28 stitches; knit 2, purl 2, for 22 stitches; then knit 28. Repeat (c) and (d) for 12 rows (2 inches). Knit plain 17 inches; knit 2, purl 2, for four inches; bind off loosely. Sew up sides, leaving 9 inches for armholes. Single-crochet 1 row around neck and armholes.

Important suggestions—Casting on and binding off must be loose. When knitting with two needles, always slip first stitch. To measure a garment, lay it on a level surface and measure with a dependable measure of wood, metal or celluloid, not a tape line. Neck measurement, when stretched, 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 inches; chest measurement, not stretched, 17 to 20 inches across. A "row" means once across; a "ridge" or "rib" means once across and back.

FOOD ON U. S. TRANSPORT

Figures Below Are Average for Only One Vessel, but are Staggering.

The average landsman has little conception of the immensity of the task performed by the United States in transporting over a million of its troops to France. For instance, the meals which must be served regularly each day to several thousands of men on board ship are in themselves some undertakings, as is shown by the following figures quoted from a ship's newspaper, published aboard a U. S. transport:

"Outside of providing 210,000 meals at sea, the mess officer of the ship has very little to do. Very little.

"He is only called upon to provide, by the regulations, 180 different varieties of food. That's all. Every try to order 180 different things to eat? Yet this is the authentic list.

"The food needed to feed several thousand men at sea ranges from the glutton's dreams. You get the answer in the ship down below the water line, where 7,290 loaves of bread have been baked in one day, and where you stumble over every variety, from 60,000 pounds of beef to 132,000 eggs, or a compartment of brick ice cream in a 10-above-zero vault.

"And if this doesn't suit, you can bump along into 49,324 pounds of potatoes, 7,100 pounds of ham and bacon 7,800 pounds of butter, 9,200 pounds of sugar and 61,500 pounds of flour.

"If you can't get a meal out of all this you can still fall back on 4,600 pounds of sausage, 3,400 pounds of sauerkraut, 26,000 pounds of apples, 19,800 pounds of oranges and 4,200 pounds of onions. And this leaves out 1,500 pounds of jam and 9,400 lbs. of lima and navy beans."

CARNIVAL RED CROSSERS.

A traveling company is putting on a carnival at Howell and advertising it as a Red Cross benefit. It may be well to note the fact that only 15 per cent of the receipts goes to the Red Cross and 85 per cent to the carnival company.

All kinds of doings are being advertised in the name of the Red Cross and people are given various opportunities to contribute a few cents to the Red Cross while a larger premium goes to private enterprises which are quite frivolous and often even quite questionable in their character. It seems about time to call a halt on that kind of thing and not let such private enterprises use the name that has become almost sacred in its import, in such frivolities.—Fowlerville Review.

Caroline, crimson with mortification, protested indignantly. "Mr. Sylvester," she said, "it is not necessary to."

"Excuse me," her uncle's tone was sharper and more stern. "I think it is, Go on, Sylvester."

The lawyer looked far from comfortable, but he spoke at once and to the point. "I should have told you and your son just this, Mrs. Dunn," he said. "I intimated it before, and Miss Warren had already written you the essential facts. A new and unexpected development, the nature of which I am not at liberty to disclose now or later, makes Abijah Warren's estate absolutely bankrupt—not only that, but many thousands of dollars in debt. His heirs are left penniless."

It was blunt, beyond doubt. Even Captain Elisha winced at the word "penniless." Caroline, swaying, put a hand on the table to steady herself.

"Thank you, Mr. Sylvester," said the captain quietly. "I'll see you again in a few moments."

The lawyer bowed and left the room, evidently glad to escape. Captain Elisha turned to Mrs. Dunn.

"And now, ma'am," he observed, "that part of the business is over. My niece is a poor girl. She needs somebody to support her and look out for her. She's got that somebody, we're all thankful to say. She's engaged to Mr. Malcolm here. I understand from Steve that Malcolm's been mighty anxious to have the wedding hurried along. I can't say as I blame him. And I think the sooner they're married the better. Now, how soon can we make it, Mrs. Dunn?"

Caroline gazed at her guardian in horrified amazement. "Why?" she cried. "You—you—What do you mean by such?"

"Don't be an idiot, Caro," cut in her brother. "I told you to be sensible. Captain Warren's dead right."

"Steve, you stay out of this." There was no misunderstanding the captain's tone. "When I want your opinion I'll ask for it. And, Caroline, I want you to stay out too. This is my trick at the wheel. Mrs. Dunn, what do you say? Never mind the young folks. You and me know that marriage is business, same as everything else. How soon can we have the wedding?"

Mrs. Dunn had apparently nothing to say to him. She addressed her next remark to Caroline.

"My dear," she said, in great agitation, "this is really too dreadful. This—er—guardian of yours appears to think he is in some barbarous country—savages about. Come, Malcolm, take her away."

"No," Captain Elisha stepped in front of the door. "She ain't got and I'd rather you wouldn't go yet. Let's settle this up now. Well, Mr. Dunn," turning to the groom to be, "you're one of the interested parties—what do you say?"

Malcolm ground his heel into the rug. "I don't consider it your business," he declared. "You're butting in where—"

"No, no, I ain't. It's my business, and business is just what it is. There's a business contract between you and my niece. We want to know how soon it can be carried out, that's all."

The young man looked desperately at the door, but the captain's broad shoulders blocked the way toward it. He hesitated, seowed, and then, with a shrug of his shoulders, surrendered.

"How can I marry?" he demanded sullenly. "Confound it! My salary isn't large enough to pay my own way decently."

"Malcolm!" cried his mother warningly.

"Well, mater, what the devil's the use of all this? You know—By Jove, you ought to!"

"Hold on, young feller! I don't understand. Your wages ain't large enough, you say? What do you mean? You was goin' to be married, wasn't you? Caroline, don't you say a word. You say—you—addressing Malcolm—"that you can't support a wife on your wages. You could scrape along, couldn't you? Hey? Couldn't you?"

Malcolm's answer was another scornful shrug. "You belong on Cape Cod," he sneered. "Mater, let's get out of this."

"Wait! Put it plain now. Do I understand that you callate to break the engagement because my niece has lost her money? Is that it?"

"This is ridiculous," Mrs. Dunn proclaimed. "Every sane person knows, though barbarians may not—with a venomous glare at the captain "that in engagements of the kind in which my son has shared a certain amount of—er—financial—er—that is, the bride is supposed to have some money. It is expected. Of course it is! Love in a cottage is well, a bit passé. My son and I pity your niece from the bottom of our hearts, but—there! Under the circumstances the whole affair becomes impossible. Caroline, my dear, I'm dreadfully sorry, dreadfully! I love you like my own child. And poor Malcolm will be heartbroken—but—you see."

Stephen, who had been fuming and repressing his rage with difficulty during the scene, leaped forward with brandished fist.

"By gad!" he shouted. "Mal Dunn, you cad!"

His uncle pushed him back with a sweep of his arm.

"Steve," he ordered, "I'm runnin' this ship." He gave a quick glance at his niece and then added, speaking rapidly and addressing the head of the Dunn family: "I see, ma'am. Yes, yes, I see. Well, you've forgot one thing, I guess. If there's nothin' in marriage but business, then an engagement is what I just called it, a business contract, and it can't be broke without the consent of both sides. You wanted Caroline's money; maybe she wants yours now. If she does, and there's such a thing as law, why, perhaps she can get it."

"That's the talk!" cried Stephen exultingly.

"Stop!" Caroline cried wildly. "Oh, stop! Do you think—do you suppose I would marry him now—now, after I've seen what he is? Oh, with a shudder of disgust, "when I think what I might have done I—Thank God that the money has gone! I'm glad I'm poor! I'm glad I never want to see him or think of him again. Please, please let me go! Oh, take me home! Captain Warren, please let me go home!"

Her uncle was at her side in a moment. "Yes, yes, dearie," he said, "I'll take you home. Don't give way now! I'll—"

He would have taken her arm, but she shrank from him.

"Not you," she begged. "Steve!"

The captain's face clouded, but he answered promptly. "Of course—Steve," he agreed. "Steve, take your sister home. Mr. Sylvester's got a carriage waitin', and he'll go with you, I don't doubt. Do as I tell you, boy—and behave yourself. Don't wait; go!"

He held the door open until the hysterical girl and her brother had departed. Then he turned to the Duns.

"Well, ma'am," he said dryly, "I don't know there's anything more to be said. All the questions seem to be settled. Our acquaintance won't be so awful long, but it was interestin'. Knowin' you has been, as the feller said, a liberal education. Don't let me keep you any longer. Good afternoon."

Then Mrs. Dunn bethought herself of a way to make their exit less awkward and embarrassing.

"My heart!" she said, gasping and with a clutch at her breast. "My poor heart! I—I fear I'm going to have one of my attacks. Malcolm, your arm—quick!"

With an expression of intense but patient suffering and leaning heavily upon her son's arm she moved past Captain Elisha and from the room.

That evening the captain stood in the lower hall of the apartment house at Central Park West undecided what to do next. He wished more than anything else in the world to go to his niece. He would have gone to her before—had been dying to go to soothe, to comfort, to tell her of his love—but he was afraid. His conscience troubled him. Perhaps he had been too brutal.

The elevator descended, the door of the cage opened, and Stephen himself darted out. The captain caught him as he passed.

"Here, boy!" he exclaimed. "Where's the fire? Where are you bound?"

thing else in the world to go to his niece. He would have gone to her before—had been dying to go to soothe, to comfort, to tell her of his love—but he was afraid. His conscience troubled him. Perhaps he had been too brutal.

His nephew, brought thus unexpectedly to a halt, stared at him. "Oh, it's you!" he exclaimed. "Humph! I'm bound—I don't know where I'm bound. I'm going to the club, I guess, or somewhere. Anyhow I won't stay with her. I told her so. Silly little idiot! I'll never speak to her again. I told her so. She!"

"Here! Belay! Stop! Who are you talking about?"

"Caro, of course. She!"

"You've run off and left her alone—tonight? Where is she?"

"Upstairs—and crying, I suppose. She doesn't do anything else. It's all she's good for. Selfish, romantic!"

He got no further, for Captain Elisha sent him reeling with a push and ran to the elevator.

"Eighteen door," he commanded. The door of the apartment was not latched. Stephen, in his rage and hurry, had neglected such trifles. The captain opened it quietly and walked in. He entered the library. Caroline was lying on the couch, her head buried in the pillows.

"Caroline, dearie," he faltered, "forgive me for comin' here, won't you? I had to come. I couldn't rest, thinkin' of you alone in your trouble. I know you must feel harder than ever toward me for this afternoon's doin's, but I meant it for the best. I had to show you—don't you see? Won't you try to forgive the old feller that loves you more'n all the world? Won't you try?"

"I forgive you?" she repeated incredulously.

"Yes. Try to, dearie. Oh, if you would only believe I meant it for your good and nothin' else! If you could only just trust me and come to me and let me help you. I want you, my girl, I want you!"

She leaned forward. "Do you really mean it?" she cried. "How can you, after all I've done, after the way I've treated you and the things I've said? You must hate me. Every one does. I hate myself. You can't forgive me! You can't!"

His answer was to hold out his arms. Another moment and she was in them, clinging to his wet coat, sobbing, holding him fast and begging him not to leave her, to take her away; that she would work, that she would not be a burden to him—only take her with him and try to forgive her, for he was real and honest and the only friend she had.

And Captain Elisha, soothing her, stroking her hair and murmuring words of love and tenderness, realized that his labor and sacrifice had not been in vain; that here was his recompense—she would never misunderstand him again; she was his at last.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Rejection.

WHEN the apartment was given up and Captain Elisha and his wards moved to the little house in Westchester county, Anne came with them. Mrs. Moriarty came once a week to do the laundry work. Caroline acted as a sort of inexperienced, but willing, supervising housekeeper.

The house had been procured through the kind interest of Sylvester. Caroline took a domestic science course at a university. She could not quite understand how her uncle retained the valuable paintings of their old home.

One day at her request her uncle told her the true story of Mr. Pearson's relations with her father. Caroline wrote to Pearson apologizing for her conduct, but she got her uncle's promise not to invite Pearson to call. However, the captain forgot all about it, and Pearson appeared. As he turned in at the front walk Caroline came out of the door. They met face to face.

It was a most embarrassing situation, particularly for Caroline, yet, with feminine resourcefulness, she dissembled her embarrassment to some extent and acknowledged his stammered "Good afternoon, Miss Warren," with a cool, almost cold, "How do you do, Mr. Pearson?" which chilled his pleasure at seeing her and made him wish devoutly that he had not been such a fool as to come. However, there he was, and he hastily explained his presence by telling her of the captain's invitation for that day, how he had expected to meet him at the station and, not meeting him, had walked up to the house.

"Is he in?" he asked.

No, Captain Elisha was not in. He had gone to see a sailboat man. Not hearing from his friend, he concluded the latter would not come until the next day. "He will be so sorry," said Caroline.

He was turning to go, but she stopped him.

"You mustn't go, Mr. Pearson," she said. "You must come in and wait. Captain Warren will be back soon, I'm sure."

Pearson was reluctant, but he could think of no reasonable excuse. So he entered the house, removed his overcoat and hat and seated himself in the living room to await the captain's return.

They were deep in the discussion of the novel when Captain Elisha walked into the living room. He was surprised, stating his feelings at their midst, to find them together, but he did not express his astonishment. Pearson did not take the next train nor the next. Instead, he stayed for dinner and well into the evening, and when he did go it was after a prompt acceptance of the captain's invitation to "come again in a mighty little while."

Pearson came again a week later and thereafter frequently. The sessions with Cap'n Jim, the hero of the novel, and his associates were once more regular enjoyments, to be looked forward to and enjoyed by the three.

In June two very important events took place. The novel was finished, and Stephen, his sophomore year at an end, came home from college. He had been invited by some classmates to spend a part of his vacation with them on the Maine coast, and his guardian had consented to his doing so. But the boy himself had something else to propose.

"Say," he said, "I've been thinking a good deal while I've been away this last time. Now, the way I look at it, this college course of mine isn't worth while. And the kind of work I want to do doesn't need university training. I want to be down on the street, as the governor was. If this rubber company business hadn't knocked us out I intended as soon as I was of age to take that seat of his and start in for myself. Well, that chance has gone, but I mean to get in some way, though I have to start at the foot of the ladder. Now, why can't I leave college and start now? It will be two years gained, won't it?"

Captain Elisha seemed pleased, but he shook his head.

"How do you know you'd like it?" he asked. "You've never tried."

"No, I never have, but I'll like it, all right. I know I shall. It's what I've wanted to do ever since I was old enough to think of such things. Just let me start in now, right away, and I'll show you. I'll make good, you see if I don't."

That evening the captain made a definite proposal to Stephen. It was briefly that, while not consenting to the latter's leaving college, he did consider that a trial of the work in a broker's office might be a good thing. Therefore if the young man wished he could enter the employ of a friend of Sylvester and remain during July and August.

The novel, the wonderful tale which Captain Elisha was certain would make its author famous, was finished that very day in June when Stephen came back from New Haven.

The advance copy, the first one, was ready early in September, and the author, of course, brought it immediately to his friends. They found the dedication especially interesting. To C. W. and E. W., consulting specialists at the literary clinics, with grateful acknowledgments." Probably Captain Elisha was never prouder of anything, even his first command, than of that dedication.

And the story, when at last it appeared for sale, was almost frolic. The beginning a success, and most important of all perhaps, it sold and continued to sell. There was something in it, its humanity, its simplicity, its clearly marked characters, which made a hit. Pearson no longer needed to seek publishers; they sought him. His short stories were bid for by the magazines, and his prices climbed and climbed. He found himself suddenly planted in the middle of the highway to prosperity.

The novel being out of the way and its successor not yet far enough advanced in plot or general plan for much discussion, the "literary clinics" were no longer as frequent. But Pearson's visits to the Warren house were not discontinued. All summer long he had been coming out once and usually twice a week. Captain Elisha had told him not to stand on formality, to come any time, and he did. On most of these occasions he found the captain at home, but if only Caroline was there he seemed quite contented. The captain was planning a glorious Thanksgiving. At least it would be glorious to him, for he intended spending the day and several days at his own home in South Denboro. He would not leave Caroline, of course; she was going with him. Steve would be there, though he would not come until Thanksgiving day itself. Sylvester also would be of the party. He seemed delighted at the opportunity. Pearson was asked and had accepted. His going was so far a settled thing that he had commissioned Captain Elisha to purchase a stateroom for him on the Fall river boat, for, of course, the captain would not consider their traveling the entire distance by train. A day or two later Pearson announced that he had decided not to go.

"Hey?" Captain Elisha could scarcely believe he had heard correctly. "You can't go to South Denboro?"

"No."

"Why not, for the land sakes? Come here! Let me look at you."

He took the young man by the arm and led him, almost by main strength, close to the lighted window of the flat.

"Humph!" he grunted after a moment's scrutiny. "You've made up your mind; I can see that. Have you told Caroline? Does she know?"

Pearson smiled, but there was little mirth in the smile. "I think she agrees with me that it is best," he observed. (TO BE CONTINUED)

SLAPS AT SLACKERS

By ALICE KILLIAN.

"No, I haven't done any knitting yet, but I'm going to soon. You see, I've been so dreadfully busy with other patriotic service. One can't do everything at once, can one? I shall begin with knitting socks. I don't see why people waste time on scarfs and sweaters when socks are so much needed."

"I shall make socks with gay colored tops. Bright colors aid the morale, I'm sure. It would be a terrible thing to have our soldiers barefoot just because the women aren't alive to the necessity of knitting enough socks. I think I'll make a little speech at our Red Cross auxiliary on 'Swelling the Sock Supply.'"

"You see, that's one of my ways of helping. I'm a voluntary speaker at the Red Cross auxiliaries. I was talking to a surgical dressings group yesterday on 'Folding for France.' I know that I inspired the workers with new zeal, for when I had finished talking one of the women said to me, 'Why don't you stay and help us yourself? You have made us all feel that we need every worker we can get.' I had to explain that other duties called."

"No, I haven't done much in surgical dressings yet. I find it makes me nervous. Many people really like to fold gauze. I think they should be unremittent in their work. How terrible it would be if any of our brave boys should suffer just because women at home don't realize the need for countless pads, sponges and compresses. Something should be done to spur them on to greater efforts. I think I shall have to do more speaking, although just now it will be hard for me to give up any more time, because I am taking golf lessons."

"I don't know why you should look surprised, I might almost say shocked, at the mere mention of golf. We all know that the health of the nation is a large part of its wealth. I consider it a patriotic duty to get plenty of fresh air and exercise."

"Gardening? Well, of course, one does get fresh air and exercise spading and hoeing, but I don't think they have the same effect on the physique that outdoor sports have. Do you? I have observed that farmers and market gardeners don't have the same bright complexions and free carriage that golf and tennis players acquire. However, I believe thoroughly in patriotic gardens, and I shall further them all I can by speaking. I think I shall call my little talk 'Seedling for Safety.' Don't you like that? It will be frightful if we don't have food for our allies just because people are asleep."

"Then there's the preserving of vegetables and fruits."

"No, I don't do it myself, for I can't stand the heat of a stove in summer, but last year I had my maid do a great deal of canning. As it happened, most of the things she put up spoiled. She is not clever at following written directions, and I was not able to be in the kitchen much myself. However, I feel that we made our start—and this season she will profit by last year's experience."

"I suppose you're buying war savings stamps? I'm intensely interested in their sale. It would be a fearful thing if the men, women and children of this country did not respond to the call of the government for funds to push the war. People should buy to the limit."

"No, I haven't bought to the $1,000 limit myself yet, as I have a great many expenses connected with my war work. One is asked to give in so many directions, and then, of course, going about speaking as I do requires correct clothes, and in bad weather my taxi fares are really quite an item."

"I do wish you would come to hear me speak on 'Stamping Out Sedition and Bonds Are Bombs.' I'm quite sure that if you could hear either speech you would feel that you must lend every dollar you can possibly spare to Uncle Sam. A woman said to me the other day that after hearing me urge economy she quite understood why so very few people were buying spring suits this season. She looked right at my new broadcloth, which is plain but very handsome. I think she realized that I had been patriotic in my selection of a suit, for it is true economy to buy good material."

"Sometimes I am perfectly agnost at the numbers of slackers there are who do nothing to help win the war. I should think people would be ashamed not to do their part in this tremendous struggle. Indeed, I am so much exercised about the apathy of nonworkers I know, who neither knit, sew, conserve food nor save for the nation, that I'm getting up a little speech called 'Slaps for Slackers.' I do hope you will come to hear it."

Age and Youth.

The older man who remembers a younger whom he has once met and greets him on the street is an exceptional person. And the younger man who, on being thus remembered and greeted, feels neither pleasure nor gratitude, is an exceptional person. If the deferential respect of the young is gratifying to the elderly, the notice and the interest of the elderly are stimulating to the young, observes a writer in Youth's Companion.

Think of each person whom you meet as an individual, however young he may be, to try to discover in what ways he is individual, and to charge the memory with the impression of him—those should be regarded as social obligations by people who have attained middle age and who with it should have acquired some degree of wisdom and of interest in the human kind.

MILITARY AIDED BY AUTOMOBILES

Real Significance of Motorcar in Transportation Problems of Present Day.

SOLDIERS MUST BE CARRIED

Food and Other Necessities Must Be Transported to Them Without Delay—Conservation of Gasoline Is Important.

H. H. Franklin, president of a large automobile concern, in a recent address before a large number of automobile dealers and owners, pointed out the real significance of the motor car in the transportation problems of today.

"America is at war now in the fullest sense," stated Mr. Franklin, "and under such conditions come natural transportation difficulties incident to efficient military operations. Not only must millions of troops be transported from place to place, but food and other necessities must also be carried to them without delay."

War Needs Are Primary. "Military needs, absolutely and properly, must have preference, and with the railroads taxed to their limits manufacturers must find some other means of forming a regular and satisfactory contact between themselves and their public."

"This problem is already finding answer in the use of automobiles and motor trucks. Not only are regularly scheduled automobile express lines being opened up between different cities throughout the East, but manufacturers are finding it advisable to furnish their salesmen with automobiles in order that they may not be dependent upon unsatisfactory train service."

"The results in all cases where motor vehicles are being tried seem highly satisfactory, and it is quite likely that even after the war is over and conditions have again become normal, that a greater appreciation will be had of the desirability of automobile transportation."

Drive-Away Satisfactory. "For example, the war has brought about with our firm the necessity for insisting that dealers in adjacent territory, or even territory within several hundred miles, come to the factory and drive what cars they order home themselves instead of having them shipped. This has proved very satisfactory, and, as even under normal conditions, several days could be saved, it is quite likely to be continued right along."

"Another important outcome of the war is the greater consideration automobile owners are giving to the gasoline their cars consume for each mile they are run. In the past little thought has been given to this question, but now, with our double need for gasoline, the issue must be faced."

"War requirements alone are over 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline per day, and as the total daily production in the United States is but 6,849,000 gallons, the greatest conservation is necessary in order that a shortage may not occur."

DON'T ABUSE THE SPOTLIGHT

Its Free Use Is Sure to Be Legislated Against Unless Drivers Restrain Themselves.

Don't abuse the privileges a spotlight gives you. This light is wonderfully helpful when properly used, but damnable when misused. Its free use is sure to be legislated against severely unless drivers curb some present propensities. Always carry the spotlight higher than the other lights. Never flash it on a vehicle which is approaching—it's blinding. Use it to light up the road surface and to define ditches, but never on another car.

PLEASE REMEMBER

To say and to write: Passenger car or motorcar not "pleasure car."

Runabout or roadster—"speedster" or "sport car."

And this is the reason: Eighty to 90 per cent of the use of motorcars is for utility ends.

The United States farm board has listed the automobile as a necessary farm equipment for the purchase of which the farmer may borrow money under the board's plan for aiding agriculture. The motorcar is just as necessary equipment to the business man.

The United States fuel administration in its ruling that ranges and service stations may use light and heat on the so-called fuelless days definitely recognized the motorcar as a public utility.

AUTO HELPS TRADE BALANCE

Motor Vehicles Require Little Space in Shipping in Proportion to Their Value.

Importance of maintaining balance in motor vehicles with dealers was considered at a meeting of the export committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Motor vehicles require the cargo space in proportion to value and serve to maintain the balance and the par value of dollar in such countries as whose nitrates are required for munition, and Argentina, Chile and wheat are in great demand America and her allies.

PREVENT PLAYING WITH

Switch May Be Placed in Current Turned Off When Is Not Running.

To prevent children from playing with the horn and thus shorting the battery, a switch may be placed in the current turned off when the current is stopped. By installing the connection with the ignition switch, later when thrown to "on" would automatically open the circuit. Thus the horn could only be used when the engine was running.

MORE SILOS NEEDED ON MICHIGAN FARMS

Building of Them Would Better Insure Corn Crop, M. A. C. Says.

MUCH FOREIGN CORN PLANTED

Silos Will Save Such of This as Falls to Mature—Cost Not Prohibitive.

From Office of Publications, Michigan Agricultural College.

East Lansing, Mich.—One of the surprising features of Michigan's wartime agriculture has been the rapidity and the success with which the Michigan farmer has adjusted himself to the changed conditions which have come in the wake of the war. On many farms tractors have to a certain extent replaced horses. On others machinery has been made to make up for a lack of men, and in still more numerous instances boys, and even women, have been drafted into the working forces to help keep up production. More remarkable than all these has been the effectiveness with which the state has met the seed corn shortage. Owing to the extreme urgency of the seed corn situation early in the year, the corn acreage is still somewhat below normal, but without the 100,000 bushels brought in by the seed corn committee, and dealers who cooperated with it, it is doubtful if more than 50 per cent of the customary acreage would have been seeded to this essential crop in 1918.

In congratulating themselves on the apparent successful tiding over of this crisis, however, many growers have lost sight of the fact that new problems may have come in with the imported corn. Every effort was put forth by the men who secured seed for Michigan to buy only early maturing varieties, but notwithstanding the care and caution exercised by these agents,

A CONCRETE SILO.

The value of these lies in their permanency and the fact that the cost of construction is low, because much of the material necessary for building can be secured on the farm.

There is a likelihood that much of the crop may not mature fully—unless Michigan (and a good reason ought to be about due) should be favored with unusually good corn weather.

Where there is a silo on the farm it will be possible to obtain a maximum benefit from the crop. If a farmer without a silo is caught with a late maturing variety, the loss may be considerable. Under the circumstances the evident moral is: "Build a silo."

Michigan, as a whole, is probably as liberally bespattered with silos as any state in the Union. It has been the silo, in fact, that has really made the growing of corn profitable in the central and middle northern counties, for until it was introduced, corn was hardly a safe crop except in the southern tier of counties. But while silos have come to occupy a large place in Michigan husbandry, there is still much room for more—though the warning must be added that not every farm needs a silo. The formula "where you have corn and cattle, build a silo," is a fairly safe one.

This, naturally, brings up the question of just where these structures begin to be an economy. This has usually been answered with the declaration that if a farmer keeps at least ten cows, then it is good business to build a silo.

All rules have their exceptions, of course, and in this instance northern Michigan fills this bill. The upper peninsula is developing rapidly as a dairying and cattle raising country, but it is perhaps making its biggest strides in sheep husbandry. At the college experiment station, situated at Chatham, it has been found economical to use the silo not only for corn, but for peas, oats and clover as well. A yield of 10.6 tons of peas and oats to the acre, when placed in the silo at the Chatham station, were found to provide a most excellent winter feed for sheep. The second crop of clover was also put into the silo.

If there is a question as to the wisdom of building a silo it would be wise to take up the matter with the department of animal husbandry at M. A. C. A letter addressed to the department at its offices in East Lansing will bring the desired information. Or possibly it may be more convenient to call in your county agricultural agent.

There isn't much doubt in the mind of the average up-to-date farmer about the value of a silo where corn and live stock are the main factors in the business—a silo in the right place is about as effective a weapon as can be turned against the kniser. The biggest bogey to the man who has silos on his mind is that of cost. "Couldn't think of building new with prices where they are," many of these men say. "There is no gainsaying the fact that prices aren't what they used to be—and neither are corn prices. Bushel for bushel corn can buy more silo today than it could four years ago. The secret of this declaration is to be found in the relative increase in prices. The price of corn has advanced faster than the price of the materials which go into the construction of a silo. The price should not stand in the way of the man who needs a silo. As a general practice, also, bankers are usually willing to advance loans for silo building, for such a move on the part of a farmer is construed as constructive effort—as an attempt, in other words, to improve the earning power of the business.

G. I. Christie of Indiana has summarized the points in favor of a silo in this wise:

1. The silo preserves the palatability and succulence of the green corn plant for winter feeding.
2. It helps to make use of the entire corn plant.
3. The silo increases the live stock capacity of the farm.
4. Silage is a summer feed when pastures are short.
5. Because of the small amount of ground space required by the silo, it is an economical means of storing forage.
6. The silo prevents waste of corn stalks, leaves and husks, which contain about two-fifths of the feeding value of the corn plant.
7. The silo located near the feed manger is an assurance of having feed near at hand in stormy as well as fair weather.
8. The silo assists in reducing the cost of gains in fattening cattle and sheep.
9. Silage greatly increases the milk flow during the winter season and decreases the cost of production.
10. There are no stalks to bother in the mature when corn is put into the silo.

Some highly helpful information on the subject of constructing silos can be obtained from the department of farm mechanics of M. A. C. A card mailed to the department will secure this for you.

Establishing Canning Centers. Community canning centers for the putting up of vegetables and fruits are being established in various Michigan cities and towns by the boys' and girls' club department of the Michigan Agricultural college. On July 1 five of these had been arranged for in Battle Creek, Lansing, Grosse Pointe Farms, Bloomfield Hills and East Lansing, each in charge of a demonstrator. Individuals in the communities in which these canning "plants" have been established, bring their products to the center to be bottled or canned as they may be. Grocers have offered to buy all the products of these "preservatories." More of them will be set up in other towns, for with the output of the commercial canneries already contracted for by the government, the community centers must make up the difference necessary to meet the normal demands of the public. Cities, towns and villages wishing to undertake this work are advised that they can secure assistance in organization and in the finding of demonstrators if they will communicate with the boys' and girls' club department of M. A. C. in East Lansing.

Find Garbage Pays. Experiments with the feeding of garbage to pigs, conducted by H. W. Norton for the experiment station of the college, have brought out clearly the value of garbage as a feed. The work was commenced on April 24 with 11 pigs, weighing 1,448 pounds, or an average of 132 pounds each. The animals were fed raw garbage from 250 people and nothing else. On June 20 the combined weight of the pigs was 2,121 pounds, or an average of 193 pounds each. The gain was 673 pounds of pork for the 11 head. With pork at 16½ cents a pound, this was worth $111.05. In other words, garbage from each person of the 250 who supplied it, was worth 5½ cents a week per person.

Hand-Pick Insects. Hand picking is used in the case of insects which are usually not very numerous, or when the number of plants is small. This is usually the most satisfactory method with the tomato worm. It is also very helpful in the case of potato and cucumber beetles.

Observe Garden Sanitation. One of the first things for the gardener to observe is "garden sanitation." Frequently garden pests, both insect and disease, are carried over on the waste material of the previous season's crop.

KIDNEY TROUBLE NOT EASILY RECOGNIZED

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected

An examining physician for one of the prominent life insurance companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is its remarkable record of success.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper—Adv.

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it at night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one course is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles—Adv.

Letter from the Dead.

On the body of a British soldier recently killed at the front, was found the following letter addressed to his mother: "I am dead; I have lived my life, fought the good fight, and given my life willingly and happily for your sakes on the altar of duty. The fighting will be severe, the suffering great; but, mother darling, every child whom God receiveth He scourgeth. It is only part of the imitation of our blessed Lord's life—just a weak, unworthy imitation—but the best a poor, puny, sinful child can make. I plead with you not to worry. Put all your faith, your hope, your trust in the God of love."

Are the Packers Profiteers?

Plain Facts About the Meat Business

The Federal Trade Commission in its recent report on war profits, stated that the five large meat packers have been profiteering and that they have a monopoly of the market.

These conclusions, if fair and just, are matters of serious concern not only to those engaged in the meat packing business but to every other citizen of our country.

The figures given on profits are misleading and the statement that the packers have a monopoly is unsupported by the facts.

The packers mentioned in the report stand ready to prove their profits reasonable and necessary.

The meat business is one of the largest American industries. Any citizen who would familiarize himself with its details must be prepared for large totals.

The report states that the aggregate profits of four large packers were $140,000,000 for the three war years.

This sum is compared with $19,000,000 as the average annual profit for the three years before the war, making it appear that the war profit was $121,000,000 greater than the pre-war profit.

This compares a three-year profit with a one-year profit—a manifestly unfair method of comparison. It is not only misleading, but the Federal Trade Commission apparently has made a mistake in the figures themselves.

The aggregate three-year profits of $140,000,000 was earned on sales of over four and a half billion dollars. It means about three cents on each dollar of sales—or a mere fraction of a cent per pound of product.

Packers' profits are a negligible factor in prices of live stock and meats. No other large business is conducted upon such small margins of profit.

Furthermore—and this is very important—only a small portion of this profit has been paid in dividends. The balance has been put back into the businesses. It had to be, as you realize when you consider the problems the packers have had to solve—and solve quickly—during these war years.

To conduct this business in war times, with higher costs and the necessity of paying two or three times the former prices for live stock, has required the use of two or three times the ordinary amount of working capital. The addi-

"You might call it feelingly. He kept groping around for a word."

A self-closing door spring adds to the anger of a man who wants to slam the door.

If you are a business man you will appreciate the significance of these facts. If you are unacquainted with business, talk this matter over with some business acquaintance—with your banker, say—and ask him to compare profits of the packing industry with those of any other large industry at the present time.

No evidence is offered by the Federal Trade Commission in support of the statement that the large packers have a monopoly. The Commission's own report shows the large number and importance of other packers.

The packers mentioned in the statement stand ready to prove to any fair-minded person that they are in keen competition with each other, and that they have no power to manipulate prices.

If this were not true they would not dare to make this positive statement.

Furthermore, government figures show that the five large packers mentioned in the report account for only about one-third of the meat business of the country.

They wish it were possible to interest you in the details of their business. Of how, for instance, they can sell dressed beef for less than the cost of the live animal, owing to utilization of by-products, and of the wonderful story of the methods of distribution throughout this broad land, as well as in other countries.

The five packers mentioned feel justified in co-operating with each other to the extent of together presenting this public statement.

They have been able to do a big job for your government in its time of need; they have met all war time demands promptly and completely and they are willing to treat their case to the fairness of the American people with the facts before them.

THE EDELS FORD CASE.

One of the Michigan homes as yet untouched by the draft is Henry Ford's, in Detroit. Edsel Ford, Henry Ford's son, who holds a minor job in his father's establishment, has been permitted to remain behind the thousands of other Michigan men who have gone to the national army. His deferred classification is based on the idea that Edsel Ford is "indispensable" as a cog in his father's business machinery.

The farmers, in talking about the Edsel Ford case, shrewdly question each other as to how the Ford industry can spare Henry Ford if Edsel Ford is "indispensable." They figure that the father is the dominant influence in his business organization and that his son holds only a minor position.

Within the last week this angle appears to have developed as one of the significant features of the Michigan political situation. From the feeling reported from many counties, it is believed that the Edsel Ford case may become one of the controlling factors in the senatorial race.

PRIMARY SCHOOL MONEY.

The primary school fund allotment for the coming year was fixed yesterday by State Superintendent Keeler at $7.23.

This is three cents a pupil higher than in 1917, when the allotment was $7.20 flat. The fund this year, which comes from the specific taxes on corporations, totaled $6,454,486. It was distributed on the basis of 892,785 children, the total shown by the census of June, 1917.

OUR ASSOCIATE EDITORS.

The newspaper man is blamed for a lot of things which he cannot help, such as using partiality in mentioning visitors, giving news about some folks and leaving others out, etc. He simply prints what he can find. Some people inform him about their visitors and their company and others do not. Consider yourself an associate editor of the Tribune and don't make an apology when sending us a few items. Tell us the news!

Many of our poorer citizens are undergoing sacrifices that they may be able to show their patriotism by buying War Savings Stamps.

Cause of Despondency.

Despondency is often caused by indigestion and constipation, and quickly disappears when Chamberlain's Tablets are taken. These tablets strengthen the digestion and move the bowels.—Adv.

Truman H. Newberry Believes in Practical Patriotism—

SO DO HIS SONS

They are all in the service, just like lots of other fathers and sons—

Fathers with sons who have gone forth to war want such a man in the United States Senate—some one who particularly understands the needs and problems of their boys—

Mothers will feel more comfortable—

The boys themselves would choose such a man.

"No man is fit to live in a free country if he is not ready to die for that country. Indeed, the only man who is fit to live at all is the man who with a gallant heart is ready to give his life at the call of duty."—(Former President Roosevelt in Detroit speech, May 30, 1918.)

Truman H. Newberry Measures up to the Highest Standards of the American People.

HE IS THE MAN WHO WILL BE CHOSEN BY THE VOTERS OF MICHIGAN TO BE THEIR UNITED STATES SENATOR.
